Receives Home Economics Scholarship at Texas Tech University

Wynette Yvonne Ball, an honor student and member of the 1970 graduating class of Estacado High School, was notified last week by the Assistant Dean of Home Economics, Miss Billie Williamson, at Texas Tech University of a full scholarship for the 1970-71 school year.

Wynette stated, "I am very happy to have received the scholarship. May I say 'thank you' to all of the wonderful people who have helped me along my way, especially my mother and father."

This is the first known scholarship that has been awarded to a Negro from this department at Tech.

Wynette resides at 405 Ute Avenue. She is the daughter of S/Sgt. and Mrs. Willie L. Ball. Her sister, Cynthia, will be a first grader in September.

Rites Read Wednesday for Lubbock Educator, Mrs. Myrcie Day Brown

Lubbock Voters Approve All Four In Near Record Vote Here Last Saturday

A near record 19,147 Lubbock voters overwhelmingly approved a $13.6 million "Disaster Recovery Package" of bond issues here last Saturday. This action came less than 90 days after history's most destructive tornado ripped a wide path of destruction through the city.

The final official totals were: Memorial Civic Center; 10,602 for, 8,469 against; Central Library; 12,125 for, 6,927 against; Parks;

12,235 for, 6,804 against; and Canyon Lakes; 12,519 for, 6,540 against.

The largest of the four propositions, the $7.8 million Memorial Civic Center, which showed the closest race, was okayed by 55 per cent of the total votes cast.

Leading the ballot was the $2.8 million outlay as the city's portion of a $6 million plan to develop the chain of six small lakes through Yellowhouse Canyon on the north side of the city.

Running neck-and-neck close behind the lakes proposal were the $1.2 million for a central library as part of the Memorial Center complex and the $1.8 million for improving and acquiring more park-land throughout the city.

The Memorial Center—which is to be lodged on a 16-block tract between 4th Street and 10th Street and between Avenues K. and Q. was the reason for Lubbock receiving $8.6 million in federally allocated funds which already have been set aside for Lubbock pending the outcome of last Saturday's vote.

Only twice in the past have more voters turned out for a Lubbock city election. Slightly more than 24,000 voted in heated mayoralty races in 1968 and again last April, when voters approved a $14 million airport expansion plan.

Early Signup Slated For New Students

Early registration for junior and senior high school students who are new in Lubbock and for those Junior and Senior High students who have moved into new public school attendance areas is scheduled this week through Friday, August 14th, from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

All elementary students will register August 24th. Elementary students will not register until August 24th, even if new to the city, according to school officials.

Only new students and students who have changed attendance areas for the junior and senior high schools need pre-register during this week of designation. Other junior and senior high school students are already pre-registered, including those moving into the seventh and tenth grades from lower schools, according to officials.

The early registration for new junior and senior high school students is needed in order that counselors and principals will have time to secure transcripts and other school records necessary for scheduling courses.

Classes for the new school term begin August 26th with Labor Day, September 7, scheduled as the first holiday.

Students who have questions regarding enrollment procedure may call the principal's office of the school in their attendance area.

Dunlap's Downtown Store to Close, Final Sale Set This week

Dunlap's downtown store is to be permanently closed, according to an announcement by R. Reg Martin, president of the firm.

Mr. Martin, in a statement issued last weekend, listed as the main factor in the closing, "our customers have indicated an overwhelming preference to be served at our suburban locations and we have decided now is the time, especially since the expansion of our Caprock Center store."

The downtown store was to be closed until Thursday morning, preparing for a close-out sale, which will continue for a limited time only.

The tearoom coffee shop, and parking building have been closed and will not reopen. The Interior Studios and Tire Center will remain open in their present locations.

Veterans Reminded to Turn in School Attendance Certificates

Veterans who attended classes during the spring and summer sessions under the GI Bill should make sure their Certification of Attendance cards are returned to the Veterans Administration immediately.

The VA explained that unless the cards are returned, veterans cannot be paid the educational money for their last month of training. Neither can they be paid for their first month of training when they return to school this fall.

A veteran attending college should fill out and sign the card he received with his next to final check, and mail it to his regional VA office, VA explained.

A veteran training below college level should fill out and sign the card he receives with his monthly check, and return it each month to his regional VA office. The card also must be signed by a school official.

The veteran who has lost his attendance certification card should request another from his nearest VA office. He should then return the completed card to his regional VA office, the VA advised.

Veterans intending to go to school this fall who do not have a VA Certificate of Eligibility are urged to contact their nearest VA office immediately.

The Nixon Administration last Friday sued the State of Texas and 26 individual state school districts—including Lubbock—asking for court orders dismantling what it terms separate educational systems for whites and non-whites.

The action taken last week, is calculated to force a conversion to unitary school systems for the 292,666 Negro, Mexican-American and white students involved by the fall opening of classes, some two weeks ago.

Separate suits naming the Texas Education Agency and all segregated school systems within each of the four federal judicial districts were filed by the Justice Department in U.S. District Courts in Tyler, Dallas, Houston and Austin.

It is believed that the action was taking place as Lubbock School Superintendent Ed Irons, along with school board chairman Watson Carlock and attorney Charles Cobb, were returning from Washington Friday after they had conferred with Justice Department officials.

According to Irons, "We talked with Jerris Leonard, the assistant attorney general for civil rights division of the Justice Department, along with Jerry Brader, head of Title IV of the civil rights division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In June of this year, a federal examiner had ruled that Lubbock was in compliance with HEW guidelines.

The Texas suits brings to 94 the number of Southern school districts taken to court by the Administration since July, when efforts to seek voluntary desegregation were given up in favor of court action in most of the South.

The suits seek court orders prohibiting discrimination by race and requiring both the states and the districts, "to take affirmative action to disestablish the dual system of schools based on race and ethnic origin and to correct the effects of past discrimination."

The school districts should, "be prepared forthwith to adopt and implement plans", for desegregation prior to the start of the 1970-71 school year, the suit said.

Texas has 1,218 school districts with a total enrollment last year of more than 2.5 million students, 1.7 million of whom are white.

The 26 districts operate 466 schools with 214,299 white students, 46,160 black students, 31,725 Mexican American students and 482 students of other racial backgrounds.

Citizenship

By Cascell Noble

Citizenship can be defined as full membership in a country. This full membership includes every right and responsibility of a legally recognized citizen. What are these rights and responsibilities of every citizen?

One of the most important rights is that to free expression. The amendments covering it insure freedom of speech, press, and peaceful assembly. To exercise these rights is also to exercise a responsibility to America's freedom. A good citizen's patriotism extends beyond a salute to the flag. A good citizen is called to action in the name of freedom, liberty and justice for all. When a country is no longer open to new ideas, it is no longer free. When its' people are not open minded they are no longer free. Narrow mindedness traps people in a web of ignorance and suspicion. Progress cannot take place in the face of such an environment.

The people we see protesting and marching peacefully are the real citizens in this country. In informing the people of the ills of the country they are performing a service that takes courage and leadership. It is only by realizing our problems that we can hope to cure them. The man who would call these citizens Communists is one deeply entangled in the webs of narrow mindedness. Citizens willing to act for right are citizens of the highest order. A man has the right to oppose the administration without fear of abuse or harassment when he does so lawfully.

There is more than one side to nearly every issue in this country be it the space program, Vietnam, black militancy, the Chicago 8, poverty or censorship, and in nearly every issue the administration takes a stand. Now, just because the administration takes a certain stand doesn't make it the right one. Our best guide to taking a stand as citizens is the Christian principles we profess because it is only by taking the right stand that we promote our progress as a civilized society.

The first and best stand we can take is through Christian example. It is our moral and civic duty to promote freedom, justice and equality for all. To defend the rights of ourselves and others is to defend this country. There can be no free America unless every American is free. This is the job that lies before us. How are we to accomplish it?

First of all, this is a here and now situation. In the words of George Wallace, "Let's not pussyfoot around." Let's put forth all our efforts, all the time. Now. Before a man can truly be free, his mind and body must be free. Free from the Harlems and Appalichias of this country. We free the mind through education and by elevating the mind, we enable a person to upgrade his way of life. As Christians, it is our duty to free our minds from the bigotry and hate that enslave many of the citizens of our country. By being open minded and supporting measures that promote freedom, liberty and justice for all, we set the pattern for a free America. This is the only America in which all of us can live together.

A solution to the complexity of true citizenship comes to mind. It's a very simple phrase—"Walk a mile in my shoes." Six words that could extinguish the sweltering pot of anger and misunderstanding if we would live them.

In concluding, I would like to present a challenge for us. Instead of plastering a flag decal on our bumper, let's walk the mile with the fruit and vegetable workers in California, the black fighting for equality, the poor fighting for America and live the brotherhood and love the flag should symbolize.

Can Morality Be Legislated?

By Jimmy R. Allen

Whether it's a Sunday School class discussion, a barbershop dialogue, or a "spit and whittle" club on courthouse steps, someone usually gets around to the cliché, "You just can't legislate morals."

This half truth often ends the conversation about some area of public morality and the problem of law making and law enforcing. The issue is a timely one. Can man's moral behavior be controlled by law? Should it be?

Morality Internal

The truth involved in the statement is that man's inner moral decision making is a personal process. Outward behavior can be regulated, but inner attitudes depend on many factors besides laws.

The basic and ultimate answer to moral problems is not to be found in legislative assemblies, courthouses, or polling booths. The Bible is clear in the insight that man's basic problem is a sin problem. (Romans 3:23). This can only be solved by an inner transformation which comes by the touch of the spirit of God in one's life.

No Utopia

If there could be a "best of all possible worlds" in which every person had this inner transformation, laws would be merely regulations to keep the traffic straight and so forth.

Such a world does not exist. Therefore, laws for social good are justifiable for the protection of the young and the weak. Greed must be held in check. Justice must be sought. Opportunity for all must be provided. Enticements toward destruction must be minimized.

Moral Men Legislate

While morals may not be legislated internally, moral men do legislate. Their laws should reflect the best of their moral insight.

Often the issues facing citizens are complicated. Viewpoints vary on the value of proposed courses of actions. The test of morality lies in what happens to persons.

Texans Face Legislative Morality

Such a situation, for example, faces Texans in the November elections. On Nov. 3, voters will mark a ballot "for or against repeal of the prohibition of open saloons found in Section 20, Article XVI of the constitution of the state of Texas."

It is not a vote for or against abstinence from use of alcoholic beverages. It is not a legislation of morals. It is a question of how moral men evaluate the best way to handle regulations on a produce which does have socially and personally damaging effects.

The best way to examine the issue is to look closely at states which have moved from the package store and private club concept to the liquor-by-the-drink concept and discover what their experience has been. Two states which have done this in the last decade are Iowa and Georgia. (Iowa in 1963 and Georgia in 1964). Other more recent changes in Tennessee, Virginia, and Mississippi do not allow enough time to evaluate results.

Percentages Skyrocket

The experience in Iowa and Georgia reveals a much higher rate of increased consumption of liquor than the national average and a corresponding increase in alcohol-related violent crime and highway deaths.

Contrary to the myth that people drink less when buying by the drink than by the bottle, Iowa's increased consumption according to the industry's own figures was 29.7 per cent and Georgia's was 45.3 per cent while the national increase over 1964-68 was 20.6 per cent and Texas was 20.0 per cent.

During the same period, the national violent crime rate was increasing to a disastrous 52 per cent, but Iowa was increasing at a rate of 104 per cent!

In this same period the national increase in traffic deaths (measured by the scale of rate per 100,000 miles driven) was rising 6 per cent. In Iowa, it was rising 34 per cent.

Texans Must Decide

Moral men do legislate. Moral men do face the necessity of examining issues and voting at the polls. Texans who value human life would do well to study this situation carefully before casting a November ballot on the subject.

Hair—How do you feel when hair length is equated with character? Newsday, a Long Island daily, described Charlie Watson, a suspect in the Tate murder case, as a long haired former member of a roving, stealing desert commune who was once "one of the nicest boys you would ever meet—a crewcut high school student."

"I am waiting to hear Jesus Christ described," Mrs. Edith Roan wrote to Newsday, as 'the leader of a 12-man band of nomads, long-haired, bare-footed and with no visible means of support'. Or perhaps Adolf Hitler might be characterized as 'the leader of a short-haired, clean-shaven group of neatly dressed Storm Troopers.' Ever realize, Newsday, that in their published photographs the Cosa Nostra members are all short-haired?"

Austin-Soaring state budget requests led the Legislative Budget Board to urge all agencies to hold spending in 1972-73 to essentials.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Board chairman, sounded the warning that a "critical financial condition" looms which demands "economy-minded" government.

In a letter directed to state agencies, Board advises that they submit suggestions at an early date on where fat can be trimmed from their appropriations requests.

"Reluctant" fat trimmers should be invited back for a second hearing before the Board, Barnes said.

Requests already submitted reportedly exceed the expected income for the 1972-73 biennium by more than $1 billion.

Estimates of the amount of the 1971 tax bill which will be needed to support adequate services for state agencies in the face of expanding demands still range from $350 to $700 million.

Some ranking legislators fear a revenue bill of that magnitude will be virtually impossible to pass in view of the fact that lawmakers voted $350 million in new taxes only last year.

Budget Board's recommendations on spending usually are more conservative than those finally adopted by Legislature. However, they serve as take-off points for the House Appropriations Committee and Senate Finance Committee deliberations.

Auto Insurance Delay—Texas motorists got a hint of good news: they may escape a raise in auto insurance premiums altogether this year.

Charles D. Mathews, a member of the State Board of Insurance, raised hopes of that in testimony before the interim Senate committee studying rates.

Mathews also predicted the Insurance Board will come up with a rate formula that includes company income from investments, a longstand-

Are we sure of what we want and from whom we want it? I just had a thought about how people complain about this thing and the other. The biggest complaints are from our people about what some of the Negro people are not doing, never praising them for what they have done nor do they stop to see what they as an individual has contributed to the cause. They complain about the West Texas Time not having anything in it but they buy the local newspaper every day with no complaints when it never has anything in it about a Negro unless he or she has been arrested for some crime they committed. With Bob Tieule, Jr.

Afro-American History for busy newspaper readers—A Look at Africa, 1970—. Considerable potential for economic growth exists in some parts of Africa, while formidable though not insurmountable barriers to real growth are present in others. In most areas the journey which remains to be made is that from a traditional subsistence economy to a modern market economy. In some countries this transition in Africa is already well advanced, and the problems of growth are correspondingly more complex.

President Nixon only recently expressed a desire to be the first American president to visit central Africa while entertaining African officials in the White House. A major barrier to African economic development is the low volume of local capital formation. Now, and until its economy becomes more monetized, capital vital to Africa's economic development must come from outside sources—public and private, bilateral and multilateral, according to the Bureau of Public Affairs in the Department of State.

During 1968 Africa received approximately $1.6 billion of aid from 38 free-world countries and other various international organizations. France remains the largest single donor, with U.S. second and Great Britain third. West Germany is fourth. Improvements in transportation and communications—roads, railways, river navigation, airlines and telecommunications—are dramatically changing the face of the continent and raising the living standards of many Africans. Africa has 40 per cent of the world's potential supply of hydroelectric power as well as some of the world's most valuable natural resources.

In Dallas the past week, we talked with Dr. Emmett J. Conrad, a beloved black physician and the first and only Negro member of the Dallas Independent School Board, in which capacity he serves as vice-president. Because of his wide range of community activities and the high esteem with which he is held by the citizenry of Dallas without regard to race, creed or color, the physician has been asked to head the 1970 NAACP fall membership campaign. "The NAACP since its founding some sixty years ago, has always been interracial, multi-ethnic and interfaithful. We can really be free until the rights of all are secured," the physician noted. It is reported that Dr. Conrad may be invited to speak to the Permian Basin NAACP organization this fall. And leaders of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference here have launched a full-scale boycott of stores in black neighborhoods who do not employ black workers in 'proportionate' numbers. They report West Texas will be organized soon with Lubbock and Abilene first cities up.

Mail Bag—Dear Bob: I often wonder how many men have been sent to jail or the pen on circumstantial evidence because they couldn't afford a lawyer who would devote his full energies to the case. One attorney told me that court-appointed attorneys do poor jobs representing their poor and often black clients because they can't afford to research the case thoroughly on what the court pays. The attorney added that generally the poor and the black get less justice than the people who can afford high-priced lawyers and that often justice favors the rich and powerful." Signed Mrs. E.N. Well said Madam. Now who disagrees?

Attention Bellringers: Please send this column the name, address and telephone number of senior citizens in the Permian Basin who have reached or will soon (this year) reach seventy golden years. We have a special message for those sepia (minority group) citizens. Call me collect any Sunday at MU 3-3568 Midland or write me in care of this newspaper.

Thoughts On Our Lives

We're all so afraid that if others get what we have—the possessions, the status, the human dignity, the privilege, the knowledge—we would be smaller. I think, instead, we would be immeasurably bigger. And I think we would be able to sleep nights and smile days.

CHURCH NEWS

Prayer Corner

(Editor's note: This space will be set aside each week for our many readers to send their favorite prayer for publication).

Just suppose the Lord should begin tomorrow to make people as sick as they are on Sunday. Just suppose the Lord would take away the child whom the parents used as an excuse for staying away from church. Just suppose the Lord should make people as poor as they say they are when asked to help finance His program. Yes, just suppose and then be the help of the Lord, go forth and live and serve as if eternity were coming right away.

United Black Coalition Support

The United Black Coalition's president, Rev. Adolphus Cleveland, informed the public last Sunday morning that they are willing to help continue to make Lubbock a greater city.

In an interview with a Times reporter, the Reverend Cleveland said: "We, the members of the United Black Coalition were opposed to the bond issue. However, we will find other issues on which we will work just as hard as we did on this occasion."

"We will continue to work for equal opportunity for all citizens of Lubbock," he concluded.

Why do we come to church? We do not come to church, we are the church. We gather together at the House of God to worship Him. We do not come to the House of God to be entertained by the choir, nor the preacher, we come to worship and we cannot worship without participation. We sing together, we declare our faith in God together, we praise God through Jesus Christ our Lord. We confess our sins, and pray for others as well as ourselves. We do not come to be seen or to see, but to worship God in the beauty of Holiness.

Sunday, August 16th, the Lubbock Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) will meet in our church at 3:00 p.m. and begin their drive for 100 new members. You need the NAACP; the NAACP needs you.

Did you know that there are cases of police brutality, and that a man, Negro, had been chained to and locked to the machine where he worked? Yes, all this happened in Lubbock; not in Mississippi, but in Lubbock, Texas.

Our visitors last week were Miss Rosla Hocker of Midland; Miss Jane Mitchell and Miss Velma Worthington, both of Marshall, Texas; Mrs. Emma Gary, Angela Johnson and Sebrina Johnson, all of Lubbock.

Stewards serving in our congre-

"I think the companies may be sorely disappointed in the Board," said Mathews, "We may not get around to an auto rate adjustment in 1970. There are just so many hours in a day."

Company spokesmen earlier indicated they were hoping for a 15 to 20 per cent rate hike this year. A delay in Insurance Board hearing dates made postponement of any increase until after November 1 virtually inevitable. A 9.9 per cent hike was granted last year.

Critics of a further increase told the Senate Committee that rates went up twice as high as the general cost of living in the last decade. Some recommended group coverage on auto insurance.

Welfare Overhaul Proposed-Senate Welfare Reform Committee has recommended a sweeping overhaul of the system, including placing responsibility for Public Welfare Department administration in the hands of the governor.

At the same time, Committee endorsed a proposal that Welfare Department electronic data processing equipment be totally updated under a private contract to save manpower, time and money.

Study panel proposed abolishing the Texas State Board of Public Welfare and substituting an advisory panel to the governor. Also the name of the agency would be changed to Department of Human Resources under Committee recommendations to be submitted to the Legislature next January.

Computer experts estimated new electronic data processing equipment could save the state an addition of 2,600 people in the Welfare Department at a cost of $8.5 million a year.

In the second day of hearings, Committee was told that administrative costs alone of the Medicaid Program were $11.6 million in Texas during less than three years. Committee recommended an "experienced executive having an insurance background" be employed to coordinate Medicaid functions now scattered among several branches of the Welfare agency.
