Democrat Under New Management

With this issue of the Memphis Daily Democrat, the paper is under new ownership and management.

Russell Middleton, of Amarillo, has purchased the Memphis Publishing Company from Lyman E. Robbins, Wilbur C.
Hawk and associates, and has personally taken charge of the publication.

Mr. Robbins has not announced his future plans, but will retain a connection with The Democrat until September 15. There will be no other change in the personnel of the paper.

Mr. Middleton has been a practising certified public accountant and attorney-at-law at Amarillo for the past several years. Prior to that time, he was connected with the Hawk & Howe newspapers and the Lindsey Nunn Publishing Co.

"My aim will be to give the people of the Memphis Area
the best local newspaper it is possible to publish. . . live, local and full of news of this section." Mr. Middleton announced. "While national and world-wide news will not be overlooked, at no time will it be forgotten that the primary purpose of the publication is to give its readers all the news that happens right here at home."

Mr. Middleton is arranging to move his family from Amarillo to this city at once, to become a part in the life and interests of Memphis.

CAR THIEF IS CAPTURED AT CLARENDON

Jailed in Two Hours
After Car Stolen
At Postoffice

Quick work by the sheriff's department Friday afternoon apprehended a car thief, recovered the stolen car, and had the culprit in jail before the crime was two hours old.

Bailey Gilmore had driven Henderson Smith's car to the postoffice, after his mail. On coming out of the building, he found the car gone, and immediately notified the sheriff's office.
Deputy Wilson at once notified all surrounding towns of the

COTTON SENATORS TALK WITH PRESIDENT

Here are the Southern senators who conferred with President Roosevelt to end the agrarian revolt and settle the amount of cotton loans. Left to right, as they gathered at the White House, are Senators Hugo L. Black of Alabama, Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, Tom Connally of Texas, Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, and Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

CCC Camp Now Is Busy Place

A visit to the CCC camp will convince anyone that this is just now one of the busiest spots in the city.

The headquarters office force is knee deep in month-end reports, and the enlisted personnel is busy starting beautification of the grounds.

The company street between the buildings is being prepared for graveling. A border of white gyp rock will be laid on each side of the gravel, and sidewalks will lead off to each building on the grounds. The grounds are to be filled in and set to grass this fall, and they expect to have a nice lawn next spring.

The past week a drainage ditch has been dug along the north boundary of the camp.

Enrollment of juniors for the CCC camps has been going forward all week, and 164 men have been signed up since Monday morning. Four of these went to the Perryton camp, one negro to the Canyon camp, and the remainder to the camp at Deming,
N. M.

Inasmuch as the authorization for recruiting these new men called for 189, there is still room for 25 more rookies.

No word has been received by the camp directors as to who will be sent here to replace Riley Carlton, resigned educational director, who accepted a place on the faculty of the Memphis schools.

Italy Will Call 200,000 More Men

By Associated Press
BOLXANO, Italy, Aug. 31.—
Premier Mussolini today told soldiers of his great army, engaged in war maneuvers, that 200,000 more men would be called to the colors next month, to bring the total number under arms to more than a million.
"The world should know again," the Premier said, "that so long as one talks absolutely and provocatively of sanctions, we will not give up one soldier, one sailor, or one aviator."

REMODELING OF RITZ THEATRE IS COMPLETE

Show House Is Made
More Attractive
By Changes

Following the example recently set by its first cousin, the Palace Theatre, the Ritz Theatre is all
"dolled up" in new clothes.

With Hollis Boren, owner, and Lee Bell, manager, supervising the renovation, the Ritz had its face lifted almost overnight.

A new deep plush carpet covers the foyer floor, and another runs down the aisle for the full length of the building. Thus, noisy feet are silenced.

And there are new curtains and new paint in the foyer. An attractive marquee for the theatre's front was completed about three weeks ago.

Sound has been greatly improved in the theatre. Expensive sound drapes have been hung the entire length of the building and all sound equipment has been completely reconditioned.

TEACHERS BACK FROM TECH SCHOOL

Thought Fall Classes Will Begin in
Two Weeks

The Hall County delegation of adult education teachers returned Friday from the training school at Texas Tech, at Lubbock.

They report a splendid school there, and return to their fall work feeling much better equipped to fill their places.

Those from this city who were in attendance at the school were:
Mesdames J. W. Bragg, Seth
Stewart, Durwood McCool, Bud
Godfrey, A. W. Guill, Flora Linder, Leroy Burns, Jack Bryan,
Paul Morris, and Messrs. J. H.
Treadwell, O. L. Barham, Ted Musgrove and R. C. Householder.

They state that no definite instructions have yet been received as to just when the fall adult education classes will begin, but that it is thought they will be under way within the next two weeks.

SAGER APPOINTED

George Sager was notified yesterday that he had been appointed foreman in the soil erosion service at the Amarillo CCC camp, and will leave for that city Monday. He will probably move his family there later.

WHAT DO YOU THINK? Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION:
What do you think of a municipal airport for Memphis?

THE ANSWERS:
WAYNE DAVIS: It is a necessary as having cheese with apple pie.

In the not too far distant future those cities having airports along the air mail lanes will be awarded contracts, whereby they will become air mail terminals.

Memphis should build a municipal port and work towards this end. We are only two miles off the established air mail routes and I feel certain that when the time does come we could secure the air mail center here, even though Childress is considered by many as the logical place, as it is a larger city and already has an airport. However, it is even farther off of the lanes than Memphis, being 12 miles away, which makes quite a difference in maintaining schedules, etc.

The field could be made self sustaining by following the policies of the other ports in the state.
The gas, which they sell to commercial and private planes has tax levied on it. This sum would be far in excess to what we would have to charge as our expenditure and maintenance costs would be below that of the larger cities.
Also, the air companies would help pay for the cost of lighting and in keeping the field in good shape, as they might have the emerGENCY landings. I believe, I am correct in saying that there are no emergency fields this side of Clarendon.

The CCC Camp could utilize their men in the construction of the field. It is an ideal project for the WPA work, as it would require almost manual labor throughout the entire building.
Incidentally, the Government uses

SEVERAL NEW DEPARTMENTS TO MAKE THEIR BOW IN 1935 TERM

The Memphis Public Schools will open tomorrow morning for what is predicted will be the most successful year in the history of the local school system.

Around a thousand students, both white and colored, will report to their various buildings, ready for nine months of work, after summer vacations.

ESTELLINE WILL OPEN SCHOOLS MONDAY

Add New Department
To Curriculum
For 1935

Special to The Democrat

ESTELLINE, Aug. 31.—With quite a bit of new equipment, much remodeling and repairing done to the building, and a new department of Vocational Agriculture added to the curriculum, the Estelline Public Schools will open Monday with an estimated enrollment of 250 pupils, according to Supt. J. T. Duncan.

The department of Vocational Agriculture, added this year, will be under the direction of Walter Lahay, a graduate of Texas Tech, and a good enrollment is expected in the new department.

The Estelline Parent-Teachers Association recently added to the school library a complete set of Compton's Encyclopedia. In addition to this, more than $250 worth of new books has been placed on the library shelves. In selecting these books, the school paid particular attention to the requirements of the state reading course.

The school building has been renovated throughout. Weather-strips have been placed on all windows, and double doors installed at all entrances. New shades have been placed in the building. Drinking fountain facilities have been enlarged, and urinals placed in the boys' lavatoirs.

Four school buses, as last year, will make the routes to pick up pupils living in outlying sections.

The faculty for the coming term is as follows:

High School—J. T. Duncan,

They will find some new faces among the faculty, and any number of new features which before had no part in the local schools.

Pupils will report at 9:00 a. m., and will be enrolled in their various departments and classes. No opening program will be held until the new organization is set up and running smoothly.

A meeting yesterday morning of everyone connected in any way with the schools was held.
Faculty, bus drivers and janitors
—they were all there for a discussion of the program for the coming year. Superintendent Davis went into detail as to his plans for the 1935-36 term, and following the meeting everyone was enthusiastic over prospects for the best term in the history of the schools.

New departments to be found in the High and Junior High schools for the coming term will include: rhythmic band at West Ward, boys' glee club at the High School, boys' and girls' choral clubs at both High and Junior High, a new school band at the Junior High, in addition to the present Senior High organization, woodcraft, vocational agriculture and a commercial department at Senior High.

The Public Speaking department, dropped last year, will also be revived this year. This department will be under the direction of L. C. Symers, from Byers, Texas. Mr. Symers is the holder of an A. B. degree and has had several years experience in this work.

The faculty at the various schools for the coming term is as follows:

Superintendent, W. C. Davis.
Senior High—H. J. Gore, principal, chemistry; Harold Walker, athletic coach, algebra; Mrs. Jack Hubbard, home economics; Mrs.
Carl Periman, Spanish; Miss Eloise Norman, history; Mrs. Ken-non Hillyer, English; H. A. Howard, commercial; Sam S. Cowan, mathematics and science; R. W.
Carlton, vocational agriculture;
L. C. Symers, English and public speaking.

Junior High—L. C. Linn, principal, woodcraft; Mrs. Clifford Lemons, English; Mrs. Lon Montgomery, history; Mrs. C. S.
Compton, arithmetic. Miss Ira
Hammond, English; Mrs. Otho
Fitzjarrald, science; Miss Zada
Belle Walker, Penmanship.

West Ward—Mrs. H. B. Estes, principal; Miss Grace Ezzell, low first; Miss Carrie Bell Lee, low first; Miss Jewel Keenan, high first; Miss Thelma Shankle, low second; Mrs. L. G. DeBerry, low second; Miss Ruth Pendergast, high second; Miss Myldred Bishop, low third; Mrs. H. J.
Gore, low third; Mrs. Norma
Hunt, high third; Mrs. F. L. Hall, low fourth; Mrs. W. B. Kimber-lin, low fourth; Miss Mary Foreman, high fourth.

To the People Of Memphis And Vicinity

The Memphis Daily Democrat has been sold to Russell Middleton, of Amarillo, who is taking charge effective today.

I have known Mr. Middleton for the past five years and can recommend him highly to the people of the Memphis Area.
I am confident he will publish a daily newspaper of which you may well feel proud. I am likewise confident that he will continue and enhance the Democrat's policy of fearlessly championing those things which are to the Memphis Area's best interests.

To business men and to others who have given the Daily Democrat both moral and financial support while it has been under my management, I want to extend sincerest thanks. Your fine spirit has given The Democrat life, and will, I know, be responsible for a constantly greater Memphis.

You will find Mr. Middleton worthy of the same high type of co-operation and I commend him to you as a capable man who will make a good citizen and who will join you in keeping Memphis in its rightful place under the sun.

START TODAY THIS STORY OF LOVE AND MYSTERY IN A GRIM OLD MANSION

CHAPTER I

TWO young men leaving an eastern army camp in the fall of 1917, both in a great hurry, both carrying suitcases and wearing on their collars the shining new bars of second lieutenant, bumped squarely into one another. Each muttered, "Pardon!" at the same time and hastened on his way. Each was about to be sent overseas. Each was going home first, for a brief visit with an adored wife and child. Each, during that visit, took on his knees his baby daughter and caressed her, and wondered if he would come back to the things he loved—home and wife and child.

Brian Chalmers, turning 2-year-old Elaine back to her sedate English nurse, pulled one of the child's sunny curls teasingly. "Goodby, Beautiful! You'll be asleep when I pull out in the morning. If I don't come back, don't take any wooden nickels or stepfathers!"

The child laughed with delight at the jolly, meaningless words her father was saying. She liked his pungent, tobaccoish, shaving-cream smell, and the feel of his lean, hard cheek against her own. She liked his big polished boots and the funny belt that went around his waist and up over one shoulder. "By, Daddy!" she said, kissing him rapturously.

"She likes men," the child's mother drawled. She was a beautiful woman in a clinging sea-green negligee, with a face that was rather soft and petulant. "She's going to be man-hungry, that girl. A little witch. I'm already jealous of her."

The man drew his wife to the arm of his chair and buried his face in the scented lace of her negligee. "You like men, too," he accused. "If I'm blown to atoms over there you'll select the best-looking mourning in town. You'll wear it becomingly for a year, and the day you step out of it you'll marry Higate Deal!"

"Darling!" she remonstrated. "Must you be spiteful about all the men who have nice safe jobs in Washington?"

"No," answered Brian Chalmers. "Only when they're your old suitors and still in love with you. Gwen, you'll take good care of Elaine, won't you?"

The woman's eyes opened in surprise. "What a thing to say to the child's own mother! Please remember, dear, that I love her, too. I put in hours and hours selecting her little frocks and toys."

"I know," the man nodded impatiently. "But I'm thinking of her character, Gwen, and things like that. I want her to grow up to be fine and straight and dependable." He paused uncertainly and lit a cigaret. "Lord! What DO I want for her?" He looked after the lovely child as she toddled up the broad stairway, holding tightly to her nurse's hand. "I suppose I just want her to have anything in this world that'll make her happy. Yes," he repeated it, rather like a prayer, "—anything in the world that will make her happy."

The other young man was named George Woodson. He and his wife, Eleanor, were so beautifully and simply in love with each other that this short leave of his was like a bit of heaven in a sea of horror. Through every hour of its radiance sounded the relentless drum-beat of approaching separation, of submarine-infested seas, and a war to be fought.

They were restless in their love and foreboding. George said, "Let's walk along the river this evening. It's swell in October—"

"I'd thought of a picnic supper there," Eleanor replied. "At the little cove where we used to go when we were engaged. But there's Baby Ruth, dear. She has a croupy cough and we shouldn't leave her. Mrs. Gary would come in to look after her, but I'm just afraid—do you mind terribly? I've a party for us in the icebox. A cold chicken and all the things you love—"

George Woodson took his wife in his arms. "Mind, dear? It doesn't matter to me where I am. Just so you are near enough to touch. Tell me, Eleanor! If I don't come back, will you promise—?"

Her dark eyes widened in pain and she quickly laid her hand over his mouth. "Don't say it!" she begged. "Don't think it!"

"I will!" he replied stubbornly. "It's got to be said. We've evaded it long enough. If I fail to come back, you're ready to go on gamely. That will be your duty, just as it's mine to go out and die, if necessary, to get this bloody war ended."

She replied in a muffled voice from his arms. "Your part is easier than mine, George. I'd rather go and fight than wait here. I'd rather die in battle than be left without my very heart."

"I know," he said soothingly. "I know," to himself he was thinking: "War is hellish. Just three years ago we found each other. It was in the fall, like this. I loved the way she walked along picking up red leaves, sticking them in her hat, in her dress. I loved the way she laughed and the way she sang, a little off key, like a happy child. I loved the way she closed her eyes when she kissed me. I still love these things in her. I'd like to go on loving them forever. Instead, I'm going off to a dizzy war that somebody else started, and maybe have my guts torn out with a cold steel bayonet—"

"George," Eleanor said, "you're shivering. Are you cold?"

"No," he replied. "You're imagining things. What I started

Ruth Woodson's face made the passerby want to stop and look again . . . not because of any startling beauty but because of an inner radiance and piquancy of expression.

to say, dear, is this. If I shouldn't come back, you'll have Ruth to take care of. It's not as if we had parents and brothers and sisters to help you. There's nobody you'll have any real claim on. But there'll be my insurance. My war risk insurance, and $2,000 more, of the regular kind. I'll show you the papers tonight—"

"There's no use in your urging me to live on," she said, "if you don't come back to me. I wouldn't. I couldn't. I would go to you, wherever you might be. Someone else would care for Ruth—"

He loved her the more, even for this weakness, this inconsistency. "All within five minutes," he pointed out, "you've refused to leave your baby for a picnic because she has croup, and you've refused to live for her if I die. That's logic for you."

They laughed together, rather shakily, and she pushed him down into his favorite chair and filled his pipe for him. He said, "Isn't that a new dress you're wearing?"

She answered, "Of course. If you hadn't noticed it, I was going to put poison in your tea. I'm making over the yellow flannel into a coat for Ruth. It's going to have cunning beaver collar and cuffs, made out of my neck-piece."

"More inconsistencies," he remarked, raising one eyebrow. "What'll you do for a neck-piece?"

Eleanor answered, "I'll wrap up in a muffler, I suppose. And I've done something else reckless, dear. I've bought six bronze chrysanthemums for the supper table, because we both love them so. And wait! That's not the worst. I've made two kinds of cake for tonight. The government may get me for that, but this is a celebration. I'll go make the coffee now, and you can read the paper—"

But he did not read the paper. He went into the bedroom and looked at his child in her crib. He marveled at the smallness of the two hands that lay outside the covers, and at the softness of the look at, however, and covered a shapely, well-arched foot. Nor were her feet the only points of interest which the girl possessed. She had a slender, nicely poised body and a face that made a passer-by want to stop and look again. Not because of any startling beauty, but because of an inner radiance and a piquancy of expression that she wore. The eyes were dark and nicely lashed. The hair was dark and waving. The nose was short and straight, the chin square, and between the two was a mouth that was too wide, like a small boy's, but alluringly shaped. Today a brave dash of lipstick caused the mouth to match exactly in color the gay, blood-red leaf which she had just fastened in the lapel of her suit.

Ruth sat down on a park bench and opened the newspaper she had bought on the corner. She turned to the column that said "Help Wanted, Female." She saw there was nothing new there—nothing she had not already followed up or eliminated as out of her range. With a sharp little sigh she laid the paper down and let her thoughts run riot. "I can't afford lunch today. Thirty cents saved is 30 cents made. . . I must go to one of the 10-cent stores and buy narcissus bulbs for Cousin Bessie's birthday. . ."

Cousin Bessie, of the impending birthday, was the widowed relative with whom Ruth lived in a small, artistic and very crowded flat in Brooklyn. Mrs. Lawrence read manuscripts for a tutoring publishing house in New York and was very poorly paid indeed. With this inadequate salary she supported herself, an 18-year-old daughter, and a 16-year-old son. For some months now she had been supporting Ruth Woodson as well, at least as far as food and shelter were concerned. It was this thought that made Ruth a little desperate when she had time to think about it, Ruth had been "passed around" since her fourth birthday. George Woodson, her father, had gone to his brave death just before the Armistice. Eleanor Woodson had eventually followed him, as she had told him she would do. It took long months of grieving assisted by nervous exhaustion and pneumonia to turn the trick, but in the end she had died with a triumphant smile on her face and a feeling of release in her heart. She was off to find her love.

The child, Ruth, and George's insurance went to Great-aunt Sarah Woodson, who accepted them as a sacred trust and a terrible burden. Great-aunt Sarah lived several years to her duty by Ruth before dying and passing her on to another great-aunt whom Ruth affectionately recalled as "Aunt Matilda." At Aunt Matilda's death the child's real troubles began. She was 10 years old and, as she naively expressed it at the time, she had "run out of aunts." She had also run out of money, for the two old ladies between them had invested the little competence unsoundly.

Ruth was then passed about among several cousins of her parents' with more speed than tact. A child of less character might have been broken in spirit and have become a self-pitying, shrieking little introvert. Or she might have developed into a pushing, obnoxious little aggressive, snatching advantage where she might. But Ruth Woodson did neither. As her body grew straight and true, so did her naturally sunny disposition. The knowledge that she was a moneyless orphan whom no one needed did not embitter her. It only made her a little more watchful and well-mannered than most children. She learned to squeeze into corners, as it were, and to make herself useful when she could.

When Ruth finished high school in the little upstate town where she had grown up, there was no job available for her, so she came to New York to the one relative who remained untried—Cousin Bessie Lawrence. The cousins in Worthville waved her off with finality and ill-concealed relief, for they had broods of their own and they regarded Ruth as "a problem." The girl had an excess of high spirits and a taste for adventure which upset and annoyed them.

Cousin Bessie, to whom Ruth had come so eagerly that day two summers ago, was kindness itself. Unfortunately, she was also inefficient and impractical. She had spoiled her own two children beyond reason, and she dashed from home to office every day, and back again, like a rabbit pursued by hounds—the founds of work

Bessie Lawrence managed to give Ruth the wrong advice every turn. Instead of suggesting for the girl to borrow money on a short and thorough business course or for some vocational training, she allowed her to take temporary jobs for which she was unsuited and which soon "blew out," leaving Ruth discouraged and dismayed. For weeks at a time she had had nothing at all to do, a dwindling change in her pocket book was there because her employers could not find a coat for her in the apartment above the store.

Ruth got up from the table and noticed that a woman was standing in front of the door. It was an exceedingly well-dressed man, not old, not young. He was looking at her, and as she looked at him he took off his hat and bowed. She was looking at him.

He said, "I'm on my way to a late lunch at the Casino. I wonder if you will join me?"

The casualness of the man impressed Ruth more than maneuvering on his part had done. She looked at him with interest and found him rather handsome and impressive. He might even be a gentleman, she thought. "I'm hungry, aren't you?" Besides, it's an adventure. Imagine being asked to dine in a restaurant, just like that! She had been inside the doors of the Waldorf-Astoria and the Plaza Hotel and Billie Holiday's music. The party was a success.

Ruth again felt a prickling sensation for his cleverness. She knew there was a hunting-blanche to Colbert's face. This observing man might be entertaining. Certainly flatterer. And then, straight up from some deeper corner of her mind, there came a warning, like a little bell that rang far away temple garden: "Wrong things begin to pick up! Once done, it's easier!"

She looked at the man for a moment, coolly. Then she said, "I hope you'll enjoy your lunch. Don't let me detain you." He smiled guardedly. "Now as an assistant host one tries the wrong girl. I hope so."

"None at all," Ruth said. "And thank you for saying 'I hope so.' She turned and left him with a clear-cut smile of farewell.

In the 5-and-10 she bought a chocolate bar when she saw Cousin Bessie's narcissus bulbs. The bar was her lunch, and she came out of the store with it. It tasted heavenly. She sold no part of herself, but she turned and left him with a clear-cut smile of farewell.

Memphis Women's Study Clubs Open Year's Work This Week

Women's study clubs of Memphis opened the season of this week with their first programs. Literature, history, drama, music, art and miscellaneous features will occupy the days during the year.

Delphian Club Opens Season

The Delphian Study Club opened its year work with a beautifully appointed Texas breakfast at the home of Mrs. R. H. Wherry, Friday morning, August 30, at 9 o'clock.

Since the study for the year is travel in America, in keeping with the Centennial, this opening program was arranged to honor Texas.

As the guests were ushered into the reception rooms which were decorated with beautiful autumn flowers, they were seated at small tables laid with Maderia cloths and centered with crystal bud vases filled with flowers.

After the invocation was given by Mrs. J. L. Barnes, the following menu was served: chilled cantaloupe served on fresh grape leaves, fried chicken, rice with gravy, strawberry preserves, hot biscuits and coffee. Soft music was played during the meal by Miss Audre Lofland.

Miss Frankie Barnes acted as guide for the first program of the year and launched the members on the good ship "Delphian," calling for original tributes to Texas.

Mrs. W. R. Cabaness, the new president for the year, gave an inspiring talk on "The Club Women of Texas." Miss Lofland sang, "Songs of the West," accompanied by Norma Ruth Cole. A musical reading on Texas was given by Reba Fitzjarrald, accompanied by Mrs. Otho Fitzjarrald. The pantomime, "Interrupted Courtship" directed by Mrs. O. K. Webb was presented by Mrs. Jack Boone, Mrs. Hal Goodnight, Mrs. J. W. Stoke, Mrs. Webb, Elizabeth Webb and Dan McMillan. The song, "Under the Texas Moon," was sung by Miss Lofland.

The program closed with the ensemble singing, "The Eyes of Texas."

The club was happy to welcome new members, Mrs. Dorothy P. Robbins, Mrs. W. C. Davis and Mrs. Candler Hawkins.

Members present were: Miss Frankie Barnes, Mrs. J. L. Barnes, Miss Myldred Bishop, Mrs. Alan Brown, Mrs. W. R. Cabaness, Mrs. R. A. Cole, Mrs. W. C. Deuis, Mrs. Harry Delaney, Mrs. W. C. Dickey, Miss Reba Fitzjarrald, Mrs. Otho Fitzjarrald, Mrs. R. D. Goodall, Mrs. Hal Goodnight, Mrs. Kennon Hillyer, Mrs. L. C. Linn, Mrs. V. L. McGlockin, Mrs. B. B. Owls Play Electrics at Childress in First Play-Off Games This Afternoon

When Umpire Reese Swindell calls "Play Ball" at 3:30 this afternoon at Childress, in the play-off game between the Memphis Owls and the Childress Electrics, the war will be on.

The Owls are facing the first lap of the play-off series in today's game, and they have high hopes of surmounting the Childress hurdle and going into the play-off with the winner of the Wellington-Paducah game, also being staged this afternoon.

Today's winners at Childress and Paducah will toss a coin to see where the final game in the western division play-off will be held, and here's hoping the Memphis fans can witness it without leaving home.

The Owls are going into today's contest with the determination to win. They have been working out the past week, preparing for the game, and the team should be in good shape. There are no injuries, and the entire roster will be available for the battle.

The starting lineup for the game will probably be about as follows:

Sims, catcher; Clemons or Blanchard, pitcher; Geo. Thompson, first base; Sam Moore or Jess Tunnell, second base; Al Williamson, third base; Weather, red or Berryman, shortstop; L. Marcum, left field; Joe Marcum, center field; Maddux, right field.

That the Childress pitchers are going to be in for a bombardment Sunday seems to be certain from the batting averages recently compiled for several of the boys who will be in there for the Owls.

Not including the last Shamrock and Wellington games, and excluding the Estelline tournament games, batting averages are as follows: Sims, 253 in 61 times at bat; Geo. Thompson, 328 in 50 trips to the plate; Sam Moore, 339 in 61 times at bat; Jess Tunnell, 396 in 63 times up; Weather, 500 in 26 batting periods; Berryman, 260 in 60 times at the plate; L. Marcum, 347 in 65 times at bat; Joe Marcum, 349 in 61 times he faced the pitchers; Maddux, 363 in 33 times up.

It is hoped that a representative crowd of fans will go down to Childress for the game, to encourage the Owls in their efforts to overcome the Electrics in this crucial contest.

GOOD SEASON IS EXPECTED BY ESTELLINE Six Letter Men Form Nucleus of 1935 Squad

The Estelline High School is looking forward to a most successful season of football this fall.

Edsel Carnutt, the new coach of the Estelline squad, will have six letter men from last year to build the 1935 team around, as well as a number of promising members of last year's reserves.

The letter men back this year are Edmondson, an end; Clifton, a center; Wright and Sims, guards; and Leatherwood and Townsend, backs.

Members of last season's reserves who are expected to find a place in the regular lineup this fall are Landers, Hucksby and Phillips.

When the boys from the banks of Red River trot onto the field this year, they will sport a brand new set of uniforms and equipment. Complete outfits for eleven men and game sweaters for 18 have been purchased.

The new Estelline coach is from Gould, Okla., and is a product of Oklahoma University. He has been very successful at coaching in Northeastern Oklahoma, and believes he can give Estelline a team to be proud of.

Flood Damage on Rio Grande River

LAS CRUCES, Aug. 31.—Flood warnings were flashed along the Rio Grande, through southern New Mexico to El Paso, today. The river rose menacingly, fed by waters from cloudbursts which deluged several New Mexico cities and caused heavy losses. The damage at Las Cruces is estimated at half a million dollars. Five hundred Las Cruces residents, their homes ruined by the flood, are being temporarily housed in the armory and churches.

PEPPER MARTIN THROWBACK TO PAST Cardinal Infielder Is Greatest Crowd Pleaser

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (UP Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Old-timers are beginning to recognize Pepper Martin as a ball player out of another generation, a throwback to the days of the rough and ready Baltimore Orioles.

When the Cardinals were in New York on their last trip, hundreds of fans were actually pulling for Martin, ignoring the outcome of the crucial battle for the National League lead. Martin's rough, reckless play brought more thrills to the Polo Grounds crowds than did anything else that happened during the five-game series.

The crowd booed Dizzy Dean lustily after his brilliant 1-0 triumph, his first of the year over the Giants, but Martin drew applause right down to the end despite the fact that his feats were largely responsible for the Cardinals gaining a three-to-two edge in the series.

Never Spares Himself George M. Cohan, the playwright and actor, who has followed baseball for 50 years and known many of the old-time players, thinks Martin typifies the spirit of baseball as it was played in the old days. Hundreds of other veteran baseball fans look upon Martin as one of the few players in modern baseball who play the game right up to hilt, sparing neither bone nor muscle in the struggle to win.

"A few more players like Martin," remarked one old-timer, "and we wouldn't have all this agitation about night baseball. Fans will go to see players like Martin. Too many of the players just go through the motions, taking their turn at bat and playing out their inning in the field, anxious to get it over with."

Wanted by Other Clubs Martin is held in high esteem by other players and managers. At least two clubs, the Reds and the Cubs, negotiated for his services last winter despite the fact that it was known that Martin had an injured throwing arm. "Martin is the most picturesque man in baseball," says Chuck Dressen, Cincinnati manager. "He is out there doing something every minute, and whether it's right or wrong, you have to like him."

Martin is the bane of Henry Fabian's existence. The groundskeeper of the Polo Grounds hates to see the Cardinals and Martin come to New York. Martin's reckless running, wild charges on the base paths and diving, headlong slides do more damage to the infield at the Polo Grounds in one game than any other club usually does in a whole series.

Uniform Always Soiled "That fellow Martin is a nightmare to me," says Fabian. "He ought to be made to play on the corner lot. He has no respect for the best diamond in the majors."

Constant contact with the ground in slides, tumbles and "sprawls keep Martin's uniform soiled until he holds without dispute the title of "Baseball's Dirtiest Player." When Martin takes a tumble his uniform, always wet with sweat, absorbs enough dirt to make him look like a coal miner instead of a ball player.

In another ten years Martin is likely to be looked upon as a legendary figure, the last of the line of fighting, scrapping ball players who like Ty Cobb were never put "out" for keeps.

Neutrality Bill Signed by F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Mandatory neutrality legislation, designed to keep the United States out of conflicts like that threatened between Italy and Ethiopia, was signed today by President Roosevelt.

The measure compels the President, until the end of next February, to ban all shipments of arms to belligerents upon outbreak or during progress of war between two foreign nations.

Important Meeting of Junior C. C.

A highly important membership meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce has been called for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Legion Hall, and all members are urged to be present.

"A matter of grave importance to the people of Memphis will be discussed," President Kennon Hillier announced, "and it is important that we have all members in attendance—for their own good as well as the good of the organization."

F. V. Clark, secretary of the chambers of commerce, and a committee of 12, will contact virtually every Jaycee tomorrow in an effort to secure a record-breaking attendance at the meeting.

British Aircraft Work Is Rushed

LONDON, Aug. 31.—British aircraft factories have been plunged into a 24-hour schedule, to speed up the production of fighting planes, in the wake of reports from Rome that Italy was concentrating air forces and submarines in Sicily, directly opposite the vital British naval base of Malta.

The Air Minister sounded an urgent call for more pilots to operate 2,000 new planes. It is announced that five new training camps will be established within the next six months.

Two Girls Killed On New Highway

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 31.—Miss Lillie Lewis, 19, and Miss Corrine Lewis, 17, were dead today, after being struck by an automobile on the new Austin highway last night. The driver, Howard M. Maud, said that the two girls ran in front of his car.

Concessions in Ethiopia Given

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 31.—The Ethiopian government today officially announced that concessions had been granted to the African Development Exploration Company, incorporated in Delaware, to develop oil resources of half of Ethiopia.

Francis Rickett, British promoter who negotiated the concession with Emperor Haile Selassie, said that the corporation was controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

The news was received gravely by world foreign offices. In Washington diplomatic circles it was believed that the deal would not involve the United States directly in any Italian-Ethiopian conflict, although it might raise international problems. Various United States senators commented that the American people were determined to keep out of wars.

In Ethiopia, Emperor Selassie's action was generally regarded as a bold, shrewd stroke which might close the door to Italian penetration into Ethiopia.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Foreign Office announced today that British Ministers in Ethiopia had been authorized to inform Emperor Haile Selassie that the British government advised him to withdraw the oil concessions granted yesterday.

On a Strong Past... Future Security

For stability, for prosperity, for protection, the people of the nation have come to look to the Treasury of the United States. In and around it we have come to feel lies the future security of the nation.

No less important to the people of the country are their local treasuries, the banks that serve the individual communities.

Trustworthy transactions and satisfactory service during the years they have been in existence have made their clients feel that in them and in their service lies the future prosperity, stability and protection of the community. NEW MANAGEMENT MAKES BOW

THIS issue of the Daily Democrat comes to you under new ownership and management.

Russell Middleton, of Amarillo, has purchased the Memphis Publishing Company from Lyman E. Robbins, Wilbur C. Hawk and associates, and yesterday took active charge of the publication.

Mr. Middleton was connected for a number of years with the Hawk & Howe newspapers and the Lindsey Nunn Publishing Company, and is thoroughly familiar with the many problems of newspaper management.

He is moving his family from Amarillo to this city at once, and plans to become a part of the business and social life of our town and county.

While we of The Democrat, in common with our entire citizenship, regret to lose Mr. Robbins, the retiring publisher, we feel that in Mr. Middleton we have found a worthy successor.

Under the new management, as under the old, it will be our aim to give the people of the Memphis area the very best newspaper that we know how.

Local news will predominate always, but national and world-wide news will be by no means neglected.

Every effort of the staff will be devoted to giving you news of the Memphis area and the world at large while it is still news, completely and accurately.

LOOKS LIKE WAR

MUCH as we regret to see it, every news dispatch which comes over the wire about the Italo-Ethiopia situation looks more and more like war.

Mussolini seems to be defying the world to stop him in his conquest of Africa, and someone is almost sure to take him up.

Great Britain is concentrating her Mediterranean fleet and British aircraft factories are turning out fighting planes on a speeded-up schedule.

If another World War develops from this trouble our hope is that the United States will keep her finger out of the pie, and we believe they will.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON.—It takes at least five men (from among the nine supreme court justices) to declare an act of Congress unconstitutional.

But Congress itself can produce a situation wherein just one man can keep a law on which both houses have passed from ever going into effect. That was one of the things discovered this year about the conference system under which House and Senate undertake to iron out differences in the bills they've passed on the same subject.

Other things became apparent as to the conference system. It was used, as never before, in the recent session as a face-saving device. Anxious to get away from here, one house or the other frequently—to save time on debate—accepted this or that amendment with the assurance that it would be thrown out by the conference, whereupon Senate or House could gracefully accept the conference report without stultifying itself.

But it seemed much more astonishing when one man, by single-handed effort, for weeks prevented final action on the controversial holding company bill. Congressman George Huddleston of Alabama, opposing his two Democratic colleagues on the conference committee and siding with the two Republicans, held off the Senate conferees in their effort to compromise on the "death sentence."

Huddleston stood in that position of power because a majority of each conference delegation must agree before the conferees can report back a compromise to the two houses. The significance in such a situation lies in the tremendous pressure to which a man in Huddleston's position is likely to be subjected. Lobbyists in the past have often worked on conferees, sometimes successfully.

Huddleston stood with the enormous political pressure of the administration on one side and the terrific pressure of the power lobby on the other. There is no evidence that he felt either of these pressures or that the lobbyists had anything to do with his grim fight against the "death sentence." But certainly it was an extremely unfair situation for a man to be in.

H. C. Hopson of Associated Gas & Electric testified victory in the holding company battle was worth at least $6,000,000,000 to the $12,000,000,000 industry. If that's true, it is quite easy to perceive that a man in Huddleston's position might be worth a billion dollars or so to the lobby.

Presumably no one ever had the nerve to offer Huddleston as much as a cigar. But congressmen have been venal at times. And you have only to recognize the possibilities to realize why Senator Norris of Nebraska hates the conference system so bitterly and why he made the issue of the "third house" one of his chief points in his victorious fight for a one-house legislature in Nebraska.

In the end, the House, which had been supporting Huddleston's uncompromising stand, backed down on him after terrific pressure by the administration, and ordered him to accept a "compromise." But this was very close to the end of the session and might easily not have come to pass.

The facts do not damage anybody's impression of Huddleston as a vigorous independent who stood out honestly for his convictions, even through those convictions coincided with the desires of the "power trust."

Home makers may yet come to a fuller appreciation of beautiful wood through the surprising medium of clothing work. At least there are signs of that.

Take this story from Dickens County for instance: "Buttons made of mesquite roots trimmed the natural color linen crash dress which Mrs. R. F. Harrell, Red Top home demonstration club member, entered in the recent county clothing contest. Mrs. Harrell dug the root, sawed it and carved the bottoms herself. Each bottom showed two shades of wood, the only trimming needed on the dress."

Or this story from the same county: "Large walnut buttons, made by her husband, trimmed the pink lace dress exhibited by Mrs. Jim McDaniel, member of the Twin Wells Home Demonstration Club."

The McCrosky home demonstration club members of Wharton County hung up a record in their rally day reports when it was revealed that with three-fourths of the membership reporting they had to their combined credit 10,259 cans of food.

G. A. Knowles, Goldthwaite, Mills County, plants each year eight acres of golden rod and seeded ribbon cane which this year is turning out 200 gallons of syrup per acre. This syrup is readily marketed at 75 cents per gallon. Mr. Knowles always turns under the fodder and other vegetation as soon as the cane is harvested and last year gathered eight bushels more of corn from the cane land than from other adjoining land.

PLAINS.—Some calves being fed by G. W. Cleveland, a 4-H Club boy in Bledsoe community of Yoakum County, have been making a gain of three pounds per day.

G. W. Cleveland placed his calves on feed June 1. They were placed on a special nurse cow and fed all the oats and hay they would eat at night. They were allowed to run in the pasture all day.

This 4-H Club boy believes that part of the gain is due to the fact that the calves have access to fresh water at all times during the day.

Cooling of Cream on the Farm

He Delivers His Cream Two or Three Times a Week

The cooling of cream immediately after separation is one of the most important steps that the dairy farmer can take in getting a high quality product on the market. No matter how scrupulously clean a producer might be in handling milk and cream there are invariably sufficient micro-organisms present to cause souring or development of off flavors and odors, if they are allowed to grow. Everyone knows that bacteria or germs grow better at higher temperatures up to a certain point than they do at lower.

The best temperature for their growth is around 100 degrees Fahrenheit, or body temperature, and the closer they approach this degree of warmth the faster they multiply and the more harm they do. However, around 50 degrees Fahrenheit, which is fairly cool, they grow very slowly and consequently cannot do as much damage towards decomposing the cream. Because of the fact that these germs grow so much more rapidly at higher temperatures than they do at lower, it is important and necessary that the cream be cooled down as low as possible as soon as it is separated, and held at that temperature until the time it is delivered.

Wherever ice is available and the volume is sufficient to warrant the use of same, we quite naturally recommend this procedure; however, in the case of most cream producers, the volume is so small that this expense would not be justified, and, for that reason, we recommend the use of a small cooling tank made from an ordinary barrel and set in between the pump, or windmill, and the stock watering tank. With this arrangement a continuous flow of water through the tank is gained, but inasmuch as the outlet pipe flows into the stock tank there is no loss of water. There should be two cans contained in the tank: one, a storage can for holding the cream after it is cooled, and the other for cooling the fresh cream. Warm cream should never be mixed with cool cream because, when this is done, the entire lot of cream is warmed up and the bacteria multiply faster causing decomposition of the cream in one way or another. The fresh cream should first be cooled down, then mixed with the already cooled cream, and the entire lot vigorously stirred. Details on the construction and set-up of this inexpensive and practical cooling tank can be obtained by writing the State Department of Agriculture in Austin.

Where the above described tank is not practical, we recommend the use of the wet sack around the cream can. Everyone is familiar with this method of cooling and by this means it is possible to obtain a difference of 10 or 15 degrees in temperature and this much difference means, in many cases that a good product, instead of a bad one, will reach the market.

Cream, no matter how it is cooled, should be stirred thoroughly at least four times a day, and also each time a batch is added to your holding can. Frequent stirring of the cream during storage prevents the formation of lumps or of a leathery surface on the cream, which makes accurate sampling and therefore accurate testing difficult to obtain. Frequent and vigorous stirring also means that the cooling process will be hastened considerably.

The next article of this series will appear in this paper in the near future and will deal further with the production of high quality milk and cream.

MCKINNEY.—Fall gardens are being planted this month by 4-H Club girls. Last week, Ruby Nell Harlin, member of the Bloomdale 4-H Club in Collin County, planted blackeyed peas in her garden.

The preparation of the soil is different from the spring garden in that all vegetation was taken off, before the plowing was done, according to Ruby Nell. "The vegetation," she explained, "dries the soil to heat, and thus makes the soil dry."

The soil was plowed about three or four inches deep before the seed was planted. Since germination of seed does not take place as well in the summer as in the spring, Ruby Nell planted about one-fourth more seed.

GOLDTHWAITE.—"The best paying patch of ground on my place," said C. C. Wesson of Mills County, "is a three-quarter acre plot I planted to tomatoes, black-eyed peas and cantaloupes, from which I have already sold $37 worth of products, and if it rains I soon will market several dollars' worth more."

Mr. Wesson stated that he spread three tons of well rotted barnyard manure on this patch and the sufficient rains in May and June made a bumper yield of the crops planted.

DEMONSTRATE CANNING WED.

Many Modern Ways Will Be Shown by Expert

A demonstration of modern methods in canning and preserving foods of various kinds is to be held in the vacant store building adjoining the Harrison Hardware Company, Wednesday, September 4, according to James A. Jackson, Hill County agricultural agent.

The demonstration is sponsored by Ball Bros. Co., of Muncie, Indiana, and Miss Gladys Kimbrough, well known culinary expert, will be in charge. It will begin at 2:00 p. m., and will last for approximately two hours.

The demonstration will cover every phase of home canning, including:

- Advantages of home canning.
- Methods of canning; open kettle, cold pack, hot pack.
- Steps in canning; selection of material and canning method, testing and preparation of jars, caps and rubbers, sorting and grading of materials, preparation of materials, packing materials in jars, processing, sealing, testing and storing.
- Acid in vegetables.
- Syrups for canning fruits.
- Processing equipment, water, bath, steamer, oven, pressure cooker.
- Other equipment and conveniences.
- Scoring canned goods.
- Utility and exhibition pack.
- Success pointers and modern practices.
- Variety in the use of canned goods.

Every lady who is interested in home canning of fruits, vegetables and meats is urged to attend the demonstration. It is absolutely free and comfortable seats will be provided.

SANTA ROSA.—By changing the diet of her 275 hens to mash Alsmeyer said, "and these were in the morning and grain in the afternoon, Mrs. Ellebrecht of Santa Rosa Community in Cameron County reports production of eggs doubled in less than three weeks.

Her white leghorn hens were laying from 24 to 30 eggs per day three weeks ago. Now they are producing from 72 to 76 eggs per day. Mrs. Ellebrecht conferred with the county agricultural agent, H. L. Alsmeyer, about culling her flock.

He visited her flock and found that she was feeding grain in the morning and the afternoon. "Hens prefer grain to mash," eating too much grain, which is not conducive to egg production."

This Section Gets 2 Million Dollars

According to the report of the Department of Agriculture just issued, for participation in the government's cotton, wheat and corn-hog program, Hall County farmers received, during the year ending June 30, the sum of $404,310.17.

The cotton farmers, of course, got the lion's share of these funds, receiving $381,033.04.

Wheat raisers in the county took $968.96, while of the corn-hog funds Hall County received $22,308.17.

This section of the Panhandle, comprising Armstrong, Briscoe, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Donley, Floyd, Hall and Motley counties, received $2,640,639.41. Of this, $1,961,473.00 was for cotton, $460,196.65 for wheat, and $218,969.76 for corn and hogs.

A table giving the funds spent in each of these counties is given below:

DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS
Armstrong	$214,059.98	$170,660.27	$ 19,931.79	$ 204,552.04

BUDA.—John Howe, whose farm is in Hays County, said recently that he had found curly mesquite grass on one of the finest pasture crops that he had ever grown.

His pasture of 450 acres is well sodded with the grass and carries 450 head of sheep and goats and 76 head of cattle a large part of the year. "The grass spreads rapidly," he said, "and can be easily introduced on sandy or heavier soil."

CANYON.—Thirty-four different kinds of vegetables grow in Viola Bedink's garden. This 14-year-old 4-H Club girl from Randall County announced that 13 kinds of vegetables valued at $5.20 have already been eaten from her garden. More than $2 worth of vegetables have been sold, including cabbage, beans and squash.

THIS and THAT

By L. E. R.

With the opening of Memphis Public Schools scheduled for tomorrow I doff my weather-beaten and battle-scarred hat to the Memphis School Board.

Since the unpleasant, unhappy and unfortunate series of misunderstandings in regard to school matters last spring many patrons of Memphis schools have wondered just what the final outcome would be. They asked themselves numerous times: "Whither are we drifting?"

I have no criticism to make of anyone for the educational entanglements that prevailed during the first part of this year. I think everyone was sincere in his views and I believe the matter is best forgotten.

But the fine manner in which the new board has served the people, as well as the wonderful co-operation the board has received from the people, is worthy of recognition.

Believe me, Memphis' trustees have been high steppers from the minute they took office, last April.

I cite you to the new Cyclone Stadium—a football field modern in every sense of the word that has been the dream of Memphis for years. Well, it's a reality now, thanks to the unrelenting efforts of the new superintendent, W. C. Davis, and the high school coach, "Chesty" Walker.

I cite you also to the fact that vocational agriculture will be a new subject offered in Memphis High School this year. There's been a crying need for this for a long, long time, so the school's fathers buckled down to the job and brought it about.

Then there's the matter of bus routes, bringing new blood into our school and giving rural scholars better advantages, to which they're entitled. It hasn't been very long since Memphis schools had no bus routes. This year two more have been added, bringing the total to four. More aggressiveness.

And of considerable importance, in my estimation, is the new teaching eligibility ruling. Henceforth, teachers in Memphis schools must have college degrees. Consideration was shown present faculty members who do not have degrees inasmuch as they were given until September 1, 1937, to meet the new requirement.

These are some of the really big things your school board has done. Many other matters, smaller but important, have received prompt attention and quick disposition. Is it any wonder that school patrons are backing this body to the last man? I should say not.

It's up to Memphis to act quickly or be left far out in the cold in the Works Progress Administration program.

There's lots of government money available to this city for many kinds of projects, but plans must be submitted to Texas headquarters by September 12 or it will be just too bad for Memphis and Hall County.

The Hall County Planning Board, headed by S. T. Harrison as chairman, is active in the matter now but this community nearly waited too long to even name a planning board. Now the board must work doubly fast to assure Memphis and Hall County their share of the money that is going to be spent somewhere.

One project the board is anxious to put over is a spacious city-county park, agitation for which, started several months ago. Among other sites, the thickly-wooded Broome property, adjoining the city limits on the south, is under consideration.

That's mighty fine and I hope the park becomes a reality. I hope the city and county purchase suitable land and offer the proposed park as a project at once.

At a meeting of the County Planning Board held Friday, two district WPA officers from Lubbock were present and explained how the Hub City of the Plains is securing many blocks of additional pavement through the government's new plan of assistance.

They are paving, I believe, 75 additional city blocks, and with WPA help the city government is having to spend only 10 per cent, while property owners are provided with asphalt paving, including concrete curb and gutter for only $1.00 a running foot! In other words, if the property in question fronts 50 feet on a street that is being paved, cost to the owner is only $50, and that is divided into five payments!

I don't believe there is a property owner in Memphis who would turn down a proposition like that. This, to me, looks like a Godsend. I believe the Memphis City Council can handle a project of this kind—and if it does I venture to say it will be the most popular city council in these parts in many moons. Sounds like to me it's worth looking into, at least.

Here's a good joke Bonnie Ray told me. She said she read it in Delineator.

A little boy had torn his pants badly while he was out playing. His mother, of course, was disgusted, but after reprimanding him severely she mended the damaged trousers and sent him back to his play.

It wasn't long until the careless son was back again with another tear in his pants, even larger than the first. This time, the mother was really furious.

"The idea," she stormed, "the minute I turn my back you tear your pants again! Well, you just trot yourself right upstairs and mend them yourself!"

The wayward son went dejectedly up the stairs. The mother waited. She waited fifteen minutes, twenty minutes, thirty minutes. There was perfect quiet—and she knew that wasn't normal, where her young hopeful was concerned.

Finally she went upstairs herself to see how Junior was getting along. There, on the bed, she found the torn pants, but no Junior.

She searched the house from top to bottom. Still no Junior. Then she went out into the yard and noticed the outside cellar door was open.

"Are you down there without your pants on?" she yelled. A deep bass voice answered: "No, ma'am. I'm reading the gas meter."

CONTEST WINNERS

The first prize of a basket of groceries, in the Anagram Contest, drawn on the Memphis Grocery, was awarded to Mrs. Sam Moore this week.

Her sentence was: "The organist, holding a prejudice against the minstrel because of his viewpoint regarding parsnips and diamond walnuts, accused him of being a cheater in the personality contest at the pagoda."

Second prize of two tickets to see Peter Lorre in "Mad Love" at the Ritz, was awarded to Mrs. W. C. Millam.

One ticket to the Ritz was awarded to each of the following: Mrs. Forrest Power, Willie C. Wilson, Mrs. Egnal Greenhaw, Nell Walker, Annie Lee Williams, Mrs. G. H. Garner, Mrs. M. E. McNally and Mrs. Tom Landers.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Betty Lou Cameron celebrated her third birthday Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the home of her grandmother, Mrs. J. G. Cameron.

The children played games and had a very enjoyable time. Those who were served refreshments were Ronnie Dean and Wanda Kay Messer, Nancy Jane Hardin, Nell Marie and Ruel V. Messer, Florence Henson, Billie Wanda Rogers, Robbie Jack Messer, Troyce Lee Rhudy, Minnie Lou Rhudy, Virgel Cameron, Mrs. Ida Cope, Mrs. J. G. Cameron, Mrs. Solan Messer and the honoree, Miss Betty Cameron.

CONTRAST IN COTTON

Roy McQueen brought into the Democrat office Friday afternoon four stalks of cotton, from the farm of his brother, Will McQueen, on Highway 5. Three of the stalks were from one part of the farm, and contain one and two developed but small bolls each. The other, from a sub-irrigated tract, contains over thirty large, well developed bolls, not counting squares.

RAIN FAILS

Heavy clouds over the city yesterday morning promised a renewal of the rains, but soon after noon the sun came out and they disappeared.

theft, and within fifteen minutes received a call from Sheriff Pierce, of Clarendon, that the man had been caught in the city.

and that car and man were being held for the Hall County officers. Sheriff Colvin and Deputy Wilson immediately went to Clarendon and brought back Fred Greathouse, aged 18, who is charged with stealing the car, and placed him in jail here, to await the action of the grand jury.

Greathouse, who stated that he had been working for an uncle at Tell, stated for Amarillo with the stolen car. At Clarendon, officers on the lookout for him, placed him under arrest.

A brother of Greathouse was hitch-hiking at Amarillo yesterday afternoon. He hailed his brother as he passed in the stolen car, but the latter passed him by. This fact saved him, no doubt, from being implicated in the crime.

What Do You—

sirports in connection with the CCC Camps. In other parts of Texas I have seen as many as five or six army planes a day come into the cities, which had regular landing fields and CCC Camp. They usually brought officers on inspection tours and official dispatches.

If we did have such a port it would not be long before all the communities in this district would be sending their air mail by train to Memphis and from here it would be transferred to the planes. It would increase our postal business and in time it would necessitate the need of more men in our postal department.

A town of any size and importance has an airport—and surely we meet both of these requirements.

B. B. McMILLAN: More and more are airports and planes assuming a role of importance in our American life. I think there is no doubt in the minds of the public that flying, by the people as a whole, will be on an equal basis with the automobile. Granting that this is true then we should prepare ourselves by building the first requisit to this movement—and airport.

There is lots of flying going on now days and whether you think so or not the aviators know where all the airports are located. If they happen to be in this region they will come into Memphis to rest, spent the night or just stop to talk "shop" with the home town aviation enthusiasts.

We now have an air-school in Memphis, but we do not have the proper facilities to care for it. This school is an important step in keeping pace with aviation, but outside of the people in Memphis and possibly few right close no one knows of the school. There is no way of listing it unless we have a municipal airport.

It would be difficult to say we would feel the direct results if we were to construct such a place, but I cannot help but be certain that we would be benefited indirectly.

A municipal airport would put Memphis on the map and any way we can show the rest of the world that we are up an coming and are progressive the better off we will be in the long run.

I have heard from authentic reports that there isn't a town or city in the state of Oklahoma, the size and even some smaller, that doesn't have an airport. I would like to see the same transformation take place in Texas. It is comparatively young but it will develop and I am in hopes that Memphis goes ahead of the pack instead of just along side of the others.

Men at Camp Honor Carlton

As a testimonial of the high esteem in which he was held by the men of the camp, the enlisted personnel of G. C. C. Camp No. 1821, the local company, passed the following resolution on the resignation of Riley W. Carlton, educational advisor of the camp, who resigned the place to accept a position on the faculty of the Memphis Public Schools.

The resolution follows: Memphis, Texas, August 30, 1935. Mr. Riley W. Carlton, Educational Adviser, Co. No. 1821, G. C. C.

We thank you for the help and assistance you have given us, and feel that we are losing a good pal when we lose you. Success and good luck are the wishes to you from

The Boys of 1821. The resolution was signed by the full personnel of the camp. Accompanying the resolution was a poem by one of the enlisted men. It was as follows: To Riley W. Carlton—

To all the Veterans, A man that is true; They like him and love him, And think him true blue.

May we ask that sometime, You come back to us; The company that loves you Would fight, die or bust.

This may seem funny, But it might be true, That the boys in khaki Are all for you.

We wish you well, May your troubles be few; We are so sorry That we're losing you.

Just your buddies, G. C. C. Co. 1821.

DIES AT HEDLEY

Mrs. Thury Bilderbeck of Hedley passed away Friday morning at the home of her brother, A. F. Bilderbeck, in that city, where she had made her home for the past ten years. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 3:30.

At The Theatres

PALACE

The Palace offers two outstanding attractions for this week.

Today and tomorrow they are offering "Public Hero Number 1," a drama of war on crime, featuring Lionel Barrymore and Jean Arthur, with a strong supporting cast.

Modern as today's newspaper headlines, and thrilling as their graphic accounts of the government's war on organized crime, this great dramatic offering will keep you on the edge of your seat until the final fadeout.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the Palace is presenting the late beloved Will Rogers in one of the last pictures he made, "Doubting Thomas."

Billed as a laugh holiday, the picture will no doubt lose much of the comedy it would have held for the audiences had its hero not recently been killed in the tragic airplane crash in Alaska.

Rogers fans in this city, of whom there are thousands, will all no doubt want to see this, one of the last Rogers productions which will ever be shown.

RITZ

Today and tomorrow, the Ritz is offering "Mad Love," starring Peter Lorre, supported by Frances Drake, Colin Clive, Ted Healey and Isabel Jewell.

This picture is billed as Film-dom's most fantastic fete—a perfect feast of phantoms, and is guaranteed to keep the hair on your head standing on end for minutes at a time.

Lovers of the unusual and bizarre should not miss this screen offering.

Samnorwood Fair Plans Are Made

WELLINGTON, Aug. 31.—Plans are being made for the Samnorwood fair, which will be held in mid-October, according to John Coleman, member of the Samnorwood school board and E. G. Saunders superintendent.

Mr. Coleman and Floyd Thompson, president of the board will appoint a committee to take care of preparations for the fair, such as poultry and stock exhibits, etc. Prospects are that a very successful fair will be realized.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Joe Rheis, E. H. Whittington and wife, and Mrs. Dean J. Morgensen left this morning for Dallas, where they will attend the state legion convention. They are delegates from the local legion post and the ladies' auxiliary.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

The JELLY-FISHES

WILLIAM PERCIVAL

ALTHOUGH BEAUTIFUL IN COLOR AND SHAPE, THESE CREATURES ARE FAR DOWN THE SCALE OF ANIMAL LIFE / THEIR BODIES ARE 98 PER CENT WATER.

MANY SPECIES OF JELLY-FISHES ARE FOUND NEAR SHORE, WHILE OTHERS LIVE WHERE DAYLIGHT CANNOT PENETRATE.

JELLY-FISHES HAVE BEEN CAPTURED WHICH MEASURED SEVEN FEET IN DIAMETER, WITH TENTACLES 120 FEET LONG.

SOME SPECIES REPRODUCE BY "BUDDING" WITH NEW COLONIES ARISING FROM EACH INDIVIDUAL.

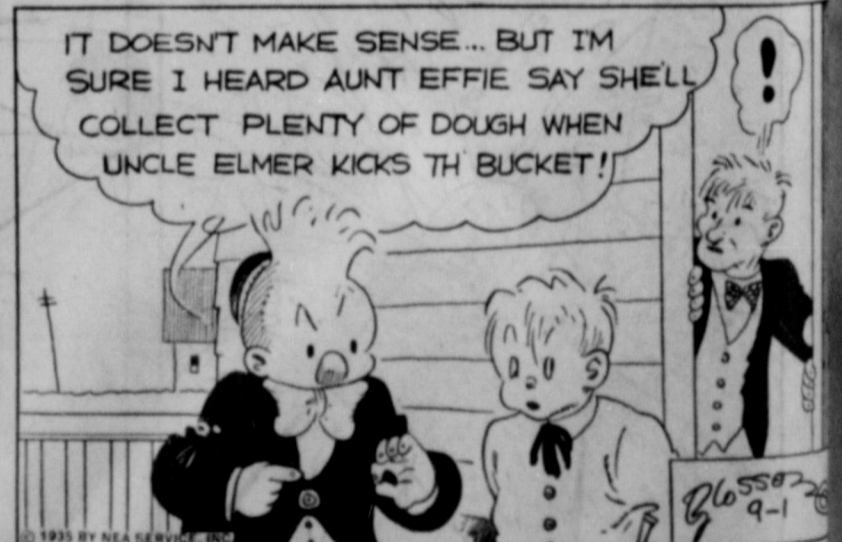

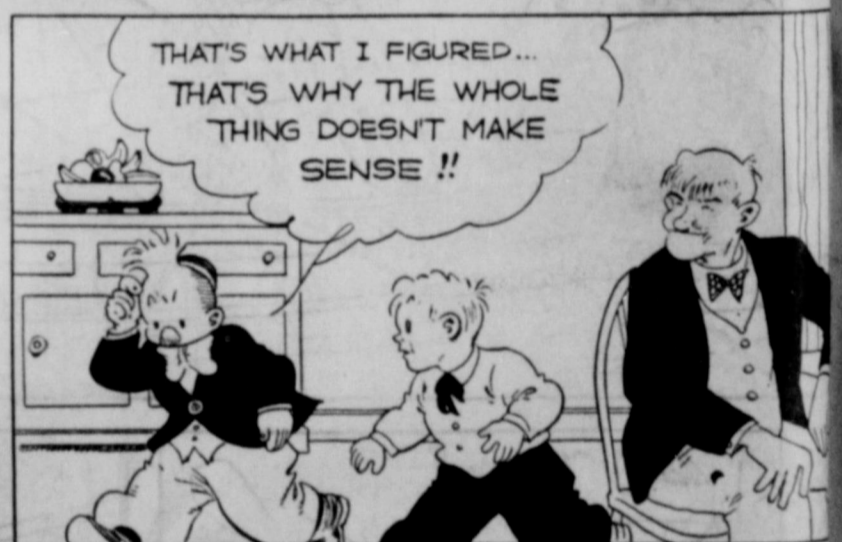

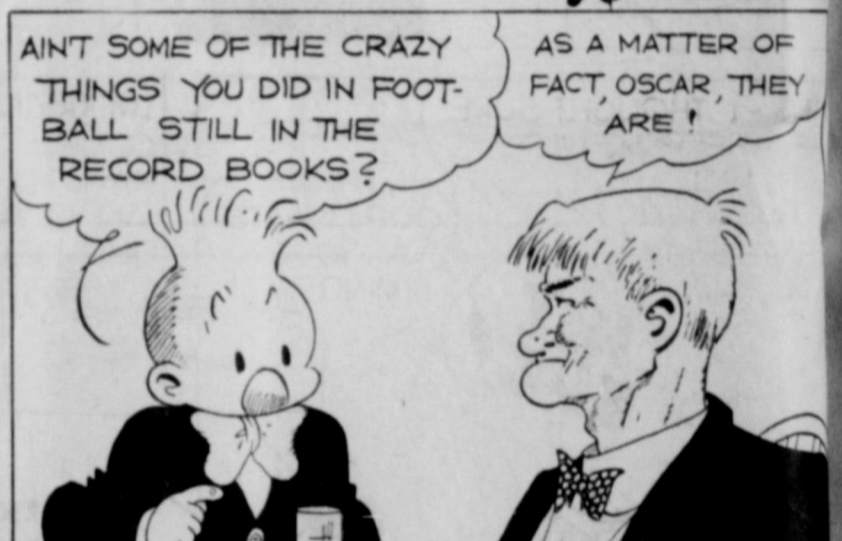

COMB-JELLIES ARE SO NAMED BECAUSE OF THEIR RESEMBLANCE TO COMBS!

THE LONG STREAMER-LIKE TENTACLES OF THE JELLY-FISH ARE PROVIDED WITH STINGERS, AND SMALL FISH MAKE THEIR HOME UNDER THE CREATURE'S PROTECTING COVER.

ALLEY OOP by V.T. HAMLIN

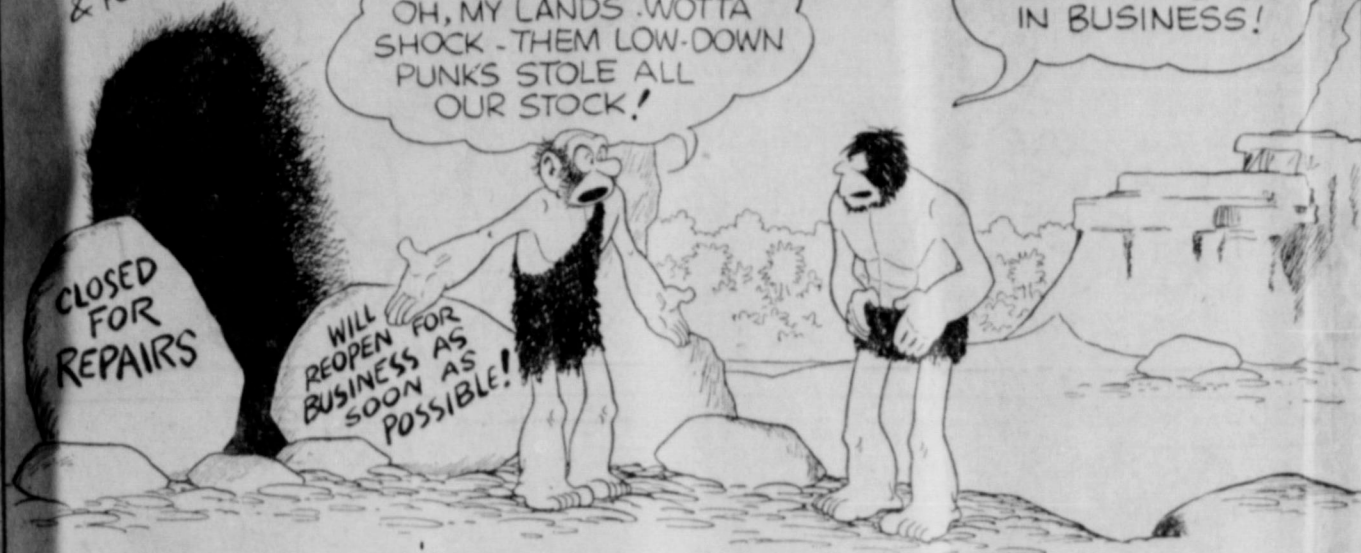

LAST WEEK, IN ORDER TO PEP UP BUSINESS, ALLEY OOP AND FOOZY STAGED A FAKE FIRE, SO THEY COULD PULL OFF A FIRE SALE — BUT, IN THE EXCITEMENT, THE VOLUNTEER FIREMEN GOT AWAY WITH THEIR ENTIRE STOCK OF MERCHANDISE.....

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

YEH - WE AINT EVEN GOT AXES WITH WHICH THUNT SUMPIN TO SELL, T'GET US STARTED BACK IN BUSINESS!

OH, MY LANDS. WOTTA SHOCK - THEM LOW-DOWN PUNKS STOLE ALL OUR STOCK!

ALLEY OOP & FOOZY CO.

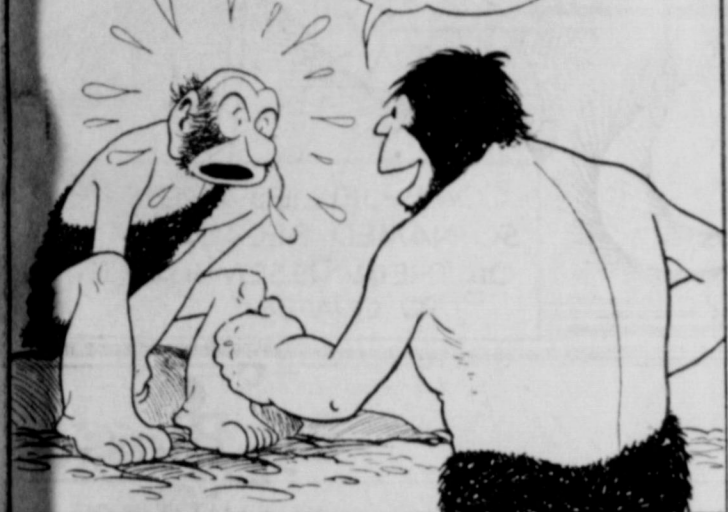

OH, WOOO! WHAT'LL WE DO?

I GOT IT! LISTEN - I'VE GOTTA LOTTA FRIENDS WHO'D BE GLAD TO DO ME A FAVOR — I'LL GO BORROW A COUPLE OF AXES!

AH, HA! THERE GOES A MUG I'VE DONE A LOTTA FAVORS FOR - HELL FIX ME UP WITH A GOOD HUNTIN' AXE!

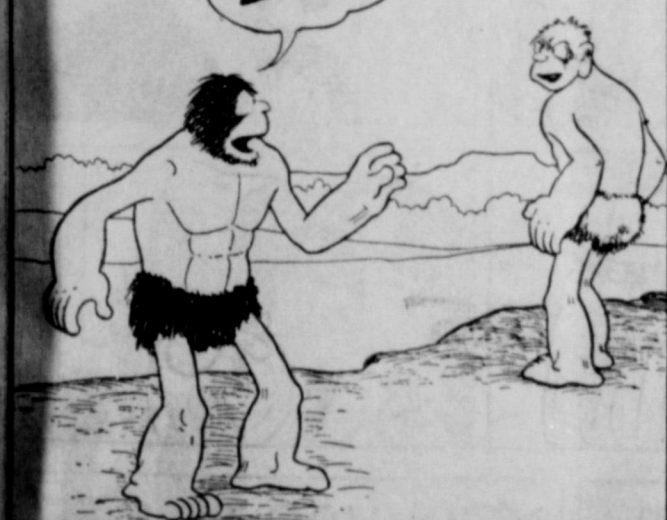

HEY, ZABO!

HUH - I THOUGHT SURE HED HELP ME OUT! OH, WELL - AHH H! THERE'S MY OL' PAL, ZUG -

HI, THERE, OOP! WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?

HEY, ZUG!

I'M TRYIN' T'BORROW A COUPLE OF AXES — HAVE YOU GOT AN EXTRA ONE I CAN USE?

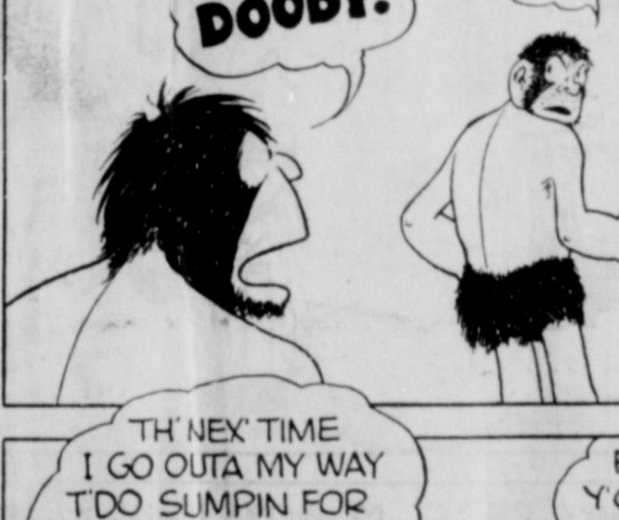

I'M SURE SORRY, OOP. MY AXE IS IN BAD SHAPE AN' I WAS JUST GOIN' HOME T'FIX IT!

THA'S FUNNY - YOU'D THINK ONE OF MY FRIENDS WOULD BE — OH, HO! THERE'S A GUY WHO'LL BE GLAD T'DO ME A FAVOR -

HEY, DOOBY!

HUH?

SAY, ZABO - FOOZY AN' I ARE IN A JAM - WE LOST EVERYTHING WE HAD IN TH' FIRE, AN' I WAS WONDERIN' IF YOU WOULD LEND US YOUR AXE FOR A COUPLE OF DAYS -

WHY-ER, UH - GOSH, OOP - I'D LIKE TO, BUT I'M GONNA BE USIN' MINE T'DAY -

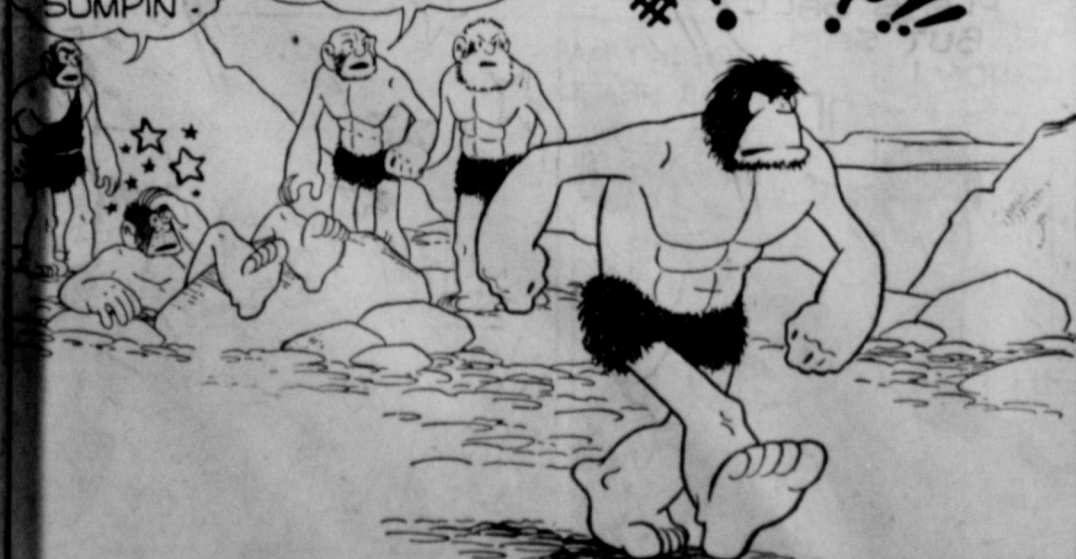

YEH - I HEARD ABOUT ALL YOUR HARD LUCK - AN' I'D LIKE TO HELP Y'OUT, BUT - Y'SEE

WELL, FER!

OL' OOP MUS' BE KINDA MAD ABOUT SUMPIN -

YEH - HE DOES LOOK SORTA BURNED UP!

TH' NEX TIME I GO OUTA MY WAY T'DO SUMPIN FOR ANYBODY, I HOPE SOMEBODY KICKS MY PANTS

WHAM! WHAM! WHAM! WHAM!

GATHER 'ROUND, FOLKS - LISTEN TO WHAT I SAY - FOR JUS ONE AXE, Y'CAN RIDE AROUND ALL DAY -!!

FELIS ATROX THE GREAT LION

THIS CALIFORNIA LION OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND YEARS AGO PROBABLY WAS THE LARGEST FELINE EVER TO HAVE ROAMED THE EARTH. THAT HE MADE LIFE INTERESTING, IF NOT MISERABLE, FOR THE MORE NUMEROUS SABORTOOTH CATS IS VERY PROBABLE. CERTAINLY THE EUROPEAN CAVE LION WAS NO LARGER, IF AS LARGE.

CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

BIRDS PREFER NOT TO FLY!

THEY FLY TO OBTAIN FOOD, AND TO ESCAPE FROM THEIR ENEMIES/ BIRDS LIVING IN REGIONS FREE FROM CARNIVOROUS ANIMALS TEND TO LOSE THEIR ABILITY TO FLY.

THE ENGLISH CUCKOO IS THE WORLD'S MOST INDEPENDENT PARENT! IT LAYS ITS EGGS IN THE NESTS OF OTHER BIRDS, SHIRKS THE DUTIES OF BROODING, AND MIGRATES TO AFRICA BEFORE THE YOUNG ARE GROWN... LEAVING THEM IN THE CARE OF FOSTER PARENTS.

ABOUT 45 PER CENT OF THE EARTH'S EXISTENCE HAS BEEN WITHOUT EITHER PLANT OR ANIMAL LIFE!

Freed, Smiles at New Life

Her debt to society paid by 18 months of imprisonment, Norma Brighton Milien, whose husband was executed for murder, smiles happily as she contemplates a new life. Following her release, she posed for this picture in a New Hampshire retreat, from which she plans to return to her native Dedham, Mass.

What's Meaning of This Smile?

Herbert Hoover is rapidly becoming the sphinx of American politics. With rumors as to his 1934 intentions running into each other, many are trying to read the meaning of the cryptic smile that Hoover reveals in this, his most recent photo.

YOUNG ICEBERGS ARE CALLED CALVES! THEY ARE THE OFFSPRING OF THE PARENT GLACIER!

FOUR ANIMALS ARE KNOWN AS "GOPHERS" IN VARIOUS LOCALITIES OF THE UNITED STATES! (CHIPMUNK, POCKET GOPHER, TORTOISE, AND GROUND SQUIRREL)

SEVERAL SPECIES OF SPIDERS ARE KNOWN TO CATCH FISH! THEY DROP FROM OVERHANGING GRASS ONTO THEIR PREY.

SPRINGTAIL INSECTS LEAP THROUGH THE AIR BY MEANS OF THEIR SPRING-LIKE TAILS.

THE TARSIER, AN ANIMAL OF THE EAST INDIES, HAS SUCTION-CUPS ON ITS TOES.

THE AVERAGE HIVE OF BEES CONTAINS BETWEEN 50,000 AND 75,000 WORKERS, A FEW HUNDRED DRONES, AND ONE QUEEN.

SOME ELEPHANTS PRODUCE HARD IVORY; SOME PRODUCE SOFT! THE CAUSE FOR THE DIFFERENCE IN TEXTURE IS NOT KNOWN.

COSTA RICA, WHICH HAS AN AREA OF ONLY 23,000 SQ. MILES, HAS ALMOST ONE-HALF AS MANY SPECIES OF FLOWERING PLANTS AS THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA, COMBINED.

IN SPITE OF THE MANY SHAPES AND SIZES OF BIRD BEAKS, NOT ONE BIRD ON EARTH TODAY IS CAPABLE OF CHEWING!

ALTHOUGH THE MOON SHINES ENTIRELY BY REFLECTED LIGHT, IT IS A POOR MIRROR, FOR IT REFLECTS ONLY ABOUT SEVEN PER CENT OF THE SUN LIGHT THAT STRIKES IT

DOG'S TOOTH VIOLETS ARE NOT VIOLETS, BUT LILIES!

SHAKESPEARE GOT HIS IDEA FOR "THE TEMPEST" FROM NEWS OF A STORM THAT WRECKED A SHIPOARD OF BRITISH COLONISTS ON BERMUDA.

COLONEL C.J. "BUFFALO" JONES, IN 1911, VISITED AFRICA, AND CAPTURED A RHINOCEROS, GIRAFFE, LION, ZEBRA, CHEETAH, WART HOG, AND MANY OTHER ANIMALS, USING ONLY COMMON LIASSO ROPES AND COW PONIES!

JUMPING ANIMALS, SUCH AS DEER AND HORSES, HAVE NO COLLAR BONES, SINCE THEY WOULD BE BROKEN TOO EASILY!
