Coors Presents $1,000 Scholarship

The Lubbock Emancipation Committee, Inc. has come a long way since 1980 when Eddie P. Richardson served as its first local chairman. Since that time and ultimate goal is to expose Black youth to career opportunities that are not happening and to follow one or two youth with a $1,000 per year scholarship for a four year college education. This is apparently becoming a reality, according to Harold M. Chatman, President of the Lubbock Emancipation Committee, Inc.

"It is a very difficult job in reaching our goal each year," says Chatman. He continues, "You know all of it is worth it, and we hope to continue to do bigger and better things in future times."

Last week in the Local Coors Distributor office - Great Plains Distributor - Chatman was presented a $1,000 check from The Adolph Coors Company. Making the presentation was Andy Jones, Local Coors Draught Manager.

Aside from presenting scholarships annually, the Lubbock Emancipation Committee has adopted need families during Christmas and Thanksgiving and supplies their food needs for a week. "This is another way in showing that we really do care about those who are less fortunate in our community," Chairman Chatman. During the annual banquet held during the Juneteenth Celebration, individuals in the community are recognized the committees who have made noteworthy contributions who would have otherwise gone unnoticed.

Also at the presentation, aside from Chatman and Jones, were Don Scott Marable, Area Sales Manager Adolph Coors Company; and Bruce Gentry, Great Plains Distributor.

"It is just great to have an opportunity to work with the good people of Coors on such a worthwhile effort as this," concluded Chatman.

The Adolph Coors Company has long had a Community Relations Department which avidly supports this program and many others.

What About Petition?

Mrs. Luella Scott

WHY NOT A PETITION?? It would make a lot of sense for citizens of Lubbock to come together and start a petition for an additional effort to find the killer or killers of the late Mrs. Luella Scott. There is much talk about her death, which will be two years unsolved next month. People are wondering there isn't an intensive effort to locate who is responsible.

If there are you who would like to start such a petition, let us hear from you. Write: Luella Scott, c/o Southwest Digest, P. O. Box 2553, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Will you help??

An Analysis:

NUL Initiates Pregnancy Campaign

Directed Toward Young Males

Moving directly to the heart of an increasingly serious problem in Black America - teenage pregnancy - John E. Jacob, President of the National Urban League, announced several weeks ago the opening phase of a Male Responsibility Program that has already received the enthusiastic endorsement of the nation's major black media groups.

"The program, which Mr. Jacob said "was put together with a minimum of money, but a wealth of volunteer help from the black community itself," is aimed at young black males and uses several mediums to encourage them to act responsibly in their relationship with the opposite sex so as to avoid fathering a child they are in no position to take care of.

"We recognize that this is a straight forward, hard hitting message that represents a new approach. However, the statistics clearly indicate that other approaches aren't working as well as we would hope. Now we have to speak frankly to our young black males and tell them that being a teenage father does not make you a man, and the smart thing to do is to avoid fatherhood at an early age," Mr. Jacob said.

The campaign uses several striking posters, newspapers and magazine ads, and a radio commercial by popular recording artists James Ingram and Howard Hewitt. It was created on a pro-bono basis by the New York based advertising firm of Mingo-Jones.

The original idea grew out of several meetings of the NUL's Male Responsibility panel comprised of 12 outstanding black entrepreneurs and corporate executives. The panel agreed that one of the most effective ways to reach young black males was through a visual approach and through radio.

The uniqueness of the NUL's new campaign lies in the identification of young black males as the target audience and in the use of language that speaks to the "mecho" image. While there are any number of teenage pregnancy programs aimed at females - and the NUL, through its affiliates conducts over 30 of these - this is the first national program directed to black males.

The campaign is also unique in that it is almost entirely a volunteer effort. In addition to the donation of creative talent by Mingo-Jones, a group of inmates at the Green Haven Correctional Facility collected their own money to buy the paper stock and then printed the first 2,000 posters on the institution's printing press with the approval and support of prison officials.

The air time on radio and the space in publications will also be on a volunteer basis.

The materials that have been developed for the campaign are in the process of being distributed to all the nation's black newspapers and magazines, as well as black oriented radio stations, with an urgent request from the NUL that they be used as public service advertising.

"Since we have received strong endorsements from so many major black media groups, and we have every reason to believe that the campaign is so compelling and so vitally important that our black communicators will be eager to do their part, we are confident that the message will be spread throughout the width and breadth of this land," Mr. Jacob declared.

The groups that have endorsed the campaign are Black Media Inc., Black Ethnic Association, Inner City Broadcasting, National Association of Black Broad Broadcasters, National Association of Media Women, National Black Media Coalition, National Black Network, National Newspaper Publishers Association, Starline Broadcasting Network and the Newsworld Group, Inc.

In addition to the distribution to the media, the posters will be made available to each of the NUL's 113 affiliates and to other institutions within the black community such as churches, schools, youth groups, community centers, etc.

"The National Urban League is not in this alone. We are reaching out to other community groups and asking them to join in this campaign in whatever way they can so that together we can turn the tide," Mr. Jacob said.

Retirement Test for Self-Employed

The retirement test — the limit on the amount of earnings people can have without affecting their Social Security benefits — is different for self-employed persons. People who continue to do some work after retirement or receive income as farmers, insurance agents, and sales persons, and other types of self-employment should note the difference so as to avoid any disruption of their monthly benefits due to overpayments.

Like regular wage earners, the self-employed person is subject to the annual earnings limit, which was $6,000 in 1984 and is $7,320 in 1985 for people 65 and over. For people under 35 the limit was $5,160 and is $5,400 in 1985. There is no limit on earnings for those age 70 and over. Earnings over the annual limit cause the monthly benefits to be reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings over the limit.

The first year of retirement is where self-employment income is treated differently. A monthly test is usually applied during the first year a person starts receiving benefits. This permits a person to retire any time during the year and have his or her earnings count against the retirement test only for the months after retirement. For regular wage earners, the monthly test is one-twelfth of the annual test. This means that a person may earn any amount during the year as long as he or she does not earn over the monthly limit beginning with the month in which he or she starts receiving benefits.

However, because the income of the self-employed tends to be irregular — it may be received months or years after it is earned — a test of "substantial services" in the business or trade is used. During the first year of retirement, a person who receives earnings from self-employment can get a full benefit for any month he or she doesn't perform substantial services in self-employment.

Whether or not services are substantial depends on a number of factors. They include the amount of time devoted to the business or profession, including time spent planning and managing, the kind of work done, and how work compares with what the person previously did.

In general, more than 45 hours devoted to a business during a month constitutes substantial services. Less than 15 hours a month is ever considered substantial.

Another provision unique to the self-employed holds that certain self-employed income received after the first year of retirement from work performed before retirement is not subject to the annual limit. This rule was designed to help insurance agents who receive renewal commissions after they retire, retired farmers whose leftover crops are sold in a year after they stop farming, sales people who receive deferred commissions, and persons who continue to receive income from their investment in a business or partnership.

People who need additional information about the special rules affecting earnings for retired self-employed people should call the nearest Social Security office and ask for the leaflet, How work affects your Social Security check.

Q. I spend about one day a week in my beauty shop, although the management of the shop was turned over to my daughter when I retired. Does this count as "substantial services"?

A. If you are going over the books and otherwise exercising functions related to management, it could be substantial services. Check with your Social Security office.

Tips On Trips

You can heighten your sense of travel freedom by avoiding tiresome worries about personal comfort and appearance. Here are some ideas to keep you on the road to looking good while traveling:

• The dry, pressurized air in a plane's cabin can play havoc with your skin. Prepare yourself by bringing a soft, fluffy washcloth. Steam the cloth with hot water from the rest room, wring it out and place it on your face for a few minutes. Relax while your skin rejuvenates.

The invention of the first mechanical clock has been attributed to Hsiao Liang Lan'aoan of China, circa 725 A.D.

- Take advantage of the new products created especially for traveling. For instance, Black & Decker's new "Stowaway" series of dual-voltage travel appliances includes a heated curling brush with a detachable barrel. It can be packed easily in a handbag for quick touchups. The two hair dryers and the travel iron can help you feel well-groomed and fresh.
- It's important to dress comfortably for a long trip. A tight waistband may cause stiffness in the lower back muscles, so wear something loose. Rather than worrying about finding a crease in your travel outfit, consider bringing an extra shirt or blouse to change into at the end of your journey.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Aaron Harvey Jr., Customer Services Staff Supervisor-employment.

Spotlight on Texas

Texas has become the envy of many other states. And it's not just because of our mouth-watering chili and mesquite-smoked barbecue.

Our state is now attracting more and more businesses to headquarter or locate a major operation here. Corpus Christi was just chosen as the new U.S. Navy base for the battleship Wisconsin. And support warships will be stationed in the Houston-Galveston area. The annual economic impact is expected to top $250 million.

No longer is our state a land of only oil and agriculture. While those industries still play major roles, they are now part of a varied big picture, which includes the banking, defense, computer, tourism and telecommunications industries, to name a few.

Regardless of their locations within Texas, the influx of new businesses is a boon to the whole state. New businesses increase the state's tax base and create new jobs for all Texans.

Attracting new businesses

Helping to draw new businesses to Texas are the state's abundant resources, good climate, excellent transportation and hard-working residents.

For example, good transportation was a dominating reason for Southwestern Bell Telephone's recent decision to locate a major distribution warehouse in Lancaster, south of Dallas. The new 490,000 square foot complex will serve all five of our company's states.

In addition to transportation, telecommunications facilities are also important in many business relocation decisions.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is proud to offer top-notch telecommunications in the 450 towns it serves in Texas. For the eighth year in a row, we are investing more than $1 billion in new construction to meet Texas' growth and to continue adding state-of-the-art communications facilities.

Reasonable phone rates

Also, Texas residential telephone rates are among the lowest in the nation. In fact, a recent study conducted by an investment brokerage firm — Smith Barney — found Texans had the lowest average monthly residence bill among the 18 states surveyed.

From 1975 to 1984, the average residential phone service for most Texans increased only 44 percent. During that time, the Consumer Price Index rose 93 percent, gasoline went up 117 percent, medical costs increased 184 percent, while natural gas prices rose 239 percent.

In fact, statistics show it actually takes a smaller percentage of earned income to pay for telephone service today than it did 25 years ago.

Even at our current proposed increases, Texans will continue to enjoy quality communications at affordable rates.

What makes Texas grow? It's a lot of factors, from its highways to its telecommunications services to its state government that actively works to promote economic development.

It's also good people, including Southwestern Bell Telephone's 35,000 Texas employees. We're proud of our traditions of service in the state since the late 1800s. And we're confident of our abilities to continue meeting the needs of our growing state.

We Need To Take Advantage Of The Situation!

by
Eddie P. Richardson

For the last ten years, malnutrition is on the rise, infant mortality is on the rise. It doesn't matter if you are Black, white or brown, hunger hurts. So we all have a commitment to help ourselves to wipe out poverty and malnutrition. There are 41 million Americans living in poverty, including 29 million white Americans. This is the best kept secret in America. Look on the same level, there are 29 million hungry children in America - with one out of every five child being affected. This means, we have to help ourselves.

On this note, one step in the right direction is the High Plains Farmers Market, located at 24th Street and Avenue E, where local farmers, gardeners, etc. can take their goods to the market place, hopefully, bring back a profit back home.

Looking back at the past week - observing the captain on the mother ship, the A-J, and for one in many times agreeing with Editor Jay Harris of that publication. His column was saying we must all work together to make Lubbock what it should be for all of Lubbock's citizens. Right on, Jay!

Speaking of the mother ship of the A-J, this writer saw his friend Kenneth May, our friend, holding tightly a large watermelon, along with his family. Didn't know white folks liked them too, Ken. Ken also had on his Farmer Brown wardrobe too, and looking rather sharp! But, on the other hand, Kenneth had a product of sometime condemned by conservative foes of Jim Nighthower as being to liberal. But Jim Nighthower fulfilled his campaign promise, at least one. There are thirty-one, to date, local markets where people can market their goods; and poor people can purchase what they want at good prices, before the middle man gets his share. This is a good marketing tool and a good work training program for our local young people's gardening project. No doubt about it, this is economic development in the basic sense.

Step one from this point is to get involved and grow what you can, and be proud of it.

Glad to see the City of Lubbock adopt a program which addresses the masses of the city as far as economic development is concerned. We pray that the communications between the Board of City Development and City Council will grow in a positive manner. This can be done by forgetting personalities and working together for the good of the total city, for the good of all of us, collectively. The stakes are too high; the times are too grim for us to play games. We should all take as our creed: "If it is to be, it is up to me and live by it."

With all the problems in the world; saving us from us for us still comes from us. For all of us to do and be better for all of us. Let's give our input to our elected City Council people to do the best for all of us. Remember to hold someone responsible, we have to hold the City Council and Chamber of Commerce-Board of City Development. Councilman Bob Wash, the City Council is an elected body, not an appointed body, is accountable to the citizens of Lubbock, working collectively to make Lubbock a better place for all of us.

VIEWPOINT

JULIAN BOND

History has left us behind

By Julian Bond

Remember those one-minute world histories in which 2,000 years of human development were squeezed into 60 seconds by the use of paintings, snapshots and stop-action photography?

In fast-moving images, human progress quick-stepped through time from Africa's Olduvai Gorge to Manhattan's concrete corridors, from primitive sledges to space shuttles, from loincloths to Pierre Cardin.

Now there's a three-word history of the United States: "farmer, laborer, clerk." That's it.

This swift summary of our past 200 years comes from John Naisbett, publisher of the Trend Report. He analyzes 300 newspapers from around the world to make predictions about tomorrow for politicians and businessmen.

"Starting a year ago, the No. 1 occupation in the United States became 'clerk,' replacing 'laborer' and 'farmer' before that," Naisbett recently told a group of editorial writers. "Farmer, laborer, clerk. That's a brief history of the United States."

Thirty years ago, said Naisbett, 65 percent of the U.S. labor force worked in the industrial sector. Today, only one-third of all American workers are in industry, while more than half (55 percent) are in information. (Information workers are the creators and distributors of information in banks, insurance companies, investment houses, education, data processing, communications and government.)

If Naisbett is right, history has left black Americans behind.

In 1960, the American labor force was 69.6 million strong. About 11 percent of that group was black. Clerks were the No. 1 occupation overall; they were followed by farmers and laborers.

By 1970, the labor force had grown to 82.8 million workers, 10 percent of whom were black. Clerks were still in first place, but laborers had replaced farmers in the second spot. Blacks made up only 8 percent of the skilled clerks but almost 20 percent of the traditionally lower-paid laborers.

The work force expanded during the next decade to 106.9 million workers. Clerks remained in the lead, followed by laborers and farmers. The percentage of black clerks grew, too, but only to 11 percent of the total; blacks made up 17 percent of all laborers and were almost twice as likely as whites to work in that occupation.

So, Naisbett is wrong. Clerks have been this country's No. 1 occupation for some time. But history has indeed passed black Americans by.

If we measure racial progress by Naisbett's history text, blacks are still living and working in the early decades of the 20th century. This makes the Reagan administration's recent announcement that it was abandoning affirmative action even more disturbing.

The disproportionate number of blacks in the underclass and their slow movement into the mainstream of the work force are long-standing problems that will be exacerbated by the administration's hostility to civil rights.

In reversals of established civil-rights policy, assaults on the Voting Rights Act, turnarounds on tax exemptions and countless other backward steps, the Reagan administration seems intent on reinforcing the permanence of the unequal distribution of America's rewards.

Why? Some of President Reagan's critics accuse him of idealizing the American past. His anecdotal approach to the complicated problems of modern society reinforces the growing impression of a stubborn old man mired in romanticized reminiscence.

Any relaxation of the federal mandate for equal employment opportunity will permanently consign blacks to footnote mention in all future treatises on American development.

Business in the Black

By Charles E. Belle

The "Master's Touch" for $10 Million or More The Largest Black-Owned Business Owner

Jesse Hill, Jr., President, Chief Executive Officer, Atlanta Life Insurance Company, the largest Black-owned business in the United States, as measured by net worth, published in this year's Black Enterprise Magazine came to "everybody's favorite city" San Francisco. Obviously to discuss everybody in business' favorite subject - money! Mr. Hill, a member of the presidential-appointed commission to plan the observance of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday as a national holiday, past Chairman of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, "when it was less than one percent Black," went about his business of bolstering Black American entrepreneurial spirit and striking a light for his own personal fortune.

Part owner of Concessions International, a more than qualified minority-owned airport concessionaire, explained Mr. Hill's presence as the guest speaker for the San Francisco Black Chamber of Commerce for the Month of May. San Francisco International Airport's concessions business was being pried open by the City's new Minority Business Ordinance for Black Americans. Nevertheless, Hill was a magnificent choice by the chamber which in the past has not presented top notch successful Black Americans with demonstrated business success, but rather Blacks or whites whom they hoped would lead a helping hand. Hill took note of the presence of the City's purchasing manager seated close by munching on a green salad and made a mental note to remind the entrepreneurial oriented audience to ask for some of San Francisco's $400 million a year business. Especially since the purchaser was reputed to be a friend. Albeit, a short-lived one since the City's passage of a Minority Business Enterprise Ordinance ordered the City to fork over 30% of its business to Black Americans and others.

Suddenly San Francisco found something wrong with the chicken-eating purchasing manager. Apparently he had gotten too friendly with Black Americans and other minorities. Mr. Hill did not miss the underhanded move of white political master minds to "detour" the ordinance intended to deliver business to Black Americans. Coalitions with others was needed to pass the ordinance and Hill has it as a continuing priority for Black American business progress. "Ordinances are only a tool," he remarked while pointing out how pleased he was with "the most progressive one" in the country in San Francisco. A tribute to the two Black Americans San Francisco Supervisors, Willie B. Kennedy and his long-standing friend, Doris Ward, Ph.D. for guiding it through with the help of the San Francisco Black Chamber of Commerce, San Francisco Black Agenda Council and other organizations of various nationalities. Such success "needs strong, serious and the good faith of elected and appointed officials," said Hill and the audience said AMEN.

Successful Black American business persons "as role models are in short supply," stated Jesse, an excellent role model and astute businessman. Whites are 13% of the business community while minorities are less than three percent. A statistic which Jesse himself darts alone as a principal owner in Concessions International which has over $10 million in annual sales derived from concessions in various concession operations around the country. "A strong commitment to quality facilities, products and services," is behind their success.

Being a Black American businessman is just as much a part of Jesse Hill, Jr., as being a premier professional businessman. "It is important that I not lose that identity," of being a Black American businessman Jesse enunciated to a taping television crew. Considerably "chipper," kind, well-groomed and Napoleonic short, this Sunday School Co-

Superintendent of Big Bethel AME Church, and Delta Airlines, Inc., board of directors member was very sincere about developing more successful Black American businessmen and women. "We need to accept the challenge," of producing and supporting more successful Black American businesspersons, Hill held up to his eager, predominantly Black American audience. Passing his personal rule to them, he recited an old poem, to paraphrase, even an old violin can play a new and beautiful tune. All it needs is a master's touch. There were many masters in that room.

The Red Flag Truancy

If your son or daughter is skipping school on a regular basis, it is time to deal with this problem - now. Chronic truancy is seen as a "red flag" or warning signal that a student is undergoing some sort of crisis, according to James Williams, principal of Washington, D. C.'s Cardozo High School, who is attempting to grapple with this widespread problem.

Repeated absence from school is far more serious than just "playing hooky" - skipping class once in a while to go shopping or take advantage of a nice day. According to Washington, D. C. school officials, chronic truants almost always end up dropping out of school. These youth, many of them black and from the inner city, then try to enter the job market uneducated and unskilled. The face a high risk of joblessness, given the current 40 percent unemployment rate among black teens.

Yet today, across the country, there are millions of chronic truants - children who do not attend school often enough for it to make any positive difference in their lives. Truancy is a complicated problem. It often stems from deep underlying causes, such as poverty, which are difficult for schools to tackle alone. A new anti-truancy program in the District of Columbia schools, funded with $1.3 million in assistance from the federal government, shows some of the pitfalls we face in trying to take on this challenge.

One major part of the city-wide program, a computerized system designed to "catch" truants, has not worked out as expected. School officials bought 78 computerized telephone-dialing machines that are supposed to automatically call up parents whose children have been marked absent. But only about a fourth of the calls made each day go through, either because parents are not at home, because students have given the school a wrong number, or because a student answers and hangs up the phone.

While machines are not making much of a dent in the truancy problem, people may be able to do more. The District has hired 17 attendance counselors to work with the most difficult students and try to break their destructive pattern of absenteeism.

Resources have permitted far too few people to be hired to handle too much work. About 10,000 District of Columbia students stay out of school each day. But the counseling center which has been set up to try to stop this epidemic can only handle 80 students at a time. "We've got a big job ahead of us," remarks Dorothea Carroll, one of the counselors at the center.

We must help our schools take on this job, in the District of Columbia and across the country. And more school districts should follow the District of Columbia's attempt to focus on the problem. It is not enough to talk about improving our schools or getting back to basics, as many of our public officials do these days. We must make an equal attempt to make sure that all of our children are in school, in order for them to benefit from these improvements.

BEWARE OF UNFIT DOCTORS

By Senator Don Nickles (R-OK)

It is entirely possible that hundreds of aged, infirm and disadvantaged Americans enrolled in the nation's federally sponsored health financing programs are being treated by unfit doctors.

During the last three years, more than 2,000 doctors nationwide have had their license suspended or revoked by their state medical boards. A doctor only loses his license after the state proves he is a threat to others' health and safety. Yet, some of these doctors continue to practice; they simply pack their bags and move to another state.

Take the California surgeon who lost his license in that state for performing numerous "extensive and dangerous" back surgeries on patients. One woman died. Later, he was found practicing on Medicare and Medicaid patients in Michigan. It took the Michigan medical board six years to go through the administrative and legal procedures to revoke his license in their state. Then this enterprising doctor set up practice in New York State. That state's board has yet to revoke this doctor's license and he is probably still practicing there and still getting reimbursed by the federal government for his Medicare and Medicaid patients.

A doctor may hold valid licenses in more than one state. So, a doctor who has an Oklahoma license can legally treat patients even if he has been barred from practicing in the other 49 states!

State boards do exchange some information on incompetent doctors, but the exchange network is voluntary and incomplete. Even if a state board has been made aware that a doctor has been sanctioned in the past, it may be legally prevented from acting on that information. Regardless, it takes an average of three years for a state to assess enough evidence before it can move to take away a doctor's license. In the meantime, he is free to practice and the federal government must repay him for his federally sponsored patients.

Licensing and revoking medical licenses is strictly a state matter, but the protection of Medicare and Medicaid patients is a federal responsibility. Right now, federal authorities are only able to bar a doctor from participating in Medicare and Medicaid in the state which revoked his license. I am supporting a bill in the Senate that gives the government authority to protect Medicare and Medicaid patients from doctors deemed incompetent. These doctors would be prevented from continued participation in Medicare and Medicaid in all states.

51 million Americans depend on Medicare and Medicaid to help them finance their medical needs. They certainly deserve better protection than is now guaranteed them.

Ewing is an Olympic gold medalist. Named MVP 1984 in the NCAA Tournament and a Consensus All-American by Associated Press (sophomore, junior and senior years), United Press International (junior and senior), U.S. Basketball Writers Association (sophomore, junior and senior), and National Association of Basketball Coaches (junior and senior). Ewing holds the Georgetown records for most rebounds in one season (371) and most blocked shots in one season (135). During the 1984-85 season, he scored over 14 points per game, averaged more than 4 rebounds and shot .638 from the field. He finished his Georgetown career as their all time leading rebounder (1,316), all time leading shot blocker (493) and with the highest career field goal percentage, .620. Life In The City
(A ghetto child's view of her world)
A review of My Daddy Is A Cool Dude by Karama Fufuka (New York, The Dial Press), 20 pages, Hard Cover, $6.95.

"My Daddy Is A Cool Dude" is just one of the 27 delightful poems in this little book which is dedicated to all "beautiful Black/African children everywhere."
Karama Fufuka captures in words and Mahiri Fufuka captures in pictures the full spectrum of life in the urban Black community as seen through a child's eyes.

To the child, life is beautiful, fascinating, scary, sad and mystifying. Life is filled with friends and family, "E!" trains and holidays. Wherever you live, if you know the city, you will identify with the scenes portrayed in this book.

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast

Members and friends of the Outreach Prayer Breakfast met in the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Peppers last Saturday morning.

Opening scripture was Psalms 103:1-6, and was read by Sister Mildred Bogus. A brief business meeting was held.

The morning scripture lesson was taught by Sister Raymond Peppers. Her subject was "Holy Heart." Her scripture was II Chronicles 7:14.

There are four requirements to a holy heart. They are: 1. Humility; 2. Prayer; 3. Devotion and Repentance.

"If my people which are called by name shall humble themselves and pray, seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.

Isaiah 55:6 - "Seek him in the A. M. If you need Him, in the P. M. God can't use dirty vessels. We cannot have Revival until it start in our hearts of not the unsaved.

"I'm just touching on this writer is just touching on some of the things she spoke of last Saturday morning. This lady is a power filled teacher of the word. Thought of the day: "We can hardly start a fire with dry wood. God started one with wet wood." Think about it!

Breakfast was served, along with the word of God, and both were tasty and filling. Come and eat with us. Man shall not live by bread alone. Finish this sentence, and come. "We Love You!"

Our guest list included Mrs. C. C. Peoples, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Peppers, Mrs. Lenora Douglas, and Sister Ruby Scales.

Thank you for your prayers and donations. Thank you for passing our way. Please come again!

Let us continue to pray for our sick and shut-ins of the community. Send some of their names to us.

"We Thank God For Jesus"

"Lord, I Care, Because I've Been There"

Deuteronomy 6:6-12 -- The Lord said: When I give thee great and goodly cities, which thou buildest not, and houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive trees, which thou plantedst not; when thou shalt have eaten and full; then beware lest thou forget the Lord."

Lord, I was raised in a Christian home, under the word of prayer, But like the prodigal son, I left home, and left it there.

Lord, you said pass your commandments on down, But for a child to know three of them, not many around.

Lord, I went seeking all the thrills that the world had to give. (Looking for sin).

Lord, in the 60's, I got what man called free. I found other gods, and walked off from thee. Psalm 4:5 -- Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing.

Lord, you see, I was told I have my rights. I can now drink, smoke and do drugs day and night.

Free to do my own thing, my right to sin, gay rights, women rights, Black rights, run-away rights, no prayer rights, no spanking rights, no death penalty rights, and K. K. K. rights. Exodus 20:3 -- The Lord said: Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Proverbs 22:6 -- Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.

Lord, I heard that lie, that I was free. I read it in the papers, and saw it on T. V. (Got it from two of the biggest liars.)

Lord, I was told I could work on jobs, where the big money is. I can live in neighborhoods, where the other race lives.

Lord, I can marry any race, I so desire. I can work any race, I want to hire.

Lord, I can eat in restaurants, even go thru the front door. I can use restrooms, I couldn't use before. (The word "I" becomes my god)

Lord, I have all these things, and can be what I want to be. But there's something inside, says I'm yet not free.

Lord, I walk in the fantasy of mine, Satan's flager was in my eyes, I was blind. (The word "I" became my god)

Matthew 11:28-30 -- Jesus said: Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest, take my yoke upon you, and learn (read the Bible) of me; for I'm meek (humble) and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke (way) is easy, and my burden (cross) is light. John 8:31-32 -- Jesus said: If ye continue in my word (The Bible), then are ye my disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

Lord, then you became my friend, and I found peace within.

Lord, I came to you, and that's a fact. I don't worry about rumours of wars, not even tax! Psalm 23:1-2 -- The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters.

(Lord, I can't stop loving you!) God is not through with us yet. Let's pray for one another.

We believe that (a) there is a radical and essential difference between the righteous and the wicked; (b) that such only as through faith are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and sanctified by the Spirit of our God, are truly righteous in His esteem; (c) while all such as continue in impenitence and unbelief are in His sight wicked, and under the curse; (d) and this distinction holds among men both in and after death, in the everlasting felicity of the saved and the everlasting conscious suffering of the lost.

THE RIGHTEOUS AND THE WICKED

Memory Verse: Gal. 3:10

The difference between the Righteous and the Wicked, is not because of their works, but because of God's mercy and grace. A good illustration of this may be found in the two thieves that were crucified with Christ. They were both thieves and deserved to die, yet one went to heaven and the other one went to hell. What was the difference between the two? Christ was the difference.

I. THE RIGHTEOUS.

A. The Righteous Are Different In Nature.

1. The righteous have experienced a new birth. John 1:11-13; 3:3
2. The righteous have received a new nature. II Cor. 5:17
3. The righteous have a new love. I John 4:19; 4:7,8
4. The righteous have a new occupation. Rom. 6:17,18; I John 5:1,2

B. The Righteous Are Different In Standing.

1. Their sins are under the blood and are all forgiven.
2. They have been redeemed. I Pet. 1:18,19
3. They are justified. Rom. 5:1; 3:24
4. They stand in the righteousness of Christ. Rom. 4:1-8. Once we are saved, our standing always remains the same in Christ. Our state may vary from day to day, but we should be striving to bring our state up as close to our standing as possible. Rewards will vary according to our faithfulness in obeying His Word in our works. I Cor. 3:9-15

C. The Righteous Are Different In Destiny.

1. Christ is coming for His own. John 14:1-3
2. The righteous shall be like Jesus. I John 3:1,2
3. The righteous will be with the Lord forever. I Thess. 4:13-18

II. THE WICKED.

Many people seem to think that only those who murder, steal and deny the existence of God, are wicked. In truth, all of the unsaved, even the good moral ones are wicked according to God and His Word.

A. The Wicked Are Different In Nature.

1. The wicked have experienced only one birth. John 3:6
2. The wicked are by nature the children of wrath. Eph. 2:3
3. The wicked are the children of Satan. John 8:44
4. The wicked have a sinful occupation. Rom. 3:9-18

B. The Wicked Are Different In Standing.

1. The wicked stand condemned. Rom. 3:19,20
2. They stand in a world of wickedness. I John 5:19
3. They stand under the curse of the law. Gal. 3:10
4. They have no righteous standing. Isa. 64:6; Gal. 3:22

C. The Wicked Are Different In Their Destiny.

- Every lost sinner who refuses to repent of sin, and believe in Christ as Saviour, has a terrible destiny to face.
1. The wicked are under the sentence of death. Ezek. 18:4; James 1:15; Rom. 6:23; John 8:24
  2. Eternal hell is their destiny. Pas. 9:17; Rev. 20:15; Luke 16:22-26

In view of the above, how important it really is to believe in Christ as Lord and Saviour. The remedy for sin is to be found in Christ alone. Eph. 2:8,9; Titus 3:5; II Cor. 5:21; John 3:24

Sauces have long added to the American tradition of barbecued foods. But some of the best sauces are those special recipes prepared at home.

Donna Higgins, director of Del Monte Kitchens, says homemade barbecue sauce can be made in small or large quantities, and applied to various meats to enhance their flavors.

In the recipes that follow, Higgins suggests adding interest to barbecue sauces with Wright's Natural Hickory Seasoning.

An Educator's Opinion

The Value of Traditional Values

We've just marked the second anniversary of the education reform movement, and talk of educational renewal and national revival continues unabated. The positive impact of this reformist surge is beyond question. We needed an educational metamorphosis—and we've now moved well beyond the cocoon stage.

That's encouraging. But I think the time might be right to remind ourselves that progressive movement must also always be "conservative": We must conserve the best of the old even as we embrace the new. When you renovate a house, you don't demolish the pillars.

I'm constantly reminded of all this as I travel the nation. I've found that the most successful school programs are those that respect the "pillars" of education, the basic values of hard work and commitment. The high school math program in Canton, Massachusetts, is one such program. Canton High boasts a student population of only a little over a thousand. Yet the school proudly displays a showcase of trophies that students have brought back from regional, state, and national mathematics tournaments.

The Canton math department, however, by no means caters only to those who breathe easily in the world of numbers and symbols. The math program is designed to enhance the analytical and problem-solving skills of all students—those headed for the campus as well as those headed for the workplace, the future engineer as well as the future carpenter, future artists and nurses and police officers and secretaries and mothers and fathers. The mark of excellence is stamped on every level of Canton's program.

What is Canton's secret? If you ask that question of math department faculty, they look perplexed. Secret? We're mathematicians, not magicians, they seem to say. The only "magic" is hard work, hours of class preparation, insistence on high standards and no-nonsense discipline, dedication to the principle that you get what you expect from students—and you must both expect and demand the best from each and every one.

No gimmicks here. No flashy new teaching methods. No worship at the altar of the latest high-tech hardware. Instead, proof positive that old-fashioned values still have a place in newly reformed schools.

Canton's math curriculum emphasizes developing students' resourcefulness and problem-solving skills. That's why in Ken Kruse's algebra class or Veronica Flangheddy's trigonometry course, a student who gets the right answer to a problem has by no means finished—and in fact has only just begun—the lesson. Students who discover a "right answer" are by now used to the follow-up question their teacher will inevitably ask: By what other completely different route can you arrive at the same conclusion?

One problem very quickly becomes many problems, and students pick up on the implicit message: There's more than one way to get a job done. Finding the right answer is important, of course. But more important is developing the ability to see that problems have multiple solutions, that getting from X to Y demands basic skills and mental agility, imagination, persistence, patience. A lesson for math whizzes only? Hardly.

The Canton math department reinforces this lesson by "grading math exams as though they were English compositions." The emphasis, in other words, is on the "flow" of the proof, the logic of the process. Just as a piece of prose cannot be judged solely on its conclusion, so too a geometric proof cannot be judged solely on its "answer." Process is as important as product.

The students at Canton are learning a good deal about mathematics. They're also learning a good deal about life. They're learning lessons that will serve them well in a world saturated with problems—both personal and global—that stubbornly resist one-shot, snappy solutions.

The hard-working, demanding math teachers at Canton might not care for my characterization, but I find their accomplishments magical. And the traditional values beneath that magic demand that even as we revolutionize education, we remember the need for conservation.

GIRLS - ALL BABY MAKERS ARE NOT FATHERS!

NEW YORK CITY: — Sex has become such a visible portion of everyday living it's getting in one difficult to shut it out at the cradle or the graveside. Notwithstanding the National Urban League has mounted the battle and triggered plans to chew away at solving the awesome side effects of this problem which plagues Black teens. The program will be a major thrust of the NUL in marking its 75th ann'y. Its heart and soul are the visual and sound components which have been created by the Mingo-Jones Ad Agency, one of the city's best. The urgency of the thrust is contained in some '82 figures quoted by John Jacobs, president and CEO of the NUL, during a press conference announcing the campaign. "The need is obvious," he said pointing out figures which showed that out of 145,929 Black teen's births, 87% were out of wedlock. By the time our teen girls had reached their 18th b'day, 22% had become mothers. Out of every 1000 of them some, 163 unwedded are reported pregnant. The figures pointed out other alarming side effects. Teen parents tend to complete fewer years of schooling than those who wait until they're 20-plus. Teen parents also end up with larger families and experience poverty more frequently, and to be disproportionately represented on welfare.

According to Dr. Kristin A. Moore, Ph.D., Child Trends, Inc., "A dramatic trend towards delaying marriage has taken place in just a few years. Among women aged 19, the proportion single has risen from 80% in '80 to 83%." He also pointed out that because a higher number of teens are unmarried and premarital sexual activity is more common, a higher proportion of teens are at risk of premarital pregnancy. The report shows that among all teenagers since '70 more than 2/3 of the first-born of teen mothers have been conceived out of wedlock. Yet the number of premaritally pregnant women who marry before the baby's birth has dropped. The abortion rate among young women rates considerably higher here than in other developed countries. The number of legal abortions in the country were substantial in the '70s. However with fewer teenagers in the population the report shows a slight drop in recent years. Unmarried teens of all races accounted for 80% of abortions obtained by teens and half of all teen births.

A MILLION TEEN MOTHERS.

The NUL's press conference to announce its assault on teenage pregnancy was quite a shocker. It brought out that the risk is higher among teens just starting. Half of all pregnancies occur to young women who have first had intercourse within the previous six months. The report further alarmed this old timer with the fact that 30% of the 15-17 teens and 57% of the 18-19, females all, reported they had sex. In the '82 target period of the findings there were 523,531 births recorded, 9,773 of the mothers were 14 teen and younger, 181,162 were between 15/17 and 332,505 were in the 18/19 brackets. The above is for all teenage girls. Broken down whites had 382,101, 38% out of wedlock. The NUL's campaign is aimed at the male teenager and "the nasty old man" with elevator zippers. It's theme: "Don't make a baby if you can't be a father." It's backed by the nation's top Black media groups: The National Newspaper Publishers' Association, Black Media, Black Music Ass'n, Inner City Broadcasting, Nat'l Ass'n of Black Owned Broadcasters, Nat'l Ass'n Media Women, Nat'l Black Media Coalition and the Nat'l Black Network.

Also during the reception, Miller Brewing Company President William Howell (right) presented a $10,000 check to Mrs. Coretta Scott King for the Martin Luther Jr. King Center for Non-Violent Social Changes. The check represented the first installment of a five-year $50,000 donation to the King Center.

Facts From Experts At The National Association of Investors
What's more important to accumulating wealth over your lifetime—investing a few thousand dollars as early as possible, or investing $25 a month over a long period of time?

There is an army of people who are building their fortunes by buying stock on an installment basis.

If you picked the few thousand dollar investment, don't feel bad. Most people do. In fact one of the greatest misunderstandings about wealth is that you need a lot of money up front to make money. You don't.

There is an army of people who are building their fortunes by buying stock on an installment basis. They start with just one share which in most cases is less than $50. Then every three months they add $25 or more to their dividend check and buy more shares.

They are participating in a low cost investment plan offered by the National Association of Individual Investors, a non-profit organization committed to helping individuals become successful investors. By investing regularly, reinvesting earnings and selecting companies that represent long-term value, many members have seen regular investments of a few dollars grow into values of $100,000 and more over the years. No secrets. No get-rich-quick gimmicks. Just a few basic principles and an investment plan that lets you practice them.

weigh the usefulness of your kitchen's contents.

• Give away duplicates. Throw away broken or unusable objects. Store little-used utensils elsewhere.

• To save valuable countertop space for work areas, choose space-saving appliances that mount underneath kitchen cabinets. Black & Decker offers a full line of color-coordinated Spacemaker® electric, including an under-cabinet mounted toaster oven, three coffeemakers, a mixer, knife center and can opener.

• Arrange related supplies by function to save steps in food preparation and cleanup. Keep frying pans near the range and saucepans in the sink area where they can readily be filled with water.

HELPFUL CLEANING TIPS

Along with backyard barbecues, bike rides, trail hikes and beach outings, come special cleaning problems that need special cleaning solutions. Here are a few tips to make your cleaning jobs easier.

Problem: Crusty barbecue grill

Solution: Put on your rubber gloves. Place grill in plastic garbage bag with hot water and one-half cup of Cascade or Top Job. Soak for several hours. Rinse until clean.

Problem: Soils—garden dirt, grass, clay

Solution: Pre-treat stains with Biz, an all-fabric oxygen bleach that is used for extra stain removal power. Soak garments in warm water—hot water will set some stains. The heavier the stain, the longer the garment should soak. HINT: Soak white garments separately from colored ones. Machine wash with a heavy-duty detergent like Tide, safe for cleaning all fabric types.

Problem: Cleaning greasy dirt from lawn furniture and screens

Solution: Apply Top Job or Mr. Clean directly on a stain. Liquid cleaners are the quickest, most direct way to get rid of greasy dirt. They leave surfaces shiny.

Problem: Blood, ketchup, and grease stains on clothes

Solution: For localized spots and stains, pre-treat with Era-Plus directly on the spot and rub it in. Launder as usual. Enzymes will break down the stains so soils will easily come clean in the wash cycle.

Problem: Ring around the tub/mildew stains

Solution: Use Spic and Span Pine straight from the bottle. It disinfects and deodorizes at the same time. For really tough stains on your porcelain bathtub, use a cleanser like Comet with chlorine bleach. It literally "bleaches out" stains.
