BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BOOTS RAEBURN, 18 and pretty, is snubbed by wealthy SYLVIA RIVERS. Due to Sylvia's gossip, Boots is forced to resign from the Juniors. Both girls live in Larchneck, fashionable New York suburb.

Hurt and humiliated, Boots accepts the attentions of RUSS LUND, swimming instructor. MRS. RAEBURN returns from a trip out of town and Boots dreads her mother's hearing what has happened. On impulse she marries Russ who takes her to live with his brother and his wife. Russ has no job and apparently no ambition. Soon Boots begins to see him as he is.

Russ goes to Miami, promising Boots he will send for her later. She gets a job in a big department store and goes to live in Greenwich Village. One day a customer's $10 bill is lost and Boots is blamed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

"She's a very sick girl," the doctor said to the dark young man, braced against the distempered wall of Mrs. Mooney's sitting room. "She ought to have a nurse . . . I don't know . . ."

"I know a good girl. She worked under me on a case like this last winter," the gray, plump professional man told him. "You're her—her brother?"

"Just a friend," said the dark young man. "I know her family. I only discovered last night we were living in the same house."

"Ah, I see." The doctor drawing on his big driving gloves, eyed the younger man with interest.

"You'll have the nurse come right over then?"

"Within an hour. May I use this telephone?"

In the dim, untidy room Boots slept in a stupor. Her skin burned with the raw flush of fever. She scarcely knew where she was when she woke, except at dim intervals. In her dreams it seemed to her that she was in her own room at home with the thin, delicately darned curtains blowing at the wide windows and October roses blooming just beneath them. But when she came back to consciousness, which was only occasionally, she saw the outlines of the sagging painted bureau and the gray square window beyond it. Trucks jolted over the cobblestones and urchins cried in the streets below and taxi horns honked, honked incessantly. Beyond, in the narrow streets edging the river, fog horns boomed with dreary regularity.

There was something—she could not remember just now—that troubled her. Something about a $10 bill and a tall, stern faced young man at Lacy's. She had the feeling she babbled about it in her sleep, but maybe she was wrong. It was all dreamlike. Even the cool hands of the girl in white, laid on her feverish brow and wrist, were the hands of a dream angel.

People came and went in this dream. Although Boots was unaware of it the small square room was scrupulously tidy now, with the tidiness of a hospital room. Clean scarf on the bureau. Clean patched spread twitched four-square over the thin blankets. Tumbler and spoon—everything shining. Tumbled clothes hung behind the screen out of sight.

On the morning of the sixth day the doctor, straightening his plump back, folding the stethoscope carefully and tucking it into his pocket, allowed himself a smile. Two, in fact, one for the nurse and another for the dark young man whose eyes had been searching his face.

"She'll do," he said, benignly. "She'll do very nicely."

Boots slept under their combined scrutiny. She looked thin. The fine bones of her small face stood out sharply in the rock-gray dimness of the room. A shaded bulb burned dimly over the table.

The dark young man followed the doctor out into the hall.

"That was a close shave," the older man said affably, shrugging big shoulders into his coat. "She had a peculiarly virulent type . . . He went on, discoursing learnedly of the habits and curiosities of influenza and the dark young man listened, nodding occasionally, unsmiling.

"Well, well, I'll look in tomorrow. She's coming along splendidly, my boy. Lucky girl to have such a friend standing by!" You could see he waited for, expected a burst of confidence but none was forthcoming so he went out briskly.

Church bells awoke Boots from her deep slumbers. She opened her eyes reluctantly, drowsily as a child does. Sunday? Why, it couldn't be Sunday! She frowned, remembering. That gray Monday and the customer who had lost the money. Coming home in the rain to find that dreadful telegram . . . "Oh, I must get up . . ." Her hand groped for the bedside lamp but she was startled to find it was already alight and a girl with red curls and a nurse's cap was smiling down at her.

"Want anything, child?" "I—I have to send a telegram." The nurse smiled and said in a soothing voice, "Later, perhaps. Just now you have nothing to do but to lie here and get well."

"How long have I been ill?" "Nearly a week, dear. But you are all right now. You're splendid—"

Boots' eyes filled. She was splendid. But, Russ, with his strong body, lay stilled in death. What was it the wire had said? "Russell Lund killed in motor-boat accident this afternoon. Wire instructions."

And she had fainted. She had failed Russ, finally and wholly. "My husband," she began faintly . . . "he's . . ."

"We know, dear," the nurse said soothingly. "It's too sad, but your friend has seen to all of it. Everything was arranged."

What on earth did she mean? Boots began to cry, tears of utter weakness and despair, and the young nurse, tiptoeing to the doorway, beckoned to someone unseen.

"I think there's someone waiting to see you," she said.

The young man in the doorway was dark, blue-eyed. He had a fine drawn look about him.

Boots uttered a little cry. "Mr. Fenway!"

"I'll be right down the hall in the kitchen. You call me if you want me. Don't talk long and tire her," Miss Ryan warned in an undertone, slipping past him. And then Denis was in the sagging chair behind the bed; his thin, nervous, long-fingered brown hand laid over her small white one.

"Yes, do you mind?" Her eyes were closed now and two big tears slipped unheeded from beneath her lashes. Her voice was very faint.

"How—how did you happen to be here? Oh, I'm so terribly confused . . ."

He began to explain quickly and

50-Cent Slayer To Die in Chair

Death in the electric chair Dec. 12 will be the fate of Rudy Ashbrook, 19, shown here in Cincinnati jail, because he killed a taxi driver in a holdup that netted only 50 cents. Judge D. J. Ryan wept as he imposed sentence. He declared it was the most sorrowful duty of his life.

dentone, slipping past him. And then Denis was in the sagging chair behind the bed; his thin, nervous, long-fingered brown hand laid over her small white one.

"Yes, do you mind?" Her eyes were closed now and two big tears slipped unheeded from beneath her lashes. Her voice was very faint.

"How—how did you happen to be here? Oh, I'm so terribly confused . . ."

He began to explain quickly and gently, in a low voice. He had got back to New York just a week ago. He said, His friends, whose apartment in Washington Square he expected to lease in their absence, were not ready to vacate it—not for at least 10 days. So he had come to Mrs. Mooney's, his old room, he amplified with a smile. He had lived and worked in that very room when he'd come to New York fresh from college. Every one in Greenwich Village knew Mrs. Mooney . . .

"When you fainted Monday night Mrs. Mooney called me," he went on. "We saw the wire. I—everything has been done."

Russ was gone. She couldn't take it in. It wasn't true. But here was Denis, talking about it, so it must be.

"I was delirious?" Boots asked in a quavering voice.

He nodded.

"And you got the nurse—you've been looking after me?"

Another embarrassed nod. "I hope you don't mind . . ."

"Oh, mind!" Her voice broke on the word. "Some day I will pay you back . . . Meantime . . ."

And the story of the lost money at Lacy's came tumbling out in a voice faint and tired.

"Don't worry about that. It's all fixed," he told her definitely. "You talked about it in your illness, all the time. I went up to the store. Mrs. Mooney knew which department you worked in and I saw the fellow, Bliss. It's all fixed."

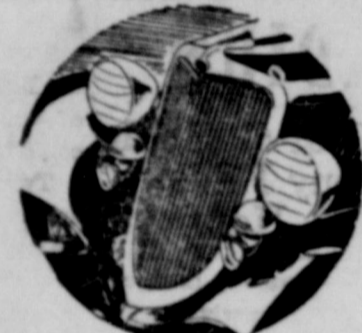

She opened her eyes again. "You're so good."

Miss Ryan was at the door, her starched skirts crackling.

"Mustn't tire the child out. Enough talk for just now."

Denis Fenway rose. Boots could catch the good scent of tobacco and lavender water and fresh linen.

"I'll see you in the morning," he said gravely. He went away. She hadn't thanked him properly.

Get The FORD Habit!

Thousands of Ford owners today have made a habit of buying Fords from year to year—every time a new car is needed. Many have never owned any other car other than a Ford—because they know from actual experience that every Ford product is the best available—at the least possible cost—and includes every proven up-to-date advancement in the motor kingdom.

True, many have bought other makes of cars for an experiment or just for a change, but they eventually come back to the old reliable—Ford! They know they can depend on Ford to give them the finest car at minimum cost every time.

1934 Ford owners are more enthusiastic over the new Ford V-8 than they have ever been over previous automobiles. If you have never ridden in one of the new V-8s or if you do not now own one, we invite you to come in and see for yourself the thrill that you have been missing. You, too, will "get the Ford habit" if you begin now with the new Ford V-8.

Text: 'West Texas' phenomenal progress during the past decade has been equalled only by the steady expansion of its West Texas Utilities Company, for while West Texas has been carving industrial history, this company—to aid and foster that growth—has kept its facilities modern and in advance of immediate needs. Today 2,600 miles of cardinal Transmission Lines—energized from three large, strategically located main generating stations and strengthened by many auxiliary or stand-by plants—has replaced the precarious and costly part-time "lighting" plant of yesterday. This new-day Transmission System insures an immediate supply of power sufficient to meet any development. The program of this Company has been, and will continue to be, the rendering of increased use of service by constantly decreasing rates. Since the organization of the West Texas Utilities, the consumers have benefited by total rate REDUCTIONS amounting to MORE THAN SIXTY PER CENT—an unheard-of accomplishment in the days of isolated plants. Electricity renders one of the most valuable services to the household. Yet it is sold at the lowest price of any item of the household budget. It represents approximately only one per cent of the workman's total expenditures. Electricity is cheap! You should use much more of it. Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill? West Texas Utilities Company'

Presbyterian Auxiliary Has Meeting

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church met Monday afternoon in the church parlor for a missionary program.

The subject was "The Younger Generation." Mrs. J. C. Ross directed the program. The first number was a song, "Let Others See Jesus in You." Mrs. Mamie VanPelt read the 145th Psalm for the devotional and Mrs. T. Kittinger followed with prayer. Roll call was responded to with "Religious News." Mrs. D. H. Arnold read the names for the day in the prayer calendar and offered a prayer for them.

Several stories of young people's work were given by Mrs. A. W. Guill, Mrs. George A. Sager and Mrs. P. M. Fitzgerald. Mrs. S. S. Montgomery read an interesting letter from "The Allison James School" at Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Those present were: Mesdames P. M. Fitzgerald, Mamie VanPelt, Iop Canwell, J. C. Ross, A. W. Guill, D. H. Arnold, T. J. Thompson, T. Kittinger, D. J. Packer, J. A. MacMillan, S. S. Montgomery and George A. Sager.

Legion Auxiliary In Regular Meet

The American Legion Auxiliary met in the home of the president, Mrs. W. Wilson Friday afternoon in their regular monthly meeting.

The meeting was opened by giving the Flag salute, followed by singing "America." Mrs. P. M. Fitzgerald led in prayer in the absence of the chaplain, Mrs. T. Kittinger.

Mrs. Wilson presided over a brief business session. Roll call was answered with echoes of the State Convention. Mrs. Roy Guthrie gave a very interesting report of the State convention which she recently attended at Mineral Wells. She went as delegate from the local auxiliary.

Mrs. J. E. Roper gave high points on President Roosevelt since his inauguration.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to Mesdames C. C. Dodson, P. M. Fitzgerald, W. S. Gooch, Roy Guthrie, H. H. Lindsey, Dean Morgensen, J. E. Roper, E. H. Whittington and T. R. Franks.

Bible Class Honors Russell MacMillan

Russell MacMillan, who left Wednesday to attend Schriener Institute at Kerrville, was honor guest at a steak fry and weiner roast Tuesday evening, when S. S. Montgomery entertained members of the Men's Bible class of the First Presbyterian church, of which he is teacher.

The affair was given in the backyard at the Montgomery home, with Ewel Noel in charge of frying the steaks, which was served on tables under the trees.

After supper a quartet, composed of Ewel Noel, David Fitzgerald, Buster Helm and J. C. Ross, sang a number of songs.

Those present were: Maynard Drake, Conly Ward, J. M. Tucker, Glenn Moore, James E. Bass, Red Lampkin, Dave Fitzgerald, J. P. Godfrey, H. J. Gore, J. C. Ross, Dr. M. McNeely, Buster Helm, George Sager, Allen Grundy, Forrest Power, Leon Boyd, T. Kittinger, John Van Winkle, Russell MacMillan and the host.

Cearley Read Kinard and Gordon Walker left this morning for Abilene where they will be students at the Hardin-Simmons university again this year.

Misses Martha Draper, Nell Walker Honored

Naming Misses Nell Walker and Martha Draper, who are leaving soon or college, as honorees, Mrs. G. D. Beard entertained a group with an afternoon bridge party Saturday at 3 o'clock at her home, 620 South Ninth street. Garden flowers were used for decorations.

Miss Draper is to study at the University of Texas and Miss Walker is to be at the Texas Technological college at Lubbock.

In the bridge games, the award for high score went to Miss Georgene Sexauer and the honorees were presented with lovely guest prizes.

Mrs. Beard was assisted in serving a delicious salad and ice course by Mrs. Malone Hagan to Misses Audrie Beth Lofland, Cora Fox Yonge, Anna Louise Hudgins, Dorothy Dunbar, Geraldine Watson, Georgene Sexauer, Nell Walker and Martha Draper.

Mrs. Parks Opens Business Meet Of Baptist W. M. S.

Mrs. R. C. Parks opened the business meeting of the Baptist W. M. S. in the ladies' parlor of the Educational building Monday afternoon with an inspirational scripture lesson, reading from the first chapter of James, choosing for her theme, Be Ye Doers of the Word, continuing the spirit of the devotional.

The President, Mrs. Byron Baldwin, stated that this was the first business meeting of the year and the page was white and ready for what the W. M. S. wished to put on it. She urged prayerful and earnest efforts, after which she declared the meeting open for the consideration of business, calling for each chairman to tell her duties as chairman. Twelve chairmen responded. Much enthusiasm was manifested by all present.

WELLINGTON COUPLE WEDS AT HOME OF MRS. H. B. GILMORE

The marriage of Miss Margille Sigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Sigley of Wellington and Eual Warrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Warrick also of Wellington, was solemnized at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. H. B. Gilmore, of this city, Saturday evening at 9 o'clock, with Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist church, reading the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a few close friends and relatives of the couple.

The house was decorated with garden flowers. The altar was banked with ferns at the archway while the whole scene was lighted by the soft glow of silver tapers in candelabra effectively placed.

The bride, dressed in a blue tweed tailored suit with blue matching accessories, entered unattended to the beautiful strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus by Wagner, played by Miss Marjorie Drake, cousin of the bride.

The pre-nuptial music included a vocal solo, "At Downing" by Cadman, sung by Billy Sigler, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Warrick's only ornament was a traditional old gold bracelet, which belonged to her great grandmother. She was formerly of this city, was a graduate of the 1932 class of Memphis High school. Mrs. Warrick, a talented reader, has been teaching expression for the past two years.

Mr. Warrick graduated with the 1932 class of the Wellington High school and later attended A. and M. college at College Station. He is now employed with his father in the Warrick Feed and Grain Company.

After a short trip to Houston and other southern points Mr. and Mrs. Warrick will be at home at 1301 East Ninth street, Wellington.

Mizpah Guild Meets With Mrs. Conly Ward

The Mizpah Guild met Monday at the home of Mrs. Conly Ward, 4120 West Noel street.

The members assembled at 12 o'clock and a delicious covered dish luncheon was served.

After a brief business session, Minnie Kinslow led the prayer service, followed by a roll call on friendship. Ora Denny gave as a musical reading, "The Kind of Friend I'd Like to Be," accompanied by Mrs. Ward at the piano. Frances Drake sang, "My Creed." Frank Noel read a poem, "The Old Settler's Story."

The following members and guests were present: Joan Bryan, Lola Clower, Emma Deaver, Ora Denny, Edna Elliott, Margarete Gore, Boddie Grundy, Elizabeth Johnston, Minnie Kinslow, Estelle McCool, Nell MacMillan, Frank Noel, Mary Noel, Ruth Pierce, Loraine Tucker, Cora Yonge, Frances Drake, and Mrs. Abner Chancey of Dallas and Mrs. C. Baptist Men's Class Meets

The Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist church, with Hayden Goodnight as teacher, met at the church Tuesday evening for a social meeting and get-together. Leon Randolph, president, acted as toastmaster and Joe Chitwood was in charge of the eats which consisted of barbecued wieners with all the trimmings.

During the evening plans were discussed for a more enthusiastic class. Mr. Goodnight told about how to build a class. H. A. Howard talked on attendance and J. R. Jones discussed how an enthusiastic class would bring new members. Music for the occasion was furnished by Gordon and Edward Gillam and Mack Graham.

Those present were: C. R. Sergeant, Jack Boone, Leon Randolph, Paul Blevins, A. L. Smith, Alan Brown, J. R. Jones, Joe Chitwood, Bud Godfrey, W. R. Ward, R. A. Massey, H. A. Howard, Gordon Gillam, Mack Graham, Edwin Gillam, C. G. Bumgarner and Hayden Goodnight.

Mrs. R. Ballew Entertains Club

The El Primero Bridge club met Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. Raymond Ballew.

At the conclusion of the games Mrs. O. L. Jamison of Knox City won high score prize.

The hostess served a lovely salad course to Mesdames O. L. Jamison, C. L. Sloan, Jr., Zeb Moore, A. H. Miller, S. A. Bryant, Dean Morgensen, and Miss Elizabeth Bryant.

Pay a Little More and double the wear an comfort which you receive from women's and misses shoes.

During the last three or four years there have been many feet injured permanently trying to economize on the price of shoes.

Many of the cheap shoes sold during this time, especially high heeled ones have been made of such poor material that they afforded absolutely no support to the foot in any way, and so little time was used in the manufacture of them that there was no fit or finish to them.

This store has missed lots of cheap shoe business, and we expect to continue to miss it.

The public is at last waking up to the fact that they are paying more in a year's time by buying cheap shoes, besides actually missing the comfort of wearing better grade shoes.

Anagram Answer Is Sent From Lelia Lake

The Democrat's Anagram Contest Friday, winners of which are announced today, evidently had far-reaching appeal.

One entry in the contest came from Mrs. F. S. Clark of Lelia Lake. Mrs. Clark indicated on her entry blank that she trades at 'M' System grocery.

Although she did not win a prize, The Democrat wants to thank Mrs. Clark for her interest and to invite her to compete again.

Hundreds of people in towns and communities near Memphis are carefully reading The Democrat every day. Wise merchants are cultivating these people through regular advertising and are securing their patronage.

work, and received direct relief. This figure also included many women for whom no work was available at this time, as well as a number of negroes for whom no work is available. Able bodied men are given work in accordance with the number of dependants in his family.

Of the 241 persons given employment during the week ending Thursday night, 73 were rotated to receive work on a road project in the Memphis precinct. A total of $244.80 was paid out for labor on this project. Workers are rotated to receive as much work as they are allowed on all projects.

Estelline, Turkey

On the Turkey road project 25 men were paid $96 during the week and a total of $117.60 was paid to 39 workers on the Estelline street project. On the Lakeview school project 49 men were paid $154.80.

The county's cattle buying program employed 39 men during the week ending last Thursday, at a total cash outlay of $148. The two branches of the relief office administrative forces employed 16 workers.

Seeks More Projects

Efforts are being made by Judge Hoffman to receive approval of other projects in the county to furnish more work for the needy in this section. The county's relief rolls are gradually increasing and additional work is going to be needed this winter, he said.

The application for work projects include road building programs in precincts 1, 2 and 3 and a school project in Precinct No. 4. If these projects are okayed by the state department, considerable aid will be given the relief problem here, he said.

meeting to sponsor a negro minstrel at an early date. The cast of the minstrel will be made up entirely of junior chamber of commerce members, and will be directed by Russell Clark and Mrs. C. L. Sloan, Jr. Plans for the show will be perfected, and a cast drawn Tuesday night, it was decided. A meeting for this purpose has been called for 7:30 o'clock at the high school auditorium, and all members were urged by Dr. L. M. Hicks, president to be present.

Immediately preceding Friday night's meeting at which Dr. L. M. Hicks, president of the junior chamber of commerce, presided, an enjoyable entertainment program was given. Russell Clark acted as master of ceremonies. Following is the program given:

Two tap dances—June Power, accompanied by Mrs. Power at the piano.

Reading, "A Similar Case," Miss Reba Fitzjarrald.

Piano solo, "Manhattan Serenade," Mrs. Margaret G. Morgan.

Violin numbers by Glenn A. Truax, accompanied by Mrs. Truax at the piano.

Vocal solo, "Wagon Wheels," Mrs. Ben Wilkinson, accompanied by Miss Shirlee Greene.

Vocal solo, "May I," Mrs. C. L. Sloan, Jr.

Vocal solo, "Thank You for a Lovely Evening" and "A Thousand Goodnights," Mrs. Maynard Drake, accompanied by Mrs. Morgan.

Duet, "I'll String Along with You," Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Wilkinson, accompanied by Mrs. Sloan.

Trio, "Moonglow," Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Wilkinson, accompanied by Mrs. Morgan.

Dr. Hicks, presided at the meeting held Friday night at the American Legion hall. More than 50 members and visitors were present.

The meeting began at 7:30 and ended promptly at 9 o'clock, followed with a light refreshment course. Many members expressed the belief that Friday night's meeting set a record for short, snappy business sessions and voted to hold other such meetings in the future.

BAND CREDIT TO BE GREAT HELP

PLAYING for more than just the pleasure of "tooting" an instrument and belonging to a musical organization, members of the Black and Gold band and any other high school organization that might be formed by Glenn A. Traux will receive affiliated credit for their musical efforts in high school this year.

Through the efforts of Mr. Traux, who has seen the value of such credit for some time, band music has been listed as an optional subject in the local high school, and may be counted toward graduation.

A full year of music will count half a credit, making it possible for a student to pick up as many as two credits in this manner, if he starts as an eighth grader.

Certainly music is as beneficial to the student as a number of other optional subjects offered by the schools, and under the modern conception of the high school education it has a prominent place in the curriculum.

Too, the high school student who exerts efforts in this direction should receive recognition in the school as does the one who extends his efforts toward debating or a number of other "outside" subjects.

The accepting of band music as an accredited unit in the school may allow Mr. Traux to extend his activities as director into new fields. He hopes to be able now to organize a girls' band, or orchestra, which might be more attractive to the young ladies, and perhaps to form a junior organization. The latter, of course, would receive only indirect benefit from the new school credit; when the players enter high school, they will automatically begin to receive credit, without the necessity of entering a new field of endeavor.

The organization of such musical groups would place the local schools on a par with any in the state so far as the advancement of musical instincts are concerned, and the accrediting of band music will play its part in making these organizations possible.

MUNITIONS TRADE A SYMPTOM OF HATE

IT is easy enough to be horrified by the revelations now being made before the Senate Munitions committee. It is not nearly so easy to figure out just what ought to be done about it.

What is being learned is only an amplification of previous disclosures. The big munitions firms are true internationalists. They find ways of co-operating to insure bigger profits.

They divide world markets on a truly grand scale. They get the co-operation of naval authorities, and they have a broadminded way of exchanging patent rights.

There is nothing especially new in all this; and yet the force of the disclosures, echoing from the vast sounding board which a Senate committee can erect, has shocked the American people very profoundly.

For there is something about the munitions business which puts it in a class by itself. The men who market guns, submarines, and bombs are not dealing in ordinary merchandise; they are dealing in sudden death, and they have a proprietary interest in mass slaughter which makes their trade of direct concern to ordinary folk everywhere.

And yet, as things stand today, it is hard to see precisely how the business can be reformed.

For this great traffic in the machines of destruction is a symptom of trouble, rather than a cause. It is a symptom of a great division among the peoples of the world—of rivalries and suspicions and hatreds and injustices, innumerable and almost insoluble.

Granting that the munitions makers have not been above stirring up trouble, on occasion, to boom the market, the fact remains that, for the most part, this vast trade in weapons goes on because nations everywhere are expecting war.

The world, in fact, is pretty sick, and its intervals of sanity between spells of feverish delirium are not long. The munitions makers are a complicating factor, to be sure; yet the roots of the disease go beyond them.

We live, in other words, by the sword—all of us, in every land. As long as we do, we can hardly be too horrified at the way the people who make and sell as the swords get rich.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

This is the first of two articles by Dr. Fishbein discussing the infections and injuries that arise during the football season.

With the opening of the football season, boys will begin in increasing numbers to suffer from the common types of injury that are associated with football training and football practice.

There are all sorts of funny superstitions connected with training. For a while it was believed that soaking the skin in salt water or other solutions would harden it and prevent rubbing and similar injuries.

Actually these methods have not been found to be of any value. Instead, they help to spread infections of the skin, which are particularly serious for football players and frequently are the bone of training quarters.

Wearing of the same clothing by different players, including particularly the mixing of headgear, will result in carrying infections of the skin from one player to another.

Leather football helmets may be sterilized by sulphur fumes.

Infections of the skin with pus-forming organisms should be treated by doctors, who usually apply antiseptic substances that bring these infections under control.

Most prevalent type of skin infection among football players is ringworm, of the type that causes so-called athlete's foot. This, however, will affect not only the feet, but also the groin and other parts of the body, when clothing is interchanged on improperly cleaned. The feet may be bathed regularly in solutions containing one-half per cent of sodium hypochlorite, now widely used in locker rooms of gymnasiums and golf clubs. The ringworm of the groin may be controlled by seeing to it that the supporters are washed every day.

White underclothing may be worn under the supporter and ammoniated mercury ointments may be put on the skin to control the infection.

Special care should be given to towel used in locker rooms. Towels should never be put on the floor while the athlete bathes and

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Democrat's Washington Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 15. — Some of the codes may be busted by the industries which devised and are now operating under them.

And the new NRA, instead of tearing its hair, is likely to be heard singing softly, "They've gone, let 'em go—God help 'em!" The same administration which fought so desperately to get the big industries under codes and allowed them to roll their own will not, according to most advices from the inside, strive desperately to hold those industries at all costs.

Already important sections of certain industries are in revolt because their codes have been changed to curb price-fixing privileges or to cut hours and raise wages—or because the administration insists on observance of the collective bargaining law. There will be many more cases.

But the dissenters face a tendency in important places toward making the code arrangements of a more voluntary character, toward return to the original "fair competition" ideal, toward a firm policy against "predatory" interests, and toward attrition against rigid, artificial price levels considered unfairly out of line with the rest of the price structure.

How far this tendency will be translated into actual achievement, you can't tell. You can be sure, however, that the beginnings of the attempt are at hand.

The dominant New Deal theory now is that industries which won't play ball on the basis of increased wages and shorter hours in return for anti-trust law exemption and federal aid in maintaining fair competition, unless they can also have freedom for monopolistic practices—and fancy prices—can be brought to book in various ways.

A reorganized Federal Trade Commission will be counted on to enforce anti-trust laws against recalcitrant industries, while NRA, FTC, or both, also strengthen enforcement of codes.

Cummings To Go
 Sooner or later, Roosevelt must get himself a new attorney general to prosecute the FTC and NRA cases in the courts. Homer Cummings will be given another job—perhaps next month, perhaps next spring. Solicitor General Biggs won't last, either.

Labor Will Be Upheld
 The labor movement, greatly strengthened in the last year, can now be counted upon to protest effectively in most instances where an industry lowers wages or increases hours. There will be no letdown in the administration's insistence on collective bargaining and official strike against industry would probably conclude. Meanwhile, consumer protection developed which fight or help to seek to profit codes. And bolting will be up against unfair competition so many of the codes. When you over the New bring nose-throw into line, your job will be a cause NRA has them. Generally, speaking, the want the codes lows don't. A large number retain their B.

SAYS 'SHE LOVES ME NOT' IS BING CROSBY'S BEST PICTURE

A brand new, popular starring combination comes to the screen in Paramount's "She Loves Me Not," the film version of the smash Broadway success. The picture is current at the Ritz, with Bing Crosby and Miriam Hopkins in the principal roles. It is said to be the best story Bing has yet been given.

Acting the role of a love-sick chivalrous Princeton student, Crosby sings and wows his way to the great romance with the daughter of the university dean, after Miriam Hopkins, as the madcap, flamboyant little night-club dancer, enters his life, and leaves him a sadder-but wiser college lad.

Beginning with an utterly fantastic and ludicrous situation, the film in its rapid progress pokes decisive fun at colleges, the motion picture industry, the newspapers, communists, gangsters and most of the familiar American institutions. Yet there is not a trace of rancor or bitterness in its sparkling comedy.

A distinguished cast, including Warren Hymers, Lynne Overman, Judith Allen, George Barbier and Vince Barnett, support Crosby and Miss Hopkins. "She Loves Me Not" also features several brand new tunes by Ringer and Robin, and Gordon and Revel and a number of duets by Crosby and Miss Carlisle. Elliott Nugent directed.

"We are going to exhibit "She Loves Me Not" at our regular prices of 10c and 15c." Manager Lee Bell stated, "although this outstanding movie has received such fine advance notices should not be shown at such low prices. It has appeared in only a few of the nation's larger theatres and is being brought to Memphis concurrently with its showing in many larger towns."

Blonde, lissom Miriam Hopkins, acting the role of a flamboyant little cabaret dancer, is starred with Bing Crosby in Paramount's "She Loves Me Not," adapted from the Broadway stage success and now at the Ritz Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Mathney and son, Bill, of San Diego, Calif., arrived Thursday and will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Helm here over the week-end. Mrs. George O. Helm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathney, who has spent the summer here as guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Helm, will return to her home in San Diego with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dalton returned Friday from Arkansas where they have spent several months.

Miss Mary Helen Kinslow has returned from Chicago where she spent two weeks at the World's fair.
