Opportunities Industrialization Centers Facing National Funding Crisis Under New Fiscal Plan

Washington—(NBNS)—The Opportunities Industrialization Centers is currently engaged in a life or death struggle with the Nixon Administration and the U.S. Government over funding for the highly successful manpower program.

Founded in 1964 in an old abandoned jail house in Philadelphia by the Rev. Dr. Leon Sullivan, OIC has sought to instill the concepts of self-help and self-respect in the thousands of men and women it has provided with vocational training, counseling, and "jobs that exist."

Recently, OIC announced that some 17 centers across the country may have to close soon unless the Department of Labor provides emergency funding for the continuation of the manpower program.

In addition, according to one OIC official, another 83 programs will deplete all available funding by Aug. 15, thereby causing them to cease operations.

"The manpower revenue sharing plans of the (Nixon) Administration have created a funding crisis because of the legislative impasse, and we are the victims," said Elton Jolly, executive director of the OICs, during a meeting earlier this month in New Orleans.

Sen. Richard Schweiker (R-Pa.) earlier this year introduced in the Senate the Opportunities Industrialization Assistance Act of 1973, which would have specifically earmarked some $450,000 for use by OIC over the next three years to provide training and jobs for 450,000 persons. A companion bill was introduced in the House by Rep. Augustus Hawkins (D-Calif.)

However, the Senate bill was set aside earlier this month when Sen. Schweiker added amendments to S-1559, a manpower revenue sharing bill sponsored by Sens. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) and Jacob Javits (D-N.Y.), which was reported out of committee June 29.

Schweiker said at the time that his action was prompted by his belief that the OIC bill would not have passed the House or, if it had passed, would have been vetoed by President Nixon. His amendments include provisions for OIC to have membership on manpower planning councils in the communities where its programs are located, thus enabling OIC officials to participate in all facets of planning for such programs, including the disbursement of funds.

Abernathy Aide Scores Mrs. King—Fauntroy

Atlanta—(NBNS)—The resignation of the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was partly caused by actions of two prominent black leaders, according to Hosea Williams, head of the Atlanta chapter of SCLC.

Williams, who has long been an associate of Dr. Abernathy and the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., former president of the SCLC, said King's widow, Mrs. Coretta Scott King, has used money intended for SCLC for her own organization—the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Non-Violent Social Change.

He was also highly critical of D.C. Congressman Walter Fauntroy, who is chairman of the board for the center, since he had openly "attacked the legacy left by the late Dr. Martin Luther King by stating Mrs. King has raised or shared several hundreds of thousands of dollars she received since the death of her husband.

"In fact," Williams said, "the records will prove that Dr. Abernathy has shared the financial income of SCLC with Mrs. King and the center, but Mrs. King and the center have never shared the financial income with Dr. Abernathy and the SCLC."

Abernathy announced his resignation last week from the civil rights organization.

Eastern Little League Defeats Southern to Become District Champions by 9-2 Margin

Two Lubbock winners, Eastern and Southern Little League All-Stars, battled for the district crown Tuesday evening at Maxie Park, with several hundred fans on hand to cheer their favorite. Eastern won the game 9-2.

Consolation in the district tilt was decided between Tahoka and North Lynn, with Tahoka winning by a score of 13-7. Eastern bombed Tahoka Monday evening 15-2 and Southern squeezed by North Lynn 7-5.

Eastern blasted Tahoka pitching for 14 hits in the Monday game, four of those being homers and another two doubles. Darrell Lewis collected two home runs and a double to lead the Eastern hitters. He also scored four tallies during the runaway rout. Curtis Neloms, who blasted two homers in the Area I competition last week against Midwest, mased one round tripper and contributed four runs against Tahoka.

Darrell Green went the distance on the mound for Eastern as he fanned 10 batters while giving up only two hits and two walks.

Runs for Eastern came in the first, fourth, and fifth innings when Darrell Lewis, Karl Lusk, and Curtis Neloms hit 4 homers, 2 for Lewis. Winning pitcher was Neloms, while Robert Ledbetter was credited with the loss. Neloms struck out 8; David Rush relieved Ledbetter in the 5th.

Home runs hit by the fellows from Eastern totaled 9 in both games. Eastern will travel to Abilene, Texas, July 30 and 31 to play in the Sectional Tournament.

Atlanta—Delta Sigma Theta, a national public service sorority made up mostly of Black women, is preparing for the biggest national convention in Atlanta on August 12-17, in its 60 year history.

A record number of Deltas—more than 5,000 at last count—already has registered to attend the sorority's 32nd biennial convention, to be held at Atlanta's Hyatt Regency Hotel. This is almost double the number of Deltas who were present at the 1971 convention in Houston.

Mrs. Lillian P. Benbow of Detroit, Delta national president, attributed the increase in convention participation to a steady increase in Delta membership, chapter expansion and the strong interest and commitment of Deltas to provide local leadership through active involvement in the organization's wide range of public service programs.

Considered by many as one of the most civically active and effectively organized and operated national women's organizations in the country, Delta has a long history of involvement in national and local public service programs. Its membership now stands at 65,000, with 460 chapters.

Mrs. Benbow said the Deltas, in their convention theme of "Delta Women Breaking New Ground," will give special attention to national program priorities and a blueprint for action. A series of convention symposiums will be devoted to revenue sharing, educational and job opportunities for Black women, community involvement and career development, human and social imperatives for the world of telecommunication, and women's rights in the 70s.

A Career Development Institute will be operated for Delta members, including interviews and recruitment by major corporations and federal government agencies. Other convention highlights include seminars on counseling and guidance for higher education, with personnel from College Entrance Board and other organizations participating. Mass media and communications technology will be featured in exhibits of hard and soft computer ware, television and radio equipment, and examples of printed material.

Mrs. Benbow said: "This will be a working, active, skill-building convention. For the first two and a half days we will be concerned with internal Delta development, taking a long, hard look at who we are, as an organization of predominantly Black women, what we are doing, what we are not doing, and if not, why not.

"We will deal forthrightly with the social issues of the day, especially those around which governmental actions influence the lives of minority citizens. Delta Sigma Theta believes it is crucial that we give concerted expression to the concerns which all of us are experiencing, during this period when there are so many human needs still unmet, particularly in the case of minorities," Mrs. Benbow added.

Culturally, the Deltas will present "Tribute in Poetry" by Nikki Giovanni and choir; the Alvin Ailey Dancers, and a gala featuring Jerry Butler and Earth, Wind and Fire, the Cissy Houston.

Among the convention keynote speakers are: Rep. Barbara Jordan (D-Tex.), Delta National Finance Committee chairwoman; Stanley S. Scott, Special Assistant to the President; William H. Brown, III, Chairman, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; S.M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM, President, National Black Sisters Conference; Dr. Arthur Smith, Vice President, American College Testing Program; Snowden Williams, Office of Telecommunication Policy, Executive Office of the President; Attorney Frankei Freeman, Commissioner, U.S. Civil Rights Commission; Rev. Benjamin Hooks, Commissioner, Federal Communications Commission.

Other program participants include: Maynard Jackson, Vice Mayor of Atlanta; Ms. Velma Strode, director of Equal Employment Opportunity, Department of Labor; Ms. Daisy Wood, of Exxon and Xerox Corporations; Dr. Vivian Henderson, president, Clark College; Ms. Phoebe Lesesne, IBM Systems Research Institute; James H. Blair, director, Michigan Civil Rights Commission; Ms. Edith B. Sloan, director, National Committee on Household Employment; Dr. Grace Hewell, Regional Director for Continuing Education, Office of Education, HEW.

Hostesses for the convention are the Atlanta Alumnae Chapter and undergraduate chapters in the Atlanta metropolitan area.

CORE Vet Charged with Murder

New York—(NBNS)—The former director of the Brooklyn Congress of Racial Equality has surrendered to police and charged with the murder of one man and the attempted murder of another last April.

Police also charged Robert C. (Sonny) Carson with kidnaping and weapons possession. Although three other men are being sought in the case, four men have already been arrested in connection with the case.

Jackson Signs Pact With Avon

Chicago—(NBNS)—Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity) has signed a "covenant" with Avon Cosmetics which is reportedly worth $59 million in jobs with minorities.

The contract also calls for insurance policies with minority companies and other minority business aids. Jackson had previously signed covenants with General Foods and the Jos. Schlitz Co.

Veteran Correspondent Named to New Post

Washington—(NBNS)—Veteran Washington correspondent, Ethel Payne of Sengstacke Publications, has been promoted to associate editor of the Chicago Daily Defender, one of only three black dailies in the United States.

Miss Payne, who is one of the few black correspondents in the nation's capital, will assume her new post at the end of July. She will continue to make frequent visits to the Washington area for the newspaper.

EDITORIALS

Slanted Reporting

Slanted reporting on the Watergate scandal continues, with little credit due that segment of the American news media participating in a push to get rid of President Nixon, forcing his resignation or impeachment, by any means.

Without minimizing the scandal or its importance, ample investigation and prosecution are now underway. The President has accepted responsibility, admitted poor judgement and mistakes. A host of misguided individuals are "coming clean" or are being prosecuted in the courts.

The nation is almost certain to emerge from the scandal better assured such improper and illegal activities never again become a major part of White House operations. Some have gone to jail; others will be sentenced. The whole affair will handicap Republicans, blot the record of the Nixon Administration and enhance the chance of the Democratic Party to regain power.

But this smell of blood—of having found, at last, something to swat the President with, to vilify and abuse him—has led much of the press, which has never liked Mr. Nixon, to excesses. The President is assumed totally guilty by many and news reports contain too much slanting. Senate hearing reporting repeatedly favors and features Democratic critics, who, it is often noted, get "prolonged" applause from the hearing audience, etc.

Democratic Senators, the London Times, editors and jurists have commented adversely on the witch-hunting atmosphere and reporting.

The nation's news media, especially the press, should at this time when public opinion is already somewhat hostile, carefully guard its own image and exhibit balanced reporting and good judgement, fairness, and, at times, restraint, in its own and the nation's best interest.

Voluntary Military Services Fail

Though it comes as no surprise to many, the much-heralded system of an all volunteer military establishment is obviously a failure. Billions of dollars have been wasted in this effort, which President Nixon hoped would succeed and which he championed at a time when the climate in the nation was so soured by the Vietnam war it was a political plus.

The trouble with an all-volunteer force is that it is wrong in concept from the beginning. The nation can't afford to lavish high pay on its military forces and has a right to expect—as other nations do—some limited service from its young men—and women. It is, in fact, good for the young people that they contribute something to their country.

In addition, the all-volunteer system attracts, with its pay incentives, etc., the shiftless, poor and ignorant. One should not be critical of these volunteers; their plight is sometimes not of their own doing. Nevertheless, it is not sound policy to place the security of the nation in their hands. It does not translate into the most effective military force attainable.

Enlistments are currently running very short, costs of defense have soared because of inflated pay scales (more than half the defense budget now goes to military pay, not hardware). More and more military leaders are now urging abandonment of the system and many in Congress are ready to admit the all-volunteer force was pie-in-the-sky idealism, to appeal to a nation tired of Vietnam and therefore soured on a draft which sent men to Vietnam.

A fair national service law requiring boys and girls to give their country a limited period of service, in some form, is the only democratic solution to the economic and security needs of the country, and always has been. Congress, though this sort of equitable-service-for-all-legislation has traditionally prompted complaints from some mamas and papas, should enact the needed legislation without delay.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

Hussein Willing to Sign Peace Pact with Israel

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Secret intelligence reports claim that the shah of Iran and King Hussein of Jordan are working together to bring peace to the Middle East. The two leaders reportedly have been in close touch since Hussein's recent stay at the shah's summer palace on the Caspian Sea.

They have agreed, according to the Central Intelligence Agency, upon a secret plan for settling the Middle East crisis. Both the shah and the king have good relations with the United States. They hope to use their influence with Washington to get a message to Israel.

The message is this: King Hussein is ready to sign a peace agreement with Israel, which could block the Arab Israeli deadlock. But the Israelis must give Hussein enough concessions to make peace possible. Without some reasonable concessions, Hussein argues, he could not sign a pact with Israel. He would be repudiated by his own people if he did. But favorable peace terms, Hussein contends, would persuade the Arabs that they can deal with Israel.

The CIA predicts that the shah will take the secret plan to Washington this month to push on President Nixon. The least the President must demand, the shah will say, is that Israel return some of Jordan's rights in East Jerusalem.

The shah will have a big ace up his sleeve. The critical gasoline shortage has left the United States dependent, as never before, on the oil-rich Arab countries.

Nixon Unmoved: Friends who have been in touch with President Nixon since his illness believe the Watergate strain helped to send him to the hospital. But they report he has not been budged by the damning testimony before the Senate.

The President still insists to his friends that he didn't know about the Watergate coverup until he began his own investigation in mid-March. He also swears he has not been coordinating his Watergate strategy with his two former trusted aides, Bob Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

The President's greatest concern, he tells friends gravely, is that Watergate is diverting him from the real priorities of the presidency. He depicts the world at a diplomatic crossroads, which could determine whether there will be peace or war in the decade ahead. The nation is also torn by economic strains, which could determine whether there will be prosperity or depression.

These tremendous problems, stresses the President, require his full attention. He has been able, he says, to keep the Watergate charges on the back burner and give first priority to developing peace and prosperity. But the public clamor for him to speak out on Watergate, he complains, is beginning to distract him from his duties.

It's President Nixon's style to concentrate deeply upon a problem before he makes a move. He cannot, therefore, engage in daily Watergate maneuvers without devoting more time to the problem than he thinks is justified.

Selling 'New Army': The Pentagon is trying

As I See It

by T. J. Patterson

As I See It, when you find a problem in an area, you keep on and before long you can discover many more problems. This is the case in the Green-Fair Manor Apartments, where senior citizens are having problems with their mail delivery. This was brought to my attention by senior citizens of the complex who say the way mail is distributed in the apartment complex works a great hardship on senior citizens.

At the present time, all the mail boxes are located in the office area, at one end of the several block long complex. Some of the senior citizens are not in accord with this type of service for several reasons. For one thing, the people have to walk too far to get their mail, and secondly, the security of the central mail box area is zero.

In the past the "Police Beat" has reported theft of Old Age Assistance checks from the Green-Fair Manor mail boxes. Perhaps more emphasis should be directed toward this problem, since our senior citizens often have to depend on these checks for survival. If their monthly pension check or assistance check is misplaced or stolen, it causes a terrific hardship on people in their late 60's and early 70's.

What with all the problems in the apartment complex, a suggestion of some sort of unified club, or group, to coordinate all the problems for the people in the area, and at least be able to work together on each individual one. Perhaps the new executive director of the Public Housing Program here in Lubbock, David Stiles, can pool the various housing complexes and see how residents feel about this type of organization.

In a recent survey of the Dallas Public High Schools, 12 per cent of the pupils dropped out of school for various reasons. The highest rate was among American Indians and Mexican-Americans. Indian pupils left classes at a rate of 18.7 per cent, compared to 10.5 per cent for desperately to sell young Americans on the "new army". Advertisements promise that the new army has "equipment you can't wait to get your hands on". Magazine stories are laced with pictures of GIs sipping beer in private rooms decorated with fluorescent posters.

Reports from GIs all over the world, however, indicate the new army hasn't changed its old practices. Here are some examples:

- At a top-secret Army base near Woodbridge, Va., GIs were pressed into service as bush beaters to drive deer out of the woods for the brass hats who liked to hunt.

- At Fort Lee, Va., dozens of officers and men were assigned by their commanding officer to be boy scout counselors for the summer.

- At Fort Meade, Md., a company commander wanted to meet his quota for a blood drive. So he gave three-day passes and excused from clean-up duties all men who donated a pint of blood. Those who refused had to answer to him.

- At Fort Belvoir, Va., soldiers complained that brewing coffee each morning for their commanders was demeaning. The general in charge immediately initiated the great coffee inquiry. Meetings were held and memos were written. Questionnaires went out to post personnel asking whether they objected to making coffee for others.

Fuel for Thought: Fuel experts and the Department of Transportation have concluded that the only way to prevent a continuing gasoline shortage is for the United States to switch over from large to small cars.

A five per cent gas shortage is expected this summer. The experts expect it to get worse next summer. By 1975, it should reach the crisis stage.

President Nixon has suggested that motorists hold down their speed and that commuters form car pools. If half the motorists in the country held their highway speed below 50 miles an hour, it would reduce gasoline consumption less than three per cent. If half of all commuters pooled their automobiles, the fuel savings would be less than three per cent.

But the Transportation Department experts claim that a small-car owner gets 10 more miles to the gallon and saves around $630 a year over the standard-car owner. They have agreed in their confidential discussions, therefore, that it will take a conversion from large to small autos to end the gas shortage in this country.

Mexican-Americans. Blacks dropped out of school at the rate of 10.2 per cent while white pupils only dropped out at a rate of 7.7 per cent.

This group of young people involved a population of 4,363 pupils who gave up before getting a diploma. Some of the reasons for dropping out of school included young ladies who were pregnant, some had to go to work, while others wanted to get married.

No matter what the problems were, young black people need to think about the importance of an education. Although this was a Dallas study, the survey also showed that two of the schools, one predominantly black and one in a poorer section of town, had dropout rates nearly twice that of the average.

It's time for young blacks to really become concerned about their future. Not all of them will go to college, but let's at least hope that they will continue to look at some livelihood which will contribute to the socio-economic situation of the black community.

Let's hope that something will be done about the allegations made before U.S. District Judge William Wayne about "beatings by correctional officers" of the Texas Youth Council (TYC) at Mountain View School for Boys recently. Although there are two sides to any story, young people of the school gave testimony to beatings which they had witnessed in the past.

TYC is designed to rehabilitate our young people who have committed some sort of crime, rather than adult confinement and punishment. Curtis Graves, one time state representative from Houston, brought attention to the public of the problems that TYC was having.

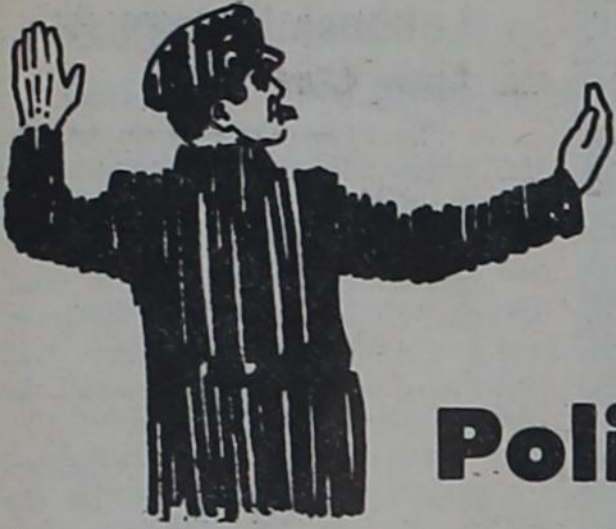

As I See It, something must be done about the situation if things are not being handled any better than that. The public—Mr. and Mrs. Taxpaying Texan—should be made aware of the problems and something must be done to correct them. Unless our state officials get to the bottom of these problems, TYC will not be able to rehabilitate our youngsters, but rather fertilize harden criminals for the future. Texas doesn't need this type of rehabilitation.

Lubbock Youth Tell of Their Trip to National N.A.A.C.P. Meeting Recently

[Editors note: This report was made by four members of the Lubbock youth chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). Those members are Troy Lockett, president; Robert Jackson, treasurer; James Walton, vice president; and Victor Washington, working member.]

The 1973 National Convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) was held in Indianapolis, Indiana July 2 through July 7. Region 6, which is composed of New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, had as its main objective to get the 1976 Convention to Houston, Texas.

The thoughts of the region were dim, because of the demanding lead of their particular opponent, Memphis, Tennessee. The Region elaborated on the issue thoroughly and was unfortunately forced to go for 1976—win, lose or draw—because of a unanimous decision.

Houston had no chance of winning the date, and lost soundly on the floor. The chairman of the region made it known that in order to get a sight for the National Convention "in your city", you had to advertize and get interesting details and facts into the National Office about your city.

Houston didn't do this.

The youth council had the very educational pleasure of hearing the very prominent figure in the eyes of blacks today, Rev. Benjamin Hooks—the first black to be elected to the U.S. Federal Communication Commission (FCC). His electrifying speech was both direct and personal. He left the audience wondering why they were afraid to accept leadership.

The convention was capped off with the crowning of Mr. and Mrs. NAACP of U.S.A., with New Orleans, La. winning one crown and Miss Pearl Burrell of Dallas South winning the Miss NAACP honor. They were both awarded an all expense paid trip to San Juan, Puerto Rico this month.

The next National Convention will be held in New Orleans.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

This is being written too early for results of the All-Star game to be known, but in reading over the lineups, I was struck by the fact that the two clubs may be closer instrength than any time in recent years.

Both managers had a lot of power in their lineups, from top to bottom. Both had better than average defensive strength. And both, as usual, had good pitching to call on, plus relievers.

I was lucky enough to attend one of the All Star games, in Washington in 1956. Truthfully, I don't remember too much about the game itself. I was too wrapped up in the stars who were on hand.

Burt Hawkins, the Washington Star's baseball writer and, later, press secretary for the Senators, got me a ticket. Brashly, I went down on the field with other writers before the game. I stood by the batting cage and watched the players take their practice cuts.

Of all the stars on hand, I'd have to say that Ted Kluzewski was the most impressive. The Cincinnati first baseman was an awesome sight as he dug in and swung.

It was said of Klu that even his muscles had muscles, and who would argue? The big guy put ball after ball in the seats, then hung around to watch Willie Mays swing. I'd say it was a mutual admiration meeting.

It was a thrill just being there, but to have a chance to talk with such people as Klu, Mays, Yogi Berra, Stan Musial, Freddie Hutchinson, Walter Alston and others was something else.

The All Star game is not just another ball game, no matter what anybody says. Regardless of who wins or loses, even the stars are caught up in the excitement. They talk and kid, but underneath it all is respect and admiration for the other stars.

Anyway, to get back to 1973, if I had to guess, I'd guess that the Nationals won the game. In the past few years, the Senior circuit has been a little stronger.

The power that used to mark the American League has gone over to the other side. And, while pitching still is the key to any short series, or one game, it only takes one swing of the bat to even things up. But I'd guess it was a good game.

Speaking of All Stars, Lubbock fans won't want to miss the Old Timers game Saturday night. This is the second one in four years and it gives old West Texas-New Mexico League fans a chance to see some of their former heroes once more.

A little of the zing has gone out of the legs. The arms aren't as buggywhip-like anymore. There's more paunch showing. And a little winter has crept into hair that is thinning.

But, when all is said and done, who gives a damn about age? These are the same guys who used to thrill thousands in this vast area of West Texas and New Mexico.

Jackie Sullivan, the former Hubber manager, has contacted between 40 and 60 former players. They're coming here from Oklahoma, Houston, Albuquerque, Dallas, Tyler, all over. They'll have a private get together Friday night and you can bet the lies will pile up!

The list is too long to run, but such former Hubbers from the 40s and 50s who will be here are Wilcy and Don Moore, Rooster Mills, Mike Dooley, Bob Clodfelter, Frank McAlexander, Virgil Richardson, Frank Benites, Jackie Wilcos, Ted Clawitter.

The list goes on and on. They're older now. Most of them have families, with boys growing up and no WT-NM League to play in. They want to come back here. They look forward to it. They want to see each other. They want to see the fans who cheered and booed them.

There's a real air of nostalgia in this reunion of old friends and former foes. If you could only turn the clock back twenty years! Still, memories fade and the stories will be better this time than four years ago. Age always improves deeds!

West Texas baseball fans can look forward to this Saturday night appearance with anticipation. This could be the last time these stars assemble, so come on out and cheer them like you used to do.

The Roundup: When we got to Windsor, Ont., Canada, I looked across the street from Customs and saw a big billboard that said: Norm Cash. . . Every Monday night. . . 7:30 p.m. . . on CKLW-TV. The former Post and Detroit Tiger star has made it big. We saw three big U.S. Mail trucks in Canada, leading my wife to say huh, no wonder our mail delivery is slow! . . . Next week I am headed for Colorado, hope to have a report on the trout fishing there the following week. Peace!
