REUNION SIDELIGHTS

J. C. Morris (1906)—A friend asked me for my badge right after I had registered. I told him I was sorry I couldn't give it to him right then, but I would after I had eaten. You see you have to have your Old Timers badge or they won't give you anything to eat, and believe me I want to get in on that barbecue.
Mr. Ewen busy as could be seeing that all the old timers were being cared for.
There was one real old timer, who went up to a crowd of pioneers shook hands and said "don't call me an old settler, just call me son."
Blitha Scott—I guess I should get a blue ribbon instead of a yellow one. I have been here as long as anyone.
W. S. Smith (1903)—I got the proof of an old settler. I still got the dirt in my ears.
Bob Crabbe (1892) — You know, I have killed more buffalo on and around this spot than there are number of houses in the whole city.

B. Baldwin should have been tickled this morning at the reunion. The Gold Medal Band played "The Old Grey Mare Ain't What She Used To Be." He expressed his liking for that piece a couple of days ago.
Allen C. Grundy said in his welcoming address that he didn't come to this country—he appeared here.
F. E. Wheeler first came... (Continued on page 5)

WHAT DO YOU THINK?
Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION: WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE INSTALLMENT PLAN?
THE ANSWERS:
C. W. CRAWFORD: The installment plan is a good thing if it is not abused. However, many people take advantage to buy commodities that they know they cannot afford, figuring that they will use this "borrowed purchase" until the collector makes his appearance to take it back.
I know of many people, who wouldn't own their homes today unless they had used this system. They were renters and would have continued in this way indefinitely—not having anything to show for their efforts—but by adding a little more money to what they were able to pay monthly installments on home and eventually pay it out.
I believe more people use this method to buy automobiles than they do anything else. Some can well afford to do this; others infringe on the privilege just to keep up with the neighbors.
The installment plan has become an American institution and I am sure it will always remain with us.
W. R. CABANESS: The installment plan is the only means a laboring man or a salaried man has to buy anything for himself.
I would say that 95 per cent of the people who use this plan are unable to save up the full amount of money necessary to make a cash purchase. The other five per cent will always be able to take care of them selves.
The installment plan gives a budget system whereby the person using it can proportion his money out and get the things he needs, which otherwise he would have to do without altogether.
The average person is going to spend his money and this plan gives him an opportunity to buy and enjoy whatever he has

ORDER SCHOOL ELECTION FOR AUGUST 30

To Decide on Consolidation of Baylor And Estelline
An election to determine whether Independent School District No. 13, at Estelline, and Common School District No. 14, at Baylor, will be consolidated has been ordered in these districts on Aug. 30.
The election was ordered by Commissioners B. T. Prewitt, Precinct 1, and C. H. Messer, Precinct 2, acting on behalf of the county judge, following a petition presented by voters of the districts Wednesday.
Wade Davis was appointed as presiding officer in Common District 14 and T. D. Gee was named for a similar position in Independent District 13. They are to select two judges and a clerk to assist them.
Notices of the election were posted in each district yesterday by Deputy B. Wilson.

Attorney General Invalids Oil Rule
AUSTIN, Aug. 9.—The attorney general today ruled invalid a railroad commission order for suspending exceptions to the general oil well spacing rules.
The commission announced recently that applications for permits to drill under the exceptions to the rules will be held in abeyance until the Supreme Court passed on a motion for a rehearing in the case involving the validity of the rule.

SQUARE DANCE TO CLIMAX DAY

MANY VISITORS WILL CROWD SQUARE
Break-down Music To Lead Hundreds in Street Dance
Climaxing the Old Settlers Reunion here today, several hundred people of the Memphis Area, old and young, will trip a light fantastic, if that is possible while square dancing, tonight on the courthouse square.
The reunion, which was in full swing at Carnegie Library Park this morning, will draw to a close tonight with an old fashioned square dance. It will start at 8 o'clock.
A section of the courthouse square will be roped off for the occasion, and the dancing will take place in the center of the street.
Break-Down Rhythm
Music will be furnished by Arthur Howard and His Hoe-Downers, who will saw and pick off rural break-down rhythm to a "far ye well."
Not only the old timers, in whose honor the event is being staged, will enter into the dancing and general celebration. The entire square is expected to be jammed with merry-makers here for the occasion.
Everyone is urged to "go into your dance," what difference does it make if you have never square danced before? In order to enjoy the event to its fullest, one must get into it, join the crowd and work up an enthusiastic spirit of celebration.
But at the same time, one should not hold back just because he does not square dance and doesn't intend to try it. There probably will be hundreds of spectators gathered around the dance "floor" to watch the antics of those either dancing or attempting to dance. There will be just as much fun for the spectators as for the dancers.
However, you are warned to make way for the old timers. When they start "cutting up" to the "Chicken Reel" or some other old time favorite, there is no telling what might happen. The City of Memphis will not be responsible for anyone injured in the rush.
Seriously, tonight promises one of the most entertaining events staged here in a long, long time. If you miss it, it's your own fault.
For the dancers, there will be plenty of benches on hand for those who desire or by the lack of breath is forced to "sit out." And in case the dancers "work up a sweat," there will be plenty of ice water on hand with which to cool off.

18 FROM COUNTY ATTEND SCHOOL MEET YESTERDAY
Eighteen school officials, board members and others from Hall County attended the school officials' meeting yesterday at West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon.
Most of them made the drive to Canyon in a school bus that started from Estelline and picked up passengers at Newlin, Salisbury, Memphis, Eli, Lakeview, Leslie and Brice.
Supt. W. C. Davis of Memphis and Harry Delaney, secretary of the Memphis school board, made the drive in an automobile. They were accompanied to Amarillo by Dr. John Angus MacMillan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who went on a short business trip.
The group in the bus returned at about 8 o'clock last night, returning by the same route over which the passengers were obtained.

BOARD TO SET BUS ROUTES MONDAY
Action Is Postponed At Session Here This Week
School bus routes in the county were not set at this week's meeting of the county school board, it was learned this morning after county school officials finally returned to their offices.
Another meeting was called for Monday morning for this purpose. The board will meet with boards from Turkey, Estelline, Lakeview and Memphis schools. The meeting will begin promptly at 9 o'clock, Miss Gilreath stated, in the county superintendent's office.
The final classification of several schools in the county was accomplished at the past meeting, and the board met with county school trustees at various and sundry local problems.
Plaska requested an eighth grade classification instead of ninth grade and Leach asked for a fourth grade rating in place of six. Both requests were granted. Leslie will be definitely classified Monday, Miss Gilreath stated.

SECOND ANNUAL EVENT OFF TO GREAT START

Few Hundred Spectators Join in Occasion
The second annual reunion of the Hall County Old Settlers Association got under way this morning at Carnegie Library Park, with more than 500 old timers present, augmented by hundreds of other citizens who were here for the event.
Registration for the pioneers began at 9 o'clock and as the old timers registered they were given a badge with name, date of coming to Hall County and their present address. Registration was under the management of Kennon Hillier and his efficient corps of workers, who were Mrs. Bill Kesterson, Mary Ellen Hamilton, Pauline Turlington, Johnnie Wilson, Mrs. Dyke McMurray and Mrs. Ora Smith.
Band Gives Concert
The program proper started with a 45-minute concert by the Memphis Gold Medal Band, under the direction of W. C. Millam.
Following the concert, the audience stood and sang America. With the crowd still on its feet, Toastmaster Earl C. Johnson read a list of pioneers who had passed away since the last reunion, and requested one minute of silent prayer in their memory. Those thus honored were J. A. Grundy, D. A. Grundy, Mrs. Jackson Collier, S. E. Lewis, W. B. Quigley, Mrs. S. B. Burnett, Mrs. W. A. Johnson and Mrs. Wilson-Sherrill.
Rev. Anderson of the First Christian Church delivered the invocation, after which the crowd sang "Eyes of Texas," accompanied by the band.
Address of Welcome
The address of welcome was delivered by Allen C. Grundy and the response to same was by Mrs. Roy Guthrie, both of whom delivered masterly addresses which brought rounds of applause from the listeners.
Two more band selections, "Dixie" and "Happy Days Are Here Again," were then rendered by the band.
Called upon by the master of ceremonies, several in the audience gave short talks on old times and kindred subjects.
R. E. L. Lewis pled for recognition of the pioneer services of Elder Dubbs, and suggested a movement to secure recognition of his services at Adobe Walls from the War Department.
Judge Gough of Amarillo gave a most interesting talk on early days on the Texas Panhandle ranches. During his talk he mentioned stopping at a house in the early days and furnishing flour and grease for the lady of the house to make biscuits. He did not remember the name, but after his talk, Judge Gough learned that the lady in question was the mother of Bob Crabbe.
Quartet Sings
Judge Gough also gave some interesting information on the work of the Panhandle Historical Association and its museum at Canyon.
A quartet composed of Ewel Noel, Harry Delaney, David Fitzgerald and Omer Johnson rendered several numbers, featuring the popular western number "Old Faithful."
L. L. Foreman, called on by the master of ceremonies, begged off with the statement that he felt like he could tell the crowd nothing it did not already know.
E. M. Even stressed the need of preserving the history of early days in Hall County, and urged (Continued on page 5)

Body of Youth Killed in Fall Is Taken Home
MONARCH LAKE, Colo., Aug. 9.—The broken body of William Brode, 15, of a distinguished Southern family, started on its homeward journey today from Lindbergh Peak where he fell to his death.
The searchers bore the body over slippery trails to Monarch Lake, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julien Brode, of Memphis, Tenn., waited.
"The boy died instantly from the effects of the fall," said Barker Armstrong, a mountain climber from Houston, who located the body last night.
Armstrong said he found the boy's shoes apparently torn off by the 100-foot fall.

German Newspapers Spread Dallas Tilt
BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Nearly all of the newspapers today displayed prominently accounts of a strike disorder in Dallas, under such headlines: "Women Turned Into Hyenas—Cultural Disgrace to Texas."
Comments also appeared on "Incredible Incidents in New York Police Court."

French Police To Clean Up Centers Of All Agitation
PARIS, Aug. 9.—The French government today ordered the police to clean up all agitation centers.
Premier Pierre Laval ordered the prefects of France's 86 departments to confer with him immediately.
This is the first such conference in the history of the French republic.
A somewhat easier attitude prevailed as the government arsenal laborers at Toulon, Brest and the French Line employees at Le Havre voted to end the strike, enabling the steamship Champlain to sail two days late.
Police threw a network over the scene of the riots in Toulon last night.
A house to house search today brought 40 arrests. They discovered many wounded.

Destruction Mounts In Ohio River Flood
ZANESVILLE, O., Aug. 9.—The toll of destruction in Ohio's worst flood in two years mounted today as the great waters here moved toward the Ohio River.
The property damage is unofficially estimated to upwards of $3,000,000.

Roosevelt Upholds Williams' Verdict
WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Roosevelt today approved a court martial verdict of guilty against Brigadier General Alexander E. Williams, former Assistant Quartermaster General, and ordered him dismissed from service on August 12.
Williams was found guilty May 23 of having solicited and obtained a loan of $2,500 from Frank Speicher, automobile tube salesman.

Two Children Are Drowned in Canal
BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 9.—Cecil, 9, and Marilyn, 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Schubert, were drowned late yesterday in a small canal two miles from here. Cecil, attempting to carry his sister across, stepped into deep water.

TIME TO SOME PEOPLE SEEKING CREDIT SIMPLY MEANS ANOTHER TIME TO FALL DOWN ON MAKING PAYMENTS

From the People

Editor's Note—This space is open to all readers of The Democrat for the purpose of expressing their opinions on any and all subjects. All signed letters will be printed here upon request, so long as they carry clean, unobjectionable material. The following should be considered as the opinion of the writer, in no manner reflecting on the editorial policies of this newspaper.

DEAR EDITOR:

"Another flood of amendments will greet the Texas taxpayers when they go to the polls on August 24th. Taken as a whole, this bunch of amendments is probably the worst ever submitted to the voters of this state. Even in cases where the object of the amendment is meritorious, it is so drawn that friends of the purpose which the amendment seeks to accomplish will probably vote along with the enemies against the amendment because they feel that it is too indefinite to write into the Constitution.

There is only one of the amendments to be voted on—and that is the repeal amendment—where people will have adequate time to secure all the facts. Of course, we have been discussing the question of prohibition since 1887, and the people will go to the polls on August 24th and vote for or against this just as they have in the past; and the results probably will be close. But the remainder of these amendments all present new questions and the average voter who has to make a living is not going to have time between now and August 24th to study out all of the complicated problems involved, and he will likely, in the case of other amendments, scratch them all. The fact is that the prohibition question is a matter of such far-reaching importance that no other matter should have been submitted at the time.

"One of the most dangerous of the group of amendments to be submitted is the one which will appear first on the ballot—the old age pension. In the form in which this amendment is drawn, the legislature could, if it saw fit, pay a pension to every man and woman in Texas—white or black—who has been a citizen of the state for five years, had managed to stay out of the penitentiary and was not now in a state institution. Now, if the voters adopt this amendment and then if the legislature should grant a pension to all who would be eligible under the provisions of this amendment, the cost would be more than forty million dollars a year to the taxpayers of this state. This is twice as much money as the legislature appropriated for the operation of the current year. It is easy to see what this would do to the average taxpayer in the state.

Now if this amendment had been properly drawn so as to limit the payment of pensions to people 65 years of age who had no means of support and whose families were not able to support them, in this case there might be some merit to it, and the state might have been able to work out some plan to finance it. But to undertake to start a state pension system where every session of the legislature could add thousands and possibly hundreds of thousands to the pension roll would result in putting the payment of pensions on a basis of politics rather than on a basis of need. An advocate of an equitable system of old age pensions should be just as much opposed to this as the opponents of the whole pension plan, because nothing would be gained by setting up a pension system which would bankrupt the state and lead to taxes which would confiscate property.

"There is another amendment which, if it had been properly drawn, might have the approval of the people, but as submitted, it presents a most dangerous situation. I refer to the amendment which seeks to allow the state government to furnish text-books to children within the scholastic age, who are attending religious and denominational schools. Of course, there is an objection to taking any of the taxpayers' money and paying it to sectarian schools. Many people say that if you start paying for the text-books used in these schools you will finally destroy the fundamental idea in the Constitution of the complete separation of church and state. But there are some good arguments on every side of the question, and the people of the state might have given this amendment favorable consideration except for the fact that apparently a joker was slipped into the amendment in the process of passage, the result of which is that if this amendment is adopted it will completely change the whole system of distributing public school funds in this state.

If you read the Constitution as it is now, you will see that the Constitution provides that all of the available school funds shall be apportioned to the counties on the basis of the number of children in those counties who are eligible to go to school. In other words, the forefathers did not intend that the public school fund should become a political football. Now if you will read this amendment, you will find that if it is adopted, in the future, each session of the legislature will determine by the law how this public school fund shall be apportioned. In other words, the county will no longer share in the school fund in proportion to the school children that it has to educate, but rather in proportion to the amount some bureau in Austin or some political group may determine. If this amendment is adopted, no school district in any county would know from one year to another how much money it was going to get, because the legislature could change the basis of apportionment of the money every year. It is not hard to realize what would happen to the public school system if the whole financial support of the system should be thrown into the arena of practical politics every two years.

Probably no word of caution is needed by the people as to their vote on repeal, because unquestionably the people will go to the polls with all the facts before them. The taxpayers of this state are warned that several of the other amendments submitted, lay the foundation for tremendous increase of taxes in this state; they are dangerous and ought to be defeated."

(SIGNED) D. M. JONES, President Texas Taxpayers Association.

Babson Says Giant Oil Industry Breaking All Records

DEPRESSION KNOWN IN OIL FIELDS

Production New All-Time Low This Year

ROGER W. BABSON, of Boston, Mass., Aug. 8, said that the automobile industry, in the oil industry, is registered this year, in 1929, motor travel, on record and gas consumption has hit a new low. Each day motor cars consume nearly 2,000,000 gallons of gas in this country. PRODUCE SIXTY PER CENT OF WORLD'S OIL

Just reviewed world oil figures for the first time in 1935. Despite the fact that production has fallen fifteen per cent below 1929, Babson said he was amazed to find that oil production had broken records. Petroleum, of a natural resource and is limited. It took millions to create the reserves and it will take millions to replenish them. 1,500,000,000 barrels of oil were taken out of the ground in 1934. The United States contributed 40 per cent; Russia 14 per cent; Venezuela nine per cent; and other countries 17 per cent. The rapidity with which we are using our petroleum reserves forced the Federal government to take a hand in the oil fields. All down through the history of the industry, the so-called "Law of Capture" has been responsible for the periodic upheavals and terrific waste. This law, upheld years ago by the courts, recognized no boundaries in the underground pools of "liquid gold." This meant that oil operators either had to observe some system of prorated production or they had to engage in a "race to sink the most wells and pump the most oil in the quickest time. Because a few producers never obeyed the rules of the game, the entire industry has been forced to go on periodic wasteful and costly expeditions.

ABUSING A NATURAL RESOURCE

Unbridled production from a conservative standpoint is criminal. When a pool is pumped too fast, millions of gallons of oil, which would otherwise be brought to the surface, are lost forever. I am not an advocate of government interference in private business. I do feel very strongly, however, that when the wasting of a natural resource cannot be stopped by other means, then it is proper for the people, through their government, to take collective action. The vast supply of oil which has been squandered in the past few years is not the sole property of this generation. It is a heritage which we have a right to use and conserve but not to abuse and destroy.

The log of the oil fields during the depression is a chronicle of the efforts of the oil states, of the Federal government, and of honest producers to control production. In 1931, in a desperate effort to wipe out the chiselers, the industry went on a rampage and staged the most spectacular war in the recent history of the industry. Crude oil actually sold cheaper by the barrel than beer by the bottle. Naturally such a situation could not last indefinitely. With the advent of the NRA, the "laissez-faire" policy, under which the industry had been operating for over half a century, was tossed away and government enforcement of production was recognized.

'HOT' OIL FINALLY UNDER CONTROL?

Even though the petroleum section of the NRA was declared unconstitutional last February, the oil states have made substantial progress toward production control. "Hot" oil (oil produced beyond the established quotas) has now dropped to around 35,000 barrels daily against 80,000 to 100,000 within the year. In addition, the Connally Act was passed in March. This prevents the interstate shipments of "hot" oil, thus backing up state enforcement boards with Federal aid. As a result, gasoline prices have held up fairly well, although twenty per cent less than in 1929. Crude prices, which average around $1 per barrel, are sufficiently high to enable the industry to cover its average producing cost of 70-75 cents per barrel.

The necessity of controlling production from the investment, as well as from the conservation, standpoint is clearly seen by comparing 1934 results with those of previous years. Total profits reported by the industry for 1934 were $216,700,000 com-

Back to See Grandson

Mr. and Mrs. Enzo Piermonte, former fighter, hurried in response to his wife's command to "Knock 'em down, Enzo!" so they finally posed quietly. You see them here on arrival at New York from Europe, where they reached a reconciliation. Mrs. Piermonte, the former Madeline Force Astor Dick, will get her first glimpse of her newly born grandchild, the son of her first wife, who was reported in the chaotic year 1931. Measuring the improvement from the stock market angle, the average price of twenty oil stocks is now 170 per cent over the bear market low. Moreover, profits for the first half of 1935 ran about 20-25 per cent above a year ago. These encouraging earnings are the result of greater stability and efficiency plus a record volume of consumption.

OILS GOOD FOR LONG PULL

Investors are wondering, in view of the above, why prices of oil stocks have lagged in the last two months. Apparently those connected with the industry fear that, as we pass this current seasonal peak of demand, prices may weaken and earnings may dip temporarily. Whatever may be the near-term outlook, let me emphasize that fundamentally the industry is in a sounder position today than at any time in recent history. Business is definitely on the up-grade; motor travel is more popular than ever before; output is better controlled; and consumption of petroleum products should continue to establish new records. Therefore, for the long pull, I am optimistic on oil securities.

Readers should realize that every gallon of fuel oil, kerosene, and gasoline consumed enhances the value of the remaining limited supply. Drilling operations are currently the highest since 1930, yet no pool of major importance has been discovered throughout the world in the last five years. In addition, oil securities are a good inflation hedge. Inflation boosts the prices of raw commodities and frequently the profits of concerns producing them. Furthermore, if an acute shortage of petroleum makes it necessary to develop some new combustible fuel, oil companies with their great systems of pipe lines, service stations, tank cars, and the like are in a preferred position to take over the job of distributing this new product.

Business, as estimated by the Babsonchart, though 20 per cent below normal, is now 5 per cent above a year ago. (Copyright, 1935. Publishers Financial Bureau)

A Brand New Bunch of ANAGRAMS

HANDY ENTRY BLANK

In the blank space below I have rearranged the letters in the anagrams to spell the names of the words which I think to be the solution of today's game. The ones checked with a cross mark thus X are advertised in today's Democrat.

ANAGRAM	SOLUTION
1. LOGNISAE	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
2. NONSPADSRAG	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
3. ROOMT	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
4. PEMLASS	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
5. WERSNEPAP	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
6. OLOFATLB	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
7. UCAGPERIEJ	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
8. RONTAC	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
9. OBONLAG	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>
10. AHETREW	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>

I have used all of today's anagram solutions in the following sentence of not more than 30 words:

_____

My Name _____

I buy my groceries at _____
If awarded a prize, I want my order drawn on the store checked below:
(Place cross mark after name of store you want your order drawn on).

- Crawford Grocery ( ) City Grocery ( )
- Chitwood's Market ( ) Fields & Son ( )
- M System ( ) Memphis Grocery ( )

"SHE"

RULES:

1. The letters in each of the accompanying anagrams when arranged properly will spell the ten words. Two of the words each week will be items. You are invited to solve the anagrams and to send them in a sentence of not more than 30 words (you may use less if you wish), and try for ten prizes.
2. To the persons who send in the best solution in accordance with these rules, The Democrat will award a basket of groceries and ten tickets to the Ritz. The basket of groceries will be offered as a prize to two tickets to the Ritz as second prize, and each to the next eight contestants.
3. This offer is open to all except employees of the Democrat and their families. You pay nothing.
4. Awards will be made on the basis of the correct list of anagrams and the cleverest and most original rearrangement of the letters in each anagram word in common usage. Then check the letters in the square if you find either of the two words advertised. If the item is NOT advertised, mark.
5. Then arrange the ten words into a sentence of not more than thirty (30) words. You may use any words you wish.
6. All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Democrat. Contestants agree to the decisions of the committee as final. Judgments will be based upon suitability of words inserted in checking cleverness in arranging the words neatly. No special consideration will be given to elaborate entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.
7. All entries must be received at the Democrat by four o'clock Saturday afternoon.

You need not purchase The Democrat to use the handy blank submitted here. You may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. Winners will be announced in Sunday's Democrat.

Miss Claudine Smallwood, Bride-Elect of Milton Todd, Honored With Shower

By MRS. A. P. TODD
 (Special to The Democrat)
 Friday, Aug. 9.—Miss Claudine Smallwood, bride-elect of Milton Todd, was honored Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with a shower in the home of Mrs. Grace Pittman.
 Mrs. Pittman was assisted by Mrs. Mildred Pittman and Mrs. Mildred Pittman.
 The dining room and living room were decorated in white and with many lovely flowers.
 Miss Smallwood received many gifts. Tommie Wayne Gaddis, Bobbie Johnson pulled a season, decorated in white and loaded with the gifts into the room.
 A person present also wrote a card and a wish on a card presented to the bride.
 Miss Smallwood and Mr. Todd were married on August 18. Refreshments of cake and punch were served to the following:
 James Snodgrass, Henry Hood, Hilburn Gaddis, Hightower, Zack Salmon, J. Lass, George Hillis, Harley Man, Cal Holland, Milton N. L. Murff, Joe Wood, Halcomb, Star Johnson, Shepherd, Charley Murff, Tom Finchman, Rayman, Wayne Rexrode, Earlemons, Duke Osburn, B. Phillips, Prentice Hurst, Lemons, Jeff Adridge, Rob Jack Perkins, D. L. Small, Misses Robbie, Margaret Hyde, Shepherd, Thelma and LaLemons, Ruth Bufkin, Darlene and Jackie Saltbritchen Tidwell, Lola Bess Mamie and Frankie Small and Mrs. Howard Steward and Miss Bertie Steward of Clarksville.
 Approximately 70,000,000 tons of cotton are expected to drop on American cities this year, according to estimates. The crop is expected to be 30 per cent above the normal.

What Do You—

$10 doesn't look very large, but when the end of the month rolls around and he has many of these to pay, he is in hot water.
 About the biggest advantage of all in the installment plan, according to my way of thinking, comes when a person needs to borrow some money. The lender will give it to him providing he makes a monthly return on the money. In other words, pays it back on installments. It has been discovered that if a note is left to run for a number of years and is to be paid back in one lump sum, the borrower more often cannot meet the obligation. He knows he has this sum to pay back, but nine times out of 10 he doesn't begin to save until a couple of months before the note is due. In that short time he can't possibly save the total debt. He can, however, when he knows he has a small amount to pay at short intervals.

 At 1:30, the meeting reconvened for the afternoon session.
 Introduced by David Fitzgerald, J. Ross Bell, of Childress, delivered a formal address as the first event of the afternoon.
 This was followed by a series of talks by old timers in the crowd.
 The afternoon meeting is to be closed by a business session, at which various matters of interest will be decided upon in regard to the future of the organization, and officers elected for the ensuing year.
 Tonight's square dance on the public square will close the festivities.

Hall County in 1898, but had to leave with his family when they moved away. Mr. Wheeler said that he had to wait 10 years to grow up before he could come back. He came back in 1908 and has been here ever since.
 Everything possible was done for the comfort of the pioneers, even to such details as pouring oil down ant-ohles, so the little pests would not be a bother.
 Many of the pioneers commented on the goodness of the shade to sit in while listening to the program.

Earl Johnson, master of ceremonies, said on opening, "I am no speaker, but I am a awful talker."
 The ice-cold water was well received by the old folks as well with the younger old settlers on down to babies carried in their mothers' arms.

A great many of the old timers came from distant localities. Two came in last night from over 400 miles away.

COTTON FIGURES

THE Department of Agriculture yesterday released its first estimate of this year's cotton crop, predicting a production of 11,798,000 bales of 500 pounds each — 2,100,000 bales above last year's figures.

It gave Texas a probable production of 3,851,000 bales, which it estimated at 74 per cent of normal.

This huge estimate comes despite the fact that acreage has been greatly reduced. It is high above the Bankhead allowable, and if it materializes, there is likely to be a mad rush for cotton tags—that is, of course, if there is such a thing as a Bankhead Act at the time the cotton is ginned.

Although the estimate indicates the favorable conditions in the cotton belt, which is the finest in several years, we believe it is entirely too high. This opinion was expressed by County Agent James A. Jackson.

It may be that present conditions point to a crop of nearly 12,000,000 bales, but it seems that the Department of Agriculture should take into consideration the average drop-off before harvest due to heat, dryness, floods, weevils and other causes, rather than place its estimate on the highest probable figure.

At the best, the Department's estimate is no more than a poor guess. Natural calamities can easily reduce the final output by four or five million bales, although, of course, this is not likely. However, the normal drop of a million or so after the first estimates are made would get the figure down more closely to where we believe it should be.

If high interest in the fact that Secretary Wallace stated that "adequate credit facilities" will be available for the orderly marketing of the crop. We can interpret this as meaning that regardless of what happens to the AAA, the situation is not going to be allowed to run riot.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athletic star, because Bret objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH.

Jo goes to Crest Lake. Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes her and causes difficulties. These are increased when PETER FRAGONET, film actor, arrives. Fragonet pays marked attentions to Jo, asks her to marry him as soon as he can secure a divorce.

Bret Paul comes to Crest Lake as life guard, BABS MONTGOMERY, school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo, is also there. Fragonet leaves and returns when his film company undertakes to make part of a motion picture at the resort. He begs Jo to return to Hollywood with him. She delays her decision.

Jo becomes friendly with LOLITA MONTEZ, actress. During a scene on the lake Lolita narrowly escapes drowning and is rescued by Bret Paul.

CHAPTER XXX

Jo's realization that it was Bret Paul and not Peter Fragonet who had rescued her from the lake was momentarily swept away in the excitement. As Bret dove from the speedboat Jo surged forward with the rest of the crowd, straining to catch a glimpse of Lolita Montez on the bright sunlit surface of the lake. Drann, thoroughly frightened and excited now, was leaping up and down in the boat, shouting unnecessary directions at the top of his lungs.

Then Bret bobbed into view, and beside him Jo saw with relief the bedraggled dark hair of Lolita Montez. An involuntary cry went up from the crowd on shore as Drann helped Bret lift the inert figure into the boat. Then, as Fragonet struggled aboard, the cry stopped abruptly—as if there was only the silence of contempt for him.

Queerly, despite her feelings for Lolita, Jo was sorry for Fragonet. They had no right to lift him up, then dash him down in silence just because he'd never learned to swim well enough. Drann had driven him, just as he'd driven Montez from that tower. And Fragonet had argued with Drann. Suddenly hate welled up inside for this stocky, egotistical Drann who could gamble with lives to gain a few seconds' effect on the screen.

There was no more "shooting" that day, and as Jo and Tubby walked back to the Inn they were strangely silent. On the veranda Jo said, "I wish you'd come up to my room, Tubby."

Inside Jo's room she faced Tubby Davis. "Why didn't you tell me Bret Paul saved my life that day on the lake?"

"Why, I thought you knew," Tubby exclaimed. "I—who did you think did it?"

"I thought it was Fragonet," Tubby sank in to a chair. "Well, am I relieved! I was wondering what had got into you. It didn't seem like you to ignore the fact that Bret had saved your life. Not even to thank him for it. I tried to open up the subject several times, but you always cut me off."

"I didn't even know Bret was at Crest Lake then."

"He'd come just that morning," Tubby said. "He was standing on the shore having his first view of the lake when Babs hit your sailboat."

Jo stared at the wall. "I wonder what he must think of me? I can understand a lot of things now."

"I don't know what Bret thinks of you," Tubby said. "But I know darned well what I think of his Fragonet. Letting you believe he saved your life! Why, it's all he can do to keep himself afloat. He proved that today."

Jo smiled. "He didn't let me believe it. I'm sure he thinks I knew it was Bret Paul."

"But haven't you ever mentioned it to him?"

"I started to thank him when I regained consciousness after the accident, but he wouldn't let me talk about what happened. He didn't want me to get disturbed about it—and I suppose I thought he was being modest about what he'd done. So I never referred to it again."

"Well, don't you think it's time you were referring to it to Bret?"

Jo nodded soberly. "You don't have to remind me of that, Tubby. That's something I'm going to do right now."

But Bret was neither at the lake nor in his cottage, and one of the house boys explained to Jo that "Mistah Paul" was in conference with Silas Drann. "He take place of Mistah Fragonet in swim tomolla!" The little Oriental grinned knowingly.

"If you see Mr. Paul I wish you'd tell him I'm very anxious to see him," Jo instructed.

She returned to her room and found Tubby sprawled on the bed, munching chocolate creams. Hurriedly swallowing, Tubby looked at her questioningly. "What did he say?"

"I didn't get to see him. Apparently he's going to double for Fragonet in that scene tomorrow. He's with Drann now."

"That's lucky for Montez," observed Tubby. "as well as for Bret. Come to think of it, why wouldn't Bret Paul make a swell movie hero?"

"I guess he would, Tubby." Jo wakened next morning without having heard from Bret. She wondered if he had received her message and was ignoring it. Perhaps he did not want to talk with her at all, now that he was so contemptuous of the man she thought she cared for. Perhaps he believed that a girl who would be interested in Fragonet deserved nothing, even common courtesy.

Jo could understand his contempt for Fragonet. No two men, she thought, were ever more unlike. To a boy like Bret Paul who had worked hard always for what little he could gain from life, Peter Fragonet must appear to be the epitome of worthlessness. And now Bret, proud of his own physical prowess, had seen Fragonet branded with cowardice.

It must have hurt Bret that Jo had said never a word about the day she was pitched unconscious from the sailboat. And it must have hurt still more when he saw her accepting the attentions of Marsh and Barston—and Fragonet himself. Whatever was to happen in the future between her and Bret, she must find him and patch up the past.

Her resolve was easier made than carried out. All that day Bret, with his hair darkened, and dressed to resemble Fragonet in the role of a forester, was busy with Drann's company. While Fragonet kept to his room, the company went through the scenes which had resulted in such a fiasco the day before.

Jo hung about the lake shore with Tubby most of the day, pretending interest in the filming; in reality she was hoping to have a word with Bret. But Bret, quite literally, spent most of the day in the lake. Drann's speedboat. The only member of the company Jo had a chance to talk to was Lolita Montez, looking none the worse for her experience of the day before.

"You don't know how frightened you had me yesterday," Jo told her.

Montez smiled. "Those things will happen. And it certainly wasn't Fragonet's fault. Drann goes insane sometimes when he gets an idea into his head, and Fragonet had told him he didn't think he could handle the scene."

"You knew it, too?" asked Jo, amazed.

The actress shrugged. "It's part of the business," she said. Then Montez was called by Drann, and Jo saw her no more that day. Neither did she see Bret. The director worked his outfit like mad until the sun was outfit behind the trees, and it was rumored that he planned to leave for Hollywood sooner than he had originally intended. The near-tragedy had disturbed his ego, for he knew that almost all who had seen it held it against him. Drann found it no longer pleasing to show off before the spectators who lined the shore of the lake. And he knew, too, that Fragonet would probably be relieved indeed to get away from the stares of the men and women to whom he had been a hero one day and a coward the next.

Unable to have even a moment with Bret during the day, Jo told herself that she must go to his cottage that night. She mustn't let another day go by without telling Bret she appreciated what he had done. Even now he was likely to believe she was turning to him only because Fragonet had made a fool of himself at Crest Lake. "But it isn't true that Fragonet made a fool of himself," Jo thought stoutly. "It was Drann who made a fool of him."

She had dinner earlier than usual, to escape the guests in the dining room and the long after-noon for he knew that almost all who ly went on over the cigarettes. The smiling hostess at the house boy who had her, Jo left her table.

But in the lobby she met Douglas Marsh.

"Hello, Jo! Had dinner ready? . . . I hoped you'd get it with me. Have you planned right now?"

"Why . . . no."

"Good! Join me in a room at least. We must have for the movie crowd and to talk it over with you. I have decided to leave day tomorrow. That means I have to be tomorrow night short notice, but—" he at her, "I guess we can't have a good time."

"Of course," Jo said. "Come in and sit down and we'll make plans. Slightly Jo accepted arm and returned to the room with him.

Hartnett's Injury Climaxes Long List of Major Mishaps

By JIMMY DONAHUE (NEA Service Sports Editor)
Gabby Hartnett chipping a bone in his ankle at such an important stage of the Chicago Cubs' pennant drive stresses the fact that this season has had its full share of injuries and illness.

The success or failure of the Cubs may depend on just how well Kenny O'Dea fills in for Hartnett during the 10 days or more that the big backstop is on the sidelines. O'Dea did a splendid job in substituting for Hartnett earlier in the campaign.

Generally speaking, the Cubs have had less injuries than the majority of the other major league outfits in 1935. Freddie Lindstrom went out, but Frank Demaree fairly roared along when inserted in his place. Charley Grimm's lumbaro originally put Phil Cavaretta in the lineup, and the youngster stood up so well that the manager retired as an active combatant.

Touted by many as the close of the American League, the Cleveland Indians folded and dropped into the second division after illness and injuries had thinned their ranks.

Bill Knickerbocker was the first in the incapacitated ward. An attack of amebic dysentery laid him low in training camp. Then followed a series of accidents that were climax by the fourth of July injuries to outfielder Earl Averill and pitcher Clint Brown.

The former's hand was shattered when a firecracker exploded in it, and the vision of the latter seriously was impaired in one eye when a fan threw a firecracker in front of the Indians' dugout. Popholes scattered by the explosion struck Brown in the eye.

Joe Vosmik twisted his ankle and was out for several days. Catcher Frank Ptkak quit for the season due to stomach ulcers. To top it off, Monte Pearson, pitcher, took a sun bath on the roof of a Philadelphia hotel, and was so painfully burned that he was on the bench for some time. Southpaw Floyd Brown developed sinus trouble.

Giants Hard Hit
It's surmised that the New York Giants have stood up under the numerous injuries that have weakened the team. Trick knees and varied wounds riddled the infield, putting Stoney Jackson, Hughley Critz and Dick Bartell on the shelf, and necessitating the switch-hitting of the reserve infielder, Mark Koenig.

Slick Costleman, the rookie hurler who was going great guns, was laid up with a broken ring finger, and fat Freddie Fitzsimmons is out following an operation on an ailing elbow.

Gus Mancuso, first string receiver, was idle for a dozen contests due to a sprained wrist. The Pittsburgh Pirates have been very hot in streaks due chiefly to phenomenal pitching by Cy Blanton, and the clouting of Arky Vaughan. Blanton, however, was out with a threatened appendicitis attack, and injuries forced Vaughan to the bench just when his punch at the plate might have offset the loss of Blanton.

Even the Brooklyn Dodgers had visions of playing in the world series early in the year, but a series of accidents again relegated them to the role of Daffiness Boys.

Van Mungo, ace hurler, now has a broken finger in a splint; Cincinnati Reds and returned to Cal Lopez, first string catcher, has two injured fingers on his throwing hand; Babe Phelps, reserve pitcher, has a fractured right jaw; Linus Frey, shortstop, still limps from a mixup with Chuck Klein; and Len Koencke is on the sidelines with a lame arm.

Intensify Hunt for Utility Wizard

Jinx Trails Dickey
The New York Yanks, when their pitching became the best in the league and led them to the top, found themselves in the hole when Bill Dickey ran into a series of mishaps. He was benched in Detroit, sustained a leg injury in crashing into Buddy Myer, of the Senators, at the Yankee Stadium; and minor head and hand injuries sapped the long, lean boy of much of his power.

Jake Powell, of Washington, is bothered by a nerve in his leg. The Senators' pitching staff received a blow recently when Ed Linke was hit on the head by a liner from the bat of Jesse Hill, Yankee outfielder. His condition was believed serious when he was carried off the field unconscious but he is back in action again.

Jimmy Dykes, of the White Sox, has been out at a time or two. Al Simmons was out a week with a groin injury, and Zeke Bonura gave the Pale Hose manager a very unpleasant afternoon recently when he injured an ailing hand, and then went tearing into the stands for a foul ball and bashed his head on one of the gates.

One of the few teams that has succeeded in warding off the jinx is the Tigers, who were so fortunate last year. Outside of the beginning of the season, the Bengal Lancers haven't been annoyed. Chick Hafey deserted the Cincinnati Reds and returned to Cal Lopez, first string catcher, has didn't feel well. Not that it mated, but the Phillies and Braves have fared fairly well in the line of injuries, or lack of them. The Boston Red Sox have been without Joe Cronin, Rick Ferrell, Max Bishop, Bill Werber, and Oscar Melillo, at various times. The Athletics had to struggle along without Frank Higgins for a spell. The St. Louis Browns have been too busy changing uniforms to get hurt.

by Harry GRAYSON

Coaches and players prepare for football the whole summer through.

First-string college athletes are banded balls and cleated shoes with the close of classes in June and advised to keep the feel of things and their legs in shape while on vacation. So while the mentors perspire in coaching schools and on lecture platforms, combatants toil while it's 92 in the shade, and no shade.

Last autumn Lou Little told me that the summer of coaching schools took more out of him than Columbia's prolonged season the fall before.

The better tutors worry even when their clubs are going well. Returning from the Rose Bowl game of 1934, Little started to fret about the opening game with Yale the following September.

Coaching schools started by the late Knute Rockne have spread until practically all of the foremost coaches are in great demand throughout the summer. Frank Thomas hopped from Tuscaloosa to Denver to Boston within a few days to show high school tutors how the sport is played at Alabama. Dick Harlow, of Harvard, and Francis Schmidt, of Ohio State, teamed as professors at a Toledo school. Pop Warner, Andy Kerr, Bob Zupke, Fritz Crisler, Bernie Bierman, Noble Kizer, and numerous others have—or are—conducting schools and serving as instructors at others.

When these coaches are not thus engaged, they and Elmer Layden, Harry Kipke, Lynn Waldorf, now at Northwestern, Capt. Biff Jones, who has assumed command at Oklahoma, and most of the other big-time mentors, address recruits.

Lateral Passing Stressed at Coaching Schools

Carl H. Brubaker and Harry F. Newman, high school coaches, annually conduct one of the better and more successful schools at Shaker Heights High School, Cleveland. Coaches "in as far away as New Mexico were among the 75 who obtained tips from Little and Tad Weman and a pair of basketball authorities at this school a year ago.

Presiding over this year's Shaker Heights school from Aug 19 to 25 will be Jack Sutherland, of Pittsburgh; Jimmy Aiken, coach of the champion and high-scoring Canton McKinley High School team; Tony Hinkle, of Butler, one of the foremost basketball authorities in the country; and Glenn Curtis, of Martinsville High School, four times winner of the Indiana state tournament.

High school coaches may polish up their games cheaply, for they are offered either course for $10, and the combined for $15.

Naturally, the lateral is being stressed at these schools. After the seasons of Harlow and himself at Toledo, Schmidt expressed fear that their pupils might have departed believing that nothing else mattered in football. Harlow and Schmidt drilled the importance of the lateral into them to that extent.

Spectacular Innovations in Football This Fall

Fall is to witness the greatest and most spectacular innovations that the game ever has known. Instead of concentrating on interference, as coaches have done for decades, teachers will emphasize power behind the ball in the form of potential receivers of lateral passes. Guards, tackles, and ends will be seen passing the ball around like backs, and scoring touchdowns. Football will look more like rugby than ever.

A letter from George S. Halas to members of the Chicago Bears is typical of those being received by football men, collegiate and professional alike, these tepid days. Halas is Mr. Chicago Bear himself. The old Illinois end is president and treasurer of the outfit and one of the most progressive coaches in the business.

"You are to report in Chicago for football on Aug. 11, for on Aug. 29 we play the College All-Stars at Soldier Field," writes Halas. "It is up to you to arrive in good condition. My advice is that you start at once and gradually get in shape. Get plenty of sleep. Eat only plain, wholesome food. If you are overweight, ease up on your eating. Cut out potatoes, sweets, and pastries, and limit yourself to one glass of water at meals. Use a little judgment in regard to smoking.

"Spend at least 20 minutes a day doing bending and stretching exercises, along with full squatting and stationary running. Practice starts, short sprints, and jogging so that you will be sure to show up with your legs in good condition."

Remember When?

The "water works" in Memphis and Esteline used to freeze quite often in the winter-time, 35 years ago.

And the supply wasn't unlimited, nor could it be called easily accessible.

And the early settlers weren't always sure their water was unpolluted.

It's just another reminder that times have changed in the last 35 or 40 years. Thanks to progress, you touch a hydrant in your home, at your store, on your lawn for water that is pure and abundant.

And this service, in proportion to its value costs far less than any of the modern conveniences you enjoy today.

How the Quins Grow! 40 Feet High--in Fireworks!

Amazing how those smarting quintuplets have grown! Forty feet high they appear here, in the glowing fireworks set piece that was an outstanding attraction of the Cleveland, O., summer festival, attended by thousands. Size of the display, showing the quins 'in conference,' is shown by the lofty framework, visible through the brightly gleaming outlines of the set piece.
