Black Ministers of Lubbock

by Lerisa R. Payne

Being a minister is not a cherished profession. There are joys of being a minister as well as anguish. The minister is a psychiatrist, counselor, a good buddy, he buries the dead, visits the sick, takes the most abuse, and he is constantly criticized. He carries a great burden on his shoulders. Even Noah had the same problem.

To some people he is somebody. To others he is no one. He is expected to do certain tasks and not to do others. He is as human as anyone else. He is made of flesh and blood, and because of this, he often finds himself not measuring up to the expectations of the world.

The preachers of today care about people very much. They are concerned about others well being. His primary concern is pleasing God.

According to Rev. R.C. Jones, the pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in New Home, Texas,

"Once a minister has pleased God, man should automatically be pleased." His obligation is to God. God has called upon him to teach His word.

The first step of entrance into the ministry is the calling. The calling is a strong feeling that remains on your mind and in your heart. It is indescribable. Every minister has a different interpretation of how he was called. To fully understand the meaning of the calling, one must experience it himself. God deals with every person individually.

Not everyone who receives the calling is anxious to become a minister. The majority of them try to run from it. They feel that they are not ready to become a minister. Once you have been called you shall always be called until you have accepted the truth. The truth that you were chosen by God to be one of his spokesmen.

When asked, "Are there some ministers who are not true to their calling?" Rev. Jones replied, "The first thing people must realize is that the minister should try not to submit himself to the temptations of the world. The people must also realize that the minister is one of the main targets of Satan." He goes on to say "As all people, we (ministers) are subject to become short of our expectations."

Some people are constantly rebelling against God and the minister. They are making derogatory remarks about the minister only as an excuse not to attend church. For we know that anytime you are looking for the bad in anything or any individual you will find it. Even if it is not there.

Rev. Jones says, "The joy of being a spokesman for Jesus Christ is much more rewarding than the joy of accepting His calling."

Whether black or white, Baptist or Catholic, ministers are human too. Give them the respect they deserve.

Are Blacks More Prone to Cancer?

Are blacks more likely to develop cancer than whites? What are the leading forms of cancer among the black population?

Scientists have been studying the answers to these questions and others to gain insight to why some groups of people are more prone to some cancers than others and in turn, how those cancers might be prevented.

Recent studies show that blacks are getting more cancers of the lung, prostate and cervix than ever before.

It is believed that the basic differences in cancer rates between black and white people are primarily due to environmental and social factors such as pollution, crowded cities and smoking cigarettes rather than to any natural characteristics of the races.

Because it is important to know the straight facts about cancer and its early warning signs, the National Cancer Institute has recently produced a new booklet, "What Black Americans Should Know About Cancer."

In addition to important information on early warning signs, the booklet contains a glossary of common cancer terminology and the answers to a number of commonly asked questions concerning cancer.

Other information taken from the booklet includes:

- Cancer, though rare in children, still causes more childhood deaths than any other disease. Although leukemia is the leading form of cancer in children, fewer black children get leukemia than other children.
- Lung cancer risks go up with the number of cigarettes smoked per day, lifetime number of cigarettes smoked, number of years smoking, age when smoking started, and how deep the smoker inhales.
- Cancer is not contagious in any form. No one can catch cancer from anyone else.
- Certain ways of preparing food may increase the risk to cancer and other diseases. The booklet contains helpful information on improving the diet.

To get free copies, call M.D. Anderson Hospital's Cancer Information Service in Houston at 792-3245. Outside Houston in Texas call toll-free at 1-800-392-2040.

Over 15,000 Texans have called this free service in its two-year existence to get information about cancer. Volunteer operators staff the phones weekdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The bill, HB 835, requires a bar to serve anyone with proper proof they are over 18 and are obviously not intoxicated. Salinas made his intentions known before the City Council last summer when discussing the passage of the public accommodations ordinance in Lubbock.

JACK ANDERSON WITH JOE SPEAR WEEKLY SPECIAL

Food Stamp Limit Forgot Inflation

Copyright, 1979, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—Four years ago, we investigated the food stamp program and discovered that close to three million ineligible Americans were collecting the stamps.

It took Congress two years to crack down, but they finally tightened the system so only the truly poor could get the stamps. But there's a catch. Congress also put a lid on the amount of money that could be spent on the program. The spending limit for 1981, for example, is $6 billion.

The members of Congress, however, didn't take into account the ravages of inflation. Their experts predicted a 21 percent increase in food prices between 1976 and 1981.

Now the same experts forecast that the food price increase won't be 21 percent but 46 percent. That's more than double their original prediction.

And who's going to pay for the bureaucrats' mistake? It will come out of the diets of the hungry. With rare exceptions, the president hasn't cut the tax benefits for the wealthy and he hasn't reduced government subsidies for the big corporations. He is cutting government spending by taking it from the people who can afford it least.

Not only will each food stamp recipient lose hundreds of dollars in purchasing power, but the White House has also reduced the amount of housing costs which can be deducted by those applying for food stamps. This will save money, it's true, for the president's budget. But it will also tighten the cost of living for thousands of elderly people who don't have enough money now to make ends meet.

For instance, a study conducted in Westchester County, N.Y., concluded that 31,000 of 46,000 food stamp recipients will have their benefits cut or eliminated.

Meanwhile, some elderly citizens in Kansas became worried about cutbacks in meal programs for senior citizens. So, to get their point across to their elected lawmakers, the senior citizens are flooding the Kansas congressional delegation with hundreds of paper plates sent through the mail.

Who Shot Flynt? Just a year ago, a bizarre assassination attempt occurred near Jimmy Carter's home town. Pornography publisher Larry Flynt was gunned down on the streets of Lawrenceville, Ga.

The gunman left Flynt on the street, critically wounded and escaped unidentified. The publisher has had repeated operations, but he's still paralyzed below the hips.

Lawmen have been unable to find Flynt's assailant. They even checked out the president's beer-drinking brother, Billy. A few weeks before the shooting, Billy said he had a man out looking for Flynt because he didn't like some remarks Flynt had made about his mother and sister. Billy said, "I've got a man looking out for him, and the first thing he's going to do is beat the hell out of him."

The police decided that the only shooting Billy had anything to do with was shooting off his mouth. Meanwhile, we've seen a confidential police file on the case which suggests that Flynt was shot by members of organized crime.

Our sources say the mob was jealous of Flynt's booming profits from selling pornographic video cassettes. It is a highly profitable business, which has attracted organized crime. The secret report suggests that Flynt was trying to corner a lion's share of the cassettes market just before he was shot.

Another possibility is that the Ku Klux Klan was behind the shooting. According to our sources, someone got up at a Klan meeting about one week before the Flynt shooting and said the publisher should be shot.

Flynt told us that he doesn't think the mob tried to kill him. He said that he checked his own underworld sources who assured him that they had nothing to do with his shooting.

Terminal Solution: The mayor of Runge, Texas, has found a way to defeat the bureaucracy of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Faced with problems that the government ignored, the mayor simply abolished the town's housing authority and turned the whole mess over to the bureaucrats.

There were many things in the program that irked the mayor. First, he complained that a woman was living with her boyfriend in a federally subsidized low-income housing unit. But the housing authority ignored the complaint.

The mayor was also angry about rents that were overdue. But the housing authority never charged the delinquent tenants.

Then came the straw that broke the camel's back. Every day for years, housing authority officials from Runge have eaten at the same local cafe. The bill is always paid with a housing authority check, signed by the director. This was just too much for the mayor to bear, so he simply abolished the housing authority.

Fantasy House: If you can't be president, at least you can pretend you are.

A scaled replica of the White House is for sale in San Antonio, Texas. The house was built 12 years ago by a crony of the late President Lyndon Johnson. It boasts similar furnishings to the mansion at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. The six-room house can be bought for a mere $390,000.

Presidential Pitch: President Carter is gearing up for his re-election campaign by soliciting funds for the Democratic Party. Thousands of letters on White House stationery have been sent across the country. But some Republican leaders are insulted by the pitch. One line in President Carter's solicitation says that anyone who's smart, would naturally be a Democrat.

Globetrotter

When Gov. Bill Clements said earlier this week that Texans "didn't elect me to keep quiet," he should have also added, "or sit still."

Clements has already hopped to Mexico, skipped to Washington (twice) and now says he plans a trip to Russia as the head of a delegation to study food production. The trip will come later this year, whenever the governor finds time on his cramped schedule.

Clements announced his Russia trip on the heels of rumors that he might be going to China. "That trip has always been on the back-burner," said one Clements' aide. But stories persisted. And confirmed reports that Clements' world-wide oil drilling firm, SEDCO, was negotiating along with Hunt Oil Co. for exploration rights off the coast of China, didn't help cool the headlines. Clements, seemingly irritated with all the talk about a China trip and possible conflicts of interest, finally told reporters: "I'm not going to China. I never said I was. How does that grab you?"

But reporters weren't the only ones howling at the governor this week. June L. Karp, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, accused the governor of having a "plantation mentality" when it came to teachers and other educators in the public school system.

The harsh criticism came after a microscopic examination by Karp and associates of the governor's budget proposals by the Legislative Budget Board for education. The governor's budget eliminates the 5.1 percent pay increase for teachers suggested by the LBB. Those salary hikes amount to $314 million. Clements got the rest of $548 million reduction by increasing local school districts share of the Foundation School Program by $189 million. The FSP provides basic educational needs such as salaries, maintenance and operations.

"We believe the governor's proposals are a slap in the face of our profession," Karp said, "and we wonder if the public education system of Texas is not being sacrificed."

The slap Karp refers to is of a political nature more than a calculated attempt on Clements part to undermine the educational system of the state. Teachers, for the most part, enthusiastically supported former Attorney General John Hill in his unsuccessful gubernatorial race against Clements.

Primary Question

What the 66th Legislature will do about a presidential primary bill becomes more interesting every day. The Senate State Affairs Committee approved by a narrow vote of 7-6 SB 602 by Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston that would split the presidential primary from regular party primaries. The bill was sent to the Senate floor for debate where, surprisingly, 13 senators have already gone on record saying they oppose the bill. At this point, those 13 senators have enough votes to keep the bill from ever being considered, but after the first 60 days of the session it takes only a two-thirds vote to bring up a bill. Now, it takes four-fifths. Numbers aside, two men who are used to getting their way support this bill. They are Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby (the presiding officer in the senate) and House Speaker Clayton.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—After six weeks of complicated and exhausting deliberations over one of the most difficult tasks facing the 66th session of the Texas Legislature—implementation of the voter-mandated tax relief amendment—the 13 members of the committee voted unanimously to send their omnibus bill to the House floor for debate beginning next week.

Everyone appeared to get what they were looking for. Urban interests got intangibles—stocks, bonds, and bank accounts—knocked off the tax rolls, and corporations managed to convince the committee that their land, as well as the land of family farmers, needed to be taxed on its productivity, not its market value.

Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange said giving corporate-owned land "agricultural use" write-offs might destroy the tax base of 11 Texas counties.

Since the revenues of local school districts will be effected by any legislation implementing the tax relief amendment, approval of the bill is central to the pending arguments over how Texas will finance its public schools.

The measure also exempts two automobiles or light trucks per family from the property tax rolls beginning in 1980. Homeowners will get a 15,000 exemption and the elderly (over 65) and the disabled will get an added $10,000 homestead exemption along with a "freeze" on their taxes.

Understandably, the measure also provides $420.7 million for reimbursing school districts for revenues that will be lost. Under the terms of the bill, a school district would be repaid "dollar-for-dollar" in 1979-80 for revenue lost but in 1980-81 a district would be penalized by a 10-15 percent if its appraisal rates of property are below the state average.

Salinas Introduces New Bill

Representative Froy Salinas announced today that he has introduced HB 1897. This bill, if passed, will place two Texas Tech students on the Board of Regents. The students will be appointed by the president of the Students Association with the advice and consent of the student Senate. The student regents will serve two year terms which will expire on alternate years. By doing this there will always be one experienced member on the Board.

Rep. Salinas stated that this is a program which he has been interested in for some time. He said that he feels today's young people are very mature and capable of giving vital input into the university system. He further stated that he believes that the students are not only concerned with the things that effect their daily lives but are also concerned with the future of Texas Tech.

Texas Department of Labor and Standards Enforces Labor Laws

Who do you call when your employer tells you that he has lost record of your time on the job and that he will now be unable to pay the full amount? What do you do? Do you swear at him and quit in disgust? Do you attack him physically and take a chance of having assault charges filed on you?

If you chose any of the above you made the wrong choice. The correct answer is that you contact the Texas Department of Labor and Standards at 800 Broadway.

The Department is an agency of the State of Texas and is charged with enforcing state labor laws dealing with payment to employers.

The West Texas Regional office is located in Lubbock at 800 Broadway. The director of Plutenco F. Aguirre who has an area of responsibility of covering more than 120 counties.

About the labor laws Aguirre says "There are two laws that specifically could have a great impact and a far reaching effect if more people knew about them."

He was referring to the Texas "semi-monthly pay day law" and the "six day demand" law that states that if an individual for some reason, including firing, misses pay day, that he shall be paid within six days of making a demand for payment.

This law is similar to another law that is enforced by the Department of Labor and Standards, which states that an individual be paid for work performed and that all employees be given a specific statement containing deductions and earning every pay day.

On August 27, 1973 the Bureau of Labor Statistics became the Texas Department of Labor and Standards. The agency under the direction of the State Commissioners has other duties besides enforcing labor laws. Other functions of the department include licensing, auctioneers, boxing and wrestling promoters as well as employment agencies.

For further information of how this agency can assist you, call 765-6461 or go by 800 Broadway #315.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Each week, when Saturday afternoon comes of age, this column scans the movie pages in order to make a selection of a film to review that is new on the local scene. This is done primarily because without personal transportation sources, relying on the daytime only policy of Citibus and the accessibility that that benighted service can extend attendance at evening showings or exotic distances are ruled out.

For example, some of the film auditoria are not open for matinees Monday through Friday. So, we miss them. And Saturday, the time-honored movie-going time for America, the matinee, provides the only recourse.

But, this Saturday afternoon past, provided double ammunition. Scanning the films on view, the desire to see a new film, "Hardcore," the George C. Scott picture at the Fox Four-plex, was undone by the late afternoon first showing time. By bus, it would have been a good sunset before I could make the tedious bus trip out on 19th St., see the show, catch the ride home on the distant corner and change downtown to get to my personal home corner.

So, my eye fell on the current, new, just-opened picture at one of the four at Cinema 4 South Plains Mall. It is a film called "Sextette," starring, guess who, Mae West! with a raft of cameo players, including George himself most briefly (he starred in West's first 1930s movie, "Night After Night.")

"Sextette" is a quasi-musical with a campy, corny plot, pivoting all the way around the buxom, torrid, one-liner queen of the naughty 1930-1940 period. The picture, released, I think reluctantly, by Crown International, has been a longtime coming. It was completed two years ago or more and is only now lifting its timid head in national, spotty releases. When it was filmed Mae West was no less than 84 years old. She is now 86. And "Sextette," adapted from one of her own-written plays, may well be her swan song in motion picture, but; don't bet money on that!

It has been nearly 50 years since Mae West arrived in Hollywood after a spectacular and riotous career on the Broadway and nation' stages. She appeared in the aforementioned "Night After Night" for a going-bankrupt Paramount Pictures as her first effort, which gave birth to "Goodness, what diamonds?" and her sneering response, "Goodness had nothing to do with it!"

Next on the line was the movie version with Cary Grant of her own play, "Diamond Lil," which came out on screen as "She Done Him Wrong." That tied it! She not only pulled Paramount out of bankruptcy but also brought the then-Hays Office, motion-picture censors, down on her head and precipitated a silly, restrictive policy of purity over the entire industry for a long time to come.

In successive order came West's "I'm No Angel," "Belle of the Yukon," "My Little Chickadee," "Go West, Young Man" and a host more.

Then came a lapse, a long one as the glitter wore thin for audience reaction to this wasp-waisted, plumpish lady with the distinctive eye-rolling, slurring speech and provocative walk.

Then came the disaster movie of all time and her bit, "Myra Breckenridge," her make-up shiny plaster and her hair-do wrong, a flop, as was the film.

You'd think that Mae West, catching up to her 80s then, would bow out and enjoy her wealth, gained from smart investments in and around Hollywood. Live gracefully in retirement. Hah!

A pair named Briggs and Sullivan banded together under the Crown International banner and brought her back, literally. They adapted Miss West's own play for "Sextette," (refers to her six previous marriages as a famed movie star) and infused it with sumptuous gowns, feather boas, turned their star loose in her familiar hair-do this time, let her run, mouthing lines of her own authorship, dating back to that first movie in 1930s and they are just now easing the little, amusing film into the hardcore mainstream of today's films.

The plot of "Sextette" can be written on the face of one of the keys of this typewriter. But, who cares? Mae is just married to a British peer, she has become a Lady. But there are complications for this (in the story line) celebrated movie star. She has difficulty in remembering just what transpired with each of her previous marriages. This is her London wedding night and Fate conspired to turn the whole antic into madness.

That's all. Interspersed are musical bits, done well, those gowns, Mae's sultry lines (rated PG now against a probable X in the good old days (?)).

Mae talk-sings such songs as "After You've Gone" and "Baby Face," and she cavorts uninhibitedly in the inimitable Westian manner.

I don't think today's permissive generation will give "Sextette" much time. There were only 15 people in the small theater Saturday afternoon, all obvious West fans, like me.

But this is the way it was, children, and one sits back and swallows the camp with relish by the lady who never pretended to be otherwise. If you'll remember back to the days when she was a "national scandal," those days of Gable, Crawford, Jean Harlow, to "She Done Him Wrong," remember Mae West spoofed sex and made herself seem the Wicked Lady, indeed. But, and it still holds today in "Sextette" no one ever really touched her, profanity was out, nudity and all the rest deemed so necessary in today's world, was not there. She IMPLIED, she never did. And, NO profanity.

And so, playing against the handsome and talented Timothy Dalton, about 50 years her junior, (he is co-star in the "Agatha" film on the adjacent South Plains Mall Cinema right now) she rollicks her way to warm the cockles of old hearts.

There is a list of flash appearances: George Raft, Alice Cooper (really!), a marvelous performance by marvelous performer Dom DeLuise as her manager, Walter Pidgeon, Rona Barrett, Gill Stratton, sportscaster, and, of course, the fleeting appearance of the George Raft.

"Sextette" is ridiculous plot-wise, but, Praise Heaven, it gives the indomitable Mae West back to us for one more round. The picture is amusing, not great, but fun. For anyone over 40, it's a must. For the rest of the disco crowd, see it and know what great movie-making and great stars are all about.

SW Bell to Hold Seminar For Outstanding Students March 14

Solar cells and laser light are among developments in telecommunications to be discussed at a Southwestern Bell seminar for outstanding math and science students March 14 in Lubbock. Students from Dunbar and Estacado will be present.

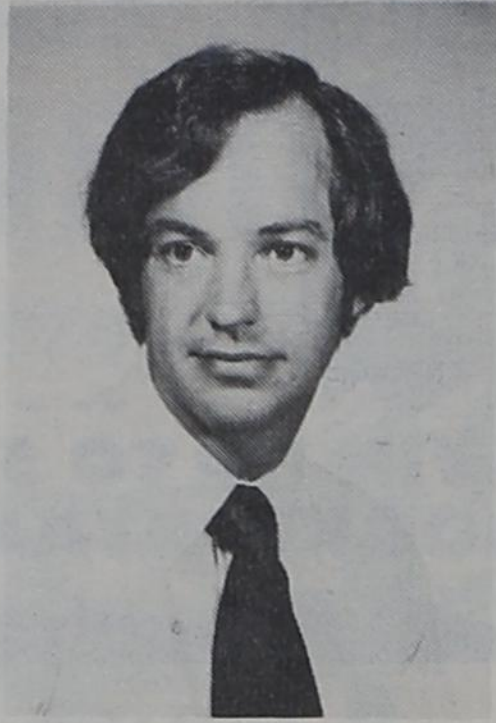

The annual event, known as Science Recognition Days, is held near Alexander Graham Bell's March 3 birthday to honor the telephone's inventor and to inform and encourage future scientists.

More than 130 students, their teachers and principals are scheduled to attend the seminar at the Civic Center, according to Bob Dunbar, division manager for Southwestern Bell in Lubbock.

Featured speaker will be Dr. John Allen Hooke, head of the field quality and reliability department at Bell Laboratories in Holmdel, N.J. He will speak on "The World of Quality Assurance or Whatever Happens to All Those Pure Scientists."

Dunbar said Dr. Hooke will discuss the quality of telecommunications equipment, including telephones, private branch exchanges and electronic switching equipment.

The company's science demon-

Dr. J.A. Hook

strator, Bill Haehnel, will demonstrate Bell's early experiments with a device he called a photophone. The photophone transmits sound over a light beam. Haehnel will show how the device has affected modern telecommunications.

Dr. Donald R. Haragan, associate professor of the Atmospheric Science Group at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, will speak on "Tornado? Portrait of a Severe Storm."

Kelly's Heroes

by Joe Kelly

It was, as Coach Gerald Myers said, embarrassing. It also was humiliating. You pick the word that applies. Texas Tech, a three point favorite, was manhandled by Indiana, ending a disappointing season.

Sure, Tech had a young club, but the Raiders got off to such a good start. That, probably, was why the last half of the season was so disappointing. Much more was expected of the Raiders as a result of early success against Michigan, Texas and others.

Down the stretch Tech won five games in succession. The Raiders were battling back to contention status. Then came successive losses to Houston, Texas and Arkansas and they fell into a tie with Baylor, a team that they had beaten twice during the season.

The lopsided victory over Rice gave hope, as did the come-from-behind win over the Aggies at Houston. Arkansas wiped Tech out for the third time and it seemed to be all over.

Just when it looked as though uniforms could be put away, here came a bid to the NIT. Not only that, but the favorite's role and an opening game at home. The home game brought out a tremendous crowd, too, and many of them fans who weren't, because of the season ticket situation, able to see Tech play.

Wouldn't it have been perfect for Tech to have won? Yep, it would. Instead, the Raiders looked about the way the football team did against Florida State. The Raiders had a marvelous chance to be impressive. Instead, they blew it.

The Raiders have company, of course. Texas was favored over Oklahoma and was playing in an arena that was close to home—and the Longhorns blew it. They had even a greater chance to make the league look good.

It remained for the Aggies and Arkansas to hold up conference honor and both teams did. The Aggies beat New Mexico in Albuquerque, always a tough chore, and the Razorbacks easily held off the revenge-minded Weber State pack in the NCAA.

After the game had ended, the fans had drifted homewards and most of the stories had been written, I talked with Polk Robison. Polk, among other things, felt for Myers, because he had been there in his long career, too.

"That's a good ball club," he declared, referring to the Hoosiers. "They have good balance, they're big and strong. And they have good rotation among their players. Why, even that big man could bring the ball downcourt. They reminded me a lot of our 1953 team with Jim Reed, DuWayne Blackshear. That's the way they could play."

Tech finished tied for fourth in the league and I reminded Polk that he used to maintain that only winners should go to post season play, not second place or worse.

"I still feel that way," he snapped back.

That led Polk to a dissertation on the increased number of teams in both the NCAA and NIT. He didn't like it, and said so. His argument was that there aren't enough great teams and it makes the playoffs less meaningful.

Bobby Knight, the Indiana coach, had a different view—and well he might, since the Hoosiers had the poorest record of the teams chosen and then he won. He thought that the NIT was great for having given Texas Tech and Indiana a chance to play, for letting additional fans see the teams.

But now, except for A&M and Arkansas, the season is over. It will be a year before there's action and what can fans expect? Despite early fortune, Tech needs a good, big man at center. Whistle Davidson said that there are a number of good average size prospects, but good big men are scarce.

In the event Tech doesn't come up with such a player, there probably will be little change in the format from this season. But—the Raiders should be stronger next year because of the experience gained. Geoff Huston will be gone, the biggest loss, along with Joe Baxter and Tommy Parks.

Meanwhile, the freshmen and sophomores gained a lot of playing time and it should make them smarter players. They'll need to be, too, because the conference will be strong again.

It's too early to tell, since recruiting hasn't ended, and some of the freshmen recruited may well start for some teams again next season. You wonder where Tech would have been without Jeff Taylor, David Little and others.

Arkansas will lose heavily in Schall and Moncrief, but Eddie Sutton has a lot of good players on whom to build. Texas might well be hurt the most, but the Horns will be in contention. Houston will be stronger, while A&M would have to be the choice right now.

Mike Shuler did a good job at Rice and his freshmen, minus Elbert Darden, could well be a factor in the race. Baylor loses Vinnie Johnson and, with him, a lot of the Bears' attack.

SMU returns the nucleus for a strong club and it won't take much more for Sonny Allen to be a real contender. Also, he's been given a green light in recruiting. TCU will have a new coach, probably an Oklahoma State assistant, and he will face an uphill battle.

Still, the 1979-1980 basketball campaign should be as exciting as this past one, with as many surprises.

Ringling the Bell . . .

with Bob Tieuel

The Black Experience: Open the Door Richard: Black progress will continue even if blacks have to knock down doors blocking the path to equality, NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks said recently. I'm saying, the NAACP is saying, that if you don't open the door, we're going to knock it down. We ain't going back again. We're going forward in this nation. We are insisting on equality. We're not asking the white folks to come down: we simply want them to move over. We ain't going to let nobody turn us around.

"It has been a long, hard, difficult, bitter journey," Hooks said of the distance between the southern segregation of the 1940's and 50's and current black progress, which he termed woefully inadequate. "We should not forget where we come from. Those who forget where they come from will not really know where they are going."

Hooks, a lawyer and minister, offered his comments recently at Wichita State University. He was rewarded with shouts, applause and a standing ovation. Hooks said he was astounded to hear that a group of 16 black journalism students, learning how to interview celebrities, confessed ignorance about Rosie Parks, the black woman who touched off integration marches in Montgomery, Alabama, by refusing to move to the back of a bus.

"Those who paid the price were building a bridge for you to march on, and if you forget that, you are not worthy to walk it," Hooks said. The former member of the Federal Communications Commission and the first black judge of Shelby County, Tennessee Criminal Court said black anger at segregation should be channeled toward opening "doors that have been unofficially closed in our faces."

Dear Bob: The utility companies in Oregon were permitted to include in their earnings base 193 million dollars for construction projects which are not delivering electricity or services. Recently this policy resulted in an estimated 17 million dollars in overcharges to utility customers. Looks like utility reform is needed in the Southwest, too, don't you think? Signed J.J.F. Bob's note: In New Mexico, according to a belleranger, country club memberships, private planes, etc., are included in utility costs. What do you think?

Our best wishes for success in the March 27 runoff ballot in Kansas City, Missouri, an old friend we have known for a long time: Bruce Watkins, a city councilman who could become the first black mayor of that city in history. About a fourth of the city's 500,000 population is black. 54 year old Watkins is a moritician. He is one of the founders and now is president of Freedom, Inc., a black political organization. He was a city councilman from 1963 to 1967, later was elected Jackson County circuit clerk and returned as a councilman in 1974. Under Kansas City's council city manager form of government, the mayor's post is a part time job that pays $25,000 a year.

Two city councilmen—a black Democrat and a white Republican (Richard L. Berkley) will meet in March 27 election, after both drew more votes than incumbent Charles B. Wheeler in the primary. Wheeler was seeking a third 4 year term, an extension of his 14 years in Kansas City political office, no Kansas City mayor has ever been elected to a third term.

Thanks to my many belleranger friends for your inquiries as to the condition of my Mother. She is still fighting a brave battle and we have no idea how long she can wage her war against the ravages of cancer and old age. Only God knows. And thanks for your prayers from over the nation. We love you. Cards and messages may be addressed to Boley Nursing Center, Boley, Oklahoma 74829; Att: Mrs. Nodie E. Tieuel.

One of the most successful district conferences in history was held in San Angelo at Brown Chapel C.M.E. Church (a former parish) on March 2-3. It was our opportunity to bring Communion message at opening session. Rev. E.J. Lott is district superintendent with S.T. Sneed, host pastor. More later. Until later, Peace and be a good neighbor. They come in all colors.
