County Court Clears Docket of Criminal Cases This Week

Conviction Returned In One Case; Other Set Up To Next Term of Court

The criminal docket of the Hall County Court was cleared by Monday's session, according to Judge M. O. Goodpasture, presiding judge, when one of the two cases scheduled came to trial and the other was postponed to the next term of court due to a physical disability of the defendant.

In the case of the State vs. J. O. Frizzell, charged with operating a motor vehicle on a public highway while intoxicated, a verdict of guilty was returned by a jury. The court assessed a fine of $5 and costs as a penalty.

The other case on the county court's criminal docket scheduled for this term was a charge of liquor violation against a woman, who was unable to appear in court.

Last week the court disposed of the civil cases on the docket and then met with the Hall County Commissioners Court for a discussion of tax renditions.

Lonie Stands Pat on Governor's Race in Spite of Majorities

Rugged individualism still abounds in some portions of Texas, particularly at the Lonie community, just north of Red River in Childress County. While the rest of the state was following the hill-billy parade, Lonie took its niche in the place reserved for the politically famous along with Vermont and Maine. While the rest of Texas was giving unprecedented majorities to W. Lee O'Daniel, Lonie citizens cast 19 votes, nine for Ernest O. Thompson, two for Bill McCraw and eight for O'Daniel. All other voting boxes in Childress County, both rural and urban, gave O'Daniel overwhelming majorities.

Active Drilling on Hedley Test to Start

Active drilling for oil will be started again last of this week on the well which is located two miles southwest of Hedley, according to C. E. Jones who was in Memphis Tuesday. Jones and Robinson are the drillers.

A rotary rig and equipment was set up some weeks ago and the well was spudded in last Saturday week. Because of lack of water active drilling was stopped, but will be started up Friday or Saturday.

Eighteen employees are working with the outfit, and three towers are to be run while drilling day and night.

Mr. Jones stated that a number of major oil companies are getting interested in the test, and such companies as the Humble, Magnolia and Texas have bought interests in the block south of the well.

Dairymen to Meet Here Friday Night

Plans are complete for a meeting of dairymen from all over Hall County here Friday at 10 a. m., according to R. E. L. Pattillo, county agent, to discuss plans for a dairy and cattle show to be held here some time during the fall.

According to Mr. Pattillo, invitations have been sent to these dairymen to attend this meeting which will be held in his office in the basement of the Hall County court house. Mr. Pattillo urges that all those interested in this movement be present at the meeting and help discuss plans for the proposed show.

The purpose of this meeting, according to Mr. Pattillo, is largely to find out whether dairy cattle owners of Hall County would like to have a show of this type, and if so, to set a definite date and work toward presenting a display on that date. He states that if the decision is in favor of the show, subsequent meetings of an association which will be formed, will attend to the details.

A DREAM COMES TRUE

TODAY'S REALITIES are the products of yesterday's dreams. Today, Hall County and the southern portion of the Panhandle are about to realize a dream of many leading West Texas citizens for nearly two decades, the construction of a dam across the Prairie Dog Fork of Red River for the purpose of water conservation, irrigation and flood control. In 1922 the Texas State Board of Water Engineers visited this section of the state and inspected proposed dam sites and investigated the possibility of such a project. They did not make a favorable report for this dam, so officially the matter was dropped.

But the dream of the men who had first proposed this dam did not die, but has lived for these sixteen years until now the proposed dam and its resulting storage of water has practically become a reality. Government officials, engineers, and interested local people have been working tirelessly on the proposal until it holds a favored position in the Government's Planning Board schedule.

The enormous penalty that drouth has imposed on this section of the Panhandle will be lifted with the construction of this water conservation dam. No longer will parched, dry fields be common sights in the west, no longer will its cities issue water warnings to citizens telling them of a meager supply, no longer will wild sheets of flood water run a rampant race of destruction across the fertile fields of the lower Panhandle.

Yesterday's dream has become today's reality. And tomorrow's dawn is bright with the assurance of protection and prosperity.

BEHIND THE LAW

LAW, WHICH are the standards of human conduct, are created in order that human kind might move, live and have its being on this earth with the least friction and imposition on individual rights as possible. We grant that many laws passed and placed on the statute books of the city, state and national governments are useless, but nevertheless the greater part of regulations made to guide man's conduct have a beneficial purpose.

With the fact that laws are made for the benefit of the majority of the people in mind, their observance is only a courtesy you grant to your fellow man, rather than an unwilling submission to rules of conduct you might think useless. The City of Memphis has an ordinance forbidding the parking of automobiles and other vehicles along the south side of the center section of Noel Street between Fifth and Sixth Streets. The reason for such an ordinance being passed was that the State Highway officials requested it in order to give the traffic on Highway 5 room to get through the busy section of the city. This request was accompanied with a statement that the highway department had just as soon divert the highway around the town as not.

Numerous publications and notices have been made concerning this ordinance, and every time a crowd gathers in Memphis numerous people park in the restricted zone, some of them knowingly. When the city is crowded with people the most is the time the State Highway should be left open to through traffic. The town belongs to the citizens and they have a duty to perform just the same as the public servants they elect to transact the city's business.

Editor, publisher, newsgetter, advertising man, linotype operator, pressman, foreman, single-wraper-upper, devil, wives and husbands of the Special Edition Getter-Outer:
Congratulations to each of you for the fine edition published this week. It was splendid from beginning to end in every way. I am sure anyone who had ever lived in or near Memphis enjoyed the history that was given, and you had plenty of it. Every time I have searched for history for our issues, I think of what I read one time about a country paper— "A country paper is that which every one reads to see how near right the writer got his story. Memphis is a hot town, if it can win a fight for the county seat and hold it. One thing that I liked about the paper was, it was full of big advertisements. The correspondents are to be highly complimented for their contributions. Again I am thankful I am a woman—when I read, "Memphis is the town that soap built." To make a paper complete, it must have real editorials—and chirps from the columnists—such as Claude's Comments and Bits of Nothing. To Nora A. Tipton and her assistants—a clever society page and you have done well. Next time when we get out a special edition, I have a sneaking idea that I am going to run across the Oklahoma line into Texas and steal some real writers for a few days. All of you come up to the Tipton Tribune and see us sometime.

HALL COUNTY LEAGUE BASEBALL

The heavy pitching of Grady Stagg, Memphis hurler, was the deciding factor that netted the locals a win Sunday over the Childress nine by an score of 11-0. The Childress team came into scoring position when Iley Compton, Childress second baseman hit a triple, but died on third as Stagg held his team mates hitless at the plate. Stagg also figured in Sunday's hitting, sharing honors with Charlie Greenwood, local player, in snatching triples on the score board. Weatherly started the game on the mound for Childress, but was relieved in the 7th inning by Andrews. Stagg pitched the entire game for Memphis. Batteries were Weatherly, Andrews to Woods for Childress; and Stagg to Crowe for Memphis. The game was played at Memphis. In the Salisbury-Hedley game in the league's Sunday playing, Salisbury piled up 9 scores against Hedley's 0. In view of the fact that Hedley was playing ineligible men under the league's regulation, the game was forfeited to Salisbury before the playing started and Salisbury would have received a win in the percentage column, regardless of the outcome. The match was played at Hedley.

When a fellow can fly around the world quicker than we can get this magazine to press, we think there oughta be a law of some kind. If Mr. Hughes of the New York World's Fair expects us to comment on the significance of his trip, he'd better go a little slower like the tourist who gazed rapturously at Niagara Falls and, overwhelmed by the magnitude of it, remarked profoundly that it was a helluva lot of water. Mr. Hughes has seen a corresponding amount of world. What else he has done we haven't had time to decide. We were going to the Fair, anyway. But right now we're going to lunch.—Dale Miller writing in the Texas Weekly.

Reverting to the Type
Just what our civilization is heading into is well worthy of study and reflection. And we revert to type? It hasn't been so very long since we were burning so-called witches or sorcerers; not so much because of their predictions of the future as in many instances, on account of what they knew of the past. Right now in many sections of the world, governments and populations have become war-mad and with it all, human life is held as the cheapest of all commodities. And too, such is the terrible logic of war politics judgments are merely vain formalities; for the same passions which give rise to accusations give rise also to condemnations.—Clarendon News.

W. H. MEADOR

Early Settler of Hall County Tells Of Pioneer Times

W. H. Meador Was Second Post Master at Newlin; In General Merchandise Business

W. H. Meador of Lubbock, who was here during the reunion, was an early settler in Hall County, coming to Newlin in 1899, and was the second postmaster for that thriving new town. He has the postmaster's commission which was given him in 1893. He also has the first railroad ticket that was issued from the Newlin station, good for one way from Newlin to Childress, but was never used because he valued it as a keepsake.

Mr. Meador, in recounting the early days in Hall County, recalls that when he stepped off the train at Newlin, then only a siding, he was met by A. M. Embry, first postmaster, hotel man and real estate agent. He persuaded Meador to engage in the mercantile business. There were only two side tracks in Hall County at that time, one at Newlin and the other at Salisbury.

He recalls some of the early settlers, such as Rufe Williams, Jim Dodson, Joe Estes, R. E. Curd, and their families; the Shaw boys, Charley Blair and family, P. O. Young; Dad Her, Dad Taylor and Henry Arnold and other Diamond Tail ranch hands.

Early in 1900, Joe and Dave Grundy took up abode at the Embury Hotel, Meador recalls, and engaged in the land business. In 1900 the immigrants, or nestors as the cattlemen called them, simply poured into this section in droves and filed on school lands as far west as Quitaque.

Some of the early arrivals were Uncle Tom and Aunt Nancy Rowell, Thomas Morrison, Joe and Ben Wallace, Jim Barnett, W. P. Dial, E. R. Clark, Levi Powell, A. G. Nelson, C. E. Thornton, Jackson Collier, T. R. Garrett, Pete and Joe Ballard, Elmer Wright, Charley Claypool who opened up a blacksmith shop, John M. Gist, M. H. Long, G. W. H-jms, Rev. P. L. Pyle, Joe Hemphill, Henry Crow, and others.

Farmers were sowing small grain in 1900-1-2-3, and in 1904 and 1905 the crops were virtually a failure and many settlers left the country and at one time Meador and his partner R. E. Dunn,

Odd Stringed Music Instruments Come to Old Settlers Reunion

Among the novelties seen at the Old Settlers Reunion Wednesday were the instruments for a hill-billy band brought to Memphis by H. B. Martin of Amarillo. The instruments were a guitar made from a dishpan, a violin that was formerly a cigar box, a bass-fiddle that began its career as a lard can, a mandolin made of a tin cigar box, and a banjo that had housed the products of thrifty housewife's Saturday cake baking.

Although the instruments were peculiar in appearance, they ran true to tone and could be played to the satisfaction of the most critical hill-billy musician.

Mr. Martin stated that he had taken his assortment of instruments on several trade-trips and excursions out of Amarillo and they had met with great success wherever they were played.

Mr. Martin was one of Memphis' early newspaper men, having edited the Hall County News here from 1897 to 1911. He has been living in Amarillo for some time.

who were handling farming implements had a two-acre lot covered with all kinds of implements that part payments had been made on and the remainder was the echo, and the echo or equity had to be paid the factory.

Meador married Miss Lena Wright January 30, 1894, at Comanche, Texas, bringing her as a bride to Newlin. They have two daughters, Willie Kate married in 1920 and lives at Slaton, and Mary still lives with her parents at Lubbock, and is principal of the George M. Hunt school there.

Meador moved to Memphis in 1896 and after fighting those "echoes" starved out in the mercantile business and then kept books for the Woodridge Lumber Company, and kept books for the bank when Scott Montgomery was cashier. "I cast my first vote for James S. Hogg for governor of Texas," Meador recalls. He received his Master's Degree in Masonry in Memphis Lodge in 1895, and Royal Arch degrees at the institution of the Memphis Chapter in 1899, since which time he finished the York Rite and Shrine.

Mr. Meador stated that Mrs. Meador expressed her regrets that she could not be present for the reunion and tendered her best wishes.

Miss Lura Black was called to Rush Springs, Okla., Tuesday because of the serious illness of her aunt, Mrs. R. E. Hinton.

County Farmers Find Sheep, Pigs Good Investments

Small Cost of Up-Keep on Flock Nets Parnell Man Good Profits on Sheep

Ed House, Hall County farmer residing six miles west of Parnell on the Estelline-Turkey Highway, has been experimenting in the breeding of sheep and has proved them to be a financial success in small farm flocks. In February of 1927 Mr. House purchased 140 ewes for which he paid $830. During the sixteen months that he has kept the ewes, he has sold lambs and wool in amount of $880, showing a profit of $50 over the initial cost of the flock, according to R. E. L. Pattillo, Hall County agent.

During this time Mr. House clipped approximately 1,100 pounds of wool from the flock. This year, Mr. House has been able to borrow $240 on his new wool crop, and at the present time has 156 lambs and 135 ewes on hand.

In feeding of the flock over the sixteen-month period, Mr. House spent $25 for bundles and cottonseed. The principal feed for the flock was through the utilization of sudan grass.

S. S. Cooper of the Hulver community has recently purchased a flock of 25 sheep with the intention of starting a farm flock.

Oscar Wilson who lives on his farm south of Parnell bought 11 pigs during the spring to take care of the surplus skim milk on his farm, and after keeping the herd for four months and two days, losing only one pig, he sold the 10 remaining pigs for a profit of $96. This profit is over and above all feed purchased, including the hauling of the feed to his place. The pigs were fed principally on the skim milk and maize.

In other ventures in pigs recently made by Mr. Wilson a profit of $67 and $69 was realized on two transactions.

Mr. and Mrs. Bland Burson and son Ned of Silverton were here Wednesday attending the reunion. Mrs. Burson was reared in Memphis and her father G. S. Alexander was among the first residents. He came to Memphis with them for the day.
