Boy Scouts Court of Honor Night Held for Troop 139

Troop 139 had a big turn out for their Court of Honor Night. Awards were given to boys who had completed such training requirements and these boys worked very hard to obtain the awards.

Skill awards as cooking were given to Steve Allen, Joe Goff, Jerry Bailey, and Michael Cons, L.C. Collins and John McCormick won the communication and family living award. Merit Badges in Cooking and Public Health were given to Shun Harris, Citizenship in the Community award was given to John McCormick and the sports award went to Anthony Brown.

Michael Chatman, Joe Goff received the tenderfoot progress award and Terrence Patton, John McCormick, Leroy Adams got the star. All of these awards are very important to the Scouts but the highest award of the night was given to Eagle Greg Loggins, Jeff Austin and they received the Bronze Palm. It was a successful night and thanks to all the Scouters and Parents who helped make it a huge success. But the most important thing these boys need is support from parents and leaders of the Community who would render a small amount of their time so if you care about the boys in your community be a part of the Scouting program. You can contact Ben Roberts who is on the professional staff at the South Plains Council Boys Scouts of America, 30 Briercroft Office Park, Phone 747-2631. He is serving your community to help it be a better place for the youth of today.

Tours Set at Lubbock Lake Site

Free public tours of the Lubbock Lake Site, where archeologists are digging into a past stretching as far back as 15,000 years ago, will begin May 27.

Tours for the public will take place between 9 and 11 a.m. every Saturday from May 27 through July 29, with the exception of July 1, which is considered a part of the Independence Day weekend.

Each walking tour lasts about 45 minutes. Because paths are unpaved, sturdy footwear should be worn. To reach the site visitors should travel north on Indiana Ave. and cross the Clovis Highway and the railroad track on that street. Turn left immediately after crossing the railroad and go under the overpass. Then take a right turn which leads to the Lubbock Lake Site.

Visitors can watch workers searching for evidence of the past. Tour guides will explain the significance of work done at each of several locations.

JACK ANDERSON WITH JOE SPEAR
WEEKLY SPECIAL

WASHINGTON—The United States was stunned by the 1973 oil embargo. So for a few weeks, Americans kept an apprehensive eye on their gas gauges and wondered uneasily whether the world's mightiest power could be thwarted by a few Arab sheiks.

Meanwhile, the United States has become increasingly dependent upon overseas oil. Almost 40 percent of it must now be shipped across the seas. This means our oil supply, our industrial lifeblood, is dangerously vulnerable.

Government strategists have warned President Carter that it will take longer to develop new energy sources than it will take to deplete the oil supplies. They point out that it took us about 60 years to shift from coal to oil. But their confidential report adds tersely: "This time we do not have 60 years."

The experts warn that "the nation's heavy reliance on oil and gas must be reduced." Otherwise, we will find ourselves on a downhill skid toward tragedy.

But the oil industry is determined to keep the United States hooked on oil as long as it lasts. And the oil industry has dominated the nation's energy policies by planting its people in key policymaking positions.

The latest is the general counsel to the Energy Department. President Carter has selected a Texas lawyer named Lynn Coleman for the job. Coleman comes from the Houston law firm of ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally. This firm represents some of the giants of the oil industry and is regarded as the nation's foremost legal spokesman for the oil and gas industry.

Coleman has the powerful backing of trade ambassador Robert Strauss, who has lately become a powerful figure in the backrooms of the White House. He is close to the president's ear-and close to the oil industry.

Strauss told us that he did not recommend Coleman, but said he was a "spectacular appointment." Strauss also admitted that he has praised Coleman in the backrooms and that he had encouraged Coleman to fight for the job. In fact, Strauss said he would testify on Capitol Hill in Coleman's behalf.

This has brought Strauss into a collision with Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. Metzenbaum warns that Coleman's first loyalty is to the oil industry and that it's time to remove our energy policies from the influence of the oil industry. He was sentenced to the Lompoc, Calif., penitentiary. And Marvin Eugene Ham was sent to the federal prison at Butner, N.C.

Federal Movies: The federal government has enough movie equipment to compete with Hollywood. The federal film studios contain a staggering two billion dollars worth of equipment. They employ 23,000 camera crewmen and produce $500 million worth of film each. Films have been made on every conceivable subject, from agriculture to zoology.

The Agriculture Department sent a film crew all the way to French Guinea to film a movie about killer bees. The officials wanted to show that the bees aren't as vicious as they have been portrayed. It cost the taxpayers $10,000 to tell the bees' side of the story.

The National Park Service spent $450,000 on a 30-minute Bicentennial film. An informational movie started by the navy in 1971 took so long to complete that it didn't get released until five years later.

Most government film studios don't have to account for the money they spend and only the most slipshod records are kept. Some of the studios, with lavish equipment, are barely used.

But the movie business in Washington is going to change. The White House has ordered a halt to the extravagance. The White House Office of Telecommunications has completed a private study and made a series of recommendations that will soon be implemented. The unused government movie studios will be ordered to consolidate or close down. They will also be prohibited from blowing their own horns at the taxpayers expense.

In the future, only specific programs may be publicized with films. Federal agencies will also be responsible for every penny they spend on movies.

No Support: The American Legion, an organization of veterans, has threatened not to support the United States if there's another war. Asia. They have accused the State Department of sweeping the whole issue under the rug to make way for full diplomatic relations with Hanoi.

They have also threatened to make way for full diplomatic relations with Hanow.

The State Department, of course, says it's doing all it can to learn more about those who are still missing in action in Vietnam.

Presidential Threats: Lee Harvey Oswald's name will go down in history as President John F. Kennedy's assassin. Two women, Sara Jane Moore and Lynette Fromme, made the front pages by attempting to shoot Gerald Ford.

But the public never hears of the people who get caught before they can carry out their assassination attempts. Five men have been locked up for threatening the life of President Carter. Four wrote ominous letters to the White House and the fifth made a threatening phone call.

All five were apprehended, quickly, and efficiently, by the Secret Service. Gary Lee Lane and William Hufnagel Jr., are behind bars in Springfield, Mo. Stephen Kent Fristoe and Edward Harold Xorey were sentenced to the Lompoc, Calif., penitentiary. And Marvin Eugene Ham was sent to the federal prison at Butner, N.C.

politician Bruce King of Stanley, New Mexico. King is seeking a comeback to the seat he held in 1971-74.

Chimes: "During January 1978 alone, 68 nuclear powerplants supplied America with 27 billion kilowatt hours of electricity. Enough to avert economic and social problems in some areas. Enough to save over 38 million barrels of oil. And enough to save consumers over $550 million in utility bills. To help keep America strong and working, we need a balanced energy program that makes use of nuclear power as well as coal and other energy sources. The people of the nuclear industry are ready to serve the country." From nationally circulated black-oriented Pittsburgh Courier.

To N.T.C. of Lamesa: Judge Aubrey E. Robinson, Jr., who issued the temporary order to send the striking miners back to work under the Taft-Hartley Act, is a Black. Robinson is 55, a native of Madison, N.J. and was appointed to the federal judgeship by the late Lyndon B. Johnson.

"New Niggers". Speaking at the 15th annual dinner for the Martin Luther King Memorial Hospital recently in Kansas City, United States Congressman Ronald V. Dellums referred to the plight of today's middle class Americans—in particular the coal miners and the farmers—as that of "the new Nigger". He added that the term "nigger" needed to be redefined. He said: "I have good news for you. You no longer have to be black to be a nigger. A Nigger is anyone whose values, women, senior role in life is defined by others...Because of an economy based on misplaced values, women, senior citizens, the farmers and the coal miners are all going the new America's Niggerization Process." He listed big corporate spending as the cause and said more processing is in the works.

During the Nixon years there was a revival of the so-called Black Capitalist movement in this country. The U.S. Government, with the encouragement of President Nixon put up millions of dollars to sponsor an all black Soul City in the barren wastelands of the Carolinas. The project died a natural death. There were some all black financed projects that held on however and today with the aid of such agencies as the small business associations, they are moving along quite well in a number of cases, our sources report.

There are even today some forty or more all black or predominantly black communities and towns in the U.S.A. As expected, most of them are struggling to stay alive as there is a great lack of capital, leadership, and investors who apparently see little future in all black enterprises including towns. There are some black leaders in the nation today who still believe that we need a Liberia in the U.S.A. A city that blacks could point to with pride. More later on this subject.

Footnote:
Our West Texas Bellringers Club continues to grow in numbers and influence. Our latest two members are Lt. Governor Bob Ferguson (New Mexico) and Sheriff Louie Hall, Sr. of Stephens County, Texas (Breckenridge). Hall is the first black to be elected sheriff in Texas since Reconstruction days, it is reported. More on these two important Bellringers in West Texas Times later.

The National Conference on Minorities and the News met recently in Washington, D.C., with the expressed goal of supplying the media industry with strategies and ideas for its complete desegregation by the year 2000. At present, nonwhite people make up 15 percent of the American population but only about four percent of the professional ranks of the newsroom. Moreover, nonwhite journalists are less than one percent of the journalism management, a report shows.

Among the principal participants were the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Operation PUSH; President Walte Jewell Leonard of Fish University; Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post; Wilma Martinez, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education fund; Eleanor Holmes Norton, of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; Gene Roberts, managing editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer and Robert Phelps, managing editor of the Boston Globe.

The conference also included a reunion of the graduates of the Summer Program for Minority Journalists, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary. The program began at Columbia University and is now conducted at the University of California, Berkeley and is sponsored by the Institute for Journalism Education, which also sponsored the National Conference.

History in the making? For the first time in the history of New Mexico, a Black educator and administrator, Lenton Malry of Albuquerque, New Mexico may become the first of his ethnic background to become a nominee of the Democrat Party for the office of Lt. Governor come June 6, 1978. Malry is a native of Louisiana and a graduate of Grambling College, Texas College and a PhD from the University of New Mexico. He has served ten years as the only black ever elected to the New Mexico legislature and has served on some of the most powerful committees in that body.

There are five candidates on the ballot for the June 6 fireworks, with only one Spanish surname listed. Two Republicans seek the runoff on the same date. It is well known that Malry as a former teacher and principal has much clout with the educational forces in the state and political observers point out that his chances to win in the runoff (Demo) are "excellent". Another interesting bout shaping up is the brilliant campaign being waged for Governor in the June 6 runoff with popular Bob Ferguson of Artesia (present Lt. Governor) against veteran

Fraud "Energy Savers"

Take care in weatherizing your home. Not every "energy-saver" saves energy, warns Mrs. Jeanette Hodges, Extension Agent for the Lubbock Home Energy Conservation Project. Be skeptical of claims. Calculate how much energy will actually be saved.

Many consumers have been deceived. For example, aluminum siding is not primarily an energy saving measure, though it is often advertised as such. As a consumer, compare potential savings for different types of weather-proofing, such as insulation and storm windows.

If you are going to weatherize your home, follow these guidelines:

—Don't buy home insulation from door-to-door salesmen.

—Comparison-shop for price, product, and company. There are many insulation materials (cellulose, fiberglass, blown-in fiberglass, mineral wool); compare them by their thermal resistance value—"R-value."

—Check to make sure that any insulation you buy is fire resistant.

If you buy loose fill insulation, the only way to ensure that you've received the amount you've paid for is by a "bag" count. So get the contractor to tell you how many bags your home will need and, after he's finished, count the empty (used) bags.

Make sure both the product and the work are warranted, and that the contractor is financially able to stand behind his warrantee.

For more ideas, contact the Home Energy Conservative Project office, 4232 Boston Avenue, Lubbock, Texas 79413. The telephone number is (806) 792-4708
