CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK

It looks a bit cruel to stand aside and check the Czechoslovakian problem to the European Powers and see them check the problem to Hitler d 596 pounds, saying as France and England have said this week, "We will not fight." But that is what was done in the case to Saturday night he had picked ten of China, of Ethiopia, and of Austria. Hitler will no doubt annex a slice of his neighbor, and doubtless there will; be some little bloodshed. But if all the rest of the world stays out of the fight, only a few will suffer and that not very long. If we all get into it, it will be a bigger and worse world war and might last many years. We believe France and England were right to check the problem over.

TWO ESSENTIALS SUPPLIED

We're telling you Coach Hamilton with low spirits. With that "Weakest team in three years" speech he made us fresh in our minds, we could Quail Flies Into easily have walked right under horned frog's stomach without stooping. We were that low. But it all came out all right. And we await with no little impatience the opening of conference play, which will not be until October 7 when we have Tahoka here. But meantime, there's the expedition down to Snyder tonight and whatever may be stirred up for the 30th, which is still open. We are not afraid now. Two essentials for a successful season are assured: A team that will give a creditable account of itself, win, lose or draw; and a team that can bear all the investigation any committee proposes.

One of nature's most startling henomena, the "Northern Lights," comes to the screen in a feature picture for the first time in Paramount' Alaskan saga, "Spawn of the North," which will have its local opening at Saturday's Prevue and Sunday and Monday at the Palace Theatre.

Plaids, Stripes and Prints Radiant With Fall Colors

By CHERIE NICHOLAS -

A N EPIDEMIC of plaids is gripping the entire fashion world. It matters not whether you are a grown-up or a juvenile, or a junior or a between-age, you will never be able to remain immune to the wiles and winning ways of the gorgeous plaids that have come out in such brilliant array at the dawn of this new fall season. For that matter who wants to if they could resist the witchery of anything so intriguing as are the new plaids. So if you would be fashion-wise enter into the spirit of the current mode and "go in" for plaids with a will. It certainly is an exciting story that the new plaids are telling. The variety via costume suits that are smartly tailored of glorified plaids and as to the separate skirts that are fashioned of plaid you couldn't keep count of their vast number if you tried. Then there are the cunning flattering shirtmaker dresses, the skirts of which radiate tucks or pleats from a slim waistline. Almost invariably the sleeves of these youthful frocks are short in defiance of most fashion reports that forecast "long sleeves for fall and win-

The separate plaid jacket that is tailored to a nicety is also an important item and as for the plaid blouse, it's the rage whether in fine wool weave, or a synthetic material such as rayon or it may be of taffeta. Nor does the present plaid craze stop at the costume proper, but it carries on full force into the accessory area. With your sweater and plaid skirt if you play the game of fashion as it should be played on campus and in spectator sportswomanship at the gridiron series, you'll see to it that your costume is completed with a jaunty cap and bag of matching plaid.

In the illustration we are showing a plaid, a stripe and a gay print school-girl model. These fetching fashions had their initial showing at a prevue showing of fall styles recently presented at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

Off to school is the young miss to the left in a clever Scotch costume. The skirt is a red and black plaid, plot carries on and on in endless with a matching Scotch cap and purse. The sweater is also red.

"The Barber of Seville" is the appropriate name given to the gaily striped wool afternoon dress centered in the picture. The skirt is pleated and the new longer-thanformerly-shown jacket is striped in jungle green and dregs of wine (much exploited color this season) A green ascot tie completes the

The peasant dress still dominates in dresses for the young for fall, as the model illustrated to the right portrays. The dress is navy blue broadcloth with splashy yellow and red flowers, over which is worn a brilliant front-laced peasant bodice. Autumn Costumes Favor Boxy Coats

Although the edict of finger-tip length jackets is general for first autumn suits, several French designers are defying this rule by introducing short, boxy ones to wear with contrasting dresses.

One of these brief coats is little more than waistline length and flares in all directions. Its roomy shoulder line and wide sleeves contribute to the carefree impression. Some striking color combinations are achieved with these jackets of light weight wool worn over wool dresses. Since mauve and violet tones continue to be popular they are being used extensively, often in alliance with blue or dark red.

The suit which has a jacket resembling an overblouse or a brief tunic is the one which designers regard with favor and which looks so much like a dress that it may be worn during cold weather under a fur coat.

★ Hidden Ambitions - By Virginia Vale -

ZASU PITTS has been having a lot of fun on her personal appearance tour, and has learned a good many things about her own box office value. She has brought crowds to the theaters where she has appeared, and motion picture exhibitors have told her that it hasn't been their fault that they haven't shown her pictures. They've begged for them. Any picture that she is in makes money for them, it seems, no matter who else appears

Zasu Pitts

"But you just haven't been making any pictures, Miss Pitts," they said to her.

There's a good reason why Miss Pitts hasn't been making pictures, these last months. A number of other actors, also big ones, haven't been making pictures either. Not that she hasn't been offered roles that she really wanted to play. But the companies who sent for her wanted to cut her salary to the bone. These days the big money is likely, it seems, to go to newcomers to the screen-foreign importations, cute girls who are being built up. Some of the big players have to swallow their pride, and do, and take the cut; others stay off the screen. Maybe that's why you've been missing some of your favor-

Miss Pitts has two opportunities to make her debut in New York as an actress; one in a musical show that, because of its authors, is practically sure to be a hit, the other in a play. If her husband and children weren't so firmly established in California she wouldn't hesitate about accepting one.

Remember passing mention that was made here some time ago of Charlie Chaplin's new screen find, Dorothy Comingore? He had seen her in a little theater performance

Just in case you have wondered what happened next, she has changed her name to Linda Winters, and you'll see her in "Trade Winds" with Joan Bennett and Fredric March. Here's a chance to see if you agree with the great comedian on what constitutes good screen material.

When you see "The Great Waltz' you'll see some lovely bits of scenery used as background, American scenery in Geneseo, N. Y. The reason is that Richard Rosson, Metro director, lived there for a while when he was a boy; now he's back in the old home town, shooting it for the public.

Cal Tinney has had such fun on the air with his "If I Had the Chance" broadcasts that he's been tackling his co-workers in the studie and quizzing them about their hidden ambitions. Fred Allen said he'd like to run a grocery store in a small town in Maine, and Jack Benny declared that he'd like to be a racing driver, and find out what it's like to tear across the salt flats at Bonneville, Utah, at 350 miles per hour. As for Cal himself, his suppressed desire isn't so hard to attain; he just wants to learn to play the piano.

ODDS AND ENDS-"Carefree" isn't up to the usual Rogers-Astaire standard . . Jon Hall was rushed back from New York to Hollywood in order to be sent to England to make "The Thief of Bagdad" . . . "Sing You Sinners" is such a good picture that it's a hit in London—first time that's happened to a Grosby picture—and Parahappened to a Crosby picture—and Paramount will make a sequel to it . . . The Voice of Experience took a vacation that included a tour of Oregon and a visit to Joe E. Brown in Hollywood, and now is back in New York and on the air . . . Remember "Asta," the dog in "The Thin Man" and its sequel? . . . You'll see him soon with Constance Bennett in "Topper Takes a Trip" . . . Spencer Tracy has ar other grand part in "Boys Town."

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Diet After Middle Age; Shows How Right Food Can Prolong the Vigorous Years

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

NE of the best prescriptions ever offered for longevity was advanced by the wise man who said: In the twenties, prepare for the thirties; in the thirties, prepare for the forties; and after that-prepare for a long and vigorous old age!

That advice is well worth following, for it has been estimated that by taking into account all the newer knowledge of nutrition, it is possible not .

Importance of Correct Diet On the other hand, thousands of Americans are unknowingly impairing their efficiency and shortening their lives through the misuse of food. They are eating the wrong kind of food-and what is equally disastrous-they are overeating! They do not seem to realize that eating too much does not strengthen the body, but exhausts it with the labors of digestion. The surplus nourishment clogs the system and may be indirectly responsible for headache, dyspepsia, biliousness and mental duliness. Unless they change their habits of eating, they will inevitably become victims of their own indiscretions. For while it is folly to neglect the health at any age, to do so in middle life is to open the way to an early death or to an old age marred by sickness.

Keep Down the Weight

The first 25 years of man's life are devoted to growth. During this period of youth, the body usually has a large fund of reserve energy which can be called upon 25 or 30 years, the weight should time. It is properly regulated, and sound five or six small meals are more habits of hygiene are followed, a man or woman will come into ones. Each person should discovmiddle age full of vigor and with mental and physical capacities undiminished.

Unfortunately, however, the laws of hygiene and nutrition are beyond-are largely what you often broken during the active middle years. As a result, bodily reserves are depleted and middle age finds many men and women near the danger line, no longer able to resist infections and the degenerative diseases.

That is why every individual who has entered upon the middle years should check his or her weight frequently, and promptly reduce the fuel foods if a significant gain is noted.

The protein requirement diminishes somewhat after the age of 60 for no new tissue is being built. It is, furthermore, advisable to take a large share of the protein in the form of milk and eggs.

Vegetables should be used freely and if there is difficulty in mastication, they may be finely chopped. Fresh fruits may be eaten as long as they do not cause fermentation; otherwise cooked fruits should be used instead. Contrary to popular opinion, sweets can frequently be eaten in considerable amounts without causing indigestion. Fats, however, should be used sparingly.

Weekly News Review-Mistrial Ruling in Hines Case May Be Setback for Dewey By Joseph W. La Bine—

New York

Long before a racket conspiracy charge was placed against Tammanyman James J. Hines, New York's District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was mentioned as a potential G. O. P. gubernatorial nominee, even as a 1940 presidential possibility. By the time the state finished presenting evidence in Jimmy Hines' trial, Tom Dewey's political importance was pretty well settled. So certain was this importance that observers tried to find political significance in repeated clashes between the district attorney and Justice Ferdinand Pecora.

Of one thing they could be sure: Justice Pecora's political background was the antithesis of Tom Dewey's. One-time assistant district attorney under Tammany regimes, later a New Deal district attorney candidate, still later a member of the securities exchange commission, Ferdinand Pecora had a thoroughly un-Republican background before he was named to New York's Supreme court in 1935.

Political or otherwise, Justice Pecora has found cause to sit emphatically and repeatedly on the vigorous young district attorney. Once, when Mr. Dewey pouted that he was being treated like an "interourtroom," the justice shot back that he resented the remark. By the time he was through presenting evidence, the 36-year-old racket smasher could rest assured he had built a good case, though his courtroom conduct had sometimes been irregular.

As the defense began its case, two abrupt developments threatened Tom Dewey's attempt to convict Jimmy Hines of conspiracy in Arthur ("Dutch Schultz") Flegenheimer's policy racket. First, Defense Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker asked that the case be thrown out on grounds of insufficient evidence, but Justice Pecora denied the motion after a day's consideration.

Few minutes later, the district attorney began cross-examining Attorney Lyon Boston, who made an admittedly half-hearted, youthful investigation of Jimmy Hines while an assistant under William C. Dodge, Dewey's predecessor. Under discussion was William Fellowes Morgan, commissioner of markets, who testified regarding the poultry racket before New York's famed "runaway" grand jury in

Asked Dewey: "Don't you remember any testimony about Hines and the poultry racket there (before the grand jury) by him?"

"One moment!" boomed Defense Attorney Stryker. "I move for a

The defense contended Tom Dewey had made unfair reference to grand jury testimony about a possible criminal matter with which Jimmy Hines was not charged. Though the prosecution claimed Attorney Stryker had opened the subject, Justice Pecora thought otherwise. Two days he pondered the mistrial motion. Then, to a tense courtroom, he read a two-hour opinion upholding the defense. Result: One juror was ordered withdrawn and the state's laboriously built case was thrown out. Next day, Manhattan wondered whether Tom Dawey's defeat would cost him a chance to be New York's governor. A more pertinent ques-. tion was whether he wanted the job. Biggest worry of Empire state Republicans who would run him for governor is that no one knows how he stands on labor, utilities, social security, relief, civil liberties or budget-balancing. But all-important to voters is the district attorney's record of law enforcement. So greatly is he feared that Franklin Roosevelt is willing to support Gov. Herbert Lehman for re-election despite the governor's opposition to New Deal reform measures.

ing, lest France think Britain had deserted her in the hour of need, he told Ambassador Nevile Henderson to give Der Fuehrer another warning for good measure. The warning: That Britain means business in demanding Czechoslovakia's preservation.

Thus, armed with latest Czech concession offers, watched by pro-Czech allies that included Britain, France, Russia and Rumania, Adolf Hitler strode on the stage at Nuremberg's Nazi congress to speak his mind on the subject as he had never spoken it before.

His points: (1) That, if they cannot defend themselves, Sudetens "receive help from us"; (2) that Czech President Edouard Benes spread false rumors of German troop movements during recent Czech municipal elections, thereby practicing intimidation; (3) that, though Germany wants peace with European democracies, nothing can prevent her from assuring self determination for Sudetens.

Actually, Der Fuehrer's only new assertion pertained to Sudeten "self determination." Did this mean he favored a plebiscite? That night, as Europe pondered his words, the consensus said yes. Did his speech carry a dangerous threat of war? Most observers thought not, though jittery France had rushed so many troops to her German border that it might be almost embarrassing to withdraw them.

Politics 1 4 1

In Maryland, Democrats could choose one of three nominees for the U.S. senate.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, whom Franklin Roosevelt wanted removed because his New Deal batting average is only .292. By record a political opportunist, Senator Tydings was once a ragged boy on the docks of Havre de Grace, rising to Maryland's house of delegates at the age of 23. His helper was Murray Vandiver, state Democratic chairman who helped him through school, guided him into politics, was later unseated from Maryland's treasuryship with Protege Tydings' aid. A distinguished war veteran, he rose to congress with the help of Vandiver's enemies, was boosted into the senate as compromise candidate by Gov. Albert C. Richie and Frank Furse. His favorable New Deal votes: Miller-Tydings price control act on trademarked goods, SEC. neutrality and "pump priming." His handsome wife of two years is the daughter of Belgium Ambassador Joseph Davies.

Rep. David J. Lewis, whose election Franklin Roosevelt urged in a Labor day speech at Denton, Md., since he has been a faithful New Dealer. In congress since 1911, he has fostered parcel post, social security and workmen's compensation. During the World war he handled telephones and telegraph. He fought the bonus, as did Veteran Tydings. Arthur E. Hungerford, New Dealer whom the New Deal ignored, who closed his campaign by charging there should be a grand jury and a federal investigation of the methods used."

On election's eve, PWA Administrator Harold Ickes spoke encouragingly of two proposed bridges over Maryland's Potomac and Susquehanna rivers. Anti-New Dealers charged Franklin Roosevelt was buying votes. Same day, the senate's campaign expenditures investigating committee found M. Hampton Magruder, Baltimore's internal revenue collector, had attempted to coerce non-civil service workers into voting for David Lewis. Thus closed the most heated campaign in Maryland's history.

By the time Maryland's first votes were counted next evening, Millard Tydings' nomination was certain, though more than one unprejudiced observer mourned the defeat of a great liberal, David Lewis. For governor, Democrats nominated Attorney Gen. Herbert R. O'Connor. Meanwhile, Republicans chose Oscar Lesser and Gov. Harry W. Nice for senator, governor, respectively.

 Nothing is more embarrassing to a politician than unwanted support. Hanging to the coat-tails of Maine's three Republican congressmen, Clyde Smith, James Oliver and Ralph Brewster, have been the Pine Tree state's Townsend pensioneers, providing a juicy topic of speechmaking for their Democratic opponents. Principals in the race that until 1936 was said to forecast America's political future ("As Maine goes, so goes the nation") have been Republican Gov. Lewis O. Barrows, seeking re-election, and ex-Gov. Louis M. Brann, seeking a third term. Maine's political visitors included Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley. Adding a touch of color, Candidate Brann brought Crooner Rudy Vallee back to his home state, had him sing Maine's "Stein Song." White House

Fortnight ago, U. S. citizens were erked into consciousness of war's proximity. At Bordeaux, Ambassador William S. Bullitt reportedly asserted: "The United States and France are indefectively united in war as in peace." In England, Am-bassador Joseph P. Kennedy spoke his mind about dictators. Mean-while, back home, Franklin Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull were periodically mentioning America's inescapable interest in any 1938 foreign conflict. What John Public deduced was that his government had joined European democracy's drive to "stop Hitler." (See FOREIGN.) But after the U. S. press had harped on this idea for a week, the President administered a verbal thrashing. At a Hyde Park press conference, he charged these interpretations of Roosevelt-Hull Bullitt statements were 100 per cent wrong; that there was political attempt to misinterpret the record; that Ambassador Bullitt never said the U. S. and France were "indefectively united."

Back at its Bordeaux correspondent for confirmation went Associated Press. Next day came an admission that Associated Press was wrong, that Franklin Roosevelt was right. Said the correspondent: There was a misinterpretation of the ambassador's words.

What was America's foreign policy? For an answer, the President referred reporters to the Roosevelt-Hull speeches on the subject. A few hours later came a typical Hull pronouncement on the subject, issued by way of accepting an invitation to the eighth international conference of American states.

Said Foreign Policy Maker Hull: "The nations of the world are faced with the issue of determining whether relations shall be characterized by international anarchy or by the principles of fair play, justice and order under the law. No nation and no government can avoid the issue. Neither can any nation avoid participation . . . in determining which course . . . will prevail."

 Non-stop from Hyde Park, the President sped to his son, James, bedded of a gastric ulcer at Rochester's Mayo clinic. Already there were Eleanor Roosevelt and James' wife, Betsy. Accompanying the President was son Elliott. Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt arrived, James went into the operating room, came out two hours later minus his ulcer. By evening he was resting well.

To Brooks Hays, Arkansas Democratic national committeeman, the President wrote endorsing a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing poll tax. To his press conference, the President charged such taxes (effective in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia) kept may people from voting. In the same category he placed Women's Rebellion, Inc., a New Jersey group trying to prevent WPA workers from voting.

Miscellany

Each September, Atlantic City woos beauty and publicity by inviting bathing-suited contestants from each state, by naming one of them "Miss America." To "Miss America" goes a silver cup and stagescreen tryouts. Last year's winner, New Jersey's Bette Cooper, scorned her honors and went back to school.

This year, Atlantic City hoped for better luck. Up and down before judges paraded 43 girls from almost as many states. Finally they gave the title to Marilyn Meseke of Marion, Ohio, gave second place to CALIFORNIA'S CLAIRE JAMES She was insulted and disgusted.

Claire James of Los Angeles, third place to Muriel La Von Goodspeed of Salt Lake City.

Next day, Atlantic City felt repercussions. Stormed doll-like Claire James: "I am insulted . . . I can't stand any more . . . I am disgusted." Raged her mother: "Some of the judges called me this morning and said it was an outrage that Claire didn't get first place.'

In New York, Producer Earl Carroll opined that Atlantic City's judges were incompetent, that Claire James was the "true Miss America."

Sirkka Saloner, who has never used lipstick, rouge, face powder or cold cream, was named "Miss Europe" at Copenhagen.

Government Must Be Kept Liberal, Cry of President and Spokesmen

Roosevelt's Definition of Term Means He Has Cast Die For Realignment of Political Parties; Time May Prove Fallacy of Today's Liberal Doctrines.

> By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

to-do being made these days about "liberalism." We are told in the press, through the radio, in personal conversations that "liberalism," liberal thinking, is vitally necessary; it is urgent that our government be kept liberal, and that our daily lives be moulded along liberal lines. President Roosevelt says so, and sought in a recent speech to define liberalism; his spokesmen repeat and emphasize what he has said; the vast army of ballyhoo artists on the government payroll is saying it after the manner of a stooge for a ventriloquist. A lot of Republicans, trying to ape the New Dealers, are saying it, too, and making just as much of a mess of the proposition as the less slick-tongued among the New Dealers. Well, any way, at any cost, there must be liberalism. If we don't be liberal, we are warned, the devil will get us. The nation, its 130,-000,000 inhabitants and all of their works will sink to the depth of perdition. It's a very sorry situation,

Recognizing the need, the urgent necessity for liberalism, Mr. Roose-velt undertook recently to define it. I quote his words from a recent speech in Maryland where he had gone to try to bring about the defeat of Sen. Millard Tydings in a race for the Democratic senatorial nomi-

"For example, Mr. A is a compos-ite conservative. He admitted that in 1933, interest rates charged by private bankers to ordinary citizens who wanted to finance a farm were altogether too high; he admitted that there were sharp practices, excesses and abuses in issuing securities and buying and selling stocks and bonds; he admitted that the hours of work in his factory were too long; he admitted that old people, who became destitute through no fault of their own, were a problem; he admitted that national and international economics and speculation made farming and fishing extremely hazardous occupations; and he even admitted that the buying power of farmers and fishermen had not kept pace with the buying power of other kinds of workers.

"But conservative Mr. A not only declined to take any lead in solving these problems in co-operation with the government. He even found fault with and opposed, openly or secretly, almost every suggestion that was put forward by those who belonged to the liberal school of thought.

"Mr. B, I said, was a composite liberal. He not only admitted the needs and the problems like Mr. A, but he put his shoulder under the load; he gave active study and active support to working out methods, in co-operation with the government, for solving the problems and the filling of the needs. Mr. B did not claim that the remedies were perfect, but he knew that we had to start with something less than perfect in this imperfect world." Would Force Realignment Of Politics of Country

Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement on what constitutes a liberal followed very closely a statement he had issued in a meeting with the newspaper correspondents at the White House, saying that he had no objection to election of "liberal Republicans." Said he: "If there is a good liberal running on the Republican ticket, I would not have the slightest objection to his election. The good of the country rises above

The importance of these two declarations?

Mr. Roosevelt has cast the die for a new alignment of political parties. He has swept aside all previous bonds that held men and women within the Democratic party or the Republican party or the lesser political groups and has said, in effect, "Come with me into a new fusion of forces and action." Of course, no one who has studied Mr. Roosevelt's course since his political ears were first pinned back in defeat of his malodorous plan to add six justices of his own choosing to the United States Supreme court could have failed to recognize this eventuality. He was planning to force realignment in politics in this country for some months; but now the thing is out in the open, and the Democrats and Republicans, alike, know what confronts them if it is their desire to maintain the present political party setup.

What will happen is quite another question. Undoubtedly, the Democratic party will be the greater sufferer. It has to be so, because Mr. Roosevelt became titular head of the Democratic party by virtue of election to the presidency in 1932 and again in 1936 as the candidate of that party. So many of the former Democrats have become wedded to the New Deal either by conviction or as a result of having won office on New Deal coat tails that there is no turning back for them.

WASHINGTON .- There is a great | Thus, there is a split, with those who subscribe to the New Deal theory of liberalism on the one hand and the Democrats who adhere to the hundred-year-old principles of the Democratic party on the other. There will be some Republicans drawn into the new alignment, but they will be fewer than the wing formed from Democrats. The Republicans who will go over to any new alignment will be of the type of Harold Ickes, now secretary of the interior, Senator Norris of Nebraska (who once wore a Republican label) and others of the here-today-gonetomorrow category.

And further, as to what will happen: my observation is that these so-called liberal movements don't last very long. They crack up on the very principles which are supposed to be their foundation stones. Always, there are too many "lead-ers." Every "liberal," who cata-logues himself as such, shouts about it and produces plans for saving the world wherever anybody will listen, conceives himself to be a leader. Someway, the ideas and ideals of these liberal leaders always differ. Each invariably takes the position that his plans must be adopted unanimously or the world will go to

Ideas Subject to Quick Change; Try Something Else

Then, too, their ideas are subject to such quick change that few of them are retained very long. They are cast aside for something else that has more glamor. A case in point is an incident of recent history. After New Dealer Senator Pope had been licked for the Idaho Democratic nomination for senator by the youthful Worth Clark, there was talk among the New Dealers about having Senator Pope seek reelection independently; it was proposed and discussed with Mr. Roosevelt whether Senator Pope should embrace the faith of the La-Follette's progressive ticket in Idaho. It was found, however, that the LaFollettes had a candidate for the senate on their ticket. To the suggestion that he withdraw and let Senator Pope be their candidate, the LaFollette spokesman said: no siree! Senator Pope isn't progressive enough for us-and Senator Pope had campaigned as a 100 per cent New Dealer.

One can walk around the halls of congress any day when the session is on and find hundred-per-centers arguing how far "reform" must be carried; what "liberalism" means. And, in downtown Washington, where the really important headmen of liberalism are to be found, they are constantly furning and fretting at each other. Instances are on record where two rabid liberals actually have sought to get each other discredited in the eyes of the President because of their differences over what liberalism means.

The only thing about which they seem to agree is that anyone who insists on sanity in governmental thinking-anyone who takes heed of lessons of experiences and traditions of the past-must, of necessity be a tory, a bloodsucker, a trampler of the poor, an obstructionist, a "republicrat," or some other animal in human form who is overcome with personal greed. On that point, the liberals that we see in the government these days present a united front.

Time May Prove Fallacy Of Today's Liberal Ideas

That is the story of the self-appointed liberals. To them has been given the right-in their own minds, at least-to guide the destinies of the nation. I assume that if they regard me at all they classify me as coming from across the railroad tracks, question my mental balance. But I shall continue to study their methods, commend what is good, criticize that which is obviously unsound. More important, I shall continue to cling to the doctrine of the ages that human nature is going to be changed by some Power that is considerably above the level of human intelligence; I shall hold to a conviction that real progress comes by that method and not from the crackpots who look upon the human race as a fresh litter of guinea-

But, anyway, we have liberalism defined at last by a man who is qualified to define it, and we find that it differs from what liberalism formerly meant. It was only a few generations ago that liberalism meant restricting, not increasing, the powers of government. Neither Mr. Roosevelt's definition nor his record in office coincides with the former understanding of the word. It seems to me likely, therefore, that we will go on for quite some years with this quarrel, and that may be—and this is just a hunch— time will prove the fallacy of some of the so-called liberal doctrines of this day.

THE LIFE OF THE PARTY

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

O D. Appleton-Century Co., Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied. He tells Hale of his wife's death while insane, invites him for the summer to Haleyon Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises him he will be "useful" as his secretary there. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Alnsworth, an unpopular college mate, also at Haleyon, who leaves him with a premonition of unpleasant mystery. He is met at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, whom he questions about the menage, and experiences a disturbing premonition. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna, Kneeland's elderly sister, and her friend, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a solled paper, printed, "This plase danjerous." Hale meets the rest of the strange group—Dr. Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Kneeland, nervous young son of Casper, and beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, niece of the house. Ainsworth drops in at his room, questions him about his reactions, and tells him of Bert's hopeless love for his heiress cousin, and that Mrs. Forbes is down and out. The whole group seem to get on each other's nerves. Later, Hale sees Hosanna furtively meeting a shabby man in the woods.

"Good morning," Hale said, "Has everyone else had breakfast?" He added with his likable grin, "I'm ashamed of myself."

Rose responded warmly. She approved of the new arrival and his pleasant ways.

"Miss Hosanna hoped you would sleep late, sir. She says you've had an illness. She ordered me not to ring the breakfast gong. Everyone has had breakfast but Mrs. Spencer Forbes. Your breakfast is right here on the sideboard, sir. If you will choose what you like

She added as Rex strolled toward the sideboard, "Breakfast hours are so irregular here that we serve in the English way."

"I like that."

Hale lifted the lids from several silver dishes that simmered over electric flames, and regarded their contents with enthusiasm. "I like these, too," he added. He selected a hot plate and helped himself generously to scrambled eggs, bacon, and creamed potatoes. Rose poured his coffee and offered him hot muf-

Hale's spirits were soaring again. His forebodings of the previous evening seemed absurd. Even that odd encounter between Miss Hosanna and the unpleasant stranger appeared normal in the light of this brilliant day. Perhaps she had been called to the aid of a sick neighbor, or something of the sort, and the man had brought her home. No doubt there was a natural explanation of the episode. Hale ate a big breakfast and told Rose how good American food tasted to him.

While his second cup of coffee was being poured Mrs. Spencer Forbes strolled in. Her pale mask brightened slightly at the sight of the young man. It developed that she was glad to have company for the meal. She had had a beastly night-but then she always had beastly nights. She hadn't done any sleeping, really, since she was a girl. She prowled around the house at night a good deal. She ate sparingly of toast and coffee.

"Are you bathing at eleven?" Mrs. Spencer Forbes wanted to

"Of course."

"Then you can teach me to swim. You needn't waste time teaching Joan. Unless you're a wonder she can put circles all around you."

"You're looking exactly like Lil-lian Russell this minute." "I don't doubt it. She's been in her grave for years." Hale offered her his cigarette case, held his lighter for her, and grinned into her strange eyes. They were like pale blue-gray sapphires, with odd moving lights in them. Something in their expression, as they met his eyes, sent a little chill down his spine. She was a coldblooded creature, if there ever was one. He could not imagine Mrs. Spencer Forbes sparing anything that stood in her path. She laid her hand on his arm, as he stood beside her chair, and the touch added to the chill. He could feel the coldsleeve of his white flannel coat.

When he re-entered the house he took in its general architectural plan. There was a wide central hall on both the first and second floors, with big rooms at the right and left. The lower right wing held the living-room, the dining-room and some sort of a library or study as he discovered through its open door. The left wing held a long library and billiard room. The kitchen, he inferred, was in the rear of these. The central hall was spacious and the living-room and library on either side of it had wide windows facing

There were evidently plenty of bedrooms upstairs, on each side of the upper hall. "They certainly don't," Hale agreed and went on to his room. It was almost eleven. Hale left his bath-robe in a corner and hurried down to the water's edge. Joan was already there, looking lovelier than ever in a green bathing suit with orangecolored cap and shoes. Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Miss Hosanna had not yet appeared. Neither had Ainsworth. Hale issued his challenge for a swim to the distant float. Joan's reply was to plunge into the surf and start seaward with swift, clean strokes. She was a good swimmer, but he passed her easily, less than half-way to their destination. Then he looked back over his shoulder. She was steadily falling behind and seemed tired. He slowed down, let her come abreast of him, her side. She bit her lip.

"I'm no match for you," she admitted. "Doctor Craig can give you a run for your money. I'd like to

She had turned her head to look at him. There was an odd expression in her eyes. Hale responded to

"It worries one, too," he said. "Most human beings are used to ordinary physical ups and downs. They have sensations every day that would frighten you and me. They take them as the trifles they are. We don't. We magnify them. We remember that the good die young," he ended more lightly. "We decide that we are pilgrims here. Heaven is our home."

She laughed a little.

"Of course you do understand." Her voice held vitality. She was looking at him with so much interest that his head swam a trifle. They reached the float and sat down on it with their legs hanging over the side. For a time they were silent. Hale was afraid to speak again. If he did he might shatter the odd sense of intimacy that now envelshining beach, down which Miss Hosanna and Mrs. Spencer Forbes were making their way to the water's edge. He realized, too, that she had been observing him more closely than he had known. This was a pleasant discovery. As if underlining it she spoke again, ignoring Craig's arrival.

"You don't know how nice it seems to have someone come among us who can laugh and joke," she said. "We're a dull lot. I usually have two or three girl friends here, but I haven't asked them this summer. They'd expect to be entertained every minute and I don't want to bother with them." Then she drew Craig into the talk. "Aren't we dull, Doctor?"

"Most of us are a bit on the sober side," Craig agreed. "But you're not, and Bert oughtn't to be."

"I wasn't, but I am. I'm afraid I'm going through the process known as 'settling down.' " "Not a bit of it. You're too young for that."

Craig spoke with such unusual emphasis that Hale glanced at him curiously. Craig did not see the look. His eyes were on the girl between them, and Rex was struck by his expression. It was a long "I'm not doing as well as usual look - thoughtful, deeply intent,

Origin of 'Yankee Doodle' Is Traced to Dutch Words Meaning 'Little John's Toot'

For all our American pride and pleasure in the song "Yankee Doodle," neither the origin of the tune nor the derivation of the two from "doedel" which the Dutch used thing happened to Jane's cat. Jane's words in the title has ever been dethe cook, you know. It was just termined with certainty. So Harold Davis reminds us in a recent issue of American Speech.

Mr. Davis reviews the various arguments and shows that any number of derivations have been suggested, but the real purpose of his article is to make known some new evidence.

It seems that there were recently discovered, in the basement of the Calais free library in Calais, Maine, 42 diary-notebooks which once belonged to James S. Pike. This Pike a famous newspaper correspondent and American minister to Holland from 1861 to 1866.

In one of these notebooks was of the Boston Advertiser." This "Yankee," Pike said, quite likely came from "Jan-tje," meaning "Lit-tle John." "Doodle" probably came as a part of their description of a Scotch bagpipe. It meant "toot." Thus Pike found the origins of "Yankee Doodle" in the Dutch 'Jan-tje Doedel," meaning "Little John's toot."-From "The Pleasures of Publishing"-(Columbia University Press).

Insects and Flowers

Some flowers are sweet-smelling at night and scentless during the day. When this is the case one can be sure that the insects which fertilize the flowers are nocturnal in habit. Flowers which are sweetsmelling during the day are fertilized by insects which fly during the day. Some flowers close up during the day and open during the night; others do the opposite. Insects and flowers are mutual friends, but both of them have their enemies. There are insects which prey upon flowers, and there are flowers-or plants which use their vers-to prey upon insect

Lesson for September 25 DAVID: TRIUMPHANT FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Psalms 23 and 27:1-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. Psalm 23:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Song of the Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Song of a Shepherd BOY.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC— Songs of Faith and Courage.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
A Steadfast and Triumphant Faith.

What a fitting conclusion to our three-month study of Old Testament characters it is to sound the note of "triumphant faith." The life stories which have passed in review have been true to life, as they have shifted from strength to weakness, from fear to courage, from moral responsibility to moral weakness. But God is the one who changeth notand we would not close our series properly without the encouraging reminder that the man who truly believes God may know strength out of weakness, courage in place of fear, may like David rise out of degrading sin and defeat into the joy and victory of faith.

Two elemental needs are common to all mankind-provision for the maintenance of life, both physical and spiritual, and protection from the enemies of soul and body. Our first Scripture portion declares the faith of David in God as his providing shepherd and the second as his security from fear.

I. Provision (Ps. 23).

"The Lord is my shepherd." Putting God first in every detail of life means that there will be

1. No want (vv. 1-5). "My cup runneth over," and surely then there can be no lack of any good thing. God is able and willing. We, like David, should trust Him.

2. No weakness (v. 3). "He restoreth my soul." The world is puzzled by the rejuvenating power of the grace of God in the Christian's soul, but it becomes very real to us through the Word, through prayer, through the indwelling Holy Spirit Himself.

3. No wandering (v. 3). "He leadeth me." In an unknown or dangerous country the essential thing oped them. For a few moments they | is to stay close to one's guide. In looked out over the sunlit sea and | the wilderness of this sinful world, we must keep close to our divine Leader. He knows where the still waters and the green pastures are to be found, even in wildest and most barren land.

4. No worry (v. 6). "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." It was true of David, it is (or should be), preeminently true of the Christian. Someone has said, "If we trust we do not worry; if we worry we do not trust."

5. But-blessed assurance. Not only will the goodness of God follow us all our days, but we shall "dwell in the house of the Lord forever." II. Protection (Ps. 27:1-6).

"The Lord is my light and my salvation"-could there be any greater certainty that we shall be delivered from every danger and difficulty? To the one who walks in that light there can be 1. No fear (v. 1). "The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" He is the perfect and final answer to all the fears 2. No failure (vv. 2, 3). "Though an host should encamp against me in this will I be confident," that they shall but stumble and fall. One of the fears that dogs the footsteps of a man is that after all his effort and labor some enemy will come in and destroy. The Christian must often meet wicked and troublesome enemies - but though they be a host, he may be serene in his soul, knowing that if he is right with God the devices of man or devil against him shall only 3. No falling (vv. 4, 5). "He shall set me up upon a rock," and that rock is in "the secret of his tabernacle." The assurance of the believer in Christ is in Him, His work upon the cross and His certain word of promise. David longed for the house of the Lord; he wanted to return to the temple from which his many wanderings so often separated him. How blessed is our lot as Christians for we have in our own bodies the temple of the Holy Spirit (I Cor. 3:16, 6:19); we have Christ in us as the hope of glory (Col. 1:22). We also long to be in God's house (that is if we really love Him), but if we are born again we have the temple of God wherever we may be.

4. No fainting (v. 6). "Now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me." Just when, humanly speaking, we would faint because of the enemies all around us, or by reason of the heat and pressure of the fight, then God causes our heads to be lifted up and in the moment of apparent defeat there is victory.

5. But-a song. "I will sing praises unto the Lord." The atmosphere of praise is one which the enemy of our soul cannot stand. It is too rare, too pure, too holy for him. Next time he tries to defeat you-why not "Try Praise"? It

Smart Fall Styles That Are Flattering

HERE are two charming fashions with the crisp, slimwaisted, very feminine look that proves they are new and smart! And you'll notice that the sleeves are proudly puffed up, not outthey give height, not width, to the shoulders. These two simple designs, each accompanied by a detailed sew chart, make it very, very easy for you to have two leading fashions of the coming season at very little cost.

Two-Piecer With Jacket Blouse.

This charming fashion is extremely good this fall. It's tailored or dressy, according to the materials in which you make it up. The skirt is slim and plain. The jacket-blouse as youthful and becoming as it can be. For street, make it of wool crepe, flannel or faille. For afternoon, choose velvet or broadcloth for the skirt; satin, velvet or silver cloth for the jacket blouse.

With Smart, Slenderizing Lines.

Notice that the front panel of the skirt is cut in one with the midriff section-that's a smart detail that you see in expensive models, and it's excellent for large women. You can trust the suave, slick lines of this dress to make you look several pounds slimmer. It fits beautifully. Shoulder darts, and gathers above the waistline ease it over the bust, without any hint of bulkiness. Make this of satin, silk crepe, velvet or sheer wool, and you'll like it better than any dress you've had for a long time.

The Patterns.

1477 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 1d, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material for the jacket-blouse; 2 yards for the

1585 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 51/8 yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved dress; 4% yards for short-sleeved. Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book-25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream?
Are you cross and irritable? Do you scold those dearest to you?

If your nerves are on edge and you feel you need a good general system tonic, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with reliable Pinkham's Compound. It helps nature build up more physical resistance and thus helps calm quivering nerves and lessen discomforts from annoying symptoms which often accompany female functional disorders.

Why not give it a chance to help YOU?
Over one million women have written in reporting wonderful benefits from Pinkham's Compound.

Cheerful, Confident

HELP KIDNEYS To Get Rid of Acid

and Poisonous Waste Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fall to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous; all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known, Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbort
