Reception Set Saturday For Preston Smith

Your editor mentioned in last week's edition that Lt. Governor Preston Smith of Lubbock had never come East of Avenue A since he has been in this office. This will be no longer true if he comes, and he said he was, to visit us over here Saturday afternoon, October 5th, from 2 until 4 p.m. in a special reception for him.

Let's hope that his visit to our section will be more than a vote getting foray. Let's hope that he will see and be informed by the citizens of this section of the problems and gross neglect of this section by those elected officials.

The public is cordially invited to come out and attend this reception which is given in behalf of the "Governor". Bring a friend with you Saturday and shake one our home folk's hand.

This special effort is sponsored by the Mae Simmons Community Center and residents of East Lubbock.

"Governor" Smith in Bid For State's Highest Office

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith became the Democratic nominee for Governor of Texas on June 1, 1968, when he did what very few have done in the history of the state. Smith came from second place in the first primary to victory in the runoff, overtaking Don Yarborough by 767,490 to 621,226 for a 55.26 % total.

Smith's power as a man able to unite various groups and make a meaningful appeal to the voters was the next thing to a well kept secret until the first primary. Then, he topped a highly talented field of moderate-conservatives for the honor of going against the liberal-backed Don Yarborough.

A good example was the 1966 May primary when Lt. Gov. Smith polled 81 percent of the voters - the biggest percentage victory in all the statewide contested races.

The battle for the 3-AAA title could have been won last Thursday night when those fighting Dunbar Panthers tied Sweetwater, 6-6.

Despite the offensive effort of the Panthers, they had an opportunity of winning the game late in the fourth period when Ralph Kinner had two chances to kick the PAT—but failed both times.

No doubt about it, the Mustangs from Sweetwater had their offense up throughout the evening, when they penetrated the Panthers territory several times.

Kinner replaced Frank Melton late in the fourth quarter as chief signal caller. He got the job off with a bang when he threw a lengthy pass to his big receiver Marc Wilson. This lit the fuse for the Panthers only tally of the evening.

The Panthers will travel to Slaton tomorrow night, Friday, for their third district tilt of the season. They are presently one and one.

"The Kids" will play for a teenage dance at Maxey Community, located at 30th and Oxford Avenue, Saturday, October 5, from 8:00 to 11:00 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

Men Held in Widow's Death

Two Brownfield men were being held without bond last week in Lubbock County jail in connection with the robbery and death of Mrs. Naomi Wall, an 85 year-old Grassland widow.

The men, George Edward Hight, 26, and O'Dell Fullbright, 28, were transferred to Lubbock after Lynn County Sheriff Carl Spears said there had been reports of an attempt to take the pair from jail in Tahoka.

Another Brownfield man, John Coe, 22, is also being held in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of burglary in the same incident.

According to Spears, Mrs. Wall suffered a broken arm and hip when someone broke into her home in Grassland and robbed her of "about $10.00 and a couple of flashlights."

The sheriff said an autopsy showed her death was due to shock from her injuries.

Youth Treated After Wreck Here

Last week, a four-year old Lubbock boy was in fair condition in West Texas Hospital after he was struck by an auto driven by an AWOL soldier in the 1500 block of East 19th Street.

According to hospital officials, Charles Lacey of 1506 East 8th Street, suffered only minor injuries in the mishap.

Investigators said the 22 year-old driver of the auto admitted being AWOL from Fort Hood. He was turned over to Reese Air Force Base security police.

Science Fact and Science Fiction is October Planetarium Topic

Computers are really still in their infancy, but although they are only a scant dozen years in existence, they already exceed the ability of humans in the performance of many functions.

To project this phenomenon into the future, man finds that ultra-intelligent computers which will be capable of performing every intellectual activity better than man himself will be doing much of the problem-solving of scientists.

In ancient Greek legend, Pegasus was a winged horse, long before man dreamed that flight into space might someday become a reality.

Pegasus, the Winged Horse, is an ancient northern constellation which can be seen in October skies.

These and other topics of "Science Fact and Science Fiction" will be discussed each Sunday in October at 3:00 p.m. at the Planetarium.

Admission to the Planetarium lectures is 50¢ for adults and 25¢ for students. Families holding membership in West Texas Museum Association are admitted free.

Mr. Bill Parsley to Speak to League of Women Voters At Johnson House Today

Mr. Bill Parsley, Vice-President for Development at Texas Tech, will address the members of the Lubbock League of Women Voters on Thursday, October 3 at a noon luncheon meeting at the Johnson House Restaurant.

Mr. Parsley, who served in the Texas House of Representatives during the sessions of 1958 and 59, will speak on the topic, "Lobbying and the Lobbyist". The Lubbock League has been studying the Texas Legislature for the past two years as part of its study program on state governmental policies.

Joseph Jones Attends Institute

Joseph M. Jones, manager of Coronado Apartments, has just completed two weeks of intensive training at the Institute of Real Estate Management at Dallas, Texas. The school was held at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

The purpose of the school was to enhance ones knowledge in property management. This training was equivalent to twelve hours of college training which can be applied toward becoming a Certified Property Manager (CPA).

Jones, a graduate of Cisco Junior College and a former student at Texas Tech, realizes that the course was given to train an individual in many areas of property management which included residential single family homes, shopping centers, office buildings and apartments.

At present the young, energetic, Abilene reared man is working on his real estate license and hopes to become a broker.

He is a member of the Parkway Optimist Club, a hard working civic worker and director of music of the young people's choir of Mount Gilead Baptist Church where he has been a member for three years.

He is happily married to Mrs. Lillian Mae Jones, who has been a teacher in the Lubbock Public School system for seven years. They are proud parents of two sons and reside at 1017 East 29th.

EVERY NEGRO SHOULD VOTE

Next month, to be exact, November 5th is the day, when every Negro should get out and vote. This obligation is upon us to take part and cast our vote in the November election. Let's take a good long look at the candidates and see what they have done.

Deeds and not promises are what should be counted. Ask yourself this: "What party gave us the social legislations, Civil Rights, Job Opportunities, Social Welfare, Community Action Programs, Medicare and Educational Opportunities?"

Take time and look at this and take a good look at those who would undo it all and make a good strive to turn the clock back for us all. If you would be concerned about this, you should be able to come up with a good answer when you go to the polls to cast your vote.

Looking at the Black vote on the national level, we know that there are more than 22 million Negroes in the United States and it is estimated that some seven million of them are registered voters. With this great number of people who can go to the polls and decide the next President and Senators as well as governor of his or her state, our vote can be effective if we vote come the 5th.

Bring the polls back home. Without any doubt, there are several thousand qualified voters who can easily change the local situation as well as hitting hard at the state and national politicians.

This year, more than any other year, we need to show America that we can stand up and be counted. Let's start at home - Lubbock County - and show the state that we can do it. Let's get out and vote Tuesday, November 5th. When you do this, be sure to remember who you are voting for. Please do not vote for promises. When you vote, remember you are voting for progress and nothing else. By the same token, urge your friends to get out and vote also.

YOU GOTTA HAVE HEART

Philip Blaiberg, a white South African is alive today because last year a "colored" man's heart was given to him. But, minus his heart, Clive Haupt's body was carted off to a segregated cemetery in that country. Medical science, of course, ignores racial barriers to achieve miracles. Yet, as the Baptist Standard of Texas notes: "The colored man's heart can go to the white man's cemetery only in a white man's body."

THE COLLEGE STUDENT SPEAKS ABOUT THE "GENERATION GAP"
 By Doris Brown
Negro Press International

I'm turning over today's column to a 31-year-old friend, who considers himself an old man in relation to the "younger generation" of collegians who are but 10 or 12 years younger than he is. This is what he has to say:

At age 31, I feel as though there's a generation gap between myself and the young people in college.

I graduated from college in 1957, at a time when "McCarthy" meant Sen. Joseph McCarthy, not Sen. Eugene McCarthy. And perhaps that explains why the collegians of my day differed so radically from the current crop.

For we were intimidated by the anti-Communist witch-hunts of the earlier McCarthy era, while the new "generation" is liberated by the current McCarthy era's turbulent demand for change.

We who graduated from college in the 1950's devoted much of our emotional energy to seeking a personal accommodation with the world. But to-

FACING THE FACTS
 By Lester C. Means

President Johnson has urged the nation's medical profession not to turn the Medicare program into a racket to bring doctors higher fees. At the same time, he repeated his call for a national "Kiddy-care" program. In a campaign-style fist-slammng speech before the 900 delegates to the predominantly Negro National Medical Association (NMA), the president decried the rise in doctors fees and warned them against allowing Medicare to become "a scandal and disgrace" in their search for money. Medicare, Johnson said, "is too good a thing to chisel". It is too good a thing to bring in a scandal and disgrace. It is too good to fudge on. There are allegations that some doctors deliberately raise fees to get more money from Medicare program under the clause in the law which sets fees at the prevailing rate in the area.

Medicare as it now stands, Johnson said, is no longer enough to meet the health needs of the country. "Now mainly, because we have seen that Medicare for the elderly is a success, we must now turn our thoughts to another important group of Americans who greatly need our help". He then made an appeal for the "Kiddy-care" program that he first proposed last May before a labor group in Atlantic City, N. J.

The program, which is stalled in Congress and which the White House admits is in trouble, would provide medical care from the time of conception until the child was one year old.

day's collegians want the world to accommodate to their demands.

I remember an elderly college professor telling us, during a course in essay writing, that the trouble with the college students of that time was that they were too timid and did not actively seek social change.

That professor would probably be pleased with what is happening on college campuses-which is almost a reversal of the sly, muttered rebellion of yesterday's collegians.

I, too, am happy that students are spending less time merely preparing themselves for conformity with the world and more time trying to change the world.

We had even more glaring injustices to protest than the current collegians have; yet, we remained silent or looked the other way. By contrast, the young college student of today often goes out searching for something to protest or a movement with which he can ally himself.

The sight of 19, 20, or 21-year-old young men and women "doing their thing" in a McCarthy-for-President headquarters is particularly striking to someone who is not used to seeing young people involved in political causes.

A person only 11 years out of college feels old enough to wonder: "What has come over these collegians? What moves them to change a world that we thought was unchangeable?"

He cannot help but be impressed by their spunk, quiet dedication, and proficiency, which often surpass the efforts of more seasoned political workers.

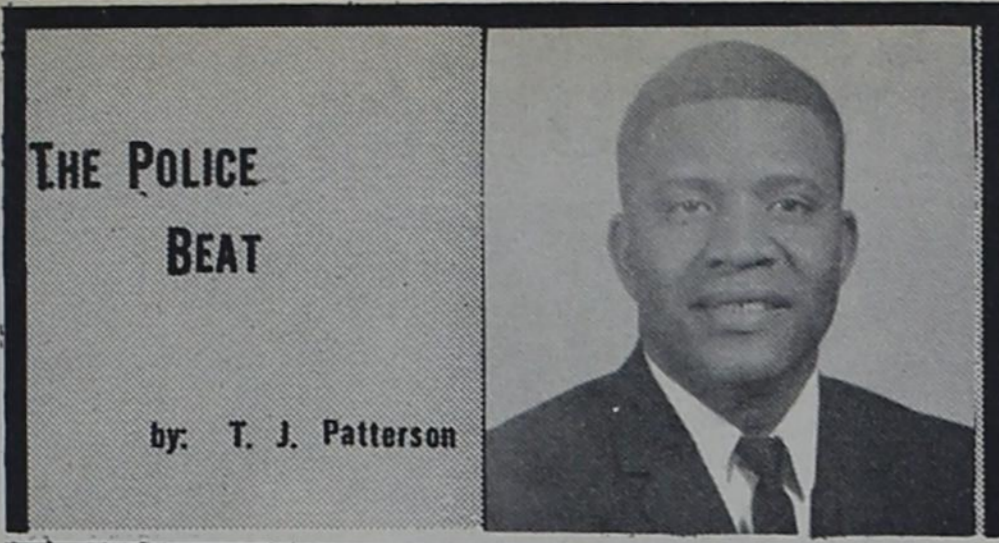

One can, of course, find fault with the young world-savers. Often, their idealism is mixed up with rebellion against their parents. And frequently one encounters the uncritical judgment that an idea or person is wrong simply for being old-fashioned or more than 30 years old.

But even so, these young people's fresh ideas ought to be given a hearing. A nation that has committed as much racial injustice as ours can hardly go wrong in listening to its young people, who will not be satisfied until the world reforms its ways.

It is true that the change sought by today's collegians does not necessarily result in improvement, and young people are not always right in their demands for a revamped society. But one can only respect anyone who uses his potentialities constructively.

Rebellious young people have a reservoir of boundless energy and determination that can be used to tie themselves up in knots (as our "generation" did), to wreck the world (as some extremists seek to do), or to build a better society (as many present-day collegians try to do).

In their search for self-fulfillment, many of today's college students have chosen the latter path. That can only be applauded by collegians of a previous era, whose silence made them old before their time.

THE POLICE BEAT

by: T. J. Patterson

I have an opportunity of reading about all the acts committed by some of the young people of Lubbock, as well as throughout the nation. One thing for certain is that the parents, Mom and Dad, just don't care to a large degree.

Too, you have those parents who would rather do away with their children by violent acts than to be a good parent, and help them in the right direction.

For example, the other night at the South Plains Fair, a young girl, age 14, was involved with a 21 year old man when she stabbed him.

In looking at the incident, it was learned that she stabbed the 21 year old Abernathy man in the middle of his back. After police talked to her, she admitted that the man and her had an argument which came about because he had not taken her to the Fair.

She went on to tell authorities that the man was supposed to bring her, but that he ran off without her. In a very stubborn mood, she looked for him and found him enjoying the Fair and stabbed him with a pair of six inch sissors.

She was turned over to the juvenile authorities.

Another fact revealed is that the weapon was hid in her bra. Can you imagine a teenager thinking like that? Parents, it is most important that something be done about the rearing of our youth. This little fourteen year old girl, who lives in Abernathy, Texas, could have been your child. This is a very serious situation and something must be done at home—immediately to correct many of the wrongs which exist in our community as well as the rest of the nation. Your suggestions would be appreciated by this reporter. Take the time to drop me a line concerning some of these problems and by the same token, send in your ideas toward solutions.

Theft

Jimmy Bask, 2418 Colgate Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that his wife left her wallet in the car while they were returning from the grocery store. She forgot the wallet and went into the house. Once she returned she learned that the wallet was no where to be found.

However, the wallet was found in the driveway minus the $23.00 she had in it.

It should serve as a lesson for this lady, as well as any others, to be extra careful as to where they leave their personal possessions. Don't you think so??

Stab Victim

William Bryant Jackson, of 1024 East 29th Street, had a good time last week working at the South Plains Fair in one of the booths until he was victim of a terrible incident.

You see, four men came up to the booth in which Jackson was working and decided to invest a few coins in the game which was being played. One of the young men, a nineteen-year old smart guy, began to complain about the operation of the set-up. Jackson told him that he didn't have to spend his money at this booth. The other three men jumped into the argument and told Jackson how they disliked the affair.

Jackson, like any broadminded man, forgot about the incident until he was going home and was confronted by the quartet again. The brave 19 year-old, with his body guards, came up to Jackson's residence and stabbed him with a knife in the right shoulder.

Jackson admitted that he would definitely file charges against the young fellow. I wonder if this young fellow really understands why he did what he did. Actually, he was lucky to have been able to stab Jackson and not suffer any injury himself. Sometimes it is hard to say what is going on in the minds of our young people.

House Burglary

John Christian, 2407 East 8th Street, reported that while he was at the Fair enjoying himself someone had taken the liberty of going through his house.

It was learned that entry was gained by merely pulling off the screen to his bathroom and raising the window for entry.

According to Christian, approximately $160.00 worth of wrenches

"AROUND THE HUB CITY" had an opportunity of watching the Texas Tech Red Raiders defeat those Steers from Austin, Texas last Saturday before a capacity crowd at Jones Stadium. This crowd of more than 50,000 enjoyed the Raiders win of 31-22.

At the end of the game, an eager Raider fan was carrying a sign which said: "Think Cotton." Without any doubt, he was referring to the Raiders bid for the Cotton Bowl this year. Who knows, this can happen this year if the Red and Black keeps up the spirit.

Good Luck, fellows as you run those eleven back to Colorado come this Saturday.

were taken from his residence. Aside from this, the house had been broken into twice prior to this. Apparently someone had been waiting for John to leave so they could make an easy hit.

Theft

Gene Young, 2801 East 2nd Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone had taken his pride and joy. It was a Racer Bike which is valued at $35.00.

He told police he had no idea who could have lifted him of his bike.

To begin with, this reporter had an opportunity - one in which he enjoys very much - of sitting on the bench at 18th Street and Avenue A. It is interesting to talk with people who have at one time or another in their lives given up. They know what life is all about and can easily give you and I (we younger fellows) a good lesson.

A friend of mine, known to many as "Cowboy", is always trying to add fun to his peers each day. Sometimes, I'll admit, he makes things uncomfortable. He's a jovial individual with fun in every conversation. He's an individual who lives from one day to the next, looking for something to do. He is not idolent by any means, and can express his talent of work best when the price is right.

In fact, only one other candidate with opposition has ever surpassed Smith's margin of victory in modern times, thus making Smith one of the top vote-getters in the state's history.

Lt. Gov. Smith, a Lubbock businessman and an 18-year veteran in public service, announced to the people of Texas on September 5, 1967, that he would be a candidate for Governor of Texas. In his formal announcement, he had the following comments:

"Texas has made excellent progress, but new challenges resulting from this development cannot be met by simply spending more and more state money, and paying, more and more taxes. I feel that lasting solutions are necessary if Texas is to continue its progress to the betterment of all Texans," he said.

The 38th lieutenant governor, Smith was born on a farm near Georgetown and attended public schools in Williamson and Gaines counties. He worked his way through high school at Lamesa and college at Texas Tech.

Mr. Burtis will define in his speech the "Background to White Racism". He feels that a majority of white people have a conscious or unconscious prejudice against blacks. This prejudice is often unintentional and even unrecognized, but it causes the prejudiced person to act in a discriminatory way toward blacks and toward all darker peoples. If a white man can recognize his prejudice and the source of it, he is on his way toward conquering that prejudice.

Mr. Burtis will discuss the development of this prejudice in white American society from its beginnings in slave days when even social thinkers subscribed to the idea of Negro inferiority to its breakdown among social scientists in the 1920's when environmental factors began to figure in studies of intelligence.

Mr. Burtis has written a paper on this subject with Dr. Walter Cartwright, chairman of the sociology department at Tech, that will appear in the December issue of Social Science Quarterly. The special topic of the issue is "Blacks in America".

IT'S BIRTHDAY PARTY TIME

A birthday is coming up, so it's to be a gay party for the girls and boys. Every child thrills to see his very own name in print . . . and on a birthday cake their delight is a pleasure to see. Use a simple cake from your favorite recipe or mix. Plan to serve ice cream, of course, and perhaps a little Bosco poured on top. Here's the frosting recipe.

LEMON CREAMY FROSTING

½ cup Nucoa margarine
⅓ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon lemon juice
3½ cups sifted confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Food color
Mix margarine, corn syrup, and salt blending well. Stir in lemon juice and confectioners sugar alternately, beating until smooth and creamy after each addition. Add enough lemon juice to make a good spreading consistency. Stir in grated lemon rind. Take out about ½ cup and tint for decorating. Frost cake sides and top. Using a pastry tube pipe on decorations.
