Police Survey Finds Few Black Officers

Washington — (NBNS) — The first comprehensive survey of police personnel practices has found few blacks and other minorities in police departments throughout the country. The survey, by the Police Foundation, found only 12,477 blacks and other racial minorities among more than 166,000 officers. Only 516 minority women were among the 2,859 women employed by the 493 police agencies covered in the survey.

The sample represents about one third of the police officers in the country.

The departments covered

Pregnancy May Postpone Jailed Militant's Trial of Murder Charges

New York—(NBNS)—The trial of black militant Joanne Chesimard is expected to be postponed following disclosure that she has become pregnant while in custody on charges of helping to murder a New Jersey state trooper.

Mrs. Chesimard is allegedly a leader in the Black Liberation Army, which police have claimed is responsible for terrorist attacks on policemen.

Last month she was acquitted with Fred Hilton in Federal District Court of charges of having helped rob a Bronx band of $3,700. Her husband, Louis Chesimard, was acquitted last June after a Federal trial on bank robbery charges.

The 26-year-old militant is still

"Have A Heart" Program Underway

The American Heart Association continues its national educational campaign to create public awareness and recognition of the early signs of heart attack.

Since heart attack is the greatest killer in the United States (more than 660,000 deaths annually), all should be interested in telltale signs which give the first indication of its approach. The AHA says the most common warnings are: (1) Prolonged oppressive pain or discomfort in the center of the chest; (2) Pain radiation to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw; (3) Sweating accompanying the pain, perhaps nausea, vomiting or shortness of breath.

These symptoms, the AHA says, often subside and return at a later time. Those experiencing the symptoms should call a doctor at once, because the first hours of a heart attack are often the most critical, and the time in which the most can be done to limit damage.

The AHA campaign is set for February but awareness of warning signs of heart attack should be stressed twelve months a year; executives between the ages of 35 and 64 are most vulnerable, but all in that age bracket are highly vulnerable.

charged with Clark Squire, 37, of having murdered Trooper Werner Foerster after being stopped by him on the New Jersey Turnpike last May.

As a result of frequent outbursts during her earlier trial, Mrs. Chesimard and Fred Hilton were held in a room outside the courtroom, where they listened to the proceedings against them over a loudspeaker. During this time they were guarded constantly by Federal Marshals.

Mrs. Chesimard's attorney, Mrs. Evelyn Williams, said a postponement of the trial was likely because of the defendant's condition. "If she cannot be present in the courtroom because of her pregnancy, I believe the law is clear that the trial will be postponed."

Jury selection was delayed after Mrs. Chesimard became ill in her cell at the Morris County Jail in Morristown, N.J. Her attorney said she did not know how long her client had been pregnant.

United States Testing Student Racial Attitudes

Washington, D.C. — (NBNS) — The U.S. Government is seeking to expand to 25 states a project designed to test the racial attitudes of students.

For this project, a questionnaire has been designed in a fashion to determine if race relations have improved at schools receiving aid under the 1972 Emergency School Aid Act. Already, since October, 27,000 elementary and high school students have been asked such questions as how they think their parents and teachers feel about school integration and whether they think skin tone is a factor in determining intelligence.

States in which the testing is targeted are Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas,

With the stay given by the Supreme Court Justice Louis Powell involving the single member issue, Lubbock County voters will have their share of candidates at the polls this year. All of this will begin with the school and city elections in April. The May primaries will have an interesting ballot with all the new faces on the political trail.

For example, there will be six persons seeking the State Representative, District 75, Place 1 legislative post currently held by Rep. Elmer Tarbox. On the other hand, Representative R. B. "Mac" McAlister, will have two others seeking the post he now holds, District 75, Place 2.

A three-judge Austin federal court ruled last week that District 75 must be divided into 75-A and 75-B, single-member districts, but Supreme Court Justice Powell stayed the order, leaving the two-member district as it was.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs in the case pointed out this week that the full Supreme Court could over-rule Powell. Local party officials decided, however, to allow candidates to file for either multi-member or single-member places. Come May 4, there will be ten names on the multi-member ballot and eleven on the single member districts—if the Court over-ruled Powell.

Those persons filing for the May 4 Primaries who are of interest to our readers are the following:

•U.S. Congress, District 19, incumbent Democrat George Mahon of Lubbock.

•Texas Senate, 28th District, incumbent H.J. "Doc" Blanchard and Kent Hance, both Lubbock Democrats; Republican Bob Garner of Lubbock.

•Texas House, District 75, Place 1, incumbent Elmer Tarbox, Gene Gaines, Bob Vint, Froy Salinas, Delwin Jones, all Democrats; Dr. David Sullivan, Republican; Carlos Quirino Jr., La Raza Unida.

•Texas House, District 75, Place 2, incumbent R.B. "Mac" McAlister, Dr. Wayne Ramsey, Jim Teaver, all Democrats.

•Texas House, District 76, incumbent Democrat James

AMA Threatens Suit For Poor

Chicago—(NBNS)—The American Medical Association has threatened to sue the Department of Health, Education and Welfare if it requires hospitals to certify the need of Medicare and Medicaid patients before admitting.

The AMA said the proposed HEW rules would deny health care to poor and aged patients, by permitting hospital committees to second guess physicians who have certified their patients' need for hospitalization.

Black Journalist Rearrested

Bar Exam Bias Charged

Washington — (NBNS) — Twenty-five black law school graduates, most of the graduates of Howard University Law School, have filed suit in U.S. District Court charging that the District of Columbia Bar examination is "racially discriminatory and unlawfully excludes them from the practice of law."

The suit by the law school graduates, all of who have failed the D.C. exam, alleged that the examination "is weighted in favor of the types of legal knowledge having to do with matters that persons of white middle class background have become familiar with."

Virginia Senators Choose Black Judge

Richmond — (NBNS) — Willard H. Douglas, Jr., a 41-year-old assistant commonwealth's attorney, has been chosen by the Democratic caucus of the Virginia Senate to be the state's first fulltime black judge.

He was nominated for one of the four Richmond juvenile and domestic relations judgeships to be filled by the Virginia General Assembly. Eighteen of the Democratic Senators voted for him over Hugh R. Thompson, who was appointed to fill the post temporarily when it was created last June. Thompson was supported by 14 Senators.

Police Beat

House Burglary

A.J. Draper, 2937 East Colgate Avenue, was awoken from a long night's sleep one morning last week. To be exact, 6:00 a.m. An unknown man was in his house. Draper told police that he saw the man when he grabbed his (Draper's) pants in the bedroom and ran out the rear door of the house.

Draper, according to the police report, chased the burglar a distance but lost him. He returned to the house and found that his wife's purse was also taken by the unknown person.

Draper told police that his wife's purse contained approximately $28 and some credit cards. There was $50 taken from his billfold and several credit cards.

After a careful investigation, it was learned that the burglar gained entry to the house by prying open the screen and then the main door with an apparent unknown instrument. It could have been a screwdriver, according to police.

House Burglary

Freddie Stafford, 1312 East 34th Street, Apt. 28, reported to Lubbock police last week that someone unknown entered his apartment through a window.

Taken from the apartment was approximately $61. Other personal articles were found outside the window of the apartment.

Aggravated Assault

A twenty-three year old Lubbock woman told Lubbock police that her husband hit her on the head with a .38 caliber pistol during an argument at their home last Saturday morning at approximately 3:05 a.m.

She received a knot on the top of her head and another one on the side of her head. She told police that she didn't know whether or not she would file charges against her 23 year old husband.

Aggravated Assault

Louis Mondie, 1701 Avenue A, reported to Lubbock police that a man hit him on the right eye and caused a large gash over and under the eye with an unknown object.

He told police that he was in this house and the man called him outside and hit him. "I don't know what he hit me with", he told police. He was taken to a local hospital by a private car. Several stitches were required for his injury.

He told police he would not file charges against the man, but would take care of it himself.

Theft From Person

Lester Ray Caraway, 1613 East 16th Street, was a very unhappy person last Friday afternoon. He told police he left his house walking when he was approached by some friends.

All of his problems happened at 1600 East 15th Street. He started talking to his friends. They wanted to know if he had received his government check. He told them "yes". They said, "Well, loan me $10."

Caraway pulled out his money and they took all of it. He had $140, all of it in $10 bills with the exception of two fives. He gave police the name of the person who took the money from him.

One way to become intelligent is to remember not to believe everything you see in print.

Gene Gaines Files Twice to Gain Spot On Ballot in State Representative Race

A. Gene Gaines didn't take any chances in filing for the right place last Monday afternoon as he was the first of all the candidates to file double for a shot at the state representative post, either 75B or District 75-1. All of this came about because of a ruling made by the U.S. Supreme Court who ordered a stay on the newly created 75A and 75B.

The Lubbock District was ordered divided into two single member districts by a three man federal judge team at Austin last week. The new order was stayed by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Louis Powell.

Gaines, a 38 year old attorney, is a native of Anadarko, Oklahoma and has been a resident of Lubbock for five years. Prior to moving to Lubbock, he resided in Amarillo.

He is past president of the Lubbock Branch of the NAACP and presently is a member of the executive committee of that organization. He received his B.S. degree from West Texas State University at Canyon where he majored in Economics and minored in government and english.

Although he has not received his degree from Texas Tech University School of Law, he was certified as a lawyer before the State Bar of Texas last summer.

Gaines has worked with the Lubbock County Legal Aid Society as a law student intern and has been self employed as a roofing contractor with his own company, Gaines Roofing Company.

He has also served as a technical instructor in the U.S. Air Force for eight years and was responsible for classroom instruction and student evaluation. Aside from those duties, he was instrumental in the preparation of study materials, testing devices, and training aids.

Gaines was a member of the Human Relation Commission. He resigned this post last December.

He resides at 2629 East Auburn Avenue and was the first of the candidates to double file under the present circumstances.

Too often habits make men instead of men making habits.

The Police Foundation was established by the Ford Foundation to study police operations and sponsor innovative police improvement projects.

The survey of police departments also revealed that virtually all departments reject applicants who have been convicted of a felony. But 77 percent also reject applicants who have been arrested on a felony charge as an adult, even if acquitted of the charge.

It found that 72 percent reject applicants for jobs on their forces if the applicant had ever been arrested on a felony charge, whether convicted or not.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

If last year was "The Year of the Cliffhanger" for Texas Tech basketball, this may well develop into being "The Year of the Technical Foul."

Gerald Myers, a mild-mannered, soft spoken, modest young man, whose idea of a wrathful four letter word is "drat", is endangering Gene Gibson's record. Gerald, indeed, drew two technicals on one decision Saturday night. I think Gib once drew three.

This must be causing concern to such coaches as Shelby Metcalf and Johnny Swain. Their domain is being threatened.

Earlier in the season, when Gerald had sparked the first sign of life into a lethargic Raider quintet with a well-deserved technical, he maintained that a coach never intends to draw a technical.

I remarked that Red McManus, a Creighton coach, had told me he used the technical by design, that it influenced the officials in his favor. "Yeah," Gerald replied, "and he's not coaching at Creighton anymore."

Since some bug took a dislike to me and forced me to my bed of pain, I had to forsake seeing the TCU game. Although there is nothing like seeing a game in person, it gave me once again a chance to marvel at the tremendous job Jack Dale and Bob Nash do.

I've said it many times before, but it bears repeating. I haven't heard a better sports announcer than Jack. He seldom does more than report, but this he does so well that you know what is happening. Some announcers never learn this.

It became obvious Saturday night that Tech wasn't up for the Froggies, and neither was the crowd. For some 12 minutes it was so quiet that somebody crunching on a Dorito would have sounded like an explosion.

Then came the technicals. And with it the Tech team woke up. So did the crowd. The defense went to work and the offense began to score. I smiled, relaxed and waited only for the final score.

When all was said and done, mild mannered, soft spoken, modest Gerald Myers was in control.

With the SMU game Tuesday night, the conference season is half over. I may be upset by results, but as of this writing, I expect Tech to have beaten SMU.

If the Raiders do win, they will have finished the first half unbeaten, 7-0. That would put them a game up on last year's championship team, which lost to Baylor and had a 6-1 mark. It still wouldn't mean that the race was over. Far from it.

Traditionally, the last half of the campaign is the toughest. At the same time, Tech will have gotten over the worst of it when the week ends. From Jan. 26 through this Saturday, Tech will have played four of its five league games on the road.

That's the type of schedule that makes or breaks championship hopes. You have to win on the road—and Tech has been doing that. But Texas and Baylor are in hot pursuit and the race is far from over.

Through the first six weeks, the conference had played 24 games. Home teams had won 16 of those games, visitors had won only eight.

Tech and Texas each had three road victories and the difference between Tech and the Longhorns was the Raider victory in Austin. SMU and Arkansas had claimed the other wins, both over TCU.

Baylor, still in contention, had played only two road games and lost both of them, to Tech and SMU. Meanwhile, the Bears had played four home games and won them all.

The comparison is made because it becomes evident that it's a three-team race now, at least on paper. I count Baylor out of it because of the present road record. The Bears are almost unbeatable in Waco, but it takes more than that to win the title.

Texas still is in good shape one game behind. The loss to Tech hurt, although it wasn't fatal. Still, the Horns have to play here and that could be the deciding game in the league race. Tech can't afford to relax, although it's in good shape.

Following Saturday night's games, Tech still had road games against SMU, Baylor, A&M and TCU. Texas had road games against Baylor, A&M, TCU and Tech. Thus, the challenge is about equal.

Baylor had road games against Texas, A&M, Arkansas, Rice and TCU. Aside from the Tech-Texas game here, the most interesting challenge might come on the final Saturday when UT goes to Baylor.

Even though it's a three-team race, it should be exciting right down to the wire—and I like Tech's chances.

Last week I spent a day in Coleman and a little over three days in the heart of the Hill Country, at Llano. It's a great time for the angler—because fishermen are staying away in droves.

A baithouse salesman at Coleman said that things were slow, real slow. But those that did go out found barnhouse door size crappie. They're starting to school up and move into shallower water, thanks to the unusually warm winter.

My informant also said that some bass were being taken, but they're still in deep water.

At Buchanan Dam fishing camps are cleaning up after the hunters and sprucing up for spring and summer, although owners are concerned about what to expect. Many service station people said that they're business was good through December, but it had fallen off in January.

One fishing camp owner said that he was optimistic, although much of his success would depend on a solution to the energy situation.

The entire area had a banner deer hunting season, but conditions haven't picked up since. Apparently tourists are worried about the gas situation, although I had no trouble finding gas anywhere, and at 38 cents a gallon.

Even at 55 mph it is only a six hour drive to Llano and it won't take a full tank of gas. The fishing opportunities make the trip worth it. So get out that summer tackle, hurry up your repair work and beat and crowd to the Hill Country. You'll love it.

Youth of Bethel Honor Mrs. A.W. Wilson at Dinner

Last Sunday afternoon, the youth of Bethel A.M.E. Church honored Mrs. A.W. Wilson with a "Welcome Home" dinner at the Hickory Inn. This special effort was sponsored by the youth. As one of the young persons said: "We wanted to show her how much we appreciated her and how we missed her while she was out of the city."

Mrs. Wilson has just returned from Arkansas where she had been at the bedside of her sister for several weeks.

The youngsters responsible for this delightful fete were: Calvin Birmingham, Walter Brooks, John McCormick, Jeffrey C. Austin, Gary Wadley, Thomas Patterson, Jr., Pam Cunningham, Audrey Hodge, Sana Cunningham, Dale Austin, Ruby Davis, Dorcell Benson, Camellia Benson and Adrain Rainwater.

Others included Sammie Sanders, Wanda Johnson, Linda Barber, Avis and Shelia R. Patterson, F.E. Brown, II, Mary Jorden, Tommie Belvin, Pam Rollinson, Lori Denise Kerr and Chanell Benson.

Adults, who worked with the youth, were Mrs. Beulah Winters and Mrs. Ruby Tucker.

Black "Parents" Needed for Vietnam Orphans

Saigon, S.V.—(NBNS)—Efforts are being made by a delegation of American social workers to discourage adoption agencies here from placing orphans born of black GI fathers into white homes.

"Since the children are going to America, and in view of the racial situation there, we feel that youngsters would have a better opportunity to develop their self-identities in black homes," explains Alfred Herbert, an official of the Black Child Development Institute in Washington, D.C.

American officials estimate that a minimum of 25,000 children were fathered by Americans and born of Vietnamese mothers. Of these, 700 are in orphanages and 335 were fathered by blacks. An even smaller number, 270, are in orphanages that permit adoptions.

Herbert, who is black, led the delegation of three blacks and three whites on a nine-day trip around Vietnam. They visited orphanages, spoke to American adoption agencies operating here and visited with government officials.

"A number of agencies that have placed black babies in white homes feel that race is not a problem—that it doesn't matter," said Herbert. "It would be nice if we had a society where it didn't, but that's not realistic."

Most of the 25,000 children fathered by Americans live within Vietnamese society, with their mothers—some of whom were prostitutes—or with members of the mothers' families. But 700 were rejected and given up to orphanages where life is joyless and austere.

Herbert is applying for a grant from the U.S. Agency for International Development to set up a short-term program to aid in the placement of black Vietnamese children. Those interested can write him care of the Black Child Development Institute in Washington, D.C.

Memory works wonders with the truth.

Black Faculty, Staff, and Tech Students Meet Wednesday in Urgent Session Here

The Black Faculty-Staff Council of Texas Tech University called an urgent meeting of all black students on the campus, Wednesday, February 6, at 4:30 p.m. in the Coronado Room of the University Center. The meeting was called to give students, faculty and staff an opportunity to discuss a number of events taking place on the campus which affect all minority group members and blacks in particular. The agenda for the meeting included a discussion of Special Services and how it can assist black students, black representation in the Cultural Center being built on the campus, recruitment of more black students and staff and faculty members, the drop-out rate among black students, academic probation and suspension, and the Black Week Program.

Every black student—undergraduate, graduate, part-time or full-time—was urged to attend the meeting and to voice questions, comments or concerns on any of the agenda items or on other issues which effect students. Every black student was urged to become acquainted with all black faculty and staff personnel.

The meeting was held one day before Alex Haley (the author of Malcolm X's Autobiography) speaks on the campus as something of a gesture toward the unity which Malcolm X promoted for black people.

Lubbock Symphony to Welcome a Fellow Texan on February 25th

Monday, February 25, 1974, at 8:15 p.m. the Lubbock Symphony will welcome to the stage a native of Texas, Mr. Ralph Kirshbaum. Only 25 years old and already a widely proclaimed artist, Mr. Kirshbaum was raised in Tyler. Musical by heritage, his mother was a harpist and his father is conductor of the East Texas Symphony. Let it not be said that he has found his way on the merits of his parents, for the list of honors and awards compiled by Ralph Kirshbaum would do justice to any veteran.

Mr. Kirshbaum was one of the first three winners of the First International Gaspar Cassado Competition in Florence, Italy, and the only cellist from a western nation to be named a prizewinner in the Fourth International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. The Soviet newspaper Tass said of him: "Specialists view him as a mature artist with a vivid and beautiful sound and impeccable technique."

By virtue of having won a prestigious National Merit Scholarship, Ralph studied at Yale and graduated with honors Phi Beta Kappa and Magne Cum Laude. He was forced to decline a Fulbright Grant to study abroad due to his draft status, but after a year of teaching, he was reclassified and received a grant from the French Government in 1969 to study in Paris. After arriving in Europe, he appeared as soloist in Italy, France, and Russia and undertook his first extensive European tour in the fall of 1970.

His plans for the season include London's South Bank Festival, South Africa, Paris, Toronto and various appearances in the U.S. For his appearance with the Lubbock Symphony he will be playing the Dvorak Concerto in B Minor, Opus 104. Tickets for the concert may be purchased in the Symphony office, 1721 Broadway, 762-4707. They will be available at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium on the Sunday before the concert and until concert time on February 25.

Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and Washington state.

Students are asked to identify themselves as "black, brown, white," or "not any of these." Then, they answer such questions as: "Do you think black students cause more trouble than other students?" The question is then repeated using the words "white" and "brown" students.

So far, only New York City officials have protested the questionnaire. One official called it "highly inflammatory and racist," while a second threatened to burn the completed questionnaires.

Michael J. Wargo, U.S. Office of Education project officer, aware of the sensitive issues, stated that "if the flak gets heavy" federal officials will back off the project.
