First Lady Launches White House Mentoring Program

WASHINGTON (AP) -- First lady Michelle Obama launched a mentoring program Monday to give local high school girls access to women at the White House.

Thirteen of the girls joined the first lady and 18 White House staffers, including advisers Valerie Jarrett and Melody Barnes, in the State Dining Room to kick off the program, which Mrs. Obama said was one of her top goals on becoming first lady.

"We thought, what can we do to make the White House different, to make kids in our own new neighborhood know that the White House is a place for them?" she said.

Her voice cracking with emotion, Mrs. Obama said the program was started to let local kids "know that the president of the United States hears you and values you and cares about your growth and development."

The program is intended to inspire 10th- and 11th-grade girls from public and private schools in Washington, Maryland and Virginia by giving them access to accomplished women.

"It's also about understanding that all of us have had challenges and bumps along the way, and to know that there's just a level of moving through it that all of us have had to do," she said.

Mrs. Obama said that she and her husband, President Barack Obama, grew up in modest circumstances without a lot of access to power. But they did have parents and other people who had consistent interests in their lives. She listed her mother, neighbors and 5th-grade teacher as important mentors in her youth.

First Lady Michelle Obama

"We have some expectations from you as well," Mrs. Obama told the students. "That when you get to this position in your life that you do the same thing for somebody else."

The participating students were chosen by their school principals as the girls who could most benefit from the program, according to the White House.

Although the total number of participants hasn't been decided, the White House said the program will probably end up with 20 students and 20 mentors.

The group will meet formally at least once a month through August, and mentors may check in more frequently.

The White House says a similar program for boys will be launched soon.

A longtime resident and former student of Dunbar High School, Mrs. Ruby Phoenix, recently celebrated working as an employee with the Carver Heights Day Care Center for 47 years.

"This has been a blessing of having this opportunity of looking after so many children," she says.

"It is so important to reach these children at an early age and head them in the right direction," she continues.

"Over the past 47 years, there have been many who've come this way, and I have been privileged to work with these toddlers," she says.

"It's just amazing to see some of them when they've become young adults and are doing well in life," she concluded.

She is the mother of five children.

Lubbock Man's Relative In Houston Mayor's Run-Off

Annise Parker

City controller Annise Parker topped a field of four major candidates running for mayor on Tuesday, and former city attorney Gene Locke, a nephew of Wilbert Locke of Lubbock, edged a big-spending city council member to earn the second spot in a runoff next month.

Victory by Parker, 52, whose sexual orientation never was an issue in six years on City Council and six years as city controller, would make Houston the nation's largest city to be led by an openly gay person.

"I absolutely believe in my core I'm the best qualified candidate," she said after voting results came in Tuesday night. "I understand I have a responsibility and I am a role model and I've been a role model for a very long time. But it makes me a role model in every community." Parker collected nearly 31 percent of the vote. Locke, with 25 percent, topped architect and urban planner Peter Brown, a two-term city councilman who spent more than $2 million of his wife's fortune and missed the runoff by about 4,500 votes from among nearly 175,000 cast.

Parker, who gathered with supporters at a downtown hotel, insisted that the attention to her lifestyle wouldn't bother her. "This really is not about anybody but voters of the city of Houston," she said.

As her partner and their adopted children stood behind her, Parker told cheering supporters Tuesday night that the runoff came down to a single question.

"Who do you trust to lead our city through these tough times and give our children the future they deserve?" she asked. Brown, 72, finished with nearly 23 percent of the vote. "It isn't the speech I wanted to give," Brown told subdued backers gathered a theater.

"Money doesn't vote," said Parker, whose fundraising

Child Care Assistance Available To More South Plains Families

The Workforce Solutions South Plains Board of Directors recently approved new income eligibility guidelines for Child Care Assistance provided by the agency. The board recently received additional child care assistance funding through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) which was designed to increase the number of children in care for low income individuals. The ARRA funding enabled the Board to establish higher income guidelines. The former child care assistance income requirements for the South Plains region were established in 2003 at 185% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines. The new guidelines allow child care assistance to be provided to those individuals whose income is at 75% of the State Median Income Estimates published in the Federal Register. It is estimated that the new eligibility standards will allow child care funding for eight hundred additional children. The new criteria became effective on October 1st. Workforce Solutions Child Care Services expect to see the increase in both part-time and full-time child care. For more information on Workforce Solutions Child Care Services, call toll-free 1-800-658-6284.

Silent DC Sniper Mastermind Muhammad Executed

John Allen Muhammad
JARRATT, Va. (AP) -

Sniper John Allen Muhammad refused to utter any last words as he was executed, taking to the grave answers about why and how he plotted the killings of 10 people that terrorized the Washington, D.C., area for three weeks in October 2002.

The 48-year-old died by injection at 9:11 p.m. Tuesday as relatives of the victims watched from behind glass, separated from the rest of the 27 witnesses at Greenville Correctional Center, south of Richmond.

Muhammad was executed for killing Dean Harold Meyers, who was shot in the head at a Manassas gas station during the spree across Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

He never testified or explained why he masterminded the shootings with the help of a teenage accomplice. That left questions unanswered about why he methodically hunted people going about their daily chores.

Patterson Branch Library, 1836 Parkway Drive, at 4 p.m. on Thursday, November 19. For more information, call 767-3303.

From the Desk of Parson D.A. Smith
Europeans Heirs a Monkey's World!

Former President Bill Clinton noted on NBC'S "Meet the Press" that a vast right-wing conspiracy that once targeted him is now focusing on President Barack Obama. He used the analogy that his wife, then first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton used to describe how her husband mistake with Monica Lewinsky was used by a "vast right-wing conspiracy" to destroy her husband. The former president was asked if the conspiracy was still there. He replied: "You bet. Sure it is. It's not as strong as it was because America has changed demographically. But it's as virulent as it was." The truth is in the pudding by the action of Roy Blunt (Republican MO) who told a racial "inged Monkey joke at a Washington D. C. Conference. Blunt is the second highest ranking Republican on the House Energy and Commerce Committee. This committee is important as it relates to health care issues. Blunt who was speaking to a crowd of more than 2,000 of the Family Research Council Action's 2009 Values Voter Summit, told his predominantly white audience, "This is an opportunity for us. This is a time for us to be more of who we should be." The Congressman was introduced by a man who is known to have had past association with elements of the "racist right": Tony Perkins. Bruce Wilson of the Huffington Post posted the following: "In 1996 while working as a GOP Senate race campaign manager, Perkin paid $82,500 to buy a phone banking list from former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke. Then, in 2002, Perkins spoke at a fundraiser for the Louisiana chapter of the Council of Conservative Citizens, a national white supremacist group. The CofCC "Statement of Principles" states that "We also oppose all effort to mix the races of mankind, to promote non-white races over the European-American people through so-called 'affirmative action' and similar measures, to destroy or denigrate the European-American heritage, including the heritage of the Southern people, and to force the integration of the races." Wilson reports Congressman Blunt told an anecdote which suggested what life in Washington, for GOP members today, is comparable to the lot of imperial British agents in India who had to contend with monkeys running amok on a golf course that the colonial occupiers had carved out of the verdant Indian jungle. There was a problem, the Missouri Representative explained; monkeys would come out of the jungle, grab golf balls, and throw them about. The crowd burst in laughter. Wilson noted the congressman continued: "I could go into great and long detail about how many things they did to try and eliminate the monkey problem." But they never got it done, so finally this golf course and this golf course only, they passed a rule and the rule was-you have to lay the ball where the monkey throws it." And that is the rule in Washington all the time. You know the world is turned

Outreach Prayer Breakfast

The members of the Outreach Prayer Breakfast want to share this article with each of you. It was mad possible by Rev. Zairreus Patterson of Riverside, California. PUSH A man was sleeping one night in his cabin when suddenly his room filled with light and God appeared. The Lord told the man he had work for him to do, and showed him a large rock in front of his cabin. The Lord explained that the man was to Push against the rock with all his might... So, this the man did, day after day. For many years he toiled from sunup to sundown, his shoulders set squarely against the cold, massive surface of the unmoving rock, pushing with all his might! Each night the man returned to his cabin sore and worn out, feeling that his whole day had been spent in vain. Since the man was showing discouragement, the Adversary (Satan) decided to enter the picture by placing thoughts into the weary mind: (He will do it every time)! "You have been pushing against that rock for a long time and it hasn't moved." Thus, he gave the man the impression that the task was impossible and that he was a failure. These thoughts discouraged and disheartened the man. Satan said, "Why kill yourself over this? Just put in your time, giving just the minimum effort; and that will be good enough." That's what the weary man planned to do, but decided to make it a matter of Prayer and to take his troubled thoughts to The Lord. "Lord," he said, "I have labored long and hard in Your Service, putting all my strength to do that which you have asked. Yet, after all this time, I have not even budged that rock by half a millimeter. What is wrong? Why am I failing? The Lord responded compassionately, "My friend, when I asked you to serve Me and you accepted, I told you that your task was to push against the rock with all of your strength, which you have done. Never once did I mention to you that I expected you to move it. Your task was to push. And now you come to Me with your strength spent, thinking that you have failed. But, is that really so? Look at yourself. Your arms are strong and muscled, your back shiny and brown; your hands are callused from constant pressure, your legs have become massive and hard. Through opposition you have grown much, and your abilities now surpass that which you used to have. True, you haven't moved the rock. But your calling was to be Obedient and to push and to exercise your Faith and trust in My Wisdom. That you have done. Now I, my friend, will move the rock." At times, when we hear a word from God, we tend to use our own intellect to decipher what He wants, when actually what God wants is just simple obedience and faith in Him. By all means, exercise the Faith that moves mountains, but know that it is still God Who moves the Mountains.

When everything seems to go wrong.....Just P.U.S.H. When the job gets you down.....Just P.U.S.H. When people don't do as you think they should.....Just P.U.S.H. When your money is "gone" and the bills are due.....Just P.U.S.H. When people just don't understand you.....Just P.U.S.H.

P = Pray Pass this on to all your loved ones and friends who may need it; they may get it just in time. "Though no one can go back and make a brand new start, anyone can start from now and make a brand new ending."
U = Until
S = Something
H = Happens

Friends are quiet angels who lift us to our feet when our wings have trouble remembering how to fly. **** Let us thank Rev. Patterson for the word on PUSH! May God continue to bless him in all he does. ***** Suffering as a result of sin is shameful. Sin has consequences and when it causes suffering, we should be ashamed. I remember preaching on this and saying, if you are stopped for speeding you deserve to get a ticket. A 5-year-old boy sitting down front next to his mother heard me say that and proudly—and loudly—blurted out, "My mom got one of those this afternoon!" Mom's red face told everyone the consequences of speeding had just escalated more than she had anticipated! Suffering can be a cleansing agent. Judgment begins with the house of God. Sister Dorothy Hood, president; Sister Christene Burleson, vice president; and Sister Elnora Jones, teacher. May God continue to bless all of you!

NBA Great Abdul-Jabbar has Rare Form of Leukemia

NEW YORK (AP)—Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is being treated for a rare form of leukemia, and the basketball great said his prognosis is encouraging.

The NBA's all-time leading scorer was diagnosed last December with chronic myeloid leukemia, he told The Associated Press on Monday.

The 62-year-old Abdul-Jabbar said his doctor didn't give any guarantees, but informed him: "You have a very good chance to live your life out and not have to make any drastic changes to your lifestyle."

Abdul-Jabbar is taking an oral medication for the disease. He is a paid spokesman for the Swiss pharmaceutical company Novartis, which makes a drug that treats the illness.

Citing the way Los Angeles Lakers teammate Magic Johnson brought awareness to HIV, Abdul-Jabbar said he wants to do the same for his form of blood cancer, which can be fatal

"I've never been a person to share my private life. But I can help save lives," he said at a midtown Manhattan conference room. "It's incumbent on someone like me to talk about this."

Abdul-Jabbar became concerned last year after feeling odd sensations. He went for tests at UCLA, where he dominated college basketball in the late 1960s, winning three straight NCAA championships from 1967-69.

"I was getting hot flashes and sweats on a regular basis," he said. "That's not normal, even for my age."

An exam showed his white blood cell count was "sky high" and a doctor quickly diagnosed his condition. At first, all Abdul-Jabbar heard was the word "leukemia."

"I was scared," he said. "I thought it was all the same. I thought it could mean I have a month to live."

"That was my first question," he said. "Was I going to make it?"

A longtime student in martial arts, Abdul-Jabbar said he took the approach of a samurai, to face death without fear.

"I had my face on," he said. Instead, doctors told him CML was treatable with proper medication and monitoring.

Abdul-Jabbar is a special assistant with the Lakers and said he hasn't had to cut back his level of activity of coaching, change his regimen or adjust his diet. "I'm able to sneak out for Thai food," he said.

"There is hope. This condition can be treated. You can still live a productive, full life," he said. "I'm living proof I can make it."

Abdul-Jabbar recently returned from an academic conference in Abu Dhabi and has several speaking engagements planned. Among the people he regularly talks to about his condition is his son, a third-year medical student at the University of California, San Francisco.

The six-time NBA MVP intends to post updates to his Facebook and Twitter accounts and stay connected through www.CMLearth.com, a Web site for those afflicted by the disease.

About 5,000 cases of CML are expected to be diagnosed in the United States this year, the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society said.

THIS N THAT

MORE INFORMATION NEEDED FOR LUBBOCK BOND ELECTIONS! THIS N THAT would hope that when there are FUTURE BOND ELECTIONS regardless of what the items are on the ballot there would be more INFORMATION about is being voted on. If REGISTERED VOTERS are not aware then they will not vote. Really there is no excuse as to why one does not vote when information is made available. Hopefully CITY COUNCILMAN FLOYD PRICE will have a TOWN HALL MEETING if there will be another Lubbock Bond Election. Not only must there be information made available but when there are meetings called by the CITIZEN ADVISORY ISORY COMMITTEE (CAC) much information will be made available the input from citizens attending the citizen advisory committee meeting will be utilized for the election. For example an item on the recent Lubbock Bond Election was about the construction of SOCCER FIELDS and citizens who reside in East Lubbock were unhappy about where the soccer fields were to be constructed. Perhaps this concern and others were the reason why this item didn't pass. Really when it appears as though an area appears to be left out then the results could not be affirmative. Hopefully the experience gained from this recent election will enhance the outcome of future LUBBOCK

BOND ELECTIONS! All in all THIS N THAT recommends more information made available for all LUBBOCK CITIZENS! STILL WAITING TO HEAR WHEN A TOWN HALL MEETING WILL BE SET! THIS N THAT as well as many others are waiting for the date of a TOWN HALL MEETING to be called by SISTER VERNITA WOODS-HOLMES School Board Trustee, District Two. THINK ABOUT IT!
The Only Ones That Can Save Us From Us For Us IS US!

We sit around complaining, moaning and groaning as we are critical about every thing. We do not get up, put up, we just couch up and mouth up. We will act up, but we do not move up and stand up for what we are complaining about as the old saying goes is an empty wagon makes a lot of noise.

Either you or somebody should do this, and you ought to do that but, never I say I should I can, I will, and I must do this or do that. What is wrong with I is my mouth broken? Is my mind broken? What about my hands? We must move away from you, them, and change the tone to I and take up the attitude: "If it is to be, it is up to me" and live up to it."

We can not afford to sit around and wait on someone else to do for us what we must do for our self. For our long denied communities to become the self sustaining communities the leadership and initiative, we must make sure it comes from us. It must come from inside the community itself while working with those outside the community. Hopefully, this will help us get off the relief rolls and on the tax rolls without them leading us but working with us helping us to help ourselves.

In order to save our community for us, from us, the leadership and initiative again is going to have to come from within the community. At times, we may need to do so by calling the police on our own when they become a threat to the community. We may need to report strange persons lurking around in our communities and also strange vehicles. No one can police our communities like we can. No one knows our communities like we do! Not the police, not some outside law enforcement agencies but, us. We must always remember the only ones who can save us from us, for us, is us. You see, no one knows us like us but us!

That's why we must muscle up and call the police to clean up our neighborhoods for the good of all of us.

You do not have to give your report the incidents you will help yourself as well as others. We need to work with each other so our communities will become a much better place for all of us.

"STRAIGHT TALK"

By donnell ASKARI hooper

I attended a "Teen Straight Talk Session" at the Human Science Center and witnessed people informing, instructing, and nurturing our children. Dr. Elizabeth Trejos from Costa Rica and Calvin "Cowboy" Simms from Atlanta, Georgia, both gave very inspiring presentations. There were a few parents there supporting their children. The pastor of New Hope Baptist Church, Rev. B. R. Moton, was there with a group of children and members of his congregation. Sister Kathleen and Brother Leon as well as our Photographer's Brother who took pictures to be shown in the Southwest Digest were representatives of the very idea of Bridging lives across cultures, communities, covenants, and creeds, of which we have said since the beginning of our quest, "LET OUR CHILDREN BE THE REASON FOR

USING THIS VERY TYPE OF DIVERSITY AS A STRENGTH AND NOT A DIVIDING FENCE! I believe that more parents should have been there! I believe that more representatives from the school districts should have been there! There were members of college sororities there. There should have been members the sports departments and academic departments from all levels of Lubbock's school and college system! There should have been more teachers there! There should have been business representatives there! There should have been State and City representatives there too! Why? To show support for all of our best invested interest. The great potential for our children pursuing Excellence in all the stated areas of life. The more models of law abiding and moral Excellence we give our children, the greater the potentials and possibilities our harvest will be! Better than the models. Remember, "CHILDREN BECOME LESS OF WHAT WE TELL THEM THEY SHOULD BE AND MORE OF WHAT THEY SEE THEY CAN BE!"

There was really some "STRAIGHT TALK!"

anything can tell you that but the Medicare cost in-

The idea of medical coverage for everyone is a brilliant idea and a necessity. The idea about charging a fine, or a more appropriate word, tax, to anyone who does not purchase the insurance is ludicrous. Someone needs to tell Senator Max Baucus and President Obama that the people whom have not purchased medical insurance, cannot afford medical insurance.

The people who receive SSI or Supplemental Security Insurance also benefit from the Medicaid program. They receive free medical services, but some states have imposed a dollar fee for services and limited the amount of service which an individual can receive in any one calendar month.

Poor people who have worked all of their lives and had low paying jobs or were unfortunate enough to be robbed by the WEP (Windfall Elimination Penalty) or the GEP (Government Employee Penalty) of their Social Security benefits because they worked on a job with a pension plan and did not pay Social Security taxes while employed on that particular job but had enough quarters to qualify for benefits. The people in these categories include professional workers, teachers, social workers, policemen, medical professionals, other public employees and veterans.

The irony of this is, Congressmen do not pay into Social Security but get a lifetime pension that closely equals their salaries and their wives get a lifetime pension also. It was Congress which passed this law in 1984, the WEP and the GEP, and Congress is happy with it. If a bill to eradicate the WEP or the GEP is introduced in Congress, it never makes it out of the Committee. Giving hard working retirees the benefits that are due them, even if it is not retroactive, would reduce the amount of money that Congress has to spend for other things that do not necessarily benefit the citizens of THIS COUNTRY! It would reduce the available monies for health insurance for people whom have not worked and are unable to purchase health insurance. It would appear that rather than tax people who are unable to purchase medical insurance, to add them to the Medicare rolls or give them their rightful amount of Social Security benefits. They would not get an SSI check, just medical coverage. We need to get 'in cinque' and write to our Congressmen and women to forget the tax and add those persons who are unable to purchase the insurance, to the Medicaid roll. WE NEED TO HURRY! before we have another TAX! If the IRS collects it, it will be a TAX!

Concerned Citizen About McCallan Trial

I am a retired white professional who attended the verdict in the L. J. McCallan police brutality trial Oct. 20, 2009. I was heart sick. I have never seen anything that seemed so wrong.

I was also troubled the only people there to support him were his family.

Indifference is as dangerous as police brutality.

But have hope! And keep your eyes and ears open. There are discussions underway in East Lubbock about making the neighborhood stronger and safer. Everyone can participate.

Obama to Announce Help for Small Banks, Businesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama wants smaller community banks to have greater access to the government's $700 billion financial rescue fund as the administration refocuses the bailout money on small businesses and homeowners and winds down programs aimed at big banks.

Obama on Wednesday plans to announce a package of initiatives designed to increase lending, including a request that Congress increase caps for existing Small Business Administration loans, the administration said.

The new effort comes as the administration is under pressure from liberals to shift the massive bailout fund's spending away from big financial institutions and toward reducing foreclosures and creating jobs. But it also comes as Republicans press Obama to end the rescue program and use bank repayments to reduce the national debt.

An administration official said the Treasury Department intends to wind down and terminate bailout programs launched at the height of the financial crisis to stabilize Wall Street and aid the struggling auto industry.

The official, speaking on the condition of anonymity because the details had not yet been made public, said the $218 billion Capital Purchase Program would effectively conclude at the end of the year. The program has been a central element of the bailout program, infusing banks with government money in exchange for preferred stock.

The administration also plans to cap two programs at levels below initial projections. One program designed to rid big banks of their bad assets will spend $30 billion instead of $75 billion, and another that supports a Federal Reserve effort to ease bank credit will top off at $30 billion instead of $80 billion. An initiative aimed at banks — the Capital Assistance Program — had no applicants and will also end, the official said.

Congressional and industry officials said there were few details about the new small bank proposal, including how much of the bailout money would be used. But the American Bankers Association, in a letter to Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner last month, recommended a $5 billion program for community banks that have not yet received assistance from the rescue fund. The program, as suggested by the association, would apply only to those banks with assets of less than $5 billion.

"Community banks feel like the government assistance efforts to date have left them on the sidelines," said Mark Tenhundfeld, a senior vice president at the bankers' association.

The rescue fund, known as the Troubled Asset Relief Program, has about $320 billion still available to spend — a combination of unallocated money and more than $70 billion in repayments from banks that received bailouts since late last year. The TARP is set to expire at the end of December, but the administration could extend it until October 2010.

"Given that we are now well into October, it seems probable that there would need to be some extensions," Tenhundfeld said.

Sheila Bair, the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., generally defined community banks as those with less than $1 billion in assets. In testimony to Congress last week, she said those smaller banks have become especially vulnerable in the face of mounting losses and defaults in construction and commercial real estate loans.

Bair testified that she had been discussing TARP help for community banks with Treasury officials, a step welcomed by Democrats but criticized by Republicans.

On Tuesday, Rep. Jeb Hensarling, a Texas Republican on the House Financial Services Committee, urged the administration to end the program at year's end.

"I will strongly suggest to community bankers in my district that they reject an invitation from the Obama administration to participate in TARP," he said.

trailed Brown and Locke. "People vote."

A fourth major candidate, county school trustee Roy Morales, 53, who didn't have enough money to run television ads, took more than 20 percent. He was looking to be Houston's first Hispanic mayor and was the lone Republican among the major candidates.

The runoff, tentatively scheduled for Dec. 12, will determine who will lead the city for the next two years. The election is needed because no one received at least 50 percent of the vote in the predominantly Democratic city of nearly 2 1/2 million. Houston is about 25 percent black and one-third Hispanic.

"It's been a long journey," Locke, 61, said. "It's not quite over."

Locke attracted endorsements and financial backing from business leaders, cashing in on his three-year tenure in the 1990s as city attorney under popular mayor Bob Lanier, who supported him. Locke cultivated city insiders since then as legal counsel to several government agencies.

Lee Brown, a former police chief, served as Houston's first black mayor until he was terminated in 2003.

"The job for us doesn't stop tonight," Locke told supporters gathered at a downtown hotel. "It really starts tomorrow... Let's roll up our sleeves and get to work."

Peter Brown's campaign was bankrolled primarily from the fortune of his wife, oil-field services heiress Anne Schlumberger, and the overall race was noteworthy for its lack of fireworks. Independent pre-election polls showed Brown with a slight edge, although "Don't Know" was the favored response among those surveyed.

Brown touted his "blueprint" for the city, stressing greater efficiencies to create jobs, protect neighborhoods, take better care of resources and combat the city's legendary traffic, recurring flooding and crime. But his campaign pitch wasn't much different from the others.

Parker said her 12 years in public life would allow her to immediately step into the top job. Her six-year stint as city controller, reviewing city spend-

Take Advantage of Part D -- Before It's Too Late

By Peter Pitts

From November 15 until the end of the year, seniors can sign up for Medicare Part D -- the prescription drug benefit for seniors. And those who are unhappy with their existing coverage can switch to a new plan.

All those eligible should take advantage of this "open enrollment" period. The healthcare reform bills working their way through Congress might soon make serious -- and unnecessary -- changes to Part D. And the consequences could be dire.

Unlike most public health programs, the Medicare prescription drug benefit is administered by the private sector. The program is subsidized by taxpayer dollars, but seniors are allowed to select the drug benefit that best suits their needs. Providers compete for this business, which leads to more choices, better service, and lower premiums. This feature -- the freedom to comparison shop between competing Medicare drug plans -- is one of the reasons the program is both popular and cost effective.

Part D has a 92 percent satisfaction rate among its beneficiaries. And the program has reduced the number of seniors without a drug plan by 17 percent. Meanwhile, the price of Part D over the next decade is expected to be nearly $120 billion less than originally estimated when the program was created.

But the recent push for healthcare reform has put the program in danger. The healthcare bill recently passed in the House would enable the federal government to "negotiate" Medicare Part D drug prices. The government doesn't negotiate, though. Just look at the drug benefit administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA).

At the VA, the government "negotiates" prices by requiring drug companies to sell their medicines at a price that's at least 24 percent of the non-federal average manufacturer price. That's a price control; not a negotiation.
