Two Texas Tech University Students in Mass Communications Receive Grants

Two Texas Tech University Mass Communications students, seniors Robert Montemayor and Brenda N. Boyd, have been selected for grants-in-aid from the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

They are among 58 minority students enrolled in 34 accredited journalism school programs at universities across the nation to receive the awards.

Montemayor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine Montemayor Jr. of Route 6, Lubbock and Mrs. Boyd is the daughter of Mrs. N.R.

Harvey of 2104 Elm, Lubbock. The Montemayors formerly lived in Tahoka.

The $300 grants, effective with the September 1974 semester, were made through the foundation's Scholarship Program for Minority Journalism Students, a program in its seventh year.

The recipients were selected from more than 121 applicants from students at 42 schools. In most cases, they are journalism majors entering their junior or senior year. Of this year's awards 14 were renewal grants to students who had received aid from the foundation the past year. This is Mrs. Boyd's second grant from the foundation.

Montemayor has been named editor of the University Daily, the Texas Tech student newspaper, for the next academic year and he is also editing it this summer.

Mrs. Boyd is employed this summer by the City of Lubbock in its Parks and Recreation Department, as assistant director of George Woods Community Center.

"The goal of the scholarship program is to help minority journalism students complete their education and to encourage them to enter the daily newspaper field," said Stewart R. MacDonald, executive director of the ANPA Foundation. "A brief survey conducted earlier this year indicates more than 60 percent of the students who had received aid through the Foundation program are presently working for daily newspapers."

The original program was established with a $100,000 contribution from the Robert R. McCormick Trust of Chicago. To insure the continuance of the scholarship program the board of trustees voted to bring the program funds within the Foundation's general endowment fund which has now grown to $6 million.

In early spring 1975 the Foundation again will offer to help grant recipients find summer or permanent job opportunities at daily newspapers by acting as a clearing house for their resumes.

Kick-Off Fund Raising Dinner for Mary Kirchoff Set July 2nd at Plainview

Senator John Tower of Texas, will be the featured speaker at a kick-off fund raising dinner for State Senatorial Candidate Mary Kirchoff of Plainview at 8 p.m. July 2nd at the Plainview Country Club. Senator Tower, one of the strongest voices in Washington, is the senior Republican member of the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Development. He also serves on the Joint Committee on Defense Production, and is the second ranking Senator on the Armed Services Committee.

A reception in honor of Senator Tower will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Kirchoff from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the couple's home, 105 Yucca Terrace. Tickets to the reception are available from Mack Hunter at the City National Bank. Raymond Aiken and Dr. Joe Webb are in charge of ticket sales for the dinner at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Kirchoff, a long-time political observer has had a wide and varied career in service to the community and the state. In 1965 she was appointed by the County Commissioners to serve on the first board to establish what is now the Central Plains General Hospital. In this same year she had the honor of being the first woman elected to serve on the Executive Board, West Texas Chamber of Commerce. In 1966 she was the only woman to testify on the 45 public forums concerning water importation to West Texas. As an outgrowth of this, she was asked to serve in organizing "The Small Towns Task Force" concerning survival of the smaller communities. Her material consequently was published in The Small Community in West Texas. Currently Mrs. Kirchoff is serving as the 30th Senatorial District State Committee Woman. Her husband John J. and son John are farmer-stockmen. Her daughter Karen is a junior at Texas Tech University.

Reciting a poem, "I'm In Love With Life", Zasu Lemons captured the eyes of the 300 persons present last Friday evening at Vanns' Catering Service as she was crowned "Miss Black Teenage" for 1974. The Dunbar High School student is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Y. Taylor.

The newly crowned "Miss Black Teenage" was speechless as her name was called by Dr. Hazel Taylor, director of the pageant.

First runner-up was Beckey Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Hill, an Estacado High School student. Her talent was a dance with background music of "Young Gifted and Black."

Second runner-up was Pam Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Gibson. A Dunbar High School student, her talent was black poetry, "Aren't We All."

Cheryl Barber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Radford, was third runner-up. For her talent, she did black poetry, "When Melinda Sings."

Other participants in the pageant were Tammie Belvin, Benis Jones, Nedra Perry, Adrian Leonard, Cathy Childers, Linda Carroll Hall, LeDestra Harvey, Cathy Wells, and Margie Robinson. Each lovely young lady received an award for their efforts from the sponsor of the pageant, local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin made the presentations.

Prior to the crowning of Miss Black Teenage, Dr. Emory Davis, associate professor at Texas Tech University, spoke to the group at this first annual Freedom Fund Banquet. Dr. Davis told the eager crowd that they should be proud to be black, beautiful and free. He said, "We as blacks must assert our blackness first, and our other alliances and affiliations subsequently."

He went on to tell the group, "We are black, we are proud, and we demand the respect and accord due to people of our accomplishments, stature and heritage."

Dr. F.L. Lovings, president of the local unit, told the group, "We have a good program and the organization will continue to do a good job for the citizens of Lubbock."

Invocation was given by Bishop W.D. Haynes and Mrs. Edna R. Walker played dinner music. Miss Maxine Jackson gave the purpose of the Freedom Fund Banquet and a special solo was given by Ms. Desma Moore.

Dr. Floyd Perry, Jr. introduced the speaker for the evening. Ms. Maxine McCormick, membership chairperson, made an impressive membership appeal.

Black Voting Rights Push Cited

Washington — (NBNS) — Only recently has the Justice Department begun to use long-held power to approve election laws in a number of Southern states, thereby protecting the rights of black citizens.

In a study by three non-profit organizations, it was found that the Justice Department has until recently been reluctant to use Section 5 of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, which has effectively kept states from re-imposing new forms of discrimination to replace old outlawed provisions.

David Hunter, author of the study, pointed out the Administration under President Nixon even wanted to repeal the measure. But Congress balked and forced Justice to make states prove that the proposed changes in voting laws were not discriminatory.

Rutgers Compensates for Bias

New York — (NBNS) — In the largest compensatory payment in relation to racial or sexual discrimination made by any university in the country, Rutgers University has decided to pay more than $375,000 to minority group faculty members and women who received lower salaries than their white counterparts.

Opportunity Here For East Lubbock Businesses

Businesses in the East Lubbock community have an opportunity this week and next to have professional people help them in the problems they are having in their various businesses. This needed service is being administered by the 413th Civil Affairs Company, U.S. Army Reserve, with the cooperation of the East Lubbock Business Association.

We would advise any business in East Lubbock that is having some type of problem to go by Wheatley Elementary School, 1802 East 28th Street, and secure assistance from persons who can help. Areas of expertise will be found in the legal, finance, public relations, and accounting.

We at the West Texas Times would encourage all East Lubbock businesses to take advantage of this special program which will continue through June 30. Persons will be available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

It must be clearly understood that the only reason those persons are available for the East Lubbock business men and women is to help with the many problems which confront businesses in East Lubbock. These services are free and the outcome will mean a lot for those concerned.

If this project will prove to be successful, it will open up other avenues which will help the East Lubbock business man and woman.

Representation Will Help In Major Decisions

Although we are living in a time in which it costs to get anything worthwhile, there still needs to be some type of input from residents throughout the city of Lubbock. We say this in regard to the recent across the board increase in the electrical rates in our community.

These kinds of decisions, unless they are explained carefully, will be misunderstood by the residents of the "have not" community. We hope that this point will be considered when time comes for our community to expand our present city council.

The electric rate increase has happened. We don't like to see such a thing happen. Since it has, we will have to go along with the program and hope these kinds of moves won't continue this year.

Who Controls?

The political line from Democratic headquarters in Washington has been, for two years now, that moderates are in control of the party. To a good degree, that is a valid claim in speaking of the National Committee and its leadership.

But so-called McGovernites are staging a strong comeback in several states and some feel it's now doubtful whether moderates will be in control of the party's midterm convention—scheduled for Kansas in December.

Political experts examining results of delegation selections in Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota note that McGovernites, or what some call new political activists, have solid control of these delegations and others. They have vocal minorities in many more and left activist groups seem certain to control the country's two largest delegations—from California and New York (to be chosen in December and September).

Moderates are in control in delegations from Pennsylvania, Ohio (presumably), Texas, Tennessee, South Carolina and several other states. But the goal of Democratic National Chairman Texan Robert Strauss, to avoid the fatal image of 1968 and 1972, when McGovernites favoring such things as amnesty for draft dodgers, civil rights for homosexuals, etc., were in loud control, has not been attained.

Kansas City, then, this December may surprise not only the voters, but the Democratic Party itself. While left activists are openly optimistic, Republicans are also encouraged, for they feel if the far left controls the Democratic Party again in 1976 that element will again produce G.O.P. victory—as it almost surely affected the elections in 1968.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

The American Football Coaches Association "All America Game" has got to be one of the greatest things to happen to the city of Lubbock and the South Plains area. This year's fete is perhaps the best of all. As I See It, Lubbock has got to be the permanent home of this yearly classic.

I had an opportunity last Saturday morning to sit on the astro-turf at Jones Stadium and watch those young men on the West squad practice in 90 degree heat and give all they had in preparation for the big game Saturday. Across the street, the East fellows were doing likewise. All of these young men, regardless of what team they are playing for, give their best for this special effort.

On last Saturday evening, I had an opportunity to attend the annual barbecue at Lake Ransom Canyon for the All Americans and their host families. While there and brushing around the crowd talking with many people concerned about the game, I enjoyed the healthy comments from Bill Murray, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association.

Coach Murray, as he is referred to by his peers, is quite sold on the All America Game in the Hub City. In listening to him speak about how great citizens of Lubbock are about this summer event, he knows Lubbock will be the host city for the future All American Games.

This writer would encourage all of our readers to make a special effort to purchase a ticket to attend this Saturday evening event. It will be on national television (ABC) and Lubbock will again receive a great deal of attention.

The talent becomes greater each year. If you get a chance this week, talk to some of the black All Americans who are in our city this week. You'll be glad you did. These young men are not only good on the astro-turf, but will enlighten you on a lot of things.

Hope to see many of you Saturday at Jones Stadium. This is Lubbock's fifth.

All of you beautiful black teenage sisters who participated in the first "Miss Black Teenage Pageant" did a splendid job last week. I wish I could tell each of you personally, but I want you to know how good you were. I wish every black sister in East Lubbock could participate as you did.

Young sisters, each of you are winners in your own right. It so happens that there can only be one winner to represent the title. The experience each of you received will make you prime talent for the Miss Black Lubbock Pageant one day. Just keep on trucking, sisters, and you will be glad you did.

Thank you Tammie, Benis, Nedra, Beckey, Adrian, Cheryl, Cathy, Linda, LeDestra, Cathy, Margie and Pam for your efforts. Zasu, I wish you well as you reign this year.

The Lubbock unit of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) is to be congratulated for a job well done in coordinating the talent of these young people. I hope you will make this an annual affair.

It's about time for the trash and rubbish to be picked up in the Green-Fair Manor Apartments. While driving through the complex last Saturday, it was ridiculous how the trash was running over the top of the trash cans.

As we've made clear in the past, those dumpsters are dangerous placed in front of the apartments. It's a wonder some young black kid hasn't been hit while dashing from behind one of them.

As I See It, the trash could be picked up more often this summer. It would be a good thing if the tenants would tell the people running the apartments to do something about the trash and rubbish situation.

Since the in-depth story we did last year, Green-Fair Manor looks the same as it did then. Shouldn't something be done about that "thing?" If you don't believe me, then check it out for yourself.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

PIECEMEAL PEACE

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The reason President Nixon made his swing through the Middle East was to bask in Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's success. The President wanted to share with Kissinger the credit for bringing peace to the Middle East.

But the strategy may backfire. For Arab leaders have made it clear to the President that they still expect Israel to withdraw from all Arab territory seized in 1967 and to establish a Palestinian state on Jordan's west bank. They are counting upon Nixon and Kissinger to persuade Israel to make these concessions.

I spoke to the top Israeli leaders during my own recent visit to the Middle East. I talked with both outgoing Prime Minister Golda Meir and incoming Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

They have absolutely no intention of giving up all the seized territory. The Israeli leaders said, in time, they might pull back to their 1967 borders. They spoke of a "piecemeal peace" withdrawing a little at a time as the Arabs demonstrated their peaceful intent. Golda Meir suggested this might take 20 years.

It's doubtful that the Arabs will wait 20 years. In the meantime, the delicate Middle East peace may explode.

However, President Nixon did his homework before he flew to the Middle East. He carefully read through the hundreds of messages that Secretary of State Kissinger sent from the Middle East, as he negotiated the Israeli-Syrian truce.

Kissinger kept up his shuttle diplomacy for 34 days. He sent the President a dozen messages for his eyes only. Another 76 "flash" messages and 633 priority messages were also teletyped back to Washington.

The President read them all. He told friends afterward that Kissinger's messages read like a novel, as he patched together the tenuous peace in the Middle East. Several times, the negotiations seemed to break down. On the eve of the truce, the secret messages were particularly gloomy. But in the end, the Kissinger magic prevailed.

Dirty Word: Milk has suddenly become a dirty word.

The Associated Milk Producers poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into President Nixon's re-election effort. They sought higher price supports, import quotas and an antitrust settlement. They are accused, in short, of trying to bribe the President of the United States.

The scandal has unfairly tainted everyone in the dairy industry. Yet the average dairy farmer knew as much about the dirty deals as a janitor at the Pentagon knew about Vietnam War strategy.

The dairy farmer, meanwhile, is in trouble. Milk and cheese prices are plummeting. Overhead costs are rising. And the bad publicity hasn't helped. Dairy operations are closing down all over the nation.

The political payoffs, it is now clear, have hurt more than helped the dairy industry. Other industries, which used to subsidize politicians, are now afraid of getting burned.

So all of a sudden, the politicians are having trouble raising funds from the special interests.

Sweetheart Deal? Will Charles Colson blow the lid off the White House? The former White House hatchet man recently pleaded guilty to one count of obstructing justice. In return, the Watergate attorneys agreed to drop all other charges against him.

Colson, furthermore, pledged his cooperation in the Watergate investigation. Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and his associates obviously hope Colson will produce some vital evidence. Most government lawyers we have talked to, however, think that Colson has maneuvered himself into a sweetheart deal.

First, Colson made a big splash by becoming a practicing Christian. He now attends prayer meetings and speaks believably of his "conversion". It is, of course, impossible to determine his sincerity. We can only cite the opinion of many of his closest associates. They don't believe a word of it.

Then Colson stood up in court, abashed and contrite, and declared another "conversion".

He has fulfilled his end of the bargain without giving the prosecutors what they are looking for.

—Sen. William Fulbright's primary election defeat is sure to change the Senate's foreign affairs function. He has been a Capitol Hill fixture for 32 years and has headed the Foreign Relations Committee since 1959.

Under his leadership, the committee became a foreign affairs gadfly. It challenged decisions and policies formulated at the White House. It conducted investigations all over the world. It had an incalculable role in bringing an end to American involvement in the Vietnam War.

Fulbright was a controversial figure, ready with a quiet but witty quip. He was especially disliked by fellow Southerner Lyndon Johnson. The former President dubbed him "Sen. Halfbright."

Next in line to head the committee is Alabama's Sen. John Sparkman, who now runs the Banking Committee. He has told friends privately that he will head foreign affairs and give up banking. Under his leadership, the Foreign Affairs Committee will lose its bite and cooperate more with the White House. In contrast to Fulbright, Sparkman believes in a strong defense establishment and strong alliances.

With Sparkman in charge, the committee will reduce its investigative function. When the White House wants something, there will be less advice and far more consent.

He Didn't Take Care: As we reported on March 7, the Watergate grand jury, by a 19 to 0 vote, named President Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Before the television cameras, the impeachment inquisitors took sharply different positions on the importance of the grand jury's action. But in the cloakrooms, there was almost unanimous agreement that the disclosure badly hurt the President.

Congressmen agreed privately that if 19 ordinary Americans decided the evidence warranted an indictment of their President, Congress would probably reach the same conclusion.

Meanwhile, 14 Nixon aides have either confessed or have been convicted of Watergate crimes. Another dozen have been indicted or expect to be indicted.

Either the President participated in the crimes, or they were committed under his nose. Whichever is true, a growing number of congressmen want to impeach him. For the Constitution declares that the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

ford said the $100 million is "new money", consisting of $35 million in unobligated money from the current fiscal year and $65 million budgeted for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

He said the money will enable 36 local housing authorities to design improvement programs and carry out improvements that will become permanent. He said the new funds, known as TPP for "Target Projects Program," will create projects that can be financed through the modernization and also permit the hiring of staff to put innovations into effect.

HUD officials gave as an example the possible use of TPP funds to plan a better way to get rid of a chronic trash and litter problem and to hire additional personnel. Modernization funds might be used to buy a trash compactor or hauling equipment.

Crawford said many of the worst problems of crime, vandalism and frustration in public housing are the result of defective project designs. But in view of the large part they play in housing low-income families, about 1.1 million units with about 2.5 million residents, they must be salvaged if possible.

"We cannot correct the physical structures which were built," he said. "We can only work with these structures, improve them and provide the kind of management and service support that will not further add to the physical depreciation and deterioration of the buildings and frustration of their inhabitants."

Common Cause Urges Mahon to Open Meetings

Common Cause members of Lubbock are currently engaged in a letter writing campaign urging Congressman George Mahon to help open up Appropriations Committee meetings to the public. Similar efforts are being made in the approximately fifty other congressional districts whose representatives are members of this committee.

Since May of 1973, when the House of Representatives adopted a rule requiring all committee bill-drafting sessions to be open to the public unless the committee voted otherwise in open session, almost eighty percent of these meetings have been held publicly.

In marked contrast, however, the important Appropriations Committee has closed twenty-one out of twenty-two of its sessions. To date, the only open meeting has been an early session devoted to budget generalities. In subsequent closed-door sessions, the committee has appropriated money for vital areas such as agriculture, environment, consumer protection, transportation, atomic energy, military construction, and defense. As chairman of this committee, Congressman Mahon has great influence.

"There is no doubt that Representative Mahon has been of great help to the Lubbock and South Plains area," says Dr. Neale Pearson, professor of Political Science at Texas Tech. "On the other hand, it would seem appropriate for this committee, which votes on monies for the United States as a whole, to open up its meetings so that the public would know how various representatives are voting.

"If we support the idea that other committees hold open meetings, then it would be inconsistent on our part not to ask that this particular committee also hold most of its sessions openly, or at least the chairman announce reasons why he deems it necessary for a meeting to be closed," continued Dr. Pearson, coordinator for Common Cause in Lubbock.

Common Cause is a national citizens' lobby organized in 1970 by ex-secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, John W. Gardner. It has been active at the state level in Texas and was instrumental in passing five reform bills in Austin in 1973, as well as chalking up major legislative victories nationally such as helping to end the seniority system and ending the Vietnam war.

Baltimore Dilutes School Plan

Baltimore — (NBNS) —Bowing to community pressure, the city's school officials have presented a diluted desegregation plan to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The agency has insisted that the city make "substantial desegregation" changes in the city's 70 per cent black system next fall.

"We capitulated to the masses", said one of the conservative black members of the board. Among the changes made by the board was a reduction from 27 to 14 the number of elementary schools proposed for pairing to improve racial balance and adoption of a vaguely worded senior high school plan that will give each student a choice within regional boundaries.

Isn't it funny how little value other people put on your time?

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

It's almost kickoff time for the All America game and, for me and thousands of football fans, it can't be too soon. The game this year appears to have everything that makes an all star game great—passing, running, speed, hard hitting, defense.

Both squads are loaded with talent and it would be hard to pick a favorite, and since I won't have had a chance to see the teams work out, I'll go on blind faith in the West squad.

Naturally, folks in this area will have special attention on Joe Barnes and Kenneth Wallace, hoping that they both have outstanding games. Both are capable of it.

While Joe's chief rival, Jesse Freitas led the nation in passing, usually a key weapon in an all star game, Joe might have a little edge because he's a dangerous runner. Both men are capable of breaking the game wide open.

Then there are a number of other Southwest Conference stars on hand, with Dickey Morton of Arkansas having the potential to be a real star in the contest.

Billy Wyman of Texas was everybody's All-America and he'll be joined by such greats as Charlie Davis, a giant on defense for TCU; Berl Simmons, fine field goal and extra point man; and Steve George, recognized as a great defensive tackle for Houston.

This has been called the finest squad ever assembled for this, the 14th annual, All America game. Not only are there All Americans, but the highest number ever chosen in the pro draft's early rounds. This alone tells you their ability.

The pros seldom miss. Some of their choices will be cut, of course, but the fact that players have been chosen high in the draft speaks for what the pros think of their potential.

Advance ticket sales seem to be running ahead of other years and, with good weather Saturday, a lot of last minute sales are assured. And a lot of folks will come in from outlying areas at the last minute, as they always do.

Certainly the game deserves support for many reasons, not the least of which that a percentage of the gate goes to support charitable causes. But first and foremost, fans will see two teams composed of great players, and probably, a great game.

I guarantee you, I want to see such players as Randy Gradishar, Lynn Swann and Willie Burden in action. Also, Wilbur Jackson, John Holland and Bill Sandifer.

But then, you can go right down the list and name all the players. They didn't get here because of press clippings; they're here because they are tops. It's a glittering field and the average fan will have trouble concentrating on one player.

The other four games here have produced their share of excitement, with such undersung stars as Joe Orduna and Billy Taylor walking off with MVP awards. Last year? It was underhanded Terry Metcalf.

And so it goes. The players toiling in blissful unpublicized quietness explode to take honors from amongst the list of greats. Many times it goes right on to the pro ranks, too.

Earlier, I mentioned what this game did for charity, and it's true. There's really no way to measure the good that this game has done to help people in dire need.

At the same time, I wonder if people here ever stopped to think of the dividends for Lubbock. The game is telecast by ABC-TV nationwide. Have you checked recently to see what a minute's ad on national television cost? Forget it. Even the Chamber of Commerce and BCD couldn't afford it.

But ABC promotes the telecast and Lubbock is mentioned in those promos. Then comes the game and the exposure that Lubbock, and Texas Tech, gets couldn't be purchased.

It's favorable publicity from the start. And ABC remembers that the city, reeling from a vicious tornado, still pulled itself up by its bootstraps and said "The Game Will Go On." It did, too, with a record crowd—and it's been going upward ever since.

Then there's another facet fans don't really know and that is the fact that more and more sports writers are coming here for the game. That's nationwide publicity, too.

The writers came from the start, but in small numbers. Lubbock? Where's that? What would someone do in Lubbock? But they came, they saw and the city conquered. They've been coming in larger numbers ever since.

In fact, there's a serious move underway to move the annual COSIDA meeting from Chicago to Lubbock. COSIDA is the association of university and college sports information directors.

For years that group has held its annual meeting in conjunction with the College All Stars-pro champions game. That contest has lost its glamour and COSIDA is on the verge of moving to Lubbock because of the treatment received here, among other things.

So, for heaven's sake, if you haven't bought a ticket yet, hie yourself up to a Lion, or to the Tech ticket office, and buy one. This is one industry that doesn't demand much, but is with us every year. It deserves the support of each and everyone of us.

Just a quick word about the Old Timers game that the former WT-NM League players staged in Amarillo last Sunday. It was a great reunion again and the Amarillo Giants were great hosts.

Not as many of the Old Timers showed up as was hoped for, but conditions were perfect. They were hosts of the club at the Saturday night game, were treated to a buffet supper later and then played a three inning exhibition game Sunday.

Several of the players went to the links on both Saturday and Sunday for golf, and I was fortunate enough to play with Ted Clawitter, former Gold Sox catcher and manager.

Ted has fun, whether on the golf course or the baseball diamond, so there wasn't dull moment. Then I saw Gordon Nell, Nim Free, Deck Woldt and others for the first time in years. They all looked well, healthy and active. It was a fun weekend and the fans were generous in their welcome to the old players.

Mid American Football League to Organize a Team in Lubbock this Fall

L.H. Bengtson, president of the Mid American Football League, recently announced that efforts will begin next November to organize a league football team based in Lubbock.

Bengtson explained that initial efforts to organize such a team were made prior to this season's summer schedule, but because of the time needed to gather and deliver equipment, the organization of the Lubbock team was temporarily postponed.

"Even if we'd tried to rush things," said Bengtson, "the equipment still wouldn't have been delivered until July 1. The team would have had to automatically forfeit three league games."

"We don't want the team to be formed in a haphazard way. We want the best for Lubbock, and that requires approximately six months of preparation."

"The reception has been tremendous in Lubbock, and we have been greatly impressed by the spirit of co-operation. The public school administration was very helpful. The University's Coach Carlin, the Chamber of Commerce, and the people on the street have exhibited so much interest that we are really looking forward to our operation here in 1975," said Bengtson.

Other teams being considered for admittance to the Mid American Football League during the 1975 season are Tulsa, Oklahoma; Omaha, Nebraska; Jackson, Mississippi; Houston, Texas; and Albuquerque, New Mexico.

U. S. Army Reserve to Conduct Two Week Camp in East Lubbock this Month

The 413th Civil Affairs Company, U.S. Army Reserve, with the cooperation of the East Lubbock Business Association, will conduct its two-week summer camp in the Lubbock area from June 17 through June 30. Two small groups will be on special assignments to the East Lubbock Community.

One group of approximately eight individuals will be present at Wheatley Elementary School, 1802 East 28th Street, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. These individuals will represent the following professions: 2 lawyers, 2 bank officers, 2 public relations men, 2 accountants, and 2 Texas Tech business graduate students.

The only purpose of these members is to offer opportunity for community residents to discuss the many business problems confronting the businessmen today. These men want to help you with your business. This service is free. If these men are used, the possibility of continued business consulting is very possible.

Another group of about four persons will be available to discuss opportunities which can also help our community.

So come by Wheatley Elementary School from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, June 17 through 30.

Miss Black Lubbock, Brenda Joyce Lockhart, sang two numbers to the group while the announcement of "Miss Black Teenage" was pending. She accompanied by Ms. Gloria Hall Lyons, "Miss Black Lubbock" of 1972, who also crowned the teenage queen.

Special recognition was given to the various committees for a hardworking job. Those persons cited were Ms. Kate R. Noble and Ms. Ervin, Freedom Fund Banquet; Dr. Taylor and Ms. W.M. Washington, Miss Teenage Black Lubbock; Ms. McCormick and Roy Roberts, Action 74 Talent Review. Ms. Celestine Kyle was the announcer for the parade of the "Miss Black Teenage" participants.

Judges in the pageant were Mrs. Barbara Pillow, Mrs. Ida Johnson, Mrs. Marie Smith, Alywin Aleyne, and Charles Johnson.

Travel West Texas This Summer

Abundant family entertainment for Texans stretches down the center of the state, an easy ride from the Fort Worth complex to Austin and the Hill Country. The distance to the state capital. Some cars can drive of gasoline, today's 55 mph. It's not only a vacation idea, says frey of the West Chamber of Commerce, but it's a fuel-saver that the Texas tourist industry.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce serves this area from its Abilene office, said Godfred, WTCC executive vice president. Gov. Dolph Briscoe notes that more than 600,000 Texans are employed in the state's $2.2 billion tourist business. The area to the north, from Gainesville near the Red River to Jacksboro, features the old Butterfield Trail Route. And a train for vacationers, the Firefly, crosses the sometimes rugged terrain between Bridgeport and Fort Richardson at Jacksboro. The Fort Worth area has Six Flags Over Texas, in its 13th season; Seven Seas, in its third; Lion Country Safari, Texas Rangers baseball, and the newest sight worth seeing: the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, the world's largest.

Arts enrich Fort Worth through the Amon G. Carter Museum of Western Art, Kimbell Art Museum and the Fort Worth Art Museum. For theater there's Casa Manna. Eighty-seven miles south along Interstate 35 is Waco and Fort Fisher, home of Company F of the Texas Rangers. The fort is a replica of one established in 1837 and is the site of the Homer Garrison Memorial Texas Ranger Museum.

Austin, 106 miles farther, can be explored for its own beauty or serve as a jump-off for the Hill Country or the Highland Lakes, both to the west. Scenery comes in many forms in Austin, much of it historical: the 46-acre capital grounds; French Legation, built in 1841; the home of writer "O. Henry," a resident from 1885-95; and the newest and most popular attraction, the Lyndon B. Johnson Library. The LBJ Ranch and National Historic Site is just over an hour's drive west of Austin, near Stonewall. Horse-drawn vehicles are used for visitors. Hill Country memories last longer after detours through the small towns, some of them German in origin, with their reputations for tasty, solid food. This 200-mile, eastern fringe of West Texas is included in a new map published by the WTCC, the Wonderful West Texas Fun and Adventure Map. It and more than 200 brochures on individual cities of West Texas are available from: West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Box 1561, Abilene, Texas 79604.

JANICE JOHNSON of Littlefield, Texas was one of ten Lamb County girls who participated in the "Miss Lamb County Beauty Pageant" last Friday evening in the Littlefield High School auditorium. She is a junior student at Littlefield High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson of Littlefield. Janice is a member of the United Gospel Choir and sang for her talent.

Library to Observe Vagabond Week

The Lubbock City-County Library is recognizing National Vagabond Week by dedicating it to the vacationing public. Even if you cannot travel to the ends of the world, you can read about some of the exciting and out of the way places. There are books on the Fijis, Malta, the Canary Islands, Ceylon and the Easter Islands, all little known to the average West Texan. Near the special table of "island" books are maps showing locations of these exotic places. You may even take a vicarious trip to the sunken city of Elaphonisos of Myacenaean time. It is one of the archaeological excavation sites described in Nicholas Flemmings "Cities of the Sea."

The more frequented vacation spots, such as Japan, Hawaii, Padre Island, New Zealand, Scotland and Ireland are also represented in this special grouping of "travel books." The special table of books will be available from now until June 27 at the George and Helen Mahon Library, open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Most people are limited by their inability to appreciate others.

with Bob Tieuel

The Black Experience: "We in the South have a better opportunity than any area of America to solve the American dilemma, to become a model for race relations. We in the South have an opportunity, to take hold of the energy of industrialization and urbanization and show how it can be shaped into a graceful, humane and liveable environment—and one that too can be a model for the nation and indeed the world." Governor Linwood Holton of Virginia, 1972.

Bob Harvrees in his new book: "Superpower, U.S.A. in the 1970's" states that the people of the South, both black and white, live closer to the earth than they do in the rest of the United States, their passions are more primeval, more tribal, violence is more commonplace here than in other states. "Religion flourishes among its people still—religion of a fundamental, Bible-reading, hymn-singing sort—and they have retained an old-fashioned, even Gothic sense of sin. 'If God were permissive', says the signboard at the approach to one town in North Carolina, 'He would have given Moses the Ten Suggestions'.

As recently as 1967, Hargreaves adds, "only 4.3 percent of the South's black children were in school systems that had been desegregated, within two years the proportion reached 27.2 percent, and by the fall of 1970 was up to 90.5 percent. The 3 million black voters who live in the Old Confederacy have at last become a power to be reckoned with, not least by the new generation of white politicians who have been forced to take account of the blacks' aspirations and their growing political strength".

The odious apparatus employed in the Deep South to shore up its system of apartheid may have been dismantled, segregation may have largely disappeared in public places, but it remains as strong as ever it was in housing patterns, and housing patterns play an increasingly important part in enforcing willy-nilly, segregation in other spheres of life, in schools, for instance, believes the Anglo American correspondent for British television, Bob Hargreaves.

On Brown Experience: "La Causa, is led by the remarkable and charismatic Cesar Chavez, a man regarded by some as a saint, by others as a political fanatic. The successful 'grape strike' in 1970 made him an international figure. Today, broken in health by the fasts he undertook during LaHuelga—the strike—Chavez is revered by his people as the leader who brought them dignity," believes Hargreaves.

Recording star, Pat Boone, in a recent appearance in Hobbs for the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, told a press gathering that he was a member and elder in the Church on the Way in Los Angeles. "It means that we are on our way to heaven", he added. "Our doors are open to everyone, and especially to those with problems. Four years ago there were 18 church members and today there are more than three thousand. The members come from every background and economic level. About a fourth of them are Jews and there are also many Blacks and Orientals."

Editorial Quotes: "Duke Ellington was a 'great great' of music and of America. His shoes will never be filled by another mortal. His memory will never die because the more than 1000 songs which he composed and left for us to hear and to enjoy will live forever. Music is one thing that not only never dies, but it never grows old. Look at Bach, Beethoven, Mozart. Did you ever hear of anyone calling their music 'old fashioned' and out of date. "Long hair" perhaps but not too old. Young people of today and of tomorrow will be dancing to the melodies of "Sophisticated Lady", "In My Solitude", "Mood Indigo" and other Ellington hits for time immemorial". From Kansas City Call.

A book which chronicles the history of black people in America—five years in the making—is off the press, and Dr. Arvarh E. Strickland can breathe a little easier. Strickland, a member of the history department at the University of Missouri is co-author of the two volume publication designed for use in secondary schools, titled "The Black American experience." It is hailed by the publisher (Harcourt Brace) as the "most comprehensive program in black history available." Collaborator is Dr. Jerome R. Reich, professor of history at Chicago State University.

On June 26, 1974, we officially become members of the 60 Club. It just seems only yesterday that we were a dashing young man, trying to solve the problems of the world. God has given us a good life and the sweets have been more than the bitters and we are grateful for that. The problems are still with us but many have been worked out and the remaining ones will be left for younger shoulders. It's fun tho, Mrs. T.L., working at them.

Until later, dear bellringers, Peace and be a good neighbor. They come in all colors.

Please hand me my rocking chair children. Life begins at 60!

Evers Says Wallace Acceptable as Veep

Jackson, Miss. — (NBNS) — Civil rights leader Charles Evers says Alabama Gov. George Wallace has changed sufficiently for him to support Wallace for vice president but not for president.

He said the changed Wallace would be acceptable to him as the vice presidential candidate of the Democratic Party in 1976.

"I can't say I would support him for President, but I think if we hooked George Wallace up with Ted Kenedy or (Sen. Walter) Mondale, we'd have a winner. I think Democrats ought to look at that whether we like it or not.

"Sure, the man is a governor and he represents at least one-third of the country's thinking. That's what we are trying to bring together, the poor whites and blacks, and George Wallace represents the same folks I do, those who have been left out."

Evers is mayor of Fayette, Miss. He is the brother of activist Medgar Evers who was murdered early in the civil rights fight.

Evers said he has talked with Wallace several times since the Governor was partially crippled in a 1972 assassination attempt. He said he believes Wallace has changed his die-hard segregationist stance and is now "listening" to the black community.

"What I respect George Wallace for—What he'll say in Mississippi, he'll say in New York and California. I have a lot of respect for the man because he's tough. I like tough men.

"If I lose all the friends I have in this country because of me trying to get George Wallace to understand we're all just folks, that's okay. Our job is to teach folks that don't know. Once you get a man changed, he fights for what he believes is right. If we change him, and he is beginning to change, then why not accept him?"

Tax Aid

Gifts to help the President pay his delinquent federal income taxes now total $90,000, the White House announced. All money is being returned. Anonymous donations ($4,341) were turned over to the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.

Surprise Party Marks Birthday

Mrs. Joe Graves "nee Donnie", Mrs. Percy "Doris" Hines, Mrs. Wilma Wright, Mrs. Hazel Coles and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Williams surprised their mother, Sister Mary Williams, with a barbecue dinner last Saturday, June 15, honoring her 61st birthday.

Donnie pulled the string to get her dressed and over to the house. Sister Mary was overcome with tears. She and her late husband, Rev. N. Williams, who passed away eleven years ago, were parents of eleven children and reared a niece.

The Williams family are proud of their flock, because they are respectable citizens and devout Christian members of the Church of God in Christ No. 2. Among the children are four teachers in the public school system, two minister, a draftsman and a dentist. Some of the children who live out of town were not here in person, but in spirit.

Sister Mary lives part time in Houston with the children there, but maintains her own home here. As one person says, "Their family is one who prays together and stays together."

About 40 guests were present to share the fun and fellowship and good food prepared by the children. The family also carried food to a family friend who is ill.

Sister Williams has a sister and some brothers, several grandchildren and many friends who wish for her many more happy joyous occasions.

Dunbar Grad Enters Air Force

Shelby Glenn Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Walker of 2602 Globe Avenue, left last Thursday for San Antonio, Texas where he entered the U.S. Air Force.

He is the only son and the youngest of the four Walker children. He was a member of the 1974 graduating class at Dunbar. He enlisted for four years. As one member of the family said, "The hardest part for him was leaving his family, and especially his recent new bride, Bessie Lawson Walker. She will continue to live with her mother while he is away."

Mr. and Mrs. Walker's other children have graduated from Dunbar and are either working or in college. Jimmie Teressa (Mrs. Buddy Smith), the oldest, is a member of the Lubbock Public School system and is spending the summer at Prairie View College where her husband is attending summer school. He will receive his degree there also.

Merry Jo is a junior at Texas Tech University and Debora is a sophomore at Tech. Both are preparing for a teaching certificate. Mrs. Edna Walker has been in the Lubbock Public Schools for 25 years and her husband, Jimmy, has been employed by Nunn Electric Company for 24 years.

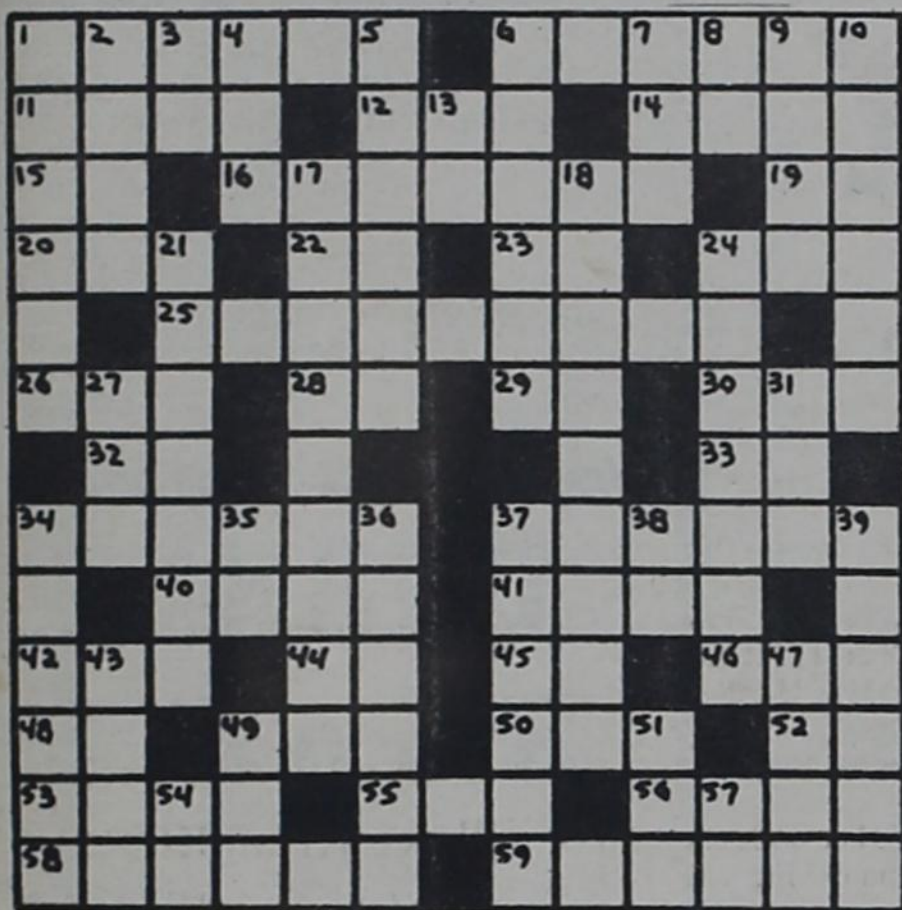

The Walkers are faithful members of the Mount Vernon United Methodist Church.

THANK YOU

I wish to take this method of thanking each of my friends for all your prayers, flowers, cards, lovely gifts, goodies, visits and phone calls during my accident and a special thanks to my out of town friends. May God continue to bless each of you.
