Opposition Planned to No Parking

by Mary Alice Robbins

A proposal to eliminate onstreet parking along Avenue Q has drawn strong opposition from owners of businesses located on that major thoroughfare.

"This is a part of the downtown area they're hoping to revive—and they're going to ruin it," observed George Hogland, owner of Lubbock Business Suppliers.

It all boils down to whether the city wants businesses in downtown Lubbock, Hogland said. Eliminating on-street parking for firms that have no other parking facilities will drive many people out of business, he said, and that "could be a tremendous tax loss."

But the Avenue Q business owners don't plan to accept the no-parking proposal lying down. In the past week, the owners have been readying an organized opposition to the plan which will be aired in the Citizen's Traffic Commission's public hearing at 7 p.m. Thursday in city council chambers.

Arguments for and against the city traffic engineering department's suggestion to eliminate parking from 4th Street to 22nd Street on Avenue Q will be present at Thursday's meeting.

"We're exploring the pros and cons of this," noted city director of traffic Bill McDaniel. The CTC is taking a look at the situation on the basis of projections, McDaniel said, and will analyze all the input before making any recommendation to the city council.

If the traffic flow continues to grow on Avenue Q, "parking will have to be modified down the line," McDaniel said. At this time, he believes the most critical area is between 19th Street and 22nd Street.

According to Hogland, there is a moral issue involved in the no-parking dispute. When the city decided to widen the street in 1970, members of the city council at that time voted to leave the on-street parking, he said. "and we feel that morally they are obligated to leave the parking."

The businessmen feel they've been promised by the city that the on-street parking would be kept intact, Hogland said. "Now they're trying to take it."

Local attorney Carroll Cobb, who is helping the business owners to organize their opposition, said similar proposals to eliminate Avenue Q parking have come up in the past. But before when this issue has come up, Cobb said, the traffic engineering department carried its proposals directly to the city council. This time, the suggestion is being channeled through a citizens' group.

"One wonders whether or not this was on the commission's own initiative or in response to the thoughts of Bill McDaniel, who introduced the matter as an ex-officio member of the commission," Cobb commented.

Ward System Debate Set Sunday

Old-Fashioned Political Rally Planned at Klapp Park Sunday

An old-fashioned political candidates rally is on tap for 2 p.m. Sunday in the northwest section of K.N. Clapp Park at 41st Street and University Avenue.

Deaths Halt Vaccines Here

The deaths of three elderly persons Monday who were given swine flu inoculations in Pittsburgh, Pa., have temporarily halted plans to begin a influenza vaccination program on the Texas Tech campus today.

Dr. Fratis Duff, director of the Texas Department of Health Resources in Austin, called Public Health Region 2 director Dr. John Board Tuesday afternoon to announce the change in plans in the inoculation program.

According to Board, the TDHR director said the state's swine flu inoculation program has been suspended until at least Monday to give the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., time to confirm or refute the relationship between the vaccine and the three deaths in Pittsburgh.

This will cancel the inoculation program set to begin today at Tech. Public Health Region 2 originally planned to begin today administering the flu vaccine to about 20,000 persons at Tech.

There have already been more than a million inoculations given in Texas without any reports of ill effects, Board said.

Texas was the fifth state to cancel its swine flu vaccine program on Tuesday.

Headlining the rally will be presentations by U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock and his Republican challenger Jim Reese of Odessa. The two men are opponents in the race in the 19th congressional District.

Other local candidates who will appear on the stage for the political forum are Roy Ward and Joe Robbins, opponents in the race for state representative in District 75-A; and Froy Salinas and Lee Page, running for the state legislator post in District 75-B.

Members of a local high school band will play patriotic music for the rally.

The event is being co-sponsored by the Greater Lubbock Press Club and Lubbock League of Women Voters. Tom Allen, president of the press club, will give the welcome, and league member Louise Cummins will serve as program moderator.

Each candidate will deliver a five-minute speech on his views, followed by a 10-minute question and answer session on each race.

Purpose of the rally is to provide local voters an opportunity to become better informed about the candidates and the issues. The event is open to the public.

In case of bad weather, the rally will be staged in Hodges Community Center.

"Since people in Lubbock have been talking about the evils of the 'Ward System', we are going to have a debate and discuss the pros and cons," says Attorney A. Gene Gaines.

The West Texas Times learned today that this debate will take place Sunday afternoon at the Lyons Chapel Baptist Church at 3.

"We have invited Kenneth May, associate editor of the Avalanche-Journal, to speak about the negative aspects of the 'Ward System', but he has declined," said Gaines.

When asked why Mr. May declined to participate, Mr. Gaines said: "He (Kenneth May) couldn't take part because he's only permitted to write about the matter, and not allowed to talk about it."

"It's always easy to get someone to talk about this issue on a one to one basis, but when it comes to talking about it in public, it's hard to get someone to participate," said Gaines.

Recently, Gaines filed a federal class action suit against the City of Lubbock. This case is scheduled to come before U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodard Nov. 15.

Last week, the Lubbock Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) was given a green light to support this federal suit.

Dr. F.L. Lovings, chapter president, told the Times last week that the local chapter has instructed their local attorney to file a "friend of the court brief."

"When you mention 'Ward System' to people in Lubbock,

Well Deserved Occasion for Mahons

The tea in honor of U.S. Representative George and Helen Mahon was a well deserved occasion last Sunday afternoon at Mae Simmons Community Center. The works of Congressman Mahon has helped many of us in Lubbock County and the remaining counties in the 19th Congressional District.

Those responsible for this effort should be congratulated for a job well done. The remarks by George Scott, Jr. was well taken, as he expressed the feeling of every East Lubbock citizen in attendance.

For 42 years, Congressman Mahon has been a great statesman for the people of our nation. He holds a very powerful office, and he admits that it is the people of his district who keep sending him back each time.

We hope the Mahons will have an opportunity to visit in the East Lubbock community in the near future. More people need to visit with this man of great integrity. He is a dedicated man, and we're thankful of having him to serve us in Washington.

We are glad that the Mahons know there are people in East Lubbock who really appreciate the work he is doing for us. It was a well deserved tea for a great team working for West Texas.

Parking A Must for Avenue Q Businesses

The question to be asked at a public hearing on Thursday evening at 7 is should parking be allowed in front of businesses from 6th Street to 22nd Street on Avenue Q? We believe that the recent proposal by the City of Lubbock to discontinue parking in this area will be a hinderance to many Lubbock businesses.

We admit Avenue Q is a busy artery in our city, but we feel more consideration should be given to allow businesses to continue to have convenient parking for their customers.

It is not asking too much for this consideration since these businesses rely heavily on accomodating parking places for persons who keep them in business.

We hope that businesses will be represented well in the City Council Chambers on Thursday evening. It is a must that parking be allowed for the businesses in this area of the city. If there is no input from those businesses involved, it will make it easy for the Citizen's Traffic Commission to create a hardship on many businesses in the immediate downtown Lubbock area.

It can't be over emphasized how important it is to work out a healthy solution for the welfare of business in general in this downtown area.

"As I See It"

by T.J. Patterson

With only a few weeks left before the General Election it appears as though Froy Salinas, Democrat candidate for the state representative race in District 75-B, is forgetting where he got his several hundred votes to put him in this election.

After his comments in the University Daily, Texas Tech daily newspaper last week, many blacks are beginning to take a second look at the man whom they voted for while defeating Dewlin Jones. Not only that, but this writer has been asked why this newspaper had endorsed him if he felt like that.

His statement, "We've got a politically dumb community," hasn't been taken well by many citizens. Many are saying that if elected, Salinas would go to Austin and pay no attention to the people of his district.

Aside from that, he told Texas Tech students that they were the ones who made his campaign a success in the May Primary. Again, Mr. Salinas must realize that many voters in Alderson Junior and Ella Iles Elementary Schools, voting boxes 6 & 20 respectively, have made his campaign a success up to this point.

This writer wants Mr. Salinas to know that all brown and black people are not politically dumb. Maybe he has forgotten that browns and blacks are a part of this community, too. After being involved in the political arena for several years this writer feels that very few minority citizens are ignorant to the political situation in Lubbock and West Texas.

Let's not burn out bridges before we cross them, Mr. Salinas. Minority people in particular, don't like to be used by any politician, regardless of their prior commitment to a given situation.

The decision made by former-Secretary of the Agriculture, Earl Butz, to resign form his office, should let every minority in Lubbock and West Texas know that their vote is quite important. The vote is very important if you use it...

The same type of political pressure put on the Ford Administration to fire Butz can be put on politicians in our community. That is, if we use our precious vote. Why not use it in the General Election, November 2.

*****

Black people had better keep an eye on what's happening in America and Lubbock. Just last Friday in Denver, Colorado, a national organizer for the Klu Klux Klan told his audience that he favors returning all blacks to Africa.

The man, Jerry Dutton, 34-year-old native of Metairie, La., said: "Many blacks see a golden opportunity in Africa of building a civilization of their own rather than accepting second class citizenship in this country."

What this fellow doesn't realize is that black people help build America and they certainly are not thinking about going to Africa.

Black Empowerment

Speaking for Ourselves

by Dr. Nathaniel Wright, Jr.

All throughout the civil rights movement—even during the pre-Emancipation period—there has been a continuous tension between those blacks who believe that blacks must speak for themselves and those who believe that others may speak for us.

Indeed, the arch-foe of human enslavement, William Lloyd Garrison, who was tarred and feathered and dragged through the streets of Boston for his abolitionist views, was scandalized at the "uppitiness" of some blacks who believed that whites should support the cause of blacks but not lead.

*****

This age-old problem has emerged afresh in the white press, specifically with the reputedly "pro-colored but anti-black" and prestigious New York Times.

In this paper's not unexpected endorsement of the racially presumptuous Patrick Daniel Moynihan in his Democratic Party candidacy for the U.S. Senate, this patronizing paper spoke of the contender's "Unfortunate—and undeserved—unpopularity among black citizens."

In many respects, The New York Times is of the same stamp as Mr. Moynihan. Long insensitive to both the feelings—and the talents—of blacks, The New York Times has been one of the most faithful exemplars of the smugly entrenched racism of the white press throughout America.

The New York Times has never had a black on the inner circles of its editorial staff. There are literally hundreds of blacks of the talents or potential of the "white circle of omniscience" which manages the all-wise and authoritative opinions expressed in the major feature articles and on the editorial page of the Times.

But the "peerless" Times patronizes on both professional and racial lines. In its "judgment" (and not "Comment") regarding the prevailing black attitude regarding its recommended U.S. Democratic Senate candidate from New York, there was not the slightest humility or tentativeness. The Times' judgment, naturally, was stated emphatically and coldly as a fact.

This simply underscores the need—for the foreseeable future—for strong black media to make judgments on, and speak from within Black America, the true sentiments of black Americans.

The white press has taken a large percent of the advertising monies spent in campaigns directed toward the black communities across the nation. Yet, the white press has not dealt with blacks equitably in any manner.

The white-owned and black-oriented radio stations have been worse. It was only by a bitter fight that one of the nation's most populous states recently was granted a license to operate a black-oriented radio station whose ownership was representative of the racial composition of the community.

So far as black Americans are concerned, we need a strong and continuous voice, and by this we mean a voice under black control...at least for some considerable time to come. We also need control over—or some equitable trade out from—all the businesses that operate from within the black community.

It is in this context that all black newspapers should use to the fullest extent possible their collective powers to guarantee for the black press as a whole, first, an equitable share of the marketing monies which enrich the coffers of corporate white America through sales in our black communities.

"In unity there is strength." Hence playing the business marketing game together means not only benefits to corporate America but also a legitimate and non-presumptuous voice securely—and helpfully for all Americans—speaking honestly the sentiments, hopes, insights and convictions of black America.

In an economic and political sense, black Americans represent "a nation within a nation." The black American "Gross National Product" ranks us, as a people, along with the dozen major nations of the world. Hence we are a force to be reckoned with...and dealt with fairly.

In this light, the work of Black Media, Incorporated, "the world's largest multimedia cooperative," is all-important. The organization must focus its resources on obtaining its rightful share of the market securely and fairly, as it so abundantly deserves. Success, however, should not suggest too great a proliferation of activity.

Divisiveness of resources can be as fatal as divisiveness of purpose. The long hard-pressed editor-publishers are entitled to the economic security which will enable them to be the "kept servants" of no special monied interests who too often have sought to manipulate our most courageous voices. Then, too, we must strengthen the whole black media field in such a way that America as a whole is served best by hearing—in the best way possible—from black America itself and not from its demeaning self-appointed surrogates.

Reception Held Here For Mahons

Residents of East Lubbock attended a reception in honor of U.S. Rep. and Mrs. George Mahon last Sunday afternoon at Mae Simmons Community Center. This tea was sponsored by friends of the Mahons.

"He's one of the most powerful men in the world," said George Scott who introduced Mahon to those in attendance. Scott said that Mahon is a friend of all of his "people" in the 19th Congressional District.

In talking to the audience, Mahon expressed his appreciation for being able to come out and visit with residents of East Lubbock. "Mrs. Mahon and I always enjoy having an opportunity to visit and talk with people we represent in Washington," he said.

He told the group that many laws were passed this past session and that it was a rugged session. "In our office," he said, "we had a mail count and came up with a figure of 2,000 letters received from people in this district and throughout the nation about various problems."

There were questions raised about the closing of military bases, the economy, Social Security and other matters. "One of the greatest joys that we have in Washington is to be able to help all people, regardless of their station in life. To be able to report to people who need help about a particular problem is most enriching," Mahon said.

"I do have a powerful position in Washington as chairman of the Appropriations Committee because people like you have kept me around in Washington all these years," he said.

In the 12 years he has served as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Mahon said he has always tried to play an important role in balancing the budget. "I'm not a big spender like some people have suggested," he added.

With the singing of "Love Lifted Me," "My Country Tis of Thee" and "In the Garden," the afternoon with the Mahons got underway. Rev. Adolphus Cleveland, pastor of the New Jerusalem Baptist Church, gave the invocation.

Mrs. Mahon was presented a pot of flowers from members of the People For Progress (PFP) organization.

Mrs. Lucille S. Graves and Mrs. D.C. Fair Sr. served as hostesses for the affair.

David Langston, campaign manager for Mahon, expressed his appreciation also for those in attendance.

At issue, Cobb said, is whether the city is going to put people out of business along Avenue Q for the sake of traffic flow. If the city believes the traffic situation is that important, Cobb believes condemnation proceedings should be taken and the businessmen paid for their businesses.

Hospital District Official Resigns Post Here

S. Robert Schultz, assistant administrator for administrative services for Lubbock County Hospital District, is leaving that position Friday to enter private business, according to LCHD administrator Harold P. Coston.

Schultz, who has been with the LCHD planning staff three years, has named his motivational and self-development service "Personal Achievements."

"As a staff person, Schultz has participated in various aspects of the hospital project, including facility planning, organization and staff development, and writing administrative policies and procedures," Coston notes. "He has completed much of the work he joined the district to do, and this same technical background, experience and interest, coupled with his 12 years' experience in personal service industries and teaching fortunately will not be lost to the community."

Schultz studied at Park College, Parkville, Mo., and following four years in the U.S. Army Medical Service Corps, he received a B.S. degree in economics and Asian studies from Sophia University, Tokyo, Japan.

S. Robert Schultz

He received his master's degree in health care administration from Trinity University, San Antonio, and served his administrative residency at Memorial Hospital in Lufkin. He was assistant administrator at Palo Pinto General Hospital, Mineral Wells, before joining the hospital district.

Monthly Report Begins On Food, Farm Prices

A monthly report on consumer food and basic farm prices in Texas is being initiated this month by the Texas Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

The survey will cover 20 commonly-purchased food items and their relation to production costs, based on reports taken in 67 stores in 12 cities, White reported.

"Numerous studies of food prices are made by various organizations on the national level but, because of their general scope, do not accurately reflect the price situation in Texas," White said.

"By inaugurating this program on the state level, we will enable Texas consumers to anticipate market trends and how they affect consumer budgets," the commissioner commented.

"This data also will inform consumers what factors are affecting food prices and provide a better understanding of the farmer's role," he said.

White pointed out that the latest United States Department of Agriculture statistics show that the American farmer is receiving an average of only 40 cents out of each consumer's dollar spent on food.

The initial survey was taken by TDA representatives Tuesday and the results will be distributed to the Texas media, White reported.

The monthly survey will be taken in supermarkets in Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, El Paso, Austin, Corpus Christi, Lubbock, Abilene, Laredo, Tyler and Pharr.

White said the stores designated for the survey were selected on the basis of both geographic and economic distribution.

Well, sir, we found out what we've been waiting for this year, Texas Tech DOES have a football team of note. It isn't just a football team, it is a true title contender.

The Red Raiders decisively beat Colorado in the opener and the Buffs have proven, since then, that they have a good team. Then the Raiders wallowed their way past New Mexico in a game that didn't make them appear convincing.

Texas A&M, though, was a topnotch team and recognized as such. The Aggies had lost a conference game. They had to win over Tech. And the game was on their home field.

The Raiders didn't give them a chance. They blitzed the Aggies with 21 first quarter points, almost had either a fourth touchdown or a field goal in the first 15 minutes. And while the Aggies came back, it was too far up the hill and the hill was too steep.

Make no mistake; the Aggies have a good football team. It may not be as good as last year's co-champions, but it isn't much weaker. It still has the great defense, but the offense once again doesn't measure up to what it takes.

And the wishbone T isn't designed to play catch-up ball. Even with a passing attack, which the Aggies have installed, probably thanks to Tom Wilson, their wishbone T falls short.

The Raider offense struck for the points that were necessary and then turned the game over to the defense. And didn't the defense respond! Except for occasional bursts, the Aggies had little or no success.

Harold Buell, Richard Arledge and Thomas Howard were particularly outstanding. They pressured and pestered the Aggie backs all afternoon and made it a miserable day.

As a result of their victory the Raiders have really shot to the front in the conference race. Houston, of course, has a pair of wins; one of them over the same Aggies. Incidentally, the Cougar victory margin was the same as Tech's, 11 points.

So, down the line, you can look for a titanic battle between those teams here, as well as with Baylor, Texas and Arkansas. And the only "big" game not here is with Arkansas.

In the past, however, the Raiders often have beaten a team like Texas or Arkansas, and then stubbed a foot over some one like TCU, Rice or Baylor.

And coming up this Saturday is a Rice team that has shown heavy reliance on the pass and has managed to put points on the board against everyone except LSU. The Raiders' pass defense will be sorely tested and the Raiders can't afford a letdown.

I don't know if it was because it was two wishbone T teams playing, or whether both Texas and OU have great defensive teams, but this year's Texas-OU game was on the dull side.

Neither really showed much offensive strength and it became a duel for punters and mistakes. The Sooners were fortunate to get a tie out of the game. By all rights, two field goals should have won it. At the same time, OU should have won after getting a tying touchdown.

The game did point up the fact that quarterback is a major problem for the Longhorns, while Earl Campbell continues to be a factor with his running. But the Horns don't appear to have the same mystique, the same legerdemain.

Rice couldn't contain the Horns, but Boston College beat them and the Sooners held Campbell and the Jones boys in good shape. The quarterback perfection of the past isn't there.

*****

Will the truth ever come out on the argument between Darrell Royal and Barry Switzer? They obviously get along like a piranha and a wounded animal.

Was Royal trying to psych Switzer and OU, or was he serious in his charge of spying? Also, was there spying? Earlier this year there was a case in which spying was admitted, so it is within the realm of possibility.

Regardless of the answer, it's all a little silly for two grown men at the heads of outstanding football squads to carry on this way. They ought to be slapped on the wrists by the NCAA with a dozen strands of wet noodles.

In this day of game films there are few, if any, secrets—and that includes so called "secret" plays installed for one game. It's more the surprise than the actual play.

The World Series is coming up and it appears to be the Reds and the Yankees, although this is being written Sunday and anything can happen. It probably won't, however.

Nothing has happened to change my mind about the Reds. They seem to be the strongest machine assembled in years, maybe in history. They have strong pitching, great offense and a defense that doesn't give much away. The Reds are awesome.

*****

After this weekend the football season "begins" in Lubbock. Yep, one game in six weeks here. And then here come five games in seven weeks against the likes of Arizona, Texas, SMU, Houston and Baylor. Oh, boy, bring on the football season!

Medical School Faculty Attends Chicago Course

Seven members of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine (TTUSM) Department of Surgery are participating as faculty in a postgraduate medical education course being held in conjunction with the 1976 Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago. The course started Monday and continues through Friday.

Tech faculty representatives will be among 39 professionals from across the U.S. to conduct the course on "Occupational Injuries in Farm and Industry." Dr. Francis C. Jackson, professor and chairman of surgery at TTUSM, is chairman of the course.

"Occupational injuries accounted for a loss of 245 million man-days in 1974," Jackson said. "This represents a loss of some $15.3 billion in both wages lost and expenses incurred."

"Injuries and deaths from occupational accidents are declining," he said. "This is largely because industry, government and individuals have become more aware of safety. We have safer equipment and better rules and regulations regarding workers and working conditions."

"To accomplish safety goals, many industries have gone completely to safety and prevention of accidents and have done away with their medical departments," Jackson said. "These industries now rely on private practitioners for treatment of injuries."

The course covers a variety of surgical and management techniques and case histories. Mining injuries will be described by a surgeon from West Virginia. Auto industry injuries will be discussed by a physician from Detroit. Agricultural injuries will be presented by practitioners from Texas, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming and California. Construction and petroleum industry injuries also will be featured.

Discussions also cover aspects of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970; National Safety Council overviews; emergency medical service systems in rural injuries; and recommendations for surgeons on rehabilitation, employability and compensation.

Sale of Posters Gets Boost

The sale of Dunbar High School football posters got a "shot in the arm" recently when Otis Cooks and Louis "Checker" Jackson got involved.

The posters, which are sold by the Dunbar Booster Club, feature pictures of Dunbar gridiron stars. Each business firm that buys one of the posters can select its favorite player to feature.

So far, East Lubbock businesses have purchased more than $100 worth of the colorful posters and displayed them in the firms' windows.

Jackson is a former student at Dunbar. Cooks' wife, Christine, was graduated from the school. Both Cooks and Jackson have been very active in the poster sale.

A group of East Lubbock residents purchased one of the Panther posters. Members of that group are Jessie Titus, Bennie Hood, Robert Johnson, Phillip Gant Jr. and Arnette Foster.

Georgia, will be featured speaker at a breakfast scheduled for 6:30 a.m. Friday in the Toreador Room of Furr's Cafeteria, Town and Country Shopping Center.

Lance will discuss Carter's banking and economic stance at the breakfast meeting.

The breakfast will be a dutch treat.

Attorney Gaines will speak in favor of the question while the name of the person speaking against the issue hasn't been decided at press time.

The public is invited to attend this open discussion on Sunday afternoon.

Looking Back Over The Years . . .

"Every Boy Should Be A Scout," Says Mr. Jeff Joiner

by T.J. Patterson

(Editor's note: This is part two of an interview with Mr. Jeff Joiner, a resident of Lubbock since 1936, who has worked with Cub and Boy Scouts since 1970. He says, "We need black men and women to work with scouts in East Lubbock.")

Mr. Joiner, exactly what is your trouble with operating the pack of Cub Scouts?

"Well, what the trouble is, Pat, we have to go over to Ella Iles Elementary School on Monday afternoons; and the same women have to go back to Mae Simmons Community Center on Wednesday afternoons. These women are working hard with all the boys. Well, I meet with them on Mondays and Wednesdays. I'm also meeting with the boys on Saturday afternoons. It's a lot of work, but it's quite rewarding. Now, so far, I haven't had anybody to work with me and the Weblos at all. I've been working with these fellows by myself.

What age are these Weblos?

"They are young fellows are age 10. You see, my job is with the 10-year-old boys is getting them ready for scouting. When they turn 11 years of age, I transfer them to scouting. I am supposed to teach them so much in Weblos.

Mr. Jeff Joiner

This is help them when they become Boy Scouts."

What year did you begin working with Scouts?

"I believe it was in 1970. I believe it was then because my daughter passed in Dec., 1969. When the kids, Jeffery & Dale, came up to live with us. I remember taking Jeffery to a Cub Scout meeting at Ella Iles. His mother had just bought him a cub scout uniform, but he had never used it. The first time he attended a cub scout meeting, I took him. He wore this uniform to the meeting, and he was the happiest young fellow you ever wanted to see. He was also the most dressed cub scout at the meeting."

Tell us about the project the pack has going at present time?

"Yes, we do. We chose to collect paper."

Why did you choose to collect paper?

"Well, we need help. For one thing, this project is helping to keep the neighborhood clean. Of course, it's not too much money in selling paper, but it gives the boys something to do each week. They go around the neighborhood and ask people to save their unwanted paper for them. When we collect so many pounds of paper, we take them to the place and sell them. I think we get about 75 cents a hundred pounds. It's not much money, but it certainly helps our pack. It sure does take a lot of paper to weigh a hundred pounds. Everytime we get a hundred pounds, we got 75 cents."

What will the money be used for?

"We'll be using the money for getting the equipment for the boys. We will also use the money to help the boys to register. For example, if we have a boy whose parents can't afford to register him, we'll go ahead and pay for him. We would not be giving him something because he would have worked to help us collect the paper for the purpose of helping our young fellows. We want to be able to register all of our boys at one time. Our new year will begin April 1. Every boy who is not registered by this day is automatically out of the pack. We don't want that to happen to any of our boys. We want to be able to see that all of our boys are for the new year by the middle of March. No later than the 31st of March. We want them to be registered on time next year."

If there were some citizens of Lubbock who wanted to contribute some paper, who would they contact?

"They would contact Jeff or Eula Joiner at 1308 E. 24th St. or call 765-6964. We will see that those papers are picked up as soon as possible. No matter where the papers are, we will pick them up."

Mr. Joiner, what kind of advice do you give these young fellows you've been working with over the past year?

"Well, tell them that scouting is one of the best things for young boys. Now there are lots of different organizations in our city, state and nation, but I think scouting is one of the best. Scouting teaches a boy and lets him know how to take care of himself. We get out and teach them how to cook, build fires, be careful, give first aid and, most of all, how to help other people. One of our slogans says: 'To help other people.' Now this just doesn't mean to go ahead and help the boy, but scouting helps other people. You take an elderly person who is not able to get out and do things. Our fellows are supposed to go around and see them and help them in any way they can. If it's nothing but carrying out the trash or running errands. That's what we mean by helping other people. We teach the boys not to charge those persons. This helps our boys not to be selfish. We don't want them doing things for scouting for the money. You see, scouts are not supposed to charge for everything they do. The are supposed to help people and do things to enrich their lives. This is very important."

Do you recommend boys to become scouts?

"Certainly do. I think every boy at seven and one half years on up should get into a scouting program. Regardless of what the backgrounds are, scouting will help them in life."

Isn't your organization a very religious group?

"Yes, we are a Christian organization. We go to church. We attend church every third Sunday of the month. All scouts are supposed to get together and attend some church. You know, that's part of it. If you don't carry the religious part along with anything, I don't believe it's going to be very successful. That's one thing I try to teach the boys all the time. We have prayer in our opening and closing. We enjoy singing religious songs in our meetings. At the same time, we also sing scout songs, too. As you know, we have scout books in which we sing our scout songs from each meeting. We are just concerned about helping the boys."

Mr. Joiner, have you received any awards in scouting?

"I sure have received several certificates for my work in scouting. I'm not really concerned about seeing how many awards I can receive. I'm just concerned about contributing what I can for these young fellows. One award, however, I'm happy over is the District Merit Award I received. It's a great honor. You know what, Pat, I want to do what I can for the boys. If my actions speak louder than my words, someday I will be greatly rewarded."

Mrs. Joiner works very hard in scouting, doesn't she?

"She sure does work hard for these boys. She loves to help in any way she can. As a matter of a fact, we are a team of Lubbockites who are very concerned about what we are doing. If it's a car wash, preparing for a blue and gold banquet, we just want it to be a success. Not for ourselves, but for the young fellows we love so well. With God on our side, we will continue to do our part."

Library Slates Film Series

Beginning Thursday, the Lubbock City County Library will present free showings of an award-winning film series for adults, "The Search for the Nile."

The six-episode series will be shown over a six-week period and represents part of the library's participation in FILMS PLUS, an experimental project funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

During the Victorian Age, the search for the headwaters of Africa's mighty Nile River became an obsession with explorers from several western countries—much as the conquest of Mount Everest and later the moon were to become in the 20th century. "The Search for the Nile" is a dramatized documentary of this fascinating true story.

Each 60-minute weekly episode will be presented twice in the library's Community Room, first at 7 p.m. each Thursday and again at 2 p.m. on the following Saturday. The dates of the entire series follow: Episode 1, on Oct. 14 and 16; Episode 2, on Oct. 21 and 23; Episode 3, on Oct. 28 and 30; Episode 4, on Nov. 4 and 6; Episode 5, on Nov. 11 and 13; Episode 6, on Nov. 18 and 30.

Members of the audience will receive a free, illustrated Film Guide providing background on the series. Because the presentation of the FILMS PLUS series is part of an experimental program, audiences will be asked to fill out short questionnaires giving their opinion of the series, the Film Guide and the project in general.

Presbyterian Center Provides Care

by Janice Jarvis

Providing health care for persons aged 13-65 who have no other source for health care is the aim of the Presbyterian Center, according to director Maureen Fewell.

Medically indigent persons who do not qualify for any welfare program receive medical and dental care at no cost.

The center is staffed by 13 physicians who donate their time. A registered nurse and the director are the only paid employees—with more than 150 volunteers donating time to the center.

Operated by money from local Presbyterian Churches, the Synod of Sun (state organization) and monthly pledges, the center provides service for those who otherwise would not receive health care.

"The center does not provide emergency care and we see very few seriously ill patients," Ms. Fewell said.

The most common problem doctors treat is obesity, followed by high blood pressure, according to Ms. Fewell. Some patients are so heavy the scales will not weigh them, she said.

Diabetes also is treated at the center. Patients are given insulin and a 15-day supply of syringes. Additional syringes must be bought at the patient's expense.

In addition to providing medical care, the center also provides a dental hygiene clinic. Extractions and temporary fillings are provided.

The center now is equipped with three dental chairs and more equipment has been ordered.

Pharmacists donate their time, and drugs are dispensed at no cost. Drug samples are donated to the center by local physicians and pharmaceutical salesmen.

"We do not have any control drugs such as Valium or anything that kids can get high on," Ms. Fewell noted.

If a person qualifies for the center's program and doctors discover the patient needs glasses, they are referred to the Commission for the Blind.

Patients requiring surgery may have a long wait before the center can accumulate enough additional funds.

"We have seven patients now that need surgery, and a local physician has volunteered to do one surgery a week," Ms. Fewell said.

If a person wants aid from the Presbyterian Center, he must be interviewed. If he meets qualifications, an appointment is set up.

Patients are seen only if they have an appointment.

"We follow the guidelines for the school lunch program and if someone doesn't qualify, they don't see a doctor," Ms. Fewell explained.

A family of four must make less than $521 to receive services. That figure is just a little below welfare, Ms. Fewell noted.

Since doctors often work on their lunch hours, the number of patients that can be seen is limited.

Some patients will wait until February before they can get an appointment.

Often people make appointments and never show up, according to Ms. Fewell.

In August, 130 appointments were made, but only 64 patients kept them.

The majority of people who come to the center are between the ages of 40 and 60. An increasing number of Vietnamese patients have requested medical attention, said the director.

Currently, the center is located in what once was a hospital. Ms. Fewell said that she hopes to move into a single story building sometime in the future, stairs are difficult for patients to climb.

The center includes four complete examining rooms and two laboratories. Equipment and supplies were donated by retired physicians.

In addition to providing health care services, some counseling also is offered.

"We try to express empathy and that we are here to help," said Ms. Fewell.

"We don't do any evangelism though," she added. Ms. Fewell trained with the Contact Program before she began counseling.

If a person needs to see a specialist any doctor at the center can refer him to private physicians or to the medical school.

There are 50-60 local doctors that will see special cases, according to Ms. Fewell.

Because doctors can see only a few patients a day, their services are limited.

A doctor may see 153 patients, but the center provides 400 patients medical care each month, said Ms. Fewell.

Although most patients at the center are sincerely in need of help, there are some that try to take advantage, Ms. Fewell noted.

"Some people try to get a doctor to sign papers stating that they are disabled when they aren't," she said.

There also are hypochondriacs who want to call doctors at their offices, a practice forbidden at the center.

For the most part, people who come to the center are seeking help from the only place in Lubbock that provides aid to the medically indigent.

"We try to see as many people as we can and provide them with help they could not get anywhere else," Ms. Fewell said.

Scott Elected Vice Chief

Raphael Scott was elected vice chief for the South Plains Boy Scout Region Order of the Arrow.

Raphael, who will be second in charge over 250 boy scouts, was chosen because of his attitude, service, dedication and hard work, according to Scout master Dwane Parker.

Raphael was elected at the Fall Conclave held at Camp Post on August 27.

Over 100 ordeal candidates were brought into the membership if the Nakona Lodge and 19 ordeal members became brotherhood members.

Raphael served as treasurer of the lodge last year. He is currently a member of Boy Scout Troop 129, which meets at the Bethel AME Church, 2204 Railroad Ave.

Alert to Parents!

When we ask you to please recognize the signs of cystic fibrosis and other lung-damaging diseases, we're not trying to alarm you.

Look at it this way. If your child does NOT have C/F or another serious lung-damaging disease, he has nothing to lose by checking with a doctor, or taking a simple diagnostic test.

If your child DOES have C/F, or another condition that could damage his lungs, he has a lot to lose by not having the chance for early diagnosis and prompt effective medical care.

So, when you look at it like that... we hope you'll look at this and learn the following:

SIGNS OF LUNG-DAMAGING DISEASE

1. Recurrent wheezing
  2. Persistent coughing/excessive mucus
  3. Pneumonia more than once
  4. Excessive appetite/poor weight gain
  5. Clubbing (enlargement of fingertips)
- Cystic fibrosis signs also may include: salty taste of the skin; persistent, bulky diarrhea; nasal polyps.

Governor Emphasizes Warning Signs

To renew public awareness of the dangers at railroad grade crossings and emphasize the importance of obeying warning signs, Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed Oct. 18-24 Texas Railroad Grade Crossing Safety Week.

All of the 13,800 railroad crossings in the state are guarded by automatic gates, flashing lights or other warning signals, notes Fred Paul, Vice President of the Railroad Section of the Texas Safety Association. But it is up to the individual motorist to look out for—and obey—warning signs.

Familiarity seems to be a major cause of car-train accidents. Crossing the same track daily—perhaps without ever seeing a train—tends to make people forget the possibility that one could be approaching. "Expect a train on any track at any time," advises Paul. "Drivers should always approach crossings with care, look in both directions and be prepared to stop."

Air conditioning, car radios and stereos can lead to your undoing at crossings, too. If the noise inside your car blocks out sounding train whistles and warning bells outside, turn down the volume and/or roll down the windows when approaching tracks.

Finally, motorists should keep in mind how powerful their competition for right of way at a road-track intersection is. While a car weighs one to one and one-half tons, a train weighs as much as two hundred tons. And braking distance at fifty or sixty miles-per-hour for a train can be a mile or more. If you lose the race, you'll probably lose your life.

"It is hoped," said Briscoe in his proclamation, "that all Texans will join the Texas Safety Association in its efforts to renew public awareness of the message of railroad crossing signs, signals and markings as vital signs of life."

Dunbar High School Science Club Sees World Clearly

ON FIELD TRIP—Barbara Moreno, left, and Dan Boyd, both members of the Dunbar High School Science Club, tramp over a rocky terrain to study vegetation native to various parts of New Mexico. The students were among about 20 persons who took a field trip sponsored by the Science Club, which is now associated with the Explorer Program.

by Mary Alice Robbins

Opening the eyes of young people to the wonders of their environment is the goal of the Science Club at Dunbar High School.

About 40 Dunbar students are members of the school organization, working under the direction of club sponsors Henry James, Lowell Cole and Joan Christian.

According to James, the Science Club recently became associated with the Explorer Program. "We can do a lot in science classes and in science clubs to open the eyes of people," James said, "but there are opportunities in Exploring for experiences not strictly scientific but equally as important for survival."

In September, about 20 students in the club went on a nature study trip to the mountains above Ruidoso, N.M. On their way back to Lubbock, the group visited the Lava Beds, White Sands and New Cave at Carlsbad Caverns National Monument.

"There's nothing like camping that brings about self-reliance in young people and at the same time brings out a sense of wonder and desire to learn," James commented. "The amount of growth that took place on that trip was fantastic."

Many of the young people on the New Mexico trip had never been on an overnight campout... nor had they tramped through woods or desert areas on a tough hike, James said. The students stopped frequently to take a closer look at vegetation growing in the various terrains visited.

"I think those who went would gladly go back tomorrow if they had the chance," James observed. He termed the trip "well worth the few dollars it cost" to go.

Members of the Science Club will have another opportunity to take a field trip in April, according to Cole. On that trip, students and sponsors will journey to the Texas Gulf Coast to spend three days on Padre Island. Included on their itinerary will be voyages aboard research vessels operated by the University of Texas.

Field trips are not the only activities undertaken by the Dunbar Science Club. "They're going into business," James joked, noting that the club's current project is painting garbage cans to sell to the public.

Southwestern Public Service Co., the business firm sponsoring the club, is assisting the club members with the garbage sale. Club members will paint the 17½-gallon garbage cans in coordinated colors to match kitchen appliances. Proceeds from the sale will be used for club activities.

The Science Club also has taken an interest in the Canyon Lakes Project, part of which is underway almost at Dunbar's back door.

"The Canyon Lakes Project offers us unique opportunities here at Dunbar," James said. "Some of us feel that it could be much more valuable than we now understand that it will be."

James emphasized the educational value of the area—especially to Dunbar, Wheatley Elementary School and Struggs Junior High. "But it also could be of value to every school in town for field trips to a nature area within Lubbock."

Although the school club cannot take the lead in any project to increase the educational value of the Canyon Lakes, James said he hopes some local group—like the Audubon Society—will take an interest. Students in the Science Club could help, he added.

"Ever since they've been talking about Canyon Lakes Project, I've had visions of great things as far as education is concerned," James said.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Holds Development Workshop Here Recently

Sorors of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., a public service sorority, held its internal development workshop last Saturday in the University Center of Texas Tech University. Sisters attending the one-day workshop came from Amarillo, Canyon, Midland, Odessa and Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The Southwest Regional Director, Sandra D. Malone of Dallas, conducted the affair last Saturday. She told the West Texas Times, "We bring in our sisters to a centrally located place and discuss the problems and issues facing the chapters. A lot is discussed and much gained when we come together and communicate various ideas," she continued.

As regional director, Soror Malone is responsible for working with graduate and undergraduate chapters in New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

She is assisted by Soror Patricia Clay, an East Texas State University student.

"We are not a social sorority, but a public service sorority and are concerned about the local issues in a given community," said Ms. Malone.

Some of the information discussed last Saturday were the national guidelines, local guidelines, role of advisors, and membership intake.

This workshop was sponsored by Eta Kambda, undergraduate chapter, and Lubbock Alumnae, graduate chapter.

Area Men in Service

Army Pvt. Howard L. Williams, 22, son of Mrs. Jessie M. Collins, 2930 E. Bates St., is one of the thousands of American and Allied troops who took part in NATO Exercise Reforger 76 in Germany.

Reforger 76 was two separate major field training exercises conducted in the states of Bavaria and Hessen, Germany. It included participating elements of NATO forces of the U.S., Belgium, Canada and Germany.

Different from past reforcers, this year a U.S. based unit was deployed to Europe with its equipment instead of picking up equipment already stored. Belgium, Luxemburg and the Netherlands are playing an active part in receiving and developing equipment from areas in their countries.

Pvt. Williams is regularly assigned as a gunner in the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Cool, Rainy Weather Causes Lawn Disease

Cooler temperatures and rainy weather spell trouble for homeowners as these conditions boost brown patch disease in lawns.

"Brown patch is a fungus disease that occurs on St. Augustinegrass, bermudagrass and Zoysiagrass in late spring and early fall," explained Dr. Walter Walla, plant pathologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The disease is characterized by three different types of symptoms in turf, the most common being a circular pattern of dead grass that may range in diameter from 1 to 50 feet. The second sign of brown patch is a diffused type of pattern of which small patches of grass will turn brown mainly in shady locations. Another sign of the disease is leaf blades turning yellow in turf; this usually occurs in Floratam St. Augustinegrass.

"In each of these symptoms, both the grass blades and leaf sheaths may be easily pulled from the stolons (runners) because of deterioration in the attachment area," Walla said. "Stolons often remain green. New leaves may emerge in the center of circular diseased areas within two to three weeks, giving the disease a doughnut-shaped appearance. Entire spots may eventually become green during a long growing season."

Brown patch develops most rapidly when air temperatures are between 75 and 80 degrees F. and free moisture is present, notes the Texas A&M University System specialist. Fungal activity stops when air temperatures reach 90 degrees F., which explains seasonal development of the disease.

"Some lawns are affected almost every year while others are damaged only occasionally," Walla noted. "Fungicide applications will effectively prevent brown patch where the disease is a chronic problem. In areas where the disease occurs occasionally, apply fungicides when the disease first appears."

Fungicides cleared for use in controlling brown patch include Benomyl, available as Turf-side 1991 and Terraclor PCNB; and Maneb, available with coordinated zinc ion as Fore. Other products include Acti-Dione RZ and Daconil 2787. PCNB generally is effective throughout the growing season while the other materials will need to be applied at 10-to-14-day intervals.

Mahon-Reese Campaigning Heated Up

Political campaigning heated up here last week as charges and countercharges hit the fan in the 19th District congressional race.

The latest charges came Friday from Republican candidate Jim Reese of Odessa. Reese, who is seeking to unseat veteran legislator U.S. Rep. George Mahon, told reporters Friday morning that the incumbent cannot at the same time claim to be powerful in Washington and also avoid taking responsibility for a free-spending Congress.

Earlier in the week, Mahon refuted Reese's charges that he is "one of the biggest spenders in the world" and that the congressman is now more liberal than conservative. Mahon, who has served in the House of Representatives the past 42 years, called all of Reese's accusations a bunch of "bogus" issues designed to mislead the people of West Texas.

According to Mahon, the only real issue in this campaign is who can best represent this area. Mahon believes he is the man who can do the most for the district because he chairs the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

However, Reese claimed Mahon has lost his power in the committee by trading out with liberals to keep his chairmanship.

NAACP, Pleasantville Settle Dispute

Pleasantville, New Jersey, city officials and the NAACP have settled a dispute over alleged racial discrimination in city agencies in an agreement mediated by the Community Relations Service.

CRS Director Ben Holman said that the agreement, signed

Monday night, is expected to end the months-long controversy that came to a head in July after a black police lieutenant was passed over for a promotion that would have put him in line for eventual promotion to chief.

The measure commits city officials to a policy of affirmative action and sets these goals:

- The city council will enact an ordinance creating a captain's position in the police department's juvenile division. The chief will also take administrative action to provide for lateral assignment of all captains to insure that each gets experience in all areas of department operations.

- Placing one black fireman now paid under a U.S. Labor Department manpower program on the permanent city payroll.

- Hiring minorities in three of 16 school crossing guard positions by November 1, 1976, and in six positions by November 1, 1978.

- Filling at least one of five housing code enforcement officer positions with a minority group member by November 1, 1976.

- Regular meetings of a three-member committee from the city council and the NAACP with the executive director of the housing authority to discuss tenant selection and other procedures and policies.

The agreement also provides for establishing a permanent city council committee, its members to be appointed by the president, to meet at least every two months to discuss community concerns. The committee will invite community organizations to join in deliberations to seek solutions to problems.

Pleasantville is a town of approximately 14,000 near Atlantic City. Its population is about 40 per cent black.

The agreement was worked out by CRS mediator Jonathan Chace, who is assigned to the agency's Philadelphia Regional Office. CRS responded to the dispute in August after approximately 200 NAACP members and other local blacks pressed their concerns about city hiring at two heated city council meetings.

CRS was created by the 1964 Civil Rights Act to assist communities beset by racial conflict. The agency mediates when the parties involved believe that negotiation is likely to produce a lasting agreement.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

In Friday's column I commented briefly on a film that is now in its last week (ends Thursday) at Showplace 4. It is a black feature with the glittering title "Sparkle."

Well, something about this one took me back to the theater this weekend to see it again and see what missed along the way.

There have been a good many so-called "blackploitation" films in the past few years and most of them have starred or featured Pamela Grier or Fred Williamson and have been berthed locally at the Lindsey Theater. Most of them are "quickies" and last just as long as demand holds out and then are gone into that void of nonentity.

I am talking about the "programmers" films made expressly to make the buck. I am not referring to more distinguished and honored products such as the Cicely Tyson films. That's what bothers me about "Sparkle."

It has no Pam Grier in the cast nor no Fred Williamson. The cast is largely unknown. Yet, it has some of the elements that make for a better than average film.

When you see this musical drama, set in Harlem, you will (it is inescapable) think of The Supremes, that trio of dynamic singers, from whose ranks Diana Ross sprang. You'll think of Motown and the current rage of black entertainers in every phase of the music and theater business: viz "The Wiz" and "Guys and Dolls" on Broadway.

"Sparkle" details the beginnings of a rock group and its pitfalls, highs and lows. It is only 98-minutes long, held into a tight vise by the low budget restrictions.

The cut-down form has hurt what might have been a truly exciting and authentic look into this nostalgic period. Certainly, the cast plays with earnestness and with expertise. The Curtis Mayfield music is appropriate and the settings and feel of the film are right.

But, somehow, the picture does wander. It has unfinished moments and the running time does not allow sufficient character exploration.

But "Sparkle" deserves a look-in. You'll enjoy the work of such versatile black performers, most of them yet unknown, as Mary Alice, Phillip M. Thomas, Irene Cara, Lonette McKee, Dwan Smith, Paul Lambert.

The idea behind "Sparkle" was fine; something just went awry along the way.

There's another picture (and this one is a dilly) that has been brought back for one week only at the South Plains Mall Cinema I-II and will be ending its time Thursday, too. I'm talking about "Dog Day Afternoon" the incredible (and true) story of a bank robbery in New York City on a hot, sultry afternoon. The robbery is pulled off in comic and yet murderously serious fashion by a man determined to get money in order that his male friend (lover) can have a change-of-sex operation.

Now I know this sounds both obscene and stupid in print, but "Dog Day Afternoon" is neither of these. It is a sleek, adroit and canny picture and highly regarded all around. Only Jack Nicholson and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," stood between Al Pacino ("Dog Day's star") and that coveted Oscar last spring. Pacino who will be remembered for "The Godfather" Parts I and II as well as a string of superlative roles is a superstar and "Dog Day Afternoon" ranks among his best.

I do want to direct your attention (particularly if you are over 40 years old and remember the 1940-50 era of Golden Films). For there is a gem of a film in that genre out at the Fox Theaters on 19th St. It is called "A Matter of Time" and stars Liza Minelli and Ingrid Bergman. In this the theme is sounded by the aging countess, bordering on fear of age and touches of madness, "Be Yourself. Do not copy; the world loves an original."

She is giving this to Liza Minelli, a girl from the country who has come to Rome to seek her fortune, is a maid in attendance on the strange old lady in the hotel. In fancy, Nina, (Miss Minelli) transports herself into the Countess' past glories, complete with lavish settings and gowns and here and there a song is interpolated. This is not a musical; it is rather a play with music.

I liked the film. It moved me. Bergman plays it to the hilt, perhaps in the old-fashioned way, but how grand! Minellie, looking and sounding even more than usual like her late mother, Judy Garland, is pliable and sincere in a good role. The director is, of course, Vincente Minnelli, who is Liza's real life father and a distinguished filmmaker in his own right. He did Judy's "Meet Me in St. Louis" among others, too.

It is a hark-back to the grand old saccarine days of films when misty eyes were the vogue and elegance the hallmark. It is not a "today" movie, such as "Sparkle" or "Dog Day Afternoon" and because of that "A Matter of Time" is a touching and rewarding film. It is for those who remember, not the frantic seekers of today.

Remember that this coming Tuesday sees the opening of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra's 30th year as a vital force in this community, giving its first concert in the Municipal Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 19. There will be a guest conductor on William A. Harrod's podium, the Oscar-Emmy-winning arranger, Carmen Dragon, who will be bringing a singing soloist from the San Francisco Opera to aid in the festivities.

More about this later but if you want tickets, drop by the Lubbock Symphony office in the 1700-block of Broadway. There are still tickets left but who knows? By next Tuesday, like Mother Hubbard's, the cupboard may be bare. We hope.

Costume Safety Emphasized For Halloween Celebrators

As Halloween nears, safety comes to mind—especially costume safety.

Claudia Mitzel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, suggests some ways parents can make children's "trick or treating" safer this year.

•Consider using make-up to decorate the face rather than wearing a mask which may block vision.

•Sew or glue reflective tape to both front and back of the costume, be creative and incorporate the tape into the costume design.

•Check labels or packaging on purchased costumes for flame retardant finishes. Children may be exposed to many direct sources of fires such as lighted pumpkins, colorful candles or open fires for toasting marshmallows.

•For home-sewn costumes, select fabrics that have a flame retardant finish. Or apply one at home—aerosol or home made. But remember that the commercial aerosol may not be effective on all fabrics, so check the aerosol label.

The specialist suggested a recipe for making flame retardant finish, but cautioned that this solution worked only on costumes made of muslin, burlap, old sheets—in other words, items made of cottons, cotton blends or other natural fibers. It is not good on synthetics or resin-treated cottons.

Dissolve three ounces of boric acid in two quarts of hot water and stir in seven ounces of borax (boric acid and borax are available at drugstores).

Soak the costume in this solution for about five minutes, then wring out and hang. When just damp, iron until dry.

"This solution will not appreciably change the fabric, although any fabric that will shrink or discolor in water will be affected by the solution. This treatment will not fire-proof a costume, but will help it to resist ignition and spreading the fire. It will be effective until the costume is laundered."

High Blood Pressure Kills

The United States' most vicious killer stalks silently.

High blood pressure—the most common chronic disease in the U.S.—has no symptoms until it strikes. It causes about 60,000 deaths yearly and contributes to strokes, kidney problems and heart attacks, the Texas Medical Association noted.

Anyone can have high blood pressure—even children—but certain factors increase risk. A black, overweight person who smokes and is under stress would have three factors against him or her. Eating too much salt or lots of food with cholesterol also can help bring on high blood pressure. A family history of high blood pressure further increases the odds against a person. If one parent had high blood pressure, a child would have a 50 percent chance of getting the disease (usually between 40 and 50 years of age). If both parents had high blood pressure, the chance would rise to 90 percent.

Fortunately diagnosis usually is easy and treatment can be as simple as regularly taking a pill in some cases. Hypertension, the medical term for high blood pressure, is detected by a quick, painless test. Treatment varies in individual cases but often drug therapy and modest dietary restrictions can control the disease.

The most troublesome part about treatment for many people is continuing it. Since high blood pressure does not have any symptoms, many patients get tired of taking their medicine and stop. Unfortunately, the disease does not stop its deadly progress. It may continue until a serious symptom occurs.

A blood pressure test can be done quickly using an inflatable, bag-like cuff wrapped around the arm above the elbow. A tube connects this cuff to a measuring device that contains a column of mercury (a barometer).

The cuff is inflated until the main artery in the arm is squeezed tightly enough to shut off the flow of blood. The examiner takes two readings while deflating the cuff and listening with a stethoscope. One is the systolic pressure (maximum pressure in the arteries when the heart is contracting). The other is the diastolic pressure (minimum pressure maintained in the arteries between heart beats).

A diagnosis of high blood pressure usually is based on a systolic reading persistently over 140 or a diastolic reading persistently over 90.

Fifth Sunday will be under the auspices of the W.M.S. Let us give our support to the women and help them make this a big day.

We are to serve with the Christ Temple Church of God in Christ tonight.

We are to serve in the installation services of the Rev. and Mrs. J.S. Ferguson of the Lakeside Baptist Church of Spur at 3 p.m. Oct. 24. Pastor Dunn is asking that our choir, ushers and members join him there.

Ushers rehearsal will be held at 8 p.m. Friday. President Barrow is asking all members to attend and on time.

Those on the sick list include the Rev. T.B. Reece, the Rev. A.B. Reece, the sister of Robert Cork, the sister of Ms. Joan Y. Ervin, the mother of Ms. Veora Francis, the mother of Ms. Clara Lawson and the granddaughter of Ms. R.B. Thompson.

Mount Gilead Baptist Church

The church anniversary will be celebrated Oct. 24. We are asking all members and ex-members to participate in this great effort.

Our sick and shut in of our community and church need our prayers and visits.

Greater St. Luke Baptist Church

We appreciate all of those who participated in our pastor and wife's 25th anniversary celebration. Our anniversary hour for the Rev. and Mrs. A.L. Davis was a beautiful affair last Sunday afternoon.

The Community Baptist Church will host the first executive board of the Lovely Sunset District Association Thursday and Friday of this week. All auxiliaries will be in session.

Prayer meeting is held at 7 p.m. each Wednesday. The church and family that prays together stays together.

The Youth Choir meets at our church at 7 p.m. each Monday. Junior Mission also meets on Monday evenings.

Those on the sick list include Sisters Roxie Reed, Daisy Deo, Ida Johnson, Dolly Howard and Lille Hall. Mark Sanders is ill. Sister Vylotte Davis is resting much better. Sister Emma Thornton is at the bedside of her mother at Georgetown, Texas.

Rising Star Baptist Church

Our youth department will sponsor a "Heaven & Hell" supper at 7 p.m. Oct. 16. The public is invited to come out and be with us in this special effort.

At 8 p.m. Oct. 17, the youth will also sponsor another program during the evening services.

Last Sunday morning, we had a very good time in the Lord. Our text was "How Bright is Your Light Coming." It was taken from St. Matthew 14:15. The message was brought by our pastor, the Rev. H.L. Phillips.

Unity Baptist Church

"Finding Time for God" was the theme of the annual Woman's Day celebration held Sunday at Unity Baptist Church. Proceeds from the observance were $950, which will go into the building fund.

Sunday School was conducted this past week on the topic, "Reconciliation Through Christ."

Lectureship Slated Here Saturday

Doctors from West Texas and Eastern New Mexico will attend the 17th annual lectureship in medicine sponsored by the department of internal medicine at Methodist Hospital.

Sessions will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday in the George M. Brewer Room in Methodist Hospital.

Endocrinology will be discussed by two guest speakers. Dr. Donald Seldin of Dallas and Dr. Theodore Schwartz of Chicago will be leading the discussions.

Seldin is chairman of the department of internal medicine for Southwestern Medical School at Dallas. Schwartz is chairman of the department of internal medicine for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago.

The moderators for this year's lectureship in medicine at Methodist Hospital will be Dr. Travis Bridwell and Dr. Ted Pridmore. Both doctors are members of the hospital's medical staff.

Ringling the Bell . . .

Africa From a Black Perspective: Millions listened over a national television program recently to Julius Nyerere of Tanzania present Black Africa's side of the question in "the battle in Rhodesia." In the full hour of questions and answers, it was clear that Nyerere's insistence was that it was simply a matter of "Freedom" and an idea whose time had come. The African president praised Henry Kissinger's efforts and other Western powers contributions in trying to bring peace to the seething divisions now rampant in Rhodesia. Nonetheless, he declared that there would be no peace or cessation of hostilities until a provisional government took charge in Rhodesia.

Since this taped ABC interview earlier, press releases from Africa indicate that at least five Black African countries had rejected the plan of Kissinger and South Africa's John Vorster to bring about majority rule in Rhodesia and "we are right back where we started from" one observer put it.

The African leader challenged his interviewers to produce or cite one independent black country in Africa that had gone Communist and repeated the assertion that Africans are ready to die for "freedom" and that they welcomed aid to their cause from all powers who were sympathetic in their fight to be free and independent.

The black-oriented Oklahoma Eagle sums up the Rhodesian question thus wise: Prime minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia cannot escape appearing to be a recalcitrant, egotist who would rather set the continent aflame than make an honorable peace...It seems now that blacks will have little patience with Rhodesia whites. It was not always so. The transition, if it had been made when Britain first proposed it could have been peaceful, orderly and filled with goodwill. Now the transition, even if peaceful, is likely to be fraught with ill-will, hatred and suspicion." End of quote.

In the meantime, there is the ever-escalating guerrilla campaign mounted by black Rhodesian nationalists (ZPA) and of course 10,000 Cuban fighting troops still in Angola, if help were needed, say our reports. The so-called Dark Continent with much of the world's vast natural resources could light up again with the hope of peace and independence or the flares of a great world conflagration. Only God knows.

Remember Jerry Levias? Ten years ago, this small, lithe split end played in his first varsity football game for Southern Methodist University. In a game with Illinois in the Cotton Bowl that day the Mustangs won 26-7. Levias caught two passes for 72 yards and two touchdowns. And he was the first black player ever recruited in the Southwest Conference.

Sean Mitchell comments "Looking over this season's SWC team rosters, it seems hard to imagine that only 10 years ago, the conference coaches felt they could do without black athletes. This fall Arkansas will number 29 blacks among its players; Texas A&M 24; SMU, 22; Baylor 21; TCU, 19; Rice 17; Texas Tech, 15, and Texas, 14. Houston, playing its first year in the conference, will count 27 on its squad. Out of approximately 600 players returning in the conference this year, 183 athletes are black....At least half of the faces on many of this year's pre-season picks for all-conference honors are black. As Darrell Royal says, social attitudes have certainly changed and to some extent black athletes may have been a cause as well as an effect in the course of the change." End of quote.

An Absent Voice: The black press is rightly critical of the absence of a single black reporter on the panel for the first presidential debate. Blacks are still being deliberately ignored..as well as Hispanic minorities. Who is to blame? asks The Black Eagle. The black press seeks an answer.

Best Editorial Quotes of the Week: "A University of Florida professor...recently gave a questionnaire to 100 sophomore students in his humanities classes.. The students were asked to name outstanding people from any era so long as the nominees reflected values in which the students believed. The answers the professor received were startling...In sequential order they were: Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Henry Kissinger, John F. Kennedy and Abraham Lincoln. This group was followed by Winston Churchill, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Albert Einstein and Ralph Nader. The ninth named was Mao Tse-tung...Reasons given: King died in a noble cause; Kissinger travels world-wide seeking peace; Kennedy advanced civil rights and aid to the elderly; Lincoln freed the slaves and preserved the Union; Roosevelt led the way out of the Great Depression...According to Dr. Goldhurst, the students believed these men met the challenge of their day. Hobbs Daily News Sun. Until later, Peace.
