Housing-Discrimination Suit Filed in Midland

The Department of Justice filed a civil suit today charging an apartment owner in Midland, Texas, with refusing to rent to black persons.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell said the housing-discrimination suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Midland against Keith D. Berger, owner of the 20-unit Alpine Apartments.

The suit charged Berger with violating the Fair Housing Act of 1968 by engaging in racial discrimination in the operation of his apartment building.

The suit said he has refused to rent to blacks, made discriminatory statements, and misrepresented to blacks that there were no vacancies.

The suit asked for a court order enjoining Berger from violating the Fair Housing Act and requiring him to correct the effects of his alleged discriminatory practices.

East Lubbock Community Meets; Discusses Plains Oil Mill Proposal

by Lerisa R. Payne

Wednesday, November 1, 1978, the community of the East side of Lubbock met to discuss a proposal made by the Plains Oil Mill concerning their community, at the Mt. Gilead Baptist Church.

The South Plains Oil Mill made a proposal concerning their drainage problem. The Mill was ordered by the State to do something about their drainage problem.

Their solution was to dig a hole or pond in the earth and let the drainage flow through a filtering tank before flowing in the lake by Mae Simmons Park. The mill plans to keep it clean by using bulldozers, but the pond or hole would still be susceptible to mosquitoes and other residue. There were objections to the proposal made by the community.

At the meeting, a committee of seven was selected to speak for the community. The committee will consist of Ms. Joan Ervin, Harold Chatman, David Sowell, Rev. A.L. Davis, George Scott, Rev. A.L. Patrick, and Mr. D.C. Skinner.

The community rejected their idea and will present a few suggestions put forth by the committee; the community recommends that there should be a covered filtration system over the hole; (2) if there are to be any distributions of seed storage south of Coronado Drive, it should be placed at a sheet building and not in an open area; and (3) in the event there is purchasing of land north of Coronado Drive, there will need to be housing sponsored by the mill consisting of single, duplex, and quadruplex housing for light retail use.

Minority Council Advises Trailways

NEW YORK—Officials of Trailways, Inc. Friday, Oct. 13, heard members of its newly formed minority advisory council urge the inter-city bus company to continue its efforts to enhance the bus riding experience for minority passengers, including the elderly.

By forming a minority advisory council, Trailways, the nation's second largest inter-city bus company, expressly had sought suggestions on ways to make bus riding more convenient, and enjoyable for minorities including younger and older passengers.

Council members' ideas on improving services for minority bus passengers included group travel plans, extension of educational programs about bus companies and facilities, and the need for improving downtown bus depots, an area in which Trailways, has taken the lead in promoting the concept of modern, multi-faceted transportation centers.

Minority council members also expressed interest in Trailways' concern for the black community and minority bus riders and urged consideration in matters relating to increased minority employment, utilization of black finance institutions, contributions to educational institutions and other subjects including use of minority vendors.

Black bus riders make up approximately 23% of Trailways' passengers, and the Dallas-headquartered company has improved communications with this market as a priority.

In welcoming members to the Council's first meeting, Trailways vice president-public affairs Herbert Stone stressed the Company's intention to take action on the council's recommendations. In his letter of invitation to the council members, Trailways' president J. Kevin Murphy said, "Trailways has a great deal of statistical data about our bus passengers, but we want to know more about them as human beings, as real people rather than numbers."

Council members include: Ambassador Theodore R. Britton, Jr., president United Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Henry Hay, associate publisher, Jackson (Miss.) Advocate; Marlene L. Johnson, National Center on Black Aged; Florence M. Rice, president, Harlem Consumer Education Council; Gertrude J. Rogers, immediate past president, National Housewives League, Inc., and Clarence Waldron, Columbia University student.

Also participating in the day-long New York meeting were Don George, District Manager (New York) for Trailways, and George W. McGriff, Manager-Industrial Relations, based in Dallas.

HOMEcoming QUEEN—October 27 was Estacado's Homecoming game, with the Matadors taking a victory over the Borger Bulldogs 20-14. At half-time the EHS Homecoming Queen, Deborah Davis, was crowned. The runner-ups were: Vera Mann 1st runner-up; Felisa Johnson, 2nd runner-up; and Linder Mosley, 3rd runner-up. Congratulations, Deborah!

The person who receives the most nominations and adheres to these conditions becomes the selection.

Daryl plans to attend the University of Texas at Arlington. He looks forward to majoring in Journalism and minoring in Business Administration.

Britain to Pay U.S. Under Treaty, But U.S. Taxpayer Will Really Pay

WASHINGTON—The oil combines sometimes seem more eager to drill tax loopholes than oil wells. This is quite understandable, since the loopholes often bring greater returns than the gushers. Tax breaks, like oil wells, are also often located in unexpected places. A little-noticed tax treaty with Britain, for example, may soon contain a multimillion-dollar loophole—if the oil lobby has its way.

Under the treaty, Britain would pay at least $350 million in tax rebates to U.S. multinational corporations, plus a guaranteed $85 million a year hereafter.

This might appear on the books as British benevolence. But the American taxpayers would pay for it indirectly. In return for the tax rebates to American firms, British companies would get a tax break in this country.

Among the biggest beneficiaries of the complicated arrangement would be the international oil companies, who would escape certain domestic taxes. They have pulled out all the stops, therefore, to push the proposition.

The oil firms operate on a more exalted level than most other special interests. Armand Hammer, the grand old man of Occidental Petroleum, for example, wrote a private letter directly to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal.

The letter was intended for Blumenthal's eyes only, but we have obtained a copy.

Hammer addressed the letter to "Dear Mike." The oil tycoons, it seems, are always on a first-name basis with political leaders. "I enjoyed our chance meeting at Tip's office," he began, amiably. Tip, of course, would be House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

The oil magnate brought up the British tax treaty. He explained that he had already given President Carter his views on the treaty "during our lunch." He went on to drop two other big names before he finished the letter. He mentioned that Sens. Russell Long, D-La., and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., shared his favorable opinion of the treaty provision.

It was a simple, friendly letter. But it may be worth millions to Occidental Petroleum. It has been this kind of quiet, chummy lobbying that has permitted the oil men to escape paying uncounted billions—thanks to tax loopholes.

Pentagon Pipeline: Some of our fighting men are in a mutinous mood over their headgear. The Special Forces wear green berets; soldiers in the elite tank brigades often wear black berets; and the parachuting infantrymen of the 82nd Airborne Division wear purple berets.

Now, at Fort Hood, Texas, the soldiers have taken to wearing stetson cowboy hats.

This is too much for Gen. Bernard Rogers, the Army chief. He has issued an order banning all of the distinctive headgear, except for the Special Forces' green berets. The order has raised a howl from the troops who regard their fancy hats as a source of pride.

The general has agreed to listen to their complaints. But our fashion consultants in the Pentagon believe the colorful hat styles are out. There is absolutely no hope, they say, for the stetsons. The general would like to banish all cowboy hats to dude ranches.

— The military brass, meanwhile, go on wasting the taxpayers' money. The Army, for example, paid $400 million for a new fleet of tanks with possibly faulty engines.

The lightweight gas turbine engines, experts say, might break down under battlefield conditions. During tests, dirt and sand kept filtering through the engine seals and grinding the engines to a halt.

The Army generals were warned about the defect, but they claimed the tanks were desperately needed. So they went ahead with a $400 million order for machines that can be stopped with a little dirt and sand.

— Both the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed that in case of war, nerve gas should be banned. The weapon is considered too diabolical for one country to use against another. But Pentagon planners don't trust the Russians. They have ordered the distribution of nearly 2 million units of nerve gas antidotes to American servicemen—just in case the Russians do not live up to their part of the bargain.

Operation Intercept: Ugandan dictator Idi Amin has launched a sinister psychological warfare program against his own people and those Ugandans who choose to seek refuge in the United States.

Amin's thugs have been stationed at post offices across the country and instructed to intercept and open mail addressed to or from the United States. Money or valuables found in the mail are often pocketed by the dictator's men, and the letters of Ugandan citizens are carefully screened.

Ugandan citizens who write to relatives and friends in the United States sometimes mysteriously disappear.

Under the Dome: One of the last acts of the 95 Congress was a $20 billion tax cut, but it cost the taxpayers a bundle just to report the vote. The final session lasted 34 hours and the rhetoric filled six volumes of the Congressional Record. The cost of printing 40,000 copies of the six-volume edition came to $500,000.

— Sixty employees of the House dining room were all fired for the duration of the congressional recess. They were told they would be rehired when Congress reconvenes. In the meantime, they are out of a job.

Senior Citizens Have Free Education Rights

Senior citizens enjoy various forms of financial benefits, such as reduced fares and entrance fees and tax exemptions. Few probably know, however, about their right to free education.

At Texas Tech University persons 65 and older may audit any course they wish free, provided space is available. Registration and counseling are administered through the Division of Continuing Education.

According to Dr. Suzan H. Schafer, associate director of Continuing Education, interested persons receive detailed information to prepare for their studies, even instruction on use of the Library.

The senior audit program is made possible by a State of Texas House Bill of the 64th Legislature and is in accord with the general university regulation that those who audit a course do so for the purpose of hearing and seeing only; they may not participate in class discussions, laboratories or field work.

Audit students do not have to submit assignments and they do not receive grades or credit for a course.

More information may be obtained by calling 742-2352 or by writing to Texas Tech University, Division of Continuing Education, Box 4110, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Christmas Open House Held Nov. 19

A one-of-a-kind Christmas tree ornament will be offered for the first time this year at Codgell's General Store at the Ranching Heritage Center. It is a limited edition decoration, dated, and this year displaying a picture of the JY Masterson Bunkhouse.

The Ranching Heritage Center is a 12-acre outdoor exhibit of The Museum of Texas Tech University. Its authentically restored buildings depict the history of ranching in America. Codgell's merchandise is sold to visitors and all profits go to the Ranching Heritage Association for support of the center.

The association has announced that a new Christmas tree ornament will be produced each year and each will have on it a different one of the structures at the center. With each ornament is a description of the building and its historical significance. This is the first year for the dated, limited edition ornament series.

Codgell's General Store, which replicates the old-time general store, will be festively decorated for its Christmas open house from 1 to 5 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 19. Door prizes will include an elaborate homemade gingerbread house, and refreshments of hot wassail and gingerbread cookies will be served.

In addition to the new tree decoration, customers will find old-fashioned Christmas ornaments; handmade quilts, bonnets and pillows; dolls and miniature doll house furniture; cut glass and linens; candle holders and hand-dipped candles; decorative copper pieces; Ranching Heritage Center note paper in a new design by Conny Martin; books, calendars and stocking stuffers.

Much study is a weariness of the flesh.

-Ecclesiastes 12:12.

KELLY'S HEROES

by Joe Kelly

What a bee-you-tiful Homecoming for Texas Tech graduates; no marring rain, warm temperatures and a convincing victory over Baylor that showed the Red Raiders at their best.

The victory really hadn't been expected, although there was hope. It was the margin, as much as anything, as well as the way it was accomplished. Tech showed a balanced attack and a stout defense.

"I thought the defense was the difference," an elated Rex Dockery said afterwards. "We stopped them on their first possession (intercepted pass) and then we stopped them at the start of the second half."

Rex also praised the offense for doing such a good job, particularly James Hadnot and Ron Reeves. Between them they riddled the Bears. It was an impressive performance.

It's evident that the coaching staff has done an outstanding job. The offensive line is coming along well, opening holes and paving the way for strong drives. The defense bends, but doesn't break.

The Raiders, of course, haven't played SMU, Houston or Arkansas yet. Those teams may well tell just how far the young Raiders have come. The only game in which they have been beaten badly was the A&M outing, and there extenuating circumstances in that one.

Indeed, as Mike Rabun, UPI sports writer said, Rex may well be in line to be named coach of the year in the SWC. He has done a tremendous job and more and more people are beginning to recognize it and appreciate it.

Much of it has been done with young players, and that is encouraging for the future. But, regardless of the remainder of the season, our Levelland Stetson is off to Rex.

Frank Broyles started it last year and Lou Holtz is continuing it. "It" is taking pot shots at the SWC whenever possible. It's becoming more and more obvious that Arkansas thinks it is better than the league and chafes at its restrictions.

Well, maybe so, although you'd have a hard time convincing Houston football and basketball teams, or Texas' football squad. For that matter, there just might be a few others in the league not too impressed with the Razorbacks.

Did you know that it had been 13 years since Arkansas had won a conference grid title? Yep, 1965, although they have had two co-championships since then.

It's been, aside from last year, 20 years since Arkansas won a basketball title, and that was shared with SMU. Last year Arkansas finished first, but lost in the third round to Houston.

Maybe the Big 8 deserves Arkansas—and vice versa. At least they wouldn't get Texas officials. Nope, they'd get them from Kansas, Colorado, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska

"Odessa's been good to us," Rex Dockery said with a grin Saturday night.

He was referring to Alan Swann in particular. All he did Saturday was to intercept twice and recover a fumble. And he was the LAST player signed by Tech!

Swann's heroics were typical of what happened to the Bears Saturday. They lost 21 potential points on fumbles and interceptions inside Tech's 10-yard line.

Seems I remember another Odessa player or two who helped Tech, like Rodney Allison, to name just one.

Homecoming means more to Tech graduates than anyone else, but you'd have a hard time making one person agree 100 per cent. Me.

Tech athletes have always been something special to me, and a party after the game made the weekend. At this point I want to publicly thank Buddy Barron, Arlen Wesley, Jim Turner, Frank Graves, Marland Ribble and Jerrell Price.

Those former Raider greats tossed a party after the game and a score of former athletes and friends were there. It was great to see so many and to have a chance to talk with them.

I could fill several columns on just those mentioned, but there were many more, many that I hadn't seen in ages. It was a great evening and, even though Goose Wesley said they had to take four votes before I was invited, I enjoyed it.

If Baylor was the best 2-5 team in the nation, Tech must be the most superlative team in the nation at 4-3.

Hey! We've got a tremendous game this week, at Austin, of course, where Houston invades to play Texas. This could be the championship and the host spot in the Cotton Bowl.

Good sense, experience and tradition say to stick with the Longhorns. A hunch says, go with Houston. What the heck. Bet the hunch and take the Cougars in an upset.

Running rapidly over the rest, Arkansas bounces back at Baylor, SMU breezes past Rice and Tech, aw, lightning can't strike the Raiders in Fort Worth again, beats the Horned Frogs.

Ringing the Bell . . .

with Bob Tieuel

The Black Experience and Inflation: Carl Rowan, one of the nation's most quoted columnists recently said that if President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation program fails, as so many people think it will, the unflattering reflections will fall not so much on the merits of the program as on the character of the American people today. He believes that no such sense of national need exists today and no willingness to sacrifice can be found in modern America.

The national spirit alive today reminds me of the spirit that was expressed by one of my high school teachers decades ago when he said "the idea in the American people today is to get all you can, can what you get and then sit on the can".

Indeed a national voluntary program on inflation requires "a sense of national purpose, a spirit of patriotic sacrifice, on the part of individuals, corporate bosses, union leaders, stockholders ... The spirit of self-sacrifice is hardly an intense flame in a country where people earning $50,000 a year argue with paranoid passion that they are worse off than those earning $10,000."

Perhaps it is time we Americans deprecated ourselves as a society but looking at ourselves as we really are and as a minority has never been a popular practice amongst us. Or for that matter, any American. We talk about "eating high on the hog" but at our present rate of slaughter and mostly "waste", there won't be any hogs left one of these days. Free enterprise is a good ideal but if national inflation is to be curbed, we must start biting the bullet. We noted recently that a number of areas in West Texas had gasoline prices almost alike (in New Mexico too). And we thought "free enterprise" meant competition. The airlines may point the way yet, some leaders say. At least we hope so but it could be that the "big ones" will eat up the "little ones". Or could it be that free enterprise means "survival of the fit".

Dear Bellringer: By the time you read these lines, it will be voting time again. This year is perhaps one of the most important "off year" voting seasons that will be held for sometimes. If you do not vote, you do not count and remember elections have been won by just one vote. So we will see you at the polls. OK? Thanks. Bob T.

Recent great quotes: "I think that nothing will suffice short of mass organized, mobilized demand for increased quality and efficiency in education; a return to the basics, where parents would organize themselves not only to demand verbally accountability in the performances of principals and teachers in the schools, but to see that a day-to-day program of increased effectiveness of the educational process is actually in operation ... Parents must say: 'Look we are interested in one thing, and one thing only, our children, and the performance of our children in school' ". From Dr. Kenneth Clark, Black Social Psychologist.

Officers Elizabeth A. Howell and Thomas D. Bowers, members of the new permanent black recruiting team of the Dallas Police Department, want to see more blacks become interested in the criminal justice system. As a unique team, states Julia Scott Reed of the Dallas A.M. News, they are telling the news about the opportunities that are now available to young blacks in law enforcement. "Black women should be more interested in police work because of the challenges and benefits associated with it", states Miss Howell adding that she thinks that she has contributed greatly to the well being of the black community. Both Miss Howell and Bowers would like persons interested in becoming police officers to contact them at 2014 Main St. Room 201, Dallas, Texas. Starting salary for a Dallas police officer is $1,059 per month. There are 70 openings for blacks at the present.

Hats off to CBS Records and other record labels that came up with a $600,000 jitty to launch the Black Music Association, organized to preserve, protect and perpetuate Black Music on an international level. First TV special on outstanding members of the industry will be aired this month, we hear.

Until later, Peace.

Foundation Gift Aids Pediatrics Department

Patient care and research programs in the Department of Pediatrics at Texas Tech University School of Medicine (TTUSM) have an added dimension through the gift of a high pressure liquid chromatograph.

The chromatograph, an instrument which uses wavelengths of light to analyze chemical compounds, was presented to the department by the West Texas Children's Foundation.

"The high pressure liquid chromatograph is a valuable and extremely versatile instrument," said Mary Ann South, M.D., chairperson of pediatrics. "It is a great asset to the patient care and research efforts of the department."

The chromatograph initially will be used to monitor theophylline levels in asthma patients, according to South.

"Theophylline is a powerful drug used to relieve and control asthma symptoms," she said. "The drug must be administered in carefully controlled doses tailored to the response of the individual patient. Use of the chromatograph will help to determine the correct amount of the drug needed to achieve the desired effects without creating undesired side effects."

The instrument offers additional applications for research, according to Lyle Heim, Ph.D., pediatric research laboratory director. It can readily be adjusted to permit analysis of a variety of drugs, chemicals and biologic substances.

The West Texas Children's Foundation is a non-profit corporation created in 1975 to support charitable, educational and medical advances for the benefit of children. Its efforts include the support of scientific institutes, research and related undertakings in the medical field.

The foundation is supported through donations from individuals, memorial gifts and other contributions.

Mary Ann South, M.D., and Robert Moore, M.D., check a printout produced by a new high pressure liquid chromatograph presented by the West Texas Children's Foundation to the Texas Tech University School of Medicine Department of Pediatrics. The instrument, on the right, measures blood levels of drugs and other chemicals used in patient treatment. South is chairperson of pediatrics. Moore, a past president of the West Texas Children's Foundation, is a clinical professor in the department. (TTUSM Photo)

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE AN EXPERT TO MAKE THIS HOLIDAY COOKIE HOUSE

You don't have to be a craftsman to build this cookie house. Since the base is a cardboard box, it's much simpler to make than most cookie houses and won't put a big dent in your holiday budget.

You don't even have to make the cookie dough, because this uses refrigerated slice and bake sugar cookies. Two rolls of refrigerated cookie dough will make enough cookies to cover the whole house. Walls and roof are covered with your own butter cream frosting or frosting mix.

The cookies should be completely cooled before you work with them, so you can make them a day ahead. But if you'd rather complete the house in one half-day session, bake the cookies first. Construct the cardboard base while they are cooling, then decorate the cookies and "build" your house.

Cookie houses can be kept from one year to the next, with just a little patching necessary the second year.

COOKIE HOUSE

- Materials Needed:
- 2 rolls Pillsbury Refrigerated Sugar Slice 'n Bake Cookies
 - Red tinted sugar
 - 3 - 15.4 oz. packages vanilla frosting mix or 6 to 8 cups homemade butter cream frosting
 - Pressurized cake and cookie decorators (red and green) or pastry tube and tips and tinted frosting

Cardboard box with top flaps (9" x 12" x 9")
Heavy cardboard for roof (14" x 15")
Masking tape

First Bake The Cookies:

1. For Roof Shingles: Slice one roll of the cookie dough into 50 slices (less than 1/4-inch thick); sprinkle each with red sugar. Bake at 350° for 8 to 10 minutes until light golden brown around edges. (Do not overbake.) Cool on rack.

2. For Wall Bricks: Slice 28 1/4-inch slices from second roll of cookie dough. (Refrigerate rest of dough.) Cut each slice in half. Bake as for Roof Shingles.

3. For Front of House Decorations: Slice remaining cookie dough into

1/4-inch slices.

Santa — Use two slices. Cut narrow strip from two sides of one slice, forming a triangle. Place triangle over one edge of whole slice for Santa's hat. Use two narrow strips for moustache. Add chocolate chip eyes and candy mouth. Bake and cool on rack. Frost hat and moustache with vanilla frosting, using a decorator tip, if desired. Sprinkle hat with red sugar.

Angel — Use one and a quarter slice. Cut narrow strip from two sides of full slice to form triangular body. Place cut-off strips at sides for wings. Roll 1/4 slice into ball for head. Place at top of triangle and add candy eyes. Bake and cool on rack. Outline body and wings with decorator writing tip.

To Make the House

Cut the two longer flaps from box (reserve one for the chimney and the other for reinforcing). Shape shorter flaps into triangles, cutting from top center of flap to corners of box, to form peak at front and back of house. Reinforce triangles on the inside by taping cardboard over the flap fold. Fold 14" x 15" piece of cardboard in half to form roof. Tape securely to house. From reserved flap, form and tape chimney, cutting bottom at same angle as roof. Tape to roof.

To Decorate

1. Prepare frosting. (Keep it covered as you work.) Spread frosting over sides of chimney. With red decorator, pipe on lines of frosting, using small writing tip, to resemble bricks. Spoon frosting around top of chimney to resemble snow.

2. Spread thick layer of frosting over sides and back of house. Press cookie "bricks" securely into frosting.

3. Spread frosting over roof. Starting at the bottom, arrange a row of red sugared cookie "shingles." Overlap remaining shingles in rows to cover roof. (Carefully press cookies into frosting to secure.)

4. Spread frosting over front of house. With leaf tip and green decorator, make door and shrubs. With small writing tip make window. Arrange decorated cookies on front. Press into frosting to secure.

5. Spoon remaining frosting on peak and around edge of roof to resemble snow.

A number of people to whom a good night's sleep is only a dream may be pleased to know that science seems to have found a pleasant, nonaddictive sleep inducer: bananas and milk. According to Dr. Ernest Hartmann of Tufts University's School of Medicine, a nice big bowlful of bananas in milk at bedtime may do as much for you as a sleeping pill. Both foods, he explains, contain a substance known as L-tryptophane. This appears to work by increasing the amount of serotonin produced in the brain. The serotonin, in turn, promotes the transmission of nerve impulses among certain cells in the brain, including the ones that trigger sleep. This food for thought may not be the answer for everyone, but for some, it's likely to be something to sleep on.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

The column this week is all devoted to one motion picture. With a few added bits of information at the conclusion to round out the report.

The movie? Well, you've been hearing about it both in the printed pages and on the television tube. It's called "Midnight Express" and it is rolling under fast steam at the South Plains Mall Cinemas I-IV.

Now, that title. Well, in Turkish jail parlance, "Midnight Express" is the terminology used to indicate an escape from what seems to be an inescapable prison. You catch the "Midnight Express" and you go free. However, the "train" does not run often and more often than not it never reaches its desired destination.

"Midnight Express," an Alan Parker directed masterpiece, is the true story of a man, now a writer, named Billy Hayes.

Billy was one of those faded blue jeans, T-shirted, cocky youngsters that in the early 1970's were seen all over Europe, clustered around the Spanish Steps in Rome, haunting the squares in a dozen European capitals, money enough to burn, girls to love, life to live. Hayes, fresh and somewhat incredibly naive, found himself in Istanbul, Turkey. He had a girl, too, American like himself. But, Billy tripped himself up. Leaving the country, he taped a half dozen or so bricks of hashish to his body and tried to smuggle the dope out. At that time, the United States and Turkey had no relations to speak of, diplomatically, and smuggling was a serious error. His girl got on the plane; Billy almost made it. But a Turkish shakedown did the trick at the loading stairs of the homeward bound plane.

Billy was clearly in the hands of Turkish-speaking, hard lawmen and his destiny did not take long to unravel. He was slapped around, stripped and humiliated and ultimately landed in prison under the most indescribable conditions. Brutality, sexual abuse, violence in every form was the rule of the day. He came up before a sympathetic judge who gave him three years time to serve. As he fended for himself as best he could in these appalling conditions, he was visited by his shocked and helpless father, a State Department (U.S.) official whose hands were literally tied and he resolved to survive as best he could for the duration of his sentence. If he could only get to Greece, across the border, he would be free.

Billy joined with two other men to catch the "Midnight Express." It involved an escape through underground catacombs, long in disuse. The effort failed.

With only 50 some odd days left to serve, Billy found his case going into review by a higher court in Ankara, the capitol, and to make an example, they assessed him 30 years instead of the three. Fighting, a constant torture punishment routine, spearheaded by the chief guard of the prison (like Erich von Stroheim, "the man you love to hate") a battle of wits and the animal instinct to survive at all odds, Billy ends up in the Section reserved for the criminally insane. Beaten, battered and hopeless, he is visited by his girl (through glass panes) who provides him with a hopeful key, a ticket, if applied wisely, for that elusive ride on the "Midnight Express."

How this all works out remains in the viewing of the film. Suffice to say, it does work out, for this Alan Parker film is based almost word for word from the book that Billy Hayes, with William Hoffer, wrote of this ordeal, also called "Midnight Express."

This film is rated R, and it is crammed with violence and there is very little humor throughout, believe me. The language is explicit and as shocking as the scenes pictured. It is the rare kind of two-hour movie that one comes across that accepts the patron calmly and at the conclusion spins that patron out of the theater with guts wrenched, and that total drained feeling of exhausted participation. It is superb in every department, this film, in the camera work, the direction, the playing, the music score, the settings. (The prison scenes were filmed in Malta, the British Mediterranean island.)

The casting is something else. I don't think there is a flawed casting in the entire heavily numbered personnel. It is, of course, dominated by the central character, the hapless Billy Hayes. He is played (and how beautifully so) by the appealing unknown Brad Davis and he is right up there in the contenders' corner for consideration for the upcoming Oscar Derby this coming spring. He is superb and he is a winning, pathetic young man whose identity with the audience is immediate and explosive.

The supporting players are nameless without a cast list and unknown to American audiences by name anyway. But, suffice to say, they are terrific and leave lasting if uncomfortable impressions in the main.

I openly, strongly, recommend "Midnight Express." My only reservations are the violence and the language. But each is right and proper in its usage to tell this horrifying yet rewarding tale. You see it at your own risk, but I guarantee you will NOT forget this one. It carries the hallmark of motion picture excellence.

Two films worth discarding are Robert Altman's cardboard cast in "A Wedding," a too long waste of time and lack of depth or wit (at the South Plains Mall, too) and "Where Time Began" a prehistoric fantasy in for a brief engagement at the Cinema West. Forget 'em. You will, anyway, if you see them.

Still to be seen are "The Big Fix" and "Blood Brothers" at the Showplace 6 and "The Boys from Brazil," at the Fox Fourplex, if they'll hang onto it for another week or so 'til I get there.

Busy "live" week. The Community Concerts David Bar-Illan recital on Monday, a conflict in opening nights for Lubbock Theatre Centre's "The Odd Couple" and the comedy "Ladies of the Alamo" at the University Theatre at Texas Tech, both raising the first curtain on Friday at 8:15 p.m. and in the near future the second of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra subscription series. Notes on all these in the next installment.

VA News

The Veterans Administration is making a special effort to acquaint a quarter of a million surviving spouses of veterans as to their possible eligibility for an additional monthly benefit payment just authorized by Congress.

Waco VA Regional Office Director Jack Coker said the new added payment of $45 a month will go to Texas widows or widowers now on VA Dependency and Indemnity Compensation rolls who are so disabled as to be confined to their homes or immediate premises, yet not so ill as to require nursing home care or the aid and attendance of another person.

Coker said VA's problem is that, although the agency knows the identity of those receiving DIC and aid and attendance payments, it has no way of knowing how many of the DIC recipients are sufficiently disabled to be eligible for the new benefit.

"Prior to passage of this new benefit, these individuals were not covered for a confining disability that did not require nursing home care or aid and attendance, so they have never applied," he said.

To alert potential beneficiaries, Coker said his agency has enclosed a notice of the new benefits category with its November DIC checks.

The VA Official also said he's asking national veterans organizations to assist the agency in locating widows and widowers of veterans who may be eligible for the housebound benefit.

And he urged any surviving spouses of veterans who have further questions concerning eligibility to contact the nearest VA office, veterans county service office, or a member of one of the veterans organizations in their community.

Diabetes Conference Scheduled Here

Education and treatment of the diabetic is the subject of a conference to be held Nov. 17, in Lubbock.

Diabetics suffer from the deficiency of insulin, a hormone essential to processing glucose in the body. There is no cure for diabetes, but the disease may be controlled through diet, exercise and insulin injections.

The conference, "Diabetes Mellitus: The Team Approach," is sponsored by the Texas Tech University School of Medicine departments of pediatrics and continuing medical education and the American Diabetes Association, Lubbock Chapter and North Texas Affiliate.

The meeting will explore the roles of nurses, dieticians and counselors working with physicians in a team management approach to treatment and control of diabetes. The team plays a key role in education of the diabetic in the areas of diet planning, insulin and sugar level monitoring, exercise and watching for complications brought on by the disease.

"The diabetic must follow a somewhat strict regimen to keep his blood sugar levels within normal limits," said Surendra K. Varma, M.D., associate professor of pediatrics and director, Pediatric Endocrine Division. This can be achieved by proper diet, physical activity and insulin injections.

"You or I could sleep late and skip breakfast," Varma said, "but the diabetic cannot. Diabetics must eat at the same time every day as their insulin dosage is planned according to their dietary intake. If they skip a meal, then their blood glucose may drop low and they may have low sugar or insulin reaction."

The need for patient education is especially apparent in adolescents who are resistant to leading tightly scheduled lives, according to Varma. Teenage diabetics do not want to face the fact that they are different from non-diabetic teenagers and that they will be diabetics for the rest of their lives. Managing diabetic teenagers is considerably different from managing adults.

The conference will explore management approaches for both adults and teenagers.

Invited speakers from the University of Kansas School of Medicine at Wichita include:

Richard A. Guthrie, M.D., professor and chairperson, Dept. of Pediatrics, on management of the diabetic child and an overview of new concepts of the disease.

Robert W. Barnett, M.A., departmental coordinator — Outreach, Dept. of Pediatrics, on counseling the child with diabetes;

Judith A. Friesen, R.D., on nutritional management;

Diana W. Guthrie, R.N., M.S.P.H., F.A.A.N., C., Nurse Clinician Certified, on management of the adult diabetic and the team approach to educating the diabetic.

The conference will be at the SouthPark Inn in Lubbock. Attending physicians may receive six hours credit in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association. Application has been made for six elective hours credit from the American Academy of Family Physicians and for six CEARP points from the Texas Nurses Association. For further information, contact the TTUSM Office of Continuing Medical Education at (806) 743-2929.

Reservations For 'The Odd Couple' Now Being Accepted

Doug Cummins, manager of the Lubbock Theatre Centre announces that reservations are now being accepted for the engagement of Neil Simon's celebrated hit, "The Odd Couple," that will be presented November 10-11 and 17-18. This is the play that scored an overwhelming triumph when it was first presented in New York in the spring of 1965 and roused so much laughter that audiences took part in a "group hysteria" every evening for over two and a half years.

David Yirak and Jay C. Brown are co-starred in this comedy by the acclaimed author of such other hits as "The Goodbye Girl", "Plaza Suite", and "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers".

They will be playing the two friends, Oscar Madison and Felix Unger, who comprise the "odd couple." One is divorced and the other newly separated from his wife, and they have decided to share the divorced man's over-large apartment. They later discover that the traits that caused their marriages to blow-up also make their living together disastrous.

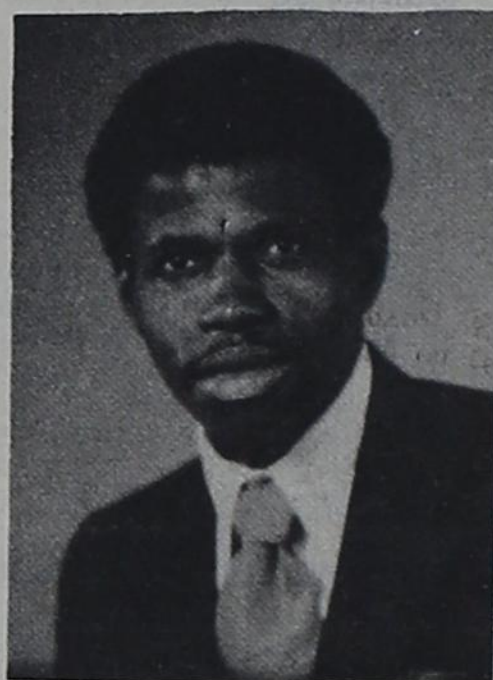

In the cast with them will be Ron Chancey, Les Adams, William Nowell, and William L. Kenton as poker playing cronies of the two grass bachelors. On the distaff side will be Heather Hollingsworth and Jane Ann Cummings, portraying not the former wives of the bachelors, but two pretty, featherbrained neighbors who complicate life in the bachelor apartment.

Pam Brown is directing this hearty entertainment and Jerry Martin has designed its setting of an unkempt bachelor apartment that resembles nothing so much as a home recently visited by a cyclone.

The reason men in public office play politics is that men and women, who vote, expect them to play politics.

A Message to Newspaper Carriers

Steve Garvey

"You're a hit in any league!"

All-Star Steve Garvey knows something about success. That's why he says newspaper carriers have what it takes.

"These young people already have their eye on the ball. They're dedicated, helpful, responsive and willing to work. That's a hit in any league!"

Newspaper carriers have the qualities to get ahead, which explains why so many are setting aside part of their earnings as a fund for their future.

Like Steve Garvey, U.S. Savings Bonds have the dependability carriers understand. They can count on Bonds.

So the Treasury Department is proud to join Steve Garvey in his tribute to newspaper carriers. We hope you'll join us in recognizing these special young people on this Newspaper Carrier Day, 1978.
