FATTENING MARKET POULTRY

Great Variety of Feeds Can Be Used to Fatten Fowls—Broilers Grow Rapidly.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin on the profitable types of rations for fattening broilers and spring chickens. The bulletin, Bulletin 1052, Rations for Poultry in the Packing Plant, is issued by the bureau of Poultry and Egg Production of the United States Department of Agriculture. Since the poultry has become a large industry in the United States, information of the kind contained in this bulletin would be of a great deal of value to the grower.

Results obtained in the experiments reported in this bulletin show that a variety of feeds can be used to fatten broilers, springs, and hens, a fortunate situation which permits the grower to select a ration to market conditions and to take advantage of special prices for feeds and also to use feeds locally. A growing broiler or spring, requires a ration that is more than a mature hen, and most of her feed is made up of corn meal and a small amount of other feeds. It is about as good as any for broilers fed rations containing concentrates, such as peanut meal, soy-bean meal, or other feeds made appreciably better than those fed on corn meal and other feeds.

For the 22nd. You are requested to send or mail to us as we want this. Show ever held. period. Springs grew very well during the first two periods, but not so well the second. It was found that the feeding of hens only six to eight weeks is well founded. The dressing and chilling shrinkage of hens was much less than in the case of broilers, springs and roasters. As for the ordinary cereal grains supply the necessary carbohydrates and fats. More care is needed in selecting feeds for protein, salts and vitamins. The proteins of the cereal grains are present in too small amounts and are of too poor quality to produce the best results in broilers and springs unless other protein concentrates are added. Milk and cereals make one of the most profitable rations, as milk supplies mineral substances, vitamins and very valuable proteins. The results given in the bulletin show that peanut meal protein, as well as soy-bean meal protein, is especially valuable. The proteins of buttermilk are especially valuable, and if used in sufficiently large amounts produce very desirable results. Other protein concentrates are meat and fish scraps, cottonseed meal, peanut meal and sesame-seed meal. Corn, wheat, oats and other grains lack such mineral substances as calcium, sodium and chlorine which growing animals require. In the rations where buttermilk or skim milk is used, these ingredients are fairly well supplied. Milk also supplies vitamins. At present the milk available for poultry-fleshing purposes is largely buttermilk, fresh, condensed or powdered.

Those interested in the fleshing of poultry may get this bulletin by addressing the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

"Kidnap" Camera. When you inquire about the big camera the station photographer uses in taking the 1 1/2-inch square photographs for the 50-trip family ticket says, "Oh, it is a special one we rented years ago for kidnaping." "How do you number them?" "It is a six-exposure plate, and each these spaces on the sheet of paper responds to one on the plate. Each plate is numbered. We used to use a camera for kidnaping. Then you swallow your pride and hold it boldly: "What do you mean—kidnaping?" He laughs kindly at your ignorance. "Why, you know," he says, "we take cameras and go out on the street to see a little boy and take his picture. We get his name and address, and by after we develop the picture, we go around to his home and show it to his mother. If she likes the picture, she buys one. That's kidnaping."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

CHIMPANZEE'S SECOND TEETH

"Look Over a Card."

"It amused me," said the Chimpanzee, "when I heard a child in the zoo the other day speak of getting her second teeth as though she were so superior. 'She said she was getting them quite rapidly.' 'Now I get second teeth, too. Oh yes, I do. In fact, I have my second teeth. 'I've lost all my first teeth and my second teeth are in. These teeth I will always keep. 'Now I have quite a few tricks. I can cut at the table, fix my napkin, look over a card upon which is written the names of the different kinds of dishes to be had. 'Then I take a pencil and a pad and write down what I want. Perhaps my handwriting would be hard for some to read, but the keeper understands it, and what is more I get the food I want and the amount I want.

"The keeper understands that and he understands what it is I want, and the people like to see me write down my orders, so I do it to please them. 'The keeper and I know how people like to have their fun, and the children how with delight when they see me. 'Perhaps I shouldn't say this 'how' with delight, but they make many strange noises as they grin and clap their hands excitedly. 'I eat sliced bananas and rice pudding with a spoon, some other dishes with a fork and I pour the milk from the jug and put it in my glass. Then I drink it neatly. 'Sometimes I take a ride with my keeper when he is on his bicycle, and I often have walks in the summer-time. 'Then I have circus tricks, too. Not that I have ever been in a circus, but I know how to turn somersaults and do tricks of that sort. 'I have many relatives in the zoo—some of them are rather distant cousins, but still they are relatives. 'There are the spider monkeys. They use their tails as hands. I mean that each uses his one tail that way—they have but one apiece. 'And there are many different animals in this zoo. I shall introduce you to a few of them. 'I'd like to have you know Mr. Hairy Armadillo from South America, who is able to roll himself into a horny ball when enemies are near. 'You will have to go around the zoo later and see these creatures for yourself, but I'll tell you what I can about them and what I've heard the keeper say. 'Then there is Mr. Coypu. He's a rat, but I'm not holding that against him. 'He is called Nurria when he is sold as a fur. He's a water rat and Mrs. Coypu Rat's children sit on her back when they're young. 'Then there is Mr. Capybara who looks something like a pig. But hasn't he a fine name? He is from South America, too. He is devoted to swimming and is a kind, gentle, kindly, pleasant soul and very affectionate. 'Even if he has such a gorgeous name he's not in the least snobbish. For he said that he had once heard someone at the zoo say that a very famous person had written something about 'What's in a name?' 'And this person had written as though the name meant very little. 'Well, the Capybara says he agrees with that. 'There is Mr. Hyena who tells the zoo people that when he was free he used to do his hunting at night. 'And there are many, many others, but I must eat a banana now. 'I wouldn't have to do this if it hadn't been given to me, and I don't want to appear rude and as though I were not grateful. 'I hope you understand! 'But if you're going to say anything about me, please be sure to let those of the zoo know who want to know that I have my second teeth. 'And that I'm quite a Chimpanzee, quite a Chimpanzee!"

"Look Over a Card." table, fix my napkin, look over a card upon which is written the names of the different kinds of dishes to be had. "Then I take a pencil and a pad and write down what I want. # JUST FUN

HE UNDERSTOOD

"You admit you were speeding?" "Yes, your honor." "A frank confession goes a long way in this court. What excuse have you for exceeding the speed limit?" "A man in an old rattletrap flier drove up behind me and bawled to me to get out of the way and let somebody use the street who could get more out of one cylinder than I could get out of six." "Umph! I do a little motoring myself. I'll let you off with the minimum fine this time."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Part of a Collection. "Just a moment," interrupted the defendant's lawyer. "You say you despise this man you are suing for $50,000, yet you bring his alleged love letters into court carefully tied up with a pink ribbon." "There is no sentiment in that," replied the fair plaintiff, haughtily. "I merely used a pink ribbon to distinguish his from the others."

An Emergency Case. "Where are you going in such a hurry?" "To see a friend of mine," said Mr. Gadspar. "He needs my advice." "Is he in financial difficulties?" "No. He's the father of a two-year-old boy with curly hair and a dimple in his chin. I've just heard that he is planning to make the child a movie star."

Musical Note. A very deaf old woman walking along the street saw an Italian turning a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it a while, shook her head, and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and besides it smells as if there were something burning inside."—The Congregationalist.

Something in a Name. "Now here's a neat bungalow," said the real estate agent. "Just the thing for you, and only $5,000." "Let's enter into an amiable conspiracy," said the prospective customer. "Eh?" "Call it a cottage and cut the price."

HELPING HIM OUT "Your cousin's medical practice, I suppose, doesn't amount to much yet?" "No. We relatives do all we can, but of course, we can't be sick all the time."

If. If time were really money, Our lucky stars we'd thank. We'd save up all our losses And with it start a bank.

Information. "A man in your position cannot know too much," remarked the admiring friend. "It may be impossible to know too much," replied Senator Sorghum, "but it's mighty easy to tell too much."

Nothing Doing. "What you refuse to loan me $20—me your intimate friend, whom you once called your alter ego?" "Ah, my dear boy, I know myself too well—you would never return the money."

Wiser. Burrows—Sorry, old chap, but I am looking for a little financial succor, again. Bangs—You'll have to hunt further. I'm not the little financial sucker I used to be.—The Lawyer and Banker.

Proof of Devotion. "Tom proposed to me last night." "Did you accept him?" "Of course I did. Any man who would propose these times when the cost of living is so high must love a girl a lot."

His Comeback. Wife (bitterly)—The kind of woman for you to have married is a silly fool. Hub—I'm glad you think I did the correct thing, my dear.

Great Will Power. "Yes, indeed, my uncle can make me do anything he wants me to." "He must have great will power." "You bet he has. He can will $2,000,000."

Probably Had. He—Haven't I seen you somewhere sometime? She—Oh, very likely. I was there

Famous Pastry Chef Has Tasty Bran Dish

Francois Schmitt

A BRAN pudding, termed by those to whom it was served as "simply delicious," has been evolved by Francois Schmitt, pastry chef of the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York. Here it is: Four heaping teaspoonfuls bran, one tablespoonful flour, one-half tablespoonful corn starch, four eggs, three tablespoonful sugar, half cup butter, one-half pint milk. Chop up butter with flour, corn starch, bran and half of the sugar and add to boiling milk; stir well on fire for about one minute, take off, mix in the four yolks. At last add the four whites beaten stiff with rest of sugar. Pour in well buttered and sugared form and set in pan with a little water in bottom and bake in medium oven, for about thirty minutes.

Serve with apricot sauce made as follows: Put contents of one small can of apricots through a sieve, add one-half pound of sugar and let boil for about five minutes. The Bolshevik leaders have preserved the great Royal Palace of the Kremlin, of Moscow, almost without change, as a remainder of "the lavish wealth and the pomp and splendor of the old regime."

The clang of the fire gong roused the chief of the Corvallis, Oregon, fire department, who was coming out from under the ether following an operation. Doctors, attendants and nurses in the hospital failed to hold him and, half dazed, he jumped in his car, dashed up the street and arrived at the fire in time to direct operations.

TEXAS COTTON REPORT SHOWS GREAT DAMAGE DURING PAST 30 DAYS

State Department of Agriculture Says Report Indicates Production of 2,462,400 Bales.

The report of the acreage and condition of the Texas cotton crop, up to Sept. 1st, was compiled by R. E. Yantis, Statistician, and made public today by Commissioner Geo. B. Terrell. The report shows great damage to the crop caused mostly by drouth, during the last thirty days.

In giving out the report Mr. Terrell said: "This report covers 193 counties, practically all the cotton producing counties, with from one to fifteen reports from each county. The reports received from Presidents and Secretaries of Farmers' Institutes, County Farm Demonstration Agents, County Commissioners, Bankers, Merchants and individual farmers, and verified, as far as possible, by our field men. The drouth seems to be the cause of the greatest damage, as a large per cent of the cotton was late, especially in the western and northwestern parts of the State and in the flooded districts, and had no mature bolls when the drouth set in. Damage by boll weevil and leaf worms was also reported. The report indicates a condition of 58.67 per cent, and a yield of one fifth of a bale per acre, while our reports for August 1st indicated a condition of 71 per cent and a yield slightly more than one fourth of a bale per acre.

Taking the Government figures of 12,312,000 acres, planted, which I believe to be too high, it indicates a yield of 2,462,400 bales, as compared with 2,179,143 bales produced last year. If the yield in the other States is as low in proportion as that of Texas, the total crop of the South will be less than 10,000,000 bales, and warrants a price of at least 30 cents per pound. There will be a cotton famine next year, and nothing short of a conspiracy can keep the price from advancing.

Near the Yukon border, in a valley in far northern British Columbia, a mining engineer has discovered the remains of mastodons that once roamed northern Canada. This valley is north and west of the headwaters of the Findlay River and is not marked on the maps. Footprints of a three-toed animal are imprinted in the sandstone. The bones are not fossilized but are in an excellent state of preservation. Only dog teams are used in that section and it requires a year to make the journey.

Notice to Singers

The Hall County Singing Convention will meet at the First Baptist Church in Memphis at 10: o'clock a. m. on the second Saturday in September and continue through Saturday and Sunday. A business session will be held Saturday afternoon at which time a Panhandle District Singing Convention will be organized. All singers are invited to attend. There will be no singing Sunday morning and visiting singers will be invited to attend their respective churches and render special music. All the churches will be glad to have a few special numbers by the visitors. Dinner will be served on Sunday at the City Park and people coming from adjacent communities are asked to bring baskets, coming from adjacent communities singing together.

Respectfully,
W. A. McINTOSH,
President of Convention.

Ginning Service

When you buy gin service there are several things to be considered. First your own interest demands that you get the best to be had, in the way of sample, turnout, clean seed, and service.

Since buying the WHITE & WALKER GIN PLANT, we have spent two months time and something like three thousand dollars getting the plant in shape to render a class of service second to none.

Our plant will be in the hands of experienced men only at all times, we have installed a cleaning system which we believe is far superior to anything ever brought to this territory.

We will be able to give you the best service to be had in our line, in handling all grades of cotton, from the low grade bollies, to the best staple cotton.

We earnestly solicit your patronage on the basis of better service, give us a chance to show you how well we can serve you. We shall be glad to let you be the sole judge as to whether we merit your continued patronage or not.

Thanking you in advance for any favors you may show us.

We are yours for better service.

GERLACH GIN COMPANY.

Lor School Time

SCHOOL TIME means Shoe Time soon. School children, both boys and girls, with their out-door games, are proverbially hard on shoes. Ordinary shoes last them but a short time, and the expense of keeping their feet properly shod is quite an item in the expenses of the average household. A little care and good judgement, however, will often effect a considerable saving. A shoe well-selected, and properly fitted will give far greater service than shoes bought in the ordinary way. Let us help you save on school shoes—send the children, or bring them here and we will be glad to assist in seeing that they are properly and economically shod.

Deep Lake Doings

Cotton picking is in full sway now but it won't take long to put the finishing touch to it.

Work on the Home People's well was started again last week after several weeks delay.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lutrell returned home last week from a visit to East Texas. They report a nice trip.

The trustees are adding a new room to the school building at Deep Lake.

They say it rains on the just and unjust but we believe it rains on the unjust in the winter time. Probably we will get plenty of rain this winter.

E. C. Barnett of Lakeview visited with his brother, P. F. Barnett, of this neighborhood last Sunday.

Carty Dunn made a business trip to Memphis last Saturday.

Bathing is again in full sway at the lake as the lakes are separated now.

T. N. Baker took a load of hogs to Memphis last week.

Quite a number from here attended the I. O. O. F. convention at Lakeview last Friday and reported a good time with lots of good eats.

Buffalo Flat Flashes

Garland Coker has been visiting his brother, Harrison Coker, this week. Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Davis left for Meadow, Texas, last week.

The new school house is progressing on business last week.

I. L. Perkins went to Lockney on business last week.

Hulver Hints

Bro. Strickland, of Tell, returned home Monday after spending a week with us helping in the meeting. Our meeting closed Sunday night with something over forty conversions.

Miss Jewell King, of Parnell, spent Saturday night with Miss Mattie Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Davidson and children returned Saturday from an extended trip in Colorado, visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sloan. Mr. Davidson's sister and little daughter accompanied them home.

A number of folk from Parnell attended the meeting regularly.

Miss Mary Cooper of Memphis spent a few days visiting at the home of her uncle, S. S. Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. K. V. McGlocklin have moved just across from the gin and Mr. McGlocklin will work there this season.

Cotton pickers are needed very badly to help gather the crop. Picking will be much earlier this year, because of the dry weather.

Leo Cooper and family came in from Abernathy and visited relatives a few days this week.

Bro. Baker, of Memphis, visited us one night during our recent meeting. Staying at the home of T. A. Hill.

Miss Aileen Parks, from Clarendon, who has been visiting at Estelline came out and spent several days here with friends. Miss Parks formerly lived here, and we are glad to welcome her back for even a short stay.

To Hall County Voters:

I wish to publicly express my appreciation to the voters throughout Hall county for the support accorded me in the run-off primary.

I know that my nomination is due to the support of friends who loyally stayed by me in the face of all opposition, and not to my own efforts; and I assure them that I am truly grateful and that, if elected, I shall make every effort to justify their confidence and support by rendering to the public the very best service I am capable of giving.

JOE MERRICK.

COTTON POOL MEMBERS WHO OFFER TO SELL OUTSIDE ENJOINED

Members of the Hall County Farm Bureau Cotton Association are warned not to attempt to sell cotton contracted to the association outside the association. Any such attempts will be met by injunctions and any member who make such sales will be sued to enforce the terms of the contracts made with the association.

This warning is published with the hope that it may save trouble and expense to any who contemplate disregarding their contract.

E. M. EWEN, President Hall County Cotton Ass'n.

CELEBRATES 70TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Brooks gave a birthday dinner Tuesday, August 20th, celebrating Mrs. Brook's 70th birthday anniversary. Twigg Brooks and wife, J. M. Lane and wife of Memphis came over for the event. Mrs. Brooks is hale and hearty at seventy, and we hope she enjoys many more birthday dinners.—Wellington Leader.

First Presbyterian Church

The services at this church were exceptionally good last Sunday. The singing at both of the church services, led by our splendid senior choir in the morning and the large chorus-orchestra, was refreshing and inspiring. A special feature at the evening service was the rendering of a trombone solo by R. E. Stroup.

The pastor occupied his pulpit, feeling rested and invigorated by his vacation in the mountains. For this privilege he most heartily thanks the church.

The Presbytery of Amarillo of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. will meet with the Chillicothe congregation next Tuesday, the 12, inst. The hour for the opening session has not yet been announced by the Executive Committee, but it will likely be 8:00 o'clock.

Sermon Theme, 11:00 a. m.—"Two Cordinated."

As this will be the only preaching service of the day, it is hoped that all of the members and affiliates will be in attendance. Large audiences are always encouraging to the pastor and the people. If you are absent, you will be missed, and you will miss something too. Thomas did, and he never regained what he lost by his absence.

By a vote of the session, the evening services for next Sunday have been called in on account of the Hall County Singers' Convention. This church will co-operate with the other churches in the song-services to be held in the Baptists church in the afternoon and evening. The members of this church are requested to take or send their basket-dinners to the City Park that out-of-town people may share with them.

The Sunday school will meet promptly at 9:45 a. m. All the classes without exception are requested to assemble in the Sunday school room both for the opening and closing exercises.

Prayermeeting Wednesday 8:00 p. m.

Choir rehearsal, Thursday, 7:30 p. m.

Eugene B. Kuntz, pastor.

ENJOY BIRTH DAY DINNER

Henry DeLamar entertained a number of relatives with a dinner at his home in Wellington last Sunday in honor of his father's, J. N. DeLamar, seventy fourth birthday.

With Henry and his wife were W. S. Cross and wife of Memphis; George McCauley and family and Dr. D. D. Cross and wife of Wellington, and J. N. DeLamar and family, Hubert Moore and wife and Ben Moore and family of this city—Hollis Saturday Times.

FARM LABOR UNION TO ASK REMOVAL OF DENISON TROOPS

Denison, Sept. 1.—It was learned here last night that there is a general movement over Texas among members of the Farm-Labor Union to request Governor Pat M. Neff to remove State troops from Denison. It is said the troops are costing taxpayers over $1,200 per day to act as guards of the Katy Railroad property, and at other points in Texas the guards are paid by the railroads.

It is said communications and telegrams have been sent to W. W. Fitzwater, national president of the Farm-Labor Union with headquarters in Bonham, asking that he take some action immediately and President Fitzwater has started the movement among the members. About 500 men have been stationed in Denison as guards since July 26. Local leaders would not commit themselves about the movement.

I. B. Good is a Mennonite preacher in Pennsylvania. His precepts do not belie his name, for that sect believes in nonresistance.

BEAR AND BEAVER

Billy Bear waved his head and sang this song:
"There was a young bear in the zoo
Who said, 'I'm disgusted it's true,
'Just because I'm a bear,
'And because I've four legs and not two."

Then Benjamin Beaver who was not far off in his zoo home sang this song:
"There was a young beaver and he'd
Work with a boat,
But he knew as well how to rest,
He'd work and he'd work,
Not a task would he shrink,
But when he was through,
He was through, through, through."

Billy Bear waved his head in the direction of Benjamin Beaver's home and he said:
"That was a good song, Benjamin. There was some sense to what you said and it rhymed quite nicely."
"That was a good song, Billy Bear. I'm glad it pleased you. I liked your poem. I thought it was fine, and it had a lot of sense, too, because it is foolish for people to think it's any more queer to have four legs than to have two. That showed thought

THE INE AND OUTS OF IT

Stall Rebecca was proud of her father's rank as a first lieutenant, and grew quite indignant when a neighbor boy called him "Captain."
"I'll have you understand that my daddy is not a captain," she said, "he is a lieutenant."
"Oh, it doesn't matter," replied the boy, "he's an officer."
"He is not an officer," she protested.
"Yes, dear, a lieutenant is an officer," interrupted her mother.
"Well," persisted Rebecca, still determined to maintain her father's dignity at all cost, "he's not much of an officer, anyway."

The Cashier.
A young woman went to call on a lady who had entertained her. The latter's five-year-old daughter, who was playing on the lawn, said: "Mamma isn't at home."
"I am sorry," replied the young woman, "for I have come to pay my party call."
"Oh, I'll take the money," said the child promptly.

MAKING A DAY OF IT

Blind Sport—Go on home Owley, old boy, you don't want to make a fool of yourself.
Educational.
"Did you get a chance to talk with Francine before she eloped with 'Speck'?" asked Heloise of the rapid fire restaurant.
"Ye-ah," replied Claudine of the same establishment. "She said folks call him no good, but she didn't know any reason why she shouldn't marry him if she wanted to."
"Well, she's taken the short way to find out, I'll say."

A Run of Luck.
"The closest call I ever had," said the ruddy-faced passenger, "was out in Arizona. Our train ran onto a bridge where the supports had been washed away by a flood."
"And the train fell into the river?"
"No; as good luck would have it, just at that moment it was being held up by train robbers."

Maintenance.
"Which do you prefer, a horse or an automobile?"
"When all is said and done," replied Farmer Cornotossel, "give me a boss. You can raise enough hay to feed a lot of bosses, but to keep a flock of flivvers going you've got to discover an oil well."

TELL OF PREHISTORIC TIMES

University of Chicago Professor Reads History in Specimens Thousands of Centuries Old.

Enormous ferns, gigantic rushes and club mosses and strange-looking trees, many of them more than 100 feet in height and with needles of two or three yards length, and a host of insects, among which huge dragon flies and cockroaches apparently predominated, once inhabited a swamp at Braidwood, Ill., according to Adolf C. Noe, professor of paleobotany at the University of Chicago.

Professor Noe reconstructed this picture of the vegetation and animal life of prehistoric times from fossilized remains found in Skinner mine No. 2, in the Braidwood district, fifty-seven miles southeast of Chicago.

"The Braidwood mine," Professor Noe stated, "is now the best place to find fossils in northern Illinois and has somewhat replaced the famous Mazon creek deposits in popularity with collectors."
"The coal is found at a depth of forty-nine feet and directly above it is a grayish shale which the miners call soapstone, and which contains round calcareous stones. If you crack these stones with a hammer they split into half like a sandwich, and on the inside of each half you see the impression of fern leaves and other plants of the coal era. Also insects, fishes, crawfish and other small inhabitants of land, water and air are found, but the plants are most predominant."

"A considerable number of plant species can be listed from Braidwood and we are able to reconstruct in our imaginations a lively picture of the vegetation of these long, bygone days."
"There was once in Braidwood a swamp which stretched far east, west and south, and which was inhabited by enormous ferns, gigantic rushes and club mosses, and strange-looking trees which had needles of two or three yards length. Many of the trees of that time must have been more than 100 feet in height, as we can judge from the size of the trunk and leaves."
"The animal population of these swamps contained small reptiles, amphibians, fishes and a host of insects, among which enormous dragon-flies and gigantic cockroaches seem to have been predominant. There were no butterflies, no warm-blooded animals, no birdlike reptiles, no flowers. Probably the only colors which living nature provided were green, brown, yellow and black. The sounds were the croaking of froglike amphibia and the noise produced by cockroaches and dragon-flies; no singing of birds, no chirping of crickets."

"A strange world! Of the enormous vegetable masses which fell into these swamps the coal beds were formed, and 100,000,000 years passed away before man came and ultimately utilized again the sunlight and heat which had been stored up in these millions of tons of coal."

"Ads" on Postage Stamps.
Advertisements, reports the Westminster Gazette, are to appear on the back of British postage stamps and on the walls of the post office, according to a statement by Mr. Kellaway, the postmaster general, at the 1920 club. Mr. Kellaway hopes to derive a substantial revenue from the innovation, stating that he was "not going to plaster the post office with advertisements, or have advertisements on the back of stamps, unless there was a decent return to be got out of it."

He stated that the post office had invited tenders from contractors for these advertisements. The Westminster Gazette understands that the advertisements will be affixed to the stamps before the gum is applied.
Although the work of obtaining advertisements and fixing the terms is to be delegated to contractors, the notices will have to be approved by the postmaster general. It is understood that all classes of advertisements except those dealing with alcoholic liquors will be accepted for approval.

Whisky Not Necessity of Life.
Whisky is not a necessity of life, even for a Scotchman in the tropics, according to a decision reached in the courts of Nairobi, Kenya Colony, East Africa, after lengthy legal arguments, reports the London Express correspondent.

The question arose over a case in which a grocery store sued a minor for goods supplied. The law says that the only debts which can be recovered from minors are those incurred in supplying the necessities of life. The debt in question included an item of three bottles of whisky. It was argued for the prosecution that as the minor was a Scotchman living in the tropics whisky was a necessity, but his arguments were overruled, and an order made for the debt, minus the value of the three bottles.

Shyness of Sandy.
In a rural district of Forfeashire a young plowman went courting one evening. In vain he racked his brain for some interesting topic; he could call up no subject at all suitable for the occasion; not one sentence could he utter, and for two long hours he sat on in silent despair.

The girl herself was silent; she no doubt remembered the teaching of the old Scotch song: "Men maun be the first to speak," and she sat patiently regarding him with demure surprise.
At last he exclaimed suddenly: "Penny, there's a feather on your apron!"
"I widge ha'e wondered if there had been two," said Penny, "for I've been ettrine cauld a swaw a' slicht."—The

A Pair of Fugitives

By MALCOLM BROWN
Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Jim Washington, the porter, went to the door of his car. Upon the platform of the next car another porter stood, snatching a few inhalations from a cigarette.
"Howdy, Joe," said Jim. "Your car pretty full?"
Joe drew in a cloud and flung the stump away. "Mostly women," he said. "How yours?"

"Tolerat," Jim answered. "Say, Joe, there's a girl in Section 2 been crying ever since I come on at Springfield. I reckon she left her fellow behind. Well, I reckon business will be better next month, when the regular crowd starts north."

Only the porter had observed the girl in Section 2, for she was at the end of the car. Hilda Mercer opened her suitcase and a pad with a little pencil attached, and began to write.
"I should not have left you if you had been frank with me, Will," she wrote. "What I cannot forgive is— She stopped and stared out into the driving rain. "It was because I always believed in you," she continued. But the letter was tear-spotted, and she tore it into strips and watched them flutter out into the storm. She would not write that letter. She had written one, and Will would find it when he returned to New York the following morning at eight o'clock.

Two men were seated in the smoking car. One was about five and thirty years of age; he might have been an accountant or bank cashier, for he had the alert air of one who is in the deadly struggle of commercial life. The other lolled heavily in his seat, scanning the first man with furtive persistence. Suddenly he leaned forward, a curious smile upon his mouth.
"Aren't you the paying teller of the Merchants' and Brokers' over in Brooklyn?" he inquired. "My name's Phil Graves. I used to have an account with you."

The other seemed stunned by the recognition. "I used-to-be there," he answered, his voice quivering slightly. Then he made his way back to Section 3, opposite the girl.
Hilda started and looked round at him. Their eyes met, and the teller rose up and stood before her.
"Don't you remember me, Mrs. Mercer?" he asked, smiling forlornly.
Her eyes lit up. "It's you, Alfred Burton!"

Burton sat down beside her.
"Hilda, there's something wrong between Will Mercer and you," said Burton. "You're running away. You're running away" to think, just as you used to do. You mustn't think, but act. I want you to turn right round at Brattleboro and go back to him. There isn't a finer man living than Will Mercer."
"I know there isn't!" she answered impetuously, and then she saw how hideously wrong she had been. It was not Will from whom she was running away, but her own discontent; and she was carrying it in her heart.
"It's too late now," she answered dismally, and looked out into the rain again.

It was impossible to return before Will got home. There was no train from Brattleboro till morning.
She was crying hysterically. Burton let her hand fall and stared at the cushions of the seat opposite. He had urged her to go back, but what about herself? He, too, must be back by Monday morning or become a fugitive. Fate seemed to have laid in wait for him.

He swung round in his seat suddenly. "Hilda," he said, "I'm running away too. I have six thousand dollars in my pocket that doesn't belong to me."
A jar shook them in their seats, a whistle shrieked, and the train ground its way to a standstill.

They heard the cries. "The down train wrecked! She's catching fire! Saved ourselves by six inches!" Burton was outside, one of the crowd that surged about a line of halted cars, two of which lay on their sides amid the wreckage. The passengers in the two cars seemed to have escaped by a miracle.
Hours seemed to pass. The passengers on both trains waited.

Burton had not spoken to Hilda Mercer. He did not even notice the arrival of the wrecking train till somebody touched his shoulder. Then he looked up to see Jim standing over him.
"We're going on in five minutes, boss," said the darkey.
Burton got up unsteadily. "I'm not going on," he muttered.
"It's all right, boss," replied the porter. "The line's clear and the down-train's getting ready to start. She'll reach New York by midnight. We'll both have to make up time."
"New York!" cried Burton, and suddenly the miracle was made clear to him. Burton snatched up her suitcase.

"Hilda!" he cried, "we're going back—going home. That train's going to make New York by midnight. Hurry! We've got our chance to make amends."
Burton helped her aboard the down-train. They sat down together. He turned to Hilda.
"We're going to make the most of life now," he whispered. "And I'm going to call on you and Will some day."

She leaned back happily; and then it was he realized that his love had not proved in vain, even though it had failed.

Tired
"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired, all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't ever hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—
CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic
... I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."
Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.
