

GOV. COLQUITT SPEAKS HERE

Makes Long Speech, Holding Audience Past Dinner Hour. Difference With Wilson Applauded.

Ex-Governor O. B. Colquitt, candidate for the United States Senate, made the most effective speech that has been delivered here during the campaign, at the court house Monday morning.

The Audience was comparatively small, many being kept away by a funeral and the co-operative meeting.

He answered, with seeming effect, Campbell's statement regarding tax rates.

He then discussed his disagreement with the Administration at Washington over the Mexican border troubles and in regard to the cotton situation in 1914.

He announced his opposition to national woman suffrage and national prohibition, giving reasons there for, drawing applause.

He explained his plan for establishing and adequately financing land-loans direct from the government and declared that the adoption of this plan would make a large per cent of tenants home owners and that it would be the greatest possible step in "preparationness."

Said he favored a navy big enough to protect our rights on the seas against any nation and that he was opposed to a big standing army.

He, undoubtedly, made a "hit" in telling of his differences with the Wilson Administration. His statement brought vigorous applause and many of his hearers, who have always opposed him, expressed the belief that he acted right both in the Mexican affair and in trying to provide a market for cotton in the fall of 1914. Many shook hands with him and assured him of their approval in these matters.

The last monthly census shows that Hall county has a larger club membership than any other county in Texas.

On Friday and Saturday, May 26-27, a competitive examination in hog judging was conducted at Turkey, Hulver, Lakeview, and Memphis. The winners in these contests are to each be furnished with a registered Big Type Poland China gilt, for which they are to pay by giving back two choice gilts from the first litter. These two gilts are to be awarded two more club members by competitive examination, thus doubling the club annually. Registered boars for service are to be furnished a club member in each commissioner's precinct. The club is to be known as the Hall County Poland-China Pig Club and starts with a registered gilt in each of the 26 school districts in the county.

No new cases of hog cholera have been reported lately and indications are that it has been eradicated.

Interest is growing in diversified farming and raising better grades of stock and poultry and, with proper encouragement, will prove a source of greater prosperity for Hall county.

Yours for success,
WILL M. MIDKIFF, Co. Agent

Baseball Notes

White Sox Play Stand-Off With Estelline Visitors Serve Goose-Egg to Locals Saturday.

Two of the best and most interesting ball games ever played in Memphis were played at the Panther Park last Friday and Saturday between the local team and Estelline. Both sides played excellent ball, the score standing 2 to 3 in favor of the home team on Friday and 3 to 0 in favor of the visitors on Saturday.

All three of the scores in Saturday's game were made in the last half of the sixth inning; two of these were on errors. The teams were well matched and the game was hugely enjoyed and appreciated by the big crowd of enthusiastic fans present.

A game was played Tuesday afternoon of this week with the Wellington team; score 6 to 1 in favor of Memphis.

In a game between Memphis and Wellington played yesterday afternoon the home boys won by a score of 6 to 1. The Wellington boys, however did not have their regular team, just a "picked-up" nine, Memphis will probably find the regulars, who are to be here next week for three games, much harder to handle.

Oftentimes weak kidneys cause great annoyance and embarrassment to children. HANDICRAFT FOR BOYS

(Copyright, by A. Neely Hall.)

A WIRELESS TELEGRAPH RECEIVING SET—PART 1.

With one or two exceptions a boy can easily construct the instruments of a "wireless" receiving set.

The detector, shown in Fig. 1, requires a wooden base, A, a pair of dry-battery binding-posts, B, a piece of silicon, C, a strip of brass, D, and a piece of springy wire, E.

Bind the silicon to the base with the brass strip, D, bending this as in

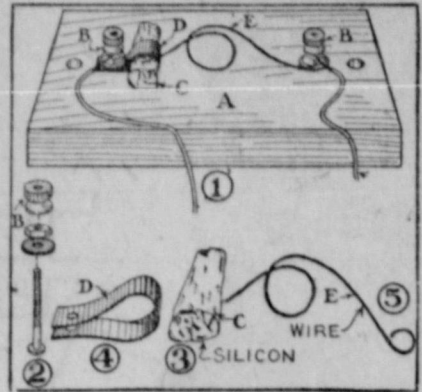

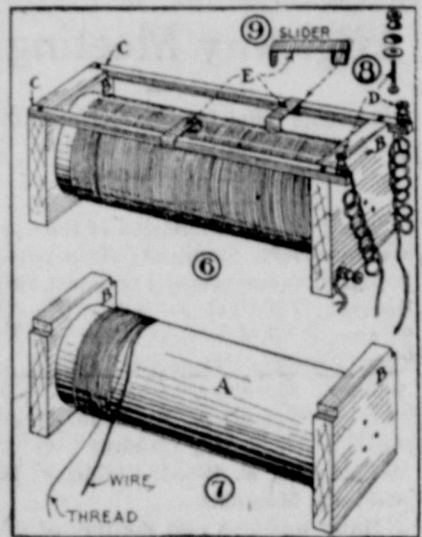

Fig. 4, and punching holes to fit over the binding-post. Bend the piece of wire E into the looped form shown in Fig. 5, secure one end to the binding-post, and cut off the other end to rest upon the piece of silicon.

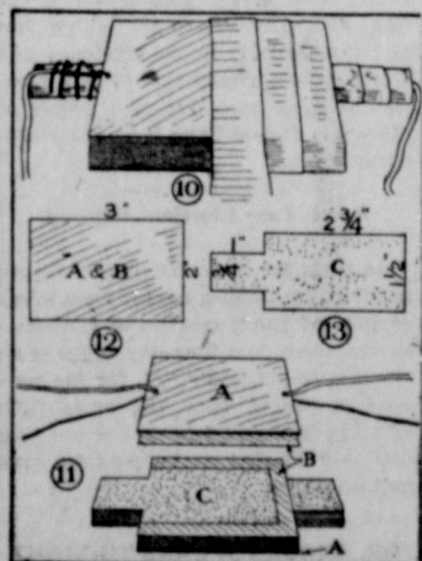

The tuning-coil (Fig. 6) requires a cylinder about 2 1/2 inches in diameter and 11 inches long (A, Fig. 7). A rolling-pin with its ends sawed off will be just right. On this cylinder a single layer of copper wire of about No. 26 gauge, not insulated, must be wound. It is necessary to keep each turn of the wire from coming into contact with the adjacent turns, and this is done by winding a heavy thread between the turns (Fig. 7). Two coats of shellac will help hold the coils in place. The end blocks (B, Fig. 7) should be 2 3/4 inches square, with a 3/4-inch notch cut in each of two corners. Nail them to the ends of the cylinder as shown. The slider rods (C, Fig. 6) should be of brass, 1/4 inch square and 12 inches long, and should have a hole drilled at one end to receive binding-posts D (Figs. 6 and 8), and a pair of holes through which to screw the rods to blocks B. You can get the brass rods and have them drilled, at almost any machine shop. Make sliders E (Figs. 6 and 9) cut of a piece of springy brass. Bend one end into a sleeve to slip over the slider-rod, and round off and bend down the other end to slide over the surface of the wire coil. Scrape away the shellac in their path. Fasten a post to one end block B, and connect an end of the wire coil to it.

The fixed condenser (Fig. 10) is made of alternate layers of tin-foil and writing-paper.

Cut two pieces of cardboard of the size of A (Fig. 12), for the top and bottom (Fig. 11), then 21 pieces of writing-paper of the same size, for layers B, and 20 pieces of tin-foil of the size and shape of C (Fig. 13). Build up the condenser as shown in Fig. 11, with the tabs of the tin-foil layers projecting over the ends, and with alternate layers reversed. When the top cardboard has been put in place, take two pieces of insulated wire, scrape bare a length of six inches of each, and run these bared ends through the top cardboard and wrap around the tin-foil ends (Figs. 10 and 11). Then wrap the condenser from end to end with bicycle tape.

In the next article you will learn how to connect up the instruments, and how to make the aerial.

Born of the deep, daily need of a nation, I am the voice of now, the incarnate spirit of the times, monarch of things that are. My "cold type" burns with the fire blood of human action. I drink from the cup of every living joy, and sorrow.

I am Majestic in my strength, sublime in my power, terrible in my potentialities, yet as democrat as the ragged boy who sells me for a penny. Ancestors

If you could see your ancestors
All standing in a row,
Would you be proud of them or not?
Or don't you really know?
Some strange discoveries are made
In climbing family trees,
And some of them, you know, do not Particularly please.

If you could see your ancestors
All standing in a row,
There might be some of them, perhaps,
You wouldn't care to know.
But here's another question, which Requires a different view—
If you could meet your ancestors,
Would they be proud of you?

ELBERT HUBBARD ON LAW AND LAWYERS

This country is suffering from an overproduction of laws. A lawyer by training and by instinct is not economist. Seven out of ten of the men elected to congress are lawyers. The function of government is to make it easy for all men to do right.

Goodness cannot be legislated into mankind. Morality must spring from the heart to be of avail.

The lawyer is wedded to precedent and in spite of his boasted respect for law he is an expert in the evasion of law.

Pernicious activity and meddling interference by lawyers with the natural flow and trend of trade is paid for by the people at a terrific cost.

For the lawyers, whose work is to protect commerce and see that trade moves along safe and legal lines, no word of criticism can be raised.—Elbert Hubbard.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building- tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

METHOD FOR DOCKING LAMBS

Operation Should Be Performed When Youngsters Are About Ten Days Old—Short Tail Desired.

Docking should be done when the lambs are about ten days old. The easiest method is to place the lamb between the operator's legs, its rear end in front of him. The operator lifts the tail and with a heavy knife pushes the skin half way on the underside of the third vertebra back to its juncture with the second. Then with a sharp cut he severs the tail at this point. Many shepherds leave the tail one vertebra longer, but a short tail is greatly to be desired since it cannot collect so much manure.

Very seldom, if the lamb is docked early, will there be sufficient bleeding to cause any material harm. If profuse bleeding does occur, a cord should be tied very tightly around the stump of the tail. Pincers heated to a high temperature, may also be used for this purpose, and by many are preferred. The tail is severed by closing them upon it. The stump is seared or burned, which completely prevents bleeding. However, a burn will not heal so quickly as a clean cut, and in the former condition suppuration or the formation of pus underneath the scab may occur.

Of course, there is a greater liability of dangerous infection where the knife, without cauterization, is used, since the seared surface tends to prevent the entrance of bacteria. Infection, however, can be avoided by the maintenance of cleanly and sanitary surroundings. The pincers can satisfactorily be adopted for docking lambs several weeks old, when the contingency of bleeding is more likely.

MAKE PROFITS WITH STEERS

Animals Must Have Good Beef Characteristics, a Wide, Strong Back and a Large Heart Girth.

How to select steers that will make good gains and return substantial profits should be well known by the man who plans to market his crops as feed this fall or winter.

John L. Torney of the University of Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station, is urging cattle feeders to look for the following characteristics in animals which they intend to finish for the market:

"Steers, if they are to make profitable gains in the feed lot, must have beef characteristics, a wide, strong back and a large heart girth.

"They must have a strong frame and plenty of room for the vital organs, for an animal with a weak constitution can not hold up through the feeding season.

"A wide head and muzzle, which usually indicate good feeding qualities.

"Short legs, heavy hindquarters, and arched ribs are essential in the feeding animal.

"The skin should be reasonably thick, soft, and covered by a heavy coat of hair.

"The animal should have a straight back and low set appearance, due to the depth of body and short legs."

CONVENIENT TO SLOP SWINE

Handy Device Attached to Any Ordinary Trough Prevents Hogs From Interfering With Pouring.

Here is a handy device for feeding hogs. To any ordinary trough attach an upright box 2 1/2 feet long and 8 by 4 inches in diameter, flaring at the top, writes Joseph Volden of Westby,

Good Way to Slop Hogs.

Wis., in Missouri Valley Farmer. The pigs can never interfere with the pouring of slop into the trough, and they will soon learn to wait for their drink at the bottom of the spout.

Selection of Breeding Sows.

Select the breeding sows from early spring litters when they are six months old. One can form an opinion which ones are most likely to prove long-bodied, good-formed, of quiet disposition, good feeders and with a tendency to grow frame and size rather than put on an excess of fat. Breed the gilt when about ten months old, and if she proves herself a good breeder, raising uniform litters of strong, healthy pigs, keep her for several years, or as long as she is profitable.

No Place for Mist.

Breeding of horses must be done intelligently, because there is no place in the market for a mist.

The Sitting-Down Man.

There is a man in our town,
Who is sitting down all day;
Comes down town quite early,
An' just hangs 'round all day.

The sitting-down man has no store,
His talent doesn't run that way;
Besides, he doesn't like our town,
Says business here won't pay.

Nothing just suits the sitting-down man,
Says he sure the thing won't go;
That he knows a place, 'way off somewhere,
Where the town went broke just so.

Says that he always favors improvements;
But that he just wants to say,
That he certainly is agin' the thing,
"Ef the're a-goin' to do it THAT way."

The sitting-down man's influence,
In our town has great sway—
When he's opposed to a certain thing,
That thing just comes to stay.

SLATON, STUART & MILLER

There is a spirit of honesty and courage in the speech of Governor Ferguson at Waco which ought to extort an acknowledgment even from his political adversaries. It will refresh any mind to contemplate what would be the state of our politics if all politicians could be brought to discuss public matters in the same frank, unafraid manner that Governor Ferguson did at Waco. Particularly effective was his defense against the charge of extravagance. To what extent large appropriations made during his first term are the consequence of spurious economy on the part of his predecessors, we do not pretend to know; but that a very considerable part of the appropriations made by the last Legislature were rendered necessary by the recreances of preceding administrations is rather a notorious fact. However, Governor Ferguson did not rest the case here, content as he might have been to do so. He called on those who have charged him with wasting public funds to put their fingers on those items in the appropriation bill that they think ought not to be there. Here is what, in the vernacular, might be called a demand "to put up or shut up;" but it is not highly probable that either will be done.—Dallas News.

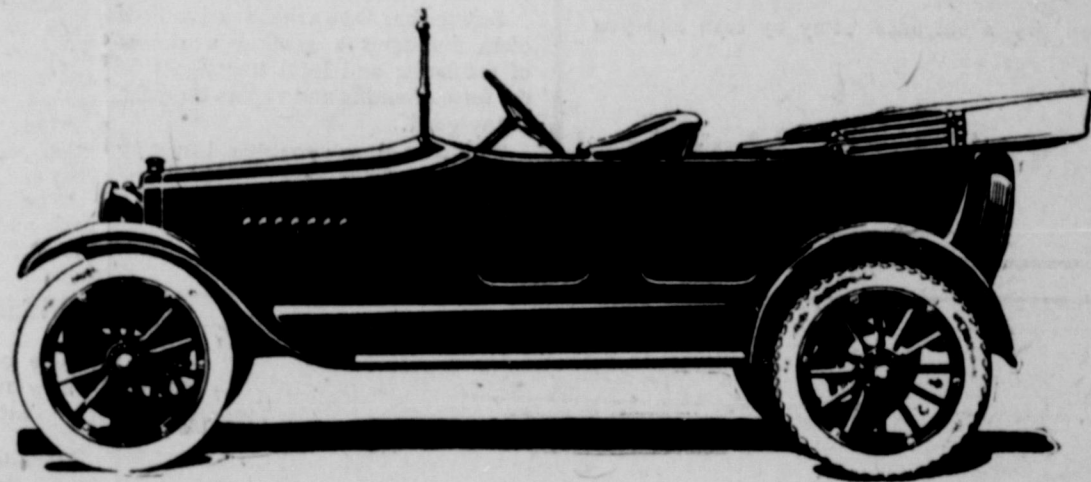

German Navy Strong

Rear Admiral Peary is quoted by the Literary Digest as saying that when England adopted the policy of many recognized that a new era in shipbuilding had arrived and that she had an opportunity to start even with England in constructing the type of war that was sure to lead all others and render previously built war vessel more or less obsolete. Germany now has nine of such ships in commission while England has ten. They are every swift, those of Germany being a shade faster than those of England, ranging from 28 to 29 knots per hour. The Moltke and the Seydlitz are the fastest in the German navy and are 29-knot ships. The Moltke has 52,000 horsepower engines and the Seydlitz has 63,000 horsepower. The Tiger is the most powerful fighting machine in the British navy and her speed is 28 knots and her horsepower 87,000. In addition, Germany has 26 dreadnaughts carrying a total of 262 big guns and 20 predreadnaughts carrying 80 guns. These facts are interesting just since the German navy has come into such prominence recently through its accomplishments in the North Sea. It may also be of interest to learn that the recently adopted plans for our new navy provide for the construction of the largest most powerful and fastest vessels afloat. The speed of our new vessels will be from five to six knots faster than any other warships afloat, and they will be driven by engines having 180,000 horsepower. When our navy is completed it will be the strongest and most efficient navy in the world.

BANKERS AND PIG CLUBS

North Carolina has Organization Similar to Boys' and Girls' Clubs in Hall County.

Twenty North Carolina banking institutions have agreed to finance loans for the purchase of 424 pure bred pigs as entries in the state pig club contest of 1916. The aggregate investment will represent $4,490, and 300 boys will be the beneficiaries of the fund. The idea originated with Geo. A. Holderness, a banker-farmer of Edgecomb county. To stimulate activity in pig club work and place a premium on pork production are the ends to be achieved.

These stipulations regarding the pig clubs vary slightly in different counties, but the fundamentals laid down by Mr. Holderness are adhered to in the main. The gilt is selected by the county agent or state pig club agent. The applicant for the pig must produce evidence of having grazing crops and a succession of crops must be agreed upon. The pigs are to be serum treated as an immunization against cholera. The pigs must be exhibited at the county fair.

Eight banks are governed by the endless-chain contracts; that is, they supply applicants with a gilt on the condition that he recompenses the banks with two choice pigs, these to be delivered to two more club members on same terms. B. F. Folk, in charge of North Carolina pig clubs, correctly appraises the value of this banker-farmer movement as an introduction of pedigreed hogs into the state. The immediate benefit of spending nearly $4,500 in pig club work is a mere trifle, when community breeding, stimulation of pork production, and an effective campaign to put to rest the razorback, are given proportionate consideration. The boy and girls enrolled in the pig club work in North Carolina number 1,225. The tremendous stimulus given by the banks will enlist recruits.—Swineherd.

Hall county has a membership of 312 in the pig club work and 230 in the agricultural club, making a total club membership of 542, against an enrollment of 1,225 for the whole state of North Carolina. Hall county also has a club known as the Hall County Poland-China Pig Club, starting this year with a membership of 30 boys and girls. The terms upon which these pigs are to be raised are very similar to those of the North Carolina clubs, with the exception that applicants here stood a competitive examination in hog judging, thus insuring that the membership of this club is composed of boys and girls who are judges of a hog and its requirements.

Lawyer's Relation to Community

Few people stop to appreciate the real relation of the lawyer to a well ordered community; he is the man above all others officially licensed to advise respecting all personal and property rights embodied in the phrase life, liberty and property; he is counselor in respect to legal rights and duties, and advocate for their enforcement or defense; he occupies a position in the community of great opportunity for righteousness or abuse he is the licensed and ordained minister of justice, as the clergyman is the minister of religion and the physician the minister of health. When he abuses the confidence which is placed in him he well deserves execration; when he uses his privileges to prey he is a real menace to the community. It is, therefore, to the great and substantial interest of the whole community that these privileges should be committed only to men of integrity and worthy of confidence, men of honorable purpose and high moral and professional ideas.—Charles A. REFORMING THE JUDICIARY

ARANSAS PASS, Texas.—J. E. Freer, city attorney of this place, has advanced the proposition of a Board of Legal Construction to interpret the laws before being placed upon the statute books as the first step in reforming court procedure. His communication to the Texas Economic League on the subject says: "I heartily agree with Mr. Cullinan and members of the Bar that our court procedure and judicial system a throttling progress, liberty and justice. It is barbaric in effect. "If I had the job of reforming our judiciary and court procedure the first thing I would do would be to change the law, and the Constitution if necessary, so as to admit of, and would establish, a Board of Legal Construction composed of three men, each to be elected for a period of eight years, subject to recall, whose duty should be to interpret each law and pass upon its constitutionality before any such law should be placed upon the statutes, or in the code or have any force. By this means I would save millions of dollars to litigants trying to find out what the law means, and whether or not the courts would declare same constitutional. By this means I could so simplify the law that every person would know what he was about when he filed a suit. By doing this we could abolish all the branches of the court of Civil Appeals except two, and possibly one, for the appellate court would only have to see that the trial court gave a proper trial according to the law as interpreted by the Board of Legal Construction. The Supreme Court could have keep up with their business, and go fishing half the time." 44

HANDY GATE FOR A PASTURE

Board Arranged Between Two Stout Posts Will Keep Hogs In and Let Other Stock Out.

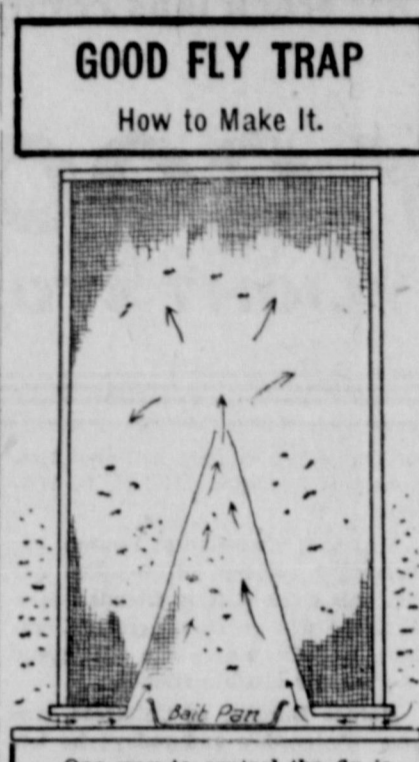

A response to a query for a plan for a gate to keep hogs in a pasture and permit other stock out is given by C. F. Hewitt of Louisa county, Iowa, in Wallace's Farmer, as follows: Have two stout posts in the fence row six or eight feet apart. Board up about sixteen inches high; then put a stout piece (a round pole is preferable) on top. Now set two short posts about eighteen inches from the fence on the side where the hogs are to be kept. These posts should be about sixteen inches high, and they also should have a pole on top, making it the same height as the first, or about twenty-one or twenty-two inches high. If the cattle are large, this might be made two feet high. The pole that is fastened to the fence posts should be on the side next to the short fence so when the hogs go in between they cannot jump over the fence.

GOOD FLY TRAP
 How to Make It.

One way to control the fly is to catch it in such a trap as is shown above. The trap may be placed near the garbage can, or any other place that the flies are sure to come. A simple and effective trap may be made from a grocery box by substituting wire netting for the top and two sides, cutting a round hole in the bottom and inserting in it a wire netting cone with an eighth-inch opening at the bottom and a half-inch opening at the top. Some article of food, preferably a fish head, should be placed inside for bait. The trap must be elevated several inches above the ground, so as to give the flies a chance to enter. When the trap is full, it may be emptied by shaking its contents through a small opening, ordinarily closed by a sliding door. The trap described and shown in the illustration is a particularly effective one, as it was planned with a view to the fly's habits. The odor of food leads the fly to enter the trap at the bottom. Once inside it is attracted to the top by the light. When it gets out of the wire cone it cannot escape. The trap has the additional virtue of being inexpensive. It may be made at a cost of about twenty cents and about a half hour's time.

Cover Manure Box and Garbage Can

A proper system of manure disposal is more important than all other measures combined as a method of controlling the fly nuisance. A proper method of garbage collection and disposal is next in importance. The garbage should be drained, wrapped in paper and collected in a fly-proof metal bucket. The bucket should be washed at intervals with lye soap and water and then sponged with kerosene in water.

The foregoing advice is from the famous sanitary authority, Dr. W. A. Evans of Chicago. In our local campaign we should utilize this information to the utmost. It has long been recognized that swatting the fly would never rid the community of his whole tribe forever more. We have learned that we must make war on him early in the season by getting rid of his breeding places and his natural sources of food supply—filth.

Some of us are inclined to grumble that campaigning against flies is mighty troublesome. Well, the grumblers will find it less troublesome to campaign effectually against flies than to nurse a member of the family through a spell of typhoid fever—and much less expensive.

Optimistic Thought.
 Feelings come and go like light troops following the victory of the present, but principles, like troops of the line, are undisturbed and stand fast.

"Sun Follower."
 The old name of the sunflower was coelestis, the sun follower. The ancient sunflower or sun follower, was the maritoid; the tall plants of the present day are of American origin.

WILLIAM F. M'COMBS

William F. McCombs is chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Fly Talk Is Dirty

When people discuss the fly evil frankly and seriously they use dirty talk necessarily. It is a nasty subject, but we are bound to consider it for our own protection, and to take steps to abate the evil.

How does typhoid fever spread? Generally it is communicated when the solid and liquid food to be eaten by healthy persons is contaminated in some manner with human excrement from someone who has the disease.

This is where the house fly gets in its filthy work. Suppose your next-door neighbor has typhoid fever. The waste matter cast from his intestinal tract is emptied into the outside toilet on his premises. Flies swarm about the toilet vault until dinner time at your house. Then some of them attend your meal. They alight on the food and poison it with germs—either from their hairy feet or by depositing a speck which also contains germs.

Do not pooh-poo this statement. Ask your doctor if it is not the gospel truth. Then get busy and help kill the flies. Thus you may keep death out of your own home.

RIGHT PRECAUTIONS TO USE

In Case of Outbreak of Hog Cholera Everything Should Be Done to Prevent Spread of Disease.

When cholera breaks out on the farm, the dogs should be tied up—the live stock should be shut out of the hog pen, and the wagon wheels should be disinfected so as not to carry the disease from this farm to the neighbors, or even to scatter the germs along the road. The farmer should not leave the infected pig pen without a thorough dipping of his shoes, rubbers or rubber boots in a solution of water and creolin. Lime should be scattered in the buildings which are occupied by the sick pigs.

Every pig or hog that dies should be buried at least four feet deep in the ground or should be burned. A small trench open at both ends and covered with pieces of iron or with a piece of hog fence will make a good oven on which to burn all hogs that die of cholera.

The hog wallow should be eliminated and a hog bath tub made to take its place. Fill it with clean water and put in a small amount of coal tar dip. The pigs can be fed wood or coal ashes with a little sulphur scattered over them.

Her Afternoon Naps.
 Not knowing that my little niece had been showing recently a disposition to disregard her afternoon naps, I asked her, "Elizabeth, do you take a nice nap every afternoon?" A faraway look came into her eyes and her tiny chin set as she answered slowly, "Ye-es, I usually do; my mawver has trouble wif me, though."—Exchange.

When It Would Count.
 "Of course, I shrieked when I thought there was a burglar in the house," said young Mrs. Turkins. "What did your husband do?" "Charley looked at me with deep reproach and asked why I couldn't holler that way once in a while when the home team needed a boost."—Washington Star.

New Indian Animal Stories

How the Water Spider Brought the Fire

By JOHN M. OSKISON

Color the Animal to Suit Yourself.

(Copyright, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Long time ago, after the earth was made and hung up from the four corners of the sky to dry, the animals came down from the place above the great arch and set the sun seven hand breadths above to give them light. But they found that the world was cold, and they needed fire.

Up above, the Thunders listened to the talk of the animals, and sent their lightning down to put fire into the bottom of a hollow tree which was growing on the earth. The tree was on a small island, and when the animals saw smoke coming out of it, they knew that fire was there.

"How are we to get the fire?" they asked each other, and they called a council to decide.

Every animal that could swim said, "I will go and get the fire." Every bird that could fly said, "I will go." The first they sent was the raven, because he was large and strong.

High and far across the water flew the raven, and came to rest on the top of the burning tree. "Now what must I do next?" the raven asked himself, and while he sat there wondering, the heat came up and scorched him.

So, frightened, he flew back without the fire, and ever since his feathers have been black.

Next, the little screech owl said, "You will see that I can bring the fire." He got to the tree safely, but while he was looking down in a hollow of the tree, a hot blast came up and almost burned out his eyes. He did manage to fly home, but it was a long time before he could see well, and his eyes are red to this day.

After the screech owl went the horned owl and the hoot owl, but

PICTURE BOOK QUITE NOVEL

There is almost no limit to the fantastic variations provided by a picture book designed by an Indiana man. On the inside of the book cover is a figure of a man or woman, as the case may be. All the pages have openings cut at the point where they cover the head of the figure, and below these openings there are all sorts of different forms or clothing or pictures. A man's head, for instance, may surmount all sorts of clothing, either man's or woman's clothing. Or he can be shown cavorting about in weird attitudes, or engaged in odd pursuits. One variation of this scheme would be to use the head of a friend's photograph, and show him to himself in clothes and attitudes that will astonish him, taking care, of course, not to give offense.

Needn't Be Afraid.

It used to be stated in the school books that the condor of the Andes was strong enough to pick up a good sized man and fly away with him, and that a boy twelve years old would be only a feather in his grasp. According to the latest reports no condor can lift into the air a weight exceeding 20 pounds, and the boys who have stood in awe of him can now heave a sigh of relief.

when they got to the tree the fire was burning so fiercely that the smoke nearly blinded them, and the ashes whirled up and made white rings around their eyes. They did not get the fire, but the white rings around their eyes stayed.

No more birds would go for the fire, so the black racer snake said, "Let me try it." He swam to the island, crawled through the grass to the foot of the tree, and went in by a small hole at the bottom. But, inside, it was too hot for him; he twisted and dodged over the hot ashes until he was almost on fire, and then he managed to find the hole again. He has been black ever since, and has kept the trick of dodging, darting and doubling up as if he were in a hot place.

Then the great black snake, "the Climber," went for the fire, but he, too, fell into the blaze when he put his head over the top of the burning tree and was scorched a dull black.

After the animals had held another council, it was found that all were afraid to go—all but the little water spider. She said, "I can either go over the water or under it, and I am sure that I can get the fire."

"But how can you bring it back?" the animals asked.

"I can attend to that," said she. And she spun a thread from her body and wove it into the shape of a tiny bowl. This bowl she fastened on her back, and then crossed over to the island.

She came to the foot of the burning tree, raked out one little coal and put it in the tiny basket on her back. Then she skipped across the water and delivered the fire. It has been burning ever since, and, ever since, the little water spider has kept her bowl on her back.

DOG'S MISTAKE WAS COSTLY

Mistook Basket Running on Wires Overhead for Bird and Gave Chase—Left Ruin Behind.

Nick heard a sudden, snapping clack and then he saw something fly along over his head. Nick is a dog and his business in life is hunting birds with his master. Nick saw the something above his head and quite naturally thought it was a bird. So he set off to catch the bird. He did not stop to remember that he was in a drug store with his master and that a drug store is not a proper place to hunt in. He was thinking only of the bird. Over counters and displays he went, scattering bottles and packages that drug stores usually have set out for people to buy, and he ended the chase at the cashier's desk. There the bird had stopped, and as his master and the store proprietor came running through the ruins Nick had made, Nick understood. It was not a bird, but only a basket that runs on wires from the sales counter to the cashier's desk and back again.

A Dog and a Button.

A boy ten years old, living in a certain eastern town, held a button in his mouth while playing with the cat, and some movement of his sent it into his gullet. He could do nothing to relieve himself and, choking and gasping, he ran along the street to find a doctor. Seeing him running, a dog took after him and bit him in the leg, and the yell the boy gave sent the button flying out of his mouth and ten feet away. It is cheaper to be bitten by a dog than to pay the doctors.

He Didn't Care.

"See how fair and white your sister's complexion is, Robbie," said the mother.
"Well, I suppose my face would be the same way if I kept washing it every day like sister does!" was the youngster's reply.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side. The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

State Treasurer—John W. Baker, Crosbyton; J. M. Edwards, Austin; and W. E. Munn, Boyd.

Attorney General—E. F. Looney, Austin; John W. Woods, Rotan; Chas. T. Rowland, Fort Worth.

The Public Defender

Why should there be a public defender? Because the state, having committed itself to the principle that it should secure to the man accused of a criminal charge the benefit of legal advice, should see the thing through. The present system does not guarantee the accused the benefit of legal service to any adequate degree. The court appoints counsel for an indigent defendant. He may or may not be competent. It is clear enough that the defendant thus equipped is by no means on an equal footing in court, with the salaried prosecutor who has the prestige and purse of the state, behind him. While the public prosecutor, on behalf of the state, protects society, the public defender, on behalf of the state, would protect the individual.

The poor man commands the services of a public officer, single of purpose, sympathetic as a well paid lawyer and disinterested as a Judge Equality before the law sounds well, and we take its existence for granted though when the public prosecutor is matched by the poor man perenced or reluctant attorney more theoretical than real.—Smith.
