

GOP Senators Urge Nixon OK of Wage Bill

Washington—(NBNS)—Five Republican Senators have asked the President to sign the minimum wage bill when it comes to his desk later this month in an effort to help already low-paid workers, who are hard hit by the nation's galloping inflation rates.

Congressional leaders have already conceded that they will be hard pressed to override a Presidential veto of the bill, which will be sent to the White House in late August.

The wage bill, which will increase the hourly minimum to $2.20 from the present $1.60, is expected to bring an additional seven million workers under the wage and hour coverage. The President had earlier said he objected to several of the bill's provisions.

The GOP senators said the hikes would "barely enable them to make up for increases in the cost of living since 1966, the last time the minimum wage was increased."

"A veto," the letter said, "might even mean an indefinite delay in providing millions of low-income, working Americans, whose living standards have been curtailed because of inflation, the improvements in the minimum wage law necessary to enable them to provide themselves and their families with the bare essentials of life."

The signers of the letter were Jacob Javits of New York, Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Edward Brooks of Massachusetts, Clifford Case of New Jersey and Charles Percy of Illinois.

Seven Indicted in D.C. Muslim Killings

Washington—(NBNS)—Seven men, all from Philadelphia, were indicted last week, for the murder of two men and five children at the Hanafi Muslim headquarters last January. The headquarters had been donated by professional basketball star Kareem Abdul Jabbar.

The seven, identified as John W. Clark, William Christian, James Price, Ronald Harvey, John Griffin, Theodore Moody, and Jeremy Sinclair, were charged with seven counts of premeditated murder, four counts of armed robbery, and three counts of assault with intent to kill.

Although police have tried to claim that the murders were the result of bitter feelings between members of Eliza Muhammed's Nation of Islam, and the more traditional Hanafi group, none of the seven defendants has been connected with Mr. Muhammed's group.

Ronald Harvey was indicted this past June for the murder of Major B. Coxson, a flamboyant Black "entrepreneur", sometimes identified with the rackets.

Theodore Moody was arrested by Philadelphia police in February as a suspect in a mass rape and robbery therein which a gun that was stolen was found near the scene of the Hanafi murders.

It is alleged that armed with pistols and shotguns, the men arrived in Washington on January 17, and checked into two rooms rented by Clark at the Downtown Motel.

On January 18, the men are supposed to have held a meeting at the motel and then left for the Hanafi house. That afternoon, the indictment says, the men entered the house, killed seven members of the Hanafi

Abernathy Changes Mind—Will Stay as Prexy Of Southern Christian Leadership Conference

Indianapolis—(NBNS)—With what has been described in some reports as "evangelistic fervor", several hundred delegates gathered in St. John's Baptist Church for the annual meeting of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, shouted approval when Rev. Abernathy announced in his speech before the body that he intended to continue as SCLC president.

"I feel now that I have not only a mandate from Martin, a mandate from God, but a mandate from Black America," Abernathy said. "Let me assure you that I accept this challenge and this responsibility," he continued.

Abernathy had submitted his resignation on July 9, but a twelve hour, closed door, meeting with SCLC's Board of Directors resulted in a decision by the board to reject his resignation.

Abernathy had blamed SCLC's financial difficulties his obligation to his church, and lack of support from the Black middle class, as reasons for his resignation. The board, however, has decided to appoint a full time executive director and a

IN APPRECIATION—A pewter beer mug was the appropriate award as the Jos Schlitz Brewing Company cited the executive director of the National Urban League, Vernon Jordan (right), for his leadership. The presentation was made by E.F. Scoutten (left), Schlitz vice president-industrial relations, and Joe Nelson, the company's director of minority affairs, at a Schlitz reception honoring Jordan during the Urban League's national convention in Washington, D.C.

Black Doctors Urged To Political Action

New York—(NBNS)—If the gains and progress made in the care of the nation's minorities and poor are to be maintained, the National Medical Association, the professional organization of the country's more than 6,000 black doctors, must take an active role in national politics.

Dr. Paul Batalden, an assistant surgeon general who is director of the Federal Bureau of Community Health Services, addressed the House of Delegates of the 78th Annual Convention and Scientific Assembly of the NMA here.

According to Dr. Batalden, when group, and then waited for Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, the leader of the Muslim group, to return.

When Khaalis returned home, he found the front door to the house locked and saw four men running from the house when he reached the rear of the building. He said he chased the men and one of them fired a shot at him.

The man left behind two pistols and a sawed off shotgun which police say they traced to Philadelphia.

Four of the five children in the house were drowned in a bathtub, and the other child and two men were shot to death. Hamaas's wife and daughter were also shot, but they recovered from their wounds.

Although Khaalis blamed the rival "Black Muslims", they have consistently denied the charges.

attention is placed on financing health care, there is a danger that programs designed for the poor and supported by groups like the NMA might not survive. "The NMA must now take clear steps to insure that this involvement be translated into public policy," he said.

National infant mortality, which affects poor people most severely, has dropped 26% in the last 10 years, and most of that decrease came within the last five years, said Dr. Batalden, whose bureau includes maternal and child health centers, the National Health Service Corps, which sends doctors into poor areas, and the neighborhood family care programs that were originally part of the Federal anti-poverty program.

These programs provide much of the health services presently available in black and poor communities.

Rep. Andrew Young, Democrat of Georgia, also told the black physicians that the complexity and importance of issues today make it necessary for them to take an active leadership role.

As an example of what a doctor could do, Rep. Young mentioned a bill presently before Congress that would allow persons to register to vote by mailing postcards. "There is no reason in the world why doctors could not keep the postcards in their waiting rooms to turn every doctor's office into a voter registration station," Young said.

The conference, devoted almost exclusively to examining health issues that directly affect blacks, introduced a new component in the shape of a community program that brings in lay persons interested in health matters to present resolutions to the governing body of the organization.

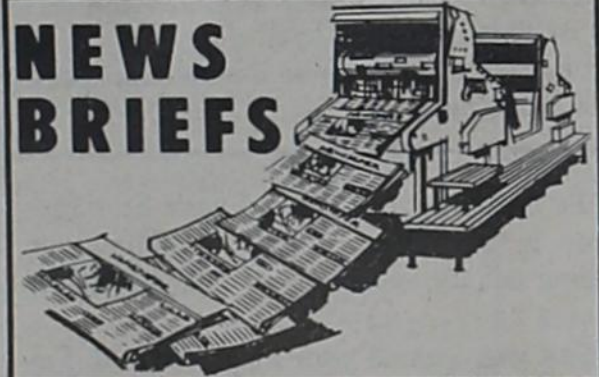

The purpose is to incorporate into policy decision made by the doctors, some pertinent ideas from the communities they serve.

concoct some of the organizations internal differences of opinion.

More full time staff will be hired by the organization, and five regional offices will be set up around the country. Each will be under a vice president and a regional director, thus relieving Abernathy of some of the administrative details that has seem to plague him.

Mr. Lowery stated that, "although there are other capable, dedicated persons who could accept the role of president, it is our firm conviction at this moment in history that Ralph David Abernathy is the man for the job."

Among the dignitaries attending the conference were D.C. Delegate Walter Fauntroy, Rep. Andres Young (D-Ga.), and Vernon Jordan, Executive Director of the Urban League.

Private Schools Eligible For Subsidized Lunch Plan

Hartford—(NBNS)—Regulations adopted by the Connecticut Board of Education last week enables private, nonprofit schools to take part in subsidized lunch programs. The aim of the program is to provide balanced meals to needy pupils outside of the public school system.

Newburgh Busing Plan Rejected

Newburgh, N.Y.—(NBNS)—A school integration proposal by state Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist was unanimously rejected by the Newburgh City Board of Education last week.

Board members, most of whom are opposed to busing, claimed that they had not been consulted in preparation of the plan.

Child Support Payments Can't Prevent Welfare Assistance

Hartford—(NBNS)—Child support payments made by a former husband may not be deducted from a mother's welfare check a Connecticut Circuit Court has ruled.

The ruling came in a case involving $25 a week payment to Theresa Bourque of Willimantic, who was receiving about $65 a week in welfare aid.

Black Farmers and Truckers Form Organization In Georgia

N.Y.—(NBNS)—Farmers from Lee County, south of Macon, and drivers of the Independent Truckers League of New York teamed up last week to by-pass middlemen, and brought 60 tons of fresh fruit and vegetables into the city for a two day sale. They said they were especially interested in selling to low income and middle income food cooperatives.

And Still No Black Firemen With the City of Lubbock

Here it is nearly September and there are no blacks on the Lubbock Fire Department. This matter has been brought to the attention of Fire Chief Hershiel Sharp and other officials in City Hall in the past. Not only has this newspaper addressed itself to this problem, but has suggested to the Fire Chief that some type of public relation program be initiated so younger blacks would be more informed about opportunities in this city department.

During the month of July of this year (July 17), the largest rookie class ever for the Lubbock Fire Department received their basic firefighting certificates with no blacks among the group.

It is always encouraging to see any Lubbock man given an opportunity to upgrade himself in city government. What is rather disturbing to this newspaper is when someone from outside the city limits is given an opportunity to become a fireman and no blacks or even Mexican Americans were among those being given firefighting certificates.

Since the Fire Chief will not act on this problem, the Mayor and City Council should make a point to see exactly what the problem is that no blacks are represented in this department. There has to be some type of a problem since blacks are absent from the Lubbock Fire Department.

There are many young black men in our community who would meet the requirements of becoming a firefighter. There are young black men who are veterans of the South Vietnam Conflict who would qualify for such an opportunity if it presented itself.

Not only are there young men who are qualified, there are young black high school students who could be an asset to this type of profession if the opportunity presented itself after graduation.

There needs to be some type of a campaign started from concerned citizens about this shortcoming in our city government. Churches, civic and social organizations should let the City Council and Mayor know that we would like to see something done about the lack of blacks in the Lubbock Fire Department. It doesn't make any sense for black people to continue to be left out of opportunities in city jobs when we contribute tax money to operate the city of Lubbock.

There is no need for us to continue to hear excuses from people in the Fire Department. There must, at least, be some effort on the part of those persons who can help change the situation.

There are black men in Lubbock who could successfully complete 480 classroom hours of training in 12 weeks just as those 16 fellows did. Let's quit fooling ourselves and start giving everyone an opportunity to become a part of our city. We are sure that the citizens will not continue to fall for the idea that there are "no blacks qualified for the fireman position". Nor will blacks continue to fall for the idea that there aren't any blacks who would like to become firemen. After all being a fireman is a responsible position which helps to protect the lives of our community.

The West Texas Times would encourage the Mayor and City Council to look into this matter now. There's no need for the Lubbock Fire Department to not have any black firemen.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

I wonder when's the last time many of you have stopped to look around the black community in the City of Lubbock? It's in a bad situation and there's nothing being done about it. It's time for us to realize that there are some things we can do in order to upgrade the area.

In looking at one of the areas in East Lubbock, the area with Avenue A as the west boundary; the canyon on the east; East 19th Street on the north and East 34th Street as its southern boundary. There are approximately 650 vacant lots which are owned by Urban Renewal. With all of this earth not being developed, it would appear as

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

NIXON IN FIGHTING MOOD

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Sources close to President Nixon say he is in a fighting mood. More and more, his anger is directed at Congress which has been using Watergate to whittle away his powers.

The President has told associates that he intends to hold his ground against Congress. He will order his subordinates to hit back at Congress. He still believes that in politics as in war, the best defense is an offense.

Several weeks ago, he ordered his new counsel Fred Buzhardt to prepare countercharges against the Democrats. Buzhardt investigated charges, for example, that George McGovern's campaign aides bribed black voters three dollars a head in some states. This turned out to be false; the money was spent legitimately to register black voters.

Buzhardt inquired into other reports that the late President Lyndon Johnson carted off truckloads of White House property, including 50 TV sets, when he left the White House. The reports, however, could not be verified.

President Nixon, therefore, has pretty much given up the idea of blasting back at the Democrats with countercharges. Instead, he will take the offensive against Congress. He will accuse Congress of using Watergate irresponsibly to undermine the presidency.

He will hold Congress responsible for anything that may happen in Cambodia because of the congressionally ordered bomb halt. He will also try to blame Congress for high prices and consumer shortages.

Richard Nixon, apparently, hasn't changed his combative nature.

Prices and Politics: White House sources claim that President Nixon ignored the advice of his economic advisers and tried to play politics with prices. This has resulted in an economic squeeze which will send the prices of food, clothing, gasoline and home heating skyrocketing this fall. Here's what happened:

The President's voluntary economic controls, under Phase III, failed to hold down consumer prices. So the President, in a political panic, clamped down a 60-day price freeze.

His top economic advisers, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and chief economic adviser Herb Stein, warned the President not to do it. They pointed out that demand exceeded supply and predicted, therefore, that the consumer clamor would create shortages and black markets.

The warning was right. The price freeze forced bakeries to go out of business, poultry producers to kill their baby chicks and ranchers to stop butchering their though something could be done about upgrading our effort.

Many of us have shied away from building our homes or even businesses in this particular area because our property would decline. This is true if we don't continue to add to what is around us. There's no such thing as our property going down if we keep developing the area ourselves. With all the vacant lots in our community, surely, our property would incline if we would get behind it and develop it.

There are too many of us in this area with all kinds of resources in our community which could help our total situation. This think we call "integration" has confused our minds until we have forgotten how to think. If we'd just look around us and really think, we'll discover that we're sitting on something which could better all of our lots.

There are churches and schools in this area which could enhance our efforts if a workable plan is put together by those of us who would like to see something developed in our community. Although we are concerned about our community, we must speak loud and clear and work together for something we all can be proud.

As It See It, too many of us are hung up on the wrong values in life. I must admit, however, that one must choose his or her value system. As black people, if we would re-direct our values, a great deal of things would happen in the East Lubbock community. It's time to quit putting our ownself down and start doing something about our present situation in the East Lubbock community.

Unless we act in a positive manner, we will lose that little we have in the East Lubbock community. I don't think there are many of us who would completely turn our backs on opportunities that exist. There are so many of them (opportunities) if we would only look at the situation in our area.

I was visiting Ella Iles Elementary School last Friday morning when one of the officials told me that the enrollment of the elementary school "appears to be down" as compared to last year this time. This is an omen that we are drying up in this part of Lubbock unless we start doing something about it now.

If you haven't paid close attention to what is happening in the East Lubbock community, then take a few minutes of your time and look around you. You'll be surprised on what you see. I don't care how much you attribute this "integration", if you are a Negro, black, or colored, there are some things you want for yourself. This is only cattle. This increased the shortages, leaving the demand greater and the supply smaller.

Now the President has been forced to lift the lid off prices. The more he lifts, the higher prices will shoot out of control. Perhaps it proves that economists know more than politicians about economics.

High Cost of Homes: The news that the government has spent nearly $10 million on President Nixon's homes came at a bad time. Never has housing been so expensive for the President's homes in California and Florida. Yet the average American can't afford a new home for himself.

Land prices have been multiplying across the country. The cost of lumber, wall board and other basic housing materials has shot up more than 30 per cent in the past year.

Worst of all are the interest rates, which have now hit a record high. This has added thousands of dollars to the costs of most homes. The home builders report that every time the interest rate goes up another percentage point, it drives 3.5 million families out of the housing market.

All of this has created a housing crisis. A study shows that a $6,000, 1948-model home in New York City's Levittown is now selling for $40,000. In the Miami area, homes that sold for $16,000 as late as 1966 are now going for $42,000. In Chicago, homes that cost $21,000 in 1962 are now on the market for $43,000. And in Los Angeles, the cost of homes has jumped almost $5,000 in the past six months.

As a result, millions of Americans have given up the dream of better housing at the same time that they find out the President has been squandering the taxpayers' money on his own homes.

Kissinger and Chou: Foreign policy czar Henry Kissinger is preparing for another round of talks with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai. Sparring with Chou has become Kissinger's favorite diplomatic sport. Kissinger has found the Chinese leader to be the most stimulating diplomatic antagonist he has met.

On Kissinger's first mission to Peking, for example, he delivered a carefully prepared speech. He employed all his diplomatic skill to say just the right things. He wound up by appealing for better understanding between the two countries. It was his hope, he said, that China would become less mysterious to Americans.

Chou ignored all the diplomatic points Kissinger had made and launched into a philosophical discussion of the word "mysterious". The two men exchanged thoughts and got to know one another. Then they got down to diplomatic negotiations.

Now Kissinger looks forward to his long late-night discussions with Chou En-lai.

Kissinger would like the Chinese premier to visit the White House. But the invitation isn't likely to be accepted. Chou has recently repeated to visitors that he won't go to the United States as long as Chian Kai-shek has an embassy in Washington.

And Kissinger has found Chou to be a man who speaks softly but means what he says.

human nature to be proud of yourself and your heritage. What disturbs me is that we are forever hiding our heritage and copping out for some psuedo-image that we really ain't.

Think about it and look around your neighborhood. I'm sure you'll be surprised. If you look hard enough and be really objective, you'll find that the entire area is no better than Green-Fair Manor.

It's quite interesting on how some of us are being taken by the man. Just recently, a chicken stand, Jumbo's on Quirt Avenue, was opened in our community. Since that time, black brothers and sisters have kept the place busy by purchasing some of the chicken specials sold by this establishment.

I talked with the owner of this establishment about advertising in this newspaper, and he told me that he did not want to advertise. Of course this is his business to run the way he deems it necessary to make a profit. This is good business. But on the other hand, none of the money made from chicken being eaten by brothers and sisters is spent in your newspaper The West Texas Times.

On the other hand, W.H. Britt, owner of the Soul Patro Chicken Shack at 912 Idalou Highway, opened up this business several months before the other establishment, and the advertising in this newspaper made it possible for all of us to have an opportunity to become involved in the Soul Patro Chicken Shack.

The other business has even gone as far as hiring young black brothers and sisters to further lure you to buy his product, and hundreds of you have fallen for the game. If you know anything about marketing, you'll understand what is happening to you who are purchasing chicken there.

I don't intend to tell anyone how to spend their money. All I want you to know is that if a man from across town comes over here and makes money off you, without returning any of it (asides from a few small salaries), I just want to inform you. If you are really concerned about helping a brother in business, then give the Soul Patro Chicken People a helping hand.

If you don't wake up, you'll be sorry. Why not help the Britts, they're one of us who are willing to do business as it should be done. If you have any suggestions about helping the Soul Patro Chicken Shack, why not talk to Mr. and Mrs. Britt, that's what it is all about, so we all can "get over."

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Great is the hope and high are the expectations in the hearts of Texas Tech fans that this is the year, The Year. This is the year that Texas' stranglehold on football will be broken.

The hope is that the Double Nelson will be broken by the Raiders, not A&M, or SMU, or Arkansas, but by Tech. It's been five long years of domination and even the most ardent Texas fan must be thinking that just maybe this is too long—maybe.

It could be, too, for the Raiders appear, on paper at least, to have the makings of a championship team. There is strength in the backfield, offensively and defensively. There is a sounder attack. And the Raiders gained added experience with a Sun Bowl game.

Still, the answer lies in the offensive and defensive lines and, before a pad is donned in anger, it must be conceded that the Tech-Texas game comes too early for the Raiders.

As usual, Texas suffered losses by graduation and this helps to raise hopes. It could be that the Longhorns won't be able to rebuild anymore quickly and that they could be taken early.

Reports from Austin last spring tend to dash such hopes. It was said that Texas had one of its best spring drills in history, that this could be the strongest Texas team in years, the strongest since the Horns rolled over Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

The Horns appear to have suitable replacements at quarterback, where there are two men vying. Jerry Sisemore could well have been the biggest loss and even he, apparently will be replaced by strength. Keep an eye on Rick Thurman, the probable successor.

Texas always loses players. By the same token, the big state school always seems to be able to replace the losses with new men that soon are just as good as, and sometimes better than, their predecessors.

Tech, as last year, will get a week's jump on UT and, like 1972, will have played two games to Texas' one when they clash. By all odds, this should give the Raiders a much better chance.

I saw Texas' opener last year and, on the basis of mistakes and lack of timing, figured Tech had a good chance to win. But Texas, in that short week, corrected its errors. It won out here, 25-20, although a little gambling, instead of four field goals, might have turned the game around. We'll never know, though, will we?

It's not true that, if Texas wins the Southwest Conference for the sixth straight year and goes to the Jan. 1 bowl game in Dallas for the sixth straight time, they'll change the name of the game to the "Orange" Bowl.

Generally speaking, most conference fans pay the greatest amount of attention to only two races—football and basketball. Therefore, they tend to overlook how Texas has become dominant.

Conference schools compete for eight titles. In the 1972-73 campaigns, Texas won five of the eight—football, baseball, track, cross country, golf. Tech broke the domination in basketball and SMU grabbed off the tennis and swimming crowns.

In this day of high meat prices and scarce meat, fish has become a popular substitute, especially if you've caught your own. So try this recipe to save money:

1 pound fresh fish fillets; 1 can cream of celery soup; 1 package (10 oz.) of thawed frozen peas; one 2 oz. mushroom stems and pieces, undrained; 1/2 teaspoon onion salt; three cups of corn chips.
Cut fish into one-inch pieces. Combine soup, peas, mushrooms and onion salt in saucepan. Stir. Heat until bubbly. Stir in fish.
Spread two cups of corn chips over shallow 1 1/2 quart casserole bottom. Spoon fish mixture over chips. Stand remaining chips around edge of casserole. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes, or until hot and bubbly and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. This makes four servings.

The deer season is not far off and hunters, who haven't made lease arrangements, may be out of luck. But so may many who have leases.

The Parks and Wildlife Department reports that because ranges are in such good shape, hunting may suffer. Deer don't have to move around much and, after a little shooting, they don't move in the daytime. Thus, deer hunters may find the shooting not so good this fall.

Mrs. Hobdy Returns from European Holiday

Mrs. Willie Myrtle Hobdy has just recently returned from Europe where she spent six lovely weeks with her daughter, Marilyn Young and family.

While visiting with the Youngs, she enjoyed many memorable events. During her first week, she visited London where she had a delightful time shopping and seeing all of the sights in London. While in London, she visited Buckingham Palace where she saw the "changing of the guards."

Mrs. Hobdy visited two American Air Force Bases while in England. She visited old English Churches in which she was able to do some Brass Rubbing.

Mrs. Hobdy visited some antique shops in which she saw furniture that had once been owned by Queen Victoria. With her son-in-law, daughter and granddaughter, she spent two days along the seaside visiting Southend-on-Sea and "Walton-on-the-Naze."

Mrs. Hobdy had a surprise, aside to her visit to England, when her son-in-law gave her a round-trip ticket from London to Paris. She and her daughter, Marilyn, spent three days in Paris, France.

While in Paris, she visited the Eiffel Tower as well as enjoying all the other wonderful sights in Paris. In France, she rode on a French train from Paris to LeTouquet, France. She was able to bring some French perfume back to America as a souvenir.

This trip was made possible by her son-in-law and daughter, S/Sgt. and Mrs. Larry Young, and granddaughter, Larolyn Nicole. They sent her a round trip ticket from Lubbock to London.

"I have an album full of photographs, that I would love to show and talk about," she said.

The sum of wisdom is that time is never lost that is devoted to work.

Grit.
