PHIS GETS 1917 CONFERENCE

Methodists Lack of Sabbath Observance. School Appropriations.

Stamford, Texas, Nov. 11.—At the session of the Northwest conference reports were heard, in the committee on the observance of Holy Sabbath, committee on the Sunday school board, and the committee on Sabbath observance deplored the disregard of Sabbath "By our people in violation of the law of God, the Methodist church and even in violation of our laws," by buying and selling on Sabbath. W. W. Underwood of Stamford was elected conference treasurer at the morning session.

Following were admitted into membership at the morning session: James, William Murrell, H. B. E. E. White, Bascom L. Nance, Wallace Wilkins, William M. Williams, B. Woodruff, George H. Robert H. Body and Oliver H. Memphis, Childress Snyder. Stamford were applicants for admission at conference, each inviting the conference to convene in their respective next year. Stamford withdrew the vote showed Memphis to be chosen for the next meeting.

Report of the committee on education reported the fact that Seth College had been burned during the fire and the trustees had decided to discontinue the school. This leaves two colleges in the conference. The committee recommended the Seth Ward school of $900 be allowed Stamford College $1,800 and for $900. This report and resolution was adopted by the conference.

Parnell School Opens

The school will open for the winter term Monday, November 20th. We are planning a day's program for opening at which time we will have as several of the most prominent speakers of the county who will address the faculty, pupils and in addition to this we expect to have special music, both vocal and instrumental readings from the scriptures, talks from parsons, all parents are urged to put their children in school the very first day possible to keep them there during the entire term. It is very important that pupils attend school regularly in order to get the most good of the term. Many children fall behind their grades simply because they miss so much of the term. Absence not only retards the pupil, but is detrimental to the entire school. Every parent endeavor to have their child in school every day during the term that is to open next Monday.

She recovered and gave a description of her assailant, a negro who had been working around the place.

SCHOOL TAKES IN MEXICO

Experience of a Spanish Exile From Mexico Causes Change in His Opinions.

A few months ago the following story was obtained from a Spanish exile from Mexico—a man of culture and influence in his own country. He said, "I used to object to the plea of paying taxes for educating the children of other people. I paid my taxes to support the general government and I did it willingly. I thought it a good investment, for I received physical protection for all it cost me. The government prevented my enemy from taking my life or cutting off my right arm, were he a mind to do so, so I thought.

"But," said he, "not until the Carrancistas came and confiscated my entire harvest of wheat, 40,000 sacks then in the field, had it ever occurred to me that every acre of land I possessed owed for its protection just as I as an individual did for mine. And don't you know, other very best protection an acre of land can have is the protection of an intelligent ballot; and the only possible way to get people in the United States realize that to be self-governing all your children must be educated and that it is up to your real and personal property to foot the bills. I am tremendously interested in the public schools of Texas as I have found them. When I go back to my country, if I am ever permitted to return, Catholic though I be, I mean to go on record, with what influence I have, for a system of free schools for Mexico, supported by a system of uniform taxation similar to what you have here."

Government conditions are infinitely better in Texas than in Mexico. Land and personal property values are higher because the protection given is more substantial. But school patrons, voters and taxpayers, did you know that Texas is almost a half century behind the leading states of the Union in the financial support of her schools? Does your community supplement the state appropriation with a local tax sufficient to give you a decent school?

COTTON PASSES TWENTY-CENTS

Colder Weather, Bullish Consumption Report and Good Cables Responsible.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 14.—Local Cotton Exchange records were shattered today when closing prices above the 20c mark were registered. May and July passed 20c early in the day's trading, and although the market sagged slightly shortly after the 20c price was posted, because of a rush to realize by holders of long contracts, those options weathered the rush and continued to advance on late reports of high prices for spots, finally closing at the highest quotation ever registered on this exchange. The highest quotation for May was 20.06c and the closing price was 20.04c. The July option closed at 20.15c, or within a point of the high price of the day.

Four reasons were ascribed for the record quotation—colder weather in the Western belt, the Census Bureau's bullish report on American mill consumption, good opening cables and high prices for spots, particularly at Galveston and Houston, where 20c quotations were reached.

Work at Ox-bow Begins Monday

Mr. A. H. McCall, who will be in charge of the construction of the bridge work at Ox-bow, came in from Dallas this week.

One car of piling and some other material is here and he expects to begin the preliminary work for driving the piling next week.

Do you think of your school taxes as an investment and do you pay them as cheerfully as you would pay if you were making any other good investment? Has it ever occurred to you that a school tax of fifty cents per $100 is equivalent to a contribution of only half of a one-cent postage stamp from each dollar's worth of property? These are some questions about which to think the next time local school tax is put to vote in your district.

CLUB CAMPAIGN ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Fort Worth Paper Calls Attention to Form Club Campaign in This County.

The Star-Telegram has the following editorial in Wednesday's paper:

The campaign now on in Hall county probably will attract statewide attention in certain circles before it is brought to a close. Let it be said there is no "viewing with alarm" or the usual "pointing with pride" in this Hall county campaign. Demagogues are not atop the political stump, nor are the reputation of men being handled with cotton hooks. The campaign opened last week means more for the future peace, progress and prosperity of Hall county than sizzling scramble for office. The Hall county boys' agriculture club has started a campaign for "One Thousand Members for 1917." The organization now numbers more than 700. But the farm boys of Hall county are hustlers, proud of their organization strength, and eager to increase its usefulness. Hence the campaign in Hall county. The boys will win the membership desired. In the spirit of youth they have set their mark high but Hall county boys will win, mark the prediction. There are men in Hall county who know the soil and its possibilities, and what it holds out to boys prepared to harness and jump to this big drive for educational work in farm life and farm operations. These men will lend a hand. The press of Hall county will lend a hand. And thoughtful Texans will take positions on the sidelines and cheer the youngsters to victory and the coveted 1,000 mark. The campaign in Hall county is worth while.

DAKOTA ADOPTS CAMPAIGN LAW

Candidates Must Appear in Joint Debate in State To Get Names On Ticket.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 14.—Candidates for presidential nomination will henceforth have to appear in South Dakota to take part in joint debates or their names can not appear on primary ballots in this State, if a primary law enacted last Tuesday under the initiative remains on the statute until 1920.

Returns received at the capital indicate that the so-called Richards primary law divides each of the parties into "majority" and "minority" factions, requiring that each faction offer a complete set of candidates in the biennial primaries.

Candidates for nomination for President and Governor must challenge one another to joint debate. Failure to accept a challenge automatically takes the name of the delinquent from the ballot.

Slight Change on Re-count.

The recount in the close states so far reported show but slight changes in the presidential vote.

Hughes gains are shown in Minnesota and slight gains for Wilson in California and New Mexico.

Wilson's popular vote is estimated to be more than 400,000 above that of Hughes and he will have an excess of perhaps six votes in the electoral college.

The house of congress appears to have gone to the republicans.

Commissioners' Court

The Commissioners' Court has been in session since Monday, the approval of the new bonds for county officers, canvass of the election returns makes this an unusually lengthy and busy session.

The Commissioner visited the bridge site near Ox-bow Wednesday and definitely decided upon the exact spot for the bridges across Red river and Little Red.

LIGHT VOTE CAST IN HALL COUNTY

Little Over Half of Voting Strength of County Cast in Presidential Contest.

The vote cast in this county, as shown by the official returns, for presidential electors was very light. Only a little more than half of the qualified voters were interested enough to register a choice. A large per cent. of this vote was cast in Memphis.

Both the socialists and the republicans show considerable gains over the vote cast four years ago; but both together, with the prohibitionists thrown in, have less than fourteen per cent of the total vote.

Baylor is distinguished as being the only simon-pure, untainted and unadulterated democratic box in the county; each and all of its twenty-one votes were democratic.

A tabulated statement of the official vote, as canvassed by the Commissioners' Court is given below; the votes were cast for presidential electors and are given by precincts:

	Dem.	Rep.	Pro.	Soc.
Memphis	425	12	3	24
Newlin	50	3	0	9
Ek	29	0	0	3
Finger	35	1	0	5
Estelline	84	8	0	10
Baylor	21	0	0	0
Parnell	17	8	0	4
Turkey	54	3	0	5
Lakeview	84	7	1	13
Brice	35	1	1	3
Lodge	62	1	1	5
Hulver	32	5	0	7
Total	926	49	6	88

The vote for governor, upon which the party representation is based stood as follows: Democrats, 968; Republicans, 41; Prohibitionists, 12; Socialists, 92, making a total of 1053 votes, just the necessary number to give Hall county four delegates in the next State convention.

The figures indicate that the democrats, twenty of them, scratched their gubernatorial candidate, while the other parties voted stronger for governor than for president.

WEST TEXAS A. & M. ASSN. AT WICHITA

West Texas A. & M. Campaign Association to Hold Meeting at Wichita Falls.

The legislative committee appointed at the Fort Worth meeting of the West Texas A. & M. Association have arranged a conference with a committee from the Board of Directors of the A. & M. College. Following this conference, this committee will draw a bill to be submitted to the next legislature which will provide for the establishment of a branch of A. & M. College as some point in Texas West of the 98th Meridian. This bill will be presented at the next and final meeting of the West Texas A. & M. Campaign Association to be held at Wichita Falls the latter part of Nov.

Reports from practically every town interested in the establishment of this institution indicate a record breaking attendance at the Wichita Falls meeting. Many of the Senators and Representatives from East and South Texas have signified their intention of coming to this meeting in order that they may learn definitely what is to be requested of the next legislature.

The Chamber of Commerce of Wichita Falls is making extensive plans for the entertainment of the visitors at this meeting. A "Town Builders Banquet" is being arranged for at one of the leading hotels of the city and it is hoped to have all of the Senators and Representatives from West Texas and many from other sections present. The banquet was planned originally in celebration of the completion of the $100,000 fund to explore Wichita County for new oil and gas fields, but the idea of combining it with the A. & M. meeting met with instant favor and has been adopted.

Badges have been ordered for this final rally which indicates very forcibly the desire of the citizenship of West Texas and the reason therefor. The map of Texas West of the 98th Meridian colored red and the remaining portion left white. The location of College Station and the comparatively small area served by the College is thus forcibly compared with the great territory almost inaccessible to this school. The words "We Want an A. & M. College" are shown in large letters across the entire face of the badge.

A card to the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Wichita Falls that you are coming will be appreciated and will mean that a room will be reserved for you in advance.

McCormick Issues Statement

New York, Nov. 8.—At 3 o'clock Wednesday morning Vahee McCormick, chairman of the Democratic National committee, issued the following statement:

"Wilson's vote is rolling up every minute. He will have close to 300 votes in the electoral college."

Although the metropolitan newspapers which have supported Wilson conceded his defeat, the Democratic managers insisted that complete returns from the West reverse the trend.

"Remember 1892," was the prediction of the Democratic publicity bureau, which pointed out that in that memorable contest the next day's revised returns placed Grover Cleveland in the White House.

FASHION STILL FAITHFUL TO SIMPLE LINES

SOME HINTS ON THE LATEST DRESS TRIMMINGS.

USES FOR OLD PAISLEY SHAWLS

Fashion has not swerved in the least from the simplicity that has been a marked feature in the very first models with which the season opened. Now, as then, most frocks depend on the beauty of the material and simplicity of line for their success rather than on very elaborate trimmings. The beauty of the material and simplicity of line for their success rather than on very elaborate trimmings. There was a time when the trimmings for a dress cost as much, if not more, than the are fashioned of beautiful chiffon velvets, velveteen, lustrous satins, or soft woolen materials with a sheen, like duvetyn, velours and broadcloth. The snug bodice, fitted with soft pleats at the underarm, is buttoned down the back, a feature which is surely gaining favor this season. The ubiquitous pockets are here represented in the form of an extension of the bodice, and they are decorated with colored embroidery in a conventional design.

The Use of Paisley Shawls.

Something very new and distinctly attractive in the line of trimmings is the use of Paisley shawls, or Oriental silks giving this effect. At all the social gatherings this touch has been very prominent and proved exceedingly popular. The genuine Paisley shawl has been used by those fortunate enough to possess one of these rare old treasures or those who are able to pay the price asked for them. Those, however, who would think twice before cutting up a valuable shawl handed down from previous generations, will find substitutes in the new silks especially designed to give this effect. The Paisley shawl is employed in many ways, not only for trimmings dresses, but for hats, too. A very handsome dress was seen recently in which the upper part was made of a Paisley shawl and the skirt and sleeves of broadcloth. In the collection of Paris importations there was a striking set of caps collar, turban and muff of Paisley combined with fur. This combination was also seen on the collar of a dress, the fur being used to material, to the amazement especially of the woman who wanted to be economical; but now it is the very contrary. A dress needs very little more than a touch of embroidery, or perhaps a contrasting collar, to make it as smart as Fashion demands. The ingenious woman, with very little effort and practically no extra cost, can add a great deal of style to her dress by a simple embroidered motif worked in heavy silk or wool yarn. A narrow banding of fur added to a collar or the edges of sleeves also gives a distinctive touch to any dress.

Another means by which Fashion eliminates the need for trimming is in the use of the two materials for fashioning a dress. It may be two contrasting shades of the same material or two different materials in the same tone that are used. Both effects are very charming and highly popular.

The pretty one-piece dress sketched here may be developed in two shades of satin, or in satin and broadcloth. The upper collar should be of Georgette finished with pleat edging, and the lower one of the same material used for the pleated section of the skirt. The new sleeve, curving out to a point below the elbow, is outlined with a row of tiny buttons, and the lower edge is finished with braid.

The other illustration shows a stylish model which has met with great success. The design, which breathes simple elegance, is distinctly appropriate for the formal dress that every woman finds it necessary to have at least one of. Such frocks this season edge the Paisley collar. Another use to which the Paisley shawl has been put is the making of pretty, fancy handbags, and it is also used very effectively by milliners.

Dainty Neckwear

Feminine fancy has turned again to dainty neckwear in the form of jabots and collars of real lace, embroidered nets and fine batiste with hand-embroidered decorations. A smartly dressed woman on Fifth Avenue wore a beautiful jabot of real lace over the front of her dark-green tailored broadcloth suit, which had a deep sailor collar of fur.

In such sheer materials as Georgette silk nets, shiffons, and very fine batiste, collars and jabots are just as dainty as possible. Beads, silver and gold thread embroideries and silk or wool fringes are some of the most popular decorations for them.

The flat rolling collar of satin, flannel or broadcloth is still holding its own, especially for wear with one-piece frocks. For the most part, these collars are plain. The edges of some are pinked or bound with braid, and others are finished with the popular silk or wool fringes.

November Weather.

Early cold snaps, storms and sleet, snow and slush, cause coughs and colds. Foley's Honey and Tar acts quickly, cuts the phlegm, opens air passages, allays irritation, heals inflammation and enables the sufferer to breathe easily and naturally so that sleep is not disturbed by hacking cough.—Fickas Drug Co.

No Doubt About This.

Foley Cathartic Tablets are just a plain, honest old-fashioned physic. They act promptly and effectively on the bowels without pain, griping or nausea. They keep the stomach sweet the liver active, and the bowels regular. They banish biliousness, sick headaches, sour stomach, indigestion.—Fickas Drug Company.

"LUMBER FOR LESS"

The greatest porportion of socialist votes according to election returns are in the Parnell box but this ought not to be held against these people, as no doubt by another year this element will have floated elsewhere, you can't expect a community to steer entirely clear of any certain class of people. Of course most of socialists here are good people.—Hall County Herald.

What do you think of that? The first part of this paragraph indicates a mean and narrow-minded desire to slur and insult the socialists—because their political opinions differ with those of the writer. The last sentence shows that he lacked the courage to let it stand; since it acknowledges the innendo of the first part libellous. Fair-minded people acknowledge, that a man's political opinion has nothing to do with his character as a good citizen and a good man. Most socialists here are good people, just as most democrats are. Brice shows a greater proportion of prohibition votes, one man out of thirty-six there voted the prohibition ticket. We don't agree with him politically, and we have no idea who he is; but we guess that he is probably one of the best citizens of the community, and that he is honest in his convictions—certainly he has the courage to show his colors, and is not pretending to be a prohibitionist in order to get an office.

PEN THE PAPER MAKERS

Our Federal Trade Commission declares after due examination that all print paper, paper which we are paying $7 and $8 a hundred for, is being produced for only $1.65 per hundred. This gives you some idea about how we are hoodwinked and robbed by the paper mill owners, who have pretended all the time that scarcity of material was the cause of the high cost of paper. These mid-night assassins are robbing the country editor, not only on print paper, but on all classes of paper. What we need is Government ownership of the paper mills and the price put in the range of reason and these unscrupulous and diabolical wretches placed in the penitentiary.—Claude News.

The greatest, and most needed, improvement for Memphis would be the extension of the sewerage system and an ordinance compelling connections to be made therewith. We can much better afford to spend the necessary money than we can afford to take chances with another scourge of typhoid. The cost of this work would be doubled by the enhancement of property values to say nothing of the possible saving of lives.

OUR IMITATION PROSPERITY

There are a large number of people in this country to whose interest it is to have us believe a general condition of prosperity now exists. They may be referred to in brief as the makers of war munitions, but they also include every monopolist and speculator who has taken advantage of the European situation to raise prices at home and mulet the American consumer.

The organs in which these profiteers are influential accordingly raise a cry of "prosperity, prosperity." In particularizing on this prosperity, they point to our exports, they point to the fact that our industries are running full time, they point to the fact that prices are high, they point to the fact Wall Street is active.

But there is another view to take of the situation, a view which interprets these facts in quite a different light. There are many sane people in this country who cannot understand how it makes for prosperity at home to send a large proportion of our products away. This might increase the prosperity of the few who make the profits on these commodities, but those who find it increasingly difficult to acquire what they need of these products are of a different opinion. A prosperity that is based on sending more goods out than are brought in is a delusion.

The fact that our industries are running full time and overtime is likewise capable of two interpretations. When industries are running full time and overtime, it means that we are all working and working hard. When people have to work too hard, they are not accustomed to think themselves prosperous. Prosperity connotes a bit of leisure, a surcease from toil, a surplus from former toil which permits one to pursue some of the joys of life and recreate himself. A prosperity that keeps our noses to the grindstones is a good thing to get rid of.

Then as to prices. Do high prices make prosperity? High prices make prices and inhibit the prosperity of those who have to pay the prices. The prices of foodstuff, building materials, coal and nearly everything we can mention have gone up. This means prosperity for the monopolists and the trusts that control these commodities, but it does not mean prosperity for the perplexed housewife whose husband does not happen to be a monopolist or associated with a monopolist, and who therefore finds it more and more difficult to make both ends meet. A prosperity that makes the many a prey to the few is no prosperity at all.

Activity in Wall Street does not prove general prosperity. It proves special prosperity. When a gambler wins, he is prosperous. When he loses he is not prosperous. But there is more than that to the Wall Street situation. Wall Street is a barometer of the amount of wealth which the trusts and combines have been able to extract from the people. If prices of stocks go up, it means that a larger amount of value has been taken in one way or another from the people and that there is a prospect of extracting still more. If our economic system had been such as to leave this value with the people who produced it, then the people in general would have been more prosperous and this value would not have found its way to the stock exchanges for speculators to gamble over.

Let us have prosperity in this country. Let us have all the prosperity that we can get if it is a real prosperity that extends equitably to all the deserving members of the community, but let us carefully guard against a pseudo-prosperity. Let us not be too hasty to plume ourselves on possessing an imitation prosperity that brings drunken affluence to a few while leaving the many in a worse economic condition than they were before.—Ellis O. Jones, in The Public.

Boy's Essay on Editors

A country school boy was told to write an essay on editors, says the Fallbrook (Cal.) Enterprise, and this is the result:

"Don't know how newspapers came to be in the world. I don't think the good Lord does, for he ain't got nothing to say about an editor in the Bible. I think the editor is one of the missing links you read of and stayed in the bushes until after the flood and then came out and wrote the thing up and has been here ever since. I don't think he ever died. I never seen a dead one and never heard of one getting licked. "If a doctor makes a mistake he buries it, and people dassent say nothin'."

"When the editor makes a mistake here is big swearing and a big fuss, but if a doctor makes a mistake there s a funeral, cut flowers and perfect silence.

"A doctor can use a word a yard long without anybody knowing what it is, but if an editor uses one he has to spell it."

"If a doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for it, but if the editor goes he gets a charges ob buck-shot."

"Any old college can make a doc- or, but an editor has to be born."

20,000 Leagues Under the Sea

BY JULES VERNE

First and Greatest Story of a Submarine

had already begun when the Nautilus arrived. They did not at first show any fear at the sight of this new monster joining in the conflict. But they soon had to guard against its blows. What a battle! The Nautilus was nothing but a formidable harpoon, brandished by the hand of its captain. It hurled itself against the fleshy mass, passing through from one part to the other, leaving behind it two quivering halves of the animal. It could not feel the formidable blows from their tails upon its sides, nor the shock which it produced itself, much more. One cachalot killed, it ran at the next, tacked on the spot that it might not miss its prey, going forward and backward, answering to its helm, plunging when the cetacean dived in to the deep waters, coming up with it when it returned to the surface, striking it front or sideways, cutting or tearing in all directions, and at any pace, piercing it with its terrible spur. What carnage! What a noise on the surface of the waves! What sharp hissing, and what snorting peculiar to these enraged animals! In the midst of these waters generally so peaceful their tails made perfect billows. For one hour this wholesale massacre continued, from which the cachalots could not escape. Several times ten or twelve united tried to crush the Nautilus by their weight. From the window we could see their enormous mouths studded with tusks, and their formidable eyes. Ned Land could not contain himself, he threatened and swore at them. We could feel them clinging to our vessel like dogs worrying a wild boar in a copse. But the Nautilus, working its screw, carried them here and there, or to the upper levels of the ocean, without caring for their enormous weight, nor the powerful strain on the vessel. At length, the mass of cachalots broke up, the waves became quiet, and I felt that we were rising to the surface. The panel opened, and we hurried on to the platform. The sea was covered with mutilated bodies. A formidable explosion could not have divided and torn this fleshy mass with more violence. We were floating amid gigantic bodies, bluish on the back and white underneath, covered with enormous protuberances. Some terrified cachalots were flying toward the horizon. The waves were dyed red for several miles, and the Nautilus floated in a sea of blood. Capt. Nemo joined us.

"Well, Maser Land?" said he.
"Well, sir," replied the Canadian, whose enthusiasm had somewhat calmed: "it is a terrible spectacle, certainly. But I am not a butcher, I am a hunter, and I call this a butchery."
"It is a massacre of mischievous creatures," replied the captain; "and the Nautilus is not a butcher's knife."
"I like my harpoon better," said the Canadian.
"Every one to his own," answered the captain, looking fixedly at Ned Land.

I feared he would commit some act of violence, which would end in sad consequences. But his anger was turned by the sight of a whale which the Nautilus had just come up with. The creature had not quite escaped from the cachalot's teeth. I recognized the southern whale by its flat head, which is entire black. Anatomically, it is distinguished from the white whale and the North Cape whale by the seven cervical vertebrae, and it has two more ribs than its congeners. The unfortunate cetacean was lying on its side, riddled with holes from the bites, and quite dead. From its mutilated fin still hung a young whale which it could not save from the massacre. Its open mouth let the water flow in and out, murmuring like the waves breaking on the shore. Capt. Nemo steered close to the corpse of the creature. Two of his men mounted its side, and I saw, not without surprise, that they were drawing from its breasts all the milk which they contained, that is to say, about two or three tons. The captain offered me a cup of the milk, which was still warm. I could not help showing my ignorance to the drink; but he assured me that it was excellent, and that it was to be distinguished from cow's milk. It was a useful reserve to us, for in the shape of salt butter or cheese it would form an agreeable variety from our ordinary food. From that day I noticed with unconsciousness that Ned Land's ill-will toward Capt. Nemo increased, and I resolved to watch the Canadian's gestures closely.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Iceberg.

The Nautilus was steadily pursuing its southerly course, following the fiftieth meridian with considerable speed. Did he wish to reach the pole? I did not think so, for every attempt to reach that point had hitherto failed. Again the season was far advanced; for in the antarctic regions the 13th of March corresponds with the 13th of September of northern regions, which begins at the equinoctial season. On the 14th of March I saw floating ice in latitude 55 degrees, merely pale bits of debris from twenty to twenty-five feet long, forming banks over which the sea curled. The Nautilus remained on the surface of the ocean. Ned Land, who had fished in the arctic seas, was familiar with its icebergs; but Conseil and I admired them for the first time. In the atmosphere toward the southern horizon stretched a white dazzling band. English whalers had given it the name of "ice blink." However thick the clouds may be, it is always visible, and announces the presence of an ice-pack or bank. Accordingly larger blocks soon appeared, whose brilliancy changed with the caprices of the fog. Some of these masses showed green veins, as if long undulating lines had been traced with sulphate of copper; others resembled enormous amethysts with the light shining through them. Some reflected the light of day upon a thousand crystal facets. Others shrouded with vivid calcareous reflections resembled a perfect town of marble. The more we neared the south the more these floating islands increased both in number and importance.

At the sixtieth degree of latitude, every pass had disappeared. But seeking carefully, Captain Nemo soon found a narrow opening, through which he boldly slipped, knowing, however, that it would close behind him. Thus, guided by this clever hand, the Nautilus passed through all the ice, with a precision which quite charmed Conseil; icebergs or mountains, icefields or smooth plains, seemed to have no limits, drift ice or floating ice-packs, or plains broken up, called patches when they are circular and streams when they are made up of long strips. The temperature was very low; the thermometer exposed to the air marked two or three below zero, but we were warmly clad with fur, at the expense of the sea bear and seal. The interior of the Nautilus, warmed regularly by its electric apparatus, defied the most intense cold. Besides, it would only have been necessary to go some yards beneath the waves to find a more bearable temperature. Two months earlier we should have had perpetual daylight in these latitudes; but already we had three or four hours' night, and by and by there would be six months of darkness in these circumpolar regions. On the 15th of March we were in the latitude of New Shetland and South Orkney. The captain told me that formerly numerous tribes of seals inhabited them; but that English and American whalers, in their rage for destruction, massacred both old and young; thus where there was once life and animation, they had left silence and death.

About eight o'clock on the morning of the 16th of March, the Nautilus, following the fifty-fifth meridian, cut the antarctic polar circle. Ice surrounded us on all sides, and closed the horizon. But Captain Nemo went from one opening to another, still going higher. I cannot express my astonishment at the beauties of these new regions. The ice took most surprising forms. Here the grouping formed an Oriental town, with innumerable mosques and minarets; there a fallen city thrown to the earth, as it were, by some convulsion of nature. The whole aspect was constantly changed by the oblique rays of the sun, or lost in the grayish fog and hurricanous of snow. Delongations and falls were heard on all sides, great overthrows of icebergs, which altered the whole landscape like a drama. Often seeing no exit, I thought we were definitively prisoners; but instinct guiding him at the slightest indication, Capt. Nemo would discover a new pass. He was never mistaken when he saw the thin threads of bluish water trickling along the icefields; and I had no doubt that he had already ventured into the midst of these antarctic seas before. On the 16th of March, however, the ice-fields absolutely blocked our road. It was not the icebergs themselves, as yet, but vast fields cemented by the cold. But this obstacle could not stop Capt. Nemo; he hurled himself against it with frightful violence. The Nautilus entered the brittle mass like a wedge, and split it with frightful cracklings. It was the battering-ram of the ancients hurled by infinite strength. The ice, thrown high in the air, fell like hail around us. By its own power of impulsion our apparatus made a canal for itself; sometimes carried away by its own impetus, it lodged on the ice-fields, crushing it with its weight, and sometimes buried beneath it, dividing it by a simple pitching movement, producing large rents in it. Violent gales assailed us at this time, accompanied by thick fogs, through which, from one end of the platform to the other, we could see nothing. The wind blew sharply from all points of the compass and the snow lay in such hard heaps that we had to break it with blows of a pickaxe. The temperature was always at five degrees below zero; every outward part of the Nautilus was covered with ice. A rigged vessel could never have worked its way there, for all the rigging would have been entangled in the blocked-up gorges. A vessel without sails, with electricity for its motive-power, and wanting no coal, could alone brave such high latitudes. At length, on the 18th of March, after many useless assaults, the Nautilus was positively blocked. It was no longer either streams, packs, or ice-fields, but an interminable and immovable barrier, formed by mountains soldered together.

"An iceberg!" said the Canadian to me.
I knew that to Ned Land, as well as to all other navigators who had preceded us, this was an inevitable obstacle. The sun appearing for an instant at noon, Capt. Nemo took an observation as near as possible, which gave our situation at 51 degrees 20 minutes longitude and 67 degrees 39 minutes of south latitude. We had advanced one degree more in this antarctic region. Of the liquid surface of the sea there was no longer a vast plain, entangled with confused blocks. Here and there sharp points, and slender needles rising to a height of 200 feet, further up a steep shore, hewn as it were with an ax, and clothed with grayish tints, huge mirrors, reflecting a few rays of sunshine, half drowned in the fog. And over this desolate face of nature a stern silence reigned, scarcely broken by the flapping of the wings of petrels and puffins. Everything was frozen—even the noise. The Nautilus was then obliged to stop in its adventurous course amid these fields of ice. In spite of our efforts, in spite of the powerful means employed to break up the ice, the Nautilus remained immovable. Generally when we can proceed no further, we have return still open to us; but here return was as advance, for every pass had closed behind us; and for the few moments when we were stationary, we were likely to be entirely blocked, which did, indeed, happen about two o'clock in the afternoon, the fresh ice forming around its sides with astonishing rapidity. I was obliged to admit that Captain Nemo was more than imprudent. I was on the platform at that moment. The captain had been observing our situation for some time past, when he said to me:

"Well, sir, what do you think of this?"
"I think that we are caught, Capt."
"So, M. Aronnax, you really think that the Nautilus cannot disengage itself?"
"With difficulty, captain; for the season is already too far advanced for you to reckon on the breaking up of the ice."
"Ah! sir," said Capt. Nemo, in an ironical tone, "you will always be the same. You see nothing but difficulties and obstacles. I affirm that not only can the Nautilus disengage itself, but also that it can go further still."
"Further to the south?" I asked, looking at the captain.
"Yes, sir; it shall go the pole."
"To the pole!" I exclaimed, unable to repress a gesture of incredulity.
"Yes," replied the captain coldly, "to the antarctic pole to that unknown point from whence springs every meridian of the globe. You know whether I can do, as I please with the Nautilus!"
Yes, I knew that. I knew that this man was bold; even to rashness. But to conquer those obstacles which bristled round the south pole, rendering it more inaccessible than the north, which had not yet been reached by boldest navigators—was it not a mad enterprise, one which only a maniac would have conceived? It then came into my head to ask Capt. Nemo if he had ever discovered that pole which had never yet been trodden by a human creature.

"No, sir," he replied; "but we will discover it together. Where others have failed, I will not fail. I have never yet led my Nautilus so far into southern seas; but I repeat, it shall go further yet."

"I can well believe you, captain," said I, in a slightly ironical tone. "I believe you! Let us go ahead! There are no obstacles for us! Let us smash this iceberg! Let us blow it up; and if it resists, let us give the Nautilus wings to fly over it!"

"Over it, sir!" said Captain Nemo quietly; "no, not over it, but under it!"

"Under it!" I exclaimed, a sudden idea of the captain's projects flashing upon my mind. I understood the wonderful qualities of the Nautilus were going to serve us in this superhuman enterprise.

"I see we are beginning to understand one another, sir," said the captain, half smiling. "You begin to see the possibility—I should say the success—of this attempt. That which is impossible for an ordinary vessel, is easy to the Nautilus. If a continent lies before the pole, it must stop before the continent; but, if, on the contrary, the pole is washed by open sea, it will go even to the pole."

"Certainly," said I, carried away by the captain's reasoning; "if the surface of the sea is solidified by the ice, the lower depths are free by the providential law which has placed the maximum of density of the waters of the ocean one degree higher than freezing point; and, if I am not mistaken, the portion of this iceberg which is above the water is as one to four to that which is below."

"Very nearly, sir; for one foot of iceberg above the sea there are three below it. If these ice mountains are not more than 300 feet above the surface, they are not more than 900 feet beneath. And what are 900 feet to the Nautilus?"

"Nothing, sir."
"It could even seek greater depths than uniform temperature of sea-water, and there brave with impunity the thirty or forty degrees of surface cold."

"Just so, sir—just so," I replied, getting animated.
"The only difficulty," continued Captain Nemo, "is that of remaining several days without renewing our provision of air."

NEW CREATION OF SCIENCE AND NATURE

WHEN we announced Bevo recently, our hopes were high. We knew that we had the most unusual soft drink that had ever been offered: A beverage combining the nutritive extracts of wholesome cereals, the zest of Saazer Hops, a flavor all its own, and absolute purity. We knew this because, true to our own ideals, we had experimented for years before we were satisfied to say, "We offer you Bevo—it is a different soft drink—it is good and it is good for you."

High as were our hopes for its reception, we have realized them far and beyond our expectations.

Bevo today is an established popular success. Everywhere the same question is asked:—"Have you tried Bevo?"

Now, one final word. We promise you that, in accord with the known principles of Anheuser-Busch and all its products, Bevo not only will forever maintain its present high standard of quality, but as time goes on our great endeavor shall be to make this soft drink even more perfect in every detail of its goodness.

You will find Bevo at inns, restaurants, groceries, department and drug stores, picnic grounds, baseball parks, soda fountains, dining cars and other places where refreshing beverages are sold.

Guard against substitutes. Have the bottle opened in front of you, first seeing that the seal is unbroken and that the crown top bears the Fox.

STORK INDORSES THE FORD

Child Born in a Flying Ford at Archer City. Jitney Baby is a Boy.

The stork pulled off quite a stunt in our city Tuesday morning when he swooped down on one of main streets and deposited on one of main swiftly moving automobile.

Ernest Hall, of the Lee Garage, received a hurry up call from the Katy depot immediately after the north bound passenger arrived. He cranked his Ford car and made it to the depot in one minute flat. On arriving there he found a man and his wife wanting right now transportation to the Matthews Hotel. They got in. In fact the trip was made in less than 30 seconds, but it was too slow. The stork beat them easily.

The episode is unique and has no parallel in the annals of history ancient or modern.

That this, the first birth on record on the main street of a city in a flying automobile, should be in a Ford is sensational advertising for that excellent machine.

The stork absolutely placed his seal of approval on the Ford car, and who knows but that this emblematic bird of infancy may be fixing to change his nesting place from the chimney and uniformly use automobiles for his purpose?

The youngster has not been officially christened as yet, but we understand his name will be Henry Ford Hall Hodges Turner, and his baby name for short will be "Jitney Boy."

If Henry Ford don't send this baby the best car he can make he is a piker, and his product should be boycotted by all storkdom. He will be duly advised of the occurrence and his answer printed.—Archer County News.

HOG PREVENTION AND ERADICATION

How to Keep Cholera Away What To Do if it Should Come. Methods of Disinfection.

Prevention.

Farmers themselves can do much toward preventing the spread of hog cholera and placing swine raising and feeding on a safe and more profitable basis.

To Keep Hog Cholera From Reaching Your Herd.

Locate your hog lots and pastures away from streams and public highways, and do not allow your hogs to run on free range or highways nor to have access to canals or irrigating ditches.

2. Do not visit your neighbors nor allow him to visit you if he has cholera on his premises.

3. Do not drive into hog lots after driving on public highways.

4. Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements.

5. Do not place newly purchased stock, stock procured or borrowed for breeding purposes, or stock exhibited at county fairs immediately with your herd. Keep such stock quarantined in separate pens for at least 2 weeks, and use care in feeding and attending stock to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens.

6. Burn to ashes or cover with quicklime and bury under 4 feet of earth all dead animals and the viscera removed from animals at butchering time, because they attract buzzards, dogs, etc., which are liable to carry hog cholera infection.

7. If hog cholera appears in the neighborhood confine your dog and encourage your neighbor to do the same.

8. Mange, lice, and worms lower the vitality of hogs, rendering them more susceptible to the disease.

If Cholera Appears in Your Herd

Have all hogs treated immediately with anti-hog-cholera serum, after which they should be kept on a light diet, with pure drinking water, and confined to limited quarters that should be cleaned and sprayed three times a week with 1 part of compound cresol solution to 30 parts of water, until the disease has abated in the herd.

To obtain the best results the serum must be administered as soon as possible or as soon as the disease is detected in the herd. Be sure that the temperature of all hogs is taken. A temperature above 104 F. in ordinary weather and when the animal is not excited indicates infection, and such hogs an increased dose of serum.

To Rid Premises of Infection

Remove all manure and mix it with quicklime. Burn all litter, rubbish, and old hog troughs. After the premises are thoroughly cleaned, spray walls, floors and other surfaces, including remaining hog troughs, etc., with a disinfectant 1 part compound cresol solution to 30 parts water. When hog houses are small, turn them over, exposing interior to sunlight. Clean premises properly exposed to sunlight, will not retain infection any great length of time. Wal-low holes and cesspools should be filled in, drained, or fenced off. All runs underneath buildings should be cleaned and disinfected and then boarded up to keep hogs out. Destroy hogs that do not fully recover, as they may be carriers of cholera infection.

For further information regarding Hog Cholera write to Dr. L. G. Combs, care Commercial Club, Memphis, Texas, or Dr. Frank R. Jones, 238 Live Stock Exchange Building, Ft. Worth, Texas.

WILSON'S MAJORITY IN TEXAS 170,000

Defeats Gilmore for Railroad Commissioner—Constitutional Amendment Carries

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 8.—In Tuesday's election in Texas only two issues were in doubt. These were as to who would be elected to fill the unexpired term as railroad commissioner and as to whether the school tax amendment to the constitution would be adopted.

The returns received show that C. H. Hurdleston, the governor's appointee, defeated Clarence E. Gilmore for the railroad commissioner-ship and that the Constitutional amendment was adopted.

The entire Democratic ticket was elected. Wilson carried the state by a majority that will range over 170,000, which was more than he received two years ago. The indications are that the total vote polled for Hughes is in the neighborhood of 58,000, or about 5 per cent larger than the combined vote of Taft and Roosevelt in 1912. The returns indicated that the prohibitionists polled about twice as many votes as they did in 1912, and that the Socialists polled a good many less than they did in the same year.

Totals of Returns

The totals of the returns received early Wednesday morning were:

For president—Wilson, Democrat, 66,510; Hughes, Republican 14,586; Hanley, Prohibitionist, 728; Benson, Socialist, 1,849.

Constitutional amendment: For 24,897, against 19,432. This amendment will permit school districts to levy a tax not to exceed $1 on the $100 and counties to levy a school tax not to exceed 50c.

For railroad commissioner, unexpired term: C. H. Hurdleston 19,539; Clarence E. Gilmore 7,116; Jack Thorn (Republican) 1,305. And there were scattering votes for Frank Jensen, Prohibitionist; F. J. Penland, Socialist and others.

Ballot Complicated

The election was complicated by reason of the fact that the supreme court declared that the nominations made by the party committees for the railroad commissioner were invalid and for the reason that these names had been printed on the ballots in most of the counties. In many of the counties these names were erased and voters wrote in the names of the men for whom they wanted to vote. But in other counties the printed ballots were used. In San Antonio, for instance, Hurdleston received 1,324 votes, Gilmore none and Thorn 313, Jensen 3 and Penland 18.

A Correction

The statement was made last week that the encyclopedia given the library was presented by Drs. Wilson and Maxey and the "Woman's Civic Club." This was an error, the "Woman's Culture Club" was the donor.

"The Fall of a Nation."

"The Fall of a Nation," the Dixon-Herbert musical film spectacle, has to do with a multi-millionaire whose money finances an uprising of alien residents of the United States. Aided by a foreign power, the insurgents capture the Atlantic seaboard and their huge Skoda guns bring death and destruction on New York. America falls the multi-millionaire is made governor-general of the province of America with the title of prince, and the United States becomes an imperial domain.

The American forces, driven westward, but not defeated, spend two years in preparing. They are aided by a woman's "Loyal Legion," which was organized by the prince to spread the doctrine of imperialism. When the time comes to strike the blow the reorganized American army sweeps in from the west, falls on the invading forces and drives them to the sea. The foreign power is driven out for good and all, and the flag once more flies over the land of the free.

The score, written by Victor Herbert, is given by a large orchestra.

At El Paso voters were called back and allowed to "vote again" for railroad commissioner, in view of the fact that Hurdleston's name had been removed from the ballots and voters had not expressed a choice for that office.

In a good many counties no returns were available. In Fort Worth the state election was overshadowed by the city primary and no count was made of the state ticket.

Dallas County Votes $500,000 Bond—Dallas, Texas—The Dallas County bond issue of $500,000 for construction of permanent road beds in the overflow districts of the county had a safe majority of 1,203, according to returns on the general election held Tuesday. These returns were on 44 boxes, complete, and 18 partial, out of 96 in the county. As was expected the vote for the electors for President Wilson was overwhelmingly in the majority. The Wilson electors received 9,150 votes and the Hughes candidates 1,756 votes.

BORDER VOTES FOR HUGHES

First Results of Vote Among Guardsmen Show Strong Republican Sentiment.

Brownsville, Texas.—First figures on the presidential election among federalized guardsmen on the border became known here when figures were issued as follows, the official ballots, it was stated, having already been forwarded to the respective states of the troopers' voting:

Troop A, Kansas cavalry, stationed at Donna, cast 22 ballots—20 for Hughes, and 2 for Wilson.

Several hundred Virginia troops, who voted by mail, practically solid for Wilson. The exact number voting was not and will not be obtainable on the border.

Fourth South Dakota infantry, stationed at San Benito, votes mailed, give Hughes a lead of 6 to 1. Number of men balloting not obtainable.

The North Dakota regiment at Llano Grande has mailed its ballot under seal, and the result will not be announced here. A straw vote of one company, it is stated, was indicative of the vote of the entire regiment. This straw vote shows 29 for Hughes and 8 for Wilson.

Defeat of Prohibition Claimed

San Francisco, Cal.—George M. McDowell, executive manager of the United California Industries, claimed the prohibition amendment No. 2 (abolishing retail liquor places) on the face of partial returns from 500 precincts in Northern California, had been lost by a majority of approximately 100,000 votes.

Pros Win by 12,000 in Michigan

Detroit, Mich.—The amendment for state-wide prohibition, with 244 precincts in 43 counties heard from, had a majority of more than 12,000. The amendment providing for home rule, which the anti-prohibition forces supported, was being beaten by a constantly growing majority. Returns from 224 precincts gave: For home rule 17,778, against 31,979.
