District P C A Loans Exceeding $100,000 Aid 164 Applicants

One hundred and 64 applications for Production Credit loans have been accepted in the Production Credit Loan association office here, according to Marvin P. Bryan, head of the association for this district, which includes Hall, Donley, Collingsworth and Childress counties.

The loans total more than $100,000. They have been made since February 20, the date that the local office was authorized to make loans.

The loans are divided up as follows: Collingsworth, 61; Hall, 48; Donley, 37; and Childress, 18.

Sixty per cent of the loans have gone for payment of debts, Mr. Bryan stated, and 40 per cent have gone to farmers for crop production.

Mr. Bryan said that $500,000 would likely be loaned in this district next year.

"Credit is based on the assumption that debtors will meet their obligations as they mature," Mr. Bryan stated, "and in a cooperative system of credit, such as the Farm Credit administration, individual borrowers have a duty toward each other as well as to themselves in keeping up their payments."

Those who permit interest on their loans and taxes on their farm to accumulate may soon find that these obligations have increased beyond their ability to pay, with serious results to the policy of the Farm Credit administration, to safeguard the interests of the majority while endeavoring to provide sound credit for all, it was said.

The benefits which are being received by Texas farmers and ranchmen from the Emergency Farm Mortgage program will prove their value to the extent that borrowers meet their payments, Mr. Bryan pointed out.

WOMEN STRIKERS USE RED PEPPER

Bombard Non-Union Workers
But Most Of Pepper Is Blown In Own Faces

By Associated Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, June 8.—Women packing plant pickets bombarded non-union workers with red pepper before police ended their activities in the stockyards strike area here today.

Armed with cans of pepper, the women tossed it into workbound automobiles as they slowed at the picket lines. Much of the pepper blew back into the strikers' faces.

About 900 men and women are involved in the strike, seeking recognition of the union for purposes of collective bargaining and higher wages.

Band Realizes $39 In Funds Campaign

Thirty-nine dollars was realized from the sale of magazines here yesterday by members of the Memphis Black and Gold band.

Of the $39, 50 per cent of it will go to swell the band's treasury. The Black and Gold band members are selling subscriptions to a number of well known magazines this week. The band gets half of the subscription price on all magazines sold.

The local bandboys will canvass the entire town, Glenn A. Truax, bandmaster, said.

The magazine campaign will end Saturday.

SOCIAL SAFETY PLANNED BY PRESIDENT

To Put Vast Program
Before Congress
Next Winter

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Roosevelt told congress today he is preparing a vast plan of social insurance for the "security of the citizen and his family."

This, with another national plan for land and water resources, will be presented to congress next winter.

He said, "Among our objectives I place the security of men, women and children of the nation first." Regarding homes, he said in the housing bill now before the legislators that the government "can stimulate the lending of money" to modernize homes and build new ones.

He declared that "when the next congress convenes I hope to be able to present careful considered national plans covering the development and human use of our national resources of land and water over a long period of years."

It involves the abandoning of millions of acres for agricultural use and replacing them with better land.

The President disclosed he has begun actual studies looking to a unified system of social insurance, including unemployment in old age.

Harvest will begin this week on many farms and a week later will be in full swing.

Fighters Reported Ready; Battle Is Ordered To Go On

By Associated Press
NEW YORK, June 8.—Max Baer and Primo Carnera today were reported in "satisfactory" condition for their 15-round championship fight next Thursday night, and the New York State athletic commission ordered the fight to proceed as scheduled.

John J. Phelan, chairman, made the announcement after the boxers were given an exhaustive examination by three commission doctors.

YOU'RE NEEDED TONIGHT

Friends and supporters of Clint Small, former judge of this district and well known to thousands of people in the Panhandle, will meet tonight at 7:30 in the district court room for the purpose of forming a club to foster in this area his candidacy for Governor of Texas.

Supporters of Senator Small from Amarillo, Childress and Wellington will attend the meeting to assist in the organization of the club.

The Democrat urges the people of this section to be present tonight to back up the campaign of a native son as well as to demonstrate to visitors that we are as interested as they are in the election of Clint Small and are willing to do our part to place him in the governor's chair.

People of Memphis and Hall County have many good reasons for supporting Senator Small in his race for the state's highest office. Many salient features of his sensible program have already been outlined to Democrat readers, and more of the principles for which he stands will be discussed briefly in tonight's meeting. Because his platform is saner, because we know him to be a man of integrity and action, because his record as a public servant already has been outstanding, Clint Small is the man who should receive the sweeping support of the Panhandle, in The Democrat's humble opinion.

Let's give Small an even greater majority than he received four years ago. Come out tonight and help organize to that end.

GOP Chairman

Henry P. Fletcher, one of Col. Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders, was placed in the saddle by the Republican party Wednesday as national chairman to succeed Everett Sanders, resigned. This was considered at least a partial victory for the old guard in a three-day battle with "young liberals" of the west.

HIGH SCHOOL BAND HEADS BOOSTER TOUR TO PLASKA

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, aided by the Senior organization, will make the largest of its good will and booster tours tonight when it takes the high school band to Plaska tonight.

J. R. Jones, head of the Junior C. of C's extension committee, announced this morning that 15 cars were definitely assured for the trip and that a number of others were promised. Several of these are being furnished by the Senior organization, he said.

Several others who did not report to Jones or who were not sure they could make the trip are expected to be added to the caravan before it leaves the local band house at 6:45 o'clock.

The band, under the direction of Glenn A. Truax, will give a short concert at Plaska before a candidate rally is started there at 8 o'clock.

A large gathering of people from the Plaska territory will be on hand. In connection with the candidate rally, an ice cream supper and other entertainment will be held.

Dorothy Dell, Movie Star, And Companion Die In Wrecked Auto

By Associated Press
PASADENA, Calif., June 8.—Dorothy Dell Goff, who as Dorothy Dell, attained spectacular motion picture prominence within the last several months, was killed today in an automobile accident.

Her companion, Dr. Carl Wagner, 25, resident Pasadena surgeon, whom authorities questioned several months ago in connection with the unsolved murder of Dr. Leonard Seiver, Pasadena dentist, was fatally injured.

Miss Goff won the beauty title of Miss America in 1930 at Galveston.

Holcomb said he knew the man he picked up for many years.

Starting out to aid Senator Clint C. Small in a sweeping victory in Hall county in his race for governor of Texas, a county Small for Governor club will be organized at a rally here tonight.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the district court room here. Everyone is invited to be present.

The organization will be headed by Sam J. Hamilton, local attorney, who will act as county chairman.

Visiting Leaders

Principal speakers at tonight's rally will be visiting leaders of Small's campaign in Amarillo, Wellington and Childress. The Amarillo visitors will be T. E. Johnson, managing-editor of the Amarillo Globe-News, and Ray Johnson, Amarillo attorney.

Leaders of the movement to organize the Small for Governor club here anticipate a large gathering of supporters of the Amarillo senator at the rally, and a great amount of enthusiasm over the forming of the club.

Senator Small, himself, sent approval and gratitude to the club from his headquarters in Austin. While he is spending most of his time campaigning in central and east Texas, where reports show him to be gaining in popularity and strength every week, he is depending upon his backers in West Texas to aid him in his own territory.

Purpose of Club
This is the purpose of the local club. It will furnish full information on the work and platform of the senator as well as promote his interests within the county.

Backers of the senator are expected to be here from over the entire county and a number from nearby communities outside the county to attend the rally and to give their support to the organization of the club.

SHUT-IN DAY IS OBSERVED HERE

W. T. Hightower asks that the names of all shut-ins in and around Memphis be turned in to him by 10 o'clock in the morning, or this afternoon, if possible.

The Hightower greenhouse, in observance of national flower shut-in day, which is Sunday, will present flowers to every shut-in in Memphis and vicinity.

All that is required is to let Mr. Hightower know where to take the flowers and the name of the person. If the shut-in resides outside of the city limits, the local greenhouse will not deliver the flowers, but will offer them free if someone calls for them.

The deliveries will be made tomorrow.

Everyone is asked to aid in the observance here in order that no shut-in be over-looked.

The injury did not develop as serious until last Saturday. Bill was taken to Dallas Monday by his father, Sheriff John Alexander, for treatment.

let Madeline linger long.

When the spectators, in a body, rose and left the big top Renfro made no effort to stop them. There was no announcement that the girl was not badly injured and that the performance would continue. The circus owner was too shocked to think or care what happened next.

Renfro was a simple soul — a kindly, generous man at heart. Though ambitious and somewhat mercenary, he had always placed human life before financial gain. He had heard Con demanding to know who had killed the tiger, and dull, cold contempt filled him. To think that a man, carrying his wife who was unquestionably dying in his arms, could even think of the brute that had destroyed her.

As Con stepped back from the couch where he had placed Madeline, the circus owner said hoarsely, "You've killed her, Con. I didn't want her to go into that cage, and you know it. You sent her to her death!" "Nobody's blaming you," Con hiccupped. "And you're through," Renfro added. "Whether she lives or dies, you're through."

Con's lips were distorted in a grimace that was intended to be a smile. "Thanks," he said. "So you'd kick a man when he's down. But with my best animal dead and my wife—"

"Your best animal!" snapped Renfro. "I wish I'd shot the damned best myself! To think that you can mention that cat in the same breath with your dying wife!"

"Please gentlemen—" the doctor protested. Both men stopped talking. There was a moment's silence and then the faintest murmuring came from the couch. "Con," Madeline said softly, "Con—"

He knelt beside her and her fumbling fingers stroked his cheek. "Kiss me, Con," the girl whispered. "I love you so much. If you don't forgive me I—"

He kissed the pain drawn mouth, pressing his own against it in an agony of contrition. Only when her lips grew cold and her tortured breathing ceased did he draw back. Then, like one suddenly stricken blind, Con David stumbled out of the little room, out of the run-way and into open air.

concession stands were grouped, past the sideshow of freaks, the peanut and lemonade vendors to the exit from the grounds.

It was the irony of fate that he should be the one to inform Ned Trafford of Madeline's death. But Con did not know who the man was who accosted him. The animal trainer's filled, blood-shot eyes saw only the bulk of a man in the shadows. He did not recognize Trafford's voice.

"How is she?" the man in the shadows asked. "Dead! Dead!" Con answered. He staggered on toward the city, still wearing his costume of yellow and purple. Yellow had been the color that Madeline had feared.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. Years earlier Madeline ran away from her grandfather's farm.

When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL's farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving Bill and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.

Meanwhile Madeline marries CON DAVID, animal trainer with the circus, and although terrified of the lions and tigers takes part in the animal act.

Donna and Bill are married. MRS. PLANTER, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy. Grandfather Sidal has a stroke and Donna writes Madeline about his illness.

The circus is in New Orleans. Con tells Madeline she must go into the cage alone with Lucy, the tiger, during the evening performance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

Contrary to expectations, Renfro was not at all enthusiastic about Madeline going into the cage alone with Lucy.

"I don't trust that beast," the circus owner said. "I never have, and I never will. Oh, I know Madeline has been working with the cat for several weeks but, just the same she's afraid of her. If she should suddenly lose her nerve—"

"But she won't," Con protested. "Why, you've seen for yourself how well Lucy behaves now. Madeline can handle her as well as I can."

Renfro shook his head. "I'm not afraid anything will happen when you're in the cage, Con. With Madeline it's different. An accident now would ruin our business here and God knows, we need the business."

Con laughed. "Then what are you complaining about? This act will get business for you. It's going to be a sensation! Give the crowd some real thrills and watch them flock in."

But Renfro was not convinced. It required several minutes of argument before the circus owner finally gave a grudging assent. Even then he refused to make the announcement that Madeline would enter the cage alone with the tigress.

There was an air of hushed suspense in the big tent an hour later when the striped beauties and their larger, less ferocious cousins, the lions, filed in through the wooden enclosure and took their places in the huge steel cage. Madeline stood near and watched Con go through with the act that had first won her admiration.

The great spotlight shone on Con. Madeline's slender, yellow-clad figure was in the shadows. But when, just before the finish of the usual routine, Con paused and announced that Mlle. Gabriel would put the tigress through her paces, the glowing light swung about and fell directly on Madeline lighting her beauty and emphasizing the delicacy of her figure. Drawn by snow-white horses, another cage was brought into the arena. Lucy, looking magnificent and at the same time repellant, glared through the bars as the cage made a circuit of the tent. Then the other animals were driven back through their run-way and Lucy, snarling, spitting and defiant, was prodded with prongs until she entered the massive cage.

Perhaps at that moment Con had a premonition of what was to happen. Perhaps he felt a twinge of conscience or a spark of tenderness toward the girl who stood beside him. He leaned toward her and whispered, "If you are afraid honey, we'll call the whole thing off."

Madeline raised her shadowed eyes to his, a bitter smile twisting her lovely rouged lips. "I'll go out in a blaze of glory," she said. She was thinking that this was to be her farewell appearance with the circus. As soon as the act was over she would tell Con that she was "jumping" the show, that she was through with him and with Renfro's circus forever.

The door of the cage was opened then and armed only with a whip, Madeline slid through the aperture. Spectators held their breath. The big tent that had been hushed before seemed utterly still and silent.

There were men on guard outside armed with revolvers but few of the watchers knew that. Lucy stood in the center of the cage, her yellow eyes meeting Madeline's, as the graceful feline body crouched low.

Step by step, the girl advanced, speaking softly. "On the chair, Lucy. On the chair."

Suddenly a man in a seat just behind the first row arose to his feet. He gave a low, mirthless laugh and called out in a voice that penetrated the entire tent. "Go to it, baby! I said I'd be here and here I am!"

Unmindful of her danger, Madeline turned. She saw Trafford, standing in the second row, and caught the leering grin on his face. It was at that instant—while her attention wavered—that the tigress leaped.

The rest happened so swiftly—a vivid splash of orange and white and black shooting through the air, the blood-curdling scream and the great beast bearing the slender body to the ground—that the horrified spectators were gripped in complete inactivity by the shock.

Even the men on guard to prevent the accident were too stunned to move. Con cried out, "Good God!" and tore at the fastenings of the door. Perhaps because he jerked so violently, the lock caught and jammed. Then a shot rang out. The tigress sprang into the

Thousands of Women Benefited By Cardui

The benefits many women obtain from Cardui give them great confidence in it. "I have four children," writes Mrs. J. L. Norred, of Lagrange, Ga. "Before the birth of my children, I was weak, nervous and tired. I had a lot of trouble with my back. I took Cardui each time and found it so helpful. Cardui did more to allay the nausea at these times than anything I have ever used. I am in very good health and believe Cardui did a lot of it." Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. air, gave a dying groan, and fell back across the mutilated, bleeding body of the girl.

It was then that the audience came to life. There were screams and groans and women fainted. Even men, shuddering and sickened, hid their faces behind trembling hands.

Con tore open the door of the cage and reached his wife. As he lifted her small figure in its gay finery of yellow and purple his voice could be heard above the tumult crying, "Who the devil shot the tiger!"

Madeline was still breathing as Con carried her across the arena to the nearest dressing room, which was La Belle Matilde's, but it was obvious that life was ebbing fast. A doctor who had been in the audience and witnessed the tragedy offered his services. It took only the briefest examination before he told them the girl had only a few moments to live.

Meanwhile Trafford, the man who had caused the accident, slipped out of the tent unnoticed, sobered by what he had done and discovering that revenge was not sweet. He lingered near the entrance to the grounds, waiting to hear whether Madeline lived or died.

For the first time in his career Renfro forgot that "the show must go on." The accident in which Donna had been injured had been bad enough, but Donna had not been torn and mangled and certain to die. A merciful God could not

Baer Measures Up to Old Champs' Idea of Ideal Heavyweight Boxer

BY JACK DEMPSEY
(As told to Harry Grayson)

NEW YORK, June 8.—I have read and heard that Primo Carnera will prove too big and strong for Max Baer in their 15-round world championship contest in the Garden Bowl on June 14. That is the belief of some reputable critics whose opinions I respect.

They may be right, but I have a somewhat different angle, and it came through experience. I believe that a heavyweight who scales close to 200 pounds, formerly proportionately, with good legs to carry him, a potent punch, a wise defense and a fighting heart, comes close to being the ideal man for the division.

Baer stands 6 feet 2 and one-half inches and will scale about 205 pounds. Carnera towers 6 feet 5 and three-fourths and will come in at about 260.

Certainly Baer can hit. He packs a potent punch in both hands. I would have disliked to have bumped into that starboard wallop of his when I was defending the title.

I'd like to see Baer make more use of his left, and am positive that you will note that he has improved in the use of that weapon when he opens fire on Carnera. If a weakness was shown by Max Adelbert in the Max Schmeling scrap, it was his failure to put his left into more powerful and busier execution. The former butcher boy has a speedy and parring left when he chooses to use it.

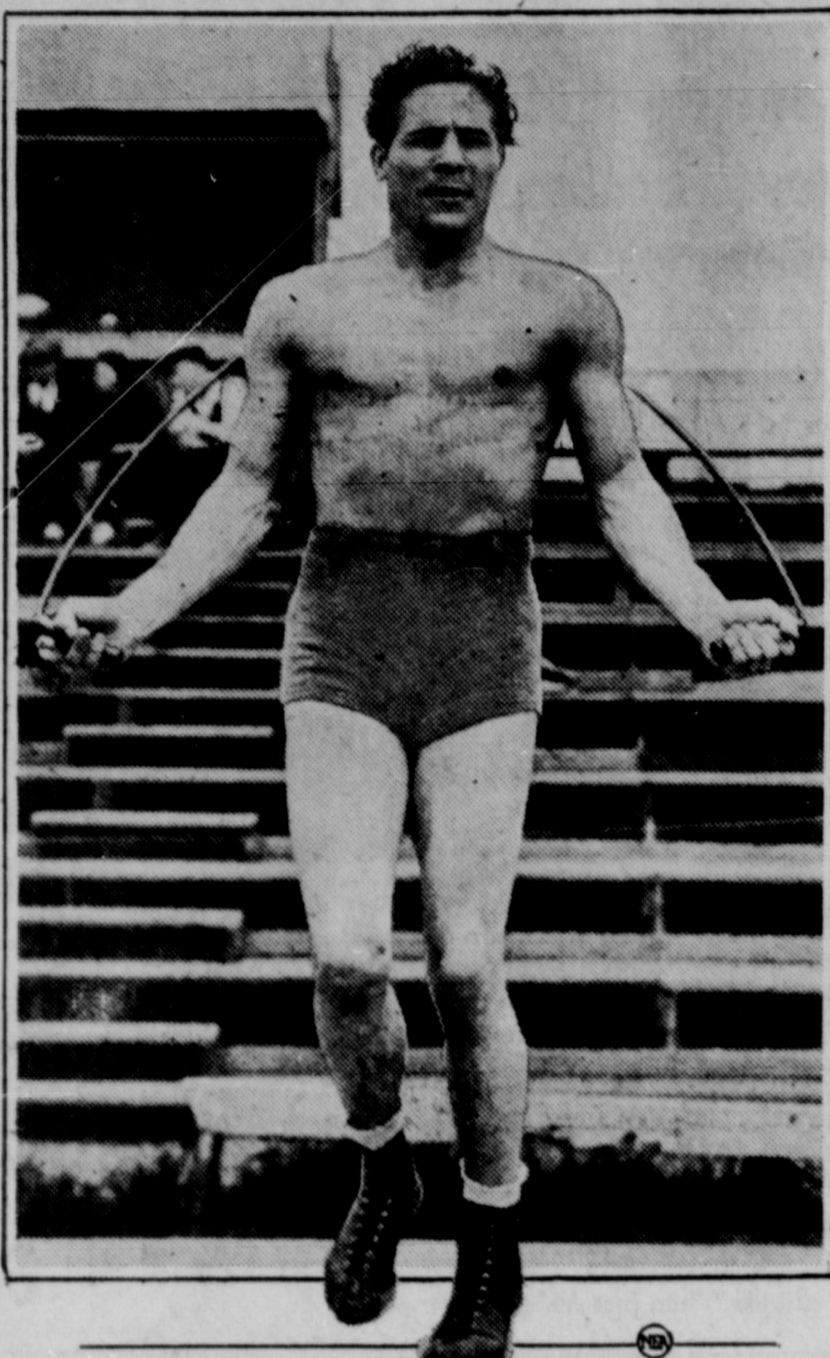

In my first article, I predicted that Baer would prove himself stronger physically than Carnera. I consider the challenger one of the most powerful men in the history of the class. Of course, I did not see Jim Jeffries at his peak, but old-timers tell me Baer rivals the boilermaker in his heyday in robustness, endurance and ability to travel the route.

There have been bigger champions than my idea of the perfectly proportioned one. Jeffries weighed 220 pounds.

When a fighter scales much more than 200 pounds he ordinarily presents a large and ready target. Generally it is advisable for him to do something to overcome this handicap.

Jess Willard kept most of his opponents at a safe distance a good share of the time with a long, stiff left jab. Jefferies adopted his famous crouch, and it was this that made him appear even ungainly, as many oldsters declared he was.

While the crouch made Jeff more difficult to hit, it also made it harder for him to maneuver around, but the Ohioan got the most out of his crouching style. He was an exceptionally fast boxer with a jibboom left.

Agile Max Baer skips rope like a school girl. Jack Dempsey says the Californian will weigh about 205 pounds when he bids for Primo Carnera's title on June 14, and calls him the ideal heavyweight.

Jack Johnson weighed more than 200 pounds. The negro was a boxing genius. He was a master on the defense, a natural fighter who came up from the lower divisions and, through hard work and constant study, developed himself into a titleholder.

I believe Johnson was one of the greatest heavyweight champions we have had. Incidentally, he still is around New York with that famous golden smile, telling folks what a great warrior Baer is. Johnson saw Baer stop Schmeling and came away with a whole-some respect for the curly-haired clouter's power.

I know about Willard from experience. It was from the Kansas that I took the championship in three rounds under the never-to-be-forgotten blazing sun at Toledo on July 4, 1919.

Willard was a huge champion, but I had had experience with ring giants, and had decided that Bob Fitzsimmons was right—that the bigger they came, the harder they fell. I had knocked out Fred Fulton, another oversized fellow, with a single sock.

I worked out my own ideas about boxing redwoods, and put them to use against Carl Morris, Fulton, Willard and Firpo.

No, I do not believe that Carnera's tremendous size is a factor to be set down against Baer, who scarcely could double for a Lilliputian himself.

The Ramblers, led by Manager Hollis Payne, are one of the oldest nines in the Panhandle. Years ago, before the Globe-News tournament was started in Amarillo, the Ramblers were the country's leading club. They were one of the most powerful semi-pro outfits in the Southwest, and at one time won the Denver Post tournament—the national championship of semi-pro baseball.

Renew Interest

Then they fell off, completing the cycle that always comes, until two or three years ago sentiment changed and the demand went out for another winner.

Plans were again advanced, a new park constructed and a couple of Texas leaguers brought in to start with. Since that time the Ramblers have advanced until today they claim "a very classy ball club, as good as there is in West Texas," according to Manager Payne.

Owls Contest Claim

The Owls will contest that statement Sunday. And if the Ramblers do prove to be better than the local club, they will still have a lot to do to prove their supremacy over some of the nines the Owls have played.

The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Admission is 25 cents general, with children under 12 admitted free of charge.

Battling terrifically, the Baptist crew took two decisions from the Christians yesterday, 9 to 5 and 14 to 13, and again assumed the top position in the Sunday School Softball League.

The loss of these games, which increased their losing streak to six, placed the Christians in the cellar.

The first contest, which was the regular scheduled affair went to the Baptists as a result of a big rally in the fifth. Both sides hit frequently, but only three runs were made. Norman, Andis, and Mitchell, all Christians, hit two-baggers.

Gordon Gilliam, Gordon Walker, and Massey led the offensive play for the victors, and with Paul Blevins and Brewer did the best fielding. Dennis, Andis, Fred Sanders, and Burleson led the play for the home team.

The second affray, which was not a full-fledged game, but a play-off, was forced into an extra inning when Burleson popped out to E. Gilliam for the final out. Gordon Walker scored the winning run in the eighth inning, since the Christians were retired scoreless on their last time at bat.

A goodly mob witnessed the struggles, making itself very audible during the thrilling points.

This afternoon the Methodists are entertaining the Presbyterians. This is sure to be hotly contested as an improved Methodist crew will be up against a Presbyterian team that needs no improvement.

Baptists Regain Softball Lead Blast Christians Into

ASBURY PARK, N. J. June 8.—Had Max Baer been a more skilled dietician for pigs, he might not know he quartered at P. Hal Sims' palatial place at nearby Elborn, preparing to meet Primo Carnera for the heavyweight leadership in New York on June 14.

The Cub Baer's daily menu for porkers on his father's farm at Livermore did not please Louis Santucci, and their arguments and their arguments grew so heated that the current challenger either had to punch his brother-in-law on the nose or quit. At least, that is what he told his pater, Jacob Baer.

"Now, see here, young man," admonished the Papa Baer, who trained the warriors in Denver a quarter century before, "there'll be no punching done around here. If you want to fight, join the army or get in the ring."

"That's not a bad idea, Pop," replied the Cub Baer, who was born with a boast on his lips. "In fact, I have been thinking of it for some time. Look what Dempsey and Tunney made. And me feeding hogs when I can lick all of those kind of guys!"

When he realized that the Cub Baer meant what he said, the Papa Baer did his utmost to discourage him. Thoroughly versed in pugilism, the Papa Baer visioned his handsome cub with a busted beak and scrambled ears. The Papa Baer suggested a job in the neighborhood gravel pit.

and to develop chosen profession. He rigged up the barn—soon the improved arena became the tation for townies. He declined youngsters' farms. Twenty miles drove in teer sparring place with that big B were treated to scorching scrap.

"One night a large number of the yard, revenue place," beamed. "They believed leg joint, for the kind of an end Livermore attracted people. I invited to take a good look it? Their coming and seeing the weight champion Papa Baer Ad Peace

But the Papa Baer's ring was the Mamma as mediator.

"Max's mother ing, happy-go-lucky just like him," Baer. "Brother quite like me.

"I didn't pay Max and his mother came to said, "You ought of yourself, Jake, out there in back his best to learn you, who know fusing to help him.

"What was I lend Max a hand the family. So he really wanted a job in his farm and work with a drove him to Oak a week until Han a job in his farm there."

The Cub Baer right merry clip ever since.

GOLF By Art Krenz

A glaring error in playing the chip shot comes when the golfer plays the ball too far forward and opposite the left foot. This often results in a half-topped shot. Play this shot off the right foot, standing fairly erect and with feet close together in an open stance. This relieves tension caused by a crouching body.

Use a 3 or 4 iron, and execute

The shot mainly with the right hand, employing the left as a steadying factor.

Don't swing the hands back too far. They should move only slightly, most of the action taking place in the wrists. As the ball is struck, the hands and arms should go forward with the stroke.

PUT ON THE BRAKES?

ACCORDING to news dispatches, the first thing that Henry P. Fletcher did after becoming chairman of the Republican national committee was to tell members of the committee in a public meeting, and therefore, the world, that this country must "put on the brakes."

Most of the people in this part of the country are wanting the government to "take off the brakes." We're waiting on cotton checks and hog checks that haven't come in; we're waiting to find out how much cotton we can raise without paying a prohibitive tax; we're waiting for drouth relief; we're waiting for the cattle-buying program to get underway.

Certainly the last thing we want right now is for any more brakes to be applied. President Roosevelt and his cohorts have undertaken an enormous task, and regardless of what we might think of the results, we admit that they should be given a reasonable amount of time to accomplish their aims.

Fletcher stated, "We've got to bring realization to the people as to what is happening in Washington."

He is sowing the seed of doubt in the minds of the people who yesterday were ready to accept President Roosevelt and his "experiments" wholeheartedly, desiring almost anything instead of what we had been through during previous years under a Republican administration. It is beside the point whether the G. O. P. was to blame, as so many well-meaning Democrats would have us believe.

Just as we were turned against Hoover, the Republican network now would turn us against Roosevelt.

We believe it is time to get away from the old, old "publicity stunt" manner of campaigning and controlling the sentiment of the people, and get down to work that will tend to solve problems of importance.

Whatever Fletcher or anybody else would have us believe, we must admit that Roosevelt took hold of a very bad situation and has done his best to improve it. We may go so far as to add that 90 percent of his shortcomings in carrying out this program may be blamed upon those who refused to help and went further by attempting to hinder.

WHILE MAN QUARRELS, NATURE TAKES TOLL

NEWS of the drouth and heat wave hammering the corn belt is a sharp reminder that the farmer's primary enemies are neither over-production nor high freight rates, but ancient inanimate forces that can neither be defeated nor wholly understood.

The first cave man who scratched the soil with a stick and dropped a few wild seeds into the scratch was at the mercy of the elements; and the ultra-modern farmer, who uses expensive machinery and gets advice from his state agricultural college, is, in the last analysis, in the same boat.

Whether he will get a good crop depends on things over which he has not the slightest control—rain, wind, and sun. If they are kind, his ground will yield bountifully; if they aren't, it won't, and there is nothing he can do about it.

The old risks of agriculture—the oldest business risks in all the world—are the same now as they were before the pyramids had been built.

The corn belt's sufferings this spring remind one of those eerie predictions some geologists have made—that the greater part of the interior of America is destined, some day, to become semi-arid and barren, a nearly waterless region, where things will not grow and man will not be able to live except as scattered nomads.

To be sure, not all geologists make this prediction, and those who make it put the time of this change far in the future—which, to a geologist, means anywhere from 50,000 years up; so that no one need worry for fear that the hot, dry weather which is blighting crops today is the forerunner of the desert's arrival in Iowa.

Nevertheless, these stories of parching drouth and devastating heat make one think about it. And they lead one to wonder how long it will be before men get sense enough to settle their differences with one another and present a united front toward their real enemies—the implacable and unrelenting forces of nature.

For these troubles of the present day—over-production, marketing difficulties, tariff restrictions, falling prices, and the like—are, after all, secondary. Settle them all, and there still remains the task of forcing the earth to yield enough to feed her teeming millions.

That is the oldest of society's problems, and it will probably be the last to be solved.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

There seems to be an idea that anyone who suffers from nervous exhaustion or nervous breakdown will be benefited by a sea voyage.

Such voyages do have the advantage of taking people away from their usual surroundings. But certain precautions must be taken.

If depression is a prominent symptom, the intervals between ports should be short. People who are melancholic become more and more depressed by the sight of nothing but water for several days. People who have been ill and get seasick easily should not take a sea voyage for convalescence.

A person who has had a nervous breakdown never should travel alone.

After all, the choice of a vacation is a relatively simple matter if you are reasonable, but it does demand a good deal of foresight.

A good vacation is one during which you enjoy yourself thoroughly, in which you are rested when you return, and in which your mind selects a new groove. A good vacation is one without undue exposure to the sun, the rain, or the cold, or bad weather generally, particularly if you suffer from coughs or colds, hayfever or asthma.

A good vacation is one in which the persons who surround you are so congenial that you never lose your temper. A good vacation is one in which your health is benefited, as determined by its effects on your digestion, your blood pressure, your circulation, and your nervous system.

A good vacation is one taken in a place where there is pure water, pure milk and a good food supply.

A good vacation is one in which the muscles are exercised, but not to the point of exhaustion or danger of the tissue beyond repair.

A good vacation is one in which you think of your business, but do not worry about it. A man who thinks so little of his business that he can forget it completely while on a vacation is not in the right business.

Many congressmen were disgruntled over not being invited to review the U. S. fleet. Now, look out for the next world appropriation!

"WALK-IN-THE-WATER" was a 340-ton vessel, built at Buffalo, N. Y. Its first trip was from Buffalo to Detroit with 100 passengers. In 1821, the ship ran aground and capsized. All passengers and crew escaped in lifeboats. Fairbanks' original scale factory, at St. Johnsbury, Vt., was a small wooden building that combined factory, warehouse, and salesroom. Before 1849, silk thread came in skeins.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The last word here on industrial recovery is Mr. Winfield S. Riefler.

The blond, stocky, genial Mr. Riefler is referred to by Roosevelt as his own, personal "interpreting economist." He also is economic adviser to the Executive Council and chairman of the Central Statistical Board, which makes an unprecedented effort to keep track of what is happening to us economically, just so there'll be no doubt about it.

Perhaps you never heard of Riefler. That's because his outstanding characteristic is silence. He's a nice fellow, with a swell wife, a couple of boys, and a home in the country.

But he talks only to the president, the EC, the NEC and such other officials as insist on pinning him down. He never spoke publicly during the Hoover administration, either, but everybody knew that he knew more than anybody else and that's why he was made such an important person in the New Deal.

So, when Senator Wagner asked him the other day whether he really thought we were emerging from the depression, Riefler's reply took on some importance.

"Yes," he said. "Consumption goods industries are in very good condition, running at a rate fairly well in balance with the market. The automobile industry has emerged from the depression. That is, it has come back into the area of revived economic life.

"The big dead areas are the rest of the heavy industries, particularly concentrated on those where people find their normal occupations either in providing expanded capital facilities, office or plant equipment and new residences, or those which are occupied normally with repair and maintenance of our existing huge capital equipment.

"The next logical point of attack is the development of that demand, which is large. It is the remaining problem of emergence from the depression. "There is more movement in the field than there was last year. All the indexes of the heavy industries are advancing. They are still terribly low. They have more than kept pace with others in percentage advance.

"The trouble is that they have dropped to almost negligible levels. Whereas in the textile, food, clothing, and leather industries the drop from boom times to depression was only 20, 25 or 30 percent, in the case of heavy industry it was 50, 60, 70 and 80 percent. In the case of residential construction, it was 90 percent.

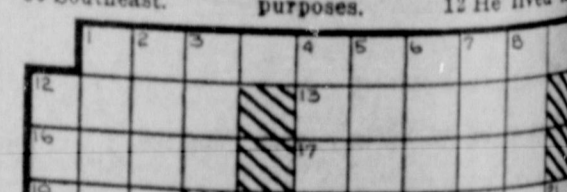

"Aside from construction itself, the young men in their faith in their obviously common sense. —F. Scott Fitzgerald author.

CONGRESS ONLY GUESSING AT ADJOURNMENT

President Requests Enough To Keep Busy 2 Weeks

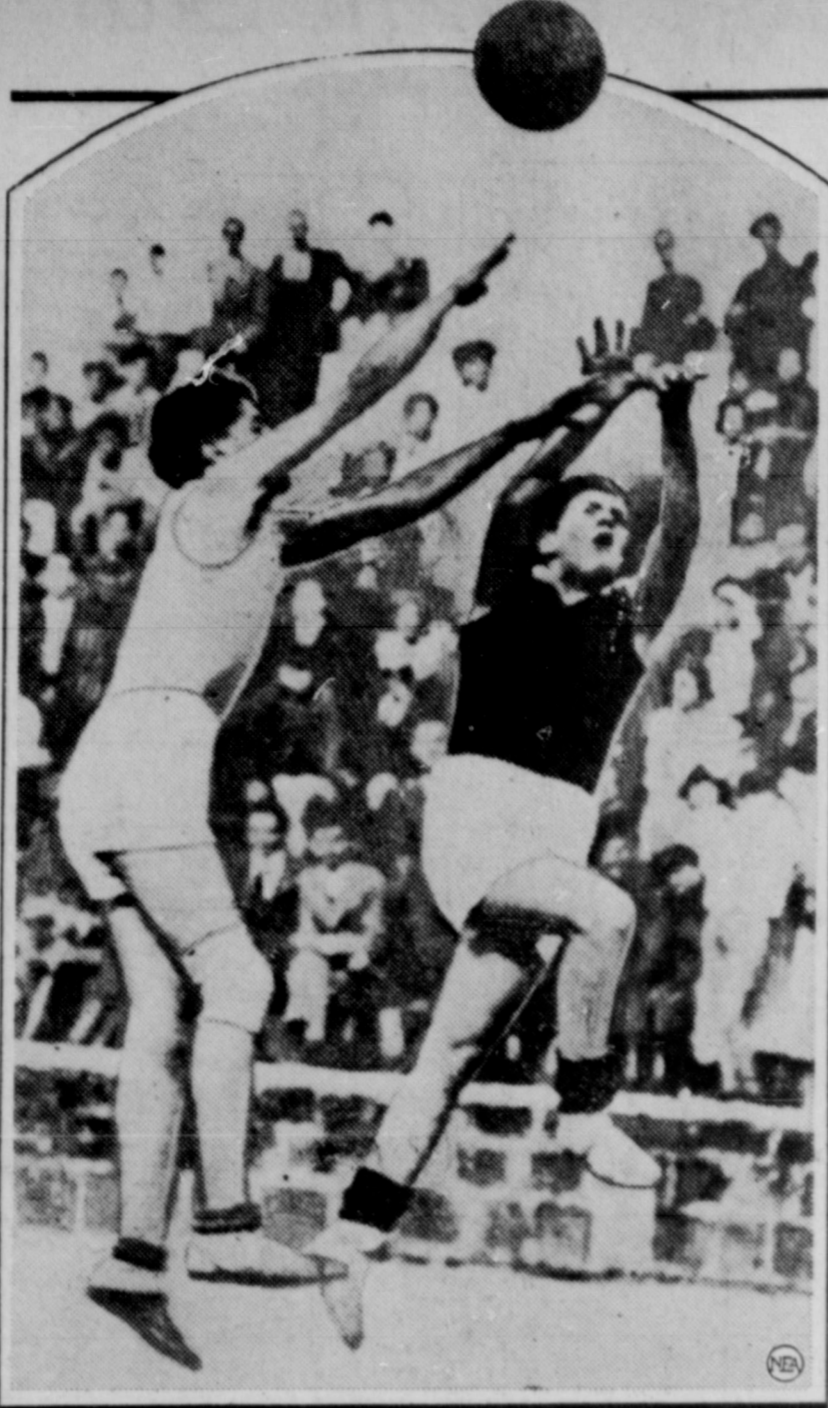

BY J. CLAUDE WELLS (Democrat Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON — Much guessing is being done here as to when congress will adjourn. It was thought by many of the leaders that the great lawmaking body would complete the work and adjourn not later than June 15. President Roosevelt, upon his return from New York, passed out the information that he wants several more bills put through before adjournment, among the number being tariff, silver, relief, communications, bank deposits, air mail and industrial loan. Should all the above be acted on before adjournment, it is believed it will take more than the two weeks allotted. It is said that the President is keeping the door open on the program and no limit has been fixed upon the legislation he will insist upon.

President Roosevelt has summoned senators and congressmen from 15 states to meet with him Tuesday to discuss relief plans for the following states: Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Nebraska, Kansas, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Arizona. The President is assuming personal direction of the federal drive to aid drought-stricken farmers, and it is believed by Texas leaders that some action will be taken to aid the northern Panhandle section.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas delivered the confederate memorial address Sunday at Arlington cemetery, it being the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis, and a southern senator is chosen each year to deliver an address at the monument erected to the Confederate dead by the U. D. C. It made us proud of our birthright—being children of Confederate soldiers—to hear Connally, in one of the ablest and most inspiring speeches ever to fall from the lips of man, eulogize the Confederate soldiers.

A few gems from Connally's address are given here: "The most glorious thing about Arlington national cemetery is that here lie alike the bodies of soldiers who followed the banner of Grant, and the gallant spirits who gathered under the battle flag of the Confederacy and against hopeless odds and overwhelming military resources battled for four long, bitter, tragic years. . . Here, united in the last great dismembered section and sealed by their blood and sanctified by their heroic covenant with death, out of the titanic struggle in which they had such a courageous and historic part, a reunited country honors the memory of its patriotic and lofty-spirited sons, whether they wore the blue in triumph, or, wrapped in their ragged jackets of gray, went down to defeat in honor and glory. . . The ranks of the Confederate armies are now but a scattered and thinning line. In a little while the last reunion will be held. Today we gather to pay tribute to those who have marched in their last campaign—to those who have bivouaced with the dead. We commend to generations who have followed them their example of courage and sacrifice. . . Such patriotism and sacrifice that the Confederates displayed in the sixties and in the dark days of destruction are needed in the present troublous times. Patriots displayed from Bull Run through the final struggles serves to remind sons and daughters of the Confederacy that the Confederate soldier is a symbol of courage, fortitude and honor must never die in the republic, for the republic has been living in perilous days, and there are still dangers and rocks ahead."

The memorial exercises were given under the auspices of U. C. V., Sons of U. C. V., U. D. C., and several other veterans of other wars. The U. S. Marine band furnished the music, and when Dixie was played a loud cheer went up. One could tell that all present were southern people and were not mixed with the "melting pot" element that comes from the north and east, such as one sees on other occasions and at work in the public departments—in fact, they all looked like "pure de" Americans and white folks. Following the program flowers were strewn over the graves of the Confederate dead and a wreath was placed on the tomb of Gen. Joe Wheeler and one on the tomb of the unknown dead.
