

Planes Skim Sky Of Modern Africa

CAP ETOWN.—Down in the southern corner of the Belgian Congo is a town that is fast becoming one of the great cities of Africa. This is Elizabethville, near the copper mines from which more than half the wealth of the Congo is won. Twenty years ago lions roamed through the untouched jungle where now the flourishing town stands.

Sit in a basket chair outside one of the cafes, under the flamboyant trees, and survey this outpost of Belgium in the tropics. Rough tin shacks stand next to modern showrooms and cement business houses. A large airplane flying low, awakes the town with the droning of those engines. This beautiful white machine has come from Boma, at the Congo mouth, thousands of miles across the unexplored jungles of the Kasal, with mails from Europe. It is typical of the progress that has been made in the very heart of Africa.

Belgium Trains Black Army.

In winter keen, healthy winds sweep over the plateau on which Elizabethville is built, but during the sweltering summer there are outbreaks of malaria and the dread black-water fever. Children die of minor ailments that would mean nothing in more temperate lands.

Black convicts, chained lightly neck to neck, march past with their warders. White people ride in smart motor cars, or on bicycles. Here is a mother, pedalling up the road with her baby in a basket on the handlebars. There is a young Belgian with a black beard, dressed like a hunter in enormous helmet and khaki riding breeches. The military officers in their white tropical uniforms are sturdy fellows. They are here to train a black army, just as France has done further north. There is no doubting the efficiency of the barefooted native soldiers, who come tramping down the street in faultless column.

Birthday Party Is Given Miss Laverne Martindale Sunday

Miss Laverne Martindale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Martindale, entertained a number of young friends Sunday afternoon, May 20, with a party given by her mother in honor of the daughter's eighth birthday.

Games were played throughout the afternoon, at the close of which refreshments were served to the following: Lester Howell, Charlene and Betty Jo Martindale, Lillian Austin, Eugene and Wanda Martindale, J. W. Turnbow, Marguerite Morris, Aileen Martindale, Jamie Hogan, Louise Martindale, Lorraine Turnbow and Laverne Martindale.

Mrs. Martindale was assisted by Mrs. Louise Meeks.

Charleston Banned To Chinese Maiden

CANTON.—Little Miss Violet is not to be permitted to introduce the Charleston to Canton.

This slender, slant-eyed maid, a former singsong girl, whose real name is Ng and who has acquired a few American dance steps, is one of the victims and the chief inspiration of Mayor Lum's decree closing all dancing places.

Miss Violet, with the support of a few young Chinese returned from schools abroad, opened a large, elaborately decorated cabaret with a Filipino jazz orchestra. But Mayor Lum declared that this "foreign jumping to music" must stop, because it distracted young people from the revolutionary fight on "imperialism" and the unequal treaties with foreign powers.

Hand-Made Nails Not a Lost Art

WORCESTER, England.—Nails are still made by hand in parts of England. Some are turned out by order from manufacturers of furniture after old patterns and others from various parts of the world where special types of hand wrought iron nails are required. A recent foreign order came from South America.

The best known worker of this almost lost craft is Mrs. Nellie Brettie, who lives at Lye, being assisted by a young niece who operates the hand bellows of the forge.

It is calculated that there are less than 50 persons now living who were adepts at this work when the making by hand of iron wrought nails was carried extensively in nearly every home at Lye and other villages in the "Black Country" district. Most of them are too old to attempt to apply their trade today.

Quite a number of families, however, have kept the little "smithy" where their fathers and mothers used to work at the forge, the anvil, furnace, hammers and chisels being kept as sort of curiosities. The advent of machine methods had gradually wrested nearly all the business away from them. But among the "Black Country" folk, it is said the hand wrought nail is the best in the world, especially for shoeing horses.

Morrow Has Largest Library On Oil News

MEXICO CITY.—Probably the world's largest library dealing with Mexican oil and land laws in their every aspect has been assembled in the United States embassy here by Ambassador Morrow. It is said that not even any department of the Mexican government, no Washington department, no oil or land company has so comprehensive a library upon these subjects.

The embassy possesses every important publication upon oil and land laws of Mexico that government offices have and in addition has dug up many obscure works, many rare old tomes of Spanish colonial times and ancient decrees of the Kings of Spain promulgating land and mining codes for Mexico. The second-hand bookstores of Mexico City have been searched by representatives of the embassy and many volumes of value retrieved.

NEW SKYSCRAPER

NEW YORK.—Fifty-three stories, two stories lower than the Woolworth Tower, world's highest, will be the height of the structure which will replace the Hotel Athens, the Lincoln Safe Deposit building and other structures in Forty-second street, adjoining the Hotel Belmont and opposite the Grand Central station. Plans filed yesterday give the estimated cost as $8,400,000.

Japan Sends Trout To American Anglers

TOKYO.—Japan is sending to American anglers a gift of 10,000 native trout.

The shipment of ayu, or Japanese sweet trout, is to be sent to Stanford university at Berkeley, Calif., but other points in the United States may receive some of them.

Some time ago Dr. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of the university, who has lectured in Japan, expressed a desire to breed this variety of fish in the United States. Two shipments of eggs were sent to the university, but they failed to hatch out.

Connally's War
Record Defended
By Old Comrades

WACO, May 29.—Comrades of his in two wars extolled the patriotism and war services of Tom Connally, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate today in making answer to an attack on the war record of Connally made by Alvin M. Owsley in a speech at Genzales on May 23. The statement drafted in a conference of a dozen veterans of both wars was brief. In it they said:

"Tom Connally's war record is not the basis of his plea for election to the United States Senate but his record is not one for us or him to run from. The simple facts speak more eloquently of the war record of Tom Connally than all we might say. He was a boy lacking a few months of completing the course of law at the University of Texas in 1898 when volunteers were called for in the war with Spain. He sought admission in the Rough Riders and was turned down for being under weight. He found service with the Second Texas Infantry and came out a sergeant major. As a member of congress he took part in setting the stage for the greatest struggle in history and when he believed congress had done its portion he quietly left his seat and joined the army seeking fighting service. At that time, September, 1918, he nor no other man knew whether the war would last seven weeks or seven years. When it was over he went back to his seat in congress and continued to serve the nation there in the valorous task of handling the nation's post war business. We think such a record needs no defense and we believe the men who carried rifles in the muddied fields of France and survived that terrible holocaust will resent any attack upon it."

Among those signing the statement were Dr. Carl Lovelace, past post commander American Legion and also a veteran of the Spanish American War; Hilton Howell, past post commander American Legion, H. S. Beard, member state executive committee American Legion; D. W. Bartlett, present post commander American Legion; George D. Field, camp commander U. S. W. V.; C. B. Morrow, post adjutant American Legion; B. F. Spencer, comrade of Tom Connally in Co. F, 2nd Texas Infantry, Spanish-American War; G. B. Rogers; Wilford W. Newman, Tom Conway, F. M. Fitzpatrick and Clay McClellan, prominent attorneys of Waco and veterans of the World War.

Of Scout School
Held Monday Eve

Outdoor camping life, and Boy Scout methods of providing for necessities in the out-of-doors, constituted the lesson of the Boy Scout adult training school in a camp session held last Monday night in the canyon several miles northeast of town.

Approximately twenty men gathered for the session, and members of each patrol were assigned duties in the preparation of the evening meal. Biscuits were cooked by campfire, meat was baked in coals buried in the ground, spaghetti was prepared over an open fire in a Dutch oven, and rice pudding was prepared in the same way.

Following the meal the men were instructed in camping equipment, and proper packing methods by Scout Executive W. P. Knox, and later the patrols gathered around the campfire, participated in contests, put on stunts, and told stories of experience.

The final meeting of the course will be held next Monday night at the Slaton club house, following which diplomas will be awarded to men completing three indoor sessions and the outdoor session.

Memorial Day

11" was broadcast from G. A. R. headquarters all over the country. In part it read:

"The thirtieth day of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late Civil war, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village, hamlet and churehyrad in the land."

"It is the purpose of the commander-in-chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades."

All the Dead Remembered.

Once, Memorial day was only a day for the honoring of the memory of those who fell in the northern side in the Civil war. Its purpose has broadened, and the Grand army, in whose name the day was founded, has helped in the broadening. Now Memorial day has come to be a day when we remember with gratitude and affection those Americans who served by land or sea in any of the nation's conflicts.

On Memorial day, we honor and remember:

Farmers bring from behind stone walls at Lexington—lean men on lean horses, driving Ferguson at King's mountain—men in buckskin, wading with rifles held high, through miles and miles of flooded bottom land to get to Vincennes to strike a blow for the freedom of the West.

Hard-eyed Indian fighters peering through the sights of squirrel rifles over cotton bales at New Orleans—boys in baggy blue uniforms coming under fire for the first time at Bull Run—Stonewall Jackson's foot cavalry pounding off long miles up and down the Shenandoah valley—the long, gray line breaking under federal fire at Gettysburg—farm boys from the corn belt living like sewer rats in the wet trenches around Vicksburg.

Thin lines of khaki crawling forward in a wheat field in France—men crushed into a tortured sameness with the clay of torn-up trenches under the rain of high explosives—truckloads of Yankee infantry rolling over straight French roads to a horizon black with ruin—tired men, marching heads down in the rain, with raw feet and sagging packs.
