Myrtle Williams Bell, Recent Visitor in City, Honored with Evening Coffee

Mrs. Myrtle Williams Bell, daughter of Mrs. Mary Williams, was a recent visitor in Lubbock. With Myrtle with her two children Wilfred III and Mary LeGayle. The three of them thoroughly enjoyed being home with their family and attending their church's revival.

While in Lubbock Myrtle was the guest of honor at a coffee given in the home of one of her high school classmates. Among those whom the hostesses were able to contact and who attended were Catherine Blevins Jackson, Lillie Sanders Smith, Mae Jessie Mathis

Laura Kinney Mitchell and Inez Williams Sadler. The "girls" had a delightful time going over events from "way back when" and catching up on the current whereabouts of classmates, teachers, and friends. Each expressed a desire to have a class reunion in the near future.

Myrtle is a graduate of Dunbar High School here in Lubbock and earned a degree in elementary education from Texas Southern University. She now lives in Houston, Texas where she teaches fourth grade.

Humphrey Says Ballot Power Should Be Used

Washington, D. C. - Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey urged minority citizens, especially the disadvantaged, to register and vote this year for candidates and policies which will correct inequities in our society.

"The way to correct any inequity, the way to change any policy that is wrong is not in the streets, it is not out there through violence or even loud demonstration. It is through the peaceful political processes," the Vice President said. "Ballot power is real power."

The U. S. Bureau of the Census estimates that in 1964 only 43 percent of those with family incomes of under $3,000 and only 61 percent of those within the $3,000 to $4,900 range used their votes to elect a President and help determine national policy. In contrast, 81.5 percent of those in income ranges of more than $10,000 voted.

Among black Americans of voting age, only 58.5 percent voted in 1964, while 71 percent of the potential white electorate went to the polls.

"I believe that there is not a single inequity in the country that

Navy's Blue Angles, Jet Demonstration Team, to Perform For Panhandle Fair

The nation's first official jet flight demonstration team, the Navy's famed Blue Angles, will present their breathtaking aerial display here in connection with the 51st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair. It will be their first visit to the South Plains.

The pilots will be honored guests during two days of activities in the weeklong fair run, Sept. 23 - 28. The appearance is sponsored by Reese AFB officials as a salute to the fair for its "armed forces day" event each year.

The precision flying team will appear at the 7:30 p.m. performance of the Pat Boone Show in Fair Park Coliseum on Sept. 25, and will present a 40-minute free aerial show at Reese AFB at 2 p.m. on Sept. 26. The public is invited to attend the dramatic show.

Shortly afterward, the jets will make a double fly-over of Fair Park as a final salute to the exposition.

Reese AFB and the fair have jointly cooperated in many ventures over the years. One day of each fair week is set aside as "armed forces day," and all military personnel are admitted free upon presentation of identification cards. Four other special days also are scheduled.

Odessa - A committee of Odessans, led by Dr. Moody Alexander, prominent Odessa orthodontist reported back to Mayor Jim Reese Wednesday, August 28th, that there is a definite need for the INCOTE program in Odessa as outlined a few weeks ago by an official of the company from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The committee says it plans to meet with persons prominent in banking to determine if an INCOTE program will work. The program is designed to make loans available to businessmen of minority groups, including specifically Negroes and Mexican-Americans so those businessmen can increase their stature in private enterprise. Dr. Alexander said his commission will continue to pursue the idea if interest is found in the Odessa community, and, all steps forward will be made slowly and cautiously. When presenting the theory of the INCOTE program here several weeks ago, an INCOTE official told a group of interested community leaders that the program would probably cost upwards of $6,000. The program is not a government idea, but a private enterprise in itself. The Odessa group led by Alexander is known as "The Greater Odessa Development Commission." At the time Mayor Reese called the original meeting he made it plain that any funds needed for the program would have to come from contributions made by individuals and businesses, and that no city funds could be used for this purpose.

Mrs. Lasley In Recital Sunday

Many can recall her talent several years ago as guest soloist with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra Pops Nite concert and Sunday, many of her friends and well-wishers were on hand to see her perform at Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church.

Mrs. Lasley, who is a gospel singer, has been solo artist in many clubs and churches in Lubbock and the South Plains area and is choir director at Saint Luke.

Representatives of the Reco Record Company of Dallas were present at the recital. This group is known for its Echo's of Faith recordings. The company recorded Mrs. Lasley's recital as well as the Greater Saint Luke Choir.

EDITORIAL

Since the fellows from Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) have gone it is time for the Lubbock Independent School Board to start doing something about the upgrading of the curriculum at the predominately minority groups which, of course, include Dunbar High School.

Many will realize that the turmoil in our country today is primarily based on education to all groups, and it is now time for all young people to receive the same type training. For years, at least since 1954, it would appear as though we were interested in a building rather than the curriculum.

Aside from this, it would appear as though the lily-white school administration would begin to integrate this facility. It would do the school district a tremendous amount of good if talents from minority groups were used in this area.

WHO'S A RACIST?

Are you guilty of murdering Martin Luther King, Jr.? Are you a white racist, even if you've always fought for racial equality?

These questions have troubled millions of white Americans who agree that American society in the past as well as today discriminates savagely against Negroes, Spanish-speaking Americans, Indians and other minorities. But they resent the charge that all white Americans are racists.

Let me be personal. In the early thirties, I was organizer for the Young People's Socialist League in Harlem. Together with some Negro comrades I helped black laundry workers unionize. I worked with A. Philip Randolph and Frank Crosswaith in building the Negro Labor Committee. I fought then, and have throughout the years, for fair and full employment, housing and schools for all - black and white. Do I feel guilty of racism? Hell, no.

But I do reproach myself for my inability to convert enough fellow whites to support equality. And I recognize now that I had too simple a view of life. I thought then that if we abolished wage "slavery," if black people had jobs, housing and schools, if we solved their economic woes, the "Negro problem" would disappear. I should have known better. I knew about the time Norman Thomas was on a speaking tour in the South during the W. P. A. days and asked a white Socialist in Birmingham, Alabama how things were going. "Awful," he replied, "I asked my white fellow

THE COLLEGE STUDENT SPEAKS ABOUT CULTURAL CONFLICT

By Doris Brown
Negro Press International

Day afterday, we continue to be subject to the tiresome, absurd conflict within our culture between authority and rebellion.

"Law and order," "freedom," "social change," "liberation," and "revolution" are words we use, often with more emotional than political force.

In one camp are those seeking to restore an orderliness to American life that it may never have had; in the other camp are those whose compulsive need to change society reflects rebellion against parental authority even more than benevolence.

"Law and order" is identified by its opponents with racism; by its supporters, with civic virtue. Freedom's defenders consider the ultimate in human fulfillment; its opponents regard it as the ultimate in human depravity.

Both advocates of "freedom" and "law and order" speak to themselves and each other—not with reference to the issues they state—but in terms of our Western civilization's ancient cultural conflict between body and soul, flesh and spirit.

This cultural conflict antedates Christianity, going back to Greek—and particularly Platonic—ideas representing tangible things as imperfect and transitory, and the spirit as real and permanent.

Christianity took these ideas and imbued them with a characteristic religious coloration. The "flesh" became identified with the old "law" it sought to supplant, while the "spirit" represented the new Christian "law" of grace and love.

Even since Christianity's founding, the West has been torn by the "religionized" schism between body and soul. In secular affairs the same schism operates.

On the left are people seeking "social change" (the "spirit" which became the "law" of love); on the right are those clinging to "law and order" (the "body", representative of the "old" law).

And thus, we have people fighting today to "transform" society, not realizing that they are but piously responding to an age-old cultural idea as interpreted by Christian doctrine, while others—with equal piety—hang on to an older order, oblivious to being instructed by the "body" part of the Western tradition.

What is pathetic about both the "law and order" people as well as the "freedom" advocates is that they proclaim high ideals while actually being cultural robots. And even their high ideas are often found to be only coverups and elaborated defenses of their own selfishness.

Furthermore, both left and right wingers fail to see that neither of them alone can do much to solve society's problems, any more than a bodyless soul or soulless body could.

It takes both physical and spiritual power to solve a problem; one won't do without the other. And life involves both obligation and freedom; a program of action which emphasizes one to the detriment of the other will be no more successful than a person trying to climb a mountain in either a dungeon or a vacuum.

Desperately needed today is a concept of social ethics which seeks to help develop the "whole man"—who knows both his duties and his freedoms—rather than uselessly pitting authority against the "anti-establishment"—but by using our social and political institutions to accomplish the goals we seek.

Our society must learn to respect both the freedoms it holds dear and the institutions used to protect those freedoms. We need to see the relationship between institutional breakdown and social disorder, rather than assuming—as we so often do—that the institutions are to blame for the disorder.

At the same time, we need to see the family, society, and the community as institutions that promote social stability and human happiness, rather than letting them become dictatorial ends in themselves.

The crying need of the hour is a stress on integrating the best features of the old and the new, the obligatory and the liberating, the physical and the soulful.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE—
Negro Press International

By LEON L. LEWIS

One of the biggest blunders pulled by politicians, public office-seekers and their representatives is the tendency to ignore the Negro media. Most politicians feel that if they get two or three prominent Negro figures in their camp, they have the Negro vote sewed up. In so many instances, this has proven to be absolutely false in purpose and non-resultful in benefit to the candidate.

In past elections, local and national, this tendency to ignore the Negro press has proven futile to the candidate's future. This does not only apply to white candidates, but to Negro candidates as well.

The first national blunder in this respect occurred in 1940, when Wendell Willkie was seeking the Presidency. Willkie's public image was appealing to Negroes, and he could have licked FDR with Negro vote. But he failed to carry his message to the Negro voters, by the only mean available for effective results—through the Negro press.

Again, it happened in 1948. Tom Dewey had done a tremendous job of elevating Negroes to high office—even more so than the federal government under Truman. But Truman used the Negro press, and carried his message to Negroes directly. He even set a precedent in campaigning personally in Harlem. Dewey lost his own state of New York.

There are many local and state elections where the same calamity has befallen candidates because they tried to get their message over to Negroes through self-appointed Negro bigwigs.

Just as some of the nation's leading business firms are learning that the only effective way to appeal to the Negro consumer is through the Negro oriented media, politicians are going to have to realize that the most effective way to effectively reach the Negro voter is through those avenues that are directed particularly to him.

One Negro publication is perused by from five to ten persons in any given week, and in many instances, by as many families. On the other hand, the Negro publication is usually kept around the house as a calendar. It is referred to for information of local happenings throughout the week or month as the case may be.

From an editorial standpoint to influence public thinking, the white-oriented press is bias in its discussion of issues and candidates' qualifications and records.

For instance, there are many southern dailies advocating that the Negro should support the Republican party, because it was Lincoln's party that freed them from slavery. Or that some percentage of Republicans in Congress voted for the Civil Rights Bill.

The Negro press goes a little bit deeper. They tell the fact that during the whole period of Nixon's senatorial and vice president career, not one gesture did he make that can be recorded as being favorable to the Negro, and the entire camp of his political organization was practically lily-white. And there were no Negroes hardly, as delegates to the GOP national convention.

And that's the way it looks from here.

We should live by both bread and spirit, changing society when it needs to be changed and leaving it alone when it should be left alone. We need both authority and creativity; law and love; stability and progress; technology and aesthetics; rite and right; physical force and spiritual power.

And on the racial scene, we need both black and white people; neither can live without the other. Both groups must stop making symbols and bogeymen out of each other and start recognizing their interdependence and common humanity.

Negroes need to see that all whites are not oppressors or devils. And black people must recognize that their own racism is no more defensible than a white person's hate.

At the same time, whites need to see their responsibility in helping black people overcome the ill effects of 350 years of slavery and segregation.

Neither race has a monopoly on either virtue or vice. Having both duties and rights, each group must learn to respect the other's freedom and independence, if a racial catastrophe is to be averted.

THE POLICE BEAT

by: T. J. Patterson

HERE WE GO AGAIN

Last week another murder occurred in our City Limits. It would appear that the people of our community would motivate our young people in another direction. It would appear, too, as though no one cares about the welfare of each other.

People, the time has come when we must become more involved with the problems of our community. Let's quit shying away from the realities in life. We all have a job to do and we should start now.

THEFT OF PURSE

Adline Minor, 208 8th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone unknown took a purse out of the front seat of her automobile while it was parked at her residence.

She said the car door was not locked and that this enabled the thief to clip her of $15 in loose change.

Mrs. Minor, I am sure you'll agree that the "Lock Your Car" slogan which was originated by the Lubbock Police Department is really worth some consideration. You are actually lucky, Mrs. Minor, it could have been worse. Don't you think?

CAR BURGLARY

Cedell Anderson, a resident of Ralls who came to the Percy Sledge Show last Friday night, told police that someone unknown entered his automobile at the Fair Park lot and took his $154 stereo tape recorder.

It was learned that entry was gained by merely prying the right door glass, breaking the window, and unlocking the door.

This was pride and joy of Anderson. Boy, he would surely like to have it back.

Another Theft At Fair Park

Elton Conger, 1512 East 7th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone took a record player from his automobile while he was inside having a good time.

The player was valued at $35. He admits that entry was gained by breaking out the left vent window and reaching inside unlocking the vehicle's door.

All Elton could say was "Why did it happen to me." I don't know why Elton, but when they come after something, they really come...

VANDALISM

How Does This One Grab You? Mrs. Ernest Holguin, 2010 East 49th Street, told police that a man had been drinking and got mad at her and his wife for being gone so long.

When his wife returned home with Mrs. Holguin, he started crying and kicked the front door open which caused about $3.00 worth of damage.

Incidentally, this man lives in Port Isabell, Texas. One thing is for certain—all he wanted was his wife to come home. . . Can you blame him?

Weekly Police Beat Prayer

Lord, help us to work together to make our community a better place in which to live. As parents, Lord, we know we have a lot to do, but the answer is only in You. Amen.

Special Ballots Arrive Here

The County Clerk's office began taking applications last week and will continue through September 20 for those who would like to vote in the November Presidential election under a new state law.

According to authorities, voters applying for special ballots will not vote until a period extending from October 21 through November 1 when they must return to the County Clerk's office to secure and cast their ballots.

As of last week, three persons who have lived in Lubbock less than a year applied for the special ballot.

Under the new law persons who will have lived in Texas at least 60 days, but less than a year on election day may vote for President and Vice President. However, they must possess all qualifications for voting in Texas, except residence, and must be able to show they were qualified voters had they remained in the state from which they moved until election day.

New Times Agent In Big Spring

Thomas Evans and wife, Gwendolyn, once long time residents of Lubbock, have returned from Denver, Colorado where they resided for several years. The Evans' now have three children. They will be living in Big Spring, Texas, Mr. Evans' native home, where he has a father & mother, sisters, and brothers. He has accepted the position of agent and subscription representative for the West Texas Times in Big Spring.

Mr. Evans is president of a very important committee in Big Spring. The committee was called together Wednesday night to discuss ethics of the program.

We welcome Mr. Evans and his family back to Texas.

For information in subscribing for the West Texas Times visit him at 1502 Robin St. in Big Spring.

New Lights Installed Here

Lubbock Power and Light crews are installing 72-400 watt mercury street lights on Quirt Avenue between Parkway Drive and Idalou Road. This additional (1) mile of roadway lighting increases the number of lighted thoroughfare miles in Lubbock to 72.3 miles.

These street lights will be turned on the 5th of September, 1968. The total number of street lights in Lubbock, including this installation, is 7486.

Behold the little fellows come and I do mean they cross the streets, so you drivers that have been ignoring the yield and stop signs please obey all signs now because the little child's life that you save may be that of your own. I think that we as parents should caution our children about cutting across people's yards, we know it is hard to take the long way around but it is also bad for them to walk right across someone's front yard. Parents the future of our little ones lies in our hands so let us not stand idly by and watch their future go down the drain.

Going Away To School

Linda Marie Lusk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lusk, Jr., will leave Saturday, September 14, via airlines for New Orleans, La., where she will enter Dillard University's Nursing Training.

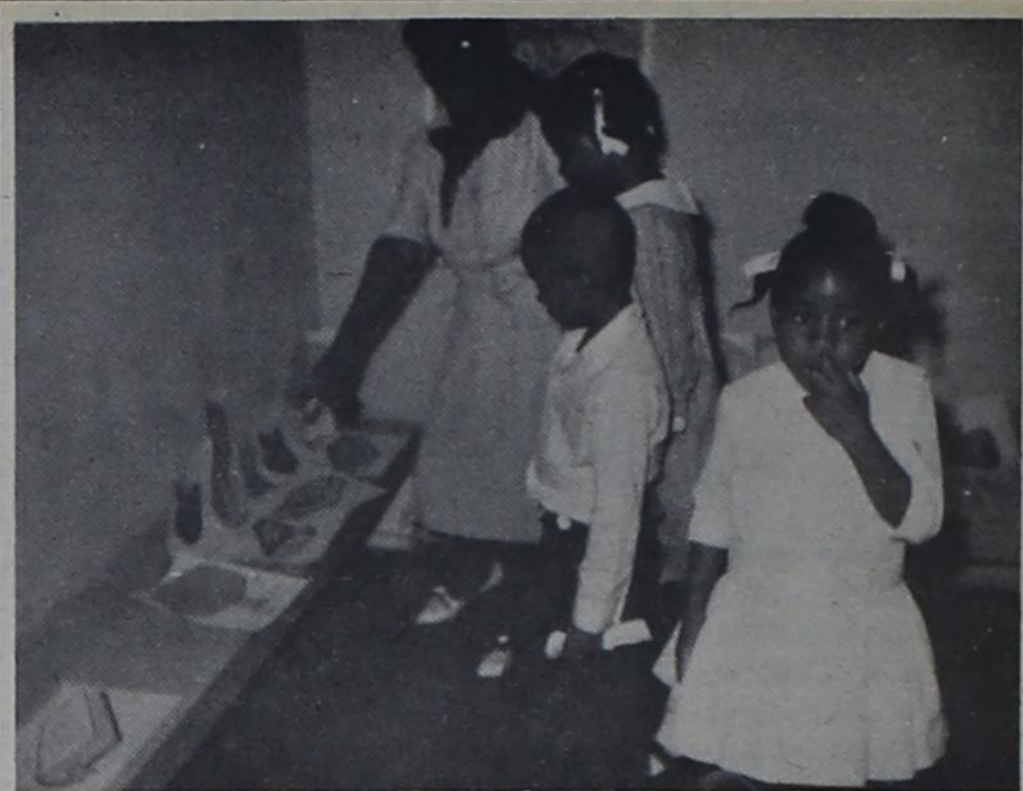

Her plans are to receive a masters degree in the field of nursing which will require about five years of training and study. Linda was one of the honor students in the May graduation class at Dunbar High School.

Aside from this, she also held various positions at the school and has traveled extensively representing the school.

She is a member of Bethel A.M. E. Church where she was musician for the Churub Choir for several years. She was active in the Sunday School department where she was pianist and worked hard in the youth department of Bethel's district.

We will miss her very much, but we are sincerely praying for her success.

She has twin brothers, Karl and Kevin. Her father is one of the best bootmakers in Lubbock and her mother is librarian at Dunbar High School.

With her hand in her mouth, little Shelia Renee Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Patterson of Lubbock, appears to be shy about inviting the photographer to capture a picture of her art work. On the other hand, Gary Wadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Wadley, and Avis Elsie, sister of Shelia, are more than happy to display their efforts.

This art work was done in the Vacation Bible School of Bethel A. M. E. Church week before last. Mrs. B. M. Jamison, teacher in the school, is pointing to some of the work done by the other young people attending the school.

Around the Hub City

Around the Hub City would like to take this opportunity to point out some constructive steps taken in our community.

First, the "Old Citizens Banquet" held last Thursday night was good omen of what to expect in the future. Of the fifty or more persons present, it was wonderful to note that among this group, over 800 years of Hub City Living was attributed.

Those people who were present and have lived in Lubbock for forty years or more included: Mrs. Irbie Whitfield, Mrs. Ola Scott, Mrs. Ernestine Harris, Miss E. A. Lewis, Charles A. Sedberry, Rev. S. S. Scott, T. S. Jamison, Mack Jamison, Joe Snell, Mrs. Louise Thomas Hill, Mrs. Katharine Thomas White, Mrs. Rosetta Bailey, Mrs. Minnie Sparks, Mrs. Dovie Jo Williams, Willie Williams, Mrs. Oma McQuinney, Mrs. Rosa Henry, Mrs. M. L. Localton, Mrs. Grace L. Sullivan, Mrs. John Fair, Mrs. D. D. Fair, Sr., Mrs. Bessie Okra and George Woods.

The people of the Hub City, I am sure, would like to join in with me and say "thanks" for a job well done, Senior Citizens. Without the effort made by each of you—and

OUT IN FRONT

Lusaka - (NPI)-Zambia has become the first nation in the world to adopt the computerized method of checking on national vote registrations. The system, a new one and devised in Zambia for use in local registrations, makes use of a computer through which registration cards are passed to weed out recording mistakes and to guard against double registrations.

SERIOUS INTENT

Entebbe, Ugandi - (NPI)-In what is being regarded as the first serious effort the African countries bordering the Nile are undertaking a survey to determine the best way to make use of the fabled river's potential. The mighty Nile, more than 4,000 miles long—from the Mediterranean sea to the origin of the White Nile, at Uganda's Lake Victoria, and the Blue Nile, at Ethiopia's Lake Tanna has long been many others—Lubbock wouldn't be the city it is today.

Mayor W. D. "Dub" Rogers delivered a most enjoyable message to those attending. He made honorary citizens of each one who had been a resident here for over forty years.

George Woods was master of ceremonies and R. B. McAlister gave remarks to the group.

Mrs. Maunita Terrell and Mrs. Bobbie Jean Patterson entertained the group with a special selection.

Earnest Butler, who was the instrument behind the affair, hopes that this can be an annual affair for those people who worked so hard for what we have today.

Second, a meeting was held at the Multi-Service Center Monday evening for people who are interested in going into their own business which is badly needed in our community. Representatives were present from the Small Business Administration to explain the new directive which has been issued by Washington in regard to SBA loans made by minority groups.

Throughout America, less than 3 per cent of all SBA loans are acquired by minority groups and it is the feeling of this branch of government that minority groups be given an opportunity to apply for these loans and positive action be taken.

Thirdly, the Concerned Citizens—a group which was organized several months ago—are still meeting each month at the Mae Simmons Community Center. This group is very much concerned about the employment problems in Lubbock.

Their next meeting will be held

More to Ulcers Than Abundance of Acid

Stomach ulcers have come to be a badge of success because so many men have them after winning a long struggle in the world of business. Mental strain appears to cause excessive stomach acid secretion. But there is more to a case of stomach ulcers than merely an abundance of acid due to mental strain.

"Get-by measures" for stomach ulcers range from drinking milk between meals to surgery. These forms of treatment deal with symptoms only and the patient may find temporary relief, but not removal of the cause. Most disease, including stomach ulcers, is the direct result of abnormal function of the nerve system. The Doctor of Chiropractic does not approach an ulcer condition with the idea that too much acid must be neutralized. Instead he concerns himself with the probable cause: the nerves going to the stomach.

The brain and nerves should regulate the secretion of acid into the stomach... and will do so if nerve impulse transmission is unimpeded. But when acid secretion causes stomach ulcers, the Doctor of Chiropractic knows that normal contact with the brain through the nerve system is partially interrupted and that normal contact must be restored before the stomach can heal and become healthy again.

Usually, nerve impingement is in the spinal column. Nearly all of the nerve system's roots emit the spine, is highly susceptible to misalignment. When one or more vertebrae are slightly twisted out of place, Chiropractic care is needed to find and correct the misalignment... thus restoring normal nerve function to the stomach or other affected organs.

The Doctor of Chiropractic sees over and over again every day the necessity for a healthy nerve system. He knows that all the tissues, parts of the body and organs, including the stomach, are absolutely dependent upon normal nerve function for lasting health.

This has been a Health and Life Article from the office of Dr. Don Johnson, Chiropractor. Persons interested in better life through better health should contact Dr. Johnson, at 3411 Knoxville Avenue in Lubbock or call Swift 2-3081, today.

Missile Equipment To Be Shown Here

Lubbock - The White Sands, N. M., Missile Range will display a series of missiles and an electronic exhibit at the 51st annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here Sept. 23-28.

More than a million dollars worth of military hardware, including Air Force, Army, Navy and Coast Guard equipment, has been secured for the weeklong run.

White Sands will be sending the Sergeant ballistic missile, the surface-to-surface Lance missile, ship-to-air Tarter and the medium range ship-to-air Standard missiles, the Aerobee Hi rocket, the long-range Talos missile and the supersonic Redeye, the world's smallest guided missile.

In addition, the electronic display depicts in pictures and words the geography, mission and the unique testing conducted at the Army-operated national missile range. Moving parts, motion pictures and synchronized narration gives a dynamic demonstration of missile development as carried on today at the New Mexico facility. The exhibit was a popular attraction at the New York Fair.

The White Sands contributions will join the Air Force's Titan III Transtage rocket, the Army's Heritage of Freedom display, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's "Milestones in Space" exhibit and the Navy's Cline-Globe theater in the gigantic military area. A mobile Coast Guard display also has been secured.

The military feature is but one of hundreds of attractions scheduled for the 1968 fair expected to set an all-time attendance mark.

Top attraction is the Pat Boone Show, appearing on stage in Fair Park Coliseum at 3 p.m. on Monday, Friday, and Saturday and at 7 p.m. daily.

Tickets are priced at $2, $2.50, $3 and children 12 years and under will be admitted to matinees for one-half price. All tickets purchased prior to Sept. 23 will be accompanied by free gate admission passes.

A ticket booth will open in Pioneer Hotel in downtown Lubbock on Sept. 3.

So far, ticket sales are well ahead of the record set two years ago when Tennessee Ernie Ford headlined the 1966 exposition.

The Vice President said he thought he deserved and would get strong support in the black community. "I've been a spokesman for human rights and civil rights and all it means all of my life," he pointed out.
