Certificates were presented Monday, (January 17) to 16 Mexican-Americans and 13 Blacks from Lubbock, Slaton and Crosbyton who successfully completed an aide training course conducted by the Speech and Hearing Clinic at Texas Tech University.

The 15-week training course ended with the close of the fall semester, and the certificates were not presented until the ceremonies Monday in the Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Participants, in addition to recipients, in the program included Dr. Leonard Ellis, professor in the Speech and Theater Department, speech Lecturer Mary A. Mastroianni, and Jason Rodriquez, coordinator of the program and Prof. Mastroianni, assistant coordinator.

The group received training in the areas of speech, hearing and language problems. The training, Rodriquez said, was geared to prepare the participants as teacher aides, nursery or kindergarten school aides, health aides and other pre-professional positions related to the care and guidance of young

Texas Press Association 25th Annual Mid-Winter Meet Held at Fort Worth Last Week

Where the West begins, Fort Worth, was where the 25th annual Mid-Winter Meeting of the Texas Press Association was held last week. One hundred-eighty five persons registered for the two day meeting at the Sheraton Fort Worth Hotel.

Highlighting the program were George Bush, United States Representative to the United Nations; James C.H. Shen, Ambassador of the Republic of China who talked about "What Now for the Republic of China?" U.S. Senator John Tower was also a speaker at the noon luncheon in the Crystal Room of the Sheraton.

Justice Sarah T. Hughes, U.S. District Judge, United States District Court, North District of Texas, enlightened newspapermen from all over the State of Texas with "Law and Society—Where Do We Go From Here?"

"Communications—A Vital Part of the Educational Process" was explained by Texas Tech's University president, Dr. Grover Murray. William Mullen, General Counsel, National Newspaper Association of Washington, D.C., reported to the body of newspaper legislation before the U.S. Congress.

Four U.S. Congressmen were present at a breakfast with the pressmen. Many interesting topics were discussed by the men who represent the people of Texas from their various Congressional Districts.

Texas' Artist of the year, Joe Grandee, highly impressed the group with his version of "Art in the Old West." Two representatives of Metro Associated Services of New York City, John Bindrum and Gene Collier, showed many ways for newspapers in Texas

Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin Files as Candidate For Re-election to School Board Post

Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin, a member of the Board of Trustees of Lubbock Independent School District has filed as a candidate for re-election in the School Board Election to be held here April 1, 1972. She was elected to a two year term in April of 1970.

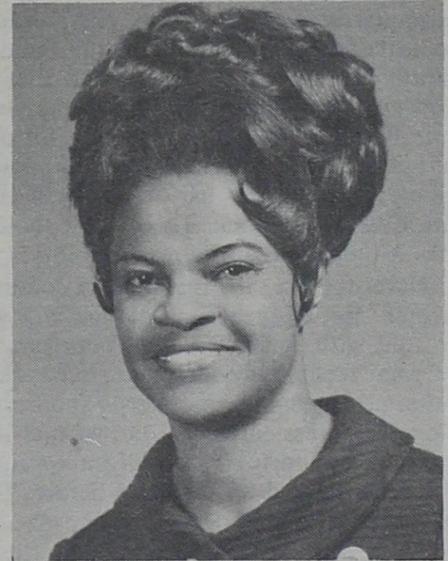

Mrs. Ervin is a product of the Lubbock Public Schools, graduating from Dunbar High School in 1949.

She and her husband reside at 2806 Walnut Avenue and they are the parents of two sons, both graduates of Dunbar. Tyrone L. attended Bishop College in Dallas, Texas, and is presently a member of a Special Sales Team for Atlanta Life Insurance Company. Clarence L., Jr., is presently on a football scholarship at Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, New Mexico.

Mrs. Ervin, in announcing her candidacy, stated, "In April of 1970 the citizens of Lubbock granted my plea to serve as a trustee of the Lubbock Independent School District. . . and I am truly grateful—so much so that again I have come before the citizenry of our city to ask for your support, your votes and your prayers in the forth coming election.

"The two years that I've served has certainly better prepared me to more effectively serve you as tax paying citizens in the interest of our children, versus 'quality education.' My having been the first woman board member in 23 years and the first Black woman in the history of our city has not been a disadvantage to me nor a hindrance to the work in any way. Instead it has been an advantage to administration, fellow board members and our school system as well, to have experienced my contributions, points of view and thoughts as not only a woman, but as a Black woman, with no reservations what-so-ever in exercising my Democratic privileges, freedom of speech, to vote, etc. on any matter that so vitally affects and concerns the education of our boys and girls."

Working with and in the interest of boys and girls as well as the community is nothing new to Mrs. Ervin as she has and is serving in numerous capacities in her community. Past experience includes; past president of Dunbar High School P.T.A., vice-president of the Dunbar High School Alumni Association; Past Program Director of Wheatley Elementary and Struggs Junior High Schools P.T.A., Secretary of the New Hope Baptist Church for eighteen years, President of New Hope Baptist Church Ushers, Secretary of the West Texas Baptist District Association, member of the Board of Lubbock Y.W.C.A., and instructor for the Lubbock Opportunities Industrialization Center.

Mrs. Ervin has served her race, "The human race," as she puts it, well. Numbered among her accomplishments are: the first Black secretary in the City of Lubbock, employed by the Urban Renewal Agency; the first Black secretary to an elementary school principal, for Ella R. Iles; first Black woman employed with the IBM Corporation in West Texas, where she has been awarded many merit and outstanding work achievement awards during her employment there.

Joan, as she is known to many in the Lubbock community, is presently employed by International Business Machine Corporation in the Field Engineering Division.

Elected Officials Could Show More Courtesy to Local Press Corps

Elected officials in the City of Lubbock should treat the press corps with more courtesy. Any member of the press can understand that sometimes city fathers will have executive sessions in order to take care of confidential city business, but when a special telephone call is made to the members of the press about an important meeting of elected city officials to be held at a certain time—inviting the press to be there—courtesy has already been extended, sometimes!

Last week, for example, the press corps of Lubbock was invited to a meeting in the Emergency Operation Center (EOC) of City Hall. After all the representatives of the media had arrived and had assembled, they were told by the City Council to move out of the EOC for a period of "about ten minutes," so that the Council could discuss the business at hand in an executive session. The ten minutes stretched out to be almost ninety.

Of course, there is nothing wrong with City Councilmen going into executive session, but it is not courteous to invite someone to your house and then ask them to leave without even explaining to them why they were invited.

The City of Lubbock, or any political subdivision for that matter, needs favorable publicity and good working relations with the press. The press corps in Lubbock has in the past played an important role in seeing that such publicity was received. But to ask them to leave when they were summoned by the public information officer is not too cool. Especially when cooperation means giving a little on both sides.

The matter at hand last week dealt with the Great Plains Life Building episode when bricks rained down several weeks ago from the structure which was heavily damaged by the May, 1970 tornado. The situation was taken care of by City Fathers when they ordered City Attorney Fred Senter to file a suit against the owners, who are headquartered in New York City, to force them to make some corrections in the building's condition. This week it was learned that there are two more companies involved in the Great Plains Life Building. Without any doubt, the press corps of Lubbock will report and keep Lubbock citizens abreast of the outcome of who will be sued by the City of Lubbock. This is as it should be, for this is their journalistic responsibility.

Never-the-less, the mass media communication people are of great importance and should be treated with some degree of courtesy, regardless of what media they represent. Lubbock, like any other urban community, needs good communication. The press corps can do just that if they are given the opportunity on all important matters. As we've echoed on this page before, "Free press is the cornerstone of democracy."

The press corps is on your side, City Fathers. Why not in the future show them that you care about their responsibility, with more courtesy, especially when they are summoned at your request?

As I See It

by T. J. Patterson

As I See It, the Dallas-Fort Worth area will become one of the largest (if not the largest) market place in the United States in the next ten years. All of this is apparent when you drive from Dallas to Fort Worth and listen to the coffee cup conversation in downtown restaurants.

It would be wise if we in the West Texas community would start getting ready for this outcome and involve our communities with this tremendous growth which is quite tangible now.

We need industry in West Texas as well as water to help us bring in a variety of jobs in the Lubbock, Midland, Odessa and Amarillo areas. David H. Brune, President of the Trinity Improvement Association of Arlington, presented a splendid package of how the Trinity River Program is outlined, progressing and what its impact will be on Texas. We could use such a package in West Texas. We may not have the resources seen there, but to get more industry, we've got to plan harder. We must, however, applaud Water, Inc.'s efforts.

We are only a hop, skip and jump from the Dallas-Fort Worth area. If we start putting our resources together, maybe—just maybe—we can get a piece of the action. It's really needed.

Thought of the Week: "Live your best, and act your best, and think your best each day, for there may be no tomorrow."

Justice Sarah T. Hughes, U.S. District Judge of U.S. District Court, Northern District of Texas, made good sense last week when she told members of the Texas Press Association: "stiff penalties and capital punishment is not the answer to the crime problems in this country." She mentioned the fact that Mayor James Daley of Chicago, Ill, has said, "shoot the looters." She added, "we don't shoot embezzlers or drunken drivers"... It's true, we do need more preventive crime programs.

She added that 15% of all policemen in this country have not graduated from junior high school. Hitting the District Attorneys in state court, she said, "DA's in state courts persecute rather than prosecute."

Could this be the case in West Texas? Very interesting, don't you think?

I'd like to congratulate and wish the best of luck to the five new directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce-Board of City Development. They are Bob Nash, Don Furr, John Scoggin, Verlon Bigham and Jack Payne.

On the other hand, it would have made a lot of sense to bring in a Black brother to this economic development outfit. This would have been the time. After all, chamber business is everybody's business. We can't forget that the BCD is tax supported, also.

From The Business Desk

All the "flap" in town at the present time about what to do with the Great Plains Life Building makes one wonder where our leaders were when the building first became a problem here in the City of Lubbock a number of years ago.

As I recall, a lot of local people put up a lot of local money to help start the Great Plains Life Insurance Company in the first place. Then the same local people were very happy to learn that some of their local money was going to be sued to build the twenty story building—marking another stage of progress for Lubbock.

But somewhere in the history of the Great Plains Building, the ownership of the insurance company, and also the building, moved from the Lubbock area. And in the process, a lot of the local people suddenly didn't own anything anymore, except a scrap of paper, virtually worthless. Now I'm not about to pretend that I understand what all transpired to make the local people lose their interest in the company—but I know from personal contact that is what happened.

Now it is my understanding, following the May 1970 tornado, the people who presently own the

I Am An Addict

Please help me someone; I am an addict. I am addicted to the cigarette. My needs, and other addicts like me, are the same as the person society calls a "junkie." The difference is that we need the soothing effect of the cigarette and the "junkie" needs the hard stuff—heroin, morphine, et cetera.

You can give up the deadly cigarette with a little will power" is easier said than done. I have tried to "kick the habit" but have had most of the withdrawal symptoms connected with the addict who tries to kick his habit "cold turkey"—abrupt withdrawal of the drug. The drug addict has nervous and emotional moods, draining sinuses, clammy, sweaty hands and body, general malaise, and an unbearable fear when he needs a "fix" I am overcome by the same symptoms when I am denied my little white destructive savior; however, when I get my "fix" from my little white pacifier, I eliminate the craving of my sluggish body organs for nicotine. On reception of that stimulus, normal function begins, the same as a machine that has been skillfully lubricated.

The warnings that are bombarding the radio and television waves are of no benefit to me. In fact, they create a battle between my subconscious and conscious mind of such magnitude that if I don't get relief from the cigarette, I am sure I would have some type of seizure.

The "How to Stop Smoking" books aggravate my condition. I consume two packages of cigarettes as I peruse the many pages filled with minute details on how to extract myself from the deadly clutches of the cigarette.

I have found no relief, or solace, from the use of several nicotine substitutes like: "Fools the Smoker", "Smoker's Sugar Tit", "Brandy or Bourbon Tobacco," et cetera, and have concluded that their sole purpose is to make the mouths and tongues of helpless cigarette addicts, like me, painfully irritated.

There are clinics in Lexington, Kentucky, and Fort Worth, Texas, maintained by the federal government to help drug addicts; so why can't local, state, or federal governments listen to the pleas for help from us addicts who would like to kick the cigarette habit, and create some facilities to save us?

Conceding to the hazards of the brown demon with the white cloak, I am still "hooked" by its magic power. I will go further and confess that I daily violate the law, because with every puff I take from my cigarette, I am aiding and abetting my murderer.

building have recently informed the City of Lubbock officials that if the brick that is in danger of falling off the north side of the building is to be removed, the city will have to pay to get it done.

In my estimation, that just don't make sense. From what I have heard, the citizens of Lubbock and surrounding areas help build that building in the first place, and then lost it in some kind of shennagans to others. Since local people have paid for the building once, let's get someone on the ball now who can make the present owners responsible for their property, which is without any doubt a menace to society in its present condition!

Lots of people beat their drums more than we here at this paper are guilty of, but for once I feel that we have something new to brag about.

As we move into our eleventh year of operation here in Lubbock and West Texas, it is my proud privilege to inform our readers that the circulation of the paper is now over 3,500 weekly. Not much maybe to lots of people who play the numbers game weekly with "readers", "listeners", and "viewers", but believe me, dear reader, it's a lot when you've been working for ten years adding a few new readers every once in a while.

On the same subject, we will continue to add new readers, but one promise I will make. You won't have to worry about a "Cash Call" to enjoy the West Texas Times. Just keep reading, ok?

April 1 School Board Election Scheduled

"Is April 1st a good day for a school board election in Lubbock? Or is it a bad day?" That seems to be the thinking of School Board members and many citizens. April Fool's or not, it's the day set aside as school board election day by Lubbock School trustees last Thursday.

The trustees did express concern since that date is the second Saturday of spring vacation. The Lubbock Classroom Association has been asked, however, to launch a campaign to get teachers who will be out of town to vote absentee.

The election, under state law, must be held the first Saturday in April.

The deadline for candidates to file in the April election is Wednesday, March 1st, and the dates of absentee voting is March 12-28.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Monday morning a good friend walked into our cubbyhole, pulled up a chair, grinned and asked if we had said a prayer for him Sunday morning. Come to think of it, had noticed his wife in church, but had missed him. Obviously, while the minister was fishing for men, the men were fishing for crappie.

"Did pretty well," he allowed. "Picked up a mess this long (spreading his hamhocks about a foot and a half apart). Got em in pretty shallow water. The bass weren't biting and we only picked up a medium cat on a trotline."

Bob Blon had gone with Don Henderson, who owns a cabin, to the old lake at Colorado City. They had had a successful trip—and never mind missing the variety of sports on TV. (Who needs them when the temperature is 87, the wind is calm, the water is pretty and the fish are biting).

Floyd Lebow at Farmer's Exchange, says that reports on fishing at lakes around here are pretty sketchy. He allows that good reports are coming in from OakCreek, but "you have to know where to go."

"They tell me they're getting bass in the cattails near the discharge area," Floyd allowed. "You've got to fight to get to them in the moss and cattails. Worms and jibs are working and even some topwater lures. The best way is to get in with an innertube, but it's a real fight."

Floyd said that they're getting good reports from Hubbard, too, while Goober Keyes at the Sport Center said that he hadn't heard much from White River, Lake Meredith, Greenbelt or other lakes in this area.

It has been an even decade, 10 long years, since Texas Tech has had a 6-10 center. Not since Harold Hudgens menaced opposing players with this height have the Raiders been blessed with a center holding an edge over foes.

Maybe it is significant that the last time the Raiders enjoyed a 6-10 center the Raiders won the Southwest Conference. That's right. Tech hasn't won the title since Hudgens and the 1961-1962 Raiders tied with SMU, won a playoff, beat Air Force and went to the NCAA quarter-final round at Manhattan, Kansas.

Now Tech has Ron Richardson, a 6-10½ inch pivot man, and things are looking up. With Richardson and the 6-8 Ralph Palomar in the front line, the Raiders have more height than they have had in years.

Richardson has been an unsung hero so far. You can't miss him because 6-10½ inches on the floor simply can't be ignored. But more than that, he has quietly gone about his job and has been a key figure in an attack dominated more by Greg Lowry, Richard Little and Palomar.

Richardson has been consistent. He maintains a 56.0% shooting average in seven home games, has averaged 13.4 points in that span and 10.8 rebounds a game. He has blocked shots and his menacing height has intimidated opposing shooters.

The Compton, Calif., player is an integral part of the Raider basketball squad, fitting in nicely with the fast break attack. He works free under the basket and also has a good touch shooting in the 15-foot range. He may not be the high point man, but his contribution to Tech success is unmistakable.

Some concern has been expressed because Tech has only on TV appearance during the regular SWC schedule. In the five-year records we have, TV has been good to the Raiders and there has been remarkable balance.

Texas, when this season closes, will be the exposure leader over the five-year span with 12 games. Tech, Rice and SMU have had 11 appearances, A&M has had 10. Baylor has had only nine and Arkansas brings up the rear with eight.

Last year Tech might well have won the championship if it hadn't had so much TV exposure. The Raiders led the pack with three games—and lost all three. Had the Raiders won those contests, they would have won the title. Maybe the "jinx" will work on the Longhorns, who are shown three times this year.

THE ROUNDUP: Former Tech star Yancy Price, Judge Davison and Goober Keyes will be out of pocket, soon. They're going to spend three days at Amstad Dam . . . Goober says that the bass at Amstad currently are spawning. . . Bob McGregor, former Tech student now at Midwestern, is on the pro bowling tour and doing well, says local impressario Ben Brown . . . Ben, incidentally, is president of the Texas State Bowling Proprietor's Assn. . . Bill Metzger, from the All Star, reports that former baseball all-star Sam West is helping him. "The rest of the time he spends palying golf and tending to his vast financial empire—which takes about 10 minutes!" . . . Better keep an eye on the junior college races because the top teams in West Texas will be holding their tournament here under sponsorship of the Lubbock Amateur Athletic Assn. . . A year ago this time Rice and TCU were 2-0 in the conference race, Tech and Baylor were 2-1 (And Tech had just beaten Texas, 68-62, here). . . Jim Bush, former pro bowler on the tournament circuit, is living and working in Waco. He married a Lubbock girl, has a couple of kids and dropped off the tour. . . Bill Morgan, SWC sports publicist, sends this quote: "Barry Robinson reports in the San Antonio News that the Trinity University public relations folks define a 'high post man' as 'a letter carrier after five martinis!'" . . . Peace!

Snyder Tigers Rip "Right On"

Snyder—The Snyder Tigers have simply out done all their opponents. Last week-end they slapped a 99-61 win on the Sweetwater Mustangs to seal the first half of 3-AAA District play. The Tigers are undefeated in district play and are the owners of a 20 win, 2 loss season record.

The Tigers are a sound team, built around 6-8 center Kent Horsley. The two big guns are Tommy Washington and Dubby Preston, and backing them up are J. Brooks and Fred Liner. The Tigers' coach is Bob Moore.

Remember When?

Amarillo—You left your front door open? You went to church and the preacher preached from the Bible? A girl was a girl—a boy was a boy—and you could tell them apart? The poor were too proud to take charity? You bragged about your hometown, your state, and your nation? A man who went wrong was to blame—not his mother's nursing habits or his father's income? Everyone knew right from wrong—even college professors? Things were not perfect and you didn't expect them to be? People still had the capacity for (righteous) indignation? Sick meant that you were not feeling well? People expected less and valued what they had more? Everyone was not satisfied to just get along well but tried to excel? When people living next door were real neighbors? Everyone was not entitled to an annual raise in wages whether he worked or not? A man's word was his bond? The husband was the head of the family? The mother a true helpmate to her husband, and children were obedient to their parents?

Yes, it is great to remember, but wouldn't it be great to have it back, and not just something to remember!

Mrs. Rosetta Elliott of Wichita, Kansas, is visiting the Nathaniel Neals and family of 1624 NW 16th Street. Mrs. Elliott is the mother of Mrs. Neal.

Mr. Charles Raymon Haywood, formerly of Amarillo, but now living in Los Angeles, California, spent the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Annie Haywood of 1417 N. Washington and his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Jones of 1509 N. Washington. Charles left Tuesday, January 17th via TWA for the West Coast.

Sp/4(E-4) Lorenza Bryant, Jr. left Lubbock Monday morning to begin a tour of duty in Germany. He had been stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, for 16 months.

The former Dunbar High student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenza Bryant, Sr., of 2605 Globe Avenue.

His wife, Mrs. Debra Bryant, and son, Lorenza, III, are residing in Lubbock.

Community Clothing Center Fills Large Need in Hub City

Why doesn't Johnny go to school? Before the opening of the Community Clothing Center in 1955, the reason could have been lack of suitable school clothing. Since then, through the cooperation of the Lubbock PTA, Lubbock public schools and the Salvation Army's Community Clothing Center, school clothes have been provided for Johnny and all other students that teachers and school nurses found in need.

The year end report of the Community Clothing Center, just released by the Salvation Army, discloses that in 1971 157,434 garments were provided to people in need of clothing. Although student need was a major factor in its establishment the Center provides for all the community. In addition to the garments distributed in 1971, 10,356 pairs of shoes were provided, 1,309 furniture items were given out and 15,245 miscellaneous items including linen, curtains, dishes and silverware were provided to Lubbock citizens.

According to Major Robert Hall of the Salvation Army 3,927 families or 18,684 individuals received clothing and related items last year.

The Community Clothing Center, operated by the Salvation Army at 1120 17th Street, is a United Fund agency and operating funds are provided from the campaign.

"The Community Clothing Center is beginning its 18th operating year in Lubbock," Hall said. "I think the key word to remember is 'community'. It provides for the community, but without the excellent cooperation of PTA's schools, churches and individuals, it could not provide for nearly the number that it now does."

He added that work is underway between Center personnel, PTA's and schools to continue and increase the scheduled school clothing drives, to fulfill school referrals from all areas and to insure the proper distribution of clothing on an equitable plan to all families and individuals in need.

TPA Mid-Winter Meet...

The diamond jubilee meeting was called to order Friday morning by TPA President Rigby Owen, Sr., Conroe Courier. He was assisted by first vice-president Don Coppedge, Waxahachie Light; and Second vice-president Tom Steely, Lamar County Echo of Paris.

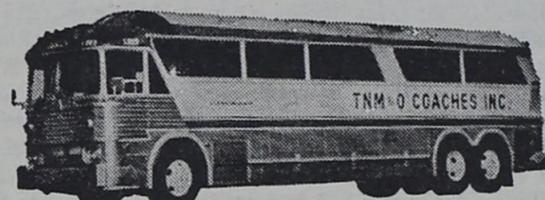

T.J. Patterson, editor of the West Texas Times, termed the meeting "quite interesting and fruitful for any newspaperman, weekly, semi-weekly or daily." The Times was the only Black media with membership in TPA until recently when the Austin, Capital City Argus, became a member.

"The West Texas Times", according to Patterson, "was well received at the convention."

They Saw The Promise Land

by Emerson Miller

Two men have been especially noted for seeing a promise land; they are namely Moses and Martin Luther King, Jr. Martin Luther King has been called the Black Moses, of course the Bible really doesn't say what color Moses was.

For nearly forty years Moses led the children of Israel through the wilderness. Their destination, the promise land. Moses' life expired before the forty years ended. Just prior to his death he looked ahead and saw the promise land. The promise land that Moses viewed was a type of Heaven, just as the sacrificial lamb was a symbol or type of Christ. It was John the Baptist who called Christ the "lamb of God" (John 1:29). Heaven was the real promise land. "These all died in faith not having received the promises. . . he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God," (Heb. 11:13,10). Moses' long sought after land of promise is found in writing even today. The Bible describes heaven as being 375 miles square with a height of 216 feet (Rev. 21: 16,17). And the building of the wall is jasper, and the city is pure gold like glass, (Rev. 21:18). There will be no death, sorrow, crying, or pain there, (Rev. 21:4). Martin Luther King dreamed of seeing a promise land. Like Moses, King's promise land is also in writing even today. The Constitution of the United States was written many years ago and it declares that all men are created equal. It provides equal rights and privileges for all. If all of its laws were upheld this would be a greater land than it is today. To see the creeds and precepts of the Constitution lived out was the dream of Dr. King. He foresaw black and white alike living together in perfect harmony. Martin died before this dream was fulfilled. Today, the vision that King saw is still a dream. We as Black, Brown, Red, and Yellow people are still marching through the wilderness of racism, segregation, degradation, and discrimination. Even though we have not reached it yet, we are still striving. We cannot reach it alone, we need the cooperation of all Americans. Both the promise land on earth and the one in heaven may be reached only as all people seek peace with God and man.
