Red Setbacks Due To Lack Of Second Front

MOSCOW, Nov. 6. (AP)—Joseph Stalin declared today that because of the lack of a second front the Germans had been able to break through the Russian lines in the west last summer and in five months advance about 300 miles.

3rd Class Of Cadets Here

More bombardier cadets, the third class to be assigned here, reported to the Big Spring Army Air Forces Bombardier School here Friday to begin their advanced training in how to blast the Axis into oblivion.

As in the case of two preceding classes, cadets in the third group came from all over the nation and presented a perfect picture of a nation working together to win a war.

Here was Bob Wing, 20, Greenville, Miss., who interrupted his freshman studies at the University of Mississippi to get into the army.

They were received by Capt. Samuel W. Bradstreet, Jr., commandant of aviation cadets, and were being processed during the morning.

By Monday they will be into the routine of their regular training, getting a three weeks test of intensive ground schooling before time comes for the thrill of their first practice bombing mission.

Caribbean Storm Brewing, But May Pass Through Straits Into Gulf

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 6. (AP)—A storm brewed in the tempestuous Caribbean skirted along the north coast of Cuba today, but its main force apparently was headed through the straits and into the Gulf of Mexico, aimed away from peninsular Florida and its resort area.

A wide area of storm winds—reaching hurricane force of 75 miles or more near the center—threatened the central and southern Bahama islands off the Florida coast and the island of Cuba.

The weather bureau at Miami said the main force of the tropical disturbance might pass inland over Cuba before proceeding westward toward the Gulf of Mexico.

However, the heavily-populated areas of Florida southward from Melbourne and including Palm Beach and Miami were threatened with heavy gale winds, although Forecaster Ernest F. Carson expected these sections to miss the worst of it.

South of Miami and in the Key West area at the tip of the state, the threat was great and civilian and naval forces took all precautions to protect themselves against property or personal loss.

The worst of the storm apparently missed the Bahama islands where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor maintain their official residence.

The storm, centered in early morning at Long Island in the Bahamas, was moving west or northwest.

Along lower Florida's Atlantic coast line and down the Archipelago to Key West, vessels hurried into port. Storm shutters were fastened to windows facing seaward.

Miami's public schools were closed for the day and a high school football game was cancelled.

The weather bureau went on an emergency basis to keep the area informed, and warning censorship of storm news was lifted to permit notification of all who might be threatened.

Navy officials in the area announced that hotels housing navy and coast guard personnel along the waterfront in Miami were being shuttered and that the service was taking the same precautions that civilians in the area are schooled to observe.

The storm apparently made up more rapidly than usual and the customary two or three days' advance notice was missing.

Before daylight, however, the weather bureau began broadcasting its warnings and stormwise Miamians began protecting their property before 6 a. m.

Schools Early In Holiday Observance

Some county schools took a holiday this weekend as an advance Armistice Day observance in order to be back in session when the gas rationing sign-up comes next week, County Superintendent Anne Martin said Friday.

Elbow and Garner schools closed today and will be in session again Monday. No definite word had come from Forsan and Chalk, where the earlier holiday was being considered.

Sea Victories Are Claimed By Britain

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—The admiralty announced today that six more axis vessels had been sunk and two large axis supply ships damaged by British submarines in the Mediterranean.

Two axis ships, both coastal vessels laden with food, were boarded by crews from a British submarine and destroyed after their own crews had abandoned them.

Manpower Legislation Is Endorsed By Nelson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—War Production Chief Donald Nelson today endorsed the principle of Manpower legislation but predicted that 99 times in 100 compromise would be unnecessary to get Americans into the war effort.

"It seems to me it is always better to do a job with a clean cut law passed by congress than by administrative acts," he told the senate military committee, which is considering half a dozen manpower control bills.

Senator Hill (D-Ala.) asked Nelson if he did not think it time for congress to act.

Red Positions Improved At Stalingrad

Many Invaders Said Slain In Caucasus Fighting

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Nov. 6. (AP)—The Russians said today counterattacking garrison troops had improved their positions somewhat in a Stalingrad factory area while the Red army maintained active operations on the Black sea front and slew 1,000 invaders in the battle for the central Caucasus.

Two companies of tank-support-nazi infantrymen were declared smashed as Russian forces struck across a debris-littered expanse of north Stalingrad after repulsing enemy attacks.

Russian artillerymen destroyed eight German tanks by point blank fire and Soviet fliers struck heavily at German troop positions, the noon communique said.

Bombs and gunfire of the Russian aircraft were reported to have destroyed 18 enemy batteries and 25 machine-gun positions within 24 hours.

Three more batteries were silenced and 19 German dugouts and blockhouses were wrecked by Soviet shells on the steppes north-west of Stalingrad, it was announced.

The Moscow radio reported that the defenders of the city, in a letter expressing determination to fight to the last heart beat, said that "we are sure the time is not far off when we shall hear of the opening of a second front by our allies."

Savagely of the conflict south-east of Naichik, where the Russians are fighting to hold the routes leading to the Grozny oil fields and the strategic valley between the Caucasian mountain chains, was illustrated by an account from the Soviet information bureau.

"In one sector," it said, "about half a regiment of infantry, supported by tanks, launched an attack on our strong points. Soviet troops met the enemy with artillery and mortar fire and, after losing 900 officers and men killed, the Germans retreated to their initial positions."

Progress was reported in the Russian counterdrive from Tuapse and the communique said 300 more invaders had been wiped out and prisoners and war material captured. Sixteen German planes were said to have been shot down by anti-aircraft gunners in two days.

New Curbs On Telegrams

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—The board of war communications today ordered telegraph companies to refuse solicitation and congratulatory messages and to discontinue all non-telegraphic services beginning December 15 in a series of steps to gear the domestic telegraphic industry more closely to the war effort.

The BWC order provided: "That the 'office drag' (the interval between the time a message reaches the operating room and the completion of transmission) must not average more than seven minutes for at least 95 per cent of all messages received at the office and in no case among the 95 per cent may the 'drag' exceed 15 minutes.

2. Present routing times for business messages to be delivered by messenger must be reduced by one-third.

3. The FCC was authorized to develop a plan for revising the present priority system for handling urgent essential traffic, both governmental and non-governmental, and to report on it to the EWC.

builder Henry J. Kaiser told a senate labor committee he thought voluntary enlistments in the armed services should be halted and that a nine-member committee should be established to control the distribution of manpower and womanpower for the nation's war needs.

Nelson, too, said he believed voluntary enlistments should be halted and cited five additional ways in which he thought the country could realize greater production from its reserves of workers.

The work week might be lengthened, he suggested; production could be increased through better management; greater use should be made of minority groups; less essential uses of manpower should be cut off; and worker absenteeism should be stopped.

Nelson reiterated his preference for legislation rather than administrative orders and added that "I think it would be well for congress to survey the situation."

Hitler Rushing Troops To Stave Off Full Disaster

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor

British tanks pursuing the broken axis armies in Egypt were reported rolling along the Mediterranean coast today with striking distance of Matruh, 104 miles west of El Alamein, while dispatches from Greece said Adolf Hitler had sent a fleet of 500 planes to rush fresh troops across the sea in an attempt to avert utter disaster.

A British communique said the triumphant 8th Army was attacking rearguards well beyond El Daba, 33 miles west of El Alamein.

German field headquarters acknowledged that the battle was raging "in the area of Fuqa and Matruh."

Fast-moving British armored forces were said to have advanced 60 miles since breaking through the enemy's defenses on the El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria. Frontline dispatches indicated that the struggle was now rapidly degenerating into a race across the desert, with the British in hot pursuit of the beaten axis columns.

Italian headquarters said German and Italian forces engaged in "violent combat" yesterday with British tank formations between Fuqa and Matruh, respectively 62 and 104 miles west of the original El Alamein line. This represented about a 40-mile British advance since yesterday.

"At dusk, the battle was still going on with unchanged bitterness," the fascist communique said tersely.

Hitler's high command said allied tanks were striking with continuous pressure, while the Berlin radio reported that heavy fighting raged last night at Fuqa.

Brits Push On—Following up their mighty smash-through at Tel El Akakir, British forces rolled on westward in pursuit of fleeing axis troops, after taking the strong points of Deir El Angar Munassibi and Himeimat. Latest reports from the battlefield said the British offensive already had pushed well beyond El Daba. Gains since the start of the new Egyptian out-break were some 60 miles.

The Nazi broadcast took the optimistic view that Marshal Rommel still retained "full freedom of action," and added:

"I now again have adopted the tactics of a war of movement, in which he is a specialist, he will certainly have gained very considerable advantages."

Informed London quarters said there was reason to believe British tanks had succeeded in cutting in behind some of the retreating Axis forces and that "their retreat is virtually cut off."

These quarters said there were high hopes that "we may be able to annihilate them completely without having to chase them across the Libyan desert as in other advances."

The British field commander told newsmen that the three British armored divisions had driven two wedges through the ragged Axis lines, and were fighting inside enemy positions.

On the battlefield, Lt. Gen. B. L. Montgomery declared the British 8th army had already won "complete and absolute victory" over Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered legions.

A bulletin from British headquarters this morning announced: "The eighth army continued its pursuit of the enemy throughout yesterday."

"Our armored forces are in contact with the enemy rearguards well west of El Daba. A minimum of 4,000 more prisoners were taken during the day."

This made a total of at least 15,000 German and Italian prisoners rounded up so far in the 14-day-old British offensive as the 8th army swept through Axis minefields and rolled back the German-Italian invaders along a 60-mile front.

"A further large number of Italians is being rounded up in a southern sector of the battlefield, where they appear to have been abandoned in the desert by the German mechanized formations," the British communique said.

Left to their fate by the fleeing Nazis, the Italians apparently were surrendering in large numbers.

The communique said the commander of the Italian Trento division and his chief of staff were among the prisoners and reported at least 59 more Italian and 20 more German tanks were captured yesterday.

Retreating Axis columns were pictured as clogging the Mediterranean coastal road, under a tempest of bombing and machine-gunning attacks by Allied warplanes.

Dispatches reaching Ankara, Turkey, from Greece said Hitler was desperately attempting to bolster Rommel's shattered forces with troops hurriedly shifted from the Russian front via transport planes across the Mediterranean to North Africa.

These reports said four trainloads of German soldiers from the eastern front passed through Athens on Monday and transport planes had been shuttling them across the sea since Tuesday.

Informed Japanese quarters in Ankara said Hitler, realizing his armies in Egypt were in peril, had even appealed to Tokyo for help in the form of a Japanese naval attack on Madagascar or South Africa which might force the British to divert strength southward.

Tokyo turned down Hitler's appeal, it was said, explaining that Japan lacked the necessary naval strength because of punishment inflicted by the U. S. fleet in the Pacific in recent months.

Meanwhile, the German radio for the third successive day broadcast reports of a great Allied armada massing at Gibraltar, across the narrow strait from the Tangier international zone and nearby French Morocco.

Intimating that the Allies were planning a smash at Rommel's rear, the German broadcast said a total of 125 British warships was concentrated at Gibraltar and that a new convoy of 14 Allied merchant ships reached the port Wednesday.

Americans Jab At Japs In Two-Way Flank Attacks

By JOHN W. WIGGINS WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Hard-pressed American forces stabled at bolstered Japanese troops on Guadalcanal's broadening battlefield today in a two-pronged attack that pierced deeper into one flank and threatened another.

To the west of the island's American-held airbase, marines and soldiers successfully attacked enemy positions, the navy reported yesterday, slaying 350 Japanese and capturing 13 75 mm. light artillery guns, three field pieces and 30 machine guns.

The offensive drive on Nov. 3 gained the American troops two additional miles of jungle. But a similar attempt to smash enemy concentrations to the east of the airfield on the following day was repulsed.

The Japanese forces, put ashore on the coast east of the American base five days ago under cover of darkness, were reinforced by additional night landings Nov. 3 and 4, the navy explained.

It was this strengthened force apparently which the Americans attacked on dawn on Nov. 4 and met what the navy termed "an initial repulse."

"Marines are pressing their attack on these enemy troops," added the communique.

On another South Pacific war front west of the Solomons, Japanese invasion forces were continuing to fall back in New Guinea under steady pressure of an allied drive.

FD Says New Congress Will Help Win The War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today, in a brief discussion of Tuesday's election, that he assumed congress was interested in winning the war just as the president was.

The chief executive was asked whether the outcome of the balloting would make any difference in his attitude toward congress.

Why should it, he asked, adding that he assumed congress also wanted to win the war.

His questioner went on to remark, however, that what he wanted to know was whether Mr. Roosevelt would confer now with both republican and democrat leaders about legislative procedure. He replied that he had been doing that.

To a question as to how he would account for the election results, which all but took away the democratic majority in the House and cut into the party's senate

Youth Must Die For Slaying Sisters

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 6. (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Edward Haight must die in the electric chair for the slaying of two little sisters.

The Stamford, Conn., laborer smiled in Westchester county court yesterday when a jury of six men and six women found him guilty on two first degree murder charges. The verdict carries a mandatory death sentence.

The jurors deliberated 96 minutes after hearing testimony as to how Haight on Sept. 14 lured Margaret, 7, and Helen, 8, into a stolen station wagon, tried to rape one, maltreated the other, and tossed both into Westchester waters to drown.

Downtown Stroller

If you think the youngsters aren't thinking about the war, how about this for proof. On a spelling examination at school here one word the students were to use was "eliminate." The student wrote in bold letters, "I would like to eliminate the Japs." Nice going!

Miss ANNE MARTIN had us all oohing over her new trick hat the other morning. Take a tip girls, it's easy and looks cute. Take a square neckerchief, fold it into triangular shape putting the two long ends together. Then begin rolling the edge and presto, you have a little hat with a rolled brim and a peaked top. It's clever.

Got a postcard in the mail from Mrs. ERNEST BARBER, now of Dalhart, Tex., who you probably will remember as JANICE CARMACK. JANICE and her husband are living at 802 Peters Street, in Dalhart and liking it a lot here.

It's going to seem strange to see the business men we used to see around town in dark blue serge, wearing the khaki of the army and stationed out here at the bombardier school. But at that, the boys far from home think these fellows are really lucky.

By the way, it's only 49 days till Christmas, 16 days till gas rationing, and 20 days till Thanksgiving. Those are the most important dates we could think of coming up and knew you'd be interested.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS
Misses, either "floating" or magnetic, are probably the most effective weapons to guard approaches to our harbors. So-called "floating" mines are anchored by a steel cable and ride below the surface of the water. They must be struck by a ship to explode.
Magnetic mines contain a magnetic needle which completes an electric circuit when the steel hull of a ship approaches. Our Navy uses thousands of these mines and their cost, for that reason, runs into the thousands of dollars. But your purchase of War Bonds will help pay for these guardians of our coast-land waters. INVEST AT LEAST TEN PERCENT of your income in War Bonds every payday and become a member of the patriotic Tea Festival Club. — E. J. Treasurer Department

Father Of Man At Bombardier School Dies At S'water
Funeral services were held at Sweetwater Thursday afternoon for Charles P. Nunn, 67, service station proprietor of that town and father of Pvt. Charles L. Nunn who is stationed at the Bombardier School in Big Spring.
Pvt. Nunn, former county judge of Nolan county, recently was given a recruiting assignment from the local post, made a trip to Sweetwater on this duty and consequently was at home when his father became ill of pneumonia about a week ago. He remained there for the funeral. The widow and six other children survive the elder Mr. Nunn.

Colorado Navy Man Is Fatally Wounded
COLORADO CITY, Nov. 6.—The war department Thursday notified Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bodine, prominent Mitchell county dairy farmers, of the death of their only son, James (Steve) Bodine, seaman second class, U. S. Navy, "as the result of wounds received in action." Bodine enlisted early this year. A graduate of Colorado City high school he attended John Tarleton and received his degree from Texas University.

Guitar and banjo-playing Pvt. Horace Sprinkelman is one of the reasons soldiers stay home in their barracks at night...Pvt. Cowan Blankenship is the envy of all the men of Shift 1. He has been assigned to Post 16, a desolate post that offers no protection from the West Texas winds but now there is an office where the guard stays on the alert, occasionally making a tour of the post. That is why Cowan grins like the canary that ate the cat, a grin that is even wider than that of the cat that ate the canary... When Pvt. ### Potent Line Is What's Making Georgia Tech

ATLANTA, Nov. 6. (AP)—Talk of unbeaten, untied Georgia Tech and you talk of backs like Clint Castleberry, the jack-rabbit freshman, and Eddie Prokop, the sophomore bombardier.

But take it from Bobby Dodd, pinch-hitting for ailing Head Coach W. A. Alexander, the biggest factor in Georgia Tech's success this year isn't superior backs. It's a seven-man work-crow up front, a hard-charging, hard-blocking line, equally effective on offense and defense.

The backs may get Sunday's headlines, but Dodd will make credit payable to those durable boys from end-to-end, who have been playing 55 minutes or better in every major game this season.

"We've got a great line," says Dodd. "Most people don't notice it, but the middle of that line is deadly. We've been opening up holes there in every game to let through blockers like Ralph Plaster and Bob Dodd. We hurt Notre Dame there, and Navy and Duke.

"Luck has been with us that none of those seven men were hurt early in the season. They were all we had. Since then we've been able to develop some replacements, and the boys are improving all the time. Our replacements have advanced most rapidly at tackle, and our ends and guards get fair help. We still don't have anyone who can come up to Mutt Manning at center.

"I'd say our line was number-one in making our record this season. Next I'd put the running and punt returns of Castleberry. Third, the passing and running of Prokop. Fourth, the line-backing of our fullbacks.

Biggest tests of Tech's line come this Saturday and next, when the Jackets meet Kentucky and Alabama.

20th Will Be Free

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Nov. 6. (AP)—The stork made his 19th call at the home of James Roy Hill, 48, paper mill worker, and Mrs. Hill, 42, bringing a boy.

The attending physician, Dr. T. E. Teah, announced there will be no bill for medical services if he is called on to deliver No. 20.

"Next one," he told the beaming father, "is on me."

Clarifying Rule On Oil Well Shutdown

AUSTIN, Nov. 6. (AP)—The Texas railroad commission today issued an order clarifying its shutdown rule with reference to wells completed during effectiveness of the shutdown order.

"Said wells shall be permitted to produce during all of said period in which it is recognized as a producing well that proportion of the producing days in the 30 day period as the number of days in said period that it is recognized as a producing well bears to the total number of days that said well would be permitted to produce if completed on or before the first day of the shutdown period," the order specified.

Weekly Hit & Miss Effort By Barker On The Grid Games

By HERN BARKER
NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Taking the weekly aim in the general direction of football winners (and hitting some, perhaps):

Wisconsin-Iowa: Not as easy as some might think. It seems certain that Wisconsin will have lost some of its fine edge after the victory over Ohio State and Iowa boasts a real, scoring punch when Tommy Farmer's pitching arm is in shape. Still, vote for Harder, Hirsch, Schreiner and Wisconsin.

Notre Dame-Army: Normally this is close every year. It probably will be again. Despite the Penn defeat, Army is a well-rounded outfit and should extend the

Rev. King Offered Evangelist Work In World Fellowship

Rev. Roland C. King, for the past fifteen months pastor of the Trinity Baptist church here, has been elected by the World Fundamental Baptist Fellowship as evangelist and superintendent of evangelism for the movement. The church here has witnessed an unusual growth and advancement under his supervision. The entire church plant has been remodeled and a new two-story parsonage has been built. More than $10,000 was paid out through the church budget last year.

The new work, if accepted by the minister, will carry him to all parts of the United States. Invitations are now awaiting his answer from Cincinnati, Ohio; Akron, Ohio; Lockland, Ohio; Tacoma, Washington; Utica, N. Y.; and Washington, D. C.

Rev. King is to go later to Lockland, Ohio, for a week's revival and is leaving Monday for a two-week revival at San Antonio.

The local pastor said he had not yet decided on acceptance of the evangelistic appointment.

School Man Warns Against 'Blackout' Of Education

AUSTIN, Nov. 6. (AP)—Opposing an educational blackout for youngsters in secondary schools in order to create a huge army, the president of the Texas State Teachers Association believes that neglecting schools now will create a lost generation for post-war years.

Dr. B. F. Pittenger, head of the association and dean of education of the University of Texas, declared yesterday that if the nation takes youngsters for active service—war work before they finish high school—we need not expect them to start again when the war is over.

Missouri-Nebraska: This should settle the Big Six race.

Louisiana State-Fordham: This Fordham outfit is well below par. Colgate's 1941 football team are in the armed forces and Hank Zittel, the big tackle, already has reached the Pacific war zone. Buddy Lewis, former Washington infielder has been transferred to the Lubbock, Tex., army flying school to complete his advanced twin-engine bomber training. Although the navy-pre-flight training program normally lasts twelve weeks, Halfback Bill Schatzner and Fullback George Hanson of the Texas Seabees have been "graduated" to flight training after only ten weeks—and right in the middle of the football season, too. Lou Onesty, former U. of Richmond athlete and more recently coach at Staunton Military Academy, was inducted into the army at Camp Lee, Va., the other day. The best policy, no doubt.

Washington-Stanford: Who can figure these far western teams?

North Carolina Naval-Georgetown: Taking the pre-flighters.

Rice-Arkansas: Looks like Rice.

Virginia Military-Wake Forest: VMI has an outstanding back in Joe Muha but the Deacons seem to have greater all-around strength.

Wake Forest.

North Carolina State-Miami: Probably close. N. C. State.

Davidson-North Carolina: Taking North Carolina.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Villanova over Iowa State; Tennessee over Cincinnati; Furman over Citadel; Clemson over George Washington; Iowa Naval over Ft. Knox; Oklahoma over Kansas State; Oregon State over Montana; Tulsa over Oklahoma A. & M.; William & Mary over Randolph-Macon; Virginia Tech over Richmond; Virginia Tech over Washington (St. Louis); Lafayette over Rutgers; Colorado over Utah; Colorado State over Utah State; Denver over Brigham Young; Marquette over Manhattan; Santa Clara over Loyola.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—That idea of having eastern and western major leagues next season is as dead as a slow-footed mule in Egypt, but while it lasted it did show up one of baseball's greatest weaknesses—the guys who run the game. Reading some comments in this week's "Sporting News" we've reached the conclusion that some of the reactions were at least as silly as the idea. Or don't they remember how they hollered "no" when such popular innovations as night baseball came along? Regardless of the merits of the idea, we can't see the point of such statements as Sam Braddon's "if ever we have to come to that, let us lock the gates." We like steak for dinner, too, but we wouldn't keep our mouth shut for the duration rather than eat hamburger.

Baker's Half Dose

Duke Coleman of Excelsior, W. Va., reports that when he covered a high school football game between Gary and Graham, Va., recently, he found that the Graham team was composed of six regulars and one substitute, all named Saunders. They're all brothers and good enough to win four out of five games. Wonder what the referee did when that sub came in to that, let us lock the gates. We like steak for dinner, too, but we wouldn't keep our mouth shut for the duration rather than eat hamburger.

Num Numb

There's an old yarn about a footballer who was being given a special examination by the college dean. "Young man, what is the sum of seven and seven?" the dean asked. "The griddle thought hard and responded, 'twelve'." Just then the football coach broke in, "aw, let him pass, dean. He only missed by seven." What brings this up is a report from Akron, O., about a high school coach who sent in one sub during a hot game and look out two players. He didn't discover the error until two plays had been run and when he finally sent in the eleventh man, his team was penalized for taking too many times out. In this connection, Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon-Journal points out that Coach Roy starn of Kent State College was a bit smarter. Finding he had twelve men on the field, Roy sent in two subs and while they were reporting beckoned three players to the sideline.

Service Dept.

Nine of the eleven starters of Colgate's 1941 football team are in the armed forces and Hank Zittel, the big tackle, already has reached the Pacific war zone. Buddy Lewis, former Washington infielder has been transferred to the Lubbock, Tex., army flying school to complete his advanced twin-engine bomber training. ### Central And West Warders In Deadlock

Hard-hitting Central Ward virtually jolted the surprising East Warders out of the elementary school league running Thursday in 14-4 win—that paced the fourth round of the youngsters' league.

This put Central in a tie with West Ward, which had no trouble at all in plastering the Midgets from South Ward, 48-0. Thus, the two pre-season favorites looked to finish out the season in a tie and put the championship at stake in a play-off.

North Ward started off with an easy time with College Heights but ended up lucky to hold a 7-0 edge.

East Ward made it look like a riot by returning the opening kickoff against Central for a touchdown. But Central settled down and went methodically to work to win handily. It was the same old story with South Ward—the boys were just too little for the bigger competition from West Ward.

Joe Jahor ran across the only touchdown of the game for North Ward, but College Heights, with Billy Jack "Peavine" Rose leading the attack, twice carried with in the North Ward 10-yard stripe in the last half. Once Rose got to the four yard line.

Next Thursday in the final round North Ward challenges Central, College Heights meets South Ward and East Ward and West Ward meet in what promises to be the featured game.

Robinson Favored To Take His 38th Straight Fight

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Although Ray Robinson, Harlem's tap-dancing, foot-suited fighter, is a 5 to 12 favorite to win his 38th consecutive professional bout to night approximately 10,000 fans are expected for his 10-round scrap with Vic Dellcourt in Madison Square Garden.

It will be Robinson's second start in the middleweight ranks, he having easily polished off Jake Lamotta recently.

The Harlem hammerer will take a 12-pound weight handicap into the ring with him against Dellcourt but expects to offset this with his heavier attack, longer reach and his greater height.

Steers Click In Offensive Rehearsals

After spending most of the week in bolstering defensive patterns, the Big Spring Steers Thursday rolled out their offensive machinery and found it functioning in good order.

Considering that the lads had not run plays since last week, the attack looked pretty good. Earnest Soetick's passing was as sharp as observers could remember. Hunka Stewart was slamming into the line with more vigor. Billy Mims was showing marked improvement in the ball carrying and Dewey Stevenson's blocking and running from short position showed snap.

Peppy Blount on one end, Wayne Dearing, John Ulrey, Glen Cagle and Woody Baker, all aspirants for the other terminal, were getting down field well and maneuvering well to break into unprotected zones for passing. Glenn Brown and Bob Boykin were playing even better ball at their tackle slots and Bob Coffey and Darrell Webb were harder to move back at their guard posts. Billy Bob McDonald and Barkley Wood were steady enough at center.

Because he regards San Angelo as having about the best blocking club in the district, Coach John Dibrell has been sleeping with one eye open in hopes of catching a vision of some defensive layout which will stop the powerful thrusts at the line.

Rocky Rundell, San Angelo coach, is an apostle of hitting hard and quick to shake shift backs and take a chance on their working on downfield by reason of their running ability. To achieve this, he sends around a seemingly unbelievable large number of blockers to blast the defensive line.

Angelo runs off the single wing, orthodox with a strong side to the line, and shifts readily to either side.

The Steers may look extra good or extra terrible trying them, but they may be counted upon to attempt some razzle-dazzle against the favored Bobcats. Dibrell has cooked up a few special plays just for San Angelo's benefit.

22,000 Due To Witness Tilt At Austin

By HAROLD V. BATTLE
Associated Press Sports Editor
Baylor's dauntless Bears, informal but efficient about this football business, go to Austin tomorrow to play a Texas team on whose side is every incentive to stop that golden surge toward a Southwest conference championship.

You might consider this the semi-finals of the title race—that is, semi-finals for Texas should the Longhorns win. If Baylor takes the battle the critics will be about ready to wrap up the pennant and ship it to Waco.

Should Texas come through there still would be powerful Texas Christian and emerging Texas A. and M.

For Baylor there would be two-beaten Rice and three-beaten Southern Methodist—not counting what may happen to the Owls and Mustangs in Saturday's games.

Rice will be playing downtrodden Arkansas at Fayetteville while S.M.U. will be tackling A. and M. at Dallas.

About incentive: Well, Texas went to Waco last year riding high in the nation's football Invitational, the critics wrote. Baylor, which had been slaughtered by A. and M., 48-0, tied Texas and ruined its chances at a championship and Rose Bowl glory.

That would appear as strong an incentive as any team might want.

Texas Christian gets a respite from conference warfare in a game with Texas Tech at Lubbock but there will be no breathing space for the Frogs. They play a very capable team in its own West Texas ballfield and T.C.U. just can't be "up" after the terrific battle with Baylor last week.

An estimated 22,000 will see the four games.

Not daunted by our fragrant miss on T.C.U.-Baylor last week we come back to court more Bronx cheers with these selections (estimated crowds in parentheses):

Baylor vs. Texas at Austin, 2:30 p. m. (22,000)—can't see how Baylor can stop Texas' power but that's what we said last week about T.C.U.

Rice vs. Arkansas at Fayetteville, 2 p. m. (9,000)—Arkansas hasn't won a conference game since 1940. We don't think they'll start tomorrow.

Texas Christian vs. Texas at Lubbock, 2:30 p. m. (12,000)—The Frogs ought to win.

Texas A. and M. vs. Southern Methodist at Dallas, 2:30 p. m. (15,000)—a weak vote for the Aggies.

Now that cars must last for the duration, many a motorist wishes that he could with as little doubt and effort pick a quality oil.

You can! Phillips, one of the leading independent petroleum organizations, makes a frank and simple statement which does away with doubt. # Editorial - - Africa As The Second Front

The military strategists—professional and amateur—may have been over-emphasizing the northern coast of France as the only sector for the opening of the much-talked-of "second front." That being true, they may have overlooked the fact that the current Allied campaign in Africa is the very operation they have been clamoring for.

If the British successes are as complete as the first news dispatches would indicate, Hitler's plan of conquest has been handed a definite setback; and as a matter of fact the cleaning out of Axis forces from all North Africa would in the final analysis serve the purpose of the second front that all of us want to see.

Defeat of Germany and Italy in Africa means the removal of Axis grip that has closed the vital Mediterranean as an Allied sea-way; it means that operations can continue with a greater degree of efficiency in the Red Sea-Suez area, with consequent acceleration of supplies to Russia; it means that the way is cleared for attack through the Balkans, where certainly the armies of Britain and America would find a sympathetic and cooperative people who already are harassing the Germans with guerrilla warfare.

One strategy which must be followed by the United Nations is to reduce some of the scope of this global warfare. The removal of Africa as one of the fighting fronts definitely is a broad step in this direction. This would serve the purpose of eliminating the Dakar threat to the western hemisphere, reducing the constant threat of Vichy's further collaboration with Berlin, and even making Italy's position in the war more insecure. In fact, Italy may be the next country to feel the wrath of the strengthened Allied forces.

It is too early to say that Hitler and his legions can be pushed completely out of Africa. But the indications are that they can; and if this comes to pass, we have witnessed the opening of a very vital second front which can pave the way to ultimate Allied victory.

Women's Services Due To Be Expanded Soon

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON. — The try-out period for women in uniform in the U. S. armed forces is over. The ladies have made good.

It hasn't been announced yet but a big expansion of the uniformed women corps in the army, navy and other forces is in the immediate offing. The WAACs and WAVEs soon will be shooting at a total enrollment of 150,000 members each. Present laws place limitations on the numbers in both of these services but, according to rumor, that limitation soon will be removed. Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, who introduced the original WAACs bill, has another coming up which would make the WAACs an integral part of the Army instead of a mere auxiliary.

Another Fort Des Moines (WAAC training center) may rise soon at Daytona Beach, Fla. The previously announced second training school for WAVEs at Mount Holyoke College, Mass., probably is the forerunner of additional centers in Iowa and Georgia.

The bill establishing the "War-cogs" ("Women's Auxiliary of the Coast Guard) already has cleared the House of Representatives. The WAACs under the direction of Nancy Harkness Love, is a small force but growing fast. These women in the auxiliary flying service will never catch up numerically with the WAACs and WAVEs, but proportionately they have a vital spot in the military scheme of things.

There's a great deal of mystery surrounding Jacqueline Cochran's army training school for women pilots, but it is known that she is drawing heavily on the ranks of 3,400 women pilots in the country and training others without previous experience, to produce a corps of women flyers capable of piloting anything from an air-bus—"Jeep" to a trans-oceanic clipper.

The greatest strides so far have been made by the WAACs. In one small office here, 18 WAACs have taken over work previously done by soldiers capable of serving in the front lines. These aren't mere stenographic and clerical jobs ordinarily handled by civil service workers.

The army has made no announcement as to whether or not the WAACs are serving overseas, but there are rumors that the un-forms are not uncommon in England.

The Navy has been rather reluctant to hand its work over to the WAVES. WAVES assigned to jobs in Washington are still "shadows" of the naval officers they are supposed to supersede.

When our armed forces reach that prospective level of seven or eight million men, the women in uniform may total 10 per cent of that.

Two State Amendments Are Favored

DALLAS, Nov. 6. (AP)—Latest returns from the Texas Election Bureau showed today that Texans apparently were approving two proposed constitutional amendments, rejecting three.

In the win column were these changes:

Authorization to pay for a building at John Tarleton college, $4,279 votes to 45,709.

Retirement of the state's general fund deficit of $30,000,000 by bond issue and pay-as-you-go thereafter, 48,267 to 39,813.

Lossing on the basis of returns so far, were these proposals:

To allow borrowing from the permanent school fund in the amount of $2,000,000, secured by bonds, to construct a state office building, 47,253 votes against and 41,074 for.

Probate jurisdiction in counties of 200,000 or more population, 60,743 against and 34,063 for.

Paying army and navy officers to be instructors in state-supported schools, 49,574 against and 36,409 for.

The bureau said no returns had been received from Harris and Tarrant counties, where an estimated 52,000 votes could change the final results.

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel and Gov. Coke Stevenson were defeating their opponents by wide margins.

Man About Manhattan— Meet Spivy, Whose Songs Are 'Special Material'

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — A large, handsome woman in white, her hair in a singular upswep pompadour, she sits at her raised, piano, her back against a red drape, the queen of all she surveys. Her name is Spivy—neither Miss nor Madame—just plain Spivy. By any comparison she is one of the most unusual figures in New York's night life scene.

You might expect to find Spivy in fiction, but hardly in the flesh. Not quite so much of her. She lives and breathes night clubs, not for the hours, because she likes her sleep, but because she likes people of all sorts. And the night clubs are the places to find them. She is famous, locally at least, for her songs. They're of the kind called "special material." People go to Spivy's Roof to hear Spivy sing, and when she does it gets so quiet you can hear the clink of ice in a glass ten feet away.

Spivy is in her middle thirties, and as I have said, is large, although no more than five feet five. She is sensitive about her weight, but does absolutely nothing about it. Her exercise is confined to turning the pages of a book and changing phonograph records. But otherwise, she wouldn't be Spivy.

This unusual career began in Brooklyn. Her parents were from Russia. She has to have a full name, of course, and it's Spivy L. Voe. The first name means nothing whatsoever except that it's hers. She has been a waitress, a blackface comedienne and has worked in revues, but more particularly, was a church and theater organist.

When sound came in, organists went out. Prohibition also came in, and Spivy played the piano in a little speakeasy. After a while she got a job in a bigger speakeasy, singing songs that were risque and then some. Her earnings rose from around $40 to $125 a week. And then prohibition went out, and the speakeasies opened their doors and became night clubs. Spivy found her clientele was changing. The songs were toned down. She added a couple of Noel Coward numbers and blossomed out as a singer at the Madison Hotel, wearing evening clothes. She sang in Florida, in Switzerland, in Paris. There was a marriage that didn't take, and was ended by divorce three months ago.

It was two years ago that she set up shop for herself, on the ninth floor of an east side apartment house. The place seats about a hundred, but three hundred can be squeezed in. Walls, furniture and drapes are either red or white. Spivy has an eye for color. Her eyes are brown, her hair a dark brown with an unusual streak of light brown through the center. She wears huge gold earrings.

She lives in an apartment, "across the street from the Cop House, so close I can read their cash register." The war is making her a more interesting figure than ever, for she has adopted the Merchant Marine. Three or four shipwrecked marines are at the Roof nearly every night, guests of the house. You may not wholly approve of Spivy, but you can't help but like her. Everything she does, she does in a big way.

MURDER on the Campus

By JERRY BRONFIELD

Chapter 16

BLOW BELOW THE BELT

Todd read a letter a pledge handed him at lunch and then read it, wondering. "I don't like to inconvenience you," it said, "but I would greatly appreciate it if you would come and see me this evening at the Hotel Lincoln, room 406. It is important and confidential."

It was signed by Leo Drake. Todd was still baffled that night after dinner as he rode downtown. Susan's father wanted to see him, and it was confidential. That sounded as if Susan didn't know he was in the city.

Todd rang the room on the house phone and announced himself. "Come right up," he heard a deep voice say.

The door opened almost immediately to his knock. "Come in, Malone," Leo Drake said, extending his hand. "I'm Susan's father, as you probably guessed."

"Yes—I knew," Todd said, taking his hand. He looked Drake straight in the face. There was no expression there that might tell him anything.

"Sit down," Drake said, and then took a seat himself. "Thanks for coming, Malone. You're wondering why I asked you to come here so I'll hit the nail right on the head.

"Malone," he said, hitching up his chair several inches at the leg. "Malone, from what I know of this Humphries case even at a distance, it appears to me as though you're in the clear, but nevertheless I'd like to try very much if you didn't see my daughter any more. I know you haven't seen a lot of her but that's beside the point. It's the future I'm thinking about."

"I'm getting no kick out of saying this because, the way I understand it, you're a good boy, Malone. But that doesn't alter my case any. I've got reasons, some of them personal, and that's that. Otherwise, you've got my best wishes."

Leo Drake had said what he'd wanted to say so quickly and firmly that it took Todd a moment to absorb the full import. He stared at Drake, then felt his face grow hot as the meaning reached him. For a split second he thought he would leap out of his chair and pound the man in the face, but he fought for control and won. But there was no disguising the emotion in his voice.

Straight Talk

"Let me tell you something, you muddlehead!" he flashed, and Drake's eyes popped. "First of all, for your information," Todd went on swiftly, "I've seen your daughter—your precious daughter—very little. It so happens that I had one date with her—and she did the inviting, not that it should make a great deal of difference. She was kind enough to do me a big favor later on and I appreciated it.

"But you needn't have any fears for that future you speak of, Mr. Drake. You can stop worrying about the possibility of a blotch on the family honor and all that sort of tripe. Yes, and I know what your so-called personal reasons are, too. It wouldn't look good for the daughter of a big-shot police lieutenant to pal around with the son of a big-time gambler who's rotting in the pen—especially when he's been suspected of murder.

"Yeah — you're going off half-cooked, Mr. Detective. You should have gotten your facts straightened out before you came down here to pitch that not-good-enough-for-my-daughter stuff."

Todd was out of his chair now, his face thrust forward, his finger jabbing at Leo Drake's chest. "No, Mister, you don't have to worry. I'll stay away. Not because you want me to, but because it's something I want to do, as of right now. But you can kick this around from here to Kalamazoo. You may not think so, and others may not think so, including me—but I've got just a very strong hunch that Susan Drake, herself, doesn't think I'm exactly a person that should be avoided."

Todd stood up, out of breath. Drake, recoiling in surprise, opened his mouth, closed it and then started to say something, but Todd was walking toward the door.

"Consider yourself very lucky for two things," Todd said in a low, biting tone. "One that you're Susan's father, and two, I'm convinced you were pretty sincere in acting for what you thought were her best interests. Other wise," he concluded, "I'd have battered the face right off the front of your head."

Detective Drake looked at the door Todd had slammed viciously and then took out his handkerchief and mopped a perspiring face and forehead.

"Whew," he said to himself, "did he pour it on!"

The Savage Todd finished tying his cleaned shoes with a jerk and then reached for the practice jersey hanging over his locker door. Bert Elliott, clacking past him on the concrete floor, poked him playfully in the ribs. "Come on, slowpoke, first thing you know coach'll be sending a searching party for you."

"Let him," Todd snapped, pulling the jersey down over his shoulder pads.

Bert tossed a quick look at him as he went through the door. Todd followed him out a moment later. "It's a great day isn't it, Todd?" beamed one of the

Hollywood— Friendliness Is Dinah Shore's Major Asset

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Miss Shore sat on an invisible stool, in the midst of an acre or so of white lace hoop-skirt spangled with silver. Miss Shore was very—

"Call me Dinah," she said, right off.

And there, before we get any further, you have it: the secret of her success. The girl can sing, she's the dream girl of every doughboy and job with a pair of ears, and she can put over a song like an angel. But what she's got that so many haven't got is that friendly warmth, and it gets into her songs. We'll call her Dinah, shore 'nuff.

Dinah, then, from Nashville, Tenn., was very fetchin' sitting there, in her acre of hoop-skirt with the spangles. She was resting in the shade of a huge magnolia tree, loaded with bloom, and a tireless fountain tinkled nearby. It was the ideal setting for a Dinah from Nashville, Tenn.

"I think," she said chaffily, "I'm playing a Yankee girl in this."

It was a big stage number for "Thank Your Lucky Stars," the extra-big musical in which Warner Bros. is spotting all its stars, including Bette Davis, along with Eddie Cantor and Dinah Shore.

But Dinah only thought she was playing a Yankee girl. She couldn't be sure. Neither could anybody else, for the picture was under way on six stages, and little matters like who was playing what could wait. LeRoy Prinz was directing this number, but David Butler was master of the whole production.

What Dinah was playing, even though it be a Yankee girl, was of small moment beside the fact that Dinah was playing at all. It's the first time the No. 1 girl of radio has looked at a movie offer. "I'm here," she answered that one, "because they said I'd have a chance to act—and I've always wanted to act."

She's doing that, and more. She's dancing. First time since she was in school at Nashville. She finished at Vanderbilt, you know. Got a B.B. in sociology, but she'd wanted a singing career ever since she was 14, when she was still Frances Rose Shore. She was re-named by schoolmates first as she recalls, for the same reason the network later did it: the constancy with which she sang "Dinah."

But singing, dancing, acting, Dinah still isn't sure she'll see her first movie. "I see the rushes just a little," she said, "but not too much. I want to keep my ego."

There are strange things, you see, about pictures. Like recording a song, and then "acting" it for the camera. "I just can't get used to singing it the same way every time. I don't feel the same way every time."

And Dinah rolled her big brown eyes, and smiled her big warm smile. We'll call her Dinah, shore 'nuff, and you can bet that Hollywood will be calling Dinah back.

STORY

guards assigned to the stadium field to keep visitors away from the practice field.

"Must be if you say so," Todd said sourly. As far as he was concerned it wasn't. Neither was yesterday, and tomorrow wouldn't be either. A beautiful state to be in, Todd told himself bitterly as he joined the circle around Pete Bailey, but if people wanted to keep pulling the sun out of the sky let 'em. He'd play it that way, too. Hard. For keeps. Give as much as he took. And more.

Bailey was explaining a new play. "We're gonna use this on Purdue, Saturday. Take a good look at it. Unbalanced to the right with the wingback a little deeper than usual."

Bailey looked over the fringe of husky shoulders and saw Todd. "You've got to get the end all by yourself on this one, Todd," he called out. "So get him, and get him good, see?"

"Yeah sure—I see. Let's go over it. Come on, let's work on it. Sure, I'll get him," he said almost savagely.

Pete Bailey looked at him curiously as he broke up the circle and tossed the ball to Chuck Stein, the center.

"Okay, dummy scrimmage for a while. Later on the freshmen will be over and we'll see how it goes in some real action."

They did it over and over, monotonously, tirelessly, but effectively. Each time Todd swept down on the passive defensive end as though he were going to hit him for keeps.

Pete Bailey signaled to a student manager. "Bring over the freshmen," he said.

Sales Tax May Be Revived

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Administration economic chiefs forecast today that sentiment for a general retail sales tax would be much stronger in the new congress which organizes in January.

This appeared to be the only prediction in the economic field upon which these government agency leaders agreed.

A sales tax, if it materializes, either could be added onto all existing taxes or substituted for some of the heavy income taxes recently enacted. The war budget to be presented to congress in January may influence this decision.

The influence of the election on economic issues was intensified by general agreement that argument on military matters probably will be restrained, leaving "home front" questions as an outlet for political steam.

Except for the sales tax question, the officials interviewed, all of whom asked to remain anonymous, ranged in their beliefs from one group who said the new congress won't be any different from the last one to another who feared "it's going to be tough now" through some of the stabilization measures which we believe are necessary.

THE WAR TODAY: Losses Put Strain On Axis Combine

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt MacKenzie, war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babbs, MacKenzie, now traveling abroad, is expected to resume shortly.)

The three-power Axis alliance, dedicated to Berlin two years ago to the remaking of a new world ruled by force and terror, is being subjected now for the first time to the strains which great disaster exerts on such a combination.

While Rommel's armies struggle westward across the inhospitable Egyptian desert under skies made still more inhospitable by the RAF and American air forces, Tokyo and Rome are reviewing the worth and costs of their ties to Berlin.

Little doubt remains that the victory of the eighth army has brought us to one of the war's great crises. History may nominate these days the turning point of the whole global struggle, comparable to those July days of 1918 when Foch turned back the last great German drive seized the offensive.

Britain's leaders, twice burned in previous moments of apparent triumph in Africa can be counted on to be twice shy about overstating the completeness and magnitude of the victory in Egypt. And they leave no doubt of their conviction that Rommel has been smashed, that the elimination of the Axis from Africa is in progress.

Today's sober British headquarters communique fully bears out the exultant announcements of victory which came yesterday from General Montgomery himself and from that "high British official" in London who doubtless spoke with the highest authority and on the basis of the most complete information. Where previous war bulletins have announced the continued advance of the eighth army, today's notes the altered character of the battle with its introduction: "The eighth army continued its pursuit of the enemy."

Then it notes that Rommel's mechanized forces apparently are abandoning their hapless Italian allies on the battlefield, where lack of transport leaves no choice but death or surrender. Rommel, perhaps still hoping to achieve one of those near-miracles of recovery which gained him renown in happier times, is bent on saving his own armored corps at any cost to his confederates.

This will not be lost on Rome, where the Egyptian disaster already has produced premonitions of doom for Mussolini and his Roman empire. The United Nations leave no room for doubt that the Egyptian victory is merely the prelude to other campaigns to rid the whole African continent of the Axis and restore domination of the Mediterranean to Britain and her allies. Then the soft underside of Hitler's Europe will be laid open to allied attack; Sicily and Sardinia will lie at the mercy of a constant, more powerful air and naval combination and the Italian homeland itself will be marked for conquest. To this, as Winston Churchill told the Italian people two years ago when today's picture was only a dream of his imagination, Benito Mussolini had brought them.

Here 'n There

Mrs. George Hall and Mrs. Ward Hall left at noon Friday for Weatherford, Okla., where they will attend graduation exercises Sunday for Harold Hall, who will receive his diploma as an aeronautical engine mechanic from the air forces training department of the Southwestern Institute of Technology.

The VFW key barrel at 2nd and Main is rolling right along with its collection of old keys, but Ray Fuller post members urge more citizens to gather up old keys lying around the house to add to the collection which eventually will go into the making of cannons for crusades. When filled, the barrel will be opened and the keys shipped to news commentator Fulton Lewis Jr.

Cotton harvesting is 65 per cent complete in Martin county, 50 per cent complete in Dawson county and 68 per cent in Howard county, O. R. Rodden, United States Employment Service manager, estimates.

Most Howard county farmers are going over their crops for the second time, Rodden said. In addition to requests for harvest workers, his office is swamped with inquiries for clerical positions of all kinds, aircraft riveters and sheet metal workers, car welders, boiler makers, stock clerks, timekeepers, stamping machine operators, machinists, auto mechanics, teachers of vocation subjects, marine painters, shipwrights and shipfitters and inspectors for ammunition plants.

Men and women are needed in large numbers to fill these positions, Rodden stated.

(South Pacific time) that the ill-fated enemy assault which late in September had advanced to within 32 miles of the allied Port Moresby naval base, had been pushed back well beyond the half-way point at Kokoda, about 60 miles inland.

While bitter fighting was indicated, the communique said the allied troops were advancing slowly toward the foe's north coastal base at Buna.

Allied bombers also struck for the second successive day at enemy-occupied towns of Moabesse and Alley in Portuguese Timor, northwest of Australia, and at the Japanese north shore New Guinea base at Salamaua. The foe's Buna-Paisi area in the northern Solomons also was bombed again last night.

The navy disclosed that United States warships still were active in the Solomons. They shelled Japanese positions on the north coast of Guadalcanal near Kokumbona the night of Nov. 3rd.

Army aircraft also continued to assault Japanese troops and supply dumps in the same area without opposition but no results of either the aerial or naval attacks were detailed.

Donald Patton who has been handling the Yearlings, said his end play appeared to be much improved and he was confident that the San Angelo youngsters would find it harder to sweep the end even with good blocking. These flankers beat Big Spring 13-0 at San Angelo.

Credit Rules Are Proving Effective

That people are becoming edified in the new restrictions governing credit and accounts at retail stores is the opinion of Mrs. L. A. Eubanks, secretary-manager of the Retail Merchants Association, who attributes the successful application of the law, in most instances, to the desire of merchants to cooperate in a plan not only beneficial to themselves but to most patrons.

Mrs. Eubanks disclosed the fact that many individuals who had carried accounts for years and had never paid in full had made such payment since the law went into effect.

For this reason, the majority of merchants are in hearty accord on the effectiveness of the new restrictions. The new regulation aids them in cutting off slow pay and in denying credit to those whose accounts already have been frozen at other stores.

Pioneer Publisher Of Big Spring Here For A Brief Visit

Robert M. Hudson, who was co-publisher of the first newspaper ever printed in Big Spring, visited here briefly Friday morning.

He and Mrs. Hudson were enroute from Los Angeles, Calif., to visit with some of their children. The pioneer publisher stopped for a short visit with A. C. Walker, whom he knew back in the old days and to inspect the transformation wrought by the years.

Mr. Hudson and T. G. Andrews launched the first newspaper in Big Spring, naming it the Pantagraph and publishing the first issue on Feb. 10, 1883. Hudson sold his interest in a couple of years and Andrews sold out to Judge G. W. Walthall in 1888. R. W. "Pantagraph" Walker, another of its publishers, used to stop here for brief visits before his death two years ago at Fort Worth.

The Pantagraph continued in existence for nearly 15 years before it suspended publication. Then came the Daily Venture and other ill-starred papers before T. E. Jordan and Will Hayden established the Herald in 1904.
