Nixon to Curb Black Business Programs

Washington—(NBNS)—President Nixon will sharply cutback his program of aid to black businesses with possible emphasis shifting to other minority groups, Fairchild Publications, Inc. reported this week. The news service said John Jenkins, black director of the Commerce Department's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) may be replaced by a Chicano, thus, leading to speculation that the program will be geared to Mexican-Americans, Indians, and Puerto Ricans.

OMBE was begun in 1969 to encourage development of black-owned businesses with federal and private aid. In 1971, the agency was given authority to award contracts and grants and last year its budget totaled $43.6 million. Fairchild said existing programs will continue until present financing expires, but that chances of renewal are slim.

Nixon Aide Challenges Black Press to Help Find Solutions

Washington—(NBNS)—The black press has the primary responsibility of translating the pulse of the black community into an agenda and a program of objectives, one of the highest ranked blacks in the Nixon Administration told the 37 publishers attending the mid-winter workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association.

Stanley Scott, soon to be named officially to replace Robert Brown as special assistant to the President, told the publishers they could count on the Administration working with them in finding the solutions to the problems Black America has identified.

"I want you to call on and work with the Administration in finding solutions," Scott told them. "Not solutions of rhetoric, but solutions that will stand the test of time."

"We don't need any name calling a negative approaches, there is an over-abundance of these among blacks throughout the nation today. We need positive and realistic items on the black agenda."

Scott warned the publishers they and Black America could not afford to wait around four or eight years "until the Administration is no longer at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, hoping for a great crusader."

"We just can't afford that amount of time," he told them. "We can't afford four years, four months or even four days. We've got to get about the business of positively solving some of our problems."

The former newsman who has been serving in the Administration as assistant to Communications Director Herb Klein also pointed out that the black press plays perhaps the most significant role of any institution in the black community.

"If there are real objectives within the black community," he said, "the black press must decipher the rhetoric, tune in the people to a common wave length, and translate to the public, both the internal Something different is on tap for the Lubbock, Texas community when the Dunbar High School coaching staff take on the Kansas City Chiefs, a National Football League football team, Saturday evening, February 10, at 8 p.m. in the Dunbar gym.

This affair is being sponsored by the Dunbar Booster Club. A spokesman of the organization states that an autograph party will be immediately after the game on the basketball court.

Players of the Chiefs who will participate in the evening of basketball are Mike Livingston, 6'3", 212 lbs.; Emmitt Thomas, 6'2", 192 lbs.; Jim Kearney, 6'2", 208 lbs.; Dave Hill, 6'5", 270 lbs.; Bobby Bell, 6'4", 228 lbs.; Buck Buchanan, 6'7", 270 lbs.;

Morris Stroud, 6'10", 260 lbs.; Otis Taylor, 6'3", 215 lbs. and Wilbur Young, 6'6", 285 lbs.

The Chiefs will be coached by Bobby Yarborough.

Players for the Dunbar Coaching staff are Louis Kelley, Jeff Bearden, Jerry Trice, Henry McBrayer, Jack Booe, Van Cypert, Bob Ramos, Conrad Hutchinson and Robert Dunivan.

Tickets for the contest are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Wilson Baldwin is president of the local organization.

On Monday evening, February 12, at 8 p.m. the club will have its regular meeting. Plans will be made for the annual football banquet.

Jury Selected for Rap's Trial

and the external public, what it is all about."

To a large degree, Scott told the overflowing audience at Washington's Mayflower Hotel, the black press will help determine what the pages of history "will tell about black people."

As the black community grows, so will the responsibility of the black press and Scott warned them not to get caught up in political part labels.

"I hope you will remain aloof from political party labels and weight our leaders on their merits, not rhetoric. I know that you will resist that which is not practical and that which is not good for our people even at the price of being unpopular at the moment.

"Your resistance will be based on issues, not party labels. On the man and not the charisma."

He told them he hoped that the black press would begin to rewrite the history of Black Americans by "giving more cause and purpose to our lives."

"By adding some common purpose and some common bond to our lives and by helping us to understand the political process better," the black press will have made a significant contribution, he said.

He also asked the publishers to help him interpret the Administration to Black America. "In a very real sense, as a minority group, and I might add a poor minority group, we cannot afford to not relate to whomever is in the White House."

in State Supreme Court in Manhattan last Thursday.

The jury consisting of 9 whites, 2 blacks and a Puerto Rican was scheduled to hear opening remarks by Brown through two attorneys, William Kuntzler and Howard Moore had won the right for him to act as co-counsel in the trial.

Justice Arnold G. Fraiman had previously allowed the former chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) to act as his own co-counsel to the extent of joining in lawyers' bench conferences. The judge had not, however, allowed him to question prospective jurors about their qualifications.

Upon winning the right of co-counsel in his defense Brown will be permitted to address the jury without subjecting himself to cross examination by the prosecution as he would otherwise have been required to do when taking the stand as a defendant.

Brown and his co-defendants, Samuel Petty and Levi Valentine, are charged with holding up the Red Carpet Lounge in New York on October 16, 1971, and attempting to kill several policemen in a subsequent gun battle.

Brown who suffered severe stomach wounds from policeman's bullets and spent several months in a New York prison hospital, has now apparently completely recovered and seems to be in good health.

Courtroom visitors have remarked upon Brown's serenity and calm manner attributed by some observers to his conversion to the Moslem religion.

Washington Merry-Go-Round by JACK ANDERSON

—Special Report from Washington—

A Pepsi Peace in Mideast?
by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Is Pepsi-Cola quietly at work trying to solve the Middle East crisis?

Pepsi-Cola president Donald Kendall is trying to put Egypt's most influential editor, Muhammad Heykal, together with White House foreign policy czar, Henry Kissinger.

Kendall first suggested to Heykal back in 1971 that he come to Washington for a visit with Kissinger, but Heykal turned down the invitation. Now, we understand, Heykal has expressed interest in meeting Kissinger.

The meeting would be significant. Heykal is known to have the ear of Egypt's President Sadat and could pave the way for a new peace approach in the Middle East.

Kendall, meanwhile, has been able to pull diplomatic strings in Cairo because he is known to be a personal friend of President Nixon. The Egyptian authorities remember that Nixon came to Cairo in 1963 as Kendall's representative pushing Pepsi-Cola.

Avoiding High Noon

Congressional leaders have raised an almighty howl over President Nixon's encroachment on their constitutional authority. We have predicted, however, that the issue would be settled in the backrooms. This prediction already has started to come true.

The settlement of the Vietnam war has increased the President's prestige and has taken some of the steam out of his congressional opposition. He, in turn, has taken Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield aside and has promised to work out a better relationship with Congress.

The President has indicated he will send his top aides, including Henry Kissinger, to give congressional groups regular private briefings. He may also join Congress in supporting, rather than opposing, restrictions on his war-making powers.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott has hinted he would support a war-powers bill. The bill would recognize the President's right to respond to a military emergency. But it would require him to seek a declaration of war from Congress if he wanted to continue military action beyond 30 days.

The White House will take the attitude that the bill isn't aimed against President Nixon but is intended to prevent any future president from conducting undeclared, unlimited wars.

It may be more difficult, however, to settle the great spending battle. President Nixon is still insisting upon his right to impound funds that Congress wants to spend. Congressional leaders claim this violates their constitutional power over the purse.

But this showdown, too, probably will never reach high noon. No issue is too great, if there's any risk of political embarrassment, that politicians of both parties won't settle their differences quietly in the backrooms.

Forked Tongue?

President Nixon in his inaugural address called for more volunteer action and less reliance on the government. Environmental groups had been doing exactly what the President advocated. Yet, astonishingly, the Nixon Administration has been working against citizen participation.

This is documented in an unreleased 600 page government funded study, which offers the first comprehensive look at volunteer environmental groups around the country.

The trouble is that these groups have brought pressure on the government to crack down harder on industries that have been fouling the environment. Apparently, this wasn't the sort of citizen participation the President had in mind in his inaugural remarks. The 300 page report, therefore, has been kept quiet.

However, we have obtained a bootleg copy. It suggests that government agencies, especially the EPA, are "defaulting on their basic responsibility to aggressively promote citizen participation."

The report cites the frequent complaint of environmental groups that government agencies and private industries cooperate in refusing to release basic information that the volunteers need. Instead, government and industry prefer to swamp the volunteers with information that the report describes as "self-serving."

When useful information is squeezed out of the government, it usually is provided at the last possible moment. This is why many environmental groups seem so crisis-oriented. They are unable to act until the last stages of the decision-making process. Meanwhile, citizen groups are forced to oppose projects until they can evaluate them.

The report also criticizes EPA and other federal agencies for the way they conduct environmental hearings. These hearings often provide the only opportunity for volunteers to participate in environmental decisions. Yet the report charges that hearings usually take place after the basic decisions are made.

The report concludes that despite the many achievements of the volunteers, "we often found a feeling of helplessness (and) and deep sense of frustration and distrust that extends to the whole governmental process."

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

It has been several weeks since we had the extremely cold weather which caused many problems to our streets in the Hub City. One can imagine how busy the City of Lubbock is in repairing the many holes in the streets, but must it take so long for the overpass on East 24th Street to be taken care of?

It is rather dangerous for motorists driving to and from the area and crossing this jagged area of an overpass. It's a wonder there hasn't been some type of accident on the narrow overpass.

It would make good sense to place priority on those areas which would need repair immediately. The overpass on East 24th Street would certainly merit that type of priority.

As we look in the same area, those weeds haven't yet been cut which need to be taken care of because of the crossing of young people in the area as they travel to and from Ella Iles Elementary School. I had an opportunity of talking with an official at City Hall last week and he told me that they would take care of this situation. As of now, nothing has been done about the area.

All taxpayers are entitled to the services of the community. If one would look at the way East Lubbock is being treated on repairing the overpass and the tall weeds in that same area, one can't help but wonder. Come on City Hall and let's do something about this area which is quite dangerous for all of us.

Many of you drive in this area and I'm sure that you'll agree with me when I say that it is ridiculous that people have to live through such situations. As citizens, we should be given the same type of consideration as any other citizens in the City of Lubbock. Let's hope that the next few days something will be done about the terrible situation on East 24th Street.

Thought of the Week: "An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie; for an excuse is a lie guarded."

It was quite interesting to read the well written stories about the theme "Lubbock Leads the Way", in the local Avalanche-Journal. We may as well face the facts, the black community was nowhere around in the economic indicators for the City of Lubbock. Perhaps, we are embedded in the aspect of becoming more and more consumers of the community.

Anyway, last months project should have opened up your eyes on what is going on in the City of Lubbock and that we ain't counted when it comes to getting a piece of the pie in the city.

At least we know exactly where we stand in the City of Lubbock. It should show us the direction we must travel in order to become a part of the economic area. It's like the former President disclosed on CBS last week in a program entitled "The Last Interview with LBJ". Former President Johnson made it clear that black people are standing at the bottom of the valley and always looking up to other things in the community.

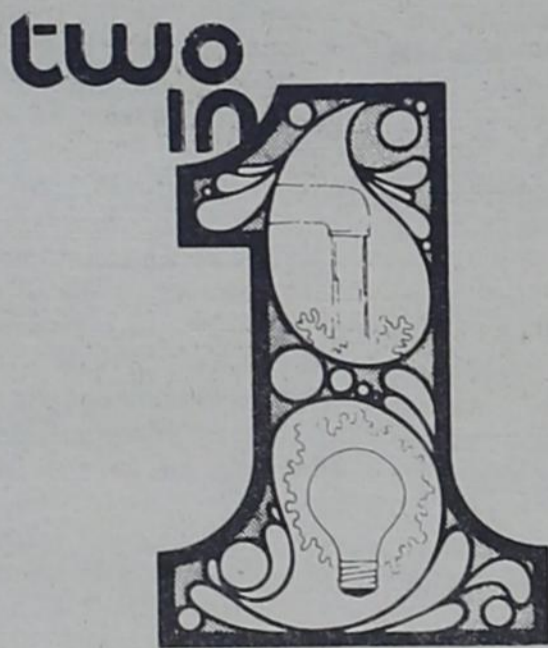

It's good to see that Lubbock Leads the Way. It would be more pleasant situation if we were a part of its leading. You know, we can become a part of the movement if we change our outlook on life and start putting things together which will benefit all of us as well as the City of Lubbock.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

With the weather better suited to golf, tennis or fishing—at the time this is being written—it's hard to turn to basketball or boxing. Boxing? Yep, the sport is alive and well and growing bigger every year in the Hub City.

Weigh-ins were slated last night, with boxing on the program tonight through Saturday at Fair Park Coliseum. Everything indicates that the bouts will be what is known in the vernacular—and publicists' propaganda—as "crowd pleasers."

Over the years since Lubbock gave up its Golden Gloves regional tournament rights it has been tough to maintain the sport. It fell with a thud after cancellation of the regional tourney, made a game effort to hang on and finally has bloomed again.

Much of the credit goes to the Lubbock Police Dept. in general, to John Arnold in particular and to some other men who have toiled long and hard to build up interest.

It wasn't many years ago that Lubbock knew great glory in the ring. The regional tournament drew capacity crowds and capacity fields. Then came the tragic death of Lavern Roach, the Plainview pro, and enthusiasm died. Area high schools swept boxing off their programs. There was no place for local boxers to work out. The local sponsors had to give up the ghost.

Then came a brief renewal under the prodding of a bright former non-com at Reese AFC. He had great visions and went so far as to sponsor a tournament that was supposed to be for the championship of all cotton-raising states. It never quite made it.

At the same time the Jaycees became involved and there was promise of success, what with a workout center and all. But instant riches didn't come and the program died a-borning.

And so it stayed until some four or five years ago, when it was resurrected under the aegis of the Lubbock PD. It began slowly and quietly, but it grew, with an assist from Levelland. Now it is getting back nearer the days of former glory.

Lubbock used to be a hotbed of boxing, amateur variety. The pros never were able to get a foothold, although it wasn't from lack of effort. Pro boxing just wasn't this city's cup of tea.

It may be a while before Lubbock produces the likes of Bill Henderson, Lonnie Balch and J.D. Kirkpatrick. When they were in their prime, they represented the best in their divisions—featherweight, middleweight and light heavyweight respectively.

Bill came out on top. The goodnatured, bighearted "little" man won back to back state titles. Lonnie was the victim of a misplaced nerve that kept him from being a champion. And J.D.? Well, he had everything that it takes to be a champion. But a funny thing happened to him on the way to a state title—and it's just as well forgotten now.

Both Bill and J.D. signed pro contracts, fought as stablemates of Gus Lesnevich, then light heavyweight champion. Both did well before they became disenchanted with the pro life.

I always thought that if J.D. had had Bill's ring meanness, he could have been the world champion. The Lesnevich camp thought so, too. Bill had only friends—until he stepped in a ring and then he became a fighter bent on destruction of his foe.
