West Texas State College and Canyon High School Hosts to FHT Area One

The Future Homemakers of Area I had a meeting at Canyon Saturday. The theme of the program was Personality. After a welcome and response were given, the following talks were made:

The morning session was at the Canyon High school.

The afternoon session was held at the West Texas State College. One of the high points of the afternoon was a talk, "Personality is Your Trade-Mark, How Do You Use It?" by Dr. J. A. Hill, president of WTSC. "Benefits a Future Homemaker Derives from an Area Meeting" was followed by a business session.

A tour of the WTSC campus was made, including the Museum, Home Management Cottage, Buffalo Courts, Cousins Hall, and Randall Hall. At 4 o'clock a tea and social hour was enjoyed at the Home Management Cottage.

JUNIOR HIGH BOYS STAGE BOXING BOUTS
During the noon hour and after school the boys of Junior High stage a well attended show in the form of a three-round pugilistic demonstration between boys of the same weight and ability.

OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON
Forty-five junior and senior boys reported for the first meeting of the year of those interested in basketball. This was the largest number of entries for several years. Ted George and Garner Moore were the only lettermen returning. Practice began Monday, November 21.

An Open Letter To Local Parents

Dear Patrons:
We have launched out in our school program in a great way. I am sure you are all anxious to have your children succeed in school. School work is the most important business of the children in your case. Careful home training, good health, religious instruction, and a thorough education are the best insurance for the future success and happiness of your children. Be sure that they have these at whatever sacrifice necessary. The progress of your children in school will be greatly aided:

1. If you will insist upon punctuality and regularity at school and give no excuses, except for most urgent reasons.
2. If you will insist that the other children, who have assignments of home work, set aside a definite period for study each day.
3. If you will withhold judgment regarding reports of happenings at school until you have heard both sides.
4. If you will arrange regular home duties or "chores" for your children so that they may acquire habits of work, ideals of service for others, and a sense of responsibility.

The progress of civilization depends upon the spiritual, moral, physical, and mental improvement of each generation. It is my earnest hope and belief that your children will contribute toward making the next generation a still better one than the generation of which we are now a part.

—W. C. Davis.

Sixth Grade Group Makes Tour of Texas Panhandle

Many Points of Interest Are Visited by Touring Classes Last Saturday

As a culmination of units on Texas Heroes in social science and Transportation in the language arts classes of the sixth grades a tour was made of the most interesting spots of the Panhandle last Saturday.

Seventy-one pupils visited the old ranch and the grave of Colonel Goodnight at Goodnight. A stop was made at the Amarillo municipal zoo, and an hour was spent in the shopping center of Amarillo where dinner was eaten before the English airport was visited. While there two big passenger planes, a twenty-passenger TWA plane and a Braniff plane landed and took off. The children were allowed to visit the large TWA plane which is a member of the famed Lindbergh Line.

The next stop was at the campus of West Texas State College. Here they visited the large museum of Texas history and presented to the museum a likeness of Colonel Goodnight that was made in the art classes of our schools. From here they had the pleasure to see the Grand Canyon of Texas, Palo Duro State Park. The pupils were accompanied on the tour by seven of the Junior High teachers.

SIXTH GRADE ORGANIZES AND ELECTS OFFICERS

The sixth grade organized on Nov. 14 and chose the following officers: Don Stevens, president; Horace Erwin, vice president; and Sue Lynn Guthrie, secretary and reporter.

Row monitors are as follows: Helen Patrick, Billy Wells, Bill Reynolds. The following pupils make up the room council: Don Stevens, Horace Erwin, Sue Lynn Guthrie, Jack Hightower, Mary Jean Sanders, and Holmes Posey. Each week pupils will be selected by the room council. At the end of each month a pupil will be selected.

Pupils of this week are: Betty Jo Randolph, Jerry Dalton, and Billy Jean Beckham. These pupils were selected because of their highly commendable citizenship.

BAND ACCEPTS DONATIONS

The band and director, Mr. Johnson, express appreciation to the Mystic Weaver Club and the American Legion Auxiliary for the generous donation to be used by the band students. Several other clubs have made donations helping to make possible the purchase of several instruments.

Junior High Forms Harmonica Club

A harmonica club has been organized at Junior High school with a membership of about fifty. If such enthusiasm continues a personal appearance will be possible in the near future. The elements of rhythm and tone quality are to be stressed, this will enable the boys and girls to better appreciate music.

There will be no charges of any kind for the membership in the club. All that is required is the ownership of a harmonica suitable for group playing. Out of this club will be taken the best players who will form the band for the Junior High.

FTA PROGRAM SCHEDULED

GOOD FOR WHAT AILS

Slow Starting Engines!

Here's a prescription that works!
... proved by millions of motorists
... in every kind of weather from 50 above to way below zero.

H: High Test PHILLIPS 66 POLY GAS, at no higher price!

No other gasoline will so consistently give you split-second starting, because no other gasoline so consistently leads the high-test parade. Yet you pay not a penny extra, since Phillips is the WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCER of natural high test gasoline.

Try a tankful. You get extra high test... plus extra energy units supplied by the scientific POLYMERIZATION process... plus protection against changes in performance caused by changes in climate. And it all adds up to just about the fastest cold-weather starting you have ever enjoyed.

Warm-up is rapid. Acceleration is snappier. And you save so much of the fuel usually wasted by excessive choking with ordinary low-test gasolines, that you can confidently expect more mileage from every gallon.

If you want "just what the doctor ordered" for faster starting in freezing weather, stop at the Orange and Black 66 Shield. That's where high test Phillips 66 Poly Gas costs nothing extra.

Let Us Be Thankful for the Privilege of Living Electrically

Thanksgiving

1620 They cooked a turkey before a blazing hearth fire.

1938 We depend on an automatic electric range to cook the turkey.

- They baked in a dutch oven.
- They dipped candles, had flickering light.
- They spun, wove and sewed cloth by hand.
- They spent weary hours cleaning house.
- They chopped ice in rivers and lakes.
- They didn't have it so easy.
- They would have been thankful for all the electric servants we now have.
- We use controlled electric heat.
- We flip a switch, get a flood of good light.
- We use electric looms, electric sewing machines.
- We use electric vacuum cleaners, save time.
- We have electric refrigeration.
- We have it a thousand times easier.
- We are thankful to live in an age when Electric Service is plentiful—and costs so little.

We shall be expecting you at the mid-week services too. There is always something interesting on Wednesday evening in the Sunday school workers' meeting and in the prayer service.

Paragraphs Culled from The Democrat's Exchanges

"You will know a dictator by the scapegoat he chooses. Whether they be the Bolsheviks, the alleged prosecutors of the Sudeten Germans, or members of the Jewish race, a dictator needs them to have someone to blame when his schemes go awry," comments the Childress County News, adding that "German Jews may well call the latest game with Hitler 'Exchange Us for Living!'" and distributed them as souvenirs of the fun. More than a thousand merchants had their stores looted, windows smashed and stocks burned while the rabble tore, spoiled and stole to their hearts content.

Floyd Springer To Join Sales Force

Floyd Springer, who for the past six years has served as Hall County clerk, has been employed on the sales force of the Potts Chevrolet Company here. Tomie Potts, manager of the company, announced this week.

The members of the churches had their homes invaded and what happened to the women and children there we draw the veil across.

In this city were thousands of police who stood idly by while the mob had its way. The mob was stopped only after the government of the nation had promised to legalize the actions of the looters.

Springer will assume part-time duties immediately, and will become a full-time employe on January 1 when his present term of office expires.

Most men call a spade a spade until they happen to let it drop on their toe.—Claude News.

Does the difference in the manner of living here, and there, mean enough to make us pay attention to our duties as citizens? Judging by the size of the vote cast in the recent general election, the answer is NO!—The Moore County News.

Springer has been a resident of Hall County for the past thirty one years, living in both Lakeview and Memphis. He moved to Memphis in 1925, and was at that time the wholesale distributor for Magnolia Petroleum Company products.

Election comic: Travis county paid four men 30 cents an hour to keep the polls open on Tuesday, November 8. Not a single person voted...not even the four election judges!—The Canyon News.

With the advent of another school year, patrons of White Deer Independent School district will be able to boast one of the finest school plants in the Panhandle. With $40,000 in bonds recently voted, and a government grant of $37,000 the high school building is to be put in tip-top shape and a central heating plant installed in Skellytown school.—White Deer Review.

In 1928 he was employed on the sales force of the D & P Chevrolet Company here, serving in that capacity for four years, and was sales manager for the company at the time of his resignation to take over duties of Hall County clerk.

Last Thursday soldiers herded church members together and forced them at the point of bayonets and with thudding rifle butts to tear down the churches of their faith and destroy them. Other soldiers tore leaves from the Bibles found in the churches

He has served this county as clerk for three elective terms. Mr. Springer was not a candidate for re-election in the primaries this summer.

"Better Living Conditions For Hall County Farmers"

"Efficient Cheap Light and Power For Farmers"

Sign Up Now for Electricity

Since the preliminary survey, maps, etc., for the Rural Electrification Project for Hall County, sponsored by the Hall County Electric Co-operative will go to Washington for approval December 1, it is urgent that all Hall County farmers sign up immediately for this project.

According to the engineers on the job, the communities that have the most subscribers will be the ones through which the electric lines will be routed. If you want electricity in your neighborhood, contact some members of the co-operative's board immediately and sign your application for rural electrification.

The cost of becoming a member of the co-operative is only $5. In the event that the project is not culminated, your pro-rate share of this initial membership fee, after small administrative costs have been deducted, will be returned to you. If the project is approved and the lines are built, no other costs will be assessed with the exception of paying for the electricity in the regular manner.

Resulting from rural electrification in Hall County will be better living conditions for farmers, good light for reading and for studying, a wider scope of recreational, educational and social activities, cheap and efficient power for operating farm machinery and household appliances, lighter work on farm homes, city conveniences at a cost less than as kerosene and gasoline methods practiced.

Sign up today. It's to your advantage!

er eight years as president of the conference, was presented Friday morning and received a standing ovation from the entire assemblage. Bishop Bonz presented the cause of the Golden Cross and urged support of the Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth.

Friday afternoon, children from the Methodist orphanage at Waco presented the program and Rev. L. H. Jones of Lefors preached, and Dr. Schofield conducted another forum on "the urge to evangelize." A tea for the ladies of the conference was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. S. Greene. Dr. Schofield delivered the sermon Friday night on "The Gospel."

Sam Braswell, Clarendon, Ray Nichols, Vernon, and Tom Ellzey of Amarillo, prominent conference lay leaders, addressed the assembly Saturday morning. Hubert Johnson, manager of the Methodist Home, and Mrs. Morris Randall, president of conference Missionary societies were also heard.

Rev. R. N. Huckabee, pastor at Haskell, delivered the sermon Saturday afternoon.

Alsie H. Carleton, C. A. Hoi-comb Jr. and Carroll Marks Moon, deacons, and Hubert Bratcher, Marion H. Brook, Donley E. Culbertson, and Newton S. Daniel, elders, were ordained at special services conducted by Bishop Holt Saturday evening.

Bishop Holt delivered the sermon at the First Methodist Church Sunday morning. Rev. C. R. Hooten of Plainview was guest speaker at the First Baptist; Rev. T. W. Brabham, retiring president of McMurry College, was heard at the Presbyterian Church, Dr. Finis Crutchfield spoke at the First Christian Church, and Rev. W. E. Patterson, Lubbock pastor, delivered the morning sermon at the Nazarene Church.

Behind the Scenes-

Rev. Caradine Hooten of Plainview and Rev. J. Wm. Mason, local Baptist pastor, were snapped shortly before entering the First Baptist Church where Rev. Hooten delivered the morning sermon before a capacity crowd. Rev. Hooten was made presiding elder of the Sweetwater district Sunday afternoon.

Part of the overflow crowd which failed to get inside the First Methodist Church Sunday morning when Bishop Ivan Lee Holt delivered the morning sermon is pictured in the bottom center snapshot. Only a part of the crowd was caught by the camera while visiting pastors at other churches in the city also preached before packed houses.

Rev. Finis Crutchfield, Methodist pastor at Vernon, and Joe Findley, local First Christian pastor, were caught by the camera as they "declared an armistice" shortly before entering the First Christian Church where Rev. Crutchfield delivered the Sunday morning sermon.

The Democrat's photographer set some sort of a record Sunday morning when he attended four church services, and attempted a fifth, in the space of one hour.

Carter, and the presiding elder of the Clarendon District, Dr. T. S. Barcus, for their painstaking and tireless efforts and planning over a period of months; the local church and nearby churches of the district; of Mayor Claude Wells and the citizenship of Memphis for their many courtesies and most commendable hospitality; of The Memphis Democrat and daily press for their splendid publicity; of the hotels and people of the Memphis business district for their friendly and thoughtful treatment. We thank these and all others who have made our stay in this progressive little city so comfortable and profitable.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to Bishop and Mrs. Holt for their congenial nature and greetings and to Bishop Holt for his emphasis on good worship and for the impressive and deeply spiritual worship services he has held during the conference.

May our dear Father bless and reward abundantly those who have given the cup of water in the name of a disciple, those who have prayed, planned or worked for the success of this eventful session of our annual conference.

Respectfully submitted,

C. C. Grimes,

profit from the project, above cost of maintenance, will be used to retire the indebtedness, and when all costs have been paid off, will be rebated to subscribers, probably in lowered rates.

It was pointed out that the Rural Electrification Project is a co-operative plan, and farmers who want the advantages which it offers can help by signing up immediately. The lines cannot be built without the required number of subscribers.

The county board of directors, under leadership of Doyle Hall, president, of Plaska, has been making steady progress since preliminary contracts were let early last month. Jake Lamb, vice president, and T. E. Lenoir, secretary, are other officers of the organization. The board of directors includes Mrs. C. A. Williams, Mrs. N. A. Hightower, Edgar Foster, H. A. Hodges, H. C. Fowler, H. D. Tyler, C. M. Hawkins, Ben Gresham, and W. H. Youngblood.

Local Farmer-

It is the plan of farmers in this county to take steps to procure a permanent market for dairy products and build a fine dairy industry through the importation of registered cattle.

Sloan's purchase of the registered herd from the Sellers farms last week is a move toward making the Hall County area dairy conscious. It is believed that this area is a potential dairying center. The Democrat was informed.

Memphis Asked to Dress for Visitors

A letter was received this week from G. A. Bracher, division highway engineer, in which attention has been called to a meeting in Dallas of the American Association of State Highway Officials December 5. At this meeting will be delegates of the most eminent highway officials from every state in the Union.

According to Bracher, most of the officials will motor into Dallas, and many of them are expected to travel US Highway No. 370 through Memphis, and every effort is being made to see that the highways are put in top maintenance condition before Dec. 5. Memphis is requested by Mr. Bracher to see that streets are swept, gutters cleaned, and weeds on parkways between curbs and sidewalks and on vacant lots should be cut and burned. Many private signs are badly in need of repainting, junk yards are unsightly but can be improved, and other things may be done to give Memphis a good appearance when the visitors pass through, he stated.

AN AMERICAN THANKSGIVING

Americans today have much to be thankful for. While the other great nations of the world are gripped in fear of war, or engaged in actual combat, America stands alone with no threat of destruction from hostile powers.

While the people of other nations of the world live in fear of their lives, in fear of the dictatorial forces which rule them, Americans today are still free from the yoke of tyranny from which they fought to be free more than a century and a half ago.

No armed soldiers patrol our streets. No dictator tightens the reins of power over our press, or seeks to limit the American right of freedom of speech and thought.

The American citizen is still an American citizen. He may be a Democrat, a Republican, or an Independent, and no one disputes his right to freedom of choice.

He may turn his radio dial to whatever station he chooses, select whatever program he chooses, attend motion pictures which are produced for his entertainment, or go to the church of his choice without fear of persecution.

If he is a patriotic citizen, he will rise when the national anthem is played, but no one forces him to do so. If he does not approve of the policies of the government, he may criticize them today without fear of facing a firing squad tomorrow; and when he goes to the polls to register his approval or disapproval of that government, he is under no compulsion but that of his own conscience.

He may grow excited over an imaginary invasion from Mars, but, if he is an average American, he feels little excitement or fear over the possibility of invasion from any worldly power, because he has developed an implicit faith in the power of his government to protect him. He is proud of his national army, but he is under no compulsion to leave his business to serve in it. He feels pride at the sight of soldiers marching under the Stars and Stripes without any underlying fear that in the next hour they may march into his home or place of business to destroy him.

Americans can give thanks on this day set aside by proclamation of the President as Thanksgiving Day, not because they must but because they are genuinely fortunate to be Americans.

MEMPHIS EARNS ITS NAME

MEMPHIS HAS once more earned the right to its proudest title, 'The Friendliest City in West Texas.'

Delegates who attended the annual Northwest Texas Methodist Conference here last week were loud in their praise of the hospitality and friendliness the people of Memphis. Local citizens opened their homes and devoted their time to help the local church provide for the comfort of a large number of visitors. A task which was of gigantic proportions for a town for task which was of gigantic proportions for a town of this size was carried out quietly and efficiently.

It was a distinct honor to Memphis that an assembly of the magnitude of the Northwest Texas Conference should choose this city for its convention site.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

Hedley Farmer Is Carrying Out Erosion Program

J. H. Alexander Discovers Strip-Cropping Pays on His Donley County Farm

"I would not be without the strips of erosion-resisting crops in my field, even for the price of the land they occupy," declares J. H. Alexander, who owns a 257-acre farm four miles south of Hedley in Donley County. Mr. Alexander, recognized as one of the best farmers in this section of the Texas Panhandle, not only is carrying out an erosion control program on his farm but also is using a strip-feeding plan to market his forage crops at a better profit.

When Mr. Alexander became the owner of this farm in 1926, the 100 acres which had been put into cultivation in 1920 and 1921 were being damaged by both wind and water erosion. Recognizing the need for conserving his soil, he constructed graded terraces in 1928.

When the Soil Conservation Service CCC camp was established in this area in 1935, and started demonstrating wide-based, level terraces, Mr. Alexander became one of the first cooperators and decided to redesign his terrace system. Level structures were constructed during the winter of 1936 with teams and fresnos.

A strip-cropping system with erosion-resisting grain sorghums being alternated with strips of cotton, which do not resist erosion, was adopted. All stalks are left on the field and no grazing is permitted in order that the crop residues may afford protection from blowing during the period of high winds.

After excessive spring rains in 1938, there was practically no rainfall in this area from June to October. However, the moisture stored in the soil as a result of being held on the land by the terraces has resulted in the crop yields being almost double those of nearby farms on which soil and water conservation practices are not being followed, Mr. Alexander says.

With cotton as his cash crop, Mr. Alexander figures that he could derive more profit from his grain by marketing through livestock. He purchased 75 head of mutton-type sheep last year and has raised 64 lambs this year.

During the summer and fall, the sheep were grazed on 155 acres of range land which is too rough and broken for contour furrowing. Although the pasture is enclosed only by an ordinary barbed-wire fence, the sheep are kept within the enclosure through use of an electric charger on the bottom wire.

Early in November, the sheep were taken off the pasture to protect the grass from overgrazing, and now are on full feed consisting of cottonseed meal and ground maize heads with bundle sorghums for roughage. Mr. Alexander says his strips of sorghums have produced sufficient feed for his sheep until there is sufficient grass for grazing in the pasture next spring.

By marketing his grain through sheep, Mr. Alexander expects to increase his profits materially and plans to continue this plan of operation.

"Terraces and strip cropping not only have checked erosion on my farm, but also give me assurance of producing crops in dry years," Mr. Alexander declares.

Weatherboarding Against

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary
 Breeder-Feeder Association

Weatherboarding Against Winter Cold weather calls for heavier feeding to generate body heat in all kinds of livestock. Feed alone of course will not offset the effects of cold, and shelter is essential at some times every winter, even in the milder parts of the Southwest. On the other hand, shelter alone is not enough, especially with milk cows, laying hens, and animals in the fattening pen. There must be extra feed to burn in the body or else fat already acquired will be burned in keeping the body temperature normal.

The sudden changes of weather to which the Southwest is subject makes it hard to avoid some shrinkage, even with good shelter and additional feed, but every pound of avoidable shrinkage costs more to regain than to hold. It is poor economy to permit animals to burn up fat already accumulated and which must be restored before additional gains are made.

Range cattle or sheep permitted to struggle thru without sufficient feed to hold the weight with which they entered the winter lose several weeks in spring and summer getting back the weight lost. They will be that much behind in getting into marketable condition next summer or fall, and will weigh just that much less when they go to market. It is therefore important that they also have extra feed in cold weather, to offset as much of the winter shrink as possible.

Everyone knows how slowly cows regain their normal milk flow after a cold snap, and if it is late in the lactation period they often never come back to full normal production. The same thing holds true of laying hens, though they respond more quickly to favorable conditions and the loss is less from the reduced production. This is a case of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and extra feed which helps prevent these losses is about the most valuable feed in the barnyard.

It often happens that stock get "all the feed they will eat" and eat little or no more in cold than in warm weather, falling off accordingly. If the water is icy cold they will drink as freely as they should, and if they don't drink freely they will neither eat as freely nor digest as well as they should. The same thing happens when their quarters are so cold they stand huddled up for warmth, so the effort to induce them to take the extra feed necessary in cold weather is lack of feed, but fort. Water in right sort play both in getting into the animal facts of the feed.

"Contented is an advertisement only when contented do cows best. Erosion Damage Checked and Crop Yields Are Increased by Terraces

Farmers of the Texas Panhandle are finding that terraces are a good investment. Not only do these broad-based, level structures aid in checking erosion, but they also tend to increase crop yields. Many farmers cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service demonstration areas report that terraces have more than paid for themselves during the first year by increasing crop yields.

Terraces already have been constructed on more than 160,000 acres in the Soil Conservation Service demonstration areas in the Texas Panhandle, and several thousand additional acres will be terraced during the winter, the farmers report. Thousands of more acres have been terraced in the nine Wind Erosion Conservation Districts in the Panhandle, and hundreds of farmers are building such structures in other parts of the state not included in these areas, it is reported.

Properly constructed level terraces will hold practically all the rain water on the ground where it falls, thereby allowing the moisture to soak into the soil where it is available for crop use instead of flowing down the slopes to cause gully and sheet erosion. Water backed up behind the terraces results in an even distribution of moisture over the field and a more uniform crop stand. During heavy rains this fall, tests revealed that moisture had penetrated the soil of terraced fields to depths from two to three times as great as an untreated land. This has resulted, Soil Conservation Service technicians point out, in sufficient moisture being stored to insure good crops next year as a general rule.

Most farmers report that they find the cultivation and harvesting of terraced fields no more difficult than straight-row tilled fields, and that in the case of steep slopes, the fuel operating cost of machinery is reduced.

Besides increasing yields, terraces tend to increase the possibility of growing a good crop which will provide stubble and residue as protection against soil blowing during the period of high winds, it is pointed out.

Water Gardens Now For Spring Drought Warns Supervisor

Don't Wait Until Plants Start Growing to Water Land, Miss Waggoner Says

November is the month to offset next spring's possible drought in the farm garden, warns Miss Lois Waggoner, Hall County home supervisor for the Farm Security Administration.

"Don't wait until plants start growing to water from the well into the garden and thoroughly water the land." This procedure has a twofold purpose, Miss Waggoner says. First it will store underground water for the coming year; secondly it will assist in killing insects when it freezes and expands the soil. It will also help with the rotting of the vegetation in the soil.

Before breaking garden land make a heavy application of well-rotted barn manure at the rate of five tons for one-fourth acre, Miss Waggoner advises. Fresh manure may be used but should be applied in the fall or winter and turned under to decompose.

Here are some garden rules she sets: Locate the plot near the house so the housewife need not walk a mile for an onion.

Have a windbreak if possible. Plant two rows of trees on the windward side not closer than 75 to 100 feet, eight feet apart in the row, allowing ten feet between rows. Low growing, bushy trees may be planted on the windward side with taller, faster growing trees on the inside rows. Locate the garden near the windmill to utilize the surplus water from the tank.

Select mellow sandy soil or garden loam soil.

Start plants in cold frame for early gardens. A. W. Guill, who is attending school at Texas A. and M. College, is spending the Thanksgiving holidays here with his mother.

Freight Rates Too High Says WTCC

A cotton shipper in Memphis pays 61 cents per hundred in freight charges to have his cotton hauled to Houston, a distance of 511 miles. If the same shipper had the same cotton in Malvern, Mo., he could ship it to New Orleans, a distance of 515 miles, for 36 cents per hundred. This represents a difference of 25 cents per hundred in favor of the Missouri shipper.

This is one sample of freight rate discriminations against West Texas quoted in an analysis of the rate question recently issued in pamphlet form by the traffic boards of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The report points out other discriminations just as glaring, WTCC officials state. In fact, the discrimination, they declare, are costing West Texas $100,000,000 annually.

While rail carriers contend that freight rates for the country as a whole have decreased during the last two decades, figures in the WTCC report claim class and commodity rates in West Texas have increased an average of 109 per cent since 1914.

This increase has been made during a period when production of commodities was increasing in many instances more than 1,000 per cent and when Memphis and other West Texas cities were growing rapidly in population.

The freight rate penalty is, of course, against the consumer as well as the producer, for the consumer must pay discriminatory rates on everything that is shipped to him, the report points out.

West Texas development is being stymied by the present condition the WTCC charges. Contending that the present freight rate zones and structure, like Topsy "just grew" over a period of many years and are now antiquated, the WTCC traffic boards recommend complete overhauling of freight rate zones and policies. The boards also recommend that the Interstate Commerce Commission Act be amended to require equality in rates as between zones.

Hundreds of requests for the freight rate pamphlet have been received by the WTCC from all over Texas and from other states. Newspapers in every part of the state have given emphatic editorial approval to the recommendations of the traffic boards, WTCC officials state.

Turkey America Will Eat Not What It Used to Be

Young America clamors for the wishbone after the turkey has served his prime purpose—providing the Thanksgiving feast. There are no records to indicate the reliability of the wishbone as a talisman of good luck.

The gobbling of millions of turkeys will be stilled in the next few months.

The turkeys will die because the American palate has been conditioned to turkey as the favorite holiday dish ever since a Pilgrim shot a wild turkey back in 1621 for the first Thanksgiving. In the 317 intervening years raising turkeys has grown to a full-fledged industry, bringing farmers upwards of $50,000,000 yearly.

There is little to connect the modern turkey with his predecessor of pioneer days. That original fowl was wild, scrawny and probably tough. The breeder's magic has refined the modern turkey to a plump, succulent bird, shorter-legged and fuller-bodied.

The refinement came as the taste for turkeys spread. Today about one-tenth of the nation's 6,812,350 farms produce turkeys for the market. And for many farmers, they are the only source of cash winter income.

This latter fact, alone, has made the turkey of vital importance to farmers. So important, in fact, that when 1936 produced an all-time record crop of 20,000,000 turkeys for the market, many growers faced ruin. They were endangered because a turkey surplus is a costly thing. Prices fall and the turkeys depreciate rapidly in value as they grow older. Turkeys are prime when from six to eight months old; younger, they are scrawny; older, they are tough. And the farmers had 30 per cent more than normal on their hands.

An appeal to retailers solved the difficulties. By intensive advertising chain stores increased distribution for the farmers by 46 per cent. Other retail outlets co-operated to help boost national turkey consumption by 26.6 per cent. The crisis passed. The crop was disposed of with fair prices for both the farmer and consumer.

That 1936 surplus was unique. Turkeys, ordinarily subject to an extremely high mortality rate, seemed that year to escape the scourge of disease. Instead of dying, as a large percentage of the 30,000,000 hatched annually do in normal years, the chicks grew stronger in 1936. The chicks' obstinacy in refusing to die prematurely first gave growers a headache, but wound up as a benefit. And farmers now look forward to a permanently increased demand as a result of the surplus drive.

Shelterbelts Are Proving Valuable

The 7,000 mile of new shelterbelts or field windbreaks in the prairie states are demonstrating their value, both in protecting crops and soil from wind damage and in stabilizing crop yields, says a new publication of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

According to the pamphlet, "Trees That Temper the Western Winds," shelterbelts may provide a kind of crop and soil insurance and make it possible to grow crops that would otherwise be hazardous or impossible. The Forest Service says that shelterbelts conserve moisture by retarding hot winds that blow in portions of the central and eastern Great Plains area now devoted to spring and winter wheat, corn, cotton, and other crops. The drying power of a wind increases with its velocity. Many farmers are finding it possible to grow garden truck and fruit trees behind shelter provided by trees, and the shelterbelts will supplement the farm income in the future by providing crops of fence posts, fuel, and other products and providing protection for livestock in winter.

Cottonwoods, in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas that were planted in 1935 are as much as thirty feet high this year, and their effect is already being observed in preventing seed from being blown out of the ground and in sheltering crops from searing hot winds for distances of twenty times the height of the trees. Snow lodges behind shelterbelts in winter, thus helping to conserve moisture.

The Forest Service points out that the first essential in growing trees successfully on the prairie-plains farms is to obtain seedling produced from seed grown in the nearby locality. Trees develop certain characteristics through a number of generations that enable their offspring to survive in a particular environment better than trees brought from another section. Hackberry trees, for example, that grow along the Atlantic coast may look like the hackberries of Nebraska or Kansas but are not as likely to survive under the low-moisture conditions of the plains, the Forest Service reports. Cultivating the trees like corn during the first few years and protecting them from grazing are also essential.

The Forest Service estimates that about eight and a half acres of trees in shelterbelts or field windbreaks will protect the average 160-acre farm. The shelterbelts are planted in strips about 110 feet wide and a half-mile or more long, the taller growing trees and shrubs toward the outside to prevent the wind from blowing through when the trees are full-grown.

Copies of "Trees That Temper the Western Winds" may be obtained free of charge while the supply lasts from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Wellington Man Is Speaker at Rotary

It would be less expensive to the government to prevent crime than to handle criminals, Father Daley of Wellington told Memphis Rotarians at luncheon Tuesday. As guest speaker he told how most of the crimes committed during the past few years have been by youths, and suggested that the proper handling of boys in early life would save the country billions of dollars annually.

Warden Lawes of Sing Sing declares that not one of those in Sing Sing were Boy Scouts or members of any boys' organizations, Daley said in making an appeal for adult leaders to take boys' work in the community.
