Pastors Agree Improvement Needed in Churches Today

by Lerisa R. Payne

Rev. James E. Moore

Pastor, St. John Baptist Church

Rev. James E. Moore is the pastor of St. John Baptist Church. He has been the pastor of St. John for five years. Rev. Moore has been a servant or Christian all his life. He was reared in a Christian home. During his younger years he talked with the Lord and the Lord talked back to him. There was always a little voice within him telling him what was right and wrong. He was not the kind of young man who attended "honky tonks", night clubs. He was always settled in his ways.

Rev. Moore, a native of Tyler, Texas, is happy to be blessed with the luck he has had in raising his family and the success he has had as a minister. He has been pastoring for 23 years in New Home, Texas, Olton, Texas and the First Faith Baptist Church. Rev. Moore has a characteristic of the former late President Abraham Lincoln. He would walk 8 miles round trip to and from school.

According to Rev. Moore, "Ministers are special because they are called by God. They are to serve as an example. They are wise and must be trustworthy."

Rev. Moore says, "There are some ministers who are wolves in sheep clothing who are deceiving others. The minister is there to instruct the members of the church the way of the Lord."

Rev. Moore would not change places with any other man. He enjoys being in the ministry because it is a pleasure to serve the Lord and it is a great joy to be called upon. God does not trust his key with anyone.

Rev. Moore concludes by saying, "There is plenty of room for improvement in the ministry and we need to come together as one. There are a lot of preachers but there are few pastors."

Rev. Benjamin F. Roberts

Pastor, Mt. Olive Baptist Church

Rev. Benjamin F. Roberts is a young pastor who has an aggressive and progressive spirit. He feels that one has to be flexible in the Twentieth Century because there are changes all around us. Rev. Roberts is a man of flexibility who is willing to bend in all directions for new ideas.

Rev. Roberts is a native of Shreveport, Louisiana. In Shreveport he attended Walnut High School where he received a scholarship in track and field to attend Paul Quinn University in Waco, Texas. Upon moving to Los Angeles, California, Roberts attended their City College. During Rev. Roberts presence at City College, he was active in sports, rights for blacks, and human rights. In college he was a part of the Black Student Union and he was active in Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King's march and other civic and racial movements. Rev. Roberts was also drafted in the U.S. Army as a supplyman before he was honorably discharged.

Rev. Roberts was interested in becoming a professional entertainer. During his pursuit in an entertaining career he met quite a few big stars and he even cut a record. The entertaining world was not for him because it was a cruel and self-centered life.

In 1976, Rev. Roberts was called into the ministry. He took his theology studies at the Melodyland School of Theology in Anaheim, California and the Christian Institute. He received training in the ministry under the leadership of Bishop W.D. Haynes, Rev. S.R. Roberts, and Rev. A.L. Patrick. They were a big influence for Rev. Roberts.

Rev. Roberts has not been in the ministry very long but he enjoys being at the New Mt. Olive Baptist Church. Roberts says, "The task of being a pastor is not easy but telling the word of the Lord can be very enjoyable and rewarding."

Pastor Roberts feels that all ministers should become involved in all activities; social, civic, political, economical as well as spiritual. Rev. Roberts is a member of various organizations. He is a board member of Family Services; the 2nd Vice-President of the Lubbock NAACP; and a professional staff employee of the South Plains Council for the Boy Scouts of America. He enjoys his work with the Boy Scouts because it involves young boys and men learning to work together.

Although there has been a lot of good leaders in black community, there is still a need for changes and progress. Most of the leaders are retired or semi-retired but it is up to the non-retired to still be active. There are many leaders world wide who are not working together as one. What is the reason why? It is the loss of the sense of identity and the purpose of the church. There are some ministers who are worrying about the future but the future will become the present and the present shall become the past. It is time to start all over again.

Rev. Roberts says, "Young ministers should get involved and not be afraid to speak out against what they feel is wrong." The old may be wise but the young with the new ideas are the wisest.

Portillo's Genteel Slap Planned for Carter Visit
Copyright, 1979, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—The United States is dangerously dependent upon vulnerable, faraway oil fields. This has been dramatized by recent events in Iran.

Only a few weeks ago, the shah was considered a solid ally and Iran a dependable source of oil. Now Iranian oil has been shut off, and no one knows whether the United States will ever be able to draw upon it again.

The same Moslem extremists who shut down the Iranian oil fields are also active in Saudi Arabia. This is our chief oil supplier. If Saudi oil should also be cut off, the United States would be forced to close factories and ration gasoline severely.

Yet oil will soon be available in abundance just across the border in Mexico. These fabulous new fields could supply all the oil the United States will need in the 1980s.

The Mexicans are willing to boost their oil exports to the United States up to 4 million barrels a day by 1985. But they want something in return. They need a market for the natural gas that will be unleashed with the oil.

Mexican officials reached an agreement with a U.S. consortium to pipe 2 billion cubic feet of surplus Mexican gas across the border every day in the near future. Otherwise, most of the gas will have to be burned off.

Yet the Carter administration killed the deal because the Mexican gas is more expensive than Canadian gas. This has infuriated Mexico's president, Jose Lopez Portillo.

Carter will fly to Mexico, meanwhile, on Feb. 14, for a state visit. Sources close to Portillo told us that he will give Carter a "courteous" reception. People will be bused in to wave flags and cheer the American president, but the hoopla will be muted.

But two weeks later, Portillo will stage a tremendous welcome for France's President Giscard d'Estaing. The contrast will be intended, our sources say, as a message to Carter.

Kennedy-Carter Rift: President Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., disagree strongly over how the taxpayers' money should be spent. The latest example is in the area of law enforcement.

The president wants to trim $110 million from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. This is the agency that has channeled millions to help local police forces fight crime.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—In the firstever "State of the Judiciary" address, Chief Justice Joe R. Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court pointed to the paucity of Texas courts and called on the Legislature to grease the skids of the judicial system.

Greenhill reminded legislators that only one-third of one percent of the state's total budget is spent on the judicial system. He predicted that by 1980 the nine-judge Court of Criminal Appeals would face a caseload of 6,000 with each case taking from a year to 18 months to rule on.

To kick the administration of justice into high gear, Greenhill proposed intermediate courts to handle cases now brought directly to the Court of Criminal Appeals. And, to prevent a judicial traffic-jam, the chief justice asked that judges be allowed to speed up the jury selection in criminal matters as they do now in civil cases.

Greenhill's suggestion that civil appellate courts with light dockets be allowed to handle criminal cases did not sit well with Court of Criminal Appeals Presiding Judge John Onion—Greenhill's counterpart on Texas' top criminal court.

Onion agreed the criminal appeals system faced an enormous strain but thought intermediate courts would offer the most effective relief.

Interestingly enough, the first bill signed by Gov. Bill Clements since taking office Jan. 16 approved expansion of civil appeals courts in Dallas and Houston.

Primary Pushed

The governor answered: "I'm not much of a referee," when asked about skirmishes that might occur over a new presidential primary for Texas. "I'm more of a participant," Clements explained.

Sticking to his word, the governor said he would veto legislation moving the date of the election primary from May to late summer or early fall (reducing campaign time), but Clements said he was pleased to hear Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker of the House Bill Clayton were moving toward passage of a primary bill. "The people of Texas want a presidential primary. That's what's important," said Clements.

Sen. Kennedy contends that the savings would cause a corresponding rise in crime. This would cost the public far more, he argues, than the $110 million that Carter would save.

It is true that the LEAA has misspent millions of dollars. But the money that Carter now wants to cut would come out of useful programs.

For example, police across the country reported that more than $4 billion worth of property was stolen in 1977. Even this staggering figure is only a fraction of the true total. Theft probably costs the American people closer to $20 billion a year.

Of course, the loss is simply added to the price of the goods we buy and the insurance premiums we pay. So stealing is a major cost of inflation.

The stolen goods are usually sold to a middleman, known in criminal circles as a "fence." In recent years, the contributions from the LEAA have helped local police to nail fences. Several police units have been able to stage "sting" operations.

Posing as fences, undercover agents have recovered more than $140 million worth of stolen goods. Over 7,000 indictments have resulted from "sting" operations and some 90 percent of those indicted have been sent to the slammer.

Thus, it appears, not all budget cuts are really savings.

Under the Dome: Last year, it cost the taxpayers $182,000 to publish a book called "Art in the United States Capitol." Although ordinary citizens paid for the book's publication, 90 percent of the copies were distributed to congressmen and senators to give away as they pleased. Most of them were handed out to constituents.

Football fever on Capitol Hill didn't stop with the Dallas-Pittsburgh Superbowl. Rep. Doug Walgren, D-Pa., challenged Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Tex., to a punt, pass and kick contest in front of the Capitol's botanical gardens. Walgren won and Mattox's defeat cost him not only his pride but a new Stetson hat and a dinner on the town.

Watch on Waste: In Europe, Army tank drivers are complaining that their windshield wipers don't work. It seems that a 15-cent part in the wiper mechanism repeatedly burns out. Unfortunately, it is an extremely technical and time-consuming task to take the mechanism apart and replace the 15-cent part. So tank drivers simply replace the windshield wipers with new ones—at a cost of $150 each.

Headlines and Footnotes: The Government Printing Office is using private mail delivery companies instead of the Postal Service. Officials found that in some cases, it was cheaper and faster to send mail by private carrier ... Prison inmates who become disabled or reach retirement age are entitled to Social Security benefits, just like everyone else. It also costs the taxpayers about $12,000 a year to keep the typical convict in the can.

The first rattling of swords over the state budget came this week when Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene insisted the governor quit demanding a $1 billion slash in taxes without specifying what state services he would eliminate. Clements said his budget (to come soon) would be less than the spending draft of the Legislative Budget Board. The LBB document would increase state spending by 22 percent. Clements called that amount "excessive."

In other activities, the governor created the Mayors Advisory Committee by executive order and said again he is opposed to state funding of a proposed superport off the coast of Texas. Clements does support the use of state money to get the project started.

Finally, Clements wanted no "misunderstandings" about his backing of the use of wiretaps in narcotics cases. "I'm for it," he said, with safeguards. "The people of Texas want a strenuous effort with respect to this drug problem."

Speir Speaks

The Texas Department of Public Safety could use 400 more troopers and the $11 million needed to pay them. That's what DPS Director Wilson E. Speir told a legislative committee.

But, if he had his druthers, Speir said he would boost the salaries of those troopers now on the job. Speir asked for a 13.6 percent pay increase in each of the next two years for troopers already on the payroll. The LBB is recommending a 5.1 percent hike for troopers and all other state employees.

Texas prison guards would gladly trade checks with the troopers. With a 64 percent turnover rate in guards and prison populations growing, W.J. Estelle Jr. appeared before the Senate Finance Committee asking that prison guards be paid what troopers are getting. The Texas prison director said troopers make $175 more a month than guards. A sergeant with two children, Estelle pointed out, is eligible for food stamps.

Senator Eyes Special Ed

Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland has announced he will co-sponsor legislation to open new avenues for educating the more than 300,000 handicapped children in school districts throughout Texas.

Snelson, chairman of the Joint Interim Committee on Special Education, said Rep. Bill Blanton of Carrollton will carry the bill in the House.

"The committee has intensely studied the problem of special education during the past one and a half years," Snelson said.

Legislation to be introduced later in the session will incorporate many of the 39 recommendations contained in the committee's final report.

Short Snorts

In his first opinion since taking office Jan. 1, Attorney General Mark White said the state statute making it illegal to use abusive or vulgar language in public is constitutional.

House Speaker Clayton survived stalling charges brought by four representatives from Dallas, Houston and El Paso, who said the Springlake-native was delaying the start of important legislative business in order to get his pet projects passed in the final hectic days of the session. Clayton answered the charges by calling them "absolutely asinine." Four Clayton supporters accused the Speaker's critics of "trying to discredit the entire Texas House of Representatives." And the beat goes on, said one capitol observer.

Rep. Froy Salinas Introduces Bills

Rep. Froy Salinas announced today that he has introduced two new bills, HB 950 and HJR 80. HB 950 will increase the severance tax on oil produced in this state. The majority of the revenues generated by this legislation would be allocated to financing public schools.

Mr. Salinas stated "if passed, this bill would allow the reduction of all school property taxes 50% state wide." He further stated "a chief concern often expressed to him is that of high ad valorem taxes. This legislation is an attempt to address that concern shared by many Texans."

The bill is patterned after similar legislation passed in Louisiana which reduced that state's school property taxes by a considerable amount, and is in keeping with some recent statements made by Governor Clements to the press concerning tax relief for Texans.

He also stated that "the best part of the legislation is that two-thirds of the products derived from Texas oil are exported which means most of the revenue would be coming from outside of Texas."

HJR 80 is a Constitutional Amendment which would allow the Legislature to meet each year, 90 days in even numbered years to consider budget related matters only, and the same 140 days in odd numbered years. Representative Salinas stated he felt that state spending could be better controlled if the budget were reviewed each year. Texas is one of nine states which does not have annual sessions.

Students Prepare For Art Exhibit

National Youth Art Month has students in the elementary schools preparing for an art exhibit at the Texas Tech Museum during the month of March.

Each student whose work is exhibited will be given a Certificate of Participation. The Women's Council for Junior Programs is picking up the tab for matting and hanging all work. The group also will host an opening reception on March 3 for principals, teachers, and parents of participating students. Approximately 250 pictures will be hung.

Information about the exhibit can be obtained from school principals or from LISD Art Consultant Zonalynn Stevens' office, 747-2641.

Kelly's Heroes

by Joe Kelly

Is lightning going to strike again? Will Texas Tech win its last three games and possibly take first place in the Southwest Conference? Will Texas, Arkansas and A&M all stumble in their closing games?

As great as it would be, don't count on it. All the Raiders can do is to beat, successively, Houston Thursday night, Texas Saturday afternoon and Arkansas next week. Then the Raiders would have to sit and pray for some help from others.

Here is the remaining opposition for the leaders:

Texas—played A&M Monday night; host to Baylor tonight; host to Tech Saturday; at SMU Tuesday night.

A&M—played Texas Monday; at TCU Wednesday; host to Rice Tuesday.

Arkansas—played Baylor Monday night; host to SMU tonight; host to Houston Saturday; at Tech next Tuesday.

Anything is possible, especially in the race this year. By a quick look, A&M would seem to have the best of it. Two of its last three games are against the weakest teams in the conference.

But, it still comes down to the Raiders. They could win or tie for the title by taking the final three games. Two of them are on the road, a tough place for any team, but essential for any team if it wants to be the champion.

And, once again, that loss to Rice in Lubbock looms as the biggest game on the schedule.

The Aggie game Saturday night was a big one, but no bigger than the Rice game here earlier. You can't cry over spilled milk, but had the Raiders won that one, they could be tied with Arkansas for second.

The Raiders had their troubles beating the Aggies. They jumped into a big lead, as they have done so many times this season, and then had to hang on to win. The Aggies never could take the lead, but they cut the margin to one point twice, were within two points several times and kept the game in doubt up to the end.

I don't know what it is about Tech this year that it can't stand prosperity, but it apparently lacks the killer instinct. The Raiders had SMU down by 18 and fell behind and A&M almost pulled the same feat.

The Raiders had far too many turnovers against the Aggies, winding up with 17, five more than A&M. It almost was too much. Shelby Metcalf observed after the game that "all we wanted was 3 or 4 turnovers." A&M got them with room to spare, but Kent Williams saved the day at the free throw line.

It was an amazing victory, really. Tech actually took 21 shots less than A&M, but hit on only two less. That doesn't happen often. The Raiders won it by canning 23 of 29 free throws, although the Aggies had a better mark at the charity stripe, hitting 15 of 17.

Once again, reserves were the difference. Tech got 25 points out of its bench, while the Aggie reserves managed 16. Of that number, 14 came by Steve Sylestine, a former starter. Of course, Tech shot an imposing 51.2% from the field, while close guarding gave A&M only 37.5%.

Shelby didn't get the strong play from his guards that he needed, either. Dave Goff and Tyron Ladson managed only three of 13 from the field, weren't able to get the ball into the big men enough.

Also, Rudy Woods didn't have a strong game. You have to credit a tight Tech defense, which threw a blanket over him. He wound up with six points—and he got four of them in the last half. But Rynn Wright was a tower of strength in more ways than one.

It was, by the way, one of the better officiated games in that the officials largely let the players play. They did call 44 fouls, but that isn't particularly high. The important thing is that the players could set the pace and pretty well knew what they could or could not do.

It was a physical game. It is any time you play A&M. That's their type of game. Wright was particularly physical under both baskets and it's a wonder that someone didn't get hurt.

The Chuck Fairbanks case is more muddled than ever and it begins to look as though neither Colorado nor New England would have his services next year. It's a real mess.

The best thing to come out of it is a stiffening on the part of colleges when it comes to coaches signing longterm agreements and then abandoning them, with no penalty, when something better comes along.

Contracts should be two way streets, binding on both parties. Maybe the Fairbanks case is going to change the entire picture.

The recent HEW meddling in intercollegiate athletics, demanding equality for women, is going to have an effect on all programs. There are precious few revenue producing sports now and sharing the wealth with nonproducing sports is a drain. Add women's athletics and it's almost a death knell.

One of the first to feel the brunt is West Texas State, although there are other circumstances entering into that situation. Still, in view of the cutback there, it could be a warning of impending doom. One man close to the Buffalo situation told me Saturday night that this was the beginning of the end.

If it is, it's a dirty rotten shame. Ah, Socialism is the cure for all our ills, isn't it?

Dean of Student Life Enjoys His Job

Dr. Moses Turner is an intellectual. He has accomplished many goals and has made a success. Dr. Turner is the Dean of Student Life at Texas Tech University. Before coming to Lubbock, he was the Assistant Dean of Student Life at Washington University.

He enjoys his job tremendously. His position as Dean of Student Life consists of various and many jobs. His job consists of advising students, being responsible for minority student programs, development for students, advising fraternities and sororities, verifying off-campus housing, and many others.

Dr. Turner is a native of Athens, Georgia. He had a very close family. He went to college on a partial scholarship. He has always wanted to pursue a career on the college level and of an executive capacity. He received his Bachelor degree at Albany State College. After receiving his Bachelor degree, Turner served in the service for three years in which he was the musical director of the 7th army in Europe.

Succeeding his service in the army, he taught in the public schools in the state of Washington. At Central Washington College, Turner received his Masters and went on to get his Doctorate in Education Administration at the University of Washington. He loved college and was enthused about college. He says, "Knowledge is like the more you get the more you want." Indeed, he received it all.

In reference to his duties at the Student Life office, Turner says, "There are many challenges that we are involved in and we (the staff) are constantly finding ways to meet the needs of the students."

Aside from his position as Dean of Student Life, Turner is a member of various local, state, and national organizations. Turner serves on the United Way Board, the Civic Center Board; is a member of the Alumni Alpha Phi Alpha; he directs the Lubbock

Civic Chorale; he is on the Texas Association of Student Personnel Administration, Southwest Association of Student Personnel Administration, and the National Association of Student Personnel Administration.

Dr. Turner is proud to serve as the Dean of Student Life at Tech. He states, "Tech is young and is growing. There are many challenges for students as well as the staff."

He also says, "We at Student Life try to make sure that the activities effect all students, and we try to make the adjustment to this institution well enough so that the students may be successful academically." Their job is more preventive than reactionary.

The Student Life at Texas Tech is concerned about students and people and so is Dr. Moses Turner.

Congressmen Pledge Support For OIC Youth Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bill Gray, (D-Pa.) new Congressman from Philadelphia, and George Mahon, (D-Tex.) retired chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, were honored by OIC at a tremendous outpouring of Congressional support for Rev. Leon Sullivan's proposed "Help Our Youth" campaign and a 1979 OIC Youth Job and Training Bill at the U.S. Senate Caucus Room last week.

The Emergency Executive Assembly of OIC of America became the launching pad for a nationwide drive to dramatize the desperate need for jobs and training for an estimated million unemployed youth at a two-day conference in Washington, D.C.

"CETA will not solve the problem and the 1978 Full Employment Law is almost 'too little and too late' to save a generation that might never make it into the labor market," he said.

Cities in the states with the largest unemployed youth population were targeted for "street corner" recruiting campaigns and mass rallies in churches by the Baptist minister from Philadelphia and founder of the OIC network of job training centers.

"We will not let our youth be sacrificed on the altar of anti-inflation policies and balanced budgets," Sullivan said.

Calling on delegates at an Emergency Executive Assembly of OIC leaders in the nation's Capitol to launch a city-by-city, state-by-state drive to begin the last week in March, he outlined a national plan to mobilize business and clergy support for the project.

"We need a National Youth Policy to take our young people off the street corners and put them on jobs and in job-training programs like the OIC as much as we need a new China policy and a National Defense Policy," he declared.

The Sullivan Plan calls for OIC leaders across America to hold rallies for youth employment using community churches to dramatize the need and mobilize the support of public and private sector leaders, athletes and entertainers. Teams will be assigned to carry out the plans to get more help for school dropouts, youth ex-offenders, and young people from welfare recipient families in all 150 OIC cities.

Three Ways to Stash Cash

If you're serious about cutting down on energy waste—and want to save money, too—here are three of the smartest ways to do it:

1. Start by insulating your home up to the top standard for your area. The new National Energy Act gives you a tax break. Also, the money you save on future energy bills will usually far exceed the cost of the job.

2. Next, tighten up your house. Install storm windows and doors and caulk around openings to seal off heat leaks. Weatherstrip under doors to the outside.

3. Finally, catch trouble before it begins. No matter how careful you are to get the best heating system for your home, it won't serve you well unless it's installed correctly and in good working order. Pre-season inspections could save you time and trouble later during the heating season.

Energy prices are on the rise, and your utility bills may well be going up, too. But money spent now to make your home energy efficient will pay off month by month, year after year—an investment with continued savings!

SECTION 2. THAT the rates set forth in Section One hereof to be charged by Pioneer Natural Gas Company for the sale of natural gas and natural gas service in the City of Lubbock, Texas, shall be adjusted in the following manner:

Each month Pioneer Natural Gas Company shall notify the City of the average cost of gas per Mcf at 13.6 psia for its West Texas Transmission System during the previous month. Said notice shall be filed with the City Secretary, with additional copies of such notice to be sent to such City officials as may be requested. The cost of gas shown in such notice shall be broken down into the four classifications hereinafter described. Unless the City notifies Pioneer Natural Gas Company within 10 days of receipt of said notice that it does not accept such notice of cost as being correct (and the City reserves complete discretion to accept or reject such notice of cost for any reason), the rates per Mcf to be charged by Pioneer Natural Gas Company for all bills rendered on or after the first day of the month following expiration of the said 10-day period shall be adjusted up or down to the nearest .01c by which the average monthly cost of gas to Pioneer Natural Gas Company for its West Texas Transmission System is more than or less than 141.41c per Mcf at 13.6 psia (152.33c per Mcf at 14.65 psia), subject to the following provisions:

For the purpose of determining the cost of gas and the cost of gas adjustments applicable above, the term "average cost of gas" is the total of the following amounts divided by the volume of gas: 1. Amounts paid for the volumes purchased at wellheads, at field lines, at gasoline plant outlets and at transmission lines under the provisions of the applicable contracts involved including recoupment or amortization of prepayments. It also includes volumes in excess of receipts under gas exchange agreements and storage gas withdrawals in excess of injections during the period at the applicable costs.

2. Interest charged at the prime rate in effect on the first day of each month or the actual rate, whichever is less, upon funds advanced for gas development or dedicated volumes based upon the outstanding portion of such advancements.

3. Amounts paid for delivery of gas into Pioneer's West Texas System in situations where the supplier cannot make delivery into Pioneer's lines thus reflecting the cost of gas at the initial point of delivery into Pioneer's West Texas System.

4. Amortization over a 5-year period of funds advanced for gas supply development which is nonproductive.

The portion of any adjustment increase authorized by this Section, which is attributable to items number 2 and number 4 described above, shall never exceed a combined total of 1-1/2 c per Mcf per month.

B.

By March 1 of each year Pioneer Natural Gas Company shall furnish the City with the detail of gas purchased for its West Texas Transmission System during the previous calendar year as filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas. The City may, as it deems desirable, examine the books and records of Pioneer Natural Gas Company and make audits to determine the accuracy of the cost of gas purchased by Pioneer Natural Gas Company for its West Texas Transmission System.

SECTION 3. THAT the rates and adjustments thereto prescribed herein are effective for gas delivered on or after the 15th day of February, 1979, and Pioneer Natural Gas Company shall file with the City, on or before said date: (1) a written acceptance of said rates and adjustments in lieu of those accompanying its August 10, 1978, State of Intent; and (2) schedules or tariffs setting forth such rates and adjustments.

SECTION 4. THAT if any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is, for any reason, held to be unconstitutional or invalid, such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The governing body of the City of Lubbock, Texas, hereby declares that it would have passed this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase hereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses, or phrases by declared unconstitutional or invalid.

SECTION 5. THAT the "cost of gas adjustment" authorized by this Ordinance shall in no wise be construed as an abrogation or waiver (by contract or otherwise) of the rate making powers and prerogatives of the City of Lubbock, Texas, granted by charter, statutes, or franchise provisions.

SECTION 6. THAT the City Rate Analyst review the method of allocation on the part of the total revenue deficit which is to be paid by the City of Lubbock to determine if such allocation is fair and equitable.

SECTION 7. THAT if the City Rate Analyst finds that the method of allocation in question is not fair and equitable, he is to file his funding with the City Council which will thereupon take appropriate action authorized by law which action may include a new rate hearing to consider an accounting and refund order.
