Woman Gets Alabama Police Job

Birmingham—(NBNS)—A 29 year old black woman has been named the city's first black policewoman, but she had to lose 35 pounds to qualify for the job.

Betty Jean Gamble, who is only a little over 5 feet 4 inches, had to go down to qualify. "It's a way to help people, and I like working directly with them, especially youngsters. I believe I can do a good service for the community this way."

Pearl Collapses

Las Vegas—(NBNS)—Pearl Bailey, shortly after her first performance at the Tropicana Hotel, collapsed and was rushed to the hospital where she was placed in intensive care.

The 55 year old singer has been plagued with health problems for some time. In 1972, she suffered two heart attacks, but doctors said they felt her condition was more likely fatigue and she would need a complete examination.

Tougaloo Gives B.B. King Honorary Degree

Tougaloo, Miss.—(NBNS)—Soul singer B.B. King received an honorary doctorate of humanities degree from Tougaloo College. That made him the first blues singer to receive an honorary doctorate for his contribution to the world of music.

King was given the award during the 104 year old black colleges annual Founders Day observance by the school's president, Dr. George A. Owens.

King's name was proposed by Miss Lou Holloway who taught a mini-semester course on Nina Simone, Isaac Hayes, Ray Charles and B.B. King. The course was so successful she proposed King's name to the Committee on Honorary Degrees.

Frazier Forms Clinic

Philadelphia—(NBNS)—Former Heavyweight boxing champion, Joe Frazier, is establishing a new clinic to treat sickle cell anemia and other blood diseases that affect blacks. The clinic is named after Frazier's manager, the late Yancey Durham Jr., who has worked for years for the National Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation.

Dunbar-Estacado Clash Saturday

Texas Tech Basketball Team Will Scrimmage at Dunbar Gym Tonight

Rick Bullock, William Johnson, Richard Little and a host of other talent will be on display at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15 in Dunbar High School gym when Texas Tech holds an intra-squad scrimmage.

That's basketball, of course, and fans in the East Lubbock area will have a chance to see the defending champion Red Raiders free of charge.

Coach Gerald Myers was uncertain on how he would divide the Raider squad for the scrimmage, but he would like to have it as even as possible. Therefore, there could be some interesting matchups.

Although this is a scrimmage and without charge, Coach Myers looks on it as deadly serious. He's trying to find the best starting team possible as Tech prepares for its opener against Fresno State two weeks and a day from today.

Biggest problem facing Coach Myers is finding a forward replacement for Ron Richardson. Grady Newton, from Lubbock Monterey, formerly a guard, is one of the leading candidates, along with Kim McClintock, Dumas; James Derkowski, Houston Spring Woods; and Steve Trneck, Pasadena.

Featuring the Tech attack will be the only seniors on the squad, Little and Don Moore. These two starting guards are expected to be the backbone of the Raider attack, along with Johnson, considered the sixth man on last season's squad. Johnson logged almost as much playing time as any starter.

Johnson is one of seven juniors making up the Tech squad, along with Phil Bailey, Mark Davis, Bryan Mauk, Derkowski, McClintock and Trneck.

Bullock and Newton, both sophomores, are known quantities, but the third sophomore on the Tech squad, Neel Lemón of Dallas, is getting a long look.

Certainly to be watched closely, not only by coaches, but by fans, too, will be four freshmen of better than average talent, Keith Kitchens, Grant Dukes, Steve Dunn and George Campbell. Also figuring for a close scrutiny is Luther Mays, a 6-1 walk-on from Hereford.

The game will be regulation in every respect, with officials and, for the first time, a 30-second clock, being used this year.

Clerk-Carrier Exams Set at Lubbock Post Office

The Lubbock, Texas Post Office is accepting applications for the Clerk-Carrier Examination. Applications may be obtained at the Main Post Office, Room 206. They must be completed and returned to the Postmaster no later than November 16, 1973.

Those taking the examination and making a passing grade of 70 or better will have their grade entered by grade point on the Clerk-Carrier register. The U.S. Postal Services hires Clerks and Carriers from this register, beginning with the highest grade.

The U.S. Postal Service is an equal opportunity employer offering many benefits including Civil

News - Ad Deadlines Early Next Week

Because next Thursday, November 22nd, is Thanksgiving, deadlines for both news and advertising in next week's issue of the paper have been moved up to Noon Monday, November 19th, in order to allow for earlier printing and posting of Thursday's paper, thereby allowing our staff members to be off on Thursday.

PEACE CORPS PEOPLE—Roy Wilson, left, Peace Corps Intern Director at Texas Tech, visits with university staff members Ann Morgan, director of International Programs; Calvin H. Raullerson, second from right, executive assistant to the dean of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and special assistant to the Office of the President on International Programs; and Don Boucher, coordinator of International Relations and special assistant to the Office of the President. Wilson will head a special program designed to provide Peace Corps volunteers for Latin America. The volunteers, to be recruited from universities throughout the southwest, will undergo special training at Texas Tech and five other institutions which are members of the Southwest Alliance for Latin America (SALA). Texas Tech is participating in the program through a contract between SALA and the Peace Corps. The university staff members pictured, all Peace Corps veterans, will act as liaison for the program with Wilson.

It's that time of the year again, when those Fighting Dunbar Panthers play the Estacado Matadors. Let us all get behind this annual contest and go out to Lowrey Field Saturday evening and support the team of your choice.

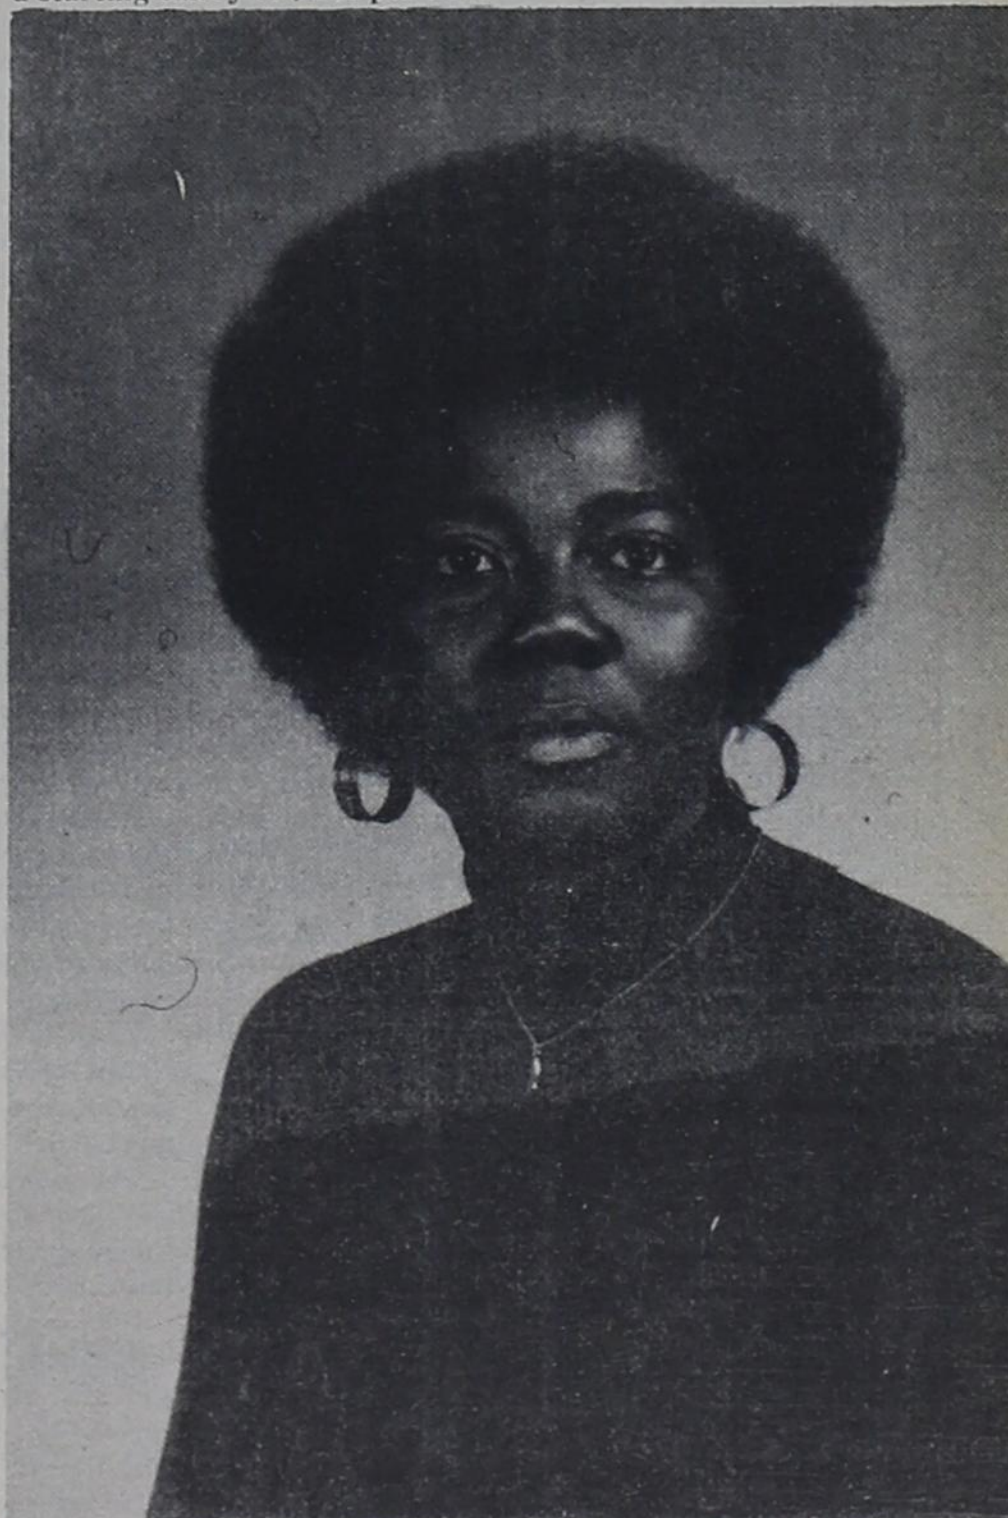

We will not attempt to pick a winner, but we will say that it should prove to be an exciting contest, despite the record of both teams.

We hope that the young men on Service retirement, health and life insurance, sick leave, vacation leave, good working environment, opportunity for advancement and a starting salary of $4.58 per hour the field will realize that the contest Saturday evening is only a football game and only lasts for forty-eight minutes. We hope each player, Matador or Panther, will conduct himself in a good sportsmanship manner. Not only this, but we hope the spectators will conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

Regardless if the game should end in a win, tie or loss of your favorite team, let's all have a good time and do our part to help keep this traditional contest in a positive vein.

Good luck to both the Matadors and Panthers and may the best team win.

RECOGNITION FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE—Mrs. Bobbie G. Pattison, sophomore counselor at Texas Tech University in the College of Business Administration, was recognized last Sunday afternoon, along with other faculty members for "outstanding services" rendered at Tech. Sponsor of the undergraduate chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, she was presented the award by the Texas Tech University Junior Panhellenic Association at the KoKo Palace last Sunday.

Santa Land Reversal By City Council A Lesson

Since the last election, there has at least been one issue in which the entire City Council and Mayor quickly back-tracked on their previous decision. That came about early this week when the Council decided to renig on their stand not to keep Santa Land open this year.

It appears as though the Council may also reconsider the possibility of keeping the Christmas lights on in downtown Lubbock since the Chamber of Commerce is disturbed over the proposal not to have Christmas lights on this holiday season.

All of this has come about since the plea was made last week by President Richard Nixon as a means to curtail an excessive use of energy in the United States. Nixon appeared over national TV and radio to suggest to the public that something be done at local levels to conserve the use of electricity, gasoline, and other forms of energy

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

It's been over a month since the Mayor of Lubbock (Morris "Moe" Turner) has told the blacks of Lubbock that they are complacent and no move has been started from the black community to do anything about this killer which is slowly taking us down to the bottom of the "bean pot".

The mayor made this statement at the state NAACP meeting last month at the Red Raider Convention Center. Several months prior to this statement, he made the same which are quite vital to our country.

Although the City of Lubbock has made an attempt to honor the wishes of the President, many parents were disturbed over the fact that Santa Land would be closed this year. Concerned businessmen evidently heard the cry of little ones in the community and made a pledge to curtail lighting in their businesses to make it possible for young people to have Santa Land.

What happened early this week is what can happen if people band together to accomplish a goal for the benefit of great number of people. It all goes back to the saying: "The wheel that squeaks the loudest gets the oil." This was done and there will be a Santa Land, as well as special consideration by the City Council to turn on the Christmas lights downtown.

We would like to call your attention to the fact that we are faced with a tremendous energy crisis in this country and all citizens should pay close attention to what is happening. Not only this, but we should do what we can to conserve our natural energies. Regardless of our individual feelings about the President of the United States, let's at least give him an opportunity to come up with solutions to the present crisis in this country.

spill to a group of Baptist members who were attending a meeting at New Hope Baptist Church.

It's one thing to recognize how bad off one may be, but when someone from the white community continues to use this as an opening statement in the black community, this is something else.

I must admit, however, that the Mayor is right with his acquisitions about the black community. There are only a handful of black citizens who have and are trying to do something about this killer which is draining us of our progress.

$10 million on the presidential retreats at San Clemente, Key Biscayne and Camp David.

One small item illustrates how cavalierly the President spent the taxpayers' money on small luxuries. His personal architect, Hal Lynch, ordered seven solid brass lanterns to be located on the San Clemente estate. A second order—more costly than the first because it was a "rush" order—for four lanterns was placed later. These four are still in storage at the warehouse.

The government paid $2,000 to remove the old fixtures. The total bill for equipping the presidential grounds with fancy new lanterns came to $5,500. The White House has defended the expenditures as necessary for the President's protection. But no request was made by the Secret Service for the lanterns.

My investigation has shown, on the contrary, that the Secret Service was often pressured into making requests for improvements after the original requests had already been made by the President's people.

Saxbe Wouldn't Listen: President Nixon's latest choice for attorney general, Sen. William Saxbe, belongs to the small bloc of liberal Republican senators. They hold secret strategy sessions on Wednesdays and, therefore, call themselves the "Wednesday Group."

On the last day of October, which happened to be a Wednesday, these liberal Republicans backed Saxbe into a corner and pleaded with him not to take the job of attorney general. They warned he would be condemned by the public if he didn't prosecute the whole White House crowd and would be obstructed by the President if he did.

But Saxbe wouldn't listen. He insisted that the President had agreed to accept him "warts and all," and that he would continue to be the same outspoken, independent soul whose bluntness had sometimes annoyed them in the Senate.

Nevertheless, despite the appointment of their friend Saxbe as attorney general and Leon Jaworski as special prosecutor, the senators are going ahead with legislation to authorize an independent prosecutor who cannot be fired by the President.

There is another possible solution. This was proposed in the Senate in 1951 by a freshman from California. His bill would have given grand juries the money to hire their own lawyers. That senator's name was Richard Nixon and his purpose was to put pressure on President Harry Truman.

Nixon might now be considerably less enthusiastic about the idea, of course, than he was 22 years ago.

Cold Warning: The nation's top oil executives have warned the government that serious oil and gas shortages can be expected as early as December. They have called upon the government to take immediate action to conserve both gasoline and heating fuel. Most oil executives have declared outright that rationing is the only possible solution.

They have the impression, however, that President Nixon, beset by Watergate, doesn't want to damage his popularity any worse by telling the American people they must drive less and turn down their home furnaces.

The oilmen have been holding urgent, secret meetings all over Washington. They have delivered their dire warning to the White House and the State, Treasury and Interior departments.

Out of these meetings, the oil men have received the impression that the President is most reluctant to ration oil and gas. He not only fears the political consequences, apparently, but doesn't want to abandon his free-market philosophy.

He is faced with two unpleasant choices: Either he must ration oil products or permit prices to soar. A free market, permitting prices to go higher as oil and gas become scarcer, would amount to indirect rationing. The poor gradually would be forced off the highways by zooming gas prices.

Rationing or not, the experts already are predicting gas will shoot up to 50 cents a gallon after the New Year and $1 a gallon by the end of 1974.

All of us are familiar with the problems happening in Washington at this particular time, but let's be broad-minded enough to see what is in store for this country. It is really hard to believe, however, that the richest country in the world is falling short of its natural resources. This should serve as an omen for all of us to start looking at what is going on and become more aware and involved on what is going on.

As black residents of Lubbock, we must remember that if there is a shortage of natural resources in Lubbock, we may just have a problem unless we pay close attention to what is going on. The involvement of those residents of Lubbock who wanted Santa Land kept open should show us that a lot can happen if we really get behind our effort.

The Santa Land episode suggests to this newspaper that since there is not enough money, at present time, to construct the Civic Center, the black community just may be the area where the Lakes project will be cut to insure enough money to reach the additional $6.2 million dollars.

Let us not forget what has happened this week to restore the annual Santa Land project. If we would stick together more, we, black citizens of Lubbock, just may get something done for the benefit of our community also.

I hope the efforts by the newly formed East Lubbock Business Association will do something in the business aspect to curtail this which has set in our community over the years. I hope, also, that the new businesses being opened up recently in the black community will help take away some of the slack we have here.

The ministers and their congregations could do something about this bad disease if they wanted to do so. The church is the only place where several thousand black men and women gather each week for their religious teachings. If the ministers of the various congregations would utilize some of this time to alert the black community of our various problems, would certainly help.

There are anniversaries going on in our community this month, and have been for the past several months. If the large gatherings at these efforts would look around them and start informing the black community, it would certainly be a great help.

It's time for us to quit going home after our job each day and worrying about what the man across the street is doing. It's time to quit going home from our jobs and watching television from 6 p.m. until midnight. That television set we are watching is leading us to our doom. We can, I'm sure, do more than just watch a soap opera or some fictitious program which has no meaning to our position in life in Lubbock or West Texas.

In the past, we've fallen for many "bones" presented to us by the system and we've accepted them without even thinking why. There are at least 10,000 blacks in Lubbock and over 65,000 in West Texas (including communities as Odessa, Midland, Amarillo, Abilene and other small communities). Surely, we can get our mind in the right perspective in order to overcome the problems which are dampening our progress.

It has been said where there is a great amount of apathy in a community, there are opportunities for those who are willing to get ahead so they can help others make it. Don't overlook the potential in the black community in West Texas. It is here if we really want to do something about our shortcomings.

No matter what community you observe in West Texas, the black community is left out of the mainstream of life. I know that we don't want to be left out of opportunities which we should be taking advantage of. As we come to the close of the year, we should look very closely on what direction we will move in the years to come. We must pledge to ourselves that we will start making decisions which will better our lot and help us overcome many of the problems which are leaving us out of the many opportunities which exist in Lubbock and West Texas.

If we look at Lubbock and not the other areas in West Texas, I know you will agree that blacks are left out of employment, representation on various policy making boards and that the housing needs improving. There are so many other areas of concern which need to be looked into as well as investigated if we are to overcome some of the major situations in our various communities.

"Games Have Been Played"

I hope that every black citizen, from Lubbock to all points in West Texas, realize the many games which have been played on us by politicians. I hope, too, that you pay close attention to what Mayor Turner said about the black citizens of Lubbock.

As I See It, there's more to life than going to and from a menial job each day of our lives. There has to be many opportunities for those persons who are willing to work hard in life. There is more in life than just attending a church or a minister's anniversary. There's more to life than just to be promised things by the local political sub-divisions and never anything happen. I'm sure God wants us to do our part.

What I am trying to bring home this week is that every black citizen in Lubbock and West Texas is in the dark and it's time to turn on the light of life so we can prosper in life. We can't move ahead until we realize where we are. Why don't you look around you and see how things are for yourself?

If the Mayor of Lubbock will state publicly that blacks are complacent in the "Hub City", I'm sure this is the opinion of every mayor or county commissioner in West Texas. We need to stand up and be counted in a manner so our actions will profit something for each of us as well as make it possible for our children's children. We've played around too long, it's time to get down to the "nitty gritty" and call a spade a spade.

As I See It, we can put something together for ourselves. Don't you think so?

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

SKY SPY'S MID-EAST TALE

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—There have been statements out of both Washington and Moscow that the super powers have backed down from a confrontation. But these reassuring statements can't hide what is happening from our spy satellites.

Satellite photographs showed the build-up of the Arab armies and the delivery of Soviet supplies before the recent Arab attack. It was our policymakers who failed to respond.

Later, photographs from space showed massive military moves by the Soviets, including huge shipments of military freight by rail and road from Eastern Europe back into the Soviet Union. This time, President Nixon responded by ordering a worldwide military alert.

Now the satellite pictures show continuing Soviet moves that appear to be related to the Middle East. Soviet airborne troops remain on alert. The Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean has been built up to a record strength of over 90 ships, including missile cruisers and missile destroyers.

The United States is also maintaining an alert in the Atlantic and Mediterranean. Our Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean has been strengthened. A task force, headed by the Carrier Hancock, has been moved from the Pacific into the Indian Ocean.

The Pentagon has insisted this had nothing to do with the Middle East. The secret messages, however, tell a different story. We can report that the Hancock was ordered to be prepared to move into the Persian Gulf as a possible contingency.

This could be interpreted as military pressure on the Arab oil kingdoms. The Soviet moves, presumably, are intended to counteract any such pressure.

Costly Lanterns: More than a year ago, we investigated the misspending of public money on President Nixon's San Clemente estate. A secret memo has now fallen into our hands, telling how government officials tried to cover their tracks by accidentally misplacing the documents we sought.

We have also obtained stacks of letters, contracts and memos, which reveal how the taxpayers were billed for the President's extravagances. The taxpayers spent more than

Christmas Comet

Sky watchers are being offered a rare sight in the night skies the end of this year and in January. By the third week of the month the comet Kohoutek will be visible in the November sky and will increase in brilliance until Christmas.

By then, it will be visible as bright as a moon at dawn, with a long tail, thus offering a specially decorated sky for the major ecclesiastical event of the year.

The comet is now headed toward the sun, will be only 13 million miles away at Christmas time (coming from hundreds of millions of miles out in the solar system); it will then pass within 75 million miles of the earth on January 5th, when it will again be visible to the naked eye.

Antibiotics

Two articles in the American Medical Association Journal recently, written by doctors, warn that too many physicians prescribe antibiotics to patients as an easy way to kill infections.

Antibiotics, however, are themselves often harmful. They should never be taken regularly. They are, moreover, often ineffective because the wrong antibiotic is prescribed, or the wrong dose.

Experts estimate the average American has need for an antibiotic only once in every five years; in other cases, other medication and treatment is preferable. Those who seek or take antibiotics too often or regularly, risk a toxic reaction or the loss of the antibiotic's curative power.

Bikes Win

In Washington, ten bike riders recently raced ten automobile drivers to the District of Columbia building from various points within the city.

In nine of the ten contests the bike riders arrived first. The races (in heavy traffic) probably came out as they would have in other large American cities!

The lesson is that so many cars crowd our streets, other forms of transportation have become superior. Commuter trains, air buses, elevated rail service (which should link airports and cities), bicycles and other forms of transportation are obviously the look of the future.

Misguided Effort

In Washington Catholic groups are seeking to terminate federal employe benefits for abortions. An amendment to a new bill would bar payments for abortions to all federal and postal employes.

In as much as the Supreme Court has ruled, only recently, that abortions are legal and since of the nation's 210,000,000 people only about 46,000,000 are Catholics, Congress, of course, cannot justify forcing all Americans to comply with Catholic theory.

The same issue has been fought out in many state legislatures. The inevitable outcome must be that while no law should force anyone with moral objections to have an abortion, likewise no minority group has the right to impose its will on all the rest of the country, by law. (And that has been the case in a number of states until recently.)

Austin, Texas—Outlook for a bleak winter grew steadily worse as the energy crisis mounted.

Speed limit reductions and year round daylight savingtime, recommended by President Richard Nixon, may be some of the milder results.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, assessing the president's proposals and reaction of other states before announcing his own program, said gasoline rationing is an "eventuality that will have to be considered."

Grimmest of all was Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Langdon's forecast: "Some people in Texas are going to be cold this winter." Those who use butane, propane or electricity for their heating are the ones most likely to get the shivers, said Langdon.

Middle distillate fuels, used primarily to generate electricity, and of increasing importance due to the shortage of natural gas, may also be in short supply as much as 400,000 barrels daily, according to Langdon's estimate.

Meanwhile, the Nixon administration altered previously announced allocation policies to allow middle distillate suppliers to provide Texas customers diesel fuel, fuel oil and kerosene without limit through November.

Even in the reprieve from mandatory allocations, there was an implied warning to Texas electric utility companies: come December they may be running short of fuel oil, since allocation formulas are based on 1972 purchases. Most Texas utilities, used to plenty of natural gas, didn't use much fuel oil to fire their boilers in 1972.

Things apparently are going to get a lot worse before they get better on the energy front.

Pay Amendment Defeat Assessed—For the fifth time in eight years Texans voted down a pay raise for legislators, and assessments of the reason why varied widely.

House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. and others concluded that the vote on the $15,000-annual-pay-annual-sessions amendment was due to "tragic events at the national level that have crushed public confidence in our political and governmental systems."

Not so, said Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Granberry, who maintained lawmakers asked too much salary and made an error in coupling the pay raise issue with that of annual sessions.

Granberry suggested voters will approve $8,000 to $10,000 salaries and limited annual sessions with proper leadership support and a clear presentation.

The Missing Tapes

The late discovery that two of nine controversial presidential tapes are missing has added to the credibility problem at the White House in the minds of millions of Americans.

That was inevitable because the two missing tapes were to have been key evidence in determining whether the testimony of John Dean is taken seriously. Dean's charge that President Nixon was involved in certain Watergate activities has been denied by a parade of witnesses, all other White House witnesses, in fact.

Without seeking to determine the facts surrounding the latest tapes controversy, which only a court can do, it can nevertheless be said the discovery that two of the tapes are missing is singularly unfortunate.

One suspects Senators and Congressmen who say much of the American public will never fully accept the explanation are right, and that is likely to cost the White House and the nation heavily, whatever the true facts.

Alleviating The Power Shortage

If Congress wants to alleviate the power shortage, likely to inconvenience Americans this winter and for some time to come, an obvious step is to reduce the heavy consumption of electricity for advertising and display purposes after business hours. A curfew on display lighting would be the first step. (The President has called for the limiting of business working hours.)

In practically every town and city in the country huge buildings (often power company or other utilities buildings), automobile display lots, show windows and signs are brightly lighted, usually until eleven or midnight and often all night (except where power curfews are already in effect).

While it's desirable that every business be able to use what power it's willing to pay for in normal conditions, these are not normal times. The power shortage threatens to deprive some families of electricity for heating and other necessities. Commercial display lighting should not take precedent over these basic needs.

That will happen, however, unless local or federal authority intervenes, for power companies are not likely to antagonize major buyers and consumers unduly. The less government interference and regulation the better, but in this case power companies may need legal justification to curb usage. Congress, or local governing bodies, will have to show the way.

At any rate, Texans undoubtedly will get to ballot on the issue again in some form after next year's constitutional convention. Most likely proposal will be creation of a commission of citizens, as recommended by the Constitutional Revision Commission, to set salaries of lawmakers and other state officials. Prospects for the kind of unlimited annual legislative sessions recommended by the Revision Commission dimmed with results of the November 6 election.

New Insurance Hearing Set—Life insurance policy price disclosure and cost comparisons will be considered at a public hearing here November 27.

The State Insurance Board is then expected to review a model rule covering "life insurance interest-adjusted cost comparison indexes."

While the Insurance Board does not set prices of life insurance policies, it does police misleading and deceptive sales practices. Board Chairman Joe Christie said calculation of life insurance costs through the cash-surrender value doesn't always show true cost to purchasers.

In The Courts—The Supreme Court upheld an intermediate court decision that a Houston fireman's family was entitled to death benefits and disability payments following his illness and death in 1969. The High Court said a fireman need not prove the actual medical cause of his disability to establish his eligibility for such benefits.

Court of Criminal Appeals ordered a new trial for a man convicted and sentenced to 25 years imprisonment in the beating death of a woman at a Dallas shopping center two years ago.

A Lubbock murder conviction and 10-year prison sentence were affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals, which ruled admissible a Texas Ranger's testimony that the defendant confessed the shooting to him.

A.G. Opinions—The attorney general's office, responding to an opinion request on political committee status, indicated to some newsmen that a broad interpretation of the new campaign reporting and disclosure act may require newspapers to report cost of editorials endorsing candidates.

In recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- The state can use federal funds deposited in the treasury for a program to aid pregnant women, nursing mothers, infants and children.

- Fayette County commissioners court is not legally required to furnish access roads to the Colorado River every two miles unless it is determined to be factually necessary.

- Average daily attendance of children in "institutional" school districts (like Boys' Ranch) must be considered in determining a new consolidated school district's eligibility for incentive aid on debts and buildings.

- The new open records law apparently contains no exceptions that could form the basis for withholding access to complete records on workmen's compensation rolls and sales tax permits. However, Hill concluded he could not address the problem of "practical difficulties" presented by requests for the data.

Short Snorts

Attorney General Hill defended minimum requirements for candidates to get on the ballot in a hearing before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White warned of a four million ton agricultural fertilizer shortage next spring.

The Oil Shortage

More important to U.S. consumers than oil developments in the Middle East was Venezuela's recent hike in oil prices, a 56 per cent increase, the tenth announced this year.

Added to other oil acquisition and price problems, this development greatly increases the need for the United States to develop other sources of power, to acquire more oil from new sources and for the American people to save fuel in every possible way.

There's now little doubt, because of events in the Middle East and elsewhere, that an oil shortage exists and threatens to remain a problem for several years. That being the future, the proper role of the federal government is to hold price increases to reasonable levels, to bar sharp and excessive hikes, always a temptation to sellers in shortage situations, and to order allocations when necessary.

The U.S. supply of petroleum products will continue to be quite large, relatively, though not always enough for everyone everywhere; thus the development of new energy sources and the conservation of energy by families, businesses and the local, county, state and federal governments, are a must.

A Cold Winter?

A government study predicts this winter will probably be colder than last, that heating bills will likely be higher, but the forecast of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is not a certain thing.

NOAA expects the winter to be colder because it thinks a trend has set in toward colder winters in the past fifteen years. But if that is not a trend and just an unusual swing over a longer period of perhaps fifty or a hundred years, the NOAA forecast might prove wrong.

If average winter temperatures since 1931 are used as a base for the 1973-74 prediction, another mild winter could be expected, for recent winters (from 1957 on) have been unusually cold. If, on the other hand, a trend began about 1957, colder weather lies ahead. (A recent six-inch snowfall as far south as north Georgia might or might not be an indication of things to come.)

NOAA says the following five regions will probably have a colder winter than last year. New England, Middle Atlantic, East North Central, East South Central and South Atlantic. The following regions should have it warmer, West North Central, West South Central, Mountain and Pacific.

Non-Smoker Discounts

Ten years ago a small insurance company in Massachusetts offered the first discount in rates for non-smokers, three per cent.

Today non-smokers get discounts from a number of companies, discounts as high as twenty or twenty-five per cent, a recent study shows.

In short, insurance companies have found non-smokers to be better disciplined people and better risks. Today's discounts apply not only to life insurance but to car and home insurance policies as well.

Many companies still offer no discounts but it's now possible to shop around and find one which does, if you're a non-smoker, which is encouraging, and a form of progress.

Police Beat

House Burglary

Percy Mae Williams, 816 Vanda Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone unknown entered her house while she was away by breaking the window on the back door.

Entry was easy to accomplish by reaching through the broken window and unlocking the door.

There was nothing reported missing from the house. There was approximately $25 worth of damage to the window.

Burglary of Motor Vehicle

A resident of Houston, Texas, Rodell Terry, who was stopping off in the Hub City making a truck run, reported to Lubbock Police that someone unknown broke into the truck and took some of his possessions.

He told police that the doors were locked, but he could have left a window unlocked. The truck was parked at 600 East 23rd Street.

Taken from the truck were several items, including three or four packs of cigarettes, several towels, two oranges, a black log book and some valuable papers about the truck.

House Burglary

James Dennis, 1507 East Auburn Avenue, reported to Lubbock Police that he left home one morning and returned to find that someone had broken into his house.

Taken from the house were two items, a wall kitchen clock and an electric can opener. They were valued at approximately $23.

Theft of Money

Paris Trammell, 1718 Avenue C, was a rather mad man last Friday evening. He reported to Lubbock Police that he had just got paid and cashed his check of who were apparently in the house, did take his money and his beer and tried to make his pay for some more drinks.

He told police that he went to a local residence where he bought some cold beer and a pint of whiskey to quench his thirst. He said he paid for the drinks with a $20 bill.

It was learned that two men, He told police, "they took my billfold (which had at least $100 in it) out of my pants". It was learned that the men shoved him outside the place and told him to leave. Paris did leave in a hurry and went to a phone and called police. He said he would file charges this week against the men.

Assault With Intent To Commit Murder

A 21 year old man was allegedly shot by his 21 year old wife early Friday evening in their home. The incident was reported by the man's father who lives across the street from the sons.

The father told police that the wife came over to his house and said: I have just shot your son."

The young man, who was in a "very serious condition", according to the police report, told police that he and his wife had an argument. He said he did not want to file charges against her.

Aggravated Assault

A Lubbock woman reported to Lubbock police that her husband assaulted her at their home one night last week. She told police that he was drunk and that she was cooking supper and for no reason, he came in and started beating on her.

She told police that he picked up a vase and hit her in the head. She had a knot on her forehead and other bruises on her body from the blows of her husband.

She was taken to an emergency room of a local hospital. She told police that she would definitely file charges this week.

National Urban Coalition Urges Poor to Look Outside Federal System for Help

Newark, N.J.—(NBNS)—National Urban Coalition president M. Carl Holman has discounted the Federal government as a meaningful source of help for the poor in the years immediately ahead.

Holman, addressing the Newark NAACP banquet, said "the Federal government these days is just not the place we can look for solutions to the great problems of the cities. The people and this Administration are just not on the same wavelength."

Newark, he said, will die if it has to depend upon a Federal government which uses aid to "pacify" the poor rather than advance the city's "increasing concentrations of disadvantaged population."

He said the city would die both for the 400,000 residents and the 600,000 worker/commuter population of the city.

"The problems and the unfulfilled potential of Newark and other cities are too real to be allowed to go unattended, or be erased by a glib declaration that the urban crisis has passed," Holman said.

"It is especially important in these times for the blacks, the browns and the poor and working class, as they seek some form of power equity, to make it clear they do not see the '70s as the time to turn back the clock. We must have jobs and income for fathers and mothers at living, rather than sub-human subsistence levels. We must have education for our children that prepares them for something better than street corners and jail."

The Nixon Administration, Holman said, has been "re-ordering priorities, but in such a manner that the defense establishment, even in ostensible peace, still gets the lions share of Federal funds while the poor get a mere minuscule mouse's share."

OIC Still Facing Funding Crisis

Washington — (NBNS)—About 110 officials of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers (OIC) from across the country convened here to attend workshops on legislative education and research and to confer with their Congressmen.

The officials were attempting to gain support in the Congress for the manpower legislation which has been stalled in Congress for several months.

OIC, one of the more successful manpower training programs in the country, is still involved in a life and death funding struggle, said one OIC official, although several Senators earlier this year "made special appeals on behalf of OIC to the Administration, to keep our doors open until a new contract could be signed for the new fiscal year."

Their appeal, the official added, resulted in "emergency funding, not extra money. As a matter of fact, it was 12 months funding to be spread over a 13-month period."

The trek to Washington was prompted by fears of Rev. Leon Sullivan, founder and head of OIC, that "the 93rd Congress would adjourn by the middle of November without having passed a manpower bill."

Consequently, the OIC representatives "descended upon the Hill determined to make democracy work for poor people and black people", the official explained.

According to the OIC spokesman, several Congressmen, including some closely associated with the Nixon Administration, assured Rev. Sullivan that "a compromise comprehensive manpower bill would be dropped into the hopper" soon.

Since early this year, OIC has been attempting to gain bipartisan support for a manpower bill which was initially introduced in the Senate by Sen. Richard Schweiker (R-Pa.) and in the House by Rep. Augustus Hawkins (D-Calif.)

Recently, the Senate passed by an 88-5 margin a bill, including the Schweiker amendments, assuring the continuation and expansion of OIC.

Tech Wins Sixth Conference Victory

Defense, the breaks and the usual opportunistic offense, spearheaded by former Estacado star Larry Isaac carried Texas Tech to its sixth straight victory last Saturday and set up a duel with Baylor in Jones Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Texas Christian, a thorn in the side of the Red Raiders over the years and particularly the last three years, took the fight to Tech. But the poised, mature Raiders shrugged off a 10-0 first quarter deficit and ran their record to 8-1 on a 24-10 victory.

The Raiders, now hoping for unexpected lightning to strike Texas twice, look forward to posting one of the best records in

The O.L. Slaton PTSA will conduct its annual Bean Supper and Variety Show on November 20, 1973. The Bean Supper will start at 5:30 p.m. and will be served in the school cafeteria. A variety show by the various activity clubs will follow after the meal. This will be in the auditorium.

All parents, relatives and friends are urged to attend. The public is cordially invited.

Tech history. A victory over Baylor would put them close to that goal.

For over 15 minutes Saturday, the spectre of the 31-7 loss last year hung over the Raiders as the Horned Frogs delighted a sparse Homecoming crowd by taking a 10-0 lead. Meanwhile, the Frog defense held Tech almost without a first down and no semblance of an attack.

TCU used a 28-yard field goal by Berl Simmons for a 3-0 lead on its first possession, saw Simmons miss a field goal on the second and then used Kent Marshall's one-yard sneak to cap an impressive drive for its 10-0 lead.

Then things changed. Maybe it was the fact that the Raiders got the wind, maybe it was a case of settling down, but the complex of the game changed in the second quarter.

The Raiders used only seven plays from the TCU 49 to get back in the game, sparked by Joe Barnes' pass to George Smith good for 32 yards to the three. Isaac went over on the second play from there and the Raiders were back in the game.

Following the kickoff, TCU was guilty of indiscretion, or bad judgment. Marshall went back to pass and Kenneth Wallace returned the interception 13 yards from the 35 to the TCU 22. This time Barnes found Andre Tillman all alone in a corner of the end zone and it was 14-10.

The teams were stymied in the third quarter, Tech by a tough defense and the Frogs by a great shadow-of-the-goal stand. TCU had fourth and one at the 19, but Charlie Beery crashed through to stop Tim Pulliam for no gain.

Early in the fourth quarter, a Tech drive was stopped and Don Grimes, who kicked all three conversions, booted a 30-yard field goal for a 17-10 lead. That put more pressure on the Frogs.

The final touchdown came when Isaac, on the draw, slipped a tackle at the line, used his interference, cut to the left and sped 53 yards for the clinching touchdown.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Jim Carlen got the revenge he wanted, Texas Tech got another victory and Rice derailed Arkansas, leaving only a fervent prayer by the Raiders for TCU and A&M to beat Texas.

That about sums up the Southwest Conference action on Saturday, Nov. 10, 1973. It leaves the Longhorns in command, with Tech hoping for two more victories to tie the 1953 Tech team for the second best record in Raider history.

To refresh memories, the top regular season record by any Tech team was the 10-0-0 mark of the 1938 eleven, which later went to that now-elusive Grail in Dallas, the Cotton Bowl.

The 1953 team posted a 10-1-0 mark, followed by 1941 at 9-1-0, 1940 at 9-1-1 and 1932 at 10-2-0.

But, including bowl game, the best record was the 1953 team with an 11-1-0 record, followed by 1938 at 10-1-0.

In the 26 years I've covered Tech football, that 1953 team still is the best one I've seen produced by the Raiders. It had everything good teams should have—good running, good passing, good defense, good leadership.

But 1953 was unique in that Tech had two teams of equal ability. It went to the Gator Bowl, where it beat another two-team school, Auburn, called by no less an authority than the late, great Herman Hickman, as the best team, at season's end, in the Southeastern Conference.

If the Raiders win their next two games, they'll have a tie for the second best regular season mark. If they win and tie, they'll tie for the fourth best mark.

Coach Carlen says that bowls are for the media, so let's have another look. It begins to seem certain that Alabama and Notre Dame will be in the Sugar and Penn State and LSU in the Orange. We know that the Big 10 winner and the Pacific 8 winner will be in the Rose.

So, this being Sunday, let's speculate. Texas will be in the Cotton and our guess now is that Nebraska will be the opponent.

As of last weekend, that leaves Tech, Missouri, Arizona State, Houston, Tennessee and Kansas as other Top 20 teams eligible and prime bets to fill other bowls.

If Tech beats Baylor, we'd guess that the Gator might pit the Raiders against Tennessee. It would be a good matchup.

Houston should be a cinch for the Bluebonnet, possibly against Kansas.

Missouri would make a good Sun Bowl foe for Texas A&M, if that bowl wants to stay with the SWC, or Arizona State if it wants southwestern flavor.

Arizona State could go to the Peach against, let's say, North Carolina State or Georgia Tech.

The Liberty could come up with Auburn and Colorado, maybe.

Anyway, it's all conjecture, but look at the fun Jim's missing worrying about Baylor and Arkansas.

Isn't the pattern at SMU strange? Last year the Mustangs had a 4-1 going into the Tech game. This year it was the same. Last year SMU then lost successively to Tech, Texas, A&M. The same is true this year.

As far as a bowl is concerned, the damage has been done. Now all that's left of interest is whether SMU can beat Arkansas, Baylor and TCU, as they did last year, If so, they'll have exactly the same kind of season two years in succession.

Get your shotguns and rifles cleaned, oiled and at the ready, the deer, quail and wild turkey seasons open Saturday. And from the look of things traveling the Panhandle-South Plains, the crop is going to equal the grain and cotton harvests.

And when it comes to pheasant, hunters should bring home limits each day of the short season. Not only are the beautiful birds getting thicker in number, they're getting closer to home. Good shooting and exercise more than the usual caution.

Notes from Carlen's Monday luncheon: "TCU may be the best defensive team we've played this year...I still think, now, that we should have taken the wind and kicked off...The offensive team played well, especially Andre Tillman. Larry Isaac and George Smith had good games."

"Defensively, we couldn't have played well if Luttrell gained 180 yards. We'll work this week on things he did against us, because Baylor will be studying films of the game."

"Jeffrey we rated the best quarterback we saw last year. The Jeffrey-Dancer combination will be the best that we've faced. Baylor' offensive and defensive lines are a lot like us. We're about the same size."

"We would like to go to a bowl. I think this team is deserving of a bowl. Which one? The NCAA says that no bid may be extended until 6 p.m. Saturday. We respect that."

"Going to a bowl is up to the players. If they say no bowl, that's it. But they voted after the TCU game to accept a bid. Yes, the players have a preference, but the final say comes from the administration."

Dean Lewis Jones ('38 Cotton Bowl player) indicated that the Liberty Bowl virtually is out, since the game is played Dec. 17, the day semester exams begin at Tech.

"It poses almost insurmountable problems," he said. "It's almost impossible to give exams before the squad leaves and the same for after they return. The final say is up to the administration, but I don't believe there is any way to get around the problems."

natural energy HOME

CLEAN ENERGY FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

A Natural Energy Home uses natural gas for heating, cooling, water heating, cooking and clothes drying to save you money and help conserve our cleanest natural energy resource . . . natural gas.

That's because electricity in West Texas is generated by burning natural gas, and in the process of generating and transmitting electricity to your home, 2/3 of the gas energy is lost.

So, by using gas directly in the home for the jobs it can do, you're helping to conserve it and you're getting more energy for your money.

We had another wonderful Sunday School lesson this last Sunday. The subject of the lesson was "Living Victoriously in Society" from Romans Chapter 12.

The noon message was delivered by the assistant pastor, Minister Archie McNeal. His text was "Lord Send Your Rain" from Zachariah 12:10, and truly the Lord sent his Holy Ghost Rain.

We wish to thank the public and our many Christian friends for their cooperation in our having a successful program on Monday night, Nov. 5th, in behalf of the Gospel Express of '73. It was truly a wonderful program as the building was filled to capacity with over a thousand people. It would not have been possible without your help. And most of all the help of God.

Again we say Thank You so much from the pastor and members.

The Black Experience: In Memorium—Mahalia Jackson is now history. Honored by four Presidents of the United States, feted by international audiences, she remained to the end humble and unassuming. She thanked God for the opportunity to sing His praises to so many people and was a living disproof of the cynical axiom that "nice guys don't win ball games."

Miss Jackson was the third of six children, born in a shack between the railroad tracks and the levee in the New Orleans of 1912. Her father worked as a stevedore and as a barber to support his growing family. On weekends, he was minister of a small Baptist church. Born poor and black in the segregated South, young Mahalia had the advantages of her natural talent and a youthfully instilled and abiding faith in God.

"New Orleans was full of music then. I heard all the marching bands, the showboat music on the Mississippi, the great jazz orchestras of King Oliver, Louis Armstrong and Jelly Roll Morton. I learned to love their powerful beat. But I loved to sing all the more in the choir of our Baptist church," she states in her autobiography.

That Mahalia was influenced musically by the jazz and blues in the air about her, no one, least of all she, denies. That she was swerved from the dedication of her life and talents to singing of sacred music, no one can claim. When she completed her schooling earlier in elementary school, she went to work as a nursemaid and a laundress, still "singing for the glory of God".

At sixteen Mahlia left New Orleans for Chicago, where she joined the Greater Salem Baptist Church. Although she sang in the choir there, she supported herself working first as a chambermaid, then as a packer in a date processing factory. She saved her money, studied beauty culture, and opened a salon, then a flower shop. She worked hard and steadily, finally becoming independent through hard work, not singing. It was not until she made a recording for a then small record company that any recognition came. The recording was "Move On Up A Little Closer". Since then it has sold millions of copies and is still popular with gospel music lovers today and since then the list of recordings and albums she produced are almost countless. As to the awards and rewards of the world, Mahalia remains untouched. She has her reward every time one of her recordings is played. As she said a few years ago: "The Lord took me, and I was nothing, and He put me up. It can happen to you too". The world is glad and richer in spirit because God did choose Mahalia Jackson to sing His praise before millions in her lifetime and after through her many records and albums. She died in Chicago on January 27, 1972 when "she laid her heavy burden down."

Best Editorial Quote of Week: "If U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford fills this roll (vice-prexy) as it seems to shape up, he will be an interim vice president, the very image that many members of the House and Senate say they would demand of any candidate for the vacant post. It's something of a pity in a way. The most Ford can hope to gain from such a position will be a final plume in his political career; the most that will accrue to the nation from his activities will be reinforcement for the beliefs and ideologies of Richard Nixon. And all of this will be done in the name of loyalty. "We submit that leaders have the obligation to disagree when the top man is wrong. They owe that to him, rather than have about the President, "yes men" who parrot back what he has to say. He can become something of his own man and have the courage to voice his convictions when the President errs. This kind of loyalty badly needed in Washington". End of quote from Hobbs Daily News Sun, Hobbs, New Mexico.

Will Clear Desk: Since returning recently from a several thousand mile journey to Dixie, we find that our desk is loaded with mail from Bellringers. We still think West Texas and Eastern New Mexico (homeports) have the best all around climate anywhere we have been in recent years. We start answering mail pronto. "Sue the B*st*rds" by Douglas Matthews is a recent addition of Hobbs, N.M. Public Library. It is a comprehensive, indispensable book that tells how to get even with cheating landlords, auto mechanics, TV repairman, appliance stores, furniture movers etc. in the courts and without a lawyer. And be sure and read advertisement of The National Black Network in November issue of Essence and other ramblings on black life, available at your local library. It's great stuff. Until later-be a good neighbor and pray for our country and leaders. If ever needed, it's now. And Peace Brother.

Other sponsors, she said, included Julian Bond, Ossie Davis, Dick Gregory, John Howard Griffin and Dr. Robert M. Coles.

Another sponsor appearing at the press conference, Jonathan Kozol, author and school critic, said a major target of the Thanksgiving protest was the racist teachings of such sociologists as William H. Stockley, Arthur Jensen and Richard J. Hernstein who have concluded, he said, that black children are inferior and cannot be taught.

Mrs. Miller said the group was attempting to give students a new way to protest, since many feel, she said, "it is not hard to stand up in a crowd and wave a sign in common with 100,000 others."

"It is mroe difficult," she said, "to sit across a dinner table and refuse to eat unless our mothers and fathers are prepared to speak with us, or pray with us, in the face of evil or injustice carried out by Presidents whom they elect and policymakers whom they dare not oppose."
