Burwell Speaker At RMA Banquet

MANAGER OF SALES AND EDUCATIONAL DIVISION SPEAKS

The Retail Merchants Association had their annual banquet at the club house Tuesday night February 8th at 7:30. Mr. Joseph D. Burwell, manager of the Sales and Educational Department of the Retail Merchants Association from Ft. Worth was guest speaker.

Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum gave the invocation and Toastmaster M. G. Martin presided over the following program: Reading, Miss Mary Harlan; two music specialties, Joe Hadden Orchestra; address by Mr. Burwell. The dinner was served by the Band Mothers and the Hadden Orchestra played for dining throughout the evening.

The huge U-shaped banquet table was beautifully decorated in red and white, using the Valentine theme. At frequent intervals red pots of small silver trees holding tiny red hearts centered the tables and the piano held a golden tree abloom with hearts. The chandeliers were draped with white streamers with red hearts, giving the hall a holiday air.

Mr. Burwell proved to be a very able and instructive speaker and held the interest of all with his address.

Out of town guests attending were: J. Sam Lewis of the Avelanche-Journal staff; Mesdames Gladys W. Workman and Billy Francis Price and Miss Elizabeth Niblack, all of the R.M.A. office in Lubbock.

Eighty guests attended this banquet and elected the new directors, who are A. L. Brannon, O. O. Crow, B. B. Castleberry, Fagan Genn and Webber Williams.

Business Men Are Renovating Firms

Herschel Crawford, manager of the Palace and State Theatres, has added new sound equipment to the Palace and also new furnishings. The lobby floor is painted and the foyer and stairs covered with a handsome, multi-colored, modernistic designed carpet. Drapes and curtains in green burlap and beautiful modernistic lights over twin Venetian mirrors complete the newly decorated foyer.

Upstairs the booth and office are painted, having been badly damaged by the recent fire there.

The Texas-New Mexico Utilities Company is having their establishment redecorated. The entire wall and ceiling space is being painted cream; with the exterior of the building done in white. The floors, that will remain bare, are being sanded and varnished to match the office furnishings said Mr. Jim Elliott, manager.

Until this work is completed, it will be necessary for the Texas-New Mexico Utilities Company to transact their business with their patrons in a temporary office that is located in the Marriott Electric Shop and Martin Jewelry Store, jointly.

Scouts To Rule The City Today

James Eubanks Mayor With All Scout Officers

The Slaton Boy Scout Troop will be rulers for a day and today is the day!

In observing Scout Week the entire city force will make way for the new officers who are as follows: Mayor, James Eubanks; Chief of Police, Briggs Robertson, jr.; Fire Marshal, Jimmy Welch; and health officers being all Tenderfeet.

The commissioners are: Joe Turner, Kenneth Tanner, Red Clifton, and Kirby Scudder, jr., and this group is also special deputies and the jury-men.

Oath of office will be given the above boys this morning at 9 o'clock and they will assume full responsibility of the management of Slaton until 7 this evening.

Speeders are warned to be careful because there will be a bevy of boys watching on the streets for offenders and all fines will go to the Scout treasury.

Carl Stewart went last week to A. Bens to the bedside of her mother.

David Lemon Has Resigned As Supt.

Resignation Effective Ending Of This Term

Resignation of Supt. David Lemon of the Slaton Public School system has been accepted by the school board and will become effective at the conclusion of the present term. At some later date the board will elect a successor.

Mr. Lemon is a native Texan, being born and reared in Sulphur Springs, and a graduate of Trinity University, Waxahachie, where he received his A. B. degree. Prior to coming to Slaton in 1929 he taught for two years in Teague, Texas.

During the nine years Supt. Lemon has been here, he has served as teacher for two years; as high school principal, two years and as superintendent five years. In that length of time the schools have made steady progress under his guidance. A new curriculum has been installed in the ward schools; eleven credits added to the high school in the last four years and three more applied for this year; two important departments have been added, namely the band and vocational agriculture.

Mr. Lemon has ever been active in civic affairs, having served as Scout Master and still being identified with that unit; he is a member of the American Legion and for two years served as adjutant.

For the past three years he has been one of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and superintendent of the Baptist Sunday School. At various times he has been a teacher in the church.

Mr. Lemon is now a member of the executive committee of the West Texas Teachers Ass'n. and an active Rotarian.

When interviewed, Supt. Lemon said: "My nine years in Slaton have led me to believe that the finest and friendliest people in all the world live in Slaton and in the surrounding territory. I count them all my friends and hope that I am counted as such by them."

At the close of the school year Mr. Lemon will enter Tech where he will receive his masters degree.

Park Plans Are Being Completed

Commissioner Mansker Asks Civic Groups Aid

Wednesday night, February 9th County Commissioner Ben Mansker called a meeting of the city commissioners, the Park Board, headed by Madison Rayburn, and representatives of all city clubs, at the clubhouse for the purpose of discussing ways and means of getting a park for the city.

Mr. Mansker revealed that through his efforts $3,700 has been allotted Slaton for such a purpose provided the City would provide for the maintenance of said property to be used. The plot of ground is the four and one-half blocks surrounding the county clubhouse.

Park Superintendent McGee and City Manager W. Rogers of Lubbock were present and gave some pertinent facts in favor of such a move.

Mayor Hood, who also attended reports that the city has decided to approve the plans presented, will furnish the water, and work will probably begin this month. This is a W.P.A. project.

Slaton Oilers Win Tourney

The Oilers are matched with the Dr. Pepper quintet from Dallas Wednesday night, February 10th in Lubbock at the Tech gym. Both teams have an impressive record and promise a fast game.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, February 3, 4, and 5, the Slaton Oilers defeated all comers to cop the medal for first place in the South land tournament for amateur teams over the South Plains district. The many fans that attended the game to see this famed quintet play were disappointed Thursday night when they had to win by default from Witharral, who failed to appear. A team was organized to give the Oilers a workout, with Stotts and Sanders playing on it and really showing fine form, accounting for almost all of the scores. Final count: Oilers 34, Opponents 23; Lamesa 41, Littlefield 35; Peel Packing Co. 35, Ralls 49; Graham B 13, Kerr Bros. 49; Hub Clothiers 14, New Lynn 21.

Friday night the Oilers defeated Kerr Bros. of Lubbock 54 to 34, with A. Crews, J. Neely, F. W. Gilmore, J. Miller, and H. Snodgrass in the starting lineup with O. Cannon, H. Stotts and R. Sanders substituting. Each of these players made several goals, with Crews leading and were easily the stronger of the two teams. Ince and F. Kerr starred for the Kerr Bros. in a hotly contested game against overwhelming odds. Crites and Ince were both put out of the play in the last quarter and Gilmore of the Oilers, also. The other games results were: South land 43, Graham A 29; Lamesa 44, Ralls 22; Sweetwater 32, New Lynn 43.

The windup of the series came Saturday night, with Slaton Oilers playing a double header. First they defeated New Lynn 49 to 26 with the same lineup as used previously, Crews, Neely and Miller starring. This little New Lynn group played a fine, fast defense game, with Stone and Spikes outstanding. Snodgrass of the Oilers was ejected in the last half on fouls.

For the championship of the tournament the Oilers were pitted against Lamesa, winning 55 to 45. This was the best matched game the Oilers played, not being so one sided as before, although the entire team seemed in good shape after both games. Crews, Neely, Miller and Snodgrass shone brightly but Gilmore was ruled out in the second half.

Much could be said for every member of the Oiler team, but the records show that Crews is more consistent in the matter of goals made, with Miller, Neely, and Snodgrass runnerup. Gilmore and Snodgrass are without doubt the flashiest of the players on any team seen in action to date. Miller, besides accounting for his part of goals, is perhaps the best defense man, always playing crack ball.

Lamesa had a powerful team, with Sturdivant and Bristow the twin sparkplugs.

Trophy awards were made to the following: First place, Slaton Oilers; second, Lamesa; and third Southland.

Fourth place went to New Lynn but no trophy was given. The Oilers also received gold balls and Lamesa silver balls.

The first all-tournament team: A. Crews, J. Miller, J. Neely, F. Gilmore, Oilers; and Myers of Lamesa.

Second team: Snodgrass, Oilers; Taylor, Southland; Sturdivant, Lamesa; Mayo, and Williams, New Lynn.

Individual awards were given the following: Sportsmanship, Wasson, Hub Clothiers, High point man of series, Sturdivant, Lamesa; High point man in any one game, Ince of Kerr Bros.; most spectacular shot, Spikes of New Lynn; outstanding players: A. Crews, J. Neely and H. Snodgrass of the Oilers; and to the manager of the winning team, Joe Bob Stevens.

SLATONITE AND PALACE OF FERS TIMELY AND PROFITABLE ENTERTAINMENT

Stream lines are a familiar sight this season.

But the latest news in Cooking School conventions, as discovered by the Palace Theatre and Slatonite has screen lines.

All of which means that long lines of eager pupils will be going to school again February 21, 22 and 25, when these concerns presents the much-discussed motion picture course in home economics.

Going to school in a theatre! It's a grand way to combine fun, inspiration, a neighborly reunion and valuable instruction, all in one free package. It's a grand way to get out of the rut that often threatens the best and most conscientious of home managers.

Just as fresh inspiration for the old job is one of the by-products of the familiar Cooking School, which presents a lecturer in a model kitchen so are new ideas and keen incentive born in the film class for homemakers, with its novel approach and modern setting.

The kitchen that passed the screen test for this picture had to meet the exalting requirements of nationally-known home economics, as well as Hollywood standards of charm, good taste and proportion.

Good news does travel fast, particularly when it is news of a gala party for the community, with gifts, with quality entertainment, cheered by jollity and novelty, and spiced with knowledge—all served hospitably by these two concerns.

All of the popular features of the Cooking School are here: The free recipe sheets, the atmosphere of congenial informality, the wise counsel, the hints on clever short-cuts, the up-to-the-minute suggestions for entertaining, the demonstration of delicious and nourishing dishes, the array of modern kitchen equipment and the distribution of daily gifts and real surprises.

This scientific new laboratory of ideas has graduated out of the class where hundreds of women craned their necks in a vain attempt to see what was happening on the stage, or assailed the lecturer with plaintive cries: "Hold it up high, where we all can see."

What to do with left-overs? How to take the gloom out of laundry day? How to save time, energy and temper in meal preparations? How to be attractive in spite of the daily rush? How to make the piecrust that men love to eat? How to give first-aid to fallen cakes?

It won't be necessary to ask the questions, for expert home specialists have anticipated these very problems. They know what bothers many an experienced housekeeper, because it is their job to know and to counsel helpfully.

Some familiar Hollywood faces will be recognized in this production, which was filmed and directed in one of the famous West Coast studios. The heroine is a winsome bride, who shares the perplexities of many an older housekeeper. Actually the title should be "It might Happen Here," for the human story has universal appeal. And it might have happened right in this community.

Numerous nationally known firms and progressive merchants from our own community are joining with us in making the entertaining school available. They promise a daily harvest of generous gifts and surprises, which will be distributed in addition to the useful recipe sheets.

Football Boys Need Money For Sweaters

About $100.00 more is needed for the football sweaters this year. The boys have about $100.00, and they are trying to get more.

Twenty football sweaters and six reserves are in promise to the football boys as soon as sufficient money can be raised to buy them. The boys offer all kinds of entertainment and enter into anything else that promises money for the sweaters.

Coach Hamilton said he didn't know where they would be able to get them. "It might be at the end of this school year, and it might be in the summer," he said.

Slaton Band Is Well Represented At State Clinic

The Slaton Tiger Band was represented by thirteen members in Fort Worth at the 3rd Annual State Band Clinic, which met last Friday and Saturday.

Harold Bachman of the University of Chicago, Mark Hindsley of the University of Illinois, and Ralph Rush of Cleveland Heights High School in Cleveland, Ohio, conducted the clinic. State required numbers for the State Contest were announced at the clinic.

Those making the trip from Slaton were Clyde Rowe, Joe Hadden, Weldon Jones, Truman Shelton, Fred Swagerty, J. C. Tucker, Junior Jones, Dick Ragsdale, Jr., Kenneth Tanner, Everett Lowry, Kirby Scudder, Lamesa Hope, and Willis Petty.

Artist Course Recital Given

The third number on the artist course, sponsored by the Senior Class, consisting of Miss Ruth Howell, dramatic soprano, and Dorothy Ellen Ford, concert pianist and accompanist, appeared Thursday night in the high school auditorium.

The first division on the program was a "group of things from foreign lands" by Miss Howell; the second, by Miss Ford, was representative of classic, romantic, and modern compositions. The third division was a group of songs by American composers.

The audience recognized in Miss Howell's voice the excellent tones and breath control, as well as the pleasing personality and inspiration in her songs. Miss Ford had an extraordinary range between soft and loud passages with a beautiful touch.

The coming number on the course is Mr. John DeBlois, bass baritone.

Santa Fe Men To Support Shop Craft

Despite what he charges has been a campaign of propaganda and trickery, Santa Fe shop employees will remain loyal to the association of Shop-crafts which has served them faithfully for the past fifteen years, declared H. L. Carruth, Division Chairman in an interview here yesterday.

"An overwhelming majority of the system shopmen will support the association in the balloting which starts February 12," Mr. Carruth asserted. "Wild promises held forth by opponents of the Shop Crafts have been recognized as such. Shopmen today well remember the long years through which they were forgotten and left without representation by the very organization that now seeks their support."

"Promises are easily made, but accomplishments are deciding factors in the selection of a bargaining agency. It is a matter of history that our shopmen were left without representation from 1904 until 1918. Our opponents were in charge of representation in 1918 and the abortive 1922 strike. Then for fifteen years during which labor underwent a severe test we were ignored. Now that numerical strength is needed as high dues paying ability, our opponents have attempted to take us over regardless of our desires.

"Our Shop Crafts have secured wage increases for their members amounting to sixteen cents an hour and today Santa Fe Shopmen are enjoying the highest rates of pay of any railroad in the United States to my knowledge. During the last fifteen years we have obtained working conditions second to none on any railroad in this country.

"A large portion of the mechanical department employes on the Santa Fe own their homes and are recognized as law-abiding and desirable citizens of their communities. For the past fifteen years we have enjoyed peace without strike threats and their accompanying hardships for everyone involved. During that time dues have never exceeded fifty cents a month and there never has been a special assessment. Dues demanded by our opponents range from $12.00 to $36.00 per year higher than ours."

Special Train Is Here Wednesday

Lt. Gov. Woodul Among Notables On Train

Headed by Lieutenant Governor, Walter Woodul, of Houston, more than one hundred Ft. Worth goodwill envoys arrived in Slaton Wednesday with invitations to the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, which will be held March 11 to 20 inclusive.

The group was on the first of five trips, making a two-day swing thru West Texas by special train. The trip was sponsored by the Roundup Club, an adjunct of the Stock Show and the Fort Worth and North Ft. Worth Kiwanis Clubs.

In the group were Dean Colby D. Hall, of Texas Christian University, President of the Ft. Worth Kiwanis Club; E. H. Speer, President of the North Ft. Worth Kiwanis Club and Homer Covey, President of the Round-up Club. The T.C.U. Swing Band was on the train to lead parades through various towns on the itinerary. Don Gillie is band leader. Ralph Logan was general trip chairman.

A pilot car, furnished by the Blackstone Hotel, Ft. Worth, preceded the special train and the car was equipped with a loud speaker.

Jail Ablaze At Noon Wednesday

The Slaton Fire Department was called to the city jail on north 9th street Wednesday about 1 o'clock.

It was believed that a man, inmate of the jail at this time, set the bedding afire in an attempt to be removed from his cell. Little damage was done, the mattresses and quilts being the only articles burned. The prisoner possessed matches when taken from the building and it is thought that he was entirely responsible for the blaze.

NAVY EXPANSION IS PUSHED
Congress Gets Busy with President's Defense Program...
Complaints of "Little Business" Are Heard

Edward W. Pickard
SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK
© Western Newspaper Union.

Rush Defense Plan Bill
LEADERS in congress lost no time in carrying forward the national defense program which President Roosevelt had offered in a special message.

Legislation to authorize the expenditure of $800,000,000 in naval construction was introduced immediately in both the house and senate, and steps were taken to provide the additional requirements of the army. It was predicted the house would pass the expansion bill by the middle of February.

Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia called together his house naval affairs committee and began hearings on the measure, certain that it would be reported favorably with little delay.

The President in his message recommended: That the present naval building program be increased 20 per cent.

That congress authorize two additional battleships and two cruisers during 1938.

That congress authorize $8,800,000 for additional anti-aircraft equipment.

That congress provide for better establishment of an enlisted reserve for the army.

That congress legislate to prevent profiteering in war-time and to equalize the burdens of possible war.

Among his recommendations the President also included appropriations for experimental smaller vessels; for army ammunition and for the manufacture of army equipment.

Opposition to the bill in the house was expected to come from certain members from the middle western states. Tinkham of Massachusetts also didn't like the program, saying it was one of offense, not defense, and that the President was preparing to get the United States into the League of Nations.

Senators Vandenberg of Michigan and Frazier of North Dakota demanded that Mr. Roosevelt make public the foreign policy he expects to follow behind increased armaments.

New Fleet Commander
ADMIRAL CLAUDE CHARLES BLOCH, new commander of the United States fleet, assumed his duties at San Pedro, Calif., replacing Admiral Arthur J. Heppburn.

In the colorful ceremonies Admiral Bloch made a brief address, saying: "I wish to emphasize to the officers and men of the fleet that our only justification for being is to be ready to fight."

"We have fine ships and, knowing you men as I do, I know that you will continue your hard work and unselfish devotion to duty so that our navy always will be ready and second to none."

U.S. Avoids Entanglement
REPRESENTATIVES of Great Britain, France and Russia in the League of Nations council meeting in Geneva were ready to adopt a resolution to aid China by sending her war munitions, but awaited the co-operation of the United States. The scheme was proposed to Washington informally, and was as informally rejected after President Roosevelt had conferred with Secretary Hull and others. Mr. Hull indicated our policy would not be changed and that America would take no leadership in aiding China.

Turn of Little Business
CALLED to Washington from all parts of the country by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, some 500 representatives of "little business" undertook to formulate a recovery program for submission to President Roosevelt. Mr. Roper and his assistant, Ernest Draper, took part in the preliminary discussions, and since the President could not receive all of them a small committee was named to take their proposals to the White House.

According to reports from the capital, the President desires legislation for federal financing of small industries to stimulate business. This would require the creation of a new government agency unless the power were granted to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Three chief complaints of the small business men are: The undivided profits tax has prevented them from accumulating a "rainy day" surplus.

The capital gains and losses tax has frozen capital and prevented the encouragement of new enterprises.

Monopolistic practices are pre-

sending increasing hazards to their successful operations.

Congress and the administration already are busy with steps to correct these alleged abuses.

Big Business Scared Again
MEANWHILE big business—and the country generally—was discussing with considerable apprehension the declaration by the President that industry must reduce prices and at the same time keep wages up. An immediate result was the crash of prices on the stock exchanges, the decline reaching as high as 7½ points. Commodities declined in sympathy with stocks.

"If industries reduce wages this winter and spring," the President said at his press conference, "they will be deliberately encouraging the withholding of buying—they will be fostering a downward spiral and they will make it necessary for their government to consider other means of creating purchasing power."

Many congressmen, Democrats as well as Republicans, took issue with Mr. Roosevelt's logic and economics, pointing out that industries lack the resources to keep wages up on a falling market because their funds have been depleted by the undistributed profits tax.

Row Over Coal Prices
MINIMUM prices for coal and marketing regulations fixed by the national bituminous coal commission have aroused a storm of complaints. Resentment was especially strong in Illinois, which, though ranking third among soft coal producing states, is not represented on the commission.

Six coal companies started court action in Chicago to restrain enforcement of the price schedule, and Chicago itself contemplated similar action. The cities of Rochester, N. Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; and St. Louis, Mo., complained of high and unfair coal rates and appealed to the courts to suspend the commission's orders.

Democrat in Stiewer's Seat
GOV. CHARLES MARTIN of Oregon appointed Alfred Even Reames of Salem to serve out the unexpired 11 months of the term of Sen. Frederick Stiewer, who resigned to enter private law practice. Mr. Reames, a lawyer sixty-seven years old, thus becomes the first Democratic senator from Oregon since 1921. He is chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic state central committee. He will not seek to succeed himself in the senate.

John Roosevelt Wedding Plan
JOHN ROOSEVELT, youngest son of the President, and Anne Lindsay Clark are to be married in Nahant, Mass., on June 18. The groom's brother Franklin will be his best man. Rev. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton school, who has officiated at the weddings of all the President's sons as well as that of the bride's parents, and Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, will officiate.

Following a six weeks' honeymoon the couple will live in a Brookline apartment, as young Roosevelt expects to work in a Boston advertising agency.

Union Controls Canned Music
THE American Federation of Musicians will control the output of canned music (music recorded by mechanical means for broadcast) in nearly 589 radio stations in the country in a new contract between the musicians and the principal recording companies, the chain radio broadcasting companies, and the independent affiliates.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Many a good news yarn has been spoiled by the necessity of "getting the story in the lead," as they say in the newspaper shops. This reporter asks indulgence for saving the kick in this one for the end, noting merely that it is a happy ending. In recent years, there have been so many unhappy fade-outs, from Sam Langford to the League of Nations, that anything in the line of an unexpected Garrison finish rates a bit of suspense before the news pay-off.

Story That Has Kick at the End
In Maxwell street, Chicago, long before the fragrance of Bubbly creek ebbed and sank and saddened, there was a book-stall which was the Jewish Algonquin of those parts. The place was overrun with philosophers, some white-bearded and highly venerated, some young and contentious, all stirred by a feverish intellectual zeal. They wolfed new books and started clamorous arguments about them, the way the crowds at the big pool hall down the street grabbed the box scores in the late sporting extras. Sweatshop workers used to throng in after a hard day's work and get in on the seminar.

Wrinkled, merry, mischievous little Abraham Bisno from Russia was the Erasmus of the sweatshop philosophers.

He used to circulate a lot around this and other Maxwell street bookshops, and many times the state of Illinois was saved the expense of calling out the militia because Bisno happened along to referee an argument.

Erasmus of Sweatshops Makes Peace
He was a sweatshop worker, a man of amazing erudition, but of salty, colloquial speech, never enmeshed in the tangle of print language around him. He used to tease his friend, Jane Addams, of nearby Hull house, by calling her settlement workers "the paid neighbors of the poor." He liked to deflate the Utopians, boiling things down to Gresham's law of money, the law of diminishing returns, weighted averages or something like that. He was the first of a multitude of sweatshop economists who spread light and learning through Chicago's Ghetto.

Bisno had a bright-eyed, clever little daughter named Beatrice, one of several children. Old sages, up and down Maxwell street, used to say the world would hear from Beatrice some day. But the world went to war, regardless of Sir Norman Angell and all the other philosophers, and the Bisnos passed beyond the ken of this writer.

About twelve years ago, I had a visit from Francis Oppenheimer, a New York journalist. Beatrice Bisno was his wife. She was going to write a book, and did I know of a quiet hide-out where she could write it? I sent them to the old Hotel Helvetia, No. 23 Rue de Tournon, in Paris. She sat in the nearby Luxembourg garden and wrote her book.

They came home and the book made endless round trips to publishers' offices. The smash of 1929 took the last of their savings. Today I had a letter from Francis Oppenheimer.

"We finally threw the book in an old clothes basket," he said. "Then, acting on impulse, we used our dinner money to give it one more ride. Weeks passed. Beatrice fell ill. There came a letter from Liveright, the publisher. I knew it was another rejection and didn't want to show it to Beatrice. But I tore open the envelope and handed it to her. Her eyes were glazed. She could not read the letter. It slipped from her fingers and fell to the floor."

And in the same mail today, there came to this desk a copy of the new book, "Tomorrow's Bread," by Beatrice Bisno, winning the $2,500 prize award, the judges being Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Fannie Hurst. That was the news that Mr. Oppenheimer picked up from the floor when his wife was too ill to read it.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher says of the book: "A searchingly realistic portrait of an idealist. What an idealist does to the world and what the world does to an idealist is here set down with power and sincerity."

Winsome little Bisno is gone. One wishes he could be carrying the news down to the old Maxwell street book stall, if it's still there.

Stitches in Time

A STITCH in time goes a long way toward making your days brighter and your burdens lighter when the bustling, busy days of Spring roll round. No time then for leisure hours with your sewing kit, and fortunate indeed are the early birds who have got on with their Spring wardrobe. The moral?—make your selections now and be off to the races when the season starts!

Practical House Coat.
There is a versatility to this clever pattern which makes it a prime favorite for the style-conscious and the thrifty. Designed in two lengths, it lends itself perfectly to either of two needs—as an apron frock in gingham or seersucker for busy days around the house, or as a full length beach or sports coat in chintz or linen crash. The princess lines are smooth and flattering and there are just seven pieces to the pattern—a cinch to make and a joy to wear.

Slimming Silhouette.
This handsome frock in linen or crepe does wonders for the full figure, sloughing off pounds here and bulges there with the utmost ease. Streamlined from the shoulders and buttoned at the waist with two graceful scallops, this is the sort of frock which answers your need perfectly for almost any social or shopping excursion, a standby to see you through the Summer. There is a choice of long or short sleeves and the simplicity of the design—just eight pieces in all—insures success even for the inexperienced in home sewing.

Attractive Apron.
"Swell" isn't a word the teacher recommends but it is highly appropriate in describing this handy apron frock which goes about the business of being an honest-to-goodness apron, not just a postage stamp model to wear for effect. Appealing in design, easy to wear, extremely serviceable, with two convenient pockets, this perfectly swell apron was designed by a busy housewife who knew her oats! Six pieces to the pattern.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

Joyce did not wait for the end; leaving the men still arguing she went to her room, sat down at the desk and strove to prepare herself for what she felt sure would prove an ordeal.

"Joyce, I'm a queer bird," he began in a voice so amiable it startled her. "That little talk we had yesterday—I certainly got off on the wrong foot, and I'm sorry. That's been my trouble all my life—making other people angry through getting riled myself. If a vile temper was something you could have cut out like an appendix I swear I'd take ether tomorrow."

"Better wait," she said smiling, scarcely able to credit her ears, "until you get somewhere you can do it right—surgeon, hospital and a pretty nurse."

"Yes," said Helm more soberly, "those things are a long way off—an awful long way off—and that brings me back to the line I meant to have taken from the start. I ought to have reasoned with you, Joyce, shown you a fact or two, you're too young to think out for yourself. For instance, you've got this place, you've actually taken it over, but you can't hold it—not possibly."

"But that's exactly what I'm doing," protested Joyce.

"You think you are, but it can't last," asserted Blackadder with growing confidence. "It's against reason, Dorado, the science of economics, the Mexican and American governments. What's fooling you just now is the well-known phenomenon of the calm between the two winds of a cyclone. Besides, it isn't worth it. The worst trick you could play on any American would be to give him this rancho for nothing."

"It isn't a rancho," corrected Joyce quietly; "it's a hacienda—the difference between a toy balloon and a Zeppelin."

"I know, I know," said Helm, showing a first trace of impatience, but he promptly restrained himself. Her placidity fooled him into thinking he was really getting somewhere; why spoil it? "The thing that gets me, Joyce, is how you could ever bring yourself to come here after what—what happened?"

"You mean about my mother?" asked Joyce in the same still voice. "Yes," he answered. She rose with a peculiarly swift motion and stood with fingers resting on the desk to steady herself. A moment before she had seemed small, on the point of resuming the familiar form of the young girl he had felt sure he could handle; now, suddenly, she was an imposing and arresting figure.

"I wonder if you can be made to see what I see," she began, her voice low and vibrant, "what I've seen for years, all my life. It worked with Mr. Van Suttart, perhaps it might with you."

"Things that happen—especially terrible things," continued Joyce, ignoring the question, "can't be measured or weighed or seen away from where they took place. My mother's death has become part of time. To me it's a stone in a long high wall—longer and older than any one life. It's built into La Barranca, and so am I. Come with me and I'll try to show you what I mean—a world, my part in it, where my part began and where you think it ended."

Blackadder rose and fixed his eyes on her rapt face. "Since you offer to read my thoughts, just where do I think it ended?"

"With escape, of course," said Joyce, "father's and mine. But it's the difference that counts; with him there was no return."

The great idea—the blinding inspiration—did not come to Blackadder until many minutes later at the moment when Joyce, standing aside for him to pull open the little eastern door, stepped past him into the velvet blackness of the outer garden, stopped and drew back. Her dark head seemed to vanish; there remained only the stenciled splashes of her printed frock.

"I'm sorry it's too dark tonight to show you," she said. "It was through here—where I used to play."

"Not too dark for me," said Blackadder quickly. "If you haven't forgotten the way I could follow you quite easily."

"Could you?" said Joyce doubtfully. Her dilating pupils made out a hitherto unseen tree and then another. "Why, yes; I'm beginning to see quite well now myself. Come on. It will be lighter beyond the ash."

A few minutes later, standing on the platform of mossy masonry which had once been a pier, they became dimly visible to each other in the cut steel light of the stars. Blackadder had taken off his coat as they walked along and with nervous fingers had rebuttoneed it in the dark.

"You've taken off your coat!" exclaimed Joyce.

"Yes," he said, "I realized you must be cold. Here, slip it on—slip it on like a sweater."

Before she could quite understand, before she could raise her arms, the coat was descending over her head. How extraordinary, she thought, and was on the point of crying out, it was nonsense to put on a coat like that when its sleeves swirled and tightened; one around her neck, the other across her astonished half-open mouth. Then she struggled frantically, but the sleeves only drew tighter. They were being tied, knotted. She was gagged, trapped, powerless to raise her hands.

"Too late she realized her only chance would have been to run—run at the first instant of attack. But already Blackadder's arms were descending past her hips to her knees; they closed, lifted her, hung her like a sack over his shoulder. If only she could get at the buttons! But she was lying on them and all he need do to keep her that way was to tilt her knees upward. He did it twice, and that was enough to cure her. He was strong; she had never imagined a man could be so strong.

She felt him step off the pier and creep along its side until he reached the edge of the water. Immediately he sank halfway to his knees but persevered, making his way toward the right. Once he reached and turned the angle of the hacienda's outer wall he knew where he was; now all he had to do was to keep in touch with that wall, follow it so closely no eye from the ramparts above could spy him. As Joyce struggled the cloth of the coat grew hot and soggy against her face. Promptly she quieted and bent every effort to getting a little air by turning her head this way and that. She must think, and to think she must breathe. After all, this was only Helm Blackadder in the grip of an insane conviction he was doing his duty as decreed by God and Irma Sewell. Why be frightened?

She lost all sense of locality until he showed himself to a complete halt, released the pressure of his right arm to take a grip on one of the hand ropes and ventured a cautious foot on the bridge. At its first oscillation she realized her chance had come at last; once started down that treacherous incline no longer would he dare practice the trick of raising her knees. She tore at the buttons, freed one hand; quickly she untied the sleeves, threw back her head and screamed for help at the top of her voice.

"Leonardo! Tobalito! Accude! Dirk, Dirk, oh, Dirk!"

Blackadder clamped his left arm like a vise and kept on. He was at his last gasp, thoughts racing so madly through his brain he scarcely heard her cry. Why was he here? What was he doing? What did he care whether Joyce stayed or went? Hot sweat was pouring down his back, yet an icy crust was forming on his forehead! What a fool he had been to think he could cross this bridge carrying a wildcat in his arms—a wildcat that had seemed a feather at the start and now weighed a ton!

But there was something indomitable in him—some bulldog quality that made him the slave of an idea once he had sunk his teeth in it and drove him on to domination whatever the cost. It explained much—why he was here and why he couldn't quit.

The floor of spiles beneath his feet was rising—for an instant it had been level, now it was steep! He was winning—winning through. He looked up and saw a bulky shadow. Two brown hands like talons were reaching out to relieve him of his burden. He had won! But only Dorado's left hand seized on Joyce; his right crashed into Blackadder's face, sending him hurtling backward. He tumbled, rolled. He could feel his nails breaking as they clawed vainly on the corrugated surface of the spiles. His arms thrashed out. One of them struck against a rope and for his very life he wound it on his wrist. Fury blinded him; now to climb back, bury his thumbs in Dorado's double-crossing throat and—

At that moment all four anchor ropes at Dorado's end were slashed and Blackadder knew an instant of horror as the bridge fell. Treachery, and now death! But what saved him was the very depth of the gorge. The severed bridge acted as a bumper as it slammed against the opposite cliff, its dangling end reaching less than halfway down. Shaken off, torn by thorns, cut by the shale, bruised against boulders, he rolled to the bottom. Then silence—minutes of silence before he commenced to groan. Presently a frenzied voice called down at him. "What's the matter? Who are you down there? What happened?"

Immediately there were other excited voices. Under Leonardo's direction two of the severed ropes were hastily knotted into one, another added, and Tobalito was descending backward, his bare toes seizing like hands on grip after grip. Having tied the end of the rope under the injured man's shoulders he ascended almost as fast as he had gone down and helped haul Blackadder to the top. Dirk leaned over him.

"Blackadder! You? What happened? Where's Joyce?" He took hold of his shoulder and shook it. "Answer! Where's Joyce?"

CHAPTER XIV

Joyce, seized by an arm, had been dragged forward so violently she would have fallen face down had not the same hand supported her and set her on her feet. She heard a low laugh and looked up into Dorado's unforgettable face. Nightmare—this was nightmare. He was laughing at the trick of the coat. Now he repeated it with modifications. No longer need it cover her head; let her yell all she liked. Also it was secured in place not with the buttons but by the simple expedient of a lariat wrapped around her from shoulder to waist, leaving enough loose end to bind her to the man with whom she must ride. No sooner was the operation completed than the cavalcade set off, Dorado in the lead, she at the extreme rear. Already lights were showing and people coming on the run from the hacienda, but if any shots were fired she would get them first.

Dorado, convinced Blackadder's mouth was closed forever, saw no reason to hurry. The half dozen horses ambled along at a running walk, giving Joyce time to think, too much time, time enough to grow afraid.

Had she really witnessed Helm Blackadder's murder and the destruction of the bridge, or was it part of this ghastly dream? Oh, if only it could be a dream! An hour passed. Her knees grew chafed, burned and then turned numb with the pain. She swayed and would have fallen had she not been tied to the man before her, but the worst was yet to come. With the descent of the switchback path, owing to the changing of the angle of pressure, agony returned fourfold. She broke down and wept, sobbing whimpering in her abject misery.

As relief had come to Blackadder on the level stretch from the path to the camp, so it came to her. But it was not complete.

An hour passed and she found herself released of her bonds and stretched on the army cot in Dorado's quarters. Then it surged over her. Nothing but divine rest mattered—nothing. Her eyes shut with almost a click and she slept. When she woke a fine fire was burning at the entrance to the drift and by its light she saw Dorado seated on a camp stool near by, watching her out of half-closed eyes. As hers opened wide his did also. He smiled but said nothing. They looked at each other for a long time and the longer the silence lasted the more did Joyce feel her heart grow tight and small in her breast. What magic word could save her? But it was he who spoke first.

"You frightened, hein?" "Talk in Spanish," said Joyce, surprised she could speak at all. "It will be easier for both of us."

Promptly his heavy face brightened and he became voluble.

"Ah, that's better, much better. In castellano I can talk, tell you things, explain how simply and easily everything can be arranged if only you turn out to be as reasonable as you are beautiful."

"I don't feel beautiful," said Joyce shortly, straightening on the cot and bracing herself. "I'm thirsty—terribly thirsty."

"Ah, forgive!" cried Dorado, turned and shouted an order. A man came running with a pannikin of water fresh from the brook and scarcely had she drained it before another retainer appeared carrying a tin plate heaped with food.

"It's a molle de guajalote," said Dorado proudly. "Knowing you were to be my guest I ordered it especially for you."

At first Joyce merely toyed with the most famous of Mexican dishes but presently hunger triumphed over anxiety and she began really to eat.

Slowly, then more slowly, for the longer each mouthful lasted the more time she gained to think. But somehow thinking didn't seem to do much good; perhaps talking—saying anything at all—would be better.

"What do you want?" she asked. "Money? La Barranca? What?"

"You," said Dorado briefly, smiled and waited. "That's impossible," said Joyce after a pause. "Nobody can take me—not while I'm alive. That probably sounds silly, but I mean it." (TO BE CONTINUED)

"Social Competence" Can Be Measured; New Test Determines Fitness for Life

The ability of a person to fit into a changing world may be measured by a new yardstick known as "social competence." It is the newest effort of science to determine the mental and sociological level of human beings. It contemplates the day when the science of eugenics may be applied to breed a superior race and weed out the incompetent, feeble-minded and other social dependents.

Dr. Edgar A. Doll of the Vineland, N. J., training school, originated the yardstick. He declared that when social competence is expressed mathematically as a "social quotient" it is similar to the long-familiar "intelligence quotient" and is comparable to it in many ways in measuring the intangible factors of human behavior.

Writing in the Journal of Heredity, Dr. Doll explained that the social quotient is not a measure of the intelligence of a human being, but rather a rating of an individual's fitness for society and parenthood. A feeble-minded person of very low intelligence might be rated to live freely and independently instead of being confined to an institution. On the other hand a highly intelligent person might be found socially incompetent and unfit for society.

Social competence under this yardstick is analyzed according to six valuations: Self-help, locomotion, communication, occupation, self-direction and socialization. In a baby, "self-help" would include grasping objects or sitting up unsupported. In an older child, it would mean going about alone or looking after his health. In an adult, self-direction would include using money providently, providing for the future, and assisting others.

The social measurement of an individual can be obtained by questioning a friend or relative, Dr. Doll said. Thus it is possible to analyze social competence of children yet unborn through their parents.

Pottery and Stoves in Ancient Chinese Graves

The ancient Chinese, like the Egyptians, were much concerned about extending the necessities, comforts and conveniences of life to their deceased relatives and friends. Consequently they buried with the dead various implements and even human servitors.

Among the things buried with the dead were pottery models of stoves, so that the cooking of food might be continued in the other world. A number of these, dating to about the beginning of the Christian era, are in the hall of Chinese archeology of Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. Also exhibited is a cast-iron stove of a type practical for actual use in cooking. This, although likewise found buried in a grave, is of the type of stove upon which the people of the period did their cooking, according to a curator of sinology. Made during the later Han dynasty (A. D. 25-220), it is one of the oldest extant cast-iron objects in the world. The process of casting iron was unknown to the ancient Greeks and Romans, but was the basis of an important industry in ancient China. Iron founders amassed large fortunes, and in 119 B. C., during the reign of Emperor Wu, the industry became a state monopoly.

Astaire, Burns and Allen Pursue "A Damsel In Distress"

Fred Astaire makes merry in a co-starring role with George Burns and Gracie Allen in "A Damsel in Distress," a P. G. Wodehouse story, spiced with captivating tunes by the late George Gershwin. With his engaging comedy Astaire introduces what are said to be the most amazing dance routines of his career.

Supporting Astaire and the two radio comics in this ripping comedy is a brilliant cast including lovely Joan Fontaine, in the title role, and such distinguished players as Reginald Gardner, Ray Noble, Constance Collier, Montagu Love and Harry Watson.

Astaire portrays a shy American musical comedy favorite, who becomes involved in a hectic romance with a sheltered, titled English girl, Lady Alyce, played by Miss Fontaine. The servants at the castle where Lady Alyce lives inaugurate a sweepstakes based on who will win Lady Alyce's hand. The girl is being coerced into a marriage with an English fop by an imperious old aunt. Through an ingenious set of circumstances, Astaire is made to believe that Lady Alyce is in love with him, and he quits his show in London and rents a cottage near the girl's ancestral castle. The entire castle and countryside enter into the romance, and many hilarious complications result.

Burns and Allen, remaining true to the characters they portray on the radio, do their share to sabotage Fred's romance.

Ray Noble, noted English orchestra leader, has the role of a floppish English chap, who is Astaire's rival for the hand of Lady Alyce.

Angelo Tournament Debators Attend

Five debate students, three boys and two girls, and their debate coach, Miss Arnes, attended the San Angelo debate tournament Saturday.

Wayne Catching and Milton Kessel alternated in debating with Wayne Liles. The boys debated a San Angelo team and a Lubbock team and lost in both debates.

The two girls who debated were

Lucille Savell and Juanita Williams. They debated Sonora and Miles, also being defeated.

The club expects to send representatives to the Wichita Falls tournament on March 11th and 12th.

TIPS to Gardeners

Selecting Garden Flowers

AMONG the easiest flowers to grow are nasturtium, alyssum and California poppy. Try them if you have not had much flower-growing experience.

If you want brilliant color in your garden with a minimum of effort, grow petunia and zinnia. They require a bit of care early in the season, but when established they grow luxuriantly, and nothing provides more color. Use portulaca for colorful edging along walks or drives.

Quick blooming flowers, according to Gilbert Bentley, flower expert, are the nasturtium, Virginia stock, zinnia, sunflower, bachelor's button and alyssum.

For a window box, petunia, nasturtium, lobelia, ageratum, pansy, annual phlox and verbenas are effective.

Even though you may have experienced trouble with wilt and rust ruining asters and snapdragons, you still may grow those flowers. There are rust-resistant strains of snapdragon and wilt-resistant strains of aster.

2 Steps in Fighting Discomfort of COLDS

1 ENTERS BODY THROUGH STOMACH AND INTESTINES TO EASE PAIN.

2 RELIEVES THROAT PAIN RAWNESS.

All it usually costs to relieve the misery of a cold today—is 3¢ to 5¢—relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly. The Bayer method of relief is the way many doctors now approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

Nation Celebrates 250th Anniversary Swedenborg's Birth

AMAZING as it seems that one mind could encompass so many varied realms of knowledge, nevertheless it is true that Emanuel Swedenborg, the 250th anniversary of whose birth is being celebrated this year, made important contributions in many fields of science, theoretical and practical, in statesmanship, philosophy, and religion.

In 1716-1718 he published the first scientific periodical in Sweden, containing records of his mechanical inventions and mathematical discoveries, which included the first airplane design to have fixed wings and moving propeller, the first air-pump to employ mercury, and the description of a method for determining latitude and longitude at sea by observations of the moon among the stars.

Swedenborg served as an active member of the parliament of his country for more than fifty years, introducing fiscal reforms and much general legislation.

At the age of fifty-five Emanuel Swedenborg discontinued his scientific pursuits and began his work as a theologian, publishing the "Arcana Coelestia, Apocalypse Explained"; "Heaven and Hell"; "Four Doctrines"; "Divine Love and Wisdom"; "Divine Providence"; "Apocalypse Revealed"; "Conjugal Love"; "True Christian Religion"; and other miscellaneous theological works.

DORIS DENE'S COLUMN

Boy Deserves Credit for Clinging to Aim Despite Objections.

DEAR MISS DENE: I am twenty-one years old and have planned to marry a boy of twenty-two who has just started working. His father objects to me and has refused to let the boy see me any more. My fiancé has consented to his father's wishes. He came to me, told me the truth and said that until he could support me without his father's help, he would not see me any more. So long as he is relying on his father, he will not go back on his word not to see me. I don't know what to think or what to do.—Nancy Y.

In the same mail comes a letter from the sister of Nancy who says she knows her little sister is seeking my advice—and wishes to tell me the true facts of the case.

"I know," writes the sister, "that this boy doesn't care for N. as he should or he would have stuck to her through thick and thin. She is making a fool of herself and breaking her heart over a worthless man. I only want to help her but I want you to tell her that this boy isn't the man for her and that he has shown clearly that he doesn't love her.—Sarah."

ANSWER—Sorry, Sarah, but I can't condemn the boy out of hand. He must have a fair trial before being dismissed as an utter cad and a lukewarm lover. And Nancy must be given an honest answer, not an outburst of angry oratory at the expense of men in general and Nancy's true love in particular.

Don't forget the boy is only twenty-two—and not yet able to make his own living apparently. That makes it necessary for him to live with father and mother for a while. True, if he were constructed of heroic material he'd go out into the cruel cold world to starve in the cause of true love—but heroes aren't popular in these modern times. And with so much unemployment and depression in the world just now, I for one could not praise a boy who added to the sum total of the world's human misery by voluntarily joining the bread line.

This lad has had to compromise with his fate. He must live with his father who has exacted from him a promise never to see his fair lady again. Having promised the hero shows a commendably honorable spirit in refusing to break his word on the sly. There is certainly something to be said for him in holding strongly to his purpose.

No one can blame Nancy for feeling hurt and miserable over the situation. No one can blame her for seeking to mend her broken heart as best she may. But she need not feel that her erstwhile fiancé is either a cad or a coward.

DEAR DORIS DENE: I am a high school girl and very unpopular. Even the girls don't seem to like me. I am never invited to anything and as it is very hard for me to make new friends, my chance never improves. I am usually at home alone. Can you give me any help?—T. A. S.

ANSWER—Again and again I beg of the girls who come to me with a problem like this, to give me something constructive in the way of a personal analysis.

There are dozens of reasons for unpopularity. It is easy to say that in general a girl will get over her self-consciousness by taking up interests which distract her mind from thoughts of herself but so often this rule doesn't work because the victim of unpopularity is a special case and needs special instructions.

There are many girls who are unpopular simply and solely because of their lack of vitality. They may seem colorless and uninteresting, dull and stupid because of ill-health—or some lack of energy which could be remedied if they found out the truth about themselves.

There are girls whose inability to make friends rests solely on the fact that they have forbidding manners that are aloof and frigid. These girls will tell you confidently that they have friendliest feelings in the world toward everyone and want to be liked—yet if they write a long intimate account of themselves it will very often be revealed that they are super critical and extremely sure of their own opinions. They are humble about their lack of popularity yet amazingly arrogant in connection with other matters.

And there are always girls who simply need to attend to their appearance in order to attract some of the attention they crave so. Untidiness and slovenliness have more effect on the high school audience, than the average girl in her teens suspects. The very young generation is critical of the dowdy, down-at-the-heel girl whose hair is always a mess and whose general appearance is frumpy. Even a limited income can be made to produce at least one trim costume for school use.

But as I say, one can't lay down hard and fast rules. One must hear about the patient's symptoms first. Will the girls who write me on this absorbing topic, give me some inkling as to what manner of human beings they are. The more they write, the more they reveal in some way or other what their drawbacks and their virtues may be. I shall be glad to answer all questions on this subject if I am given something to go on.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 13

CONSERVING THE SABBATH FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:23-3:6. GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man—Mark 2:27. PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Holy Day. JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Holy Day. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall I Do on Sunday? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Using the Sabbath for the Whole Man.

"A man's soul is in a bad state when he begins to regard man-made rites and ceremonies as things of superior importance and exalts them above the preaching of the gospel. It is a symptom of spiritual disease. There is mischief within. It is too often the recourse of an uneasy conscience. . . . No wonder St. Paul said to the Galatians, 'Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed on you labor in vain.' " These are the comments of John Charles Ryle, Lord Bishop of Liverpool, on the lesson of today.

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the Sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt not's" that it was a day of fear. They had a false outward profession of worship and had entirely missed the true spirituality of God's law, a fact which drew upon their heads the anger and rebuke of our Lord.

While we as Christians do not observe the Jewish Sabbath, there are principles of doctrine and life bound up in this lesson concerning the Sabbath which we may with profit apply to our day of rest—the first day of the week—the resurrection day, often called "the Lord's Day."

I. False Spirituality Unmasked.

The two incidents in our lesson reveal that under the cloak of earnestly observing the law of the Sabbath the Pharisees were actually covering their own hypocrisy and their hatred for Christ.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who had passed through his neighbor's field. They contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of their professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord. "They watched him," and even so the enemies of the cross watch us who are his followers.

II. True Spirituality Defined.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

How shall we know what we may do on the Lord's Day? Two guiding principles appear in our lesson. (1) Know and follow God's Word. Note the use that Jesus made of it in verses 25 and 26. No man will misuse the Sabbath or the Lord's Day who understands God's Word and obeys it. (2) Live in accordance with the spirit of the Lord Jesus. When tradition stood in the way of the best interests of man, He broke with tradition. If He could do good on the Sabbath He did it.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this lesson as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and mercy.

III. Righteous Indignation Manifested.

Our Lord rightly showed His holy anger (v. 5) against his hardhearted critics. He was the Holy One who did not permit His anger to go beyond its proper expression. Man, it must be confessed, seldom is able to control and direct even his righteous indignation. But there is such a thing as being angry without sin (Eph. 4:26), and one could sometimes wish that God's children could be moved to a holy anger against all sin and unrighteousness.

Comforting Word

This is a comforting word of Scripture which presents Christ as a shepherd whose sheep had strayed.

God's Grace

Think what the grace of God is like. Grace is love loving the unlovely.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Tasty Sandwiches.—To vary the plain peanut butter sandwich, mix peanut butter with chili sauce, spread on slices of hot buttered brown bread, and put together with crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with slices of dill pickle.

Before Baking Potatoes.—Let them soak in cold, salted water for 15 minutes. They will bake in half the time.

For Home Dressmaking.—Make a small pincushion and sew it to a "bracelet" of elastic. Stick some pins in the cushion, slip the bracelet on your left wrist and the pins are always handy.

Bacon in Stuffing.—Bacon, chopped small, should be added to all stuffing. It gives a delicious flavor.

Remember Our Feathered Friends.—Birds welcome bread crumbs and suet when winter winds are howling, but don't forget to provide shelter for them so they may eat in comfort. Roosting boxes are easy to make and save the life of many a bird.

Haddock With Tomatoes.—Lay a small dried haddock in a pan with a little water and bake for ten minutes. Remove skin and bones, and flake the fish into large flakes.

Melt two tablespoonfuls butter in a saucepan, fry a little chopped onion lightly in it, add one-half cup canned tomatoes, and cook until soft. Put in the fish and a little chopped parsley, season, stir over low heat until all is thoroughly hot, then serve.

Cream Soup.—To prevent skin from forming on a cream or milk soup, beat it just before serving. The froth protects it from skin formation.

When Boiling Suet Pudding.—Put three or four slices of orange rind in the water. These will collect all the grease, and the pudding will be light.

Use for Old Shears.—Old shears are useful in salad making to shred the leaves of lettuce or other greens.

Reduced Clothing Costs

Because advertising created a demand, women can buy ready-to-wear garments at about the cost they paid for the materials only a third of a century ago. Advertising, in addition to decreasing clothing costs, created jobs for many thousands of workers.

Solitude Essential Solitude is as needful to the imagination as society is wholesome for the character.—Lowell.

"There's the Doorbell Again"

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean! It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price. And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every week, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world. They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.

BOARD of CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER of COMMERCE NEWS

A. J. PAYNE, SECRETARY

According to Secretary E. H. Ward, the City Taxes as collected for 1937 show an increase over that of 1936. The current Taxes as collected in January are $18,380.42 and for December $4,598.20 and prior to December and January $1,185.40, there was $7,438.95 paid in on delinquent taxes which shows a total of nearly $25,000 or about 85 per cent from the roll of $29,500.

F. A. Drewry Secretary of the Slaton Independent School District says their tax receipts were good, or about 89 per cent of the roll. The poll tax receipts issued show to be over 900 for Slaton. This shows a very healthy condition, and what a big cotton crop can do for a community, and also shows the people will pay their debts and back taxes when they have the money.

Local Student Loses In Finals

James Stotts, Slaton High school student, made an excellent showing in the finals for the district champions in the Golden Gloves tourney at Lubbock Tuesday night. He was defeated by Slim Spence, of Lockney, by decision. Stotts stopped some hard blows in the first round but being in excellent condition did not go down for the count. The blows slowed him up, however, and he did not fully recuperate during the last two rounds.

James advanced to the finals of the light weight, 135 pound class by winning over a Lamesa contestant Monday day night, by a knockout the first minute and a half of the first round. All bouts before and including which was the 12th, were knockouts. Sportsmen term "our Sophomore" one of the most promising young boxers on the South Plains.
