Dedicated to Informing the Citizens of West Texas

'Cemetery Curve' May Be Laid to Rest

The 26.4 million bond election the city will hold May 21 includes more than a half million dollars to straighten "cemetery curve."

The curve made by Quirt Avenue to Teak Avenue to E. 34th Street to cross railroad tracks in the area has been a top priority for East Lubbock citizens since a 1970 committee chaired by Betty Anderson studied the community's needs after the infamous Lubbock tornado.

While that committee urged an overpass above the railroad tracks, City Information Officer Vaughn Hendrie said that the money in the proposed bond package will not be used for an overpass. Rather, the city will use the money, if approved by voters, to connect Quirt Avenue with East 34th Street with grading for cars to cross the tracks.

"We felt an overpass was too expensive," Hendrie said, "We think this will be adequate."

City Planning Director Jim Bertram called the railroad crossing a "temporary measure" and said an overpass was still a priority.

But he said that the traffic load doesn't warrant the "millions of dollars" needed for an overpass. "From a cost-use standpoint, I don't believe an overpass is justified right now."

The bulk of the capital improvements projects the city is contemplating revolve around water. The council decided to go ahead with the May 21 election date even though a study of the city's water needs has yet to be completed.

Almost $17 million of the bond package goes to water improvements, and the largest expenditure of that is $5 million for the new water supply facilities.

The council may choose to build a new reservoir at Justiceburg-Post area, but if the study the city has commissioned finds that unfeasible, the money may be used for more water wells.

If development of a new reservoir proves possible, the city may spend more than $80 million in development.

Mayor Roy Bass said that the capital improvement projects would be financed through an increase of water and sewer charges, and staff figures show you'll pay 50 per cent more over your present water bill by 1981.

But Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, at the council's rare Monday session where the election ordinance was passed on the first reading, asked city staff members to come up with a new rate system that would reward conservation and increase rates less for those who use less water.

Hendrie emphasized that the bond issue would not foreclose

This is the time that we should know where we are going as black people and why! Many of us are not abreast with what is really going on in this day and time ... It appears as though ... we should get off our duffs and at least start asking questions on what is really happening here.

It appears as though we've become immune to what people are suggesting that needs to be done in our community ... we (blacks) still go our own little ... way ... without any concern about growing in this city ... We just sit back and wish for something to fall from the sky in our laps. With all the resources around us, we still complain and downgrade each other about what is happening. You talk about dirt to build and construct in our city, well, man ... it's here. We just ain't hip to understanding the plain old business philosophy ... and willing to get down to business and start doing some of these business things.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I paid close attention to TV coverage of the Supreme Court ruling which described whipping children by school authorities as disciplinary action making it impossible for parents of aggrieved children to take their cases to federal courts. Two things, other than the ruling itself, struck me: The plaintiff in the case from which the ruling was handed down was black, but all the school authorities asked to comment about the Court's decision were white. The issue of school whipping came before the Court at a time when there is much concern about violence and child brutality in our society.

In the old days, black teachers were known to whip kids in school, and parents whipped them again for having embarrassed the family by disobeying or sassing a teacher. In those days the school was much more an extension of the community. One's school teacher was as likely as not to have been a relative or close neighbor. School, church and family all shared the same ideals and values. The teacher lived in the community and was considered a pillar of it. Today many people reason that children were better behaved then because the teachers could whip them if they acted otherwise. It was more likely that the community's reinforcement of the same values the teacher taught kept the kids in line than the teacher's whip. Furthermore in those days, kids who could not adapt to school because of intellectual, physical or emotional disabilities were sent home to go to work or molt in the attic.

Today teacher and students go to schools that do not necessarily reflect the values of many of the families represented in the classroom. We are no longer a land of small villages—most Americans now live in cities. It is very difficult to find a neighborhood in a city where the residents all agree on any one point of view, even when they are of the same ethnic group. Furthermore, our community may not be those who live closest to us or attend school with us. For those reasons, we have different relationships with each other than the relationships we may have had a generation ago. If a teacher whips a child these days, the child is not likely to see the teacher so much as in loco parentis (in the place of his parents) as onery or plain loco, period.

Too often white middle class teachers, failing to understand or respect the culture of their minority or poor students, believe that whipping is "the only thing they understand. Oddly enough when they teach students whom they identify as like themselves, they believe that those kids understand a different method of discipline. They don't beat their own kids. The Supreme Court decision worries me. I fear it may give teachers license to take out their prejudices on those most unlike themselves whose cultures they may consider deviant and unworthy of respect. Recent investigations show that minority students are suspended or kicked out of school more often than white students for infractions that result in less harsh punishment for white students. I wonder just who will be disciplined by the rod now? Who is going to do the whipping? It behooves black parents to watch this situation very carefully.

The issues of violence and child brutality also raise serious questions. Studies show that those who are violent or brutal grownups experienced the same kind of treatment when they were children. I believe we would go a long way toward reducing violence in our society if we stopped considering it acceptable behavior in any situation. Rather than allowing whippings in school, I'd like to see whipping stopped in school and at home too. Until we show our children that problems can be solved without resorting to violence, we have no right to expect them to grow up being non-violent.

What ever happened to little old gray haired soft spoken teachers who got perfect order simply by looking dead into the eyes of the meanest cussingest kid? Remember her? She was always in control—of herself. Kids at my school had rather get a whipping than have to face her glare. Funny we don't try to get her back. This is a time for going back to the old traditional ways. Maybe we'd just like to try again all the old things that did not work in hopes we could make them do the job the next time around. Does that make sense?

Sincerely,
Vivian I. Davis

BLACK EMPOWERMENT

Battle on the Hudson

New York City has been the scene of many conflicts, racial and otherwise. Perhaps the most saddening, until recent times, on racial grounds were the anti-draft riots during the Civil War era.

Still all through New York history—because New York has been America's foremost "city of immigrants"—there have been continuing racial and ethnic stresses.

In all of the battles regarding race, whether directly or indirectly so, blacks have been the losers. Hence, while New York is apparently a city of liberty, the social and economic indicators of black status suggest that the "liberty image" has largely forgotten to cast its shadow upon the huddled masses of black New Yorkers.

It is against this background that an especially tragic racial battle is being fought at present in the city where New York's Hudson River meets—or becomes—the sea.

The most visible antagonists in the current battle are the youthful-looking and controversial Episcopal Bishop of New York, the Right Reverend Doctor Paul Moore, a patrician of immense influence who has made his way up the church hierarchical ladder wearing chiefly the garments of a staunchly pro-black liberal.

More will be said about this latter aspect of the bishop's image in a moment. We look now at his opponents briefly, since they are especially illustrative of the kind of plight in which black Americans persistently have found themselves.

The battle with Bishop Moore has been fought by the black clergy; or shall we say by a group of the black clergy, since "divide and conquer" has been the rule among us, even when precious little effort has been made to set us apart from or at odds with one another.

The black clergy in the Diocese of New York and in several neighboring dioceses of the Episcopal church became deeply incensed when the black men in the all male choir of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine were dismissed.

Several background items in the picture need mention at this point, none of which touch upon the personal character of anyone involved.

One is that there has been a growing conviction in the church—which is a re-emergence of ancient teachings of the church—that a Christian congregation, to the fullest extent that is humanly possible, should be a miniature reflection (or a pre-figurement) of God's kingdom as we perceive it.

It is for this reason that the rules of love and reconciliation have applied within "God's house". Among Several hundred Lubbockites—including administrators of the Lubbock Public Schools—were present at the annual Dunbar Panther All-Sports Banquet at the American Legion Hall in Yellowhouse Canyon last Thursday ... It was an interesting event and a lot of encouragement was given to those young athletes who will be participating next school year.

This writer must congratulate the efforts of the members of the Booker T. Washington, Post 808, American Legion for their contribution to this year's effort. This organization provided the meat and place for the banquet.

A graduate of Dunbar High School, Thomas Howard, did a splendid job in explaining his experiences to the young athletes at Dunbar. He made it clear that you can make it with a lot of determination.

Len Chew, former resident of Lubbock and an advocate of the poor in Houston, was present to make the presentation of the "Fighting Hard Award". His award, which he made possible in 1967, was founded with the idea to show some deserving athlete how the school feels about his contribution to his school.

It was a great affair last Thursday evening. One could feel that "Old Dunbar Spirit" moving throughout the heavily populated banquet hall at the American Legion Hall. A quite deserving event—one in which young students at Dunbar High School should be proud.

As I overheard one athlete say: "Just wait until next year, because I will get the 'Fighting Hard' award." What confidence this young fellow had about himself ... It can happen if he works hard and gives his best to his school next year.

In a recent Law Enforcement Assistance Administration study, it revealed that the number of juveniles in state and local public juvenile detention and correctional facilities decreased by 18 percent in a recent three-year period. The interesting fact to the study is that the cost of keeping them there increased by 18 percent.

The number of juveniles in these facilities fell from 54,729 as of June 30, 1971, to 44,992 by June 30, 1974, according to the report. During the same period, the cost of operating the facilities increased from $409.1 million to $483.4 million.

These youth were in 829 public facilities and 1,337 private facilities throughout the 50 states.

As I See It, inflation is found in the juvenile detention and correctional facilities.

Natalie Cole to Appear at 1st Dallas-Ft. Worth KOOL Jazz Festival

Among the stars appearing at the first annual Dallas-Ft. Worth KOOL Jazz Festival Sunday, May 29, at Texas Stadium will be Natalie Cole. She is one of the brightest spots on the entertainment horizon today.

"I definitely have become more adventurous," says Natalie, who won two Grammys at the 1976 awards presentations, including "Best New Artist of the Year," and in 1977 "It's nice to be able to do different and new things, now that I have established myself," she smiles.

Tickets to the 1st Annual Dallas-Ft. Worth KOOL Jazz Festival are now on sale at ticket outlets in Dallas, Ft. Worth, Austin, Houston, San Antonio, Tulsa and Oklahoma City.

Aside from Natalie Cole, festival producer George Wein, announced last week that The Dramatics—one of the nation's hottest singing groups—have been added to the previously announced list of artists to appear at the Dallas-Ft. Worth KOOL Jazz event. The complete list now includes The Spinners, Al Green, The Dramatics, Ronnie Dyson, The Mighty Clouds of Joy and Natalie Cole.

Natalie Cole

Since the initial announcement of the festival in Dallas-Ft. Worth, there has been an unprecedented demand for tickets, thus the festival is making tickets available now at outlets in seven cities. Tickets are priced at $9.50, $8.50 and $7.50—with all seats reserved. There are a very limited number of field seats available at $12.50.

Many will agree that Natalie has definitely established herself. Her 1975 debut album, "Inseparable" on Capitol—rushed up both the national R&B and pop charts and spawned two crossover hits, the title tune and "This Will Be."

The musical strength of Natalie Cole is again evidenced by the release of her second Capitol album, "Natalie." The album features the single, "Sophisticated Lady."

"It's a bright album with a great deal of variety of songs. I'd say it is a couple of notches better than the first one, which I loved so very much. But most important, I feel it shows growth," she adds, obviously listening to some of the tunes in her head. "It provided a solid stepping-stone towards my next one, which is what I feel it should do." Two of the songs on "Natalie" were co-written by the singer.

The daughter of Nat "King" Cole talks with much love about her father, but says he was no influence on her music. "My influences were Ella Fitzgerald, Nancy Wilson, Sarah Vaughn and Count Basie," Natalie says.

Natalie claims that she never planned on being a singer. "It was always going to be something to do with medicine." Her parents, she says, were just concerned that she would grow up normally, "which is a tough proposition for show business kids."

Locations that now have tickets available are Dallas—Texas Stadium and Cowboy Ticket Office; Preston State Bank; Davey's Locker; Preston Record Center; H&W Record Shops; Green Parrot; Ft. Worth—Central Ticket Office and Amusement Ticket Service; Austin—Joske's; Houston—Jerry's Men Shop (2 locations); Skipper Lee Frazier Advertising; The Working Man Store; San Antonio—Joske's; Tulsa—Carson Attractions; Oklahoma City—Bench-Carson Attractions.

Patterson Chosen to Speak at Banquet

The Estacado High School Band will hold a banquet at the new Lubbock Memorial Civic Center May 2 at 7:30 p.m.

One hundred and thirty awards will be presented to "A", "B" and "C" band and stage band members. Band jacket letters will be awarded to sixty students.

Thirty-five students will be awarded with Fire Eater certificates. These certificates are awarded to those students who are outstanding in their fields and will be recognized for their outstanding leadership.

Tommie Stevens Named Special Gifts Chairman for TADC

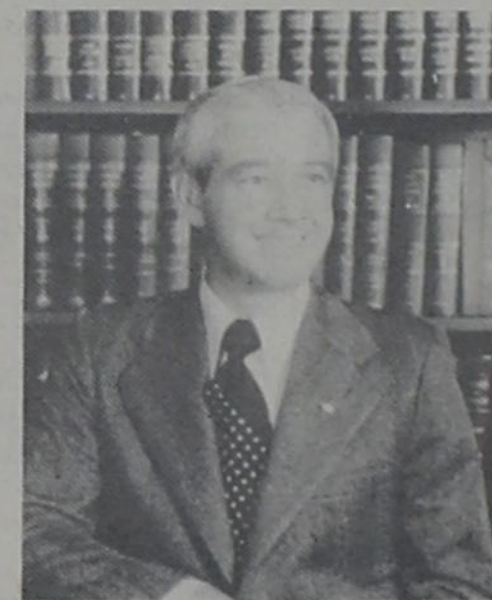

Tommie Stevens, president of Texas Commerce Bank, has been named Special Gifts Chairman of the Lubbock development council for the Texas Association of Developing Colleges, the Texas arm of the United Negro College Fund.

In this capacity, Stevens will make personal appeals to foundations, corporations, and individuals, stressing the importance of their investing in the United Negro College Fund as it relates to the growth of the Lubbock community.

Stevens has served Lubbock as a United Fund Co-Chairman, president of the Exchange Club, a cubmaster in Boy Scouts, a chairman of the South Plains Maid of Cotton contest and president of the West Texas Chapter Data Processing Management Association. He is a member of several business organizations, including the Texas South Plains Chapter of Bank Administration Institute.

Stevens' efforts as Special Gifts

Chairman for TADC in the Lubbock area will greatly aid the organization in reaching its $1.3 million goal. Colleges benefitting from the development campaign are the six TADC member institutions: Bishop, Dallas; Huston-Tillotson, Austin; Jarvis Christian, Hawkins; Paul Quinn, Waco; Texas, Tyler; and Wiley, Marshall.

Most of the street improvements are in Southwest Lubbock where the city has grown rapidly in recent years. Hendrie pointed out that one measure which would approve funds for the construction of a new central fire station would beef up manpower and equipment at the city's 10th and Zenith fire station.

Hendrie said the station would get two more men per shift and one more fire engine.

KELLY'S HEROES

by Joe Kelly

"I want to get down and talk to the coaches, Ken Hance and Polk Robison, and see what pearls of wisdom they have," a grinning Steve Sloan said shortly after the Texas Tech spring football game. "There's a big difference in cubed steak and real steak!"

Before he trotted to the elevator, Steve paused to comment that it had been a good spring game, that Tech had had a good spring training. He was pleased with several things.

"Mike Keeney (6-6, 334) played a lot. In fact, he played much of the game. He did a good job of blotting out the sun!" Steve declared with that ever present grin.

"I thought Taylor and Allison both did well. Davis blocked well and Hadnot had some big plays. Adami threw well. Julian had a real good game."

In answer to a question of what problems Tech had going into the fall, Steve quickly replied "linebacking and the kicking game."

Later, as he strode under the stands to the athletic offices, Steve commented that he thought maybe Tech was a little ahead of last year at this time, but not by much.

"We had a good spring training last year, you may remember. We do have a little more experience this year and that makes a difference. Injuries hurt our training this year, but I thought we had a good spring."

The Raider coach also believes that there will be good leadership on the squad.

"We certainly should have good leadership," he exclaimed. "We have 25 seniors."

He also startled us by saying that as many as five freshmen might make the traveling squad next fall. Two of them probably would be linebackers and two will be running backs.

In addition, an incoming freshman could well be the Raider punter and kickoff man.

As for a general impression of the spring game, the emphasis was on offense and it looked even better than last year. Both the running game and the passing attack looked sharp.

Not that there wasn't some defense. There was. In fact, there were many brilliant plays by individuals and by the teams. At times there was good pressure on the passer and there were some good tackles in the line that prevented long gains.

Tech still has "Mr. Magic," Rodney Allison and he is a factor with any group of 10 players. Nothing illustrated it better than his drive against the clock to snatch victory for the Whites.

The clock showed 3:58 and the Whites were 61 yards away. Allison cranked up. He moved the Whites down to the 17 and called on Bill Adams to boot a 34-yard field goal. It was like 1976. Adams booted it and the White had a 31-30 victory.

Just before the drive Bob Fuller asked J.T. King if he thought Allison could do it.

"You bet!" Jake exclaimed. "He'll win it." As the drive got to within field goal distance, Jake observed that he'd like to see it come down to a field goal.

"I'd like to see what Adams can do under pressure," Jake said.

You know the answer, of course. Adams kicked it, Jake smiled and the pressbox began to empty. It was all over.

All in all the game was as close as the score, but the most encouraging thing was the performance by Tres Adami. The Freeer quarterback completed 11 of 13 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns. That's a pretty convincing showing.

Adami didn't have much chance last year, what with Allison playing the magician's role and Tommy Duniven waiting for any letup. But right now you have to have the feeling that, if anything happens to Allison (Heaven forbid) Adami could step right in.

Adami isn't the runner that Allison is, but he's certainly adequate. Meanwhile, Mark Julian, Billy Taylor, Jimmy Williams and Sam Bailey appear to be outstanding running backs.

There is a good corps of receivers, too, with speed and good hands. Hadnot, indeed, made a spectacular catch and seems well on his way to making a strong bid for starting honors.

In short, it was a pleasing effort by both teams and all the players. The Raiders should be contenders next fall.

Among the interested pressbox spectators Saturday were Steve's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sloan from Cleveland, Tenn. Mr. Sloan is quiet with a ready smile and most interested in the game. Mrs. Sloan is a charming lady and maybe the more enthusiastic of the two.

Both enjoyed the game, apparently, but also were amused at the banter between Fuller, King, Leete Jackson and Billy Brown. Billy, indeed, had bet a buck with Leete that the Whites would win.

Guess what? Billy had left the stadium before it happened! Leete ought to make him forfeit.

Graham Speaker at Women's Day Rally

Mrs. Naomi L. Graham, member of the Baker Chapel A.M.E. Church of Big Spring, Texas, will be guest speaker at the Women's Day Rally at Bethel A.M.E. Church Sunday afternoon, May 1, at 3. TSTA Meeting Set On Legislation

Public school teachers and administrators in Lubbock and a 17-county surrounding area have been invited to attend a briefing on school legislation at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 4, at Williams Elementary School, 58th and Utica Streets.

Third in a series of monthly "legislative update sessions," the discussion will be led by Dottie St. Clair of Austin, consultant in the TSTA division of membership and member services.

TSTA District XVII leaders expected to assist with the meeting are Dorothy McGregor of Lubbock, district president; and R.N. Pierce of Jayton, legislative chairperson.

With one school finance bill already passed by the Texas House of Representatives, TSTA leaders now are focusing attention on the Senate, where a TSTA-sponsored bill is pending along with four other proposals.

TSTA Executive Secretary Callie W. Smith of Austin says the 140,000-member teacher organization will continue to work for passage of the association's school finance bill, which includes a teacher pay raise. The bill passed by the House April 20 does not provide for a teacher pay raise.

Four other TSTA-sponsored bills have been reported favorably from committees, and now are awaiting action on the Senate floor. These are bills on teacher retirement, sick leave for school personnel, teacher contracts, and consultation agreements between teachers and their local school boards.

A TSTA-backed certification bill has already been passed and signed into law by Governor Dolph Briscoe. Another TSTA bill, to provide increased state funding for the training of future teachers, is pending in House and Senate education committees.

It takes less energy and less brains to step on the gas than to use the brakes.

Salinas Against School Finance Bill

State Rep. Froy Salinas of Lubbock said he voted against the school finance bill that passed the House of Representatives last week because, "it does not address the problem of school district equalization."

Salinas noted in a prepared statement that the bill gives $350 million to local school district so they won't have to contribute as much to the basic school program.

"However, because of the across-the-board nature of the reduction, rich districts will receive much more state money for this purpose than will the poor districts," the freshman legislator said.

Adding that Lubbock is a poor district, Salinas said that districts in Lubbock Independent School District's category will receive an average of $27.50 per student for equalization. But rich districts will receive $138 per pupil in local fund assignment reduction.

Salinas said that the legislature's failure to deal with the problem of equalizing the state aid to education could be grounds for a court case. "This is a result no one wants," he said.

Salinas said that he also voted against the bill because it did not deal with school teacher salaries. "I felt that the House Leadership was postponing consideration of teacher salaries in an effort to limit the money available for such an increase."

Seven Club and the Lucky 12 Club for their nomination and moral support, which enabled Pres. Naomi Milligan to be presented with a plaque from the district for outstanding work in the club. In the art show, the club earned a first, second and third place ribbon, and tied for second place as the club having done the most outstanding work.

The meeting was most informative as well as enjoyable, to all in attendance, and each member was given the incentive to work harder to make this year a great year in club work. Saturday's activities were highlighted by a banquet and Debutante Ball.

OSHA Officials to Conduct Hearings

Congressman George Mahon announced this week that officials of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration have agreed to conduct hearings on their proposed cotton dust standards in Lubbock, Texas, on May 10 and 11.

"I am most disturbed over the potential impact these cotton dust standards could have on the economy of West Texas and the nation," the Congressman said. "If implemented as they are now written, these unreasonable standards could have the effect of shutting down thousands of gins across the Cotton Belt, and would cost millions of dollars in the loss of jobs and other economic benefits. The standards would have a similar devastating effect on cotton seed oil mills and other cotton industries, producing a ripple effect throughout the agriculture economy of West Texas and other cotton-producing areas of the country," Mahon continued.

OSHA officials in Washington agreed to conduct field hearings in Lubbock and Greenville, Mississippi, after Mahon and other farm leaders in Congress insisted that the agency undertake efforts to get the views of the people who would be most affected by standards developed by the agency. The formal hearing process begins in Washington the week of April 5.

Congressman Mahon urged cotton industry representatives in West Texas and area citizens generally to provide as much information as possible at the field hearings in Lubbock. Requests to appear at the hearings may be made at the OSHA office in the Lubbock Federal Building. The hearings will begin at 9:30 a.m. on May 10, and will be held at the South Park Inn.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Somehow we always know that "spring has sprung" when the Lubbock Symphony gets around to presenting its light-hearted, jolly Pops Nite program. And "spring has sprung," for the big orchestra acquitted itself beautifully last week in a program that was billed by Founder-Conductor William A. Harrod as a Rodgers and Hammerstein Night, which was about two-thirds true.

I say two-thirds because it was not all Rodgers and Hammerstein, though the music from "Oklahoma," "Carousel," "South Pacific" and the team's only movie music, "State Fair," figured heavily.

But there was a "breather" from the celebrated team's work in "Blue Moon," which was written by Rodgers with the late Lorenz Hart doing the lyric chore. And, too, the Lubbock Civic Ballet performed to "Pops Hoedown," and Lerner and Loewe figured with a selection from their "Camelot" and "Man of La Mancha" was represented. To say nothing of the sprightly, effervescent selection from "Gaité Parisienne."

It was a nice, full concert, though the ballet seemed out of place on this program, even if they attacked the mock western choreography with a vengeance. The outstanding work of the night was certainly done by the Monterey Cantores, under their leader Majore (cq) Newton. This young group of high schoolers enhanced every number that they participated in and Monterey can be right proud of them. They made "It's a Grand Night for Singing" a treat, supporting Jana King and they did the same in spades for Sarah Watkins in "June is Bustin' Out All Over" and her touching "You'll Never Walk Alone." They popped back with the rousing "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" and buttressed Miss Watkins again for her "Out of My Dreams" and, of course, socked in with the famed "Oklahoma" for the finale.

In addition to the Misses Watkins and King, there were excellent solo spots handled by the stellar John Gillas (his "If I Loved You" was simply superb and what stage presence this man possesses!), Terry Cook, he of the resounding voice, stunning in "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "The Impossible Dream," Bill Hartwell, that impressive bearded man, scoring with "It's a Grand Night for Singing" "Blue Moon" and "The Surrey with the Fringe on the Top."

It was a grand night for singing and if the orchestra seemed a little ragged at times and some of the old-time verve seemed lacking now and then, chalk it up to general fatigue, I guess. The orchestra has had a full year and they still have a Summer Pops to play at the Civic Center in June, when pianist Roger Williams returns to Lubbock to star.

Incidentally, the Tuesday concert was the last one in the Auditorium; next season will be played in the Civic Center and because of smaller seating capacity will be played Mondays and Tuesdays, two nights instead of one.

The Symphony Guild colored the intermission by presenting a portrait of the founder-conductor, Harrod, presented by Kay Sanford with remarks by artist Claudine Vail. That Ms. Vail is a talker was evident, even prompting Harrod to whip off a little "Hearts and Flowers" on his fiddle.

And, one other thing, the National Anthem was missing for the first time in a long time. Everybody got steeled to stand at the beginning and found themselves sitting as the orchestra launched into their selections from "Oklahoma."

This past weekend provided a gem of entertainment with the Texas Tech Music Theater giving its "Trilogy of Operatic Comedy," three one-act operas in English in the University Center Recital Hall. When I saw that the producer-director was John Gillas, then you know the performances were stunning, professional and delightful.

This Gillas is something else. He directs with a sure, deft hand and he thinks of everything. Did you notice that for each opera the candle arrangement on the piano was different? It was a candelabra for the Mozart "Impresario," a stately mourning candle for "Gianni Schicci" and old-time western lamps for "Sweet Betsy From Pike."

Pianists Laurie Schwartz, Ron Williams, Marilyn Arland provided excellent accompaniment, assisted by John Anthony, percussionist, and Tech professor Kyung Wook Shin conducting the "Gianni Schicci."

All three operas were fun. Jana King and Diana Riddle battled vocally and histrionically as rival divas in "The Impresario" which saw a marvelously amusing performance by James Toland as the beleaguered impresario.

A large cast played the "Gianni Schicci" beautifully, with particularly outstanding work being done by Ron Carter as the conniving Gianni, David Zapeta stealing the show once again with his ludicrous and laughable Pinellino, Jan Sisson, so lovely in "O My Sweet Daddy" aria and all the other fine students in the cast.

I was down at the South Plains Mall this weekend to catch a show and walked spang into the most bewildering collection of art and crafts known to man. Artists were in action and every available space was crammed with the original paintings, etchings, metal work, stitchery and what have you. Overall it was the most astounding orgy of mediocrity that I have ever seen. Oh there is some good work here, but you'll have to have a lot of time to ferret it out. There is a lot of trash as well, but we won't go into that!

Saturday night saw the glittering "An Evening in Tivoli Gardens," the Lubbock Symphony Guild's Ball which was handsome and svelt, a lot of fun amid decor of beautiful execution. It was a nice, rewarding night and to all those who labored so hard to achieve this memorable time, I say "Congratulations."

In our next we'll be talking about "Slap Shot" and "Bound for Glory."

was our special guest of the morning. Bishop Alexander delivered a wonderful message entitled "The Works of the Dead." He went on to explain if it wasn't for the people who worked and toiled here so faithful, we would not be enjoying our freedom or all the different facilities we now have. The message was very heart-warming.

This choir rendered to two lovely selections, "Tell Jesus" and "Mountain I Want You To Move." Sister Virdie Ray read a beautiful paper on behalf of our late pastor, it was very inspiring. After services, Dr. Perry, along with some of the members, went to the grave site to put a wreath at the head of Rev. Hollins' grave. Even though he is at rest, his memory will always be with us, for he was the founder of Lyons Chapel.
