State-Wide Urban League Conference to Be Held

Citizens Crime Committee Formed by Local Group

A self-appointed committee of 21 members from civic organizations and the local business community alarmed by rising crime rates has organized to support existing police and governmental agencies and to educate Lubbock citizens in the prevention of local crime.

The group, called the Concerned Citizens Crime Committee, lists among its goals the reactivation of a program which loans marking pens to the public and to businesses to help police identify stolen property, and the organization of neighborhood committees which will explain methods of crime prevention to the public.

Committee members will also meet with local, county, and district judges "to better understand the problem of repeat offenders."

Committee chairman Clarence Solnick and officers Gary Riley and Arnold Maeker, outlined the goals of the organization at a press conference held at the Lubbock Inn last week.

The committee's purpose was to support existing agencies and to organize and educate the citizens in crime prevention, Solnick stated.

The committee will also consider supporting the recommendations of a manpower report now being made on the Lubbock Police Department before the city council.

Solnick said the group did not have any specific program finalized, but explained the committee was working with four business and civic organizations which he declined to name.

Once a group program is completed, members of the committee will speak to the city's Parent Teacher Organizations and other civic groups to familiarize Community Development Advisory Committee member, Annie Mae Jones, listens to a presentation at a Tuesday night CDAC meeting. Committee members discussed projects to be undertaken with federal funds in 1976.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley Speaks Here this Week

Clarence Kelley, acting director of the FBI said that, in complex times with many problems, there "has to be a relinquishment of complete freedoms guaranteed in the Constitution."

Kelley told members of the press at the Hilton Inn Tuesday citizens with the program.

In addition, part of the neighborhood campaign will include the appointment of block chairmen who will explain the committee program to the public and educate the citizens in their responsibilities as jurors.

The block chairmen will also work with the committee and the police department in educating the citizens in methods of crime prevention.

The committee intends to learn how concerned the people in the community are in tolerating crime, and to bring that concern to city and county officials.

"I am not sure that county and (the city) council are aware of the citizens thoughts on crime," Solnick said.

DUNBAR'S HOMECOMING QUEEN & OUTSTANDING ALUMNI: Mrs. Mildred Mayberry, a 1963 graduate of Dunbar High School, was crowned Homecoming Queen at the recent homecoming game. Outstanding Alumni is Ernest Stevenson, a teacher in the Houston Public Schools. Both are proud graduates of Dunbar High School and natives of Lubbock. Mrs. Mayberry is employed by the Lubbock Independent School District and teaches at Matthew Junior High School.

The Texas State Urban League Council will hold its first annual Conference / Symposium, Nov. 21-22, at Quality Inn Motel, 2200 South Interregional (I-35), in Austin, Texas. Through the joint efforts of the Houston and Dallas Urban Leagues, initiators of the Texas State Urban League Council, issues concerning Blacks on the state and local levels will be addressed.

As the nation approaches its Bicentennial, many problems facing Black Texans gain even greater significance. Problems involving Economic Development and Employment, Education, Housing and Community Development, Health and Welfare, Voter Registration and Education, are issues of major concern in Black communities nationally, and these are the workshop areas for the conference/symposium.

The featured speaker for the Texas State Urban League Conference/Symposium will be Dr. Joan Wallace, deputy director for programs, for the National Urban League (New York, N.Y.). She will offer a national perspective on the challenges and problems confronting Blacks and ways in which Texas Blacks might unite to help solve them.

The Texas State Urban League Council has set as one of its objectives the development of a communications network between Blacks living in urban/rural areas, across the state of Texas.

To participate in the conference, contact Linda Burrowes, Conference Coordinator, Houston Area Urban League, 4702 Dowling, Houston, Texas, or call (713) 526-5127. There is a $10.00 registration fee which will cover luncheon costs and conference materials.

students as well as other interested citizens are invited to attend the program which will feature a wide array of exhibits and demonstrations of school work.

The Estacado P.T.A. is sponsor of the Expo. A short program in the auditorium featuring students is set for 7:30 p.m., followed by the time for viewing exhibits and demonstrations in various departments of the school. Principal E.W. Reed has issued a special invitation for parents to see some of the things that their youngsters are accomplishing at Estacado.

The exhibits include a special Bicentennial display prepared by the history department. A flag display and a Betsy Ross type of dress will be featured by the Office Education Association. Pottery, paintings, and art work with the Bicentennial theme will be exhibited by the art classes. Parents will be able to read poetry that has been written by students in English classes.

Demonstrations will include blood typing by the science department, use of rifles by the Army Junior R.O.T.C. cadets, and a style show by homemaking students.

Refreshments will be served by the homemaking department.

Mrs. Mary P. Tieucl Wins "Outstanding Educator Award"

community of Hobbs did not stop in her classroom and with her students. They have been as broad as the need of the persons she has come in contact with. Her interest, encouragement and financial aid have gone to anyone she thought she might help," Littleton continued.

"As students constantly return to her room at Washington School and to her home in the community with their report cards from higher grades, she has reviewed and encouraged their progress.

"She has financially rewarded those who qualified for the honor roll. She has rewarded all of her students who have graduated from high school. She has personally supported some of those young persons as they went through college. She has given smaller scholarships for 15 years to students attempting to finish their education.

"Mrs. Tieucl keeps an updated pictorial scrap book of 'My children' as they go through life. She can tell you where any of her past students are at the present time. She has provided materials and supplies for adults who were beginning their professional careers, but most of all she has provided constant encouragement for any individual who needed her assistance", Littleton said in the presentation of the Award. From Hobbs Daily News Sun.

Mrs. Tieucl is the wife of Rev. Bob Tieucl, Jr., news correspondent of the West Texas Times and pastor of Beard Chapel C.M.E. Church of Plainview, Texas. The minister is also a syndicated columnist for a number of publications in the Southwest and is listed in Bill Matney's first volume of Who's Who Among Black Americans, 1975-76.

She is also a sister of Mrs. E.C. Struggs, retired educator of Lubbock, and L.G. Porter, retired, of Lubbock.

Mrs. Mary P. Tieucl of 914 S. Dal Paso Street, Hobbs, New Mexico, was named "Outstanding Educator of the Year" at last week's Community Award Dinner sponsored jointly by the Hobbs Jaycees and the senior Chamber of Commerce. Some 300 persons at the downtown Holiday Inn in Hobbs.

The Hobbs Daily News Sun reported that "Mrs. Tieucl has a total of 43 years teaching experience. She is in her 31st year of teaching at Hobbs. She has taught for 27 years as a first grade teacher at Washington School and three years as a pre-school teacher."

Prof. Ralph Littleton, her former principal and now retired, who is a member of the Hobbs School Board said in announcing her selection that "she has taught hundreds of young children as they started at Booker T. Washington. Her teaching does not stop with letters and numbers. She has constantly built self concepts through her positive approach to each child. For example, each child is honored on birthdays and this may be the only recognition of that special day that many of the children receive. "Her contribution to the

On Taxes

The House Ways and Means Committee voted recently to continue federal income tax cuts next year, and the Democratic majority on that key committee defeated a bi-partisan amendment to tie the tax cuts to reduced federal spending.

What this indicates is that Congress and the President will be playing politics to the bitter end, with next year's elections in mind, on the tax-cut question.

This is unfortunate and disappointing. The nation, of course, can't afford the tax cuts. But if there is any justification whatsoever for cuts it could only be through the rationalization that spending will also be reduced.

If Democrats refuse to limit spending, President Ford will veto 1976 tax cuts, and rightly so, and the majority of voters will side with Ford, not Congress as freespending Democrats apparently assume. The public is not as dumb as many believe; polls show, in fact, that most Americans now consider economy the major goal Congress must seek.

As I See It!

by T.J. Patterson

As I See It, it's time for organizations or groups as well as individuals of Lubbock to start getting ready for the registration of voters for the upcoming elections next spring. Since the new law on voting registration, every citizen will have to re-register for the upcoming elections. One advantage is that if you register this time, you will be a qualified voter for four years.

Anyway, regardless of the outcome of the new voter's registration law, this writer would encourage all citizens to do their part and become a bonified voter. We all can do something about helping with voter registration.

Young people, regardless of your socio-economic background or where you live in Lubbock or the South Plains, do your part in becoming a registered voter. The new eighteen-year-old law provides you the right to become registered and vot for persons whom you think should be elected to a given office.

This writer would encourage everyone to get involved and start making preparations for a huge voter's registration campaign, beginning January 1, 1976. This is definitely needed for the benefit of all citizens.

Have you ever seen an unfinished "honkie shooter"? If you haven't, then stop by my office at the West Texas Times (816 Ave. Q) and see what it really is. A friend of mine, Joe Kelly, surprised me with one several weeks ago. At first, I didn't know what it was, but I knew I couldn't use it to catch snakes.

In order for me to finish this "honkie shooter", I will have to get me a large innertube and cut large pieces of rubber to tie to the base. After I do all this, with the help of someone with an innertube they don't want, I will paint it and hang it on my wall.

Joe, I really appreciate what you've given me. As I See It, he will be the first one to use it, if he can shoot, that is.

Like I said, if you haven't seen a "honkie shooter", you are welcomed to see mine.

A recent report of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) reveals that response by police, prosecutors and hospitals toward rape cases and rape victims is "generally poorly coordinated and inadequate." This survey was done on a nationwide basis.

The report says: "The results of the 15 month study indicated that there are reforms under way in some localities and many states have already passed new rape laws or amended old ones."

An interesting outcome of the 51 police departments interviewed revealed the following information:

- Every police force should have policewomen available to interview rape victims who object to being questioned by policemen. The sensitivity of the interviewing officer is more important than the officer's sex is of great concern.
- Many rape victims hide their victimization entirely from the police and others may delay making a report, which decreases the chances of apprehending a suspect.

• Investigators are often ill-equipped to identify an assailant because the technological resources of their departments are limited.

• Police squads handling such crimes as prostitution should not be responsible for dealing with rapes because the cases require entirely different strategies and skills.

• Police departments should make a systematic inquiry into the workings of local hospital emergency rooms focusing on the effects of treatment on the attitudes of victims and also on the collection, analysis, and preparation of evidence."

It is good to know that LEAA's National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice is preparing a package of guidelines for state and local law enforcement agencies, based on the survey's findings, and will distribute it widely across the nation. The package, consisting of how-to manual of about 200 pages, will distill the findings and recommendations contained in the 600 page report of the Center for Women Policy Studies and its subgrantees.

Since this package will be available from LEAA's National Criminal Justice Reference Service in December, the City of Lubbock and Lubbock County should make sure that their law enforcement branches get a copy. The address, incidentally, is P.O. Box 24036, Southwest Post Office, Washington, D.C. 20024.

I'm sure those persons reading this copy will get a better picture on the various responses by police, prosecutors and hospitals toward rape cases and rape victims in this country.

As a veteran of South Vietnam, I am interested in knowing the names of others in Lubbock and the South Plains who have returned and are making contributions to their community. If you know of such individuals, male or female, please inform me by sending their names to: As I See It, P.O. Box 225, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

This writer would like to do stories on such persons who have done outstanding things for their country. Let me hear from you.

Reality exists in the minds of the seekers. Behold the three part harmony that are played when reasons go beyond reasons.

Why!

When!

At birth, life introduces itself through perception.

From perception strives death who's power of calculation on reality grows intensively.

Man's reality is like that of a dictionary, Possessed by perception.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Patterson:

I wish only to express myself as a concerned Black as of our unfortunate situation in Lubbock, Texas. As I look upon the construction and progress of our white neighbors who control and expand their concepts and authority on us, I perceive only oppression and depression of Blacks whom are illusionitive and could only be brought under control by a few willing and honest men with positive minds like that of yourself and I. So, I, Charles Osby, an English major and Music minor at Huston-Tillotson College wish to dedicate a few concepts of change.

First of all, you and I know that if we are going to get anywhere, we must organize a strong representation backed by Black Businessmen, Lawyers, News, Public and Social writers and addressers. Next we need an adult force to congregate at special meetings as to voice their opinions through representation from our community churches which will be our bases (district) of communication. We could form a community treasury of weekly or monthly dues from our district residential churches as to create funds to buy and operate more Black businesses in which everyone would have financial investment giving them a bigger and stable control in Lubbock Political and Economic affairs.

What I'm talking about is a Black community cooperation which will enable us to help ourselves out of this white oppression as much as possible. We must encourage our younger people to do likewise in bringing together their young forces as to further manipulate this idea of change. We need to get involved in our school affairs because I truly believe we are being ripped off as far as education. We need to recognize fully our Black Business and create more of them through this community cooperation.

Improvements in our Community Centers as of better participation and more creative ideas as far as recreational activities are concerned. I have more ideas of change but as of now these ideas say enough. Please think positively on this matter and if possible make it public to our deserving Black Brothers and Sisters of Lubbock, Texas. I wish to express my appreciation of your concern and time lent to me so that I could lay this rap on you. I only hope my concepts will be our salvation. I'll await your return letter.

Yours truly,
Brother Charles Earl Osby

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

CIA FEARS CHANGES IN WORLD LEADERS

by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

(Copyright, 1975, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—CIA analysts have looked into the future and predicted an entirely different world for the 1980s.

Over the next ten years, they believe, the old order will fall away and the nations will be in ferment. The new world, they fear, could be more hostile for the United States.

Most of the venerable leaders who have shaped the events of the past three decades, the experts reason, will have passed on.

In Red China, for example, new faces will soon appear to replace Mao Tse-tung, now 82, and Chou En-lai, 77. Yugoslavia's 83-year-old Marshal Tito, who faced down the Russians and stubbornly pursued his own brand of Communism, will be gone. Several of Latin America's military dictators will die or be deposed.

The CIA views these pending leadership changes in Cold War terms. They fear that the political turmoil, in combination with spreading economic chaos, could cause a vast Red tide to wash upon the shores of the seven continents.

CIA analysts point to Portugal as a current example. There a 50-year-old right-wing dictatorship was overthrown and the Communists—backed by the Kremlin—are struggling for the upper hand.

In the wake of Generalissimo Franco's death, they predict, Spain will witness even a bloodier struggle between communism and the forces of democracy. And the intelligence analysts are appalled over recent polls in Italy which show a Communist leader to be the most popular politician in the country.

CIA experts are fully aware that the Russians are already working to take advantage of the turbulence. The Kremlin believes the world is ripe for revolution. There is open talk in Moscow, according to intelligence reports, about the possibility of defeating capitalism.

Mikhail Suslov, the number two man in the Politburo, is working diligently to strengthen the Kremlin's ties with communist parties in other nations.

Both Washington and Moscow, in short, are still pushing peaceful co-existence. But the intelligence community is quietly advising U.S. leaders that detente doesn't mean they should relax their vigil against communism.

Planned Obsolescence: The executives of the Postal Service have an undeniable flair for wasting money.

Their latest boondoggle is a new "Optical Character Reader," a fancy machine that can read addresses faster than the human eye.

They're planning to buy five of them, for $15 million. The trouble is, the heart of the scanning system is a computer made by Xerox. And Xerox has announced that it is going out of the computer business.

Other, more sophisticated Optical Character Readers will soon be available, but the postal officials, apparently, just can't wait. They are pushing ahead with their plans to buy a system that will soon be obsolete.

The postal brass assure us they are aware of this and plan eventually to replace the computer.

Another Spain: Two years ago, the American intelligence community cooperated with right-wing military officers in Chile to depose the Marxist President Salvador Allende. Now, according to our intelligence sources, they are beginning to wonder what kind of monster they have created.

The Chilean junta has turned out to be one of the most repressive governments in the world. They outlawed Communists and Socialists and now, according to intelligence reports, have begun to turn on the moderates. Thousands of people have been arrested, beaten and tortured for their political beliefs. Slowly but surely, Chile's supporters around the world have dwindled away. The United States, however, continues to back the junta, and this has some U.S. intelligence experts deeply worried.

There is little chance, they believe, that Chilean strongman Augusto Pinochet will surrender his power. Like Spain's Francisco Franco, they fear, he will rule the country for years to come with troops and guns. And like Spain, Chile may become an outcast in the world community.

Watch On Waste: Officials at the Civil Rights division of Health, Education and Welfare seem to think that they have a right to the best—at taxpayer expense, of course.

Twenty of the top Civil Rights bureaucrats traveled to a Laconia, New Hampshire, resort recently to get away from it all and discuss a departmental reorganization. The plane fares and accommodations cost $6,400.

An HEW spokesman told us that the brass went to the plush resort so they would be isolated from routine phone calls and business. Another meeting is planned for November, this time in California.

Washington Whirl: Sen. Tom Eagleton, D-Mo., is one of Greece's best friends on Capitol Hill. But a recent Greek embassy party he found his loyalties torn. Just as the soiree reached its climax, Eagleton disappeared to watch the last game of the World Series. . . Raul Castro, brother of Cuban premier Fidel, embarrassed some diplomatic colleagues at a recent meeting in Mexico City when he loudly accused Gerald Ford of being "stupid" and Richard Nixon of being a lowdown, petty thief. American intelligence sources say Raul was too full of tequila. . . Since President Ford named former North Dakota Congressman Tom Kleppe as the new Secretary of the Interior, some insiders have begun to refer to their agency as the "Department of the Inferior."

Police Beat

Theft Over $5.00

Milton Simms, 309 Keel Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown took advantage of his car one day last week. He tells police that his car was parked on the campus of Estacado High School when the unknown persons took his tail light from his 1955 car.

The light was valued at approximately $5.00.

Woman Struck by Automobile

Alice McConk, 1001 East 28th Street, No. 15, reported to Lubbock police that while she was walking along the street in the 1900 block of Oak Avenue, a man between the age of 20-25, drove up behind her and bumped her with his 1974 model car. She was bumped on the back of her legs.

According to the police report, she claimed to be seven months pregnant and was carrying a small child at the time.

The young lady said that her back was hurting from the jolt. "I will file charges on the man," she said.

There were, according to the police report, three other men in the car at the time of the incident. It's hard to believe that we still have young brothers who will hurt young sisters, especially when there are other brothers in the car watching the incident. We need to ask ourselves what's going on?

House Burglary

Grace Fulsom, 2616 East Bates, reported to Lubbock police that someone broke into her house while she was away one day last week. Pry marks were found on the back door where entry was gained.

Taken from the house were several items, including an 8-track tape player, a vacuum cleaner, tape recorder and eight 8-track tapes.

These items were valued at approximately $310.

Burglary of Business

C.B. Stubblefield, 1711 Ute Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown entered his place of business, Stubb's Bar-B-Que at 108 East Broadway, one night last week and took some of his possessions.

Taken from the establishment were several bottles of Vodka,

Colgate, reported to police that his house was broken into while he was away one day last week. Entry was gained by a window on the side which was broken.

Taken from the house was an 8-track player and one $10 money order.

Threat to Kill

Ray Willis, 1001 East 28th Street, Apt. 27, reported to Lubbock police that a woman, approximately 40 years of age, sent two young men to his apartment to ask him out one night last week.

When he came outside, a woman pulled a pistol and told him that he better come and go with her or she would shoot him. After talking to him for some time, the lady left, but she said she would return.

Willis only wanted to advise the police of the situation, and not file charges on the lady.

Looking Back Over the Years

"I've Seen Many Things Happen Over the Years", Says "Rabbit"

by T.J. Patterson

(Editor's note: This is an interview with Mr. Will "Rabbit" Austin who came to Lubbock in 1916 from Waxahachie, Texas. "I've seen many things happen here in Lubbock over the years," says Mr. Austin.)

Mr. Austin, when did you come to Lubbock?

"I came to Lubbock in the fall of 1916 on a cotton pick. I came from Waxahachie, Texas, and after coming here and working around, I began to like what I saw and wouldn't leave.

When were you born, sir?

"I was born on July 4, 1888."

What did Lubbock look like to you in those early days?

"There were trees all around everywhere. There were no places here but a few on Avenue A."

How many black families were here then?

"There were about four families living here then. I can't think of their names, but I roomed with a man and his family that lived over on 19th Street. You see, some people were living on 19th at that time. That's where the few colored people lived. I think his name was McKnight. I roomed with him and his two daughters and one son. I stayed with them until I got me a job and did better. I went to work at the Compress at a regular job. I worked there when they were putting it up and I quit a little before they tore it down.

What was your job at Lubbock Compress?

"I was a band shaver. I helped press the cotton by hand. The tiers were on one side and the band shavers on the other side."

Where did you go from there?

"After they built the Co-op Compress, I went down there. I was the best band shaver in this part of the country, and they transferred me everywhere."

What kind of money did you make being a band shaver?

"I was making 20 cents an hour at that time. Some weeks, I'd do pretty good. I would make as much as $12 to $15. Of course, I had to work overtime. That was a lot of money in those days."

What did $12 a week buy?

"It would buy anything you wanted. You could go to the grocery store and get five dollars worth of groceries that would last you a week or ten days. You got a lot of food with that small amount of money."

What was there for people to do beside work in those days?

"Not much. Most of the men just gambled. I loved to work, you know, and I kept me a year round job all the time at the Compress. I stayed there so long they moved two boxcars over there for me to live in. I stayed in one of them for about a year."

What was it like living in a boxcar?

"It was just like living anywhere else. You could take all that frame out inside and put your beds and other things inside. You could put whatever you wanted to inside the boxcar to live."

Were there many killings in Lubbock in those days?

"No, we didn't have all those killings. We got along pretty good. We didn't have blacks fighting each other like they do today. Every now and then you would hear of a fight. Outside that, you never heard of anything. You just didn't have all that fighting, cutting and shooting."

How did the whites and blacks get along?

"They got along real fine. The white folks treated the Negroes real nice. I didn't go to town much. I'm talking about the folks at the compresses and oil mills that treated us real good."

What was Slaton like in 1916?

"Slaton was just a little old place. It was a nice town, but they didn't have any law there. On Saturday nights we would go to Slaton and gamble, and come on back home without any problems. The colored boys just had a lot of fun between here and Slaton. Two or three of them had cars. Sometimes we would stay until 12 or 1 o'clock, but we'd always come back home without any problems. It was just nice when I first came out here. Of course, there was nothing out here but weeds and trees. There weren't a lot of people here."

Did you like pulling cotton?

"I got tired of pulling cotton. All of the boys who came out here with me had all left Lubbock. They were making good money pulling cotton. They would make $3 or $4 a day. I just got tired of pulling cotton. I couldn't make any money at it. I would only make $1.50 and sometimes only $1.25. I said to myself, 'I'm sick of this cotton pulling, and I'm going to do something else to make a living'."

You played baseball didn't you, Mr. Austin?

"Yes, I played a little in those days. I played with Pernel Swansey and 'Mann' and others whose names I can't recall. We played for a team in Waco, before I came to Lubbock. We would go from Waxahachie down to Waco and play baseball. I loved it. And I still do love the game. After we finished playing in Waco, we'd get our little change (money) and come on back to Waxahachie."

Did they pay you for playing?

"Yes, they paid us for every game we played."

What position did you play on the team?

"I played outfielder."

Haven't you helped with the Eastern Little League Program?

"Yes, I've worked with the Eastern Little League. I would take care of the park by keeping it in order. I have also helped keep the grounds at another park in Lubbock, out in the 34th Street area. I have worked all around here with the baseball clubs. They all know me."

How did you get the nickname "Rabbit"?

"Well, I could run real good. Old Ty Cobb, who played outfield for the Detroit Tigers, gave me that nickname. He told me one day, 'We're going to change his name, and we are going to call him Rabbit.' You see, I knew Ty Cobb quite well. I worked for Detroit for about three or four years. All of them old ball players knew me. I met one here in Lubbock about a year ago. He just hugged me and said 'Rabbit, I thought you were dead.'"

Who was it?

"His name is Don Bush. He still lives in Detroit today."

What did you do for the Detroit Tigers?

"All I had to do was take care of the tools. You see, when we were going somewhere, I didn't have to take care of the grounds. At home, I would take care of the field."

How did you get to work for the Detroit Tigers?

"Well, the Tigers would open in Waxahachie and I got a chance to meet the people. When they left Waxahachie, they just took me to Detroit with them. I was doing a good job for them."

What kind of advice would you like to leave young people?

"The most important thing for any young person is go to school and get an education. Kids have a chance now. I didn't have a chance when I was growing up in the world. I have tried to treat all kids as nice as I could in my day. I like to talk with kids about going to school, because it is important. You see, kids can get good jobs now. At that time, we couldn't get anything but a job at the compress and pull cotton. Kids now can go the bank and get a job if they get an education."

How did kids treat older people in those days?

"Kids didn't know anything other than to be nice to older people. That's all kids knew how to do. After the town (Lubbock) started to build up a bit, you know, the kids would get smarter. Before that kids were just as nice as they could be to old folks. They respected old folks in those days."

How did they respect the older folks?

"You know, you can see a kid now and see them all up and down the streets cussing and using bad words. But in those days, you could tell them, there is Mr. so and so, and he would stop using bad words. Today, they just keep on cussing a little louder."

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

One thing can be said about Texas Tech football this year (among others): it isn't dull.

At times it gets downright exciting. Take the Florida State game, for instance. It was the opener and there were few ho-hum moments.

Then came New Mexico and it was far from causing ennui to set in. Forget Texas. Oklahoma State was exciting, too. Forget Texas A&M. Arizona was a nailbiter. Some of the SMU game was, too. And no one went to sleep during the Rice game.

In fact, Steve Sloan, didn't you know that it was Homecoming and some of your fans might be prone to heart attacks? Anyway, your Raiders pulled it out to the delight of all Tech fans.

There were anxious moments, though, when the Raiders continued to show generosity above and beyond the call of duty. Three second half fumbles and a pass interception really aided the coronary disposition of Raider exhorters.

Two Tech fumbles led directly to Rice touchdowns and the pass interception led to the field goal. That's 17 points on three turnovers and few teams can enjoy that type of generosity.

The Raiders turned one Rice fumble—the only one—into a touchdown and an intercepted pass led to a touchdown. In fact, the third quarter was a fluke in that Tech scored seven points and didn't run a single offensive play in the first 7:13 of the quarter.

Sloan listed six key things in the game at this post-game conference: (1) Tech's not being able to score just before the half ended; (2) Green's intercepted pass for a score; (3) Jordan's punt fumble; (4) Rice having to settle for a field goal; (5) the 72-yard touchdown pass play; (6) Tech's long drive without a pass that ate up the clock.

That drive, of course, was stopped at the 12 on the third fumble and averted a probably score that would have iced down the game and made Rice's 84-yard drive meaningless.

Steve observed that Tech probably should have taken the wind instead of the ball at the start of the game. As for the consistent rushing game by Rice, he said that some of it was due to poor tackling and some of it was due to the ability of the Owl backs.

As for the mistakes the Raiders still make, he said that it was no specific area that breaks down each game and he is mystified as to why this is true. "Turnovers," he said, "have really hurt us." Amen.

Steve left the decision up to Tommy Duniven on the goalline play with three seconds left, because he, Sloan, couldn't see how much yardage was needed.

Tech, at the time, was out of timeouts, and Steve said that "we probably should have taken a penalty and gone for the field goal."

Steve also thought that the defensive work at the close of the game may well have given the Raiders more confidence.

This week the Raiders have the unenviable task of playing a team, TCU, that has lost 18 straight games. It may seem strange to be worried about a team with that record, except for two things: Every losing streak has to end and the Frogs usually always play Tech an outstanding game.

Sloan was asked if he had ever played against a team that had lost 18 straight and he replied that he couldn't recall a single incident.

Putt Powell of Amarillo brought a chuckle when he asked a question—and then gave Steve an out.

"Who would you pick if you had to, Texas or Texas A&M?" Putt asked, and then added, "or would you rather not?"

"I guess I'd take Texas' offense and Texas A&M's defense," he replied.

He brought a laugh before the answer when he paused a long time and then told the writers: "I was trying to think of what Abraham Lincoln would have said!"

I guess age is showing through when you forget to salute two men in particular for outstanding honors received, Leete Jackson and the late Allen "Chuff" Benton.

Both were elected to the Texas Tech Hall of Honor and both men deserve it. Leete was a post-war fullback playing for Tech when I first came on the scene and he contributed mightily to winning Raider efforts. He was a dedicated athlete and gentleman, which he remains to this day. He richly deserved enshrinement.

Chuff Benton was just a great guy in every respect. He was a loyal, 100 percent supporter of Tech. His home was always open to friends and he contributed in every conceivable way to Tech. I still miss his smile and his warm welcome. He, too, was a winner.

For the life of me I can't see why all the furor over "no-shows" at football games, or any other sport. The name of the game still is money and, if the tickets have been sold, who cares if the fan prefers to stay home than fight the crowd and the elements.

Athletic teams, pro variety, are paid to play whether there is a single fan in the stands. The empty seats may look stark and barren, but so what? Despite the opinion of the networks, the games aren't played for TV.

Some day, just for the heck of it, I'd like to see some wealthy tycoon buy every seat in the stadium for just one game. It would be strange to see two teams playing without any fans, bands, cheerleaders or any other whoopla.

It would be interesting, but a little depressing, too. For, when all is said and done, any sport is richer for the cheers of the fans. Without them, it's dull, no matter how good the performance on the field. But it doesn't take 100 percent attendance.

Now there are two tax-sheltered ways for you to build a better retirement

After you've retired, will you be able to travel, enjoy yourself, and live the life you want to? It will take more than Social Security to make that dream come true.

Fortunately, you no longer have to rely on Social Security alone. A new pension law is helping self-employed people, and those not yet covered by retirement plans, save taxes while they build a more secure future.

If you're self-employed, you can now deposit with us up to $7,500 a year and deduct it on your income tax return. Or, if you're a person not yet covered by a retirement plan, you can set aside and deduct up to $1,500 a year.

Interest earned on the funds you set aside will NOT be subject to tax each year. In fact, you won't pay ANY TAX AT ALL, until payments begin coming to you — usually at retirement.

Result: Your personal retirement fund will grow faster AND larger!

To find out what such a plan could mean to you and your family, simply fill out the coupon below and return it to us. Or, write, phone, or visit our offices to gain complete details.

Your inquiry won't place you under any obligation. So why not act today? The sooner you start building a tax-sheltered retirement fund, the more you'll have to live on after age 65.
