City Council Votes 'Yes' on Annexation

Delta's 34th Convention Slated

Washington, D.C. — "An Agenda for Change" will be the theme of the 34th National Convention of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., a national public service sorority, to be held at the Convention Center in Denver, Colorado August 6-12.

Mrs. Thelma Daley, national president of the 95,000 member organization, announced that over 4,000 delegates and their families are expected to attend the five day session.

She pointed out that the program has been planned to focus attention "on major problems faced by our nation, and particularly by women and minority citizens.

"We expect the delegates to address these problems in a forthright manner in an effort to redefine the issues, generate new data, establish new directions and develop a comprehensive, practical and workable agenda for change."

An organization of mostly black, college educated and professional women with about 600 chapters throughout the United States, Haiti and Liberia, members of Delta Sigma Theta can be found in leadership positions on the local, state and national levels and in governmental and non-governmental policy making positions.

According to Mrs. Daley, the organization's constantly growing membership can be attributed to its interest and "commitment to the organization's wide range of public service programs and deep concern about doing away with the seemingly ever present problems of discrimination, crime, unemployment, social barriers, health killers, illiteracy and the constant struggle for survival of the black family. The 1977 convention program will reflect these concerns.

Among the program highlights will be two special luncheons with nationally known speakers as well as a series of workshops to provide participants with continuing education credits. The workshops will cover such areas as assertiveness training, career development and management technology.

Hosting the convention is the Denver Alumnae Chapter under the leadership of Linda Bates Transou, chapter president. Convention coordinators are Josie R. Johnson and Cloteal Jernigan.

Local Songwriter May Perform in Nashville

Durward Stephenson of 313 E. Tulane, Lubbock, has been invited by the head of the Nashville Talent Showcase Association to go to Nashville, Tennessee to perform. Working with Nashville publicity and promotion man, Steve Post, Stephenson has been invited to perform his songs in a big talent showcase which will feature many of the stars of the Grand Ole Opry, plus rising talent from around the country. All forms of music will be present at this showcase which will be hosted by L.D. Dugger "The Chaplain of Country Music" and by million selling record star, Marvin Rainwater. Some of the Nashville recording stars scheduled to perform on this showcase include Skeeter Davis, Jimmy Gateley, Bill Carlisle, Ernie Ashworth, and the Wilburn Brothers, plus many more too numerous to name.

It is planned that talent scouts from various Nashville record companies will be present at these talent showings, giving them a chance to view future talent, and to decide on this talent while still un-noticed to the public. For Durward Stephenson, this could be the big break that he is looking for as a songwriter.

(Persons with an interest in this talent showcase are invited to write to Steve Post, P.O. Box 22226, Nashville, Tenn. 37202.)

The Lubbock City Council Thursday voted to annex an area that will square off the city limits to the south.

The area, requested by developer Cecil Jennings, met requirements that Leroy Elmore's proposal of a few weeks ago, failed to meet, such as being within the response time of a fire station.

The fire station will be built at 79th and Slide with funds from the May 21 bond election.

The validation of the bond election is now being questioned in a legal suit against the city, but City Attorney Fred Senter hopes for a ruling validating the election before the bond sale Sept. 29.

The new tract, south of 82nd Street to 98th Street and west of Slide Road to Frandford, will not become a part of the city until the annexation ordinance goes through a first and second reading and two publications.

The annexation breezed through the council with the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission and a few queries.

"Cecil, how many people did you say lived in this area?" Mayor Pro Tem Dirk West asked.

"About 16."

"We needn't overlook what an enormous favor we're doing these people be getting them out of the country," West jibed at County Commissioners, frequent targets for his wit.

The Council unanimously favored annexation.

The council also voted to join the Cultural Affairs Council and apply for a grant from the National Endowment for Arts and Humanities.

Councilman Alan Henry moved to apply for the grant, saying promotion of the arts aids area businesses. Henry said he learned at the U.S. Conference of Mayors that for every dollar spent on the arts another $2 is spent on clothing, gas and other expenses in preparing to go to the planned activity.

If the council is successful in getting the grant, a $150 a day consultant will be brought in for a period of three to five days to study the cultural possibilities of Lubbock.

Mrs. Winifred Vigness of the Texas Tech Museum spoke before the council and asked that the consultant be employed.

"We should look into what we can do to encourage the arts," Henry said.

In other action, the council accepted the Municipal Court study done by a national consulting firm. The council accepted the report in general concepts, with the agreement the city staff still had discretion to accept the proposed revisions.

One of the most controversial of the suggested revisions involved trade-offs, a type of plea-bargaining apparently unique to Lubbock.

Under the trade-off system, an attorney can get half of his clients off by presenting guilty pleas from the other half.

So if defendant hires an attorney to get his case dismissed, the attorney finds another case involving someone too poor to pay the fine. The poor defendant pleads guilty in

NAACP Begins New Era

Now is the time for all of us to start taking an active part in the changes which will be taking place in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). Keep in mind that the efforts of this organization have been the prime causes of your enjoying the progress that have been made. Small as they may have been, think of how it would have been without the effort of "Mr. NAACP" — Roy Wilkins, who retired this year.

There's a new era now and Benjamin Hooks is in command. Anyone who knows Brother Hooks will know that there are some changes coming to the NAACP. We must keep in mind, however, that cause is so great that no matter who takes over the helm, something different will happen. Brother Hooks is a well qualified leader and will get the job done.

Looking at his experiences, we find he is a lawyer, preacher, administrator, politician, and humorist. All of this will be to his advantage as he fills the shoes worn by Roy Wilkins.

It is important that all of us support the new regime. All of us will have a chance to start anew with the NAACP. We need to get in there and change with it. It is ours, so let's help it. This can be done by supporting it. It's ours.

Even at the local level, the Lubbock Branch can use our support. With our support, many other things could be well accomplished for our community. Keep in mind it's ours...

If you look at the picture from a positive point of view, you'll see that the NAACP could lean towards making businesses more responsive to the needs of the blacks who support them. Even other institutions who haven't paid attention to the need of blacks would be met if there help were given to the NAACP.

We all can help fight for what is right for the community. Help the NAACP either openly or silently. Help the new era for the NAACP by getting your membership today.

As I See It . . .

After attending the Friday night performance of the "West Side Story" at the fabulous Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, this writer is convinced even more that there is a great deal of talent in our city. The cast of 37, which included many of them from the high schools here, were great. They enjoyed what they were doing and displayed their talents in the production.

This was a controversial production, but the leadership of Ric Brame was great. He took these young people and made them believe in themselves. As a result, the outcome was quite positive. Charlotte Greeson, choir director at Dunbar High School, is to be credited with finding talented black boys and girls to perform in this production. She served in the capacity as a musical director.

The production last Friday and Saturday evening, in my opinion, has opened the door for this kind of activity to be seen by the citizens of Lubbock in future dates. Actually, there is enough talent in this community to have such performances on a regular basis. Not being an expert in the theatre arts, this writer found this past performance being quite positive.

Not only did this writer enjoy what he saw, but the hundreds of people who paid their way is evidence that more of this is needed. It appears as though Lubbock has finally grown to a stage where we need more of this activity in our community. It can happen and will become a positive effort if given the opportunity.

As I See It, Lubbock, Texas needs to encourage these kinds of activities here. The West side Story went over big here. Now it's time for others to follow this 'first' in our city... The citizens of Lubbock owe a lot to Civic Lubbock for having the confidence to have such a production here. The able assistance of Mickey Yerger, who also played a role, is to be congratulated for what has happened. In all, thanks to everyone for making this an opportunity for the young people in Lubbock to work in a controversial play the way professionals would have done. These kids have become friends on and off the stage. Sure it can work, blacks, browns and whites can work together here in Lubbock if given the opportunity.... This was proven last week...

At a special hearing last Thursday morning in City Council Chambers, the City Council voted to allocate $9,000, from the third year Community Development Contingency funds, for lighting and marking of the East 24th Street overpass. This is good to see some development put into this well used overpass.

This writer would hope the City Council would find some funds to have those weeds cut that are growing, through the concrete, on the overpass. It looks pitiful and should be cut. It shouldn't take much money to keep these weeds cut each summer.

Brothers George Woods and James Craven, Sr. are busy making plans for the second annual Early Settlers Roundup which will be held in August. If you are an early settler and would like to participate in this year's activity, contact Woods or Craven. They are just waiting for input to make a great affair.

Incidentally, the committee is meeting each Thursday evening at 2101 Date Avenue. Why not go by and become a part of this program. Early settlers made it possible for people like this writer to be in the City of Lubbock.

Everyone can play an important part in the upcoming United Negro College Fund (UNCF) Mini-Telethon Saturday evening, August 13, from 7 to 10 over KMCC-TV, Channel 28. The goal for this effort is $25,000. It can be reached if people would give what they can. Many young people in Texas will benefit from the gift given by citizens like you.

One of the individuals working hard to see that the entire community knows about the UNCF Mini-Telethon is Harold M. Chatman, co-chairman of the publicity committee. Bob Nash serves as the other co-chairman.

Brother Chatman makes it known loud and clear that he is working hard to let the citizens know about this important effort. If you see him going from place to place talking about UNCF, let him know that you are behind what he is doing. He'll appreciate your concern as well as the other two hundred and forty nine people involved with this Lubbock effort.

As it's said by UNCF workers: "A Mind Is A Terrible Thing To Waste."

WASHINGTON — There could be more prison fires like the recent inferno that killed 42 people in Tennessee. Most of the victims died from inhaling toxic fumes which came from burning mattresses in prison cells.

The mattresses were made of polyurethane foam padding. Polyurethane padding, when it's burned, produces billows of black smoke. It contains toxic gases, including cyanide.

Anyone who breathes the poisonous fumes will die in a matter of minutes. Even a whiff of the smoke can lead to serious sickness. Yet hundreds of prisons throughout the country use these dangerous foam mattresses.

A careless cigarette or a smoldering match could turn these prisons into death traps. In fact, the Tennessee tragedy isn't the first one. Inmates in Florida, Maryland and North Carolina jails have died from similar smoke fumes.

Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., has conducted his own quiet campaign to reduce the polyurethane danger. He has contacted the authorities in all 50 states. He got back favorable responses from 42 states, one of which, ironically, was Tennessee.

The authorities responsible for buying mattresses for the Tennessee state prisons wrote to him 10 months ago. They promised to test alternative bedding material for the prisoners.

But they delayed too long. A few weeks ago, some of those deadly mattresses caught on fire. And 42 inmates and visitors died from the poisonous gases.

Bicentennial Footnote: The Bicentennial ended last year, but it took until this month to close down the Bicentennial Administration. In fact, not all the bureaucrats are off the payroll yet. Some are staying on as employees of a transition team, which is mopping up the final details.

The Bicentennial Administration cost the taxpayers $52 million. Another $22 million was earned from souvenir sales and book royalties. Of the $74 million total, only $1 million will be turned back to the government.

The money has just been delivered to the Interior Department, which is already looking for ways to spend it. The department wants to invest $350,000, for example, to build a memorial to the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Dirty Tricks: Several Democratic Congressmen have complained to us that the Republicans are up to their dirty tricks again.

A GOP news team, known as "News from the Other Side," has been broadsiding Democratic opponents with critical press releases. The truth is, the "News from the Other Side" team is really the public relations arm of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Rep. Joseph Ammerman, D.-Pa., one of those attacked, was so outraged over the duplicity that he fired off a blistering letter to Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R.-Mich., who is chairman of the GOP committee. Ammerman warned that the press releases were the same sort of dirty tricks that led the Republican party into disrepute during the Nixon administration.

An unimpressed Vander Jagt ordered that the news service be continued.

Pentagon Pipeline: The Army is spending millions of dollars each year just to keep track of itself.

The Army's brass hats have devised a computer system, called "integrated facilities systems," to keep track of their $88 billion worth of equipment and facilities. Pentagon insiders refer to it simply as IFS.

Appropriately enough, IFS has raised some "ifs." For one thing, IFS cost $13.5 million just to set up. Then, like almost everything else in the military, it has proved more expensive than originally intended. Last year, for example, IFS cost the taxpayers $400,000 for overtime and miscellaneous expenses.

Several months ago, Rep. Les Aspin, D.-Wis., discovered that at least $1.5 million worth of Army equipment had been stolen at Fort Hood, Texas. The Congressman wanted the General Accounting Office to investigate, but the Army said it would do its own auditing.

Now Aspin has charged the Army with a "cover-up," and has asked for a meeting with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander. The Army's inspector general, meanwhile, says he is too busy investigating to talk to the Congressman.

President Carter recently created a blue ribbon panel to study the problem of "double dippers." These are retired military men who receive a pension check and work for the federal government at the same time.

One of the members of the new panel is retired Lt. Gen. Benjamin Davis. He has a great deal of expertise on the problem—he is a double dipper himself. The general collects an Army pension and a paycheck from the Transportation Department, where he works part-time as a consultant. When Davis turns 65, this December, he will also be entitled to Social Security.

Police Beat

Burglary of Habitation

Although there was nothing missing from the house, a Lubbock woman told police she was "ripped off" one night last week. She told police the person broke into the house while she was away.

After thinking the situation over carefully, she told police that her boyfriend had been coming over to her house while she was away.

After a careful investigation, it is believed that entry was gained by cutting a screen on the window and then raising the window.

There was approximately $20 worth of damage done to the screen and window.

Burglary of Green Fair Manor Apartment

D.C. Fair, Jr., executive director of the Lubbock Housing Authority Board, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown broke into one of the apartments in Green Fair Manor one day last week. This apartment was at 2812 Weber Drive, Apt. B.

Persons unknown gained entry through a door and took a yellow refrigerator, corquet set, and a deck of dominoes. These items were valued at approximately $400.

Car Burglary

Gloria Reyna, 2311 North Quirt Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown did gain entry to her pickup truck while it was parked in the driveway of her home one night last week.

According to the police report, the pickup was not locked. This made it easy for burglars to take a C.B. radio, and an eight-track tape player. These items were valued at $90.

Aggravated Assault

Howard George Dotson, 4117 Brownfield Road, #23, reported to Lubbock police that he was at the Thunderbird Lounge, East 23rd & Fir Avenue, early Sunday morning playing pool when he had a problem. He told police that a man came up to him and hit him in the face with a pool cue stick.

The blow from the pool cue damaged Dotson's right eye. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment. Dotson told police that he would file charges when they finds out the name of the person who was responsible for hitting him. This incident happened at 4:30 a.m. Sunday morning.

Aggravated Assault

Terry Dale Shelton, 3505 48th Street, reported to Lubbock police that a woman fired six shots at him while he was in a vacant lot in the area of 15th Street and Avenue B one day last week.

He told police the lady was sick and he was trying to help her. He told police that the lady was high on drugs.

Shelton told police he was going to charges against her this week. There were several witnesses to the incident, but Shelton didn't know their names.

House Burglary

Forentino Fernadez, 1716 Vanda Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown did gain entry to his house while he was gone one day last week.

Entry was apparently gained to the house by prying open the front door. Entry was also gained to a storage house in the backyard. The locked door was taken off the storage house.

Items taken from the house included a gold watch, portable AM radio, a set of bolts and a pipe cutter. Some circular saws and a pickup tire were taken from the storage house. These items were valued at $478.

Haley to Serve in Key Role In UNCF's Campaign

Alex Haley, author of "Roots," will serve as national vice chairman of the United Negro College Fund's annual campaign, it has been announced by Morris B. Abram, chairman of the board.

Winner of a 1977 Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award, Mr. Haley will play a prominent role in the campaign to raise $15-million for the 41 predominantly-black colleges affiliated with the United Negro College Fund, according to Mr. Abram.

A. Dean Swift, president of Sears, Roebuck and Company, is general chairman of the national fund-raising drive. Lewis W. Foy, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, and John R. Opel, president of IBM Corporation, are serving with Mr. Haley as national vice chairmen.

Describing his special concern for the health and vitality of black colleges, Mr. Haley cited his father's experience as a student.

"My father was the first member of his family to attend college. It was a private predominantly-black school that is now affiliated with the United Negro College Fund," said Mr. Haley. "If my dad had not been able to attend a black college, then my brothers and I would have grown up on a sharecrop farm. Instead, my father became a professor and we grew up in a home full of books."

Christopher F. Edley, executive director of the United Negro College Fund, lauded Alex Haley's literary accomplishments as "a milestone in the understanding of black heritage and American history."

"We are particularly honored to have Alex Haley as a leader of our national campaign," said Mr. Edley. "His writing reflects a man of strength and character who is extraordinarily proud of his people. He is especially concerned that disadvantaged youngsters get a chance to enter the mainstream of American life. We share this desire. With Alex Haley's support we are certain to reach that goal."

The United Negro College Fund, founded in 1944, is the largest black-oriented fund-raising organization in America.

It's national advertising slogan is "A mind is a terrible thing to waste."

Net monthly income limits have been set for the past year at $245 for a one-person household and $322 for two-person households.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

One live show, one film, both musicals fill the bill for this column. One hit, one miss and both worth the time.

The hit was, of course, the smashing, exciting Civic Lubbock, Inc. production of "West Side Story" which was given a most royal professional treatment in the Banquet Hall of the Civic Center on Friday and Saturday nights. It was a rousing, rollicking, fascinating and moving performance that brought the Friday packed house to their feet more than once.

I must admit that I approached the show with some concern. "West Side Story," the modern, contemporary update of the "Romeo and Juliet" plot with the original direction and choreography by Jerome Robbins, the book by Arthur Laurent, the music by Leonard Bernstein and the lyrics by Stephen Sondheim had scored on Broadway, had gone on to the movies and won countless Academy Awards and was just revived on the television screen a mere weeks ago.

How, then, could some local character named Ric Brame take over this show and populate its Puerto-Rican-American gang cast, sing all those lovely songs, with somebody named Charlotte Greeson to direct the musical side of the picture. And do it on a limited stage with minimal scenery.

Well, by now you know they did it. THEY DID IT. It was a thunderous success. It was a roaring success and if you were foolish enough to miss it, then the fault is all yours.

It is too bad that the Texas Commission for the Arts and Humanities saw fit to fund a state-wide tour of the Houston Opera's production of the little-known John Phillip Sousa work and has not availed themselves of two recent shows that demand further exposure. I mean John Gillas' Gilbert and Sullivan thunderbolt, "Patience" and now Ric Brame's sensational "West Side Story."

Heaven knows the State of Texas should be told and shown about the incredible talents that we harbor in this city. And, if you doubt my words, then I sit back and let the two productions speak, sing and act for themselves.

The dinner theater production at the Civic Center provided a "happy hour," a superb dinner (prime rib) the show and dancing to a live orchestra following the performance. The cost for all this at tables was $19.00 per couple. Now I ask you—where could you have all this for an average of $10 a person? You couldn't. And, if you didn't, then you missed the boat by a mile.

Well, back to the show. As you know, this is the story of street gangs in New York City, the Puerto Ricans and the "whites." And is the story of the doomed love between a white boy and the Puerto Rican girl. It, like its model, Romeo and Juliet, is a show headed for tragedy. You have the counterparts of Romeo, Juliet, the warring factions, the deaths of the characters in this modernized version corresponding to those of Mercutio and Tybalt in the original. In this one the white boy, the Romeo, dies, while the Juliet survives in those awful last minutes.

The music is grand. You'll remember "Tonight," "I Feel Pretty," "America" and all the rest. It is standard music now, Hall of Fame music. "West Side Story" is really a play with music, rather than a musical in the regular sense.

It is vital that the listener hear the lyrics as a part of the dialogue and it is regrettable that some areas of the big room the other night could not hear the words once the music began. Acoustics in the Civic Center's Banquet Room and the Exhibit Hall leave something to be corrected and, while, at the press table, I heard everything, it came as a surprise to me to learn later that far corners of the room missed a good portion of the show itself. Maybe time and experience will correct this situation. It is to be hoped.

As in "Patience," so in "West Side Story." Tim and Jana King, that gifted, personable, wonderful singing-acting couple, held the leads. As Tony, Tim King was superb, and as Maria, Jana King was a match for her handsome husband. They leave us for the Dallas area and there are sore hearts all over town at their coming departure. They have been an invaluable asset on our theatrical scene and they will be irreplaceably missed. They gave us two brilliant performances the other night as their farewell gift.

I look down this enormous cast list and know that space here will not allow mention of all names. I can only single out individuals that remain in my tingling memory. There was the fine Riff of Bill Oakley, the stunning Anita of Cathy Christ and the brilliant Rosalia of Terri Eoff. There was the welcome return of Roger Titus as the policeman and a superbly danced and acted "Officer Krupke" number by the boys.

We had Zen Oden, the daughter not the politico mother, as Rubie, T.J. Patterson, Jr. scoring mightily as the Baby John, giving the show's key and final scene a terrific impact. We even had Mickey Yerger, the Civic Center manager, in the small role as Glad Hand.

John Patterson was the technical director and accomplished a fine job in a limited and demanding space. And how Monte Mitchell managed to get all those switchblade, menacing men and women on and off the stage with such slick ease, I'll never know.

So, "West Side Story" has come and gone (it may get a repeat this week, so pay attention) and Ric Brame is the boy who did it mainly. He not only played the role of Ricardo with finesse but his choreography was sensational. Miss Greeson ably abetted him in the music department and my hat's off to all concerned. It was the final scheduled live performance for the summer season and it certainly set the pattern for the summers to come. It was memorable and one wanted to say across the miles, "New York, eat your heart out!" It was professional, a delight and nobody who was there this weekend will soon forget a thrilling, moving experience in theater.

I mentioned at the beginning of this that there had been a movie, too. It is "New York, New York," the nostalgic, big band movie that stars Liza Minnelli and Robert De Niro and is at the Winchester Theater. The show runs two hours and 33 minutes and I managed to survive for two hours on the nose. Minnelli, looking and sounding more like her late mother, Judy Garland, than ever is fine when she sings. As an actress she leaves one wanting. De Niro, as a saxophone orchestra leader, sprang to fame in the Godfather movies and "Taxi Driver." He lacks something, too, and his anti-hero in this one is a bore. It's the old wife becomes star while husband and father goes downhill and the fault of this Martin Scorsese movie is that nobody in the audience really cares what happens to the principals. The music is comprised of some new songs, a lot of old standards, and it is in this area that the film reaches its best. Its emotional impact is remote and the playing merely adequate. I thought I deserved a gold star for lasting the two hours; I couldn't have borne the final 33 minutes.

Roberson Named Special Assistant To U.S. Sen. Bentsen

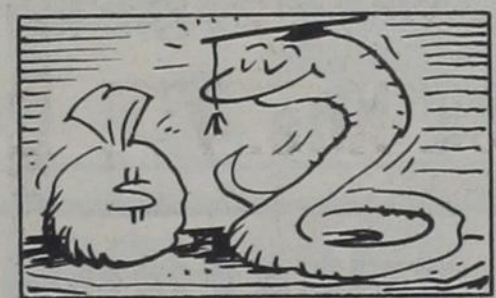

Gregory Albert Roberson

U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen recently appointed Gregory Albert Roberson, an Austin newsman, as a special assistant in his Austin office. Roberson, 27, assumed his duties on Bentsen's staff last month.

"Greg will be working with officials of Texas cities, with members of our state's black community, and with other groups in an effort to help them better cope with the demands of the Federal Government," Bentsen said.

"Although he will be based in Austin, his duties will require extensive travel throughout Texas," continued Bentsen.

Circus Clown to Appear At Summer Reading Program Here

The appearance of Steve Smith, special advance clown with Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will highlight the children's summer reading program at Lubbock City-County Library, July 28th and 29th at 2:00 p.m. A Circus Motif, called "A Three-Ring Summer" has been the theme of the program this year and the children have been treated to such events as a magician's performance, puppetry and gymnastic demonstrations.

Other clowns have made their appearance in the summer library program. Cecil Puryear of the Lubbock Lions Club demonstrated clown make-up techniques and children's library staff members joined their young patrons for a clown dress-up event.

Smith is a 1971 graduate of Clown College and an ex-member of "Los Payasos Educators", a mime troupe which performed in Mexican Schools and Theatres. As an advance clown for The Greatest Show on Earth, he travels throughout the United States ahead of the Circus to herald the arrival of the show. Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey will be at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, August 5 through 7.

Would-be clowns in the library program from age 6-12 will have an opportunity to be a real Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey clown for one performance during the show. They are entering a guessing game contest in the children's department. A correct guess as to the number of peanuts in a big glass jar gives the winner a place in the ring on Saturday, August 6. Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey provides the costume and make-up. The two runners up will be awarded circus tickets.

Additional 1,931 Unemployed Texas Workers Hired in Public Service Jobs

DALLAS — The number of workers in federally funded public service jobs in Texas increased by 1,931 between May 12 and June 30 according to reports from communities sponsoring employment and training programs financed under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), the U.S. Department of Labor announced.

However, the state's 24 prime sponsors fell short of their combined employment goal by 1,549 during the period. Plans called for 10,953 public service jobs to be filled by the end of June. Only 9,404 were.

The Labor Department's Regional Administrator for Employment and Training William S. Harris observed that the 14 percent shortfall resulted principally from difficulties in identifying qualified unemployed workers in major metropolitan areas with relatively low unemployment and where large recruiting programs take time to gain momentum.

He said he expects the combined goal of employing 13,487 previously unemployed in public service jobs by July 31 would be reached.

Texas prime sponsors report that 7,473 persons were already working in CETA funded public service jobs on May 12 when an additional $203,168,437 in federal economic stimulus funds were allocated in the state. The additional money is intended to bring the total of such public service jobholders to 19,626 by Dec. 1.

The Comanche Crossing celebration is a traditional central Texas festival that has grown to the point that would-be visitors were turned away from the crowded picnic grounds, Mrs. Moore said. "It must be like Mardi Gras in New Orleans," she said.

You don't like the shape America's in? O.K. change it.

America's got too many poor people, right? And there's plenty of other problems too. Take our cities. The shape of some of them is enough to make you cry. And waste and ignorance, the cycle of poverty that traps one generation after another because they're too busy just holding on to get ahead. The ravages of hunger and disease. Education that's either too little or none. Skills that are lacking, and the means to get them also. It could go on and on, and it will unless you do something. And not the you standing behind you either, but you. You believe something can be done.

O.K. now's the time for action... join VISTA: Volunteers in Service to America. If you're eighteen or eighty—great, we want you. We want you to organize in your community, or someone else's. Helping miners in Appalachia learn a new skill. Or migrant farm workers' children to read. We want you to organize a clinic in Watts. Or fight poverty around the corner. We don't care how much you make now, only how much you can give now. We're greedy in VISTA; we want all you've got.

You'll be working long and hard. And the pay is nothing to write home about either. But there's one thing we can promise you, there will be plenty to write home about.

About the things you've learned while working with others. And the progress you've made. And that feeling deep inside you, knowing that you've returned the favor America gave you. O.K. you know what's wrong, right? Now go ahead, change it. In VISTA. Call VISTA toll free: 800-424-8580. Or write VISTA: Box A, Washington, D.C. 20525. VISTA is alive and well. Come alive with us.

Ringling The Bell . . .

With Bob Tieuel

The Human Side of the Black Story: Working as a journalist for a black newspaper in the 40's and through the 50's and early 60's has been an exciting way to spend many of our youthful years. The pay was limited, the hours were long, the editors were gruff, but we have had exciting and challenging years as a minister-journalist. It has given us a sense of being part of something important, of doing something with your life that had meaning. This year marks the 150th anniversary of the Black Press (1877) when John Russwurm established the first black newspaper—Freedom's Journal.

Phyllis T. Garland, an alumna of one of the nation's leading black-oriented newspapers and now a professor at the State University of New York, speaks for many black journalists when she comments: "I approached the profession primarily as a crusader, intent upon using the black press as a tool for change." As J.D. Williams puts it: "There was always a battle for a black newspaper to fight, somebody always stepping, or trying to step on black people. The black newspaper was the place black people took their troubles, the source they looked to for the news that no one else would tell them, their shield and their comforter, the defender of their rights."

Chimes: Wilson Riles was elected California Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970 and reelected by a record vote of 68 percent in 1974. Riles is a graduate of Texas College at Tyler and recently his programs on minority and early education have brought him wide notice, as has his work on national task forces dealing with the problems of American education. . . His goal is to "eventually eliminate the learning gap that now exists between middleclass and disadvantaged children."

While white Americans of both sexes develop more cancer than non whites, cancer incidents and mortality have been increasing faster among American black men than any other group. Cancer death rates in American white men also have been increasing, but not as rapidly, according to Drs. Jane E. Brody and Arthur I. Holleb.

According to an AP report it didn't take lawyers long to learn what Madison Avenue knew all along: it pays to advertise. . . The ration of Chicane doctors to patients is 20,000 to one, while for Anglos, it is 600 to one. . .

Headline in Kansas City Call: "After Serving Nearly 50 Years-Wilkins Retires from NAACP." He was quoted as saying, "As long as there is breath in my body, I shall be with you in this fight for first citizenship all over America. Let us use every tool at our disposal and every hand on deck, black and white, young and old."

And now until later, the story told by my invalid brother-in-law who says that when he took my late father to the hospital, the doctors asked him how old was he. He replied, "I don't know. My mother never told me." Although he died at the ripe old age of 92, he never discussed age. Fears not years determine our age, as one bellringer put it.
