

Bethel A.M.E. Church To Honor Mrs. L.C. Struggs Here Sunday

A lady who has resolved that she will wear out in the services of her church, and not rust out, Mrs. Lillian C. Struggs, will be honored Sunday morning, February 9, at the 11 a.m. services for her forty-four years of dedicated work at Bethel A.M.E. Church.

Mrs. Struggs admits, "I've never seen God, but I know how I feel; it's people like the members of my church and citizens of Lubbock who make Him so real".

The eldest child born to the late Rev. and Mrs. Lee Gus Porter, she has contributed a great talent to the field of music and education. A resident of Lubbock since August, 1930, she has seen many changes in this community.

A native of a rural community in East Texas, Gregg County, Kilgore, Texas, Mrs. Struggs moved to Tyler, Texas, with her family soon after she was born. Her formal education began in the kindergarten department of Texas College and continued through the fourth grade. Her father was called to pastor the Hopewell C.M.E. Church in Texarkana, Texas, and she entered the public schools for the first time and remained there until her parents sent her back to Texas College.

After completing two years of college work which was called "Teacher Training Course", she accepted a teaching position in Cameron, Texas, in 1925. She was a teacher in that school district for five years.

Another milestone began in her life in September, 1925, when she met Edward Cecil Struggs who was also doing his first teaching years in Milong, Texas, Minerva, Texas. They were married December 26, 1926, and remained on their separate jobs until September, 1930. At that time, Mr. Struggs accepted a position as principal of Dunbar High School in Lubbock.

The Struggs came to Lubbock August, 1930, and united with Bethel A.M.E. Church their first Sunday in the "Hub City", and their church work began the second Sunday they were here. At this time, Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Struggs are still dedicated members of Bethel A.M.E. Church.

Not only does the formal training of Mrs. Struggs involve Texas College, but she has attended Prairie View A&M College and the University of Michigan where she received her M.S. degree.

Many would call her the "Music Lady", because as Mrs. Struggs says, "It's my second love." Her music training began with lessons on the kitchen table by her mother, before the family purchased a piano. Later she studied music at Texas College, Prairie View A&M College and the organ with Mrs. Nell Oldham of Lubbock.

Mrs. Struggs' tenure as an organist of Bethel A.M.E. Church began August, 1930, and has been continuous for the past forty years. A great teacher in the field of music, she was an asset in the public schools as a teacher and has

TEC Taking Claims For Extended Unemployment

The Texas Employment Commission will begin taking claims for extended unemployment benefits February 3, 1975, it was announced recently.

Unemployed persons who have filed initial claims for benefits within one year prior to January 26, 1975, and who have exhausted those benefits, are eligible to file a claim.

Payments will be made at the same rate as for regular unemployment insurance, but the total extended benefits will equal only 50 per cent of regular benefits. However, a new federal program may pay extended benefits in the same amount as regular extended state benefits.

Persons claiming unemployment insurance benefits as ex-servicemen or ex-Federal employees are also eligible for these extended benefits.

Extended benefits are available only so long as the rate of unemployment remains at levels specified by law.

Claimants who file for extended benefits on or before February 19 may file claims backdated to include January 26, 1975, if they meet the usual requirements for drawing unemployment insurance.

Claims for extended benefits may be filed at the nearest Texas Employment Commission office.

Founder's Day At Bethel Is Good For All Blacks

Regardless of what denomination you claim or what church you may attend, we think the program to be held at Bethel A.M.E. Church Sunday afternoon, February 9, at 3 p.m. will enrich all black people in Lubbock and West Texas. If you are a student of Black History, which will be observed this month, the history of the African Methodist Episcopal Church makes one think of his heritage.

The founder of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Richard Allen was a man of sublime courage and indestructible and passionate faith. He was equipped with these two spiritual weapons and was not beaten down by society.

Richard Allen, along with other African decedents, was denied the freedom to worship God in the St. George M.E. Church in Philadelphia, Pa. in 1787. He politely walked out into God's great big world and started the movement which blossomed into the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

A strong man, Richard Allen was not mastered by the disappointing and ugly experiences which confronted him in the all white St. George M.E. Church. Instead he mastered these experiences by taking a healthy attitude toward life. He refused to adopt a sour grape philosophy, and instead adopted a courageous and positive faith filled attitude toward the problems which the people of African descent faced. He did not boil up; he did not blow off; he did not fret himself because of the evil doers. He did not feel sorry for himself. He did not become impatient or irritable. Richard Allen kept his balance and his self control.

The program at Bethel A.M.E. Church this coming Sunday should be enriching to all black people in Lubbock and West Texas. If Richard Allen could see how many of us have given up in this day and time, he would perhaps become angry. He would wonder what has happened to all of us.

We need black men in Lubbock and West Texas who are not willing to give up. We need men who are willing to move in the right direction. See the program at Bethel this Sunday and you will agree also.

Lubbock City Council Structure Must Change

An amendment to make it possible for district representation in three areas in the city of Lubbock was defeated last month. Since that time, however, a movement is underway to do something about the lack of minority representation on the present city council. This movement, which is designed to help all citizens of Lubbock, is in a form of petitions of at least 3,800 eligible voters who have voted since 1972.

It is good to see so many persons in black and brown communities working together to reach this magic number in the very near future. This effort, sponsored by the El Movimiento Popular, has the support of members of the East Lubbock Business Association (ELBA).

Lubbock citizens must realize that the Lubbock City Council structure must change. In order for this change to take place, it will require that all black, brown and white citizens get behind this effort.

Our community is behind twenty years in regard to what is taking place in other parts of these United States. It's time for something to happen. El Movimiento Popular and ELBA are working within the system to get something done about the lack of representation and this is the way it should be.

Lubbock, without any doubt, is a growing city and it's time for this community to change in a manner in which all of its citizens will have the same opportunity in city government. By removing this obstacle of the lack of representation, many other blocks should fall.

We encourage all of our readers to sign the petitions which are being circulated by El Movimiento Popular and the East Lubbock Business Association. If you believe that Lubbock must change from its old ways of representation, then we know that you will sign this petition.

Some of you will agree with what some of the mayors of these United States of America said last week in Washington, D.C. Many mayors are afraid that there will be turmoil this summer because of the inflation crunch we are experiencing in this country today. Here are some comments made by some of the mayors:

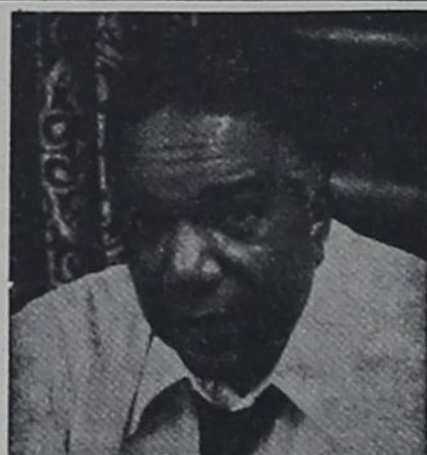

Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee predicted that urban rioting will be worse than the bloody disrupting of the 1960's unless something is done. On the same side of the coin, Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco and president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said, "There are some very conservative businessmen, not just mayors talking, who predict there is going to be blood in the streets of the cities."

Mayor Maier went on to say, "It would make the riots of the 1960's look like a Fourth of July demonstration."

'75 A NEW CHALLENGE

Nationally and internationally, the history of the past twelve months reads like an adventurous, sometimes comic, but fundamentally tragic, chronicle. Governments continue to linger in disarray. The people must still grapple with shock, disillusionment and constant crises. Economies battle record inflations compounded by massive unemployment rates and deepening recessions. Throughout the world, political and economic stability gave way to chaos and uncertainty. And not even the United States was able to escape the trends of world affairs.

As we projected a year ago, inflation and unemployment were primary influences on America's political and economic life this year. To be sure, 1974 found Americans fuming in blocklong gas lines while facing the worst inflation in twenty-two years. The cost of living rose by a staggering 8.8 per cent in 1973.

Today, that figure has increased by more than 12 per cent with stability nowhere in sight. As the cost of goods and services continues to rise, real spendable income steadily declines. With today's dollar reduced to three-quarters of its 1967 purchasing power, sustained inflation could financially devastate Black and poor Americans.

Yet, as insidious as inflation has become, unemployment, as a by-product of this recessionary economy, has also taken its toll. In January of this year, nearly 370,000 persons lost their jobs, placing the total number of jobless Americans at approximately 4.7 million. Today, that figure has increased to nearly six million as the national unemployment rate has jumped to 6.5 per cent. The recessionary state of the economy will undoubtedly push that figure upward in the months ahead.

...DOWN TO BUSINESS

Thus, as we approach 1975, the state of the economy will continue to be our primary concern. The twin evils of inflation and recession have the unnerving potential of wiping out various sectors of our economy.

As at no other time in history, we are acutely aware of the need for the voice of the excluded to be included in the critical decisions and recommendations affecting Black survival.

In 1974 the National Business League proved that we, as a people, can come together with one purpose in mind. We demonstrated that we can achieve UNITY. Our 74th Convention made it clear that Black America is no longer divided by artificial partitions of age, ideologies, religions, class or caste.

Understanding the need to develop strong recommendations which address the pressing economic dilemma, the conference participants developed and adopted resolutions which have been sent to all points of power in this country which are instrumental in effecting change. These resolutions have found their ways to the halls of Congress and on the desks of executives and administrators who understand that they come as a mandate of the people.

In 1975 Black and other minority businesses will be confronted with a stern test of survival. Certainly while business as a whole is affected, the weight of deterioration economic conditions falls with particular oppressiveness on the small and minority business communities which are suffering acutely from such conditions as: sky-rocketing interest rates, inaccessibility to equity capital, lowered production and sales, diminished profits, and increased rates of business failures stemming from these and related causes.

It is imperative, therefore, that we move to re-establish equilibrium in U.S. economic growth. That is the challenge for 1975, and the only real hope for regaining even a semblance of political, social and economic stability. We have ahead of us a new year of getting down to business.

FORD AND THE AUTO MEN

by Jack Anderson, with Joe Spear
(From United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—President Ford's new economic package could well be stamped "Made in Detroit."

The auto industry was exempted from meeting the new clean-air standards and it will profit the most from the President's tax rebate plan.

The car makers' good fortune is no surprise to those who know Gerald Ford. A native of Michigan, the home of the auto industry, he was weaned in the cradle of America's car culture. Auto executives number among his best friends.

Rodney W. Markley, for example, is the chief Washington lobbyist for the Ford Motor Co. and is a frequent golfing companion of the President. Markley was on his way to the French Riviera when he learned that his friend was to be sworn in as the 38th President. He rushed back in time for a gathering that evening in the Ford home.

As House minority leader, Gerald Ford religiously supported the policies of President Richard Nixon. But there was one exception. Ford made a rare break with Nixon to marshal the votes against opening the highway trust fund for mass transit aid - a move also opposed by the auto industry.

There is nothing sinister in all this. But it is clear that President Ford is sympathetic to the views of the auto makers.

His loyalty will soon be tested again. The Big Three, it seems, want the government to reduce bumper standards. The car kings say that bumpers which will absorb a five-mile-an-hour impact are too heavy. They want bumpers that will take no more than a three-mile-an-hour crash.

The motor moguls say they want to save gas. But many critics believe the automakers want to get what they can while they have a friend in the White House.

Hounding Henry: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will have Congress watching over his shoulder for the next two years.

Idaho's Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the new committee to investigate intelligence agencies and the number two man on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has told friends privately he's going to start doing some muckraking in the State Department. Other congressional leaders are also preparing to keep a sharper eye on foreign policy.

Under Church's prodding, for example, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will demand to know why they weren't told about U.S. reconnaissance flights over Vietnam. They also intend to review whether this is a violation of the restrictions which Congress placed last year on U.S. military activity in Vietnam.

On the House side, Foreign Affairs chairman Thomas Morgan is planning a comprehensive review of military aid. Both the Senate and House committees will closely examine the Vladivostok agreement between President Ford and Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev. And a full review of U.S. policy in the Middle East is almost certain.

In the months to come, it looks as if Kissinger's most excruciating diplomacy will take place on Capitol Hill.

Closet Hawk: In private conversations, President Ford often talks like a hawk. He doesn't think the United States should knuckle under to the oil potentates. It wasn't Secretary of State Kissinger, it was the President himself, who raised the possibility of military intervention to prevent the economic strangulation of the West by oil powers.

The President is also determined to support South Vietnam and South Korea against the Communist threat. He has complained about a congressional limit on military aid to Saigon. This, he protested, would deprive Kissinger of his bargaining power to get the Russians and Chinese to hold down their arms shipments to North Vietnam.

But Ford has made clear in his private conversations that he will never send American troops back to Vietnam. The whispers of U.S. military action against North Vietnam are completely false, the President has told friends. He may favor increased military aid for Saigon, he said, but on the question of U.S. military involvement there, he is a dove.

Prep School: Association with the Rockefeller family, it appears, is good training for secretaries of state. Everyone knows, of course, that Henry Kissinger was once an adviser to now Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. Less well remembered is the fact that John Foster Dulles was once chairman of the board of the Rockefeller Foundation and Dean Rusk was actually the foundation's president.

Devious Spooks: A reporter who was invited to lunch at the CIA a couple of years ago agreed to having his picture taken with the agency's press officer. Now, it turns out, the reporter was under CIA surveillance at the time and he suspects the photographs were taken to help the agency's gumshoes identify him.

Loser's Haven: For five years, American Samoa has been governed by a man of dubious talent named John Haydon. He is now leaving, but the Interior Department has named another loser, defeated Republican Rep. Earl Ruth, to replace him. Ruth has never been to American Samoa and has never, to our knowledge, shown any interest in the colony. His only qualification seems to be a World War II friendship with President Ford.

Learning Tips for Black Youth

For the past decade and more, there has been a mounting disillusionment among black youth and their parents concerning the kind of formal education which has been given black young people in our public schools. In the face of their dismay, large numbers of black students have given up almost entirely on the school system. In the place of a necessary optimism and eagerness for learning there has been increased cynicism and doubt. This latter fact, while fully understandable in many circumstances, leads to nowhere.

What, then, can our black youth do?

Prescribing precisely for others can be an unhelpful exercise. Still there are some general principles to which one might refer and in the light of which make much more considered and less selfdefeating judgments. When I have had black youth and their parents ask for suggestions, I have made a few which may in spirit be helpful to many others.

1—One of the most widespread problems which plague and bother our black youth is the apparent conflict between the attitudes and beliefs of their teachers and what the students feel is fair. Teachers often reflect in both their demeanor and in what they say in the classrooms the inherited anti-black or racist aspects of our pro-white American culture or way of life.

To this kind of complaint, our black young people perhaps need to be reminded of several things. One is that their own primary learning purpose is to acquire, at least on the high school and college level, the learning tools and approaches of those who teach them. Black students are not in school, in this sense, to learn their teachers' agenda but to acquire whatever skills they have to impart.

On another level, black students should keep in mind a second goal; that is, to simply meet the set standards and to acquire the paper credentials needed to move ahead to survive in our society. Once we have passed these often cruel and sometimes inherently non-productive obstacle courses, we can be in a far better position to "call the shots" for our own children and to change the system itself, making it serve a far more humane purpose than it now does.

As painful as it can be and sometimes is, black young people need to learn the same lesson that their parents before them had to learn; namely that there isn't anything for free in life. Or, as some put it, "there is never nothing for nothing." For every thing in life that is worth having there is a price which must be paid.

happening in this country, we'd better start getting our thing together. Several days ago, I had an interesting conversation with an individual who is quite respected for his opinion. In talking with this gentleman, and later checking out his comments myself, he gave me some frightening data which will make you think about the coming long hot summers in this country.

Looking around America, the unemployment rate of black youth has reached an astounding 38 percent as compared to the white youth of 16 percent. The figure of adult blacks employed in this country is not so positive since we are always the last hired and the first fired in most cases.

As I've said in the past, I question the unemployment rate of blacks in Lubbock. Although we have a very low unemployment rate in our community, I don't think the black community is really in the right perspective, as far as the record shows. I think this figure had better be checked and re-checked to see if the blacks in Lubbock are being given the opportunity to seek the employment the black community needs. Preventive medicine never hurts anyone, and at this stage of the game, I think it is time to check the dosage.

Without a doubt, we're having some tough economic problems in Lubbock and the nation. I believe that it can be worked out if we start working in the same direction. If we don't move in the same direction, some of those mayors just may be right. It could be that we are on a volcano and don't even know it.

It is good to see Harold M. Chatman appointed to the Lubbock Zoning Board of Adjustment. This is a good move and his involvement should be an asset to the board.

This writer wishes Harold all the luck in the world as he works for the community the next two years.

Another resident of east Lubbock, George Scott, was the next nation to extend full diplomatic recognition to the Palestinian Liberation Organization. . . .Book publishers are speculating that twin "bombs" of the coming months will be former Vice President Spiro Agnew's novel and former President Nixon's memoirs. The cynics are saying the two manuscripts ought to be published under one cover and called "Together Again". . . .An Internal Revenue Service employe in the Detroit field office, John Moffat, tried to stop the agency from blowing half a million dollars on new furniture. His effort to help the taxpayers cost him his job.

2—Another thorny problem which increasing numbers of all students, regardless of race, are facing today centers around what are technically called verbal skills. Students today, in their speaking and writing habits, have a strong tendency to want to "do their own thing."

With black students, "doing their own thing" often leads to bitter and unending debate as to hether "Black English" rather than "White English" should be used. Unfortunately, this formulation of the problem may be misleading. Black youth need to be encouraged, in every reasonable way possible, to be creative. One of the major methods of creativity is the use of the sub-cultural forms of expression in speech and in the arts.

Some of us may have shared in an experience which is fairly common in the northeastern states where Jewish communities are prevalent. It is a refreshing event when, in talking with a Jewish person, to hear it said. "Well, there is something that seems to go to the heart of what we are trying to say. I can't say it just right in English. But there is a Yiddish expression for it..."

People create at their best in using the forms of expressions acquired at the family hearth, from the parents' knees and from the sub-cultural group's places of worship and play. Have not our black young people the right to say, both in school and outside of it, "well, there is a black expression for it, too!" We are a tri-racial people of Black African, White European and Original American stock. We should at least be bi-lingual, if not tri-lingual in our speech.

We need conventional English for the purpose that it serves as a tool for survival in a white dominated world. For our own personal wellbeing, growth and integrity, we need at all times a reasonable opportunity to be ourselves.

3—Finally, our black youth need to learn to be political while they are in school. All of life is politics and formal schooling is a part of life.

Our black youth need to discover that in politics we never burn bridges; for those persons with whom we may earnestly disagree on one day may have the precise resources to save us or to take us where we need to go tomorrow.

A revolutionary uses "all means necessary" for his or her cause. In a deeply significant sense, every black person must work for revolutionary changes in American life both for our own fulfillment and for the in-depth cleansing which our nation needs.

recently appointed to the Lubbock Housing Authority Board. He, too, will contribute something which we all can be proud.

Let us get behind these brothers and encourage them to continue their long and tiring, but rewarding jobs, for the City of Lubbock. Good luck fellows.

There are some petitions going around in our community to be signed by residents of Lubbock. This effort, which is to secure at least 3,800 signatures, in order to call another election for expanding the present city council.

This special drive, sponsored by the El Movimiento Popular, is for the welfare of the entire city of Lubbock. Members of the East Lubbock Business Association (ELBA) are working hand in hand with this effort in order that another election will become a reality.

If you haven't signed one of the petitions, please contact a member of ELBA or call Jorge Moreno at 762-3437. Let us all get behind this important effort. It is time for all blacks and browns to work for the same cause in the City of Lubbock.

Get your thing together and sign the petition. It'll only take a few minutes to help a cause which will help you, your family and the entire community.

This Sunday morning, members of Bethel A.M.E. Church will honor a lady who has given forty-four years of her life as an active member and musician of this congregation. Her kindness, talents and concern has played an important role in growth of Bethel A.M.E. Church.

It would be a kind gesture for the friends of Mrs. Lillian C. Struggs to come out and share a program in her honor on Sunday morning at 11 a.m. Mrs. Struggs, as many of you know, is lady who has many friends and well wishers. Let's be among the crowd on Sunday morning.

Congratulations to you, Mrs. Lillian C. Struggs. May God forever bless you in many years to come.

Brother Jack Gailey, Jr., owner of Triway Grocery Store, gave an interesting way to stop inflation the other day. I thought I'd share it with you. It goes like this: "First, read the 4th chapter of Philipians and do the following: (1) Trust in the Lord (2) help one another (3) rejoice in the Lord (4) moderation (use wisdom) (5) refuse to worry (6) think on Godly things (7) learn to be content, and (8) live one day at a time."

Thanks, Brother Gailey, for sharing this with us.

Police Beat

Assault

A fourteen year old boy, Henry Lee Goodwyn, 1316 E. 16th Street, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital one night last week after a stabbing at the Pleasure Gardens. According to the police report, the young fellow was apparently cut on the left upper part of his arm with a pocket knife.

Goodwyn told police that he and another young fellow, age 14, were playing around and the other boy got mad and cut him.

He did know where the fellow who cut him went to school, but was unable to give the address of the youth.

Goodwyn was released from the hospital after receiving four stitches from the cut.

Criminal Mischief

Robert Rockey, 711 Hub Homes, reported to Lubbock police that he saw four young men breaking a window at the back door of 709 Hub Homes one night last week. He told police that he chased the fellows away before they had an opportunity to gain entry to the building.

The building is being rented by the Trinity Baptist Church. After careful investigation, it was learned that the youth did not break into it.

House Burglary

Roscoe Adams, 1814 East Colgate Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown broke into his house while he was away one day last week. Entry was apparently gained through a sliding door at the rear of his house.

After gaining entry, persons unknown took an eight track tape player, a black set of headphones, two 18 inch by 24 inch speakers. These items were valued at approximately $300.

There was between $25 and $50 worth of damage to the door of the house.

House Burglary

A hungry burglar took advantage of Stella Talley, 1916 East Cornell Avenue, one day last week. She reported to Lubbock police that someone broke into her house one day last week and took a spoon and ate some chocolate cake that was on the kitchen cabinet.

Nothing was missing, according to Sister Talley, but her favorite chocolate cake.

Entry was apparently gained through a rear bedroom window. Drawers in the kitchen were thrown over the floor.

Can this type of burglary be a sign of the times?

House Burglary

Lucille Williams, 2703 East 10th Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown entered her house one day last week through the bathroom.

Taken from the house, according to the police report, was a grandfather clock valued at $20.

Unknown persons attempted to carry a color television set, but only carried it from the living room to the kitchen. The burglars apparently left through the back door.

Lubbock Lions Club Pancake Festival Scheduled to Unfold Here Saturday

Lubbock Lions, largest Lions Club in the U.S., will hold its 23rd annual Pancake Festival, Saturday, February 8, in the Municipal Coliseum. Over 25,000 people are expected to attend. They will consume thousands of pancakes served up by a large force of Lions Club members and their wives.

Started in 1953, the Pancake Festival annually raises money for a number of Lions supported youth activities including the Lions Club Cripple Children's summer camp in Kerrville, Lubbock Council of Campfire Girls, youth football and baseball plus funds for Meals on Wheels, eyeglasses and eyecare for those in need and similar programs.

The festival begins at 7 a.m. and continues through to 8 p.m. All day live entertainment will feature local talent, singing groups, and the famous Lions Club Klown Corps, local members who were trained by the professional clown, George Atwood.

Advanced ticket sales are underway and the club expects to sell over 25,000 tickets at a dollar each. Tickets will also be on sale at the door the day of the festival.

Overall chairman for the event is Ron Betenbough. Jess Stinson and Carl Looney are serving as co-chairmen. Dozens of special committees will handle the details of serving, mixing batter, cooking, decorating and cleaning up after the event.

Sausage, bacon, milk, coffee and butter will be served along with the panckaes.

A fourth place winner in state forsenic, she used the 26th chapter of Probervs, verses 10-12 as her background. She concluded her message to the attentive audience by saying that a woman has three roles to play, namely: good mother, good citizen and career lady.

A panel, moderated by Dr. Vivian Davis, spoke on several aspects of the role of the black woman. Those participants were Mmes, Clara Scott, Joan Crawford, Joan Y. Ervin, and Jewel Love. Each lady, in their own way, made it known that the home is the first priority of the woman. Mrs. Clara Scott said: "Love does more good than anything."

Among the community activities Mrs. Jones has been involved include the Lutheran Committee for Community Action, the Advisory Board for the East Lubbock Senior Citizens, the

Some of the post's accomplishments include scholarship funding, sponsoring a boy and girl at the American Legion State Camp annually, and contributing $1,000 to the Boys Ranch of Lubbock.

Other nominees for the awards were Mrs. Willie Mae Washington, Mrs. Bernice Kelly, Mrs. Theresa Wheatley, Mrs. Sentelle Lyons, Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin, Mrs. James Emma Knighten, Mrs. Maunita Terrell and Mrs. Beulah Winters.

Lena Sheffield and Mrs. Mildred Lusk. Mrs. Dorothy Kinner presented each nominee a certificate of appreciation for their service to the community.

Rev. A.L. Davis, pastor of the Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Miss Vivian Thomas, guest artist, sang three songs, "What A Beautiful City", "Impossible Dream", and "The Way We Were". She was accompanied by Noble Candida, choral director at Levelland High School.

Mrs. Luella Scott, mistress of ceremonies and president of the local chapter, said: "We are deeply grateful for those of you who worked in behalf of this program. Mrs. Jimmie Demerson Honored

Mesdames Etta Tucker, Eva Lois Love and Mattie Lee Smart were co-hostesses to a surprise party Sunday, January 19, 1975, honoring Mrs. Jimmie Demerson. The lovely home of Eva Lois, 3301 East 16th Street, was the scene of the affair.

Mrs. Tucker was responsible for getting Jimmie to the site for the party. As she entered the room, the following friends, all members of the Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church, joined in singing "Happy Birthday, dear Jimmie", Mesdames Yesletta "Hess" Adams, Mable Bunton, Mattie Denson, Mattie Mae Smith, Anne Watley, Lucille Richards, Desma Moore, Erma Meredith and mother, Daisy Daniels, Betty Thomas and Helen Moore.

Saturday, January 18, was the date of her natal day, but Sunday was a more appropriate time for the occasion. Mrs. Demerson was elated about the beautiful gifts she received, but the love expressed fellowship was best of all.

Refreshments were served and each one had a very enjoyable get together. They hoped for Jimmie many more birthdays to come. Did she tell her age? You guess?

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Friends, I'm not about to concede the basketball championship to Texas A&M, despite the fact that the Aggies do appear, off their performance against Tech, to be the best team. The Aggies have a head start, but the race has a long way to go.

Anything can happen in this league and all you have to do is remember the jump the Raiders got a year ago, only to fall by the wayside in the latter stages of the race.

Meanwhile, the Raiders plod along on an aimless course—lose a game, win one; lose a game, win one. The time has come for them to start winning consistently, or they won't be in the race.

Still, it must be considered that they've won two of three road games, which is a must if you are to win the title. And the loss at home, to A&M, was against the hottest team in the conference. Starting right now, though, it is imperative that they win.

Analysis of the Raider team isn't encouraging. Earlier in the season, a visiting writer, who knows his basketball, remarked that, while Tech won, it would have trouble with guard play such as he had observed.

He put his finger on a major problem. The guards have not been getting the job done. They have not been running the offense well and they have not been scoring. It's a trouble spot.

Gerald Myers is concerned about the position, but he has nowhere to turn. Steve Dunn and Keith Kitchens are not scoring and they have had too many turnovers. Phil Bailey is inconsistent. Given time, he's a good outside shooter. Hurried, he's not good.

So the scoring largely has fallen back on Rick Bullock and William Johnson, with help from Bailey or Grady Newton, occasionally. Rudy Liggins contributes once in a while.

So, you have a team that is limited in balanced firepower. There are no Del Ray Mounts, Dub Malaises, Greg Lowerys or, even, Gerald Myers on this Tech squad. And it's tough to win without the support that the guards give.

If Bullock or Johnson is off, Tech is in serious trouble. So far both have done yeoman work, but opposing teams know that they represent the heart of the attack and they double team them. That they do as well as they do is tribute to them.

Despite the gloomy analysis, A&M didn't run away and hide from Tech. Indeed, until a three point play gave the Aggies a 4 point lead, it was anybody's game.

Had Tech managed to get a three or four point bulge, the game might well have gone to the Raiders. And they lost to a good Arkansas team in the hills, where this year it will be tough for any team to beat the Razorbacks.

Still, off their pre-conference showing, Tech has a better team than shows up in the 2-2 league standings. With a few less mistakes and a little more firepower, Tech could be 4-0.

No, there is still a lot of basketball left and the Raiders can still make a run at the title. The situation they find themselves in is critical, but it's not hopeless. They need to get more aggressive and have one or two players come through. Given that, they should be in good shape.

Spring training at Tech is getting closer and it should be interesting, regardless of what Steve Sloan and crew manages in the way of freshman recruits. There's a lot of material left over from last year's squad and Tech could stand a less than phenomenal recruiting campaign.

Indeed, coming in as late as he did, it would be remarkable if Steve managed an outstanding crop of rookies. He has, though, a pretty good nucleus with which to operate next year.

Many thought, after viewing the Peach Bowl, that Tech had the best material, Vanderbilt had the best team. It was a standoff, for which you probably have to credit the players.

So, regardless of recruiting, Tech has a good supply of experienced players, plus some outstanding red shirts and promising freshmen. The spring training campaign will give Sloan a good chance to put things together.

The Roundup—Dr. J. William Davis, "father" of the Letter of Intent, may have to undergo open heart surgery, if he hasn't already. . . It's no secret, but Jackie Sullivan, former Lubbock Hubber manager, is going to run for sheriff. . . The Tech-Aggie game drew writers from Dallas and Fort Worth, a tribute to the importance of the game. . . South of here hunters are griping about the bird shooting this season. . . Most West Texas lakes are full and there still is a lot of activity. Hubbard Creek remains one of the hottest spots. . . Do you remember when there were roses blooming in Tech's football stadium? And you had to wear leather pants to avoid getting splinters? You do? Getting old, aren't you! . . . And congratulations to Lawrence Williams and Calvin Jones on being Tech's only pro draft picks.

We had Mrs. Bennie Bailey and children along with many others visiting with us.

Again we wish to say thank you for your continuous support.

The Black Experience: The controversial idea of creating the W.E.B. DuBois Institute for Afro - American Research at Harvard, first proposed five years ago, has finally received the go-ahead, according to bellringers in that area. Black visiting professor of business administration, Andrew F. Brimmer, who heads the twelve member Advisory Board says he sees the institute as "parallel to the department of Afro - American studies but free-standing in its own right." The Afro - American department at Harvard fears that the creation of a separate black - studies body might mean the end of its own existence, according to our sources.

In the three months that Brimmer, PhD 57 (Harvard) has been professor of Business Administration at Harvard, thirty leading corporations have asked him to join their boards. He is still fresh from the "exhilarating experience" of eight and a half years on the Federal Reserve Board, a position he owes in part to a close relationship with President Johnson.

The Institute will have four main goals: (1) to provide funds to support the research of existing scholars, (2) to provide stipends for "advanced graduate students who have completed their course requirements and are working on dissertations relevant to the interests of the institute", (3) to encourage the development of library resources to support research, and (4) to establish a scholarly journal. The projected annual budget is $320,000, of which $75,000 is expected to come from University sources.

The proposal declares that there is "an acute shortage of trained scholars from minority groups and insufficient fund of first rate scholarship concerning the history, cultural traditions, and contemporary problems of racial minorities." A study this year of minority enrollment in Ph.D programs showed that "less than 3 percent were black". Professors from minority groups typically make up a much smaller percentage of the faculty of most universities and colleges than the corresponding proportions of minorities in the total student body, states the report.

Did the Supreme Court of the United States cop out when it declined to rule in the DeFunis case last spring? is the question posed by one bellringer. Marco DeFunis, a white applicant to the University of Washington Law School, had been rejected by the school even though his academic record was plainly superior to the records of several successful minority group members.

After bringing suit against the school, DeFunis was ordered admitted by a lower court. This decision was later overturned, but DeFunis was allowed to complete his studies. Meanwhile, his case was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court made no judgement on the case and its attendant questions of quotas, affirmative action and complicated trade - offs between objective standards and social justice. Instead, it ruled that DeFunis imminent graduation made the case moot.

Professors David L. Kirp (Berkeley) and Mark Yudof (Texas) believe the court's passivity may have bought valuable time for society to study the complex issue raised by the DeFunis Case. They hope this country's institutions will experiment with alternative plans for including more minority group members, without upsetting the balance of fair admissions and hiring policies.

Boley, Oklahoma: Leaders here would like to have a "Boley" edition of the West Texas Times so that the story of the past 70 years of history of the largest all -black town in the U.S.A. could be told. Anyway, some of the leaders have promised to get behind a subscription drive for W.T.T. and we will back them 100 percent. Booker T. Washington often commented on the historic founding and growth of Boley and many still think that the next 70 years of Boley will be the greatest. Mayor Theodore McCormick invites communications from leaders of black capitalism over America. Zip code of Boley is 74829. Until later, Peace.

Remember the sick and shut in members. Those on the sick list this week include Sister Colquitt, Sister Callie Cato, Brother U. Beaty, Sister Marie Hibler, Linda Reaty, and Sister Gaspie.
