Miss Black Teenage World Collects Crown

Charles W. Wilson, urban affairs, Eastman Kodak Company, presents 17-year-old Valerie Lynn Dunn of Washington, D.C., with The Handle, Kodak's newest instant camera, as a means of recording memories instantly, at the Miss Black Teenage World Pageant in Roanoke, Va., where she was named the winner.

A camera, a college scholarship, and the Miss Black Teenage World crown were awarded to 17-year-old Valerie Lynn Dunn, Washington, D.C., during world Pageant finals in Roanoke, Va.

Charles W. Wilson, urban affairs, Eastman Kodak Company, presented Miss Dunn—and each of her 16 runners-up—with The Handle, Kodak's newest instant camera. The gift, which provided a means of recording memories instantly, recognized each girl's Pageant achievement and promise for a picture-perfect future. A four-year scholarship to Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., is her top award.

"The Miss Black Teenage World Pageant focuses attention on young, talented, black women who are aware of their assets and are making the most of them," says Wilson. "For the contestants and all who come in contact with them, the Pageant is an avenue of expression on the way to a bright future. I salute Ron Charity and Pageants, Unlimited, Inc., for helping the winners realize their potential through education."

Miss Dunn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace L. Dunn, 4261 Fort Dupont Terrace, S.E., Washington. She is a senior at Howard D. Woodson Senior High and a member of East Washington Third Baptist Church.

An accomplished contralto, she is looking forward to a career in music and hopes to at some time attend Juilliard School of the Arts. Her school and community interests are in this field. She sings in the female chorus, mixed chorus and plays the piano in school's stage band as well as singing in churches. Her non-music hobbies are horseback riding and meeting people.

In addition to winning the Miss Black Teenage World crown, she was named Miss Talent and Miss Creative Expression. For her talent presentation she sang "My Man's Gone Now!" from the opera Porgy and Bess.

The Pageant, open to young women 15 to 17 years of age, is made up of winners from local and state pageants.

Termed by its producer "A Panorama of Excellence," the Pageant offers scholarships at predominately black colleges and universities for a total value of $62,000.

Runners-up to the title winning Miss Dunn are Linda Moore Kailua, Ha., first, with a scholarship to Livingston College Salisbury, N.C.; Pamela Scott Newbury, S.C., second, St. Paul's College, Lawrenceville, Va.; Pamela Daniels, Bastrop, La., third, Prairie View A&M College, Prairie View, Tex.; Wanda Lanier Danville, Va., fourth, Clark College, Atlanta, Ga.

Other finalists and their scholarships are Marion Marshall Columbus, Ga., Alabama State College, Montgomery, Ala.; Tawana West, Camden, N.J., North Carolina Central University, Durham, N.C.; Sabring Washington, Modesto, Calif., Maryland State College, Princess Anne, Md.; Cherie Ward, Philadelphia, Pa., Virginia Union University, Richmond, Va.; Tammy Revelly, Topeka, Kan., St. Paul's College, Lawrenceville, Va.; Yvonne Ratchford, Fayetteville, N.C., Howard University, Washington, D.C.

State Rep. Salinas To Seek Re-election

By CLIFF AVERY
Staff Writer

Democrat State Rep. Froy Salinas announced Thursday that he'll seek re-election next year.

Salinas told the Times that he was making his announcement early to "clear the air" of speculation that he might seek State Sen. Kent Hance's job if Hance decides to run for Congress.

"I thought about it," the freshman legislator, who noted he'd been contacted by friends urging him to seek the Senate seat, said, "but I decided it's too early."

"If I run for Senate it will be eight years from now," Salinas declared, "I may never run. If you stay in the House, you get seniority and you can be more effective. If you go to the Senate, you start out as a rookie again."

Salinas said he had spoken with Hance about ten days ago and that the senator was "truly undecided about what he was going to do."

Salinas, who won his first term representing the eastern half of the city, in the House last November by defeating Republican Lee Page, said that one issue he expects to hit hard on is school finance. "We kind of Band-Aided the issue," in the last session of the legislature, Salinas said.

Froy Salinas

"We redistributed the problem. That's all we did. We don't have a finance plan that will stand up in court. I don't think any one in this area wants the courts to write our school finance plan," Salinas reiterated a theme he had stressed during the legislative session.

Salinas said he was unaware of any off-opposition he might face either in the Democratic primary or in the fall general election. "You never know until the filing deadline," he said.

NAACP To Meet Saturday

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Lubbock Branch will meet at 7 p.m., Saturday, Sep. 10 at Mae Simmons Community Center, 2200 Oak Avenue. The public is invited.

The agenda includes status reports on the Lubbock City Council representation and Lubbock school desegregation suits, both now scheduled for trial in November, and a final report by Freedom Fund Chairperson, Mrs. Kate Noble, on the June 17 Freedom Fund Banquet.

A door prize of $20 worth of dry cleaning has been contributed by Hoopers Cleaners, 1702-B. E. 4th Street.

The Executive Committee will meet at 6 p.m. the same date.

White Issues Directive Against Controversial Questionnaire

Secretary of State Mark White Friday issued a directive which prohibits Waller County Tax Assessor-Collector LeRoy Symm from using a questionnaire as a prerequisite for voter registration.

The directive is good for 120 days, at which time it will become permanent under administrative proceedings which will be instituted by White's office.

Black leaders in Texas have alleged that the questionnaire is used to deny the registration of students on the predominantly black campus of Prairie View A&M University.

White, the State's Chief Elections Officer, said he would ask State Attorney General John Hill to enforce his ruling if any violations occurred.

In a letter to Symm, White said, "... in fulfillment of the duties of my office, I advise you that no questionnaire or additional written information shall be required prior to the registration of any applicant who has properly completed a voter registration form which has been prescribed by this office."

The directive further states, "You (Symm) are hereby directed to discontinue any voter registration procedure which requires an applicant to provide any written information not required by the ... Texas Election Code."

Prior to announcing his decision, White telephoned Symm and said, "Since we have been unable to reach an agreement, I am sending you a letter directing you to dispense with the use of the questionnaire. I will further ask the Attorney General of Texas to enjoin you from this practice if you should not follow the directive. I regret we have been unable to work out a solution, but feel we have the authority to issue such a directive. I am calling you as a courtesy; and if I can help you, please let me know."

The directive may end a 10-year battle concerning students at Prairie View and the Waller County Tax Assessor.

Prior to the 1970's, the Texas Election Code determined that students officially resided where their parents lived. But in that

Letters To The Editor . . . Ringing The Bell . . .

Dear Editor:

The Caprock Girl Scout Council would like to express its sincere appreciation to you for the article, picture, editorial and ad in this week's edition of the West Texas Times. Thank you for your cooperation all of these years. We have many members who read The Times regularly and we know that it will mean a great deal to them as well as to inform others.

We would like to congratulate you, too, on your new editor, Ms. Barbara Price. It is our hope that we will be able to meet her soon.

Thank you again for your help with the Girl Scout program. It is citizens like you who help make the citizens of tomorrow.

Very sincerely,
Mrs. Richard Sugarek,
Field Director.

Dear Editor,

I am presently confined in what is commonly referred to as a prison. Being confined in a place such as this, with no friends or relatives on the outside, is the worst form of punishment imaginable.

In an effort to overcome my personal sense of loneliness and frustration, I beg your help in establishing correspondence with concerned and realistic people on the outside.

I have no wish to be further engulfed in the loneliness and despair of this prison environment, so if at all possible, please print my ad in your newspaper.

24 year old man in prison, lonely and in desperate need of someone to acknowledge his existence, desires correspondence from concerned and realistic people. Will immediately answer all letters. Write to: Brad Stone #146-340, Box 69, London, Ohio 43140.

P.S. Allow me to thank you in advance for any help you give me in my quest for correspondence.

Sincerely,
Brad Stone #146-340

The Black Experience Vs The Black Woman: What are the psychological and social hazards of being a black woman in American society today? "No other woman has struggled for so long against such formidable odds, and no other woman has done more with such meager material resources" states John H. Johnson, publisher of Ebony in a recent statement.

From Harriet Tubman to Rosa Parks, black women have been in the forefront for freedom. From Phyllis Wheatley to Gwendolyn Brooks, black women have blazed new paths in art and culture. From Aunt Hagar to the nameless and unsung heroines of ten thousand kitchens, black women have been the institutional anchors of our community.

In the home, in the factory, in the corporate board rooms, at the highest levels of government, the black woman is giving a good account of herself. She is making it with and without her man!

A black woman now holds one of the highest positions in President Carter's administration. Four black women are now members of the United States House of Representatives. As Treasurer of the United States, a black woman now signs all of the currency printed by the United States mint! In the professions, in business, in the arts and sciences, in almost all phases of public life, black women are becoming more and more prominent.

No longer must the black woman look primarily to occupations such as teaching, clerical and domestic work as sources of income and self realization. They have become owners and bosses as well as workers. The black woman has fought long and hard for her present status. She has kept her families together—fed, clothed and housed them, when circumstances prevented her man from doing so. Our heartfelt tribute to all black women!

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, chairman of the School Board of Atlanta and former black college president: "As hard as things are now for Blacks, we are better off than at any time in our history. I was born in 1894 and a lot has transpired in my lifetime ... We kill each other by the hundreds daily ... A great percentage of us are on welfare ... We die faster ... The challenge is to America but chiefly to Black America."

Bellringer Personals: Our deepest sympathy to an old timer bellringer, Mrs. Maggie Starks of San Angelo and her entire family, in the death of beloved brother, John Fullylove. Last rites were led by Rev. C. Kelly, pastor of St. Paul A.M.E. Church of San Angelo. Fullylove was born in Austin and moved to San Angelo in 1928. He was a veteran of World War I. Ms. Starks is the owner of the Starks Funeral Home there.

Word from Willa Mae Rice, church editor of The Courier, that the 45th annual conference session of the C.M.E. Church has as its Lay Banquet Speaker, Bishop C.D. Coleman of Dallas, Texas. The affair was held at Duquesne University Student Union Hall in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania with Bishop E.P. (Senior) Murchinson presiding prelate of the area. Other prominent guests included Bishop and Mrs. P.R. Shy of Atlanta, now retired and I. Carlton Foulks of Oakland, California, national president of the C.M.E. Lay Movement.

This department has invited bishops of the three major Black Methodist denominations (A.M.E., A.M.E. Zion, and C.M.E.) to become members of the Advisory committee to establish a National Afro-American Park in or near Boley, Oklahoma. Retired bishops will also be invited to serve. Those accepting places on the Committee will be published here. Officers and leaders of the National Baptist Conventions will also be invited.

White Issues . . .

year, a federal suit struck down that provision of the code.

In 1972, a federal court case prohibited officials from making a legal presumption that students were nonresidents. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Symm's use of a questionnaire.

White was thus faced with enforcing a procedure which many blacks felt was unfair, but which a federal court said was not.

Ever since White took office in January 1973, he has attempted to reach a solution in Waller County that was acceptable to Prairie View students and administration as well as Waller County officials.

On February 26, 1976, after meeting several days with the Waller County Commissioners, the Tax Assessor, and administrators and students at Prairie View, an agreement was reached in which the county agreed to hire two additional employees to assist the registrar with voter registration of Prairie View students. The employees were stationed on campus.

White also secured the cooperation of Dr. Alvin Thomas, President of Prairie View, who provided office space for the county employees. Student Body President Sidney Hicks then called a meeting in which White and several of his attorneys, including Leroy Beck, then Deputy Director of the Elections Division, and Nolan Ward, then Assistant to the Governor, counseled student leaders on how to complete the questionnaire. Beck recently joined the Governor's staff and Ward is now head of the Texas Employment Commission.

White and his attorneys then assisted administration officials and student leaders with the distribution of voter registration applications on the Prairie View campus.

Several weeks later, on March 17, 1976, White sent telegrams to Symm, Dr. Thomas, and Prairie View Mayor Eristus Sams which advised them his office stood "ready to provide any technical assistance to ensure that every eligible resident of Waller County is registered to vote."

White's office then drafted legislation which was introduced during the 65th Legislative Session. The legislation was designed to make it easier for students to register to vote, but it failed. White also supported legislation by State Representative Anthony Hall which would have allowed students to register where they (students) lived or where their parents lived. Although it passed the House, that measure also failed in the last minutes of the Session.

The State's Chief Elections officer said his directive did not tell the Tax Assessor to register nonstudents.

"I merely told Symm to accept all properly completed applications. He may still take appropriate action if the applicant is a nonresident. However, under this directive, no Texan will be deprived of his right to vote."

"Due process," White said, "will be afforded any citizen before they are taken from the voter registration rolls for being a nonresident."

He added, "I have always believed that county officials were in a better position to work out their local affairs than to have them dictated by someone who was not on the scene. However, I have bent over backwards to try to work out an agreement acceptable to all concerned parties. I think there comes a time when full authority of the State of Texas must be used to make certain that each citizen in this State is afforded the full benefit of the law."

Inner City School

A new school in the city will allow your children to learn theater, voice and dance techniques, and the price is based on "what the kids can afford."

Ric Brame, who directed the Civic Ballet's production of "West Side Story," has left his post with that group to start the Lubbock Academy of Theater Arts which he describes as "an inner city school" aimed primarily at underprivileged children.

"We'll be charging inner city fees," Brame said, "based on what the kids can afford."

"Some kids pay $15 for one lesson a week. This will be less than that for three lessons a week."

Brame said that four teachers will be available to instruct the children, and that the school is non-profit.

"It's something different—something that Lubbock has needed for a long time. There's a lot of talent there," Brame said.

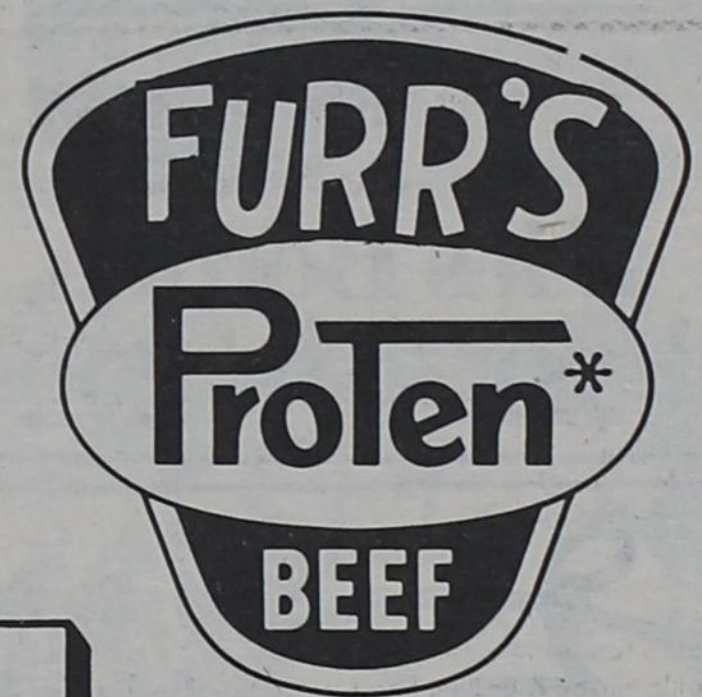

Students can learn various aspects of drama, dance or voice, and classes will be held at the Memorial Civic Center. Brame said that registration would continue this week.

Tribute to Ethel Waters

By JACK SHERIDAN

The news came through at 8 p.m. Thursday on CBS Update clips. The paper carried the story the next day. The telegram came that night.

It said simply "If you are able to attend, private funeral services for Ethel Waters will be held on Tuesday, September 6, at 1:30 p.m., Church of the Reformation, Forest Lawn, Glendale."

Those of you who have read "Sheridan's Ride" down through the years, and, in particular, during the past two years with the West Texas Times, know the closeness and the warmth of the relationship between Miss Ethel Waters and myself. She called me "Son Jack" and I called her "Mom." I was her Son Jack and She was my Mom.

We last saw each other in a room at the Hilton Inn on Avenue Q on the very day that she appeared that night to sing "His Eye Is On The Sparrow" to launch the Billy Graham Crusade in Jones Stadium.

Miss Waters, whose meteoric stage career was a pioneering effort for her race, for American music recording, was 78, two years ago. She had long been ill with diabetes, her sight was virtually gone, her heart was bad. But she did sing that night. That was the last public appearance.

In the previous years I had sat as a worshipping fan in galleries on both Coasts as the superstar sang her unforgettable hits. She was the first "colored" performer to crack the barrier (she claimed that word as her own, "I'm not a black," she said stidently). I saw her far away sing "Heat Wave," "St. Louis Blues," "Supper Time" and so many, many more that she alone introduced to the American culture.

Can you ever forget "Stormy Weather" or "Cabin in the Sky," or "Happiness Is a Thing Called Joe" and the always identifiable spirituals with her own identifying mark, "His Eye Is On The Sparrow."

I met Ethel Waters here in Lubbock some 15 years ago when she came to town to do a benefit for some cause. I spent about an hour with her. She came back two years ago, as I said, and I spent the other hour with her. She was 80 when she died last week, was buried on Tuesday at those private services and we were as close as any blood kin could be. Yet, in all of our lives, only two hours were ever spent together.

Ethel Waters at age 7

Yet, my heart broke when the expected news came of her passing.

Ethel Waters spoke much of "Our Precious Lord" and her faith was as simple as sunlight and as solid as steel. Why the Precious Lord made her undergo such travail before giving her her release is something I cannot understand. But, the, as the Bible says, "mysterious ways."

There is much of a personal nature that I could relate here about this loving and blessed relationship. I cannot share it with you. Know that she was a rock to my weakness and a buttress to my faith.

She sang about "the Sparrow" but she made me aware that I, too, am the sparrow and His eye

NAB Offers Proposal to Increase Minority Ownership of Stations

WASHINGTON—To increase minority ownership of radio and television stations, the National Association of Broadcasters today proposed that a tax certificate be issued whenever a broadcast property is transferred to a buyer which is minority owned or controlled.

NAB asked the Federal Communications Commission to adopt a rule endorsing minority ownership and providing for the issuance of a tax certificate as allowed under Section 1071 of the Internal Revenue Code.

If adopted, the Association suggested that the Commission periodically review the extent of minority ownership to determine whether there is still a need to continue issuing tax certificates. Five years from the date of the ruling was offered as an example.

NAB said that under the Internal Revenue Code the seller would avoid capital gains taxation if the purchase of similar property occurs within the requisite time period.

The Association's petition stated that a tax certificate "would be attractive to eligible broadcasters since funds which previously would have been paid in taxes might be applied towards the purchase of a more desirable property. Tax certificates would, therefore, further the Commission's goal of increasing broadcast ownership by minorities because for the first time sellers would have an economic incentive to seek out qualified minority buyers."

I know His eye was on the sparrow. I know His eye is on this sparrow. I have lost a Mom and I keep the warmth and the blessing of the deep and personal relationship we shared and will share to the sunset of my own life.

If you ever have a chance to listen to the album, Monmouth Evergreen, "Miss Ethel Waters," then you have the recap of all her memorable songs. I have just been listening at 8 a.m. this mournful Monday as she sang "Stormy Weather," "Happiness Is a Thing Called Joe" and "Cabin in the Sky." I had not realized the personal implications to me of the lyrics. I so pray she has found her "Cabin in the Sky."

And the album closes with the heartwarming, heartrendering "His Eye Is On The Sparrow." She has left us flowers in her wake. God bless and keep her.

"School Night for Scouting" Scheduled Sept. 15

On September 15, some 108 elementary schools in 20 counties will open their doors for "School Night For Scouting." The South Plains Council, Boy Scouts of America, hope to make this the most effective means of offering the Scouting Program to all interested young men and adults who are interested in helping with the Cub Scout and Scout programs in their communities. This is a nation-wide plan, and this year's theme is "Wonderful World of Scouting" headed by Jim McKay of ABC Sports.

Bob, Nash, Council "School Night for Scouting" chairman, explained the requirements and procedures for joining Scouting. "Boys who are in the third grade, or eight years old, can join Cub Scouts, a family-based program. Ten year old boys are part of the Cub Scout Packs, but are in a program designed especially for their age group, called Webelos. Boys eleven years old or in the sixth grade can become part of the outdoor emphasis, character building program, the Scout Troop. Volunteers will be on hand at each school to counsel with boys and parents about the Scouting program, and what it has to offer."

Most schools will open their doors at 7:30 p.m., September 15, but for more information, contact the Scout Service Center in Lubbock by calling 747-2631, or call the principal of your local elementary school.

Chairmen for the seven districts in the 20-county council include Dr. Frank Butterfield, Lubbock, Mackenzie Trail District; Ed Wester, Floydada, Comanche Trail District; Ken Aiken of Plainview, Haynes District; Mike Stevens, Lubbock, Longhorn District; Kay Dowdy, Lubbock, Arrowhead District; Tom Hilbun, Littlefield, George White District; and Charles Varner of Lamesa, Quanah Parker District.

Barbara Jordan's Senior Citizens all met at 9:00 a.m. with beautiful song, service and prayer. Mary Sterling did a beautiful solo.

Barbara Jordan's Senior citizens will be guests at Lyon's Chapel Sunday.

Last Thursday our guest speaker Pastor James Cox showed a film, "Mark of The Beast." The picture opened the eyes of many of the senior citizens. It let us know where we stand in this life.
