Black Government Employees to Debate Impact of RIF

Washington - Although considerable attention has been given to the proposed Reduction in Force (RIF) program, which, according to Administration officials, is designed to eliminate waste, many opponents of the program insist that the impact will fall heaviest on Black voters, a matter of particular concern to Blacks in Government (BIG), a non-profit advocacy group concerned with the professional advancement of Black government employees.

Lonis Ballard, President of BIG, in a recent announcement of the organization's Third Annual Training Conference to be held in Washington, D. C., August 25-28 at the Washington Hilton Hotel, explained that the conference will address the critical subject of RIF in several open sessions and workshops to inform participants of the program structure and their rights as workers.

According to Ballard, nearly 70,000 positions are slated for elimination and/or downgrading, the consequences of which are feared will have an adverse and disproportionate effect on minorities and women. The training conference, whose theme, "Preparedness, Performance, Productivity: Blueprint for Equal Opportunity," provides a timely backdrop for this controversial subject.

Keynote speakers will include Ben Hooks, executive director, NAACP; Atlanta Mayor Maynard B. Jackson, Jr.; Secretary Samuel R. Pierce, of H.U.D.; J. A. Parker, president, Lincoln Institute; Governor James A. Rhodes of Ohio, and Atty. Gloria Tootle, of New York.

The BIG symposia will explore employment security in the 80s, analyze the success of affirmative action programs, take a critical look at the failure of black colleges, and examine the impact of Reagan Administration policies on black employees.

According to Norman R. Seay, BIG's executive vice president and Conference Chair, training workshops, of particular benefit to federal, state and local government employees, are structured in three overall categories, career development, interpersonal development and administration and management.

"Career development sessions are designed to provide practical know-how in strategies for management, advancement, marketing skills for career mobility, and a how-to course in developing professionalism, skills, efficiency and productivity," explained Seay, "while interpersonal development shares insights into social problems such as stress management, professional relationships, balancing career and family."

"Sessions on administration and management, address on-the-job fundamentals," continued Seay, "such as resourcefulness, RIF, how to benefit from merit pay/performance appraisal systems, coping with automation, and retirement, among others.

Ballard, in explaining the significance of the training conference said, "BIG's annual conferences provide each participant from federal, local and state governments the opportunity to have a stronger voice in the planning, development and execution of policies, programs and issues which affect their jobs, and thus, their lives. This conference will provide a forum to address major problems Blacks face today."

For further information on the BIG training conference, phone (202) 726-6113 or write P. O. Box 56149, Washington, D. C. 20011.

Prof. Damon Hill Honored

They came from as far as Albany, New York, San Diego, California and even Chicago, Illinois to celebrate their twenty year anniversary of the Class of 1961 of Dunbar High School. While stopping by the "Hub City" for a few days, this class also paid special tribute to Prof. Damon Hill, who helped to "mold their lives."

Aside for the honor paid to Mr. Hill, there were other teachers at Dunbar who, too, were honored for the role they played in the lives of the Class of 1961. Among those honored were: Miss Joscy Bonner, Mrs. Lottie F. Barrow, Mrs. Vivian Cooke, Mr. Charles Henry, Mrs. Mildred K. Lusk, Mr. A.W. Lincoln, Mrs. Lena Sheffield and Mrs. Theresa Wheatley.

Others honored on their brochure were names of Mr. Samuel Booker, Mr. James T. Braxton, Mrs. Ulysses Gilee, Mr. Doanid George, Mrs. Uline L. Hughes, Mrs. Ada B. Jackson, Mrs. Vivian B. Jamison, Mrs. Celestine Kyle, Mrs. Odessa Long, Mr. F.P. Mallory, Mr. Joe Phea, Mr. William Poveil, Mr. Roy Roberts, Mr. Prentis Williams, Mr. Willie Thomas and Mr. George Scott.

Accompanying Mr. Hill to the banquet on last Saturday evening was his wife, Mrs. Mary G. Hill, who too was honored by the class; his son, Dr. Damon Hill; and daughter, Ms. Ila Kaye Hill.

Speaking to nearly one hundred and twenty-five people at the banquet, Mr. Hill said: "It is very gratifying in my later years to be rewarded like this for my life's work as a teacher."

He continued: "The greatest joy, however, is felt in seeing the many, many students who attended Dunbar go out in the world making useful and worthwhile lives. My profession as a teacher was a work that I enjoyed, not as a job and finish, but a life long experience that went for everyday, year after year with the expectation that the Dunbar students would make their lives worthwhile. Many, many of them have made their life's work worthwhile - their communities and the world have gained from their futilities. Now they are helping other people to do the same."

"I am and other faculty members of Dunbar, the parents and the community are happy that they came to share in their 20th anniversary with us. Again, I wish to thank you for this recognition," concluded Mr. Hill - with tears in his eyes.

He was presented with a plaque, reminding him of his "Mahausie" which was used for the many

Supreme Court Lets First Amendment Stand On Its Head

Washington -- Responding to last week's Supreme Court ruling on the Carter-Mondale case that will grant the "right of access" to candidates for Federal offices during political campaigns, Erwin G. Krasnow, senior vice president and general counsel of the National Association of Broadcasters, said: "When the Federal Communications Commission issued its decision on the Carter-Mondale petition, we said the FCC had turned the First Amendment on its head. Unfortunately, the Supreme Court (today) failed to place it back on its feet.

"Anytime the courts chip away at the First Amendment rights of broadcasters on sensitive political matters, the public turns out to be the ultimate losers."

Dr. Stephen Joseph Keynote Speaker

Following on its recent success at the WHO Assembly the Infant Formula Action Coalition (INFACT) announces its 5th National Conference at Augsburg College, Minneapolis, July 10-12. Dr. Stephen Joseph, ex-AID Deputy Assistant Administrator of Human Resources, delivers the keynote address at the University Episcopal Center, 7:00 p.m. July 10. (The presentation is open to the public.)

Dr. Joseph resigned his position in protest of the U.S. casting the only negative vote, in a recommendation passed 118 to 1, in favor of the WHO International Code of Marketing of Breastmilk Substitutes. He resigned his position because the U.S. action is "contrary to the best interest of my country, inexplicable to my professional colleagues... and damaging to health and growth of the world's children."

Dr. Joseph is one of many distinguished participants attending the INFACT conference. The conference will lay the groundwork for an intense year of organizing citizen action on the infant formula issue by using the new UNICEF/WHO code as a lever to force industry to immediate worldwide change in their marketing practices. The INFACT conference features many workshops (on networking, fundraising, international work, media, and direct action skills etc.) Everyone is encouraged to INFACT is a non-profit organization of health profes-

Lonnie L. Johnson Speaks Out on the Minimum Wage

NNPA

If there was any consensus during last November's election, it was that Americans wanted a change. Weary with idle promises and snowballing troubles, we wagered on a new President, just like we do mostly every four years. We hoped that, this time, some of those vague political generalities would solidify out of their mist into solutions we could see. Our yearning has been to believe, to trust.

And the Reagan Administration, three months in office, yearns for it as well. They ask of us our confidence and forbearance while they slash 83 government programs and then try to abolish something that's sole purpose has been to protect workers—I'm talking about the minimum wage. The irony of this arouses in me a fleet of misgivings. The problem is that there is a faulty logic at work here: CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) programs being cut, eligibility for food stamps being harshened, and requirement for unemployment insurance being tightened, people in the lower socio-economic stratum can less afford to be choosy. They will be increasingly forced to take whatever job they manage to find. And with no bottom line drawn on wages, their employer can pay as whim dictates. Blue and white-collar workers alike will be confronted with a somewhat ruthless decision: unemployment insurance, unskilled and semi-skilled workers don't even have an option.

Of course, the young are initially the ones who don't have to earn $3.35 an hour. The theory is that industry will be more willing to hire teens if it can pay them less than the "inflated" minimum wage. Some people think that since age is the criterion for discrimination, the sacrifice doesn't amount to much. But the baby boom of the 1960s continue to show its repercussions: the jobless rate for youths in the U.S. has reached 17.7%, up from 16.1% just two years.

With the nation facing an unemployment figure of 7.3%, this poses a risk of long-term economic hardship for one out of five teen-agers. Under Reagan's proposals, there will be one black grant for states and localities where there used to be three youth job programs—80,000 jobs for teen-agers blotted out like they never existed. What, I can't help wondering, will happen to juvenile crime?

Then, if we consider that unemployment among black teen-agers is 40%, we will notice age discrimination suddenly being applied to color. What's to stop it from being further abused and stretched to include any social or ethnic group that the government considers less in need of earning a living wage? And if industry doesn't have to provide the required minimum wage was an achievement marking a new era for workers of all ages; there are other achievement markers such as the Child Labor Laws and OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act). If we allow the first steps to be taken negating these advances, then wages, safety and creative work space could all become locked into a downward trend for everybody.

Seventy percent of the minimum wage work force are adults who won't be able to offer their employers as high a profit margin as teens earning a sub-minimum wage. In such a context, workers lose their arguable position. They begin to lose their say in their own welfare; altering the direction of social progress—and the wheel is slow.

With today's inflation, earnings mean less even without pay cuts. And whether or not the poor and the cities will benefit more from the intended reduction in inflation than they did from federal programs is two more speculation than economics. However, the fact remains that one in three households are going to miss those programs sorely, and far sooner than they'll even notice a change in inflation.

If President Reagan and his administration want to circulate money so that America's productivity is stimulated, there should be at least a few concrete assurances the exploitation will be kept a minimum and that some of the money will go back into the people. Protective laws, not promises, is what trust is built on.

Texas Delegates to Conference of Aging Conducts Forums

Texas delegates to the national White House Conference on Aging have selected Lubbock as one of five regional sites for a series of open forums on aging they will conduct in June and July.

The forums will assist the Texas delegates in preparing for the Washington conference (Nov. 30-Dec. 4), an event held every 10 years to mold U.S. policies on aging issues.

The Lubbock forum will be held July 9, beginning at 9:30 a.m., at Lubbock Christian College. Serving as coordinators for the meeting are Dr. Gail House and Gayle McComb of Lubbock, two of the 76 delegates who will represent Texas at the national conference.

Citizens, with special concerns about older Texans, especially those residing in the Panhandle, South Plains, and North Texas region, are invited to participate in the Lubbock meeting, according to Mrs. Chris Kyker, Texas conference coordinator.

Recommendations for resolving some of the major problems facing the state's elderly, as proposed at the recent State White House Conference on Aging, will be reviewed and validated at the regional forum.

From these recommendations, specific action plans will be developed for meeting priority needs of older Texans, at local, state and national levels.

"Black Community's Leadership!!"

by
Eddie P. Richardson, Jr.

For the Black Community to survive - the initiative and leadership must come from within as Samuel Cornish and John Russworm so eloquently stated in Freedom's Journal so many, many years ago. "To long have other people spoken for us; it is time that we speak for ourselves."

Freedom's Journal was the first Black newspaper. It said it then and it still holds true today - the Black newspaper is the "Voice of the Black Community" because the true Black newspaper renders a service to the Black community that can't be gotten any place else. The original organized leadership in the Black community was in this order - Prince Hall, when he was awarded a charter in the early 1700's - next Richard Allen, when he got a charter to establish Mother Bethel in Philadelphia, Pa. - and the Cornish and Russworm with "Freedom's Journal". These three have basically been in a leadership role ever since with other organizations coming and going.

The Black Press has had many of its leaders murdered, lynched and beaten up badly while other professional organizations haven't suffered as such. To be considered a true leader in the black community - the organization or whatever - has to be Black owned, Black controlled and Black oriented. So many of our so called Black organizations, across America, are white owned, white controlled and Black fronted. This is one of the reasons for some of the decline of true Black leadership in the Black community. You see when the piper pays the fiddler, the fiddler plays the piper's tunes. Black independent business people, Black owned businesses, Black churches, and Black companies - like Atlanta Life Insurance Company and Universal Life Insurance Company - Black lodges, Black fraternities, and others must take an active leadership role in our communities. This is a must in order to save them.

All of these Black forces must come together in order to save, build and rebuild our communities. We have to forget class status, social standings and all that other bull - and get our act together for the good of all of us. We are in the same boat together, no matter what some of us think or have been misled to believe.

Black business people, Black organizations, Black professionals, Black laborers must get together. We've got to get off those ego and class trips; and get down to business. Remember elections are coming up. Let's get it together and get some people out of office who do not have our interest and well being in mind. We need to put some people in office who have our best interest in mind.

Black independent business people and Black independent people must join the flock and come out of the background and take some leadership roles in the community, because you don't have it made until all of your Black brothers and sisters have it made.

Remember, you can help! You are independent! The piper don't pay you; you don't have to play his tune. Your hands are not tied. Act like it! Do something; be somebody. Be a leader!!

Special to Digest

Preface: In the coming years of the present national administration, it seems that there will remain an increasingly great need for a Black Voice for our people in all of West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico. In conversation with some of the staff of the Digest, I expressed a great desire to work with them in putting out a Black Voice that will be a credit to our people in this area we speak of above.

We have just concluded a three year battle in Pecos, Texas to clear the Friendship C. M. E. Church of all bonded indebtedness and we have succeeded. May God be praised.

Now we will be able to devote more time to our second love, that of working with black newspapers in fighting our battles for first class citizenship. If Black will unite, we can erase the last remaining vestige of discrimination within our ranks.

We will take a much needed vacation (I hope some rest too) and then back to work with our readers and well wishers as we continue to "tell it like it is" within the pages of our own newspaper.

Hear tell that our own Dr. F. L. Lovings made national headlines in NAACP in Convention recently. The man tells it like it is, it seems.

We are making contacts in Midland, Odessa, Kermit and other points so that we can have friends and influence people in all points West. Until later, we wish all our readers a pleasant summer and I hope to catch up with some of the fishing I have missed in the past three years. After then, back to the mines. I am

Your humble servant,
"Bob"

P. S. Watch for a real hot story to break from Dallas soon. We hope to be on hand to cover it.

Letter to Editor

"Congratulations!!"

Dear T. J. and Eddie:
This letter comes to say "Thank You" for inviting me to share in your Juneteenth Emancipation Celebration. Your kindness was of immense value and encouragement to me.

Your commitment to the betterment of the community is demonstrated in your lengthy and eminent service at educational and business-oriented events.

Dedicated public servants with a profound influence on your constituents and colleagues, you have carefully nurtured the high standards of intelligent, reasoned human pursuits.

But more than the offices, more than the titles, more than evident signs of commitment to your constituency are the untold hours of quiet work for the community. All of which shape you as true emissaries of good will for the community.

Keep doing your thinking on behalf of black victims. Whenever I meet people like you, I am encouraged and thus know that my work is not in vain.

You have so much promise as committed opinion leaders and decision makers that the Black community is certain to benefit from your work.

Blessings and best wishes for a pleasant and prosperous summer. I anticipate seeing you again with enthusiasm and expectations of good. I cannot thank you enough.

With much respect,

A View from Capitol Hill:

AN INDEPENDENT REPORTS ON WASHINGTON

By Gus Savage
Member of Congress

If the honeymoon that President Reagan seemed to have with the Congress, with the media, and with the American people in general isn't over, it sure seems to be diminishing in luster.

According to a recent Gallup Poll, the President's job performance rating has dropped sharply. Gallup shows 59 percent now approving Reagan's handling of his presidential duties, 28 percent disapproving, and 13 percent undecided.

President Reagan, in the opinion of some pollsters, had the confidence of two-thirds of the American people for his handling of his presidential duties for two months after the attempt on his life on March 30.

The latest Gallup Poll, however, shows a 9 percentage point decrease from a mid-May survey. His positive rating then was 68 percent.

The drop in approval is nearly matched by a seven point jump in those who disapprove of the Reagan's job performance, from 21 to 28 percent - the highest level of disapproval noted during his brief tenure and higher than that recorded for any other President after only four months in office.

Recent defeats suffered by Mr. Reagan in Congress, in my opinion, have a definite relationship to this turnaround in his popularity.

As I noted in my recent column on the Social Security System, House Democrats on May 20 went on record in opposition to the President's proposals - especially in regard to his plan to cut benefits for early retirees. The Senate on the same day passed a sense of the Senate resolution in opposition to any proposal that would "precipitously and unfairly penalize early retirees" or reduce benefits to any level more than "necessary to achieve a financially sound system."

The House on June 18 voted to keep the Legal Services Corporation alive for two more years under threat of a veto from Mr. Reagan. The Legal Services Corporation is an offshoot of the 1960s war on poverty. It was established as an independent, federally funded corporation in 1974 to provide attorneys for some 10 million poor people who cannot afford legal advice on matters such as divorce, wills, landlord-tenant disputes, and other civil cases. While the 245-to-137 vote fell short of the two-thirds needed to override a veto, it showed strong support of Congress for the program, which Reagan wants to abolish.

The Gallup Poll suggests that concern over the cuts in social programs, dissatisfaction with the proposed reductions in Social Security benefits, and criticism of the tax cuts are now being reflected in the President's overall performance ratings.

This is a shift from earlier surveys which showed Reagan to be personally more popular than his handling of specific problems.

One would expect Reagan to decline in popularity among the disadvantaged and elderly as it becomes clear that programs will work against their interests. However, a broader decline seems to have developed. The Gallup Poll shows that the President's popularity has dropped in all demographic groups.

If there is, in fact, a dent in the Reagan armor, it would behoove Black Americans to marshal forces to further diminish his popularity. I seem apparent that other Americans, too, are becoming disenfranchised with the Reagan smile matched by proposals that turn back the clock.

As I predicted as early as February 21, in a speech delivered at an Operation PUSH rally, "the majority of whites will soon realize the economic injury which we already perceive in Reagan's proposals - and well may substitute realism for racism, and follow our lead."

To guarantee that the Reagan proposals are defeated, we must form new alliances and strengthen old ones. For example, we must rejoin forces with the labor movement and other progressive forces. Churches, civic organizations, fraternal groups, and others all have a stake in a turnaround in the Reagan proposal.

I urge those with common interests to meet in Washington and let your voices be heard.

paying for disinflation

Democrats Did it for Reagan

Cutting inflation down to size will be very costly for some people in the country. President Reagan is determined to deal a death blow to the inflationary spiral of past years. Policies presently being put forward from the White House may well wipe out both inflation and income for certain Americans, a turn around in economic activity is not projected or expected until next year.

Indeed, the good news, if there is to be any, is not expected until 1983 or 1984. In time for the next national presidential election of a non-person. Even a casual glance at the past election results reveal a startling division by people to cut their own salaries.

Charles T. Manatt, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, called upon all democratic drifters and devotees to pull together in a "New Democratic Party." Manatt made the speech in front of incredulous members of the Commonwealth Club of California last month. Mr. Manatt stated flatly that the Reagan tax plan "cannot work." Furthermore, announcing there is no evidence that a tax-cut will light inflation or increase savings. The idealism was the very basis of big voter switching from the Democratic to Republican ticket in the last election. The New York Times/CBS News Poll indicates a definite shift in party identification in the past year. Young peopled, 18-24 years of age, apparently are undaunted by their already high unemployment, still jumping aboard the Republican party bandwagon. The 25-34 year old groupies were the greatest turn coats on the Republican train. They were just ahead of the 65 and over senior citizens; a 20% social security check cashing shift away from the Democrats. These groups have shown their hands and eagerly await the administration's accolades unavailing. Undoubtedly it comes somewhat of a surprise to these greedy people when the President reveals his trump cards and they sustained the losses.

Naturally not everyone will be a loser. Seventy-nine percent of those in the $40,000 plus family income group believe it's possible nowadays for someone in this country to start out poor and become rich by working hard. At about twice this level of income, say around $88,500 the median annual income for corporate executives, a study reveals things get real good. In this survey on corporate executives with incomes ranging from $40,000 to $200,000 a year found not unsurprisingly satisfied souls with their position in life. Unfortunately not too many 18-34 year olds or senior citizen over age 65 are $88,500 a year corporate executives.

Inflation and its corresponding erosion of their wealth is what the executives are most worried about these days. The Administration disinflationary program of cutting fiscal spending and manipulative monetary policy of tight money may well eventually place the economy on the brink of disastrous depression. Deficit spending larger in the President's approved budget than either the Democrats or Congressional Black Caucus alternative budgets can ignite inflation despite budget slashes.

Shifting expenditures from non-defense to defense spending can also release an inflationary spending cycle spurred by the federal government. Getting a grip on military spending is just as important as tightening up on social welfare programs if the President is to follow his own policy outline for disinflation. Ironically, more damage may well be done to those groups of people who just discovered what old line Republicans have known all along, when you got out of money the risk of loss is not too bad.

Mr. Manatt believes people should not follow the Reagan plan of "catching on the back of a napkin." Not to mention "broken promises on Social Security" to people who switched parties.

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast

The members of the Outreach Prayer Breakfast met in the home of Mrs. Juanita Sowell. There was really a firework display there—right in the city limits. All brought their fire, and the works were there. You know, there's no law against this kind of celebration. "You should have been there."

Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. Mary Ward, president.

Opening devotion was led by Mrs. V. Peoples, Rev. C. C. Peoples and Mrs. Ward. The scripture was Matthew 11:1-8.

The morning message was graciously presented by Rev. Peoples. His scripture was Rom. 12:1-2; 1 Corinthians 6:20; and Ephesians 4:22-23. His subject was "Transformed Life."

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

"For ye are bought with a price: therefore, glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's."

"And be renewed in the spirit of your mind."

The speaker said so many fantastic truths. He said you ought to try Jesus and see if he will prove his word. And if things don't work for you, be sure and check yourself, because he said he will stand by his word to perform it.

Our prayers go out for this spirit filled couple who will be leaving the city to conduct a week's revival in Sulphur Springs, Texas. For these people walk by faith and not by sight. We want them to know they are loved by this group.

Remarks were given by members and guest. A song was led by Mrs. Annie Day. It was entitled: "When the Saints Go Marching In."

Thought for the Day: "Sin in the human heart weakens the faith." Think about it!

Lunch was served with all the holiday glamour. This was something beautiful. Some even came on Friday so they wouldn't miss the special event. One sister came and ran and got her husband. She said: "Come and see a man." There was a full house. Were you there? We just love to please you. Spiritually and physically. Mrs. Annie Day so graciously welcomed the visitors.

Our guest last week were: Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Peoples, Rev. and Mrs. Tony Williams and sons, Tony and Reggie; Rev. Donald Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Ramos, Mrs. Patricia Burleson, Mrs. Verlina Hereford, Mr. Earl Wheeler and Mrs. Day. All of you made something beautiful out of the celebration. Please come again!

Our sick and shut in list include: Mr. D. C. Fair, a patient at Methodist Hospital; Mrs. A. M. Washington, a patient at Community Hospital; Mr. Sana Waites, a patient at Methodist Hospital; and Mrs. Bertha Hood, who is at home. If there are others not mentioned, believe and receive Mark 11:22-26. Real healing comes through the soul.

Mr. C. E. Fair was the proud winner of our door prize. Good luck, next time gang!

If you are in need of somebody to talk to, hearing down and out, tough problems—then call or come by. The numbers are: 747-4016, 747-7326, 763-1333, 765-6831 or 765-8623. Did you forget to fast and pray one day last week? If so, do it this week.

It will help your weight and gain more strength. Save food and solve your hardest problems. Try it! Special prayer for special people was led by Rev. Peoples. The meal and closing prayer was done by Rev. Williams.

Can any good come out of Nazareth?? The next meeting will be in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Fair, Sr., 2007 Date Avenue.

COME and SEE!! Mrs. Mary Ward is president; Mrs. C. E. Fair, vice president; Mrs. C. E. Brown, secretary; and Mrs. D. Hood, reporter.

Prayer Poem

A marvelous hymn or prayer poem of trust and praise has come to us anonymously in the words of "Sing, my soul, his wondrous love." This theme was written around the year 1800 and at times has been mistakenly attributed to Charles Wesley. We are surrounded by many spiritual benefactors whose names we shall never know. God deserves our thanks for sharing them with us.

*Sing, my soul, his wondrous love,
Who, from your bright throne above,
Ever watchful o'er our race,
Still to man extends his grace.
Heaven and earth by him*

*verse made:
All to by his creator
swayed,
What are we that he should show
So much love to us below?
God, the merciful and good,
Bought us with the Savior's
blood,
And, to make our safety sure,
Guides us by his Spirit pure.
Sing, my soul, adore his Name!
Let his glory be thy theme;
Praise him till he calls thee
home;
Trust his love for all to come.
Support your church or temple. Remember your minister in your daily prayers.*
