A trust fund has been set up for Vernell Baucham Hightower, a 17-year-old victim of Sickle Cell Anemia, last week at the Texas Commerce Bank.

The fund was established to help Mrs. Roberta Hightower of 1708 Weber Drive, pay medical expenses incurred during the illness of her daughter. Another daughter, Gwendolyn, age 14, is also a victim of the same disease.

Estacado Band Prepares "Soul Explosion"

"Disturbances Possible" If OEO Stopped Witnesses Claim

Washington—(NBNS)—Two dozen witnesses before the House Labor and Education Equal Opportunities subcommittee last week warned of the tragic impact President Nixon's planned dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity would have upon the poor, noting also that they feared the possibility of civil disturbances.

Many of the witnesses showed special concern for OEO's community action agencies (CAAs) which the President proposed to leave to local financing with revenue sharing funds commencing July 1. OEO aid programs would be shifted to other federal departments.

Trenton (N.J.) Mayor Arthur Holland said the demise of OEO would have a far more serious impact upon the nation's poor than Nixon had previously indicated. He said his city was in "no position" to use its allotted revenue sharing monies to keep the local anti-poverty agency operational.

In addition, Holland said Trenton had experienced civil disorders in the past and that with the dismantling of OEO, "we could be heading for more of the same."

Denton D. Brooks Jr., president of the National Association for Community Development, said there exists a "funding gap," noting that "competition by human services programs for these limited funds will have to take place against fierce local demands for physical improvements, for aid to schools and to mass transit, and for local property tax relief."

Others, like James H. Cossingham, executive director of the Calhoun Community Action Agency in Battle Creek, Mich., said public and private financial backers "are reluctant to continue to support CAAs when it appears that we will not be in business beyond July 1, 1973."

They also recalled Nixon's inaugural address in which he stressed the need for self-reliance. But, they contended, the demise of OEO will end the self-reliance and community participation of many persons and, according to Brooks, will commence a "retreat" from the initial concept of such kinds of programming.

Robert Marshal, a board member of the National Rural Housing Coalition, said, "we have the label of self-help, and beyond the label we have the reality and accomplishment. Yet," he added, "with the dismemberment of OEO, we will surely die."

Noted Professor Will Leave White Union Theological Seminary to Join Fisk Faculty

Washington—(NBNS)—Saying that he hoped his action would start a trend, noted sociologist C. Eric Lincoln has announced that he will leave Union Theological Seminary next fall to join the faculty of Fisk University in Nashville.

The 48-year-old Dr. Lincoln said his move was the result of a growing sense of obligation but noted, however, that many black professionals now teaching in predominately white institutions may be deterred from making a similar move because of low salaries, heavy teaching loads and the lack of clerical help at predominately black universities, most of which are experiencing serious financial difficulties.

A frequent lecturer on religion and minority group relations who is, perhaps, best known for his study, "The Black Muslims of America," Dr. Lincoln said he believed that there is "an almost desperate need of black scholars with visibility at black colleges" and that the presence of these black scholars would give students "a new kind of hope and a new kind of pride."

Saying that he was responding to pressure from responsible blacks in the academic ranks rather than militants, Dr. Lincoln said that he also wants to rear his two young children in a black environment.

Dr. Lincoln, who has taught at Union Theological for the past five years, is a graduate of LeMoyne College, Fish, and Boston University. He also taught at Clark College in Atlanta for 10 years.

Dr. Lincoln has been president of the Black Academy of Arts and Letters since its inception four years ago, an experience which he said contributed to his decision to

Census Shows More Interracial Marriages

Washington—(NBNS)—The number of interracial marriages, especially those between black men and white women, has increased significantly since the 1960s, according to a Census Bureau report released last week.

Of the 44,597,574 married couples recorded in the 1970 census, interracial marriages accounted for 66,789 of that total, an increase from 0.44 per cent of the total in 1960 to 0.70 per cent in 1970.

The report also revealed that white black men marrying women of another race tend to marry white women, white men are more likely to marry American Indian or Japanese women when marrying interracially.

And, those black men who do intermarry, are usually ones with a high degree of education and earnings. White men who marry black women tend to marry at a percentage that is roughly consistent throughout the educational and earnings levels.

Of the white male-black female marriages, the report shows, there were about 2,350 fewer such couples—about 7,352—in the 1970 census than there were in 1960.

However, the rate of interracial marriages between black males and white females more than doubled from 7,534 in 1960 to 16,419 a decade later—an average of one in 80 marriages. White men with more than 12 years of education marrying women of equal learning chose a black wife on an average of one time in 1,000 during both decades.

These figures, which were based on a 5 percent sample from the overall marital statistics and projected to represent the total U.S. population, also show that interracial marriages are usually between men and women of roughly equal economic status.

However, the data also notes that white women sometimes marry black men with lower incomes than their own, whereas black women almost never do.

The largest percentage concentration of black-white marriages is in the West, where some 15,600 of the 7.6 million married couples are mixed. In all areas except the South, the interracial couples are concentrated in urban areas of more than 50,000 persons.

Busing Decisions Are Due Soon

Washington—(NBNS)—Federal courts across the country have been tossing the ball back and forth over the question of busing black city children to suburban schools and white suburban children to the inner city in an effort to achieve racially-balanced school systems.

Last week, the nine-member Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati nullified a Dec. 8 decision by one of its three-judge panels to uphold the mass system-wide busing plan in Detroit. On Thursday, all nine judges of the court heard again arguments in the Detroit case and are expected to issue a new decision soon.

If the majority of the full court remains true to form, it is believed the busing plan will be upheld in Detroit. However, some pro-busing attorneys have forseen a possible procedural snag that may force a retrial of the case from the beginning.

If the full court does uphold the busing plan, the decision would be in direct conflict with the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals which has invalidated a similar plan in Richmond. This would present two opposing alternatives to the U.S. Supreme Court which has said it will rule on the Richmond case this spring or summer.

Previously, the Sixth Circuit has divided

What Will Happen to Green Fair Manor Apartments?

Many of us can remember the Mitchell Quarters, Coleman's Alley, Easter Egg Village, and (the more recent) "Queen City" areas. There are many citizens of our community who can remember these early housing areas in which many of us lived prior to 1960. If we really look back at those housing areas, we'd quickly recall the many unsanitary conditions which existed. Several which comes to mind would be the lack of toilet facilities and an ample water supply for tenants of those depressed areas.

Since Urban Renewal has become a reality in the City of Lubbock, Green Fair Manor Apartments—which were named for two black citizens in Lubbock—was built to overcome some of the shortcomings of housing conditions for blacks in the City of Lubbock.

Green Fair Manor is, relatively, a young apartment complex, and to look at today, it would appear as though it has been around for more than a half a century. It appears as though nobody really cared about its construction, even those tenants who reside in the area at the present time.

Of recent, the director of the Lubbock Housing Authority has made it known publicly that the apartment complex is running in the red in operating the complex, because of several reasons. Not only this, but the City of Lubbock has placed a tax burden upon this dwelling which will be hard to pay.

There's no doubt about it, there are persons residing in this complex who are not paying enough rent. There are also those on the State Welfare program who should be looking for some type of job opportunity in this community. As one person told the West Texas Times recently, "there are persons living in Green Fair Manor who make more money than I do and the City of Lubbock is subsidizing their rent."

All of this may be true, but it would appear as though something could be done about the unpleasant conditions of the area. It would appear as though the Housing Authority Board of Directors would demand that something be done about this unpleasant area. All black people don't like living in filth. All the four letter words which are written in large bold black letters on the buildings and the litter which is seen in the streets could be taken care of in a matter of days.

At the outset, Green Fair Manor evidently was built to satisfy the needs of families to live in a healthy climate. Offsetting this goal, the apartments were built without recreational facilities for the children, no library and no day care center.

Granted, if there'll be a shake down on those persons who are not paying enough rent to reside in the apartments as well as those persons who do not meet the necessary guidelines, then something should be done about the terrible looking conditions of the complex.

This area is an eyesore in the community. It's time for the citizens of East Lubbock to demand that something be done about it. If this means moving out those persons who are merely living off the fat of the land, then this must be done. If the local Housing Authority Board is not doing their part, then this must be corrected. Something is wrong somewhere.

We're sure that we don't want another Queen City or the like. If this is the case, then let's quit keeping our eyes closed and our mouths shut about what is wrong in the area. This should go for every person who reside in Green Fair Manor as well as those persons who are responsible for its administration.

All of this can be done if we get up and do something about the conditions in the area. How in the hell can we be proud of being black when this dreadful area exists in our community? "The man" has spelled out what he is going to do about moving tenants out of Green Fair Manor. Now what are we gonna do about getting the area cleaned up?

East Lubbock has a lot of problems. We could name many others aside from this one. You know, we can't wait on the City of Lubbock all the time to help take care of them. We've got to get up and start doing something for ourselves.

What will happen to Green Fair Manor Apartments. Time will tell. Let's hope that the churches, NAACP, and all local organizations will do their part to help this dreadful problem.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

PROBERS' TARGET: HALDEMAN

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)
Washington—The top target in the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal will be President Nixon's chief of staff, Bob Haldeman.

Senate sleuths, we have learned, have tracked Watergate clues to the bright young men around Haldeman. There is solid evidence that at least two of Haldeman's proteges, Dwight Chapin and Gordon Strachan, knew of the Watergate operation.

The investigators will be able to show that Haldeman and Chapin were particularly close. On his way to the White House in the mornings, Haldeman used to route his limousine past Chapin's house and pick him up.

Chapin has admitted to the FBI that he ordered payments made for espionage and sabotage against Democratic presidential candidates during 1971 and 1972. White House insiders say that Chapin took his orders from Haldeman and could never have issued these instructions on his own.

Gordon Strachan also operated under the direct supervision of Haldeman. Senate investigators will be able to establish that Strachan was in direct touch with G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, Jr., who directed the espionage operation against the Democrats. Both Liddy and Hunt were convicted at the Watergate trial.

White House press spokesman Ronald Ziegler has denied that Haldeman knew anything about the Watergate intelligence-gathering activities. But Ziegler, too, works directly under Haldeman's control. And the tight little circle around Haldeman seems determined to protect him at all costs.

The slightest suggestion that Haldeman had any knowledge of the Watergate affair brings howls of indignation. But at least one witness has told investigators that Haldeman himself issued the orders to organize the Republican espionage and sabotage operation.

Haldeman is the most powerful man in the White House, second only to the President. The Democrats in the Senate would dearly like to entangle him in the Watergate scandal.

Food for Profit

The vending machine companies pulled a sleeper last year that will increase their profits at the expense of children's eating habits. Their lobbyists slipped a clause in the federal school lunch program, which will permit vending machines to be installed in schools. This means candy bars, potato chips and soda pop will be available to children with pocket change while school lunches are being served.

From a federal standpoint, the Agriculture Department merely has to wave the checkered flag and the machines will be rolled into the cafeterias to lure youngsters away from more nutritious food.

The venders, in a hurry to collect their new profits, are rushing efforts to install their machines in the cafeterias. Local soft drink bottlers in many states, for example, are writing governors advising them on the new law. A typical letter from Coca Cola advises the governor of New Mexico that President Nixon has signed the vending machine bill and that it will mean a boon to the state's economy.

What the soft-drink people don't say, of course, is that the money will come from the pockets of children who might otherwise drink milk rather than soda pop at lunch.

The competition from vending machines will also leave children with less money to spend on more wholesome cafeteria food. This could cause a serious setback for the federally-supported food service programs. These programs have trouble breaking even as it is.

Alarmed school officials, therefore, intend to raise a howl on Capitol Hill to get the law reversed. They will charge that Congress defaulted in its responsibility to encourage nutrition among school children. Even without the new lure of soda pop and candy bars in the cafeterias, one official told me, our schools are failing miserably to teach youngsters to eat the right foods.

Methadone Scandal

Medical officials have clamped the lid on a major methadone scandal in New York City. The scandal could discredit the nation's only widely accepted method of treating heroin addicts.

New York City, home of over half the heroin addicts in the nation, now treats 30,000 addicts in methadone programs. Methadone deaths have risen so meteorically during the past year that Gordon Chase, the city commissioner in charge of health services, has sought to quiet the criticism.

Competent sources tell me that Chase has ordered the city medical examiner's office to list the methadone deaths as "drug related" or "cause unknown" in an attempt to hide the methadone accidents. These sources say that 500 addicts died of methadone overdose last year. On at least one occasion, a young Puerto Rican was administered a fatal overdose by a physician in a New York hospital.

Many of the licensed methadone clinics are run for profit, sometimes by persons with no experience in the medical profession. A restaurateur and a building contractor, for example, operate methadone clinics.

At some methadone centers, doctors dish out the drug like short-order cooks, over-prescribing methadone if the patients have the money to pay. Clinics closed for the weekends permit patients to take home extra dosages to last until Monday. Frequently, the patients resell the methadone to untreated addicts. Many heroin addicts supplement their "high" with other drugs. Experts consider methadone particularly dangerous when mixed with other drugs.

A spokesman for New York City's health services justified the practice of not mentioning methadone in all deaths that involve methadone. He explained that other drugs are also involved, so the examiners can't be sure that methadone caused the deaths. The spokesman acknowledged, however, that the methadone program in New York City is "looser than we would like."

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

There's been some changes in many social programs in this country as of last week. As many of you may know by now, President Richard Nixon has curtailed many of the Great Society Programs which were introduced and became realities by the late former president, Lyndon B. Johnson.

With this new movement from Capitol Hill in Washington, it would appear that we as members of the black community would start doing other things which will help our struggle in this cold world. Right here in the City of Lubbock, there are many business opportunities we could put together if we just put our minds in the right frame of thinking.

In looking around the City of Lubbock, I found out (maybe many of you know by now) that according to last years (1972) figures there were over $60 million worth of construction in our community. I would predict Lubbock to top this figure in 1973 because of the many building projects underway at the present time.

This, in itself, should turn on many of us who are concerned about making it in this world. It should tell us that there is a healthy economic base in our community. What we got to do is become a part of what is happening all around us. It can be done if we really put our minds together to do something.

I must admit that at one time in my life, I couldn't see beyond my face. You know, after experiencing many things in the past few years, I can see clearly now that there are opportunities which can stagger ones imagination.

So perhaps what Mr. Nixon has done will serve as a catalyst for us to get up and do something which we wouldn't have done in the past. Maybe his actions (let's hope so) will open our eyes to the need for blacks in Lubbock and West Texas to establish an economic base which will help the black communities as well as those cities and towns which are in the area.

Granted, there will be brothers and sisters who will tempt you to think different about owning something. Before you take them at their word, ask yourself if that person or persons is as aggressive as you are when it comes to getting over.

It's out there waiting for us to put it together. I hope we will make things happen that will benefit all of us. If we start being more concerned about our lack of economic endeavors, we'll be in a better position to overcome many of our social problems as well as create a political base also.

Think about it, it makes a hell of a lot of sense.

Thought of the Week: "Anything the mind can conceive, man can achieve."

It looks as though the city of Lubbock will not cut those weeds on East 24th Street (near the west side of the overpass). I've called twice to the City Manager's office and both times I was told that something would be done about them.

As I See It, those weeds could create a tragedy in our community. Our young people cross in this area, going to and from school (Ella Iles Elementary School). In the morning hours, the weeds hide the children and the sun blinds the drivers going over the overpass.

Since the city of Lubbock hasn't taken care of the dreadful area, maybe a Boy Scout troop or even a Cub Scout pack in one of our schools could make this a project. It wouldn't take long fellows. You could spend this Saturday morning or afternoon doing something that would certainly help some brother or sister. If I can assist you in this endeavor, please call me.

 It's really beautiful to see people in the community concerned about the dreadful disease, Sickle Cell Anemia. A young 17 year old girl, Vernell Baucum Hightower, was a victim recently. Her sister, Gwendolyn, age 14, is a victim also.

Let's all participate in giving to the trust fund spearheaded by the Community Action Board in Lubbock County. The trust fund is set up at Texas Commerce Bank. Give to the trust fund.

For further information, contact Dempsey Taylor at the local CAB office. Let's go over big with the fund and also give this agency hour support in setting a program for the disease.

Letters to The Editor . . .

T.J.,
 I read in your editorial of your suggestion for a fund for the family of Vernell. At the time of your last issue, you did not indicate where this money could be sent. Therefore, I hope that you would not mind forwarding the enclosed check.

Again I want to thank you for the concern you have for the citizens of Lubbock and your efforts to help all of them.

Dallas Police Department will Recruit in Lubbock Next Wednesday and Thursday

The Dallas Police Department is recruiting here for minority police applicants in an effort to increase police effectiveness in all areas of the city.

The special drive here is manned by police recruiters Officer Donald Ortega and Officer Merle Lawson. They will be in the area February 28 and March 1.

Recruiter Ortega outlined the procedures and purpose of the minority recruiting drive:

"The Dallas community is composed of many groups. We believe that the force can render more effective service to the public if our ranks more nearly approximate the ethnic composition of Dallas."

He continued, "We want to give the residents of this area an opportunity to find out about a law enforcement career with the Dallas Police Department. We'll be available to talk about the job and find out more about the applicant. If there is a further interest, we want them to come to Dallas for processing."

The special effort to recruit minorities into police service in Dallas has been in progress for almost two years. Recruiters have tried several approaches to encourage minority group members to consider law enforcement careers. A one-to-one street approach proved fairly successful during the summer of 1971.

When the educational requirement for employment was raised to 30 and then 45 college hours, recruiters turned to the college campuses. Five Dallas police department recruiters were students at five Southwest area minority colleges during the spring semester of 1972. They served in a dual capacity of encouraging careers in law enforcement and trying to bring about better understandings on the part of students of police

February, 1973—Brotherhood Month—Background Study: With the revolution of 1848 a new era opened in the history of central European Jewry, bringing with it a wave of enthusiasm among them. The revolution was accompanied by antisemitic excesses and the constitutional achievements (such as the abolition of all discrimination on religious grounds) were again whittled down once the reactionary forces won the upper hand.

For the Jews the 1850's and 1860's were a happy period, according to historian Walter Laqueur. They attained full civil equality in Germany, Austria-Hungary, in Italy and in Scandinavia. In 1858 the first British Jew entered Parliament, and after 1870 Jews could attend English Universities.

Two Jews, Cremieux and Goudchaux, were members of the French Republican government of 1848; Achille Fould became Louis Napoleon's minister of finance. Paul Ehrlich, bacteriologist had almost instant success; Freud and Einstein were involved in a revolution in scientific thought. Emil Rathenau became one of the pioneers of Germany's electrical industry; Max Liebermann was thought to be Germany's greatest living painter during these years and German musical life was unthinkable without the part played by Jews.

"In the civilized world the Jewish tribe had found at last not only justice and freedom but also a certain recognition. Now at long last it had unlimited freedom to develop its talents, not as an act of mercy but as a right acquired through thousandfold sufferings," wrote Heinrich Graetz in 1870.

Proposed federal welfare rules criticized by N.M. HSS Director—Proposed federal welfare regulations intended to reduce the ineligible welfare recipients has been sharply criticized recently by State Health and Social Services Director, Richard Helm. Governor Bruce King said he concurs with Helm's criticism. The governor said he hopes pressure from the fifty states will force the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to drop what he called "foolish and unworkable proposals."

The federal regulation, to become effective April 1, would reduce federal assistance payments by amounts equal to estimated overpayments by the states. Helm said the proposal would reduce federal welfare payments by $700 million nationwide during the next 18 months and by $3.08 million in New Mexico. Helm's comments came in a letter to John O. Twiname, administrator of social and rehabilitation services for HEW in Washington, D.C.

"Only a case-by-case review will we be able to locate cases of overpayment and your proposed regulation makes no contribution to such a review", Helm stated. He added that the federal agency had demanded that New Mexico, and the other states, do in 20 days what neither you nor HEW could do in the preceding four years.

 Bellringers who are visiting in the Brownfield, Texas area are urged to be sure and visit the Brownfield State Bank and see the largest private collection of art in West Texas. Bruce Zorns, the genial president of the institution took us on a brief visit of some of the collection but we plan to go back and spend more time browsing. Mr. Zorns is particularly proud of the potential works of Milton Taulton, a young black artist and a graduate (1972) of Brownfield High School.

Taulton's works has created quite a bit of excitement among art enthusiasts. He is now serving in the U.S. Armed Forces and Mr. Zorns as well as other friends of the area plan to lend every encouragement possible, to young Taulton. He has also illustrated a book written by Loman Jones.

Colorful costumes, a psychedelic backdrop and unusual lighting effects will reflect the blow-your-mind type theme.

Cost of admission is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students. Tickets may be purchased at the door during the hour prior to the performance.

Tickets for front or middle sections of the 1500 capacity auditorium may be reserved during the week by telephoning band director Roy J. Barbee at the school (763-7021). Reserved tickets, priced at $2 per person, may be

"Everyone who is in our talent show this year had to survive several days of stiff competition," commented Barbee. "This is our major fund-raising activity of the year, and the people who come to the show will find they are really getting their money's worth. We will appreciate Lubbock's support."

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

If I was Gerald Myers, I would throw my arms around, and implant a particularly big kiss on, the guy who made out the 1972-73 Southwest Conference basketball schedule.

No, sex isn't rearing its ugly (?) head. It's just a matter of logic. If you had to be without the services of your 6-10 leader, which two games would you pick? You'd pick the weakest teams in the league, right? And that's just what happened.

Texas Tech overcame a rapidly improving TCU team at home and a so-so Rice team on the road. And Ron Richardson sat out both games. If Tech had lost either, or both, that flu bug might well have received an Oscar, or Tony, or Emmy, from SMU and the other teams.

As it was, the Raiders had William Johnson as a replacement, along with what coaches love to call character and pride. They simply refused to let adversity get them down.

The two victories last week, along with the upset of SMU by TCU, virtually clinched the title for Tech. Oh, Gerald would protest that statement, but a calamity approaching the magnitude of the Titanic's sinking would have to occur to keep Tech out of the throne room.

Going into this week, the picture was clear. Tech must win only two of its four remaining games to clinch a tie. SMU, at the same time, would have to win all four remaining games.

You get a pretty good picture of the cold facts on Tech's achievement when you read the records at home and on the road. Put in black and white, here's the way it looked after Saturday night:

Team	Home Games		Road Games
Texas Tech	5	0	4	1
SMU	4	1	3	2
Arkansas	4	1	2	3
Baylor	2	3	3	2
A&M	4	1	1	4
Texas	3	2	1	4
Rice	2	3	0	5
TCU	2	3	0	5

It makes an interesting picture. Baylor has a better road record than it has a home mark, while A&M has been almost unbeatable at home, almost incapable of winning on the road.

The standings point up what has been known for years, that is, a champion must win its home games and post better than a .500 mark on the road. SMU is the only other team that meets the criterion—and it's lone home loss was to Tech.

So, although there are four games remaining as this is being written, the race is as good as over, barring a complete collapse by the Raiders. And 10 will get you one that that doesn't happen.

It's possible to look ahead to the playoffs. First, Tech will have to play a sub-regional game, possibly against Houston. If it wins that, it goes to the NCAA Regional tournament, where it might face the Missouri Valley champion, or the Big 9. So, keep your seat belt buckled. The season ain't over yet.

So, you thought that soccer was just a passing fad in West Texas, did you? You thought that just a few non-football type athletes at Tech were playing and gosh, they must be having fun, but so what?

Well, the so-what is not getting down to the 10 to 15 year old age group. And, if it catches on there, the future for the sport could well be assured.

Now comes the Lubbock Area Youth Soccer League. It is being sponsored by the Lubbock Area Baptist Assn. and Ralph J. Edwards, minister of education at the Calvary Baptist Church, has been named coordinator. He has made plans to organize this month and next, sponsoring training clinics and getting Tech's cooperation. Clinics will be held in Lubbock, as well as at Tahoka, Idalou, Lorenzo, Abernathy, Ralls, Post and Slaton.

The sponsors plan some practice games in April, with a regular schedule to start Sept. 1. They even anticipate putting on demonstrations during the halves of Tech soccer games.

Soccer, like basketball, is a "negligible" contact sport, but don't think there isn't contact. There is. But the principle emphasis is on skill and dexterity, body control and teamwork. It can be, and is, an exciting sport and there's no earthly reason why it shouldn't have outstanding success locally.

If anyone is interested, they can contact Mr. Townsend at 747-8455. He'll be more than delighted to talk with you.

Final Rites Read For Oscar Mosley

Slaton—Final rites were read Monday afternoon for Oscar Mosley, 72, of Slaton, who died last week in Methodist Hospital. Services were conducted in the Free Will Baptist Church with Rev. E. Cannady, pastor, officiating.

Burial was held in Englewood Cemetery under direction of Sedberry Funeral Home of Lubbock.

A native of Tyler, Texas, Mosley moved to Slaton from Shallowater about three years ago.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Corine Davenport of La Campo, Texas; a brother, R.D. Mosley of Los Angeles, California; and two sisters, Mrs. Nora Carroll of Slaton and Mrs. Louvena Mosley of Tyler.

Governor Dolph Briscoe recently signed a proclamation declaring February 17-24 as FFA Week in Texas. State FFA President Frederick McClure, right, of San Augustine and State Advisor J. A. Marshall, left, of Austin were present at the ceremony. Governor Briscoe commended the FFA for the fine job it is doing in training its members to become informed, active citizens and urged all Texans to join in appropriate observance of FFA Week.

In Grateful Appreciation—We just want to thank God and every one of you for your kind expressions of love toward my husband and me during his illness. Your calls, cards and contributions proved to us you did all in your power to make it comfortable for us in our troubled time. As God must have the last word, we really thank Him. All the beautiful flowers from his employers and friends made us feel so good. He is home and is now recuperating nicely. Please keep praying for us. Mr. and Mrs. David Crockett, Sr. and Family

Lord for their Shepherd only in times of drought, danger, and death.

The brother of Sister Alberta Horton and Mattie Denson is critically ill in St. Mary Hospital. Let us remember this family in prayer and courtesy and love.

Let us pray for and visit our sick and shut in members. Sisters Maggie Tatum, Dolly Howard, Ida Johnson, Laura Jamison and Blanche Swisher are ill this week. Brothers Wilmar Wilson and Samuel Swisher are on the sick list.

Bethel A.M.E. Church

Services were well attended last Sunday with Rev. Jack Robinson filling the pulpit for Rev. A.W. Wilson, pastor, who has been ill for several weeks. The Youth Choir rendered the music for the morning as they had several new selections.

Visitors for last Sunday morning were Cub Scouts from Phillis Wheatley Elementary School who were accompanied by their Cub Scout master, Charles E. Brown, and Den Mothers, Mrs. E. Devenport and Mrs. E. Sanders. Also present were members of Eta Lambda Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority of Texas Tech University. Mrs. Winnie Overstreet and Mrs. Mae Jessie Mathis were also among the visitors.

Let us continue to pray for our sick and shut-in members. Members ill this week include Rev. A.W. Wilson, Mrs. Mable Carter, Mrs. Maunita Terrell, Mrs. B.M. Jamison, Mr. L.C. Williams and Mrs. Mary Sterling and Ronnie, her son.

Lyons Chapel Baptist Church

The Senior Mission Society's weekly meeting was held last Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Lucille Everett, 2626 Baylor Avenue. Mrs. Everett has been ill for quiet sometimes and it was decided to meet in her home for prayer from each of the Mission sisters. Those who attended were Mrs. Dorothy Hood, president; Mrs. O.D. Hollins, Mrs. L. Baldwin, Mrs. A. Johnson, Mrs. G. Sheppard, Mrs. G. Fulton and Mrs. F. Cooks. A most inspirational meeting was held.

You've got a lot to live and God's got a lot to give so come get some of God's givings at Lyons Chapel.

Sunday services were good and the attendance was excellent. Both pianist were out, but Sue Ray brought us through the day. Rev. Emery Moss brought the message.

His subject was "A Giant That Each and Everyone of Us Has in Our Lives." It was taken from I Samuel, 17:1-58.

Sunday afternoon, our congregation attended the installation services of Rev. C.D. Collins in Levelland, Texas. It was a very enjoyable afternoon.

We are still asking your concern for children that would desire to go to Church, but have no transportation. For information, please call 763-7041, ext. 203 or 765-7924.

Please give to the Vernell Baucham Hightower Fund, a young lady of our church who died of Sickle Cell Anemia. Send your contributions to the Texas Commerce Bank, Lubbock, Texas.

The Young Matrons will sponsor a program on the fourth Sunday in February. It will be entitled, "Hands, Which Hands are Yours?"

We are asking your prayers for Mrs. Bettye Miller who is on the sick list as well as others who are ill.

Thought of the Week: "Whoever God chooses, He qualifies."

Unity Baptist Church

The Unity Baptist Church is sponsoring a program, which opened February 19th, and will continue through the 25th. Theme for the program is, "The Modern Day Christian and His Need" and it is under the direction of Mrs.

Roberta Thompson of the New Hope Baptist Church.

A King and Queen Contest will climax the program on the 25th at 4:00. Children involved in this contest are Tanara Quigley, Phylis Moore, Keith Bogus, David Powell and Bobby Sewell. Mrs. Caesar Graves, member of New Lite Baptist Church, will crown the King and Queen Sunday.

Your support of this program will be greatly appreciated. Unity Baptist Church is located at 1504 East 15th Street and is under the direction of Rev. Robert D. Adams.

itself into three-judge panels and apportioned cases among them. Rarely is the decision of such a panel reversed. However, recently, one panel upheld mass busing in the Detroit area while another struck down a busing order in Chattanooga.

Therefore, the full court has taken the unusual step of rehearing both the Detroit and the Chattanooga cases in order to adopt a uniform policy on school desegregation in the four states of the Sixth Circuit, namely, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

New arguments in the Chattanooga case were heard by the full court last Dec. 14.
