Last Monday evening, May 6, Mr. Harrison "Bull" Davis, assisted by friends, surprised his wife, Gilbreth, on her birthday. He was persuading his wife to go meet a man who should have a load of watermelons.

The friends gathered, using the Davis' backyard to hide their cars, and when she entered the living room, the guests rushed from the kitchen singing, "Happyday Birthday." She was completely surprised.

Those sharing the fun were Mesdames Johnnie Mae Derrough, Bertha Lee Philmore, Ernestine Childress, Willie Cox, Ora Belle Gindratt, Roberta Thompson, Baby Austin, Pearl Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson, Mr. Jessie Owens, Leon Scott and Mrs. Fannie Young.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

"I Didn't Know That"

When "As I See It" wrote last week that the Estacado High School doesn't have a functioning Parent Teachers Association (PTA), many of our readers contacted the editor and said, "I didn't know that."

What they didn't know was that Estacado High School evidently doesn't have parents who really care about what is happening at the school in which their children are attending. At least, this is the observation we have received.

Now that we do know that the PTA is not functioning as it should be, let's make plans for a better year next fall. We all can do our part to help our young people in their younger years. It doesn't do any good to continue talking about what has happened, but it will do a lot of good to start making preparation for a new and better year.

It's time for all the schools of East Lubbock to become more involved with parents. Regardless of what you claim you did last year or this year, we can still do better things for our children. The outcome of our involvement with our young people will determine the future of this community, state and nation.

We did observe two PTA's doing some worthwhile things recently. For one, the PTA at Hunt Elementary school sponsored a 6th grade banquet for their young graduates to junior high school. This effort, and others, will leave an impression on the minds of these young eager people.

The efforts at Bozeman Elementary school also was the effort of people who cared about their principal and they showed it in decorating his office.

These two events did happen and we can appreciate the significance behind the acts. Estacado can do the same thing as well as other schools in East Lubbock.

In the past, the women have led the way. We hope that men will get involved in the Estacado PTA and contribute something for our young people. Now that we know, let's show our kids we are going to do something about it.

Eastern Little League Needs Our Help

The Eastern Little League got underway last Monday afternoon with Mayor Roy Bass and City Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan throwing out the first ball of the season. It was good to see the elected city officials present. It was bad to note that there were no restrooms for the fans who came out to see the first double-header of the season.

In the past, Eastern Little League has had portable toilets. The large crowd that this seasonal activity draws should merit a permanent toilet facility. If it is too late for this type of facility, we surely would appreciate the portable ones we have had in the past.

There are some other things the kids who play this game five days a week need. Many of them are our own and the parents and business people should do something to change the way this situation looked last Monday. Here are several items, which in some cases, won't cost a red cent. We at the West Texas Times would encourage the Board of Directors and parents to work on these points.

1. We need some type of police patrol to stop the loud cussing and drinking of alcoholic beverages. These acts are not only caused by some kids, but adults too.

2. We need to find a means of acquiring paid officials so the coaches and managers won't have to call the games.

3. Each team manager and coach, along with the Board of Directors, need your parental support to see that good clean fun is held at each game; and

4. We need some control on the dragsters who drive their cars at high speeds. Some of these dragsters are your own children. We as parents could see that some sort of preventive medicine is there to erase this situation.

The season has only started. If we work hard enough, we can do a lot of things for the benefit of our young people. The entire east Lubbock community should get behind this.

We have observed many of the parents driving by the Little League Park to let your children out and then speed off to other directions. Why you do is your business, but you had better stop and help these young people, including your own, before it is too late. We feel as though the involvement of parents is more important than the restrooms. For you children's sake, get involved. If you don't believe our observations, ask Dr. F.L. Lovings, president of the League, about the situation. The coaches, managers, and Directors can't do it all. Check it out!

Waggoner Carr, who made his first major address since being acquitted less than two months ago in Dallas of federal stock fraud charges, gave the Greater Lubbock Press Club a great start in its infancy last Friday noon at the Ramade Inn South. With this type of involvement, the Greater Lubbock Press Club should move very quickly in becoming a dynamic organization for the citizens of Lubbock and West Texas.

As Vaughn Hendrie, president, said: "We will bring speakers to the city who are in the news." This is exactly what happened last Friday when a jam-packed audience was on hand to hear the former Attorney General of Texas tell his "thing."

His comments were quite enlightening as he told of the turmoil he had gone through. This writer appreciates hearing what is happening and what can happen in this day and time to any individual. The Waggoner Carr story should be heard around the United States. As citizens, we all should be aware of what is happening on the local, state and national level.

I had an opportunity to sit at the same table (across from him) and asked him what he thought of the newly formed State Constitution. He said: "It has about a 40 percent chance of passing." Of course, he told why and the reasons made a lot of sense.

As a member of the Greater Lubbock Press Club, I can appreciate this type of effort. It will, without any doubt, help our efforts at the West Texas Times. I hope the organization will continue to bring in people of this state and country who can tell their story as Waggoner Carr did.

This column wrote about the lack of voter participation in the recent Democratic and Republican Primaries last issue. Mrs. Myrtle Skief, a friend of mine and Mrs. Sarah Crawford, pulled my coat on why some residents don't vote in the elections.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

MAIL MESS

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1974, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The Postal Service is in trouble. Three years ago, Congress voted to get the government out of the postal business and put it on a profit basis. Hardheaded businessmen could straighten it out, they reasoned.

Unfortunately, the Postal Service has now taken on the worst of both worlds. But the honeymoon is over for the Postal Service. Prompted by some of our revelations, Congress has now launched three separate investigations into the way the Post Office does business.

The Postal Service's problem is not with the hardworking people who deliver the mail. It is with their pampered bosses—those "hardheaded" businessmen who have run the service like it was their personal playground.

Postmaster General Ted Klassen has built himself a penthouse kitchen. He has handed out lucrative contracts to personal pals. One Postal Service document now in my possession suggested that someone talk to Klassen about "the method of contracting" he sometimes used to reward friends. Unless there was a change, the memo predicted, Klassen would "embarrass the U.S. Postal Service."

The postal bosses should be embarrassed. Mail service is worse, and the costs are still going up.

Henry's Image: For five-and-a-half years, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has almost totally escaped criticism from the press. It isn't accidental. His unsullied, superstar image is carefully nurtured and protected.

He is, for example, obsessed with secrecy. He abhors "leaks" of information—unless he is doing the leaking.

A few weeks ago, we disclosed that the United States was "normalizing" relations with the African state of Burundi—despite that nation's deliberate slaughter of thousands of tribal rivals. But there had been a recent nickel strike in Burundi, and American businessmen wanted to exploit it. Thus, the United States changed its policy and began courting Burundi. After our story broke, the State Department began a probe to find our sources. Officials were shuffled into new jobs. Some bureaucrats were instructed not to talk to "outsiders."

Kissinger also courts the press assiduously. In White House parlance, he "strokes" reporters—and he does it well. Even the respected New York Times has suppressed stories at Kissinger's behest.

The day after our expose of the Burundi scandal, Henry Kissinger himself appeared at the State Department's daily press briefing. He uttered a few witticisms, made a statement about European relations, answered some questions, then exited smiling. The newsmen present did not ask a single question about the sudden change in U.S. policy to accommodate corporate interests in Burundi.

Silbert's Sincere: One of the original Watergate prosecutors, Earl Silbert, is being considered by the Senate for the post of U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia. His nomination, however, is being held up because some senators apparently feel Silbert tried to keep the lid on the first Watergate probe.

A careful reading of the White House tape transcripts, however, shows that Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen was the man who kept urging the prosecutors to confine their probe. Indeed, the President's private conversations suggest he feared the Silbert team.

We have talked to some of Silbert's associates. They say

She said: "Mr. Patterson, I read your column and I agree, but our older people will need someone to take them to the polls when there is an election." She went on to add, "Many of us can't afford paying someone to take us to the polls and the bus fare is too high."

Mrs. Skief has a point which I would like to share with those persons seeking election in the June 1st run-off. If you would like to get more voters from Voting Boxes 6 and 20, I'd advise you to advertise that those persons without transportation will have a courtesy ride to their voting box.

Mrs. Skief is correct, we need to find a way to get those persons without transportation to the polls. Thank you Mrs. Skief for your involvement.

The presentation by Rev. Adolphus Cleveland, with the help of Froy Salinas, last Thursday at the City Council meeting, was helpful. His suggestion to the Mayor and Council should be heard by the entire city of Lubbock. He told the elected officials how important it is to expand the present city council. He gave four points which this writer feels could help the entire city of Lubbock.

The points presented by Rev. Cleveland were:

1. Expand the City Council by two members.
2. Have representation from all areas.
3. Each area to be voted on by the citizens of Lubbock.
4. Present City Council to appoint additional members if passed by the voters.

This writer was pleased to see that the West Texas Times has some responses from the Council members. Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan did read a quote from Rev. Cleveland from the Times. As we have said many times, we are here to help the city and our reporting is above reproach.

With all sincerity, this writer hopes the City Council will consider what Rev. Cleveland and Mr. Salinas have said. It can only help the entire city of Lubbock. Of course, the entire city will have to vote on this matter. I feel that citizens of Lubbock are willing to see that all areas are truly represented.

he was going about the Watergate investigation as any prosecutor would. He built the case from the ground up. He got the goods on the small fries first. Then he used the implied threat of prison to make them talk about higher-ups.

The original Watergate investigation began in July 1972. By the end of September, the prosecutors had indictments of the first seven conspirators. Then James McCord cracked and wrote his now famous memo to Judge Sirica, detailing the payment of hush money and the involvement of others. By April, the prosecutors were taking statements from presidential counsel John Dean. Within weeks after that, our sources say, Silbert and his colleagues had the Watergate case nailed down.

Then Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox came along. Silbert, we were told, handed him an indictment of top Administration figures that was 90 per cent complete.

Meanwhile, reaction on Capitol Hill to the White House tape transcripts has been mixed. Some members claim the tapes exonerate the President. Others charge that they corroborate the Senate testimony of John Dean. The critical reaction, through, will come from the House Judiciary Committee. The panel's 38 lawyers will weigh the evidence carefully before they vote on articles of impeachment. Headphones are being installed in the committee chamber so that the tapes can be heard during briefing sessions.

The rules of evidence indicate that the best evidence is the tapes themselves. Thus, committee members will continue to insist the tapes be surrendered. But there is another reason that committee members want them.

Of the people involved in the key conversations, only President Nixon and H.R. Haldeman knew about the recording system. Some impeachment committee members have said privately that certain conversations seem staged. The President, they argue, could have entrapped people by the way he discussed Watergate.

Our sources say the committee will move ahead even if the President refuses to turn over the tapes. They will merely assume an "adverse inference" in cases where requested documentation is suppressed by the White House.

Neither "scenario" promises to be a pleasant one for the President.

Judiciary Expert: The House Judiciary Committee has hired a secret expert to help decipher all those "unintelligible" and "inaudible" gaps in the White House tapes. She is a blind woman, with enhanced hearing, who can make out conversations that would be inaudible to normal secretaries.

The committee has succeeded in restoring some of the unintelligible conversations that the White House omitted from the transcripts.

So far, none of the restored conversations are tremendously significant. The White House deletions do not appear to have been censored. Apparently, the individual White House secretaries decided what was too undecipherable for them to transcribe.

The expletives, of course, were deleted from the transcripts as a matter of taste. The omitted words were common, crude barracks profanity including vulgar ethnic slurs.

There are still some unexplained gaps in several of the President's dictabelt recordings which the White House turned over to the prosecutors. At least one of the documents submitted by the White House was also cropped. And, of course, some of the transcribed tapes haven't been submitted in their original form.

The House committee wants these and other tapes and most of the members want to listen to the tapes themselves to determine from the voice inflections what the President really meant by some of his controversial statements.

You will be asked to identify yourself by giving the operator a code of two letters, followed by three numbers (XX-000). You choose your own code and make a record of it so you will remember your code. If "Secret Witness" wishes to contact you, it will be announced (using your code) on Channel 11. "Secret Witness" will not ask you to give a phone number or address.

* Write "Secret Witness" at P.O. Box 2190, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Type or print your information. Do not give your name. Instead, use the two letter and three number code (XX-000) of your choice. Write the same code in the lower right-hand corner of your note, tear it off, and keep it. This will serve as verification in case a reward is paid.

Rewards of from $50.00 to $5,000 are being offered for your help in solving crimes. When a reward is paid, you will be asked on television, by using your code, to contact "Secret Witness" and give instructions on how you want the reward delivered so that you can remain anonymous.

OUR PLEDGE TO YOU: You can help our community stop crime, and your identity will never be known to anyone.

Savings and Loan League Seeking Minorities for Management Training

The American Savings and Loan League, Inc., has initiated recruitment for its third Management Training Program. The program is operated in cooperation with the United States League of Savings Associations. The purpose of the program is to identify and select individuals from minority backgrounds and to train them for middle management positions in the savings and loan industry.

The training is performed by major savings and loan associations in the United States. The trainee is individually placed for a nine-month period in an association that gives on-the-job training. They perform as actual employees of the association while rotating through various departments and receive a salary on a scale above the usual savings and loan entrance level.

The second program began in September, 1973, with 28 major savings and loan associations in cities from New York to San Francisco, Los Angeles to Miami participating as training associations. The trainees are receiving intensive training that will qualify them for middle-management positions in savings and loans throughout the United States.

Graduates of the first program are currently employed as branch managers, loan counselors and administrative supervisors.

The American Savings and Loan League is seeking mature applicants for its Management Training Program. The program is open to candidates who are college graduates with a degree in business administration, economics, accounting or related fields or who have at least two years of college and an equal amount of related business experience. People who have graduated and have work experience are encouraged to apply for the program. For further information call or write:

Suite 224, Woodward Building
733 Fifteenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005

Candidates are encouraged to return their applications by May 31, 1974.

Friendship Baptist Church

Brownfield—Supt. D.L. Brown was at his post of duty on time Sunday. The lesson was brought by the teachers with deep discussion and later reviewed by the pastor.

Our pastor, Rev. North, brought a soul stirring message. His subject was "I won't bend, neither will I bow". Text "So if it be so, the God is able to deliver us from the hands of our enemies", Dan. 3:17.

The Mother's Day program was highly enjoyed by all.

Sunday, May 19th, we are looking forward to hearing the Lubbock Soul Seekers singing at the 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. services.

PERSONALS

To Our Family Friends
Thank you each and everyone for your kindness to me and my family, during the time of illness in my family and especially during the hours of our sorrow after the passing of my mother Mrs. Juanita P. Simmons. The people of Lubbock are traditionally the greatest people you will find anywhere. And in the time of need there is no unity of people that can be compared. This is probably the reason my mother loved you so much, and why I love you now. I wish I could thank each of you personally, but I can't. I would like to ask your continued prayers for my aunt, Mrs. Maunita Terrell, for her recovery. And I would like to thank you for the many cards and flowers and food given to us. May God Bless each of you, and may He keep the memory of my mother in your hearts for a long time to come. Thank You. Isaiah F. Simmons Jr. (Freddy)
