Slayer of Dollfuss, Nazi Leader Hanged

By Associated Press
VIENNA, July 31.—Two Nazis accused of high treason in the killing of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss were hanged this afternoon, three hours after their conviction by court martial.

Two men—Otto Planetta, former soldier, and Franz Holzweber—were hanged after a plea by their counsel for clemency was rejected.

Planetta was accused of firing the fatal shots and Holzweber of leading the Nazi putsch into the federal chancellery last Wednesday.

Planetta and Holzweber were the first Nazis executed in Austria, although death was threatened against many others for acts of terrorism.

They went to their death, saying: "What we did, we did for our country."

Planetta admitted he shot Dollfuss, but he insisted he had not meant to do so, and he said he was sorry.

GUBERNATORIAL RACE UNCHANGED

Allred And Hunter Hold To Margin As Tabulations Continued Today

DALLAS, July 31.—The battle to get into the run-off for the Democratic nomination for governor in last Saturday's election was virtually over at noon today.

Jimmie Allred and Tom Hunter continued to hold their margins in first and second place, respectively, according to Texas Election bureau reports at noon.

The returns showed: Allred 263,331, Hunter 212,918, McDonald 184,078.

PROTEST USE OF MILITIA BY GOVERNOR

New Orleans Leaders Rise Up Against Allen, Long

By Associated Press
NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—Leaders in the city administration today said they planned a protest to the war department and possibly to the United States attorney general that the Louisiana national guard was misused by Governor Allen and Senator Huey Long.

The governor last night issued a proclamation from Long's hotel suite here, declaring the state under partial martial law in New Orleans after he caused a detachment of the militia to forcibly seize possession of voters' registration records being prepared for use in the September congressional primary.

New Noble Grand Presides At Meet Of Rebekah Lodge

Miss Flossie Rodgers, newly installed noble grand, presided over the regular meeting of the Memphis Rebekah lodge last night at 8 o'clock in the I. O. O. F. building.

The regular business session was held.

'LUCKY' CANDIDATES RENEW CAMPAIGNS WITH FOUR WEEKS TO GO BEFORE SECOND PRIMARY

In the balloting in Hall county Saturday, Carl C. Periman, of (Memphis) led the ticket, in his race for county attorney, with a plurality over both his opponents.

Mr. Periman received 1,735 votes, as compared with a total vote of 1,322 for his two opponents, leading them both by a majority of 413 votes. This was the only "runaway" race in the county and is the more remarkable in view of the fact that this is Mr. Periman's first venture into politics.

Joe Colvin, of Turkey, was high man in the sheriff's race. Mr. Colvin received a total of 1,139 votes or 475 more than his nearest opponent, Lindsey Hill of Memphis, who will go into the run-off with Mr. Colvin. Mr. Hill barely nosed out Roy Mayes of Memphis, getting into the run-off by beating him 31 votes.

Closest Race

One of the closest county races was that for the office of tax assessor and collector. Only 80 votes separated the high and low man. Jesse Jenkins, of Turkey, with almost solid backing from the voting box, was high man with 1,086 votes. Holt Bounds, of Memphis, present tax collector, went into the run-off with Mr. Jenkins.

Commissioner Run-Offs
In the race for commissioner of precinct No. 1, there will be a run-off between Cloyd Messer and Billy Walker. Messer led the field of five candidates with 365 votes; Walker was second with 291 votes, or 74 votes under Messer's total.

In the race for commissioner of precinct No. 2, the present incumbent, A. R. McMaster, led a field of four with 319 votes. Second high man was Grover Moss, with 161 votes, or 158 votes under the incumbent.

Prewitt, with 263 votes, defeated Russell, with 209 votes, for commissioner of precinct No. 3.

DEADLINE NEARS ON TRANSFERS OF SCHOOLS

For Children Who May Be Taught In Home Districts

Tomorrow is the last day on which applications for transfers of school children who can be taught in the home districts can be made, according to Mrs. Roy Guthrie, county school superintendent.

Because of the fact that bus routes have not been definitely worked out, Mrs. Guthrie said, parents of children who are above the classification of the home school will have a few more days in which to make applications for transfers.

Since August 20 is the final date upon which budgets for the schools can be filed, all transfer applications must be made by then.

Approximately 200 applications for transfers have been filed in the office of the county school superintendent for Hall county school students. No transfers will be made definitely until August 20, Mrs. Guthrie stated.

Either the guardian, the mother or the father of the child to be transferred must make the application.

Temperature Equals All-Time Record of 113 Degrees Here

Where Train Killed Eight Children

Here is the scene of the tragic accident in which a fast freight train moved down eight youngsters who were playing cards on the tracks of the New Haven Railroad near Shelton, Conn. Six were killed instantly and two, one a girl, died from injuries. The train is seen at left, covered bodies at right.

Soaring upward after rains had cooled this section Friday night, the mercury rose to all time heights here yesterday for the second time this summer.

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the thermometer at the local weather bureau reached 113 degrees, equaling the 20-year record set in 1930. That mark was also reached on one day in June.

There was no relief in sight today, as yesterday's mark for the same hour was again equaled at noon, J. J. McMikin, weatherman here, reported the temperature at noon at 107 degrees.

Following Friday night's cool spell, which was the lowest in over a month and a half, the mercury started upward Saturday, reaching a high of 105.

Sunday it rocketed to 111 degrees, reaching the peak in the middle of the afternoon, and Monday continued to the high level.

According to McMikin, there is no immediate change in conditions in sight at this time.

FARMERS AGAIN URGED TO SIGN

Neglect May Cause Delay In Receiving Cotton Exemption Certificates

Those farmers in the county who have neglected to sign applications for exemption certificates are again urged by O. F. Washam, adjutant assistant for Hall county, to sign the application forms as soon as possible.

No definite time limit has been set for signing the applications, it was said, but unless all of the farmers have signed the forms by the time they are called for there will be a delay in receiving the tax exemption certificates.

The measuring of land in connection with this year's Bankhead cotton program is expected to get under way in Hall county by the latter part of this week. County and community committees will have charge of the work.

Memphis' Water Is Not Threatened by Drouth

While many other cities are suffering from water shortage because of the continued drouth and are casting about for new supply sources, announcement has been made by Roy Fultz, manager of the Texas-Louisiana Power Company here, that the water supply is holding up remarkably well and that there is no danger of having to put excessive restrictions on the water consumption here.

"The people of Memphis have co-operated to the fullest with the request asked recently that water be used sparingly here in watering lawns and shrubbery," Mr. Fultz stated, "and I wish to express my appreciation for the co-operation we have received."

The day following the insertion of an ad in The Democrat requesting the reduction of unnecessary water usage here the consumption of water was lowered by approximately 50,000 gallons, Mr. Fultz averred.

An average of about 200,000 gallons of water was being used (Continued on Page 8)

HAZEL DELANEY TRANSFERRED TO HOUSTON

In Home Service Department: To Study In Chicago

Miss Hazel Delaney has been appointed to the home service department of the United Gas company, C. G. Bumgarner, manager of the local Northern Texas Utilities company announced this morning.

Miss Delaney is to report to the Houston headquarters of the company next week.

It was announced she will be sent to Memphis, Tenn., to attend a home service demonstration now in progress, from there she will go to Chicago where she will spend three or four weeks in the study of display work.

Later she will return to Houston, which will be her headquarters.

Miss Delaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Delaney, has been employed by the Northern Texas Utilities company for the past four years. During that time numerous Electrolux and other gas appliance display windows originated and designed by herself attracted the attention of company officials and received much favorable comment.

HOUSTON, July 31.—

Three of the nine Texas convicts who escaped from the Harlem state prison farm yesterday were recaptured today and the body of a fourth was recovered from a creek he tried to swim.

The drowned fugitive was Lewis Carter, sentenced to life imprisonment in Dallas county for robbery. The recaptured were Paul Jacobs Deator, J. L. Frame and G. S. Huston, burglars.

JAPAN INDORSSES REDUCTION OF NAVAL LOAD

Undecided If Wash- ington Treaty Will Be Broken

TOKYO, July 31.—Premier Keisuke Okada, in his first meeting with representatives of the foreign press, said today that Japan is undecided whether to abrogate the Washington treaty, which established the five-five-three ratio on capital ships of the United States, Britain and Japan.

"In order to reduce the burden of taxation," Okada said, "the naval armaments must be reduced to the smallest proportions possible. Such naval limitations must come from a reduction on the part of the heaviest armed nations.

"We cannot favor the present ratio principle. It hurts the self-interest of certain nations."

He said Japan hopes that a better method might be discovered. Asked whether this means Japan would demand parity with America and Britain, requiring them to reduce to Japan's level, the Premier said he does "not expect such radical changes so soon."

He expressed confidence the 1975 naval conference will succeed.

"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy had been her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement...

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, who is married. Later she tires of him and when he offers to bear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously.

In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is tearing Germany and Amy comes to New York. She stays until the baby is born and then, horrified because Jane insists on giving her daughter away, agrees to take the child with the understanding that Jane never shall reclaim her.

Howard returns and completely approves of Amy's taking the baby. In New York Jane opens her own real estate office. She receives a letter from her aunt and decides to go to Marburg to supervise some business affairs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI Jane tapped the letter she had been reading. There was only one important deal on hand and that could not be closed for another three weeks. It would be a good time to make the trip to Marburg.

While she was thinking it over Mrs. Andrews, her secretary, came in—a stoutish, competent widow who had endeared herself to Jane by her passion for detail, her imaginative vacancy and her super-respectability. Mrs. Andrews brought instant confidence to clients who hesitated before Jane's youth and good looks.

"Mr. Stars is on the phone," reported Mrs. Andrews. "He's a little tight, and of course he's begging you to hurry."

"I'll talk to him said Jane, taking the phone. "Yes, Mr. Stars, this is Miss Terry. I'm so glad you called up. I've been after the title guaranty company this morning and they tell me they're pushing the search and we may be able to close a week ahead of time. That's fine, isn't it! But you'd better keep the reservations you have. There might be some hitch though I don't anticipate anything. These forms have to be gone through. If we neglect them we might find ourselves tied up in the courts."

"Don't worry, you'll get plenty of the war before it's over. That's right, you keep in touch with me. No, I'm certain it hasn't leaked out. It'll take a pretty smart newspaper man to get hold of this transaction until you say the word. Now listen: I may have to go out of town for a few days but Mrs. Andrews will be right on the job and will telephone me instantly if I'm needed. The money'll be ready and waiting for you the moment we close. And anyway, you're all right, Mr. Stars. You've signed the contract of sale and you've accepted a payment, so you're bound.

You can't be forced out of it. House is sold, no matter what your sister or your lawyers or anybody else tries to do."

She hung up the telephone with a sigh. "I've told him all that a dozen times a day ever since this deal started," she said. "Disgusting person! Just because he's Roland Carlinh Sears and his papa and his grandpa and his great-grandpapa had a lot of money he thinks he can run the world in circles. I don't know whether he's worse drunk or sober. Wait, Mrs. Andrews. My aunt is sick and I ought to go to Marburg to see her. My feeling is that I'd better get it over and be back here in plenty of time before the Sears closing date comes along. I might even leave tonight."

"I'll see what accommodations I can get for you and if they're all right. Then I'll write your aunt and call your maid for your packing directions."

Mrs. Andrews reported that a compartment was bought for the express, that Miss Rosa Terry had been telegraphed to, and that Jane's maid was on the telephone.

"The black suitcase and the little fitted case," commanded Jane. "Put in the dark red cloth, the brown lace with the short sleeves, and the black satin with the gold embroidery, the black satin slippers with gold buckles and the brown slippers. See that all the toilet things are in the fitted case and my negligee and pajamas and those traveling slippers. Put in only my best underclothes, the Frenchones, and plenty of stockings and handkerchiefs and gloves. I'll wear my mink coat and carry my cloth one."

It might, she thought, turn warm and she would look ridiculous in fur. But if the weather should stay cold and stormy, she didn't want to miss the chance of showing off that beautiful dark mink coat in Marburg. She had chosen only her newest and most expensive dresses. They'd give Marburg something to look at and talk about. "I wouldn't go back there shabby," she thought, "not if I lost every penny of Aunt Rosa's money."

It was not until she was actually on the train that she had time to think about Marburg and it came to her overwhelmingly that she might, if she wished, see her child. She was not sure that she did wish it. Perhaps it might be better to avoid it. The memory of Amy's contempt came back, too, but it was not so serious by a hundred times as it had been at first. "Poor old sentimental Amy," thought Jane, "she was so furious with me. I hope she's over it by this time—I believe I'd like to see that child. It must be 2½ years old now, talks and walks, I suppose. And I don't even know what they named her. I don't know what she looks like—"

There was no one to meet her at the train in the morning and she was glad of that. Much easier to take a taxi and rattle uptown without forced conversation, and with a chance to look at the old town and see how little it had changed. A few more automobiles and a new movie house seemed to be the only additions to the familiar scene. Fortunately it was still cold enough for the fur coat. The elms along the campus waved in a raw wind. Patches of snow lingered on the winter-dull grass. Evil, dark and troubled, met her at the door. Miss Rosa, she said, was feeling mighty low. The house was overheated and there was a stuffy sickroom odor, faint, persistent. Otherwise, all was the same; Jane might have stepped from the massive crowded well-kept rooms the day before. Time had stood still here.

Time had marched on with Miss Rosa. She clutched at Jane and wept feebly. Her once solid and roseate flesh was flabby and waxen. Her carefully touched up hair showed an inch of white against the scalp. But after her first tears she rallied. "I had the flu and it left me low, that's all. And I've been so worried with that Jimmy Trainor, the young whipper-snapper. I'm so thankful you're here, Jane—you look fine. That's a pretty dress! You make me feel such a sight."

Jane's presence was a tonic. Almost at once Miss Rosa declared that she was going to get up and get her clothes and go downstairs for lunch. After that they'd summon young Trainor and Jane should deal with him. In the meantime Jane might look at the suggestions young Trainor had made about Miss Rosa's affairs, to know what he'd been up to.

Jane found that she could not concentrate on young Trainor's letters. The wind, the tossing trees made her restless. She had better, she thought, go for a walk and blow away the fatigue of the train and the staleness of the house. She put on her hat and the fur coat and went out; walking up toward the college, feeling strange and alien in the unaltered scene. The gray stones of the buildings fused with the gray sky. Students hurried back and forth along the paths with the effect they had always had of busy, aimless insects. Even the curtains at the windows of the president's house were the same dingy gold rep she and Amy had thought so ugly. Now the name of Amy had intruded. It was impossible to walk this way, to see these things without the sense of Amy's lost companionship. And swiftly, surely, Jane determined to go and see Amy, to see the child. "I want to know—I've got to know, about everything." She smiled a twisted, rueful smile. "Nobody can say I've not got nerve of one kind or another," she thought. "I'll go to see Amy tomorrow."

Now that her resolve was made to see Amy, she could not wait until the next day. In the late afternoon when Miss Rosa had retired for a rest before dinner, exhausted but exhilarated from witnessing Jane's rout of young Trainor, Jane put on her dark red dress, because she knew that was the most becoming thing she had with her. She loosened her hair a little around her face, rubbed her lips with scarlet, touched jacin perfume behind her ears and, having examined the effect critically, liked it very much. There were so many reasons for being well dressed and beautiful for this visit. She meant to rehabilitate herself with Amy and she needed the confidence of looking well. And she might she was almost sure, to see Howard.

A plan was beginning to stir in her head, a plan which would make her seem to them the person she constantly tried—and never quite succeeded—to seem to herself, fine and sweet and disinterested, ready to make up for past omissions with generosity that would have a touch of nobility.

Yet for a moment, when Howard opened the door, and since there was no light in the hall and the late afternoon was dark, she waited doubtfully, she forgot her role.

EXIDE BATTERY 'COMES THROUGH'

Well Known Storage Battery Handled Here By Gerlach's Electrical Company

The Gerlach Battery and Electric Service company, the home of the Exide battery in Memphis, features re-charging and re-building of batteries, along with their general electric work.

"Storage batteries all look very much alike," says Fred Gerlach, manager of the Gerlach Battery and Electric Service, "but look on the inside and you see more of the reasons why the Exide is so dependable and extra-powerful, why it has such long life and delivers service at such remarkably low cost."

What you can't see in an Exide is the experience that goes into making it—nearly a half-century of experience in building Exides for every storage battery purpose in the world, Mr. Gerlach said.

The dependability of the Exide battery was demonstrated during the terrible California earthquake of 1933. When both outside sources of light failed during the earthquake at the Hospital of the Good Samaritan, Los Angeles, Exide emergency lighting batteries "came through."

Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Jackson returned to their home at Perryton yesterday after a visit with old friends in Memphis. They were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Mitchell during their stay here. Rev. Jackson was former pastor of the First Christian church here and is now pastor of the Perryton church.

"You don't know me?" she said, and there came to her like the flick of a cinema the unhappy tremor of that July twilight of 1914 with Amy coming into her apartment, unsure in her recognition.

But in another instant she caught back her intended note. "I'm so glad to see you," she said, agreeably, conventionally. "Is Amy at home? I'm Jane Terry—" She stepped in, offering her hand. He was, she thought, better looking than she had remembered. He was distinguished, notable.

To her relief he answered in her own line. "Of course! I couldn't see you in that dull light." He snapped on an overhead lantern, opening the living room door. "Come in, do. Amy's upstairs—she'll be down—"

Jane made her entrance, talking on with determined ease. "I came rather suddenly because of Aunt Rosa. She's been so miserable since she had the flu, and I'll be here such a short time—and I wanted to be sure to see Amy—" She stopped, she was staring at something on the floor by the sofa a rag doll sprawling abandonedly among some blocks. Her ease, her elegance deserted her. Those things must belong to her child. Her own child!

"I want to see—my baby" she whispered, involuntarily. To Be Continued

Baptists Take Sunday School Softball League

PRESBYTERIANS FALL IN 4TH BATTLE

Three Straight Wins Decide Crown After Dropping First

The Baptist team yesterday took their third consecutive game from the Presbyterians, 6 to 2, capturing the championship of the Sunday School Softball league.

Although the Presbyterians had taken the first in the championship series, the Baptists looked superior as a team with their three sweeping victories.

Battle Desperately
In yesterday afternoon's contest, the weakened visiting Presbyterians battled desperately against the powerful red-caps, threatening victory with a first-inning rally. The Baptists came back in their half of the inning, and in the third, with tallies of three runs each. The first scoring by the Baptists was due to errors on the part of the losers.

Attorneys John Deaver and Allen C. Grundy were responsible for the brunt of the attack of their team, while Alvin Massey and Jack Boone led the Baptists. Clower, Helm, and McCool did the best fielding for the Presbyterians, while Blevins, Massey, and Gordon Gilliam stood out on the defense for the winners.

May Seek City Title
Arrangements are now being made for the playing of the five-game series between the Baptists and the young Loafers. However, the series cannot be started this week.

The heavy-hitting Baptists will be pitted against the strongest team assembled by the Loafers in the coming series. Captain Crump has announced that Jack Norman will probably pitch to Chester Grimes, and that the infield and outfield will contain such stars as Springer, "Snooks" Andis, Stanley Wallace, and others.

GERMANY FAVORS CIVIL WAR

IT WAS reported yesterday that an official German statement said that country favors civil war—in Austria. (If there must be war, we also prefer it in Austria or some similar place.)

The statement called the uprising "a great popular revolt, as popular as it is welcome." At the same time, the killing of Chancellor Dollfuss was pinned on a disgruntled former army sergeant who had been dismissed from military service because of Nazi sympathies. That sounds much more like a personal grudge than it does a popular feeling.

The fact that Germany "welcomed" the overthrow of Dollfuss and the uprising of Nazi followers indicates the government may have played no small part in creating the feeling of unrest that brought about the actual conflict.

With this idea in mind, one may see where the whole mess might end. At about the same time this was happening, Mussolini, the power of Italy, attended memorial services for Dollfuss. He indicates strongly that Italy is greatly displeased with happenings across the border. He admits he disproves of Hitler and his clan along the Rhine.

To add to the complicated situation, other European powers are anticipating an attempt to unite Germany and Austria, which would, in effect, be an absorption of the later country. They are already looking for a way to prevent such a union.

Unless we're guessing wrong, Mussolini wouldn't stand for such a union one minute. His thousands of soldiers, now being held in readiness on the Austrian border, probably would meet Germany half way—half way across Austria. That country, then, would become the Belgium of 20 years ago.

We cannot figure a single "popular" feature in the whole affair.

CONGRATULATIONS, DESKINS!

ONE of the biggest feats a newspaper publisher in this part of the country has ever accomplished was successfully engineered last week by Deskins Wells, editor of the Wellington Leader.

Celebrating the Leader's silver anniversary, the editor came through with a special edition of 92 pages. In every respect it was one of the finest publications ever produced by a weekly newspaper. It represented many hours of hard labor on the part of the staff and fine cooperation on the part of Wellington citizens and advertisers.

The edition would have been an accomplishment on such an occasion in 1928, but the fact it was printed in 1934 makes the success of the venture astounding.

Congratulations, Deskins! You have done an excellent work. We know your readers appreciate your efforts and that you feel you have the finest group in the world, after the manner in which they contributed to the success of the edition.

JUSTICE BY SURGERY

LAST March a Chicago woman filed a suit for divorce, charging that the husband she had married in January was cruel, irritable, and generally cantankerous to such extent that there was no living with him.

Shortly after the suit was filed, the husband underwent a thyroid operation. And a short time later his lawyer begged the court to delay the trial, asserting that the operation had so changed the husband's disposition that a happy married life ought to be possible. The court consented, and the wife returned to her husband for a two-week test period.

Now the divorce suit has been withdrawn. The husband, it seems, had been mean and ugly because of a toxic thyroid condition. That condition having been relieved by surgery, his wife now finds that he is a pleasant and companionable sort of chap—and she no longer wants to divorce him.

How many other "mean dispositions," one wonders, might not be remedied by a little timely medical attention?

HIGHT VOLTAGE

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Any swelling that occurs in or about your neck most likely is due to a glandular disturbance.

If it is in front of the neck, your thyroid gland may have swollen, and if in the sides, it may be due to the lymph glands. If it is in the back of the neck, the trouble may be associated merely with some type of disturbance in the brain or its coverings, but it also is most likely to be glandular.

A swelling that persists in the back of the neck most frequently is a small, fatty tumor or glandular cyst. A cyst usually results from blocking of the outlet of a gland, so that its contents are retained and produce swelling.

Another type of cyst occurs in the midline of the neck in front, and is due to persistence in the throat of certain structures which exist in the child before birth, as well as in animals.

Any disturbance of the teeth, the tongue, the tonsils, the ears or the scalp may cause swelling among a number of glands in the neck.

And if that isn't enough, you might remember that some of the neck glands may become swollen as a result of tuberculosis, cancer or certain forms of chronic glandular inflammation.

Furthermore, any kind of infection that can occur elsewhere in the body can also affect the throat and the adjacent tissues.

The most common type of swelling, however, is that of the thyroid gland, which lies low in the neck just over the windpipe. The doctor determines the presence of this type of disturbance by feeling with his fingers to know the exact position of the swelling.

This lets him know whether it is due to an accumulation of fluid, a change in the glandular structure, or some other type of growth.

It should be obvious that any swelling in your neck may represent a serious condition, demanding investigation and control.

In most instances, removal of the spot of infection inside the neck or throat will result in a diminution of the size of the lymph glands that are swollen.

In those cases in which the swelling is due to a tumor or a cyst, surgical attention may be necessary for cure.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 31—Both here and in New York, belief in the certainty of inflation seems at this moment stronger than ever.

To the real insiders who know approximately what plans Roosevelt really has in mind, this wave of conviction is just one of those curious phenomena.

They suppose it traces to the fact that industrial production has dropped sharply since July 1 and a resultant feeling that the administration will feel required to give business a shot in the arm.

But the summer decline doesn't mean any such thing to the chart and grain experts among Roosevelt's most trusted economic advisers. They toss it off with a confident smile and direct your attention to the drouth, which has upset recovery calculations, but assures higher farm prices—always a strong antidote to pressure for inflation.

The three essential factors in the current drop are:

Steel, which produced at 60 per cent of capacity for three months and turned out most of the metal that would have been made this summer except for a previously announced price boost for June 30 and fears of strike.

Textile, which overproduced and had to curtail 25 per cent for the summer.

Tires, which built up stocks in fear of strikes.

The real big news however, is the anticipated disappearance of farm surpluses. Drouth continues to wipe out excess grain supplies, is cutting down corn, and promises a tremendous wallop at the cotton surplus. A shortage of hay and feed grain, looms. There'll be far fewer cattle and less milk in the fall than anyone expected.

Food costs will rise and farmers outside the drouth belt are likely to wallow in prosperity. But while increased buying power for those farmers will put factory people to work, losses of drouth-stricken farmers will put others out of work.

Both Feet in Trap
The way poor NRA often contradicts itself and then puts its foot into an even worse mess—and so would you, if you were NRA—is again demonstrated by Administrator Sol Rosenblatt as he fumbles with the problems of movie star salaries.

"Movie salaries have gone beyond any reasonable standard of compensation," says Rosenblatt, adding—almost in the same breath: "As a matter of principle, no salary is too high or excessive if the picture produced by the individual receiving the salary meets with

(Continued from Page 1) here every day until a request was made that its use be limited. The daily use now is about 150,000 gallons.

The exact number of days can be counted that a lake will be able to supply a city with water, as there is no water coming in. However, as a result of the natural springs here, water is coming into the 32 wells at all times.

"There is no need for anyone to become alarmed here, as they will be plenty of water for household use and for watering shrubbery," Mr. Fultz said.

Futures On Cotton Are Down Several Points In Trading

Cotton futures were down about seven points today. New York cotton futures advanced from two to 23 points yesterday, closing steady, the New York Journal of Commerce stated.

WASHINGTON—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announces that the processing tax of 4.2 per pound on cotton will remain unchanged during the 1934-35 marketing year.

DALLAS — Reports received here indicate that Texas lost more cotton last week on account of the drought than was gained by rains.

TEXAS—Fair to partly cloudy; continued warm tonight and tomorrow.

OKLAHOMA—Partly cloudy to unsettled; continued warm.

ARKKANSAS — Cloudy and probably scattered showers in the north tonight or tomorrow.

ALABAMA AND MISSISSIPPI —Partly cloudy; local thunder showers.

For commissioner of the general land office, the present incumbent, Walker, received 1,385 votes to 908 for Jones.

A resume of the voting in Hall county shows that 3,199 votes were cast. There will be no run-off in one of the contested offices—that of county attorney.

Three run-offs will be necessary for the office of tax assessor and collector, for the office of sheriff and for the office of county superintendent.

In the race for commissioner of precinct No. 1 and for commissioner of precinct No. 2.

August 25th is the date for the man was Clary, with 620 votes. Charley Lockhart led the field for re-election as state treasurer, with 1,378 votes.

Mrs. H. M. Faulkner and Mrs. Alton Carr of Estelina were among Memphis visitors Saturday.

C. R. Gowan, Jesse Mont Reed and Thomas Kunkler were visitors in Childress Sunday.

TO THE VOTERS

I am grateful for the vote given me in Saturday's primary, although I was unsuccessful in my race for commissioner of Precinct I. I appreciate the support my friends gave my candidacy and I trust those who did not vote for me have the same kindly feeling toward me that I have for them.

second, or run-off, primary election. The candidates, left in the field, will have four weeks in which to work, or exactly 24 working days. It can be safely assumed that each race will be a new race. There will be new alignments and the candidates successful in developing the largest strength from the defeated candidates for the first primary, should be elected to office.

Not in a single instance can a race be looked upon as a cinch. Take the tax assessor and collector's race, for example. Jesse Jenkins, of Turkey, high man in this race has a lead of only 37 votes over Holt Bownds of Memphis.

The sheriff's race presents some interesting possibilities. Joe Colvin is a Turkey man. Lindsey Hill formerly lived in Turkey. It was the Turkey vote that put Hill into the run-off over Roy Mayes.

ker is older and probably better seasoned in politics. Either man would make a good commissioner and the result of this race will be anticipated with interest. In the race for commissioner of precinct No. 2, A. R. McMaster, seeking for re-election, will be opposed by Grover Moss. Both men are well and favorably known in their precinct. Both men have good following of supporters. While McMaster has a rather commanding hand, going into the second primary, this lead could, rather easily, be upset. On the other hand, Moss has the advantage of seeking the office for a first term. There are nearly 400 votes to be divided on the basis of the first primary returns. If McMaster did not poll his full strength in the July primary and can add to his lead, he will be elected. If Moss can keep his vote of the first primary and garner the big part of the votes that went to McMaster and Neal, he stands a good chance of being elected.

Renew Campaigns The Democrat has been informed that the candidates left in the several races began their respective campaigns this week. It is said that they are going to devote all their time between now and August 25 to the business of seeing the voters and urging upon them their claims for office. Moore color, more life, more energy, is expected to be injected into the second primary campaigns than was true in the initial battle. Lines are more closely drawn than heretofore. Candidates will be busied this week seeking new alignments, and well they might, for this will unquestionably play an important part in the race.

THANK YOU To those who voted for me in the primary, my appreciation cannot be put in words. To those who will cast the second primary, I earnestly request your vote and influence.
