FEAR KIDNAPED WOMAN IS PUT TO DEATH

Blood Stains Found
At Old Pier Near
Stoll Estate

(Associated Press)
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 13.—What appeared to be blood stains on a nearby boathouse pier and a mysterious torn telephone book were found late today shortly after Berry V. Stoll had broadcast another frantic plea to his wife's kidnaper.

Spots on the pier were noticed by three youths while police and federal agents searched the woods near the 16-acre Stoll estate.

Fear Is Felt

The search which began this morning was interpreted by at least one police participant as indicating the family feared that Mrs. Stoll met death from the kidnapers. Her husband's latest appeal indicated the same feeling.

Efforts were made by investigators to determine whether the stains on the pier and those found on a blanket inside the broken-open boat house might be blood.

The telephone directory has 65 pages torn out, the last page missing being opposite the one containing the name of the Stoll family.

Childers Released

The Harrods creek section of the book showed a score of names marked by a line drawn across them. Black finger prints were found on the directory.

The boathouse is on the Ohio river a short distance from the Stoll estate.

The youths who found the stain said several times in the last two weeks they saw an old canopied boat at the pier.

At Charleston, W. V., Walter Childers, held for questioning in connection with the case, was released.

William Haywood, department of justice agent, said he was "satisfied Childers knew nothing about the case."

Denny said the lights of another car blinded him and he saw Thomas walking beside the highway too late to swerve his car. Thomas' skull was crushed and his neck broken.

Denny took Thomas to O'Donnell for doctor's aid, but unable to contact a physician there, he returned here to the hospital with Thomas.

The sheriff here sent deputies to the wreck scene and notified the victim's family.

Thomas had been working in the stock pens here. He caught a ride toward home but the person who gave him the lift turned off, leaving Thomas walking along the highway.

Survivors are his widow, Birdie, and six children, besides his father, J. J. Thomas, mother and nine brothers and sisters.

He stated he was called to trial within 20 minutes after he learned the case was on the docket. He refused to take the stand in his own defense, claiming he was not receiving a legal trial, he said yesterday.

Smith was found guilty of assault on U. F. Coker in an affray at Turkey on May 18.

Cyclone Tramples Claude Under 71-0 Avalanche

SCORES ALMOST AT WILL IN WILD ROUT

Mustang Is Knocked Off Feet, Defeated In First Minute

Proving the greatest disappointment Memphis football fans have experienced this year—they wanted and expected a close, hard battle—the Claude Mustangs fell victim of a smooth, clicking Cyclone machine Friday night at Fair Park.

With the men of Chesty Walker tallying almost at will, the invaders were buried under the greatest avalanche of touchdowns the locals have run up this season. The final score was 71 to 0.

Did Not Show Strength

To make matters bad, the Mustangs had been played up as a fairly worthy opponent for the Cyclone. That was the information received from Claude. That team had won three straight games by wide margins, and undoubtedly the fans of the club let their enthusiasm run away with them in their predictions.

At the same time, the writer, who predicted Memphis would win by no more than three touchdowns (he's through with that sort of thing for good) contends that Claude had a much better ball club than the 17 points indicate.

It was the old story of a team being taken by surprise, tossed completely off its feet in the first minute and beaten before it had time to recover.

Opens With Tally

Co-Captain Jack Norman was responsible for that "death blow." On the third play of the game, after Chester Grimes had returned the kickoff 18 yards, Norman broke straight through the left side of the line, circled to the sideline and raced 55 yards to a touchdown. He kicked goal.

Before Claude had time to get its breath, Deason plunged over for another counter, after he and Norman clicked off gain after gain that averaged more than five yards to the try.

And before the quarter ended, Deason did it again, and by that time, Claude was already "licked." Taking time about carrying the ball, Deason, Walker and Norman, aided by a 15 yard pass, Norman to Springer, marched 65 yards to the four-yard line, from which Deason went over.

Halted for First Time

The quarter ended immediately after the kickoff.

At the opening of the second period, Memphis was halted for the first time on her drive, this being done by a 15-yard penalty for a substitute talking before one play had been made. An exchange of punts left the Cyclone on Claude's 31 yard line, however, by virtue of Grimes' 14-yard return of a punt, Deason and Norman picked up 18 yards to the 13. Norman carried to the four, and Deason plunged over.

Just before the half ended, Memphis ran the score to 33 to 0. Claude received the kickoff, was forced to punt, and another drive, featuring long runs made possible by well-nigh perfect blocking and interference running.

Claude Makes Two Firsts

Taking the ball in mid-field, Norman and Deason, on four plays reached the eight-yard line. Norman slashed off right tackle, evaded three tacklers and raced across the goal. He also kicked the extra point.

Opening the third quarter, Claude made two of its three first downs. Turner, fullback, broke through for a 15-yard gain, the longest running gain made by the visitors, and after an exchange of punts, Vineyard and Turner picked up another first, this time reaching Memphis' 35-yard line, the closest they got to pay dirt.

After another exchange of kicks, Co-Captain Champion started the Cyclone on another touchdown drive, recovering Vineyard's fumble in mid-field. Norman passed to Grimes for 22 yards and again for 17. Norman and Deason carried to the five, and Deason plunged over on the second attempt. Norman's pass to Deason for the extra point was long.

Long Pass Scores

Claude took the kickoff, and Turner punted to mid-field as the quarter ended.

Opening the final period, Memphis drew another 15-yard penalty because a substitute talked, but this time it didn't matter. On the first play, Norman passed 15 yards to Grimes, who ran 43 yards to a touchdown. Norman kicked goal.

In a very few minutes, the Cy-

Band and Pep Squad Also Score Victories

Led by Harrold Foxhall, the Memphis Black and Gold band also scored a decisive victory under the floodlights of Fair Park stadium Friday night before the 1,500 fans who witnessed the game.

Between halves of the football battle in which the Cyclone defeated Claude, 71 to 0, the band paraded the length of the field and returned, with Harrold leading the way as drum major. His high-knee step brought cheers as he pranced to the tunes of an infantry march, with his baton keeping time in quick movements up and down.

It was the first time the Black and Gold band had appeared on the field between halves other than just to assist the pep squad in putting on its performance.

Both the band and pep squad scored decisive victories.

PADUCAH, Oct. 13.—Scoring on the final play of the first half, Paducah handed the Estelline Bear Cats a 6 to 0 gridiron defeat here Friday afternoon.

After the two clubs had battled evenly throughout most of the first half, Paducah fought its way deep into Estelline territory as the second quarter drew to a close. Just before the gun called the players to rest, a short toss over the goal line netted the only score of the game. The try for point failed.

During the second half, Estelline out-played its opponents, leading in both first downs and yards gained for the entire contest, but never were the Cats able to cross the goal line to wipe out the margin.

WELLINGTON, Oct. 13.—Thrilling a large crowd of enthusiastic adherents with the most brilliant play displayed this season, the Wellington Skyrockets won their fourth straight victory here Friday night by defeating the Amarillo High school Yannigans, 6 to 0.

The score came late in the third quarter when Glenn, captain and quarterback, intercepted a pass on the Yans' 30 yard line. Potet sliced through the fine on a cutback off left tackle for a 25-yard gain, and a moment later crashed over left tackle for the score. The try for extra point was blocked.

The Yannigans reached Wellington's 20-yard line only once.

BOTH ELEVENS MAKE SCORES ON BREAKS

Lakeview Scores Two In First Period; Hedley in 2nd

LAKEVIEW, Oct. 13.—With both clubs capitalizing on breaks of the game, converting them into touchdowns, the Lakeview Eagles defeated the Hedley Owls here Friday afternoon in the opening game of what is expected to develop into strong rivalry, 13 to 7.

The three tallies came in the first half, with Lakeview scoring twice in the initial quarter after recovering Hedley fumbles, and with the Owls tallying in the second on a "freak" play in which they got possession on Lakeview's one-foot line.

Eagles Score Twice

Lakeview took the opening kickoff, but was forced to punt after making one first down, with Holt kicking to the Hedley 13. On the first play, Richardson fumbled and Moore recovered for Lakeview on the 10. Fuller, fullback and star of the game, scored on three plunges, but he failed to get over for the extra point.

Sweeney of Hedley took a poor kickoff on his 42, but Hunnicker, on an end around fumble and Moore recovered for Lakeview on Hedley's 33. Fuller broke through the line and was away, but he mistook the goal line for the end zone marker and grounded the ball on the one. He plunged over, however, on the third attempt. Holt failed to score the extra point on a line plunge.

Hedley received the kickoff as the quarter ended.

Hedley Scores

Hedley's score came early in the second period. The Owls made their only concentrated drive, carrying the ball 52 yards, mainly on passes from Richardson to Pickett, Bell and Hunnicker, which totaled 25 yards. They lost possession, however, on the nine-yard line.

Here Lakeview drew a five-yard penalty, and Fuller dropped back to punt. He fumbled the ball, picked it up, but without time to kick, and attempted to pass out from behind the goal line. Howard, left tackle, received the toss and was downed just in front of the goal line, where the ball went over because the pass was caught by an illegal receiver.

Pickett scored and also plunged over the extra point.

Eagles In Long Drive

Throughout the third period, neither team was able to gain consistently and the quarter developed into a kicking duel.

Lakeview went into a concentrated drive in the final period, killing Hedley's opportunity to erase the five-point margin held by the Eagles. With every member of the backfield composed of Wiley, Fuller, Stargel and Holt carrying the ball, the Eagles clicked off five first downs, driving from their own 29-yard line to Hedley's seven, where they lost possession of the ball.

When Hedley got possession, only 15 seconds remained to play. Richardson immediately tossed a pass to Armstrong for 20 yards, and time was called. Less than five seconds remained. Another pass, Richardson to Bell, was knocked down as the game ended.

Close, Hard Fight

The battle was close and tough all the way, and without the "breaks" it probably would have ended in a scoreless tie. Lakeview made eight first downs, five of them coming in the last period drive, and Hedley made five, four of which came in the second period and finally resulted in the Owl counter, but only through Fuller's fumble behind the goal line.

The game developed several outstanding players. For Hedley there were Whitfield and Swinney, guards, Simmons, tackle, Bell, end, and Richardson and Noble, halves. Lakeview, led by Fuller, starred Todd, end, Gattis, guard, Moore, end, and Holt and Wiley backs.

Hailed as a brilliant speaker, Dr. Taylor's address promises a treat for local Rotarians who are urged by President Roy Fultz to attend the club luncheon 100 per cent strong.

The public generally is invited to join high school students in hearing Dr. Taylor at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

to information from Donley county, survey work in that county will cost in excess of $300.

According to present plans, the proposed road will extend south out of Clarendon, missing Lakeview in Hall county by 10 or 11 miles on the west, and intersecting the pavement on the Mulberry bridge road near Brice.

After the survey work is completed, both counties will urge the state highway commission to designate the road as a state highway. Repeated efforts have been made in the past to have the route designated, and according to Judge Vallance, it is believed the survey now being made will help materially in securing approval of the highway commission.

MEMPHIAN SEES RODEO TAMED BY REGATTA

And Football Look Like Mumble-Peg Before Polo

BY J. CLAUDE WELLS (Democrat Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The many readers of The Memphis Democrat have been getting a rest for the past few weeks in that they have not had to read any of my ramblings. Now, that events are beginning to happen often in the "Heart of America," following a dull summer, and since autumn weather is more like Texas weather, one has more pep and can get around to see things and find out what is happening socially and politically, if not financially. All of which gives the writer an opportunity to impose more rambling thoughts and fragmentary sentences upon the readers.

During September, the all-time record was broken in Washington by a rainfall of 17.45 inches. Outside a few flowers, shrubs and lawns, the rain was entirely superfluous and could easily have stayed dry without doing much damage, while in the Panhandle and other parts of the middle west a fourth of that amount would have been welcomed indeed.

Two weeks ago the Potomac Regatta (annual boat racing) was held here and at least 100,000 people witnessed the racing boats in their five-and 10-mile races for the President's cup. Some of the speed boats made nearly 65 miles per hour, and were like leaping lizards, bouncing up and down as they hit the waves, occasionally turning over as they made the quick turns at the end of the course, and at times throwing a driver out, then going on a wild and merry jamboree until stopped by the shore or another boat.

During the races the Army Zepelin and many airplanes circled the farm near Lamesa where he was living at the time of the accident, several years ago.

overhead, thousands of cars lined the shores, and hundreds of boats and even large ships lined the course from end to end. Wild broncho and steer riding, automobile racing and such are very tame events in comparison.

The next day Fort Myers army polo players met and defeated the Mexican army players in a hotly contested game in Potomac park. Football is a game of mumble-peg in comparison to this great American test of skill, not only of the players, but the ponies as well. A polo game is one of the most exciting and interesting games here and always draws a big crowd.

One week ago New York and Washington big league teams played here. It was Babe Ruth's last appearance as a professional player with New York. Thousands of fans watched this ball game, more to see Babe knock a home run and to honor him as one of the proponents of fair play in athletics than to see the two teams play ball. Babe didn't disappoint the fans. He certainly is the "King of Swat." Stood with the bat on his shoulder until the ball was right at him, when, like a flash, the bat came down and out, hitting the ball square on the nose, lifting it over the park fence. Babe trotted around the diamond with the cheers of thousands of fans ringing in his ears. In the intervals of rest, Ruth spent the time autographing balls and note books for the boys. They followed him in no swarms, worshiping him as no other baseball player has ever been worshipped.

Saturday the famous Navy football team of Annapolis (30 miles from Washington) met the Virginia university team in this city, and defeated the Virginians, 21 to 7. The Navy team was accompanied by some 2,000 students who were dressed in blue uniforms, and put on their famous football parade before the game started.

Sunday, we heard Dr. Joseph Richard Sizoo, D. D., Litt. D., preach one of his great sermons at the New York avenue Presbyterian church. Dr. Sizoo draws $12,000 annually as minister of this church, as well as filling the church to standing room only at each service. The church is one of the oldest in Washington, and its membership comprises some of the wealthiest people in Washington. It was the church President Abe Lincoln attended regularly, and each President since Lincoln has attended services there at some time during his tenure of office. No visit to Washington is complete until one attends this church and hears Dr. Sizoo.

The Washington Herald publisher, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, gave a party Monday afternoon to the women of Washington in order that they might meet the women writers of the Herald. It was a swell affair from all accounts, and headliner of stage and music appeared on the program, making it a notable event in the lives of all who attended. Mrs. Wells says the party alone was worth coming all the way from Memphis to Washington to attend.

Monday evening, in the auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce building, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt officially opened the Federal Housing Administration drive in Washington. Hon. James A. Moffett, housing administrator, appeared on the program. Several other Washington notables (in tuxedos) also made eloquent speeches. All the speeches were broadcast over NBC, and if Memphis people were listening they heard the same that we heard. One would know Mrs. Roosevelt anywhere after seeing her pictures in the papers of the nation. She is not pretty, though she is a very charming person and has a well-modulated speaking voice.

GIANT EXHIBITION SHIP VISITS CITY TODAY

Yes Sir, a 100 foot replica of an ocean going steamer is now at anchor on the corner of 8th & Main Sts. and inside the ship are over 1,000 rare deep sea monsters, some of which are said to have never before been seen by human eyes. The largest specimen a Giant Mola Mola weighs 2,300 pounds and is so rare, that only five of them have been captured since the year 1886. By a secret chemical process claimed to be known only to Captain Griffin the fish have been preserved in their natural state, with all the shape and colorations intact. There are no stuffed or artificial specimens to be seen. Many specimens of eels, sharks, and porpoise are to be seen and a sea turtle weighing 1,625 pounds creates an unusual amount of interest. A 12 foot octopus is also on display, and the diving suit in which one of the divers was strangled to death by the eight legged monster. General admission is 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. Exhibition is open day and night with a competent crew of lecturers on hand at all times to acquaint the visitor with the strange specimens.

Here Is One Business That is Booming

At least one business in Memphis is booming. Camp Alhambra, super tourist camp on North 10th street, is enjoying the best business in its history. "We have enjoyed good business throughout the depression," declared C. C. Hodges, proprietor, "but this year is by far our best." Camp Alhambra was built and opened in 1930 at a cost of $20,000. Beauty, utility and convenience combine to make it one of the most substantial tourist camps in its entire section. For great distances in each direction from Memphis, it is considered one of the finest, most complete and attractive tourist camps between Fort Worth and Denver. Massive posts composed of brick and petrified wood, on top of which are large electric lights, mark the entrance to the grounds. Twelve cottages, that form the large rectangle enclosure, are unlike the better hotel rooms and are built of stucco of modern pleasing design. The cottages are fitted with private baths, hot and cold water, lights and gas and are the ultimate in point of comfort for transients. A flower garden inside a brick enclosure lends charm to the grounds. Hardy cedars afford a shade of greenery throughout the park, and some 20 graceful elms provide shade. The flag stones about the walks are imported rock, lava and petrified wood, coming from diverse parts of the state and from New Mexico. Camp Alhambra has its own power plant. It also operates a dining station and grocery for the convenience of its patrons and the public. It caters to both commercial and tourist travel. It has grown to be an institution, unusual of its kind, and one that reflects credit on Memphis.

COUNTY GIVEN ORDER FOR 500 COWS

Purchases Are To Be Made Before Saturday

An additional 500 head of drouth stricken cattle are to be purchased in Hall county on the government's emergency drouth relief plan, according to a message received Saturday by County Agent James A. Jackson. Purchases on the latest appropriation are to be completed by next Saturday, the telegram stated. Cattle have been bought in Hall county on the government's relief plan, according to G. A. Sager, who has charge of this phase of Mr. Jackson's work. Purchases to be made this week is the third quota of 500 head each given this county since blanket purchases by the AAA over the nation was halted more than a month ago. The last quota is part of an appropriation of 125,000 head authorized to be bought in the state immediately. More than 3,000 head remain listed with Mr. Sager as "distressed stock" in this county. Purchases on the last appropriation will be made from those already listed, he stated. Buying is scheduled to begin just as soon as W. F. Hackney, veterinarian for the county, arrives here from Armstrong county where he has been buying cattle this week. J. E. Land is local appraiser for the government buying plan here.

ANAGRAM WINNERS

Believe it or not, the anagram "rako" is not "Karo." It's "okra." And thereby hangs a tale—a tale of how a majority of anagram contestants "went astray" on Number 1. Quite a few, however, knew their okra; and here are the winners: Mrs. H. B. Estes was awarded the basket of groceries, which she requested from City Grocery. Two tickets to the Ritz Theatre to see "Down to Their Last Yacht" will be awarded to Mrs. C. M. Harshaw. The following are entitled to one ticket each to the Ritz, good Sunday or Monday to see "Down to Their Last Yacht": Mrs. George R. Dickson, Mildred Tucker, Mrs. Lynn B. Jones, Mrs. Glen Carlos, Mrs. T. B. Rogers, Mrs. J. A. Sparks, Mrs. Joe B. Helms and Mrs. Pearl Brown. The anagrams, in the order of their appearance in The Democrat were: okra, grapefruit, radishes, avocados, noodles, Wheaties, hominy, sauerkraut, ginger and prunes.

JOAN BRYAN HONORED BEFORE DEPARTURE FOR SAN ANTONIO

Little Theatre Members Working On Three Plays

Members of the cast for the plays, "All for Glory," "My Lady Dreams" and "Cul-de-Sac," which are to be produced by Little Theatre members, have been rehearsing faithfully for the past few weeks, and have their parts up in fine shape. The three one-act plays will be presented Thursday evening, Oct. 25, in the High school auditorium.

"All for Glory," a comedy of mountaineer life, written and directed by Mrs. R. S. Greene, is a pleasant diversion. It is cleverly written and has neat lines and speeches and will prove entertaining in production. The cast for "My Lady Dreams," by Eugene Pillot, under the capable direction of Mrs. T. M. Harrison, is an exceptionally strong one. Shirley Greene as "The Lady," gives to her part the charm and grace her character suggests. Mrs. Carl Harrison, as Marie, her maid, cleverly portrays her character with understanding and feeling. One of the dream characters, "The Little Old Woman," is enacted by Mrs. Frosty Rymer, and seldom have the members been so delighted with a character interpretation as that Mrs. Rymer gives to the part. Mrs. Ben Wilkinson has the part of another dream character, "The Other Woman." She represents the other woman in every man's life. Mrs. Wilkinson will be remembered for her talent. The dream children, the "Adorable Adorables" have large parts and are exceptionally well played by two adorable children, Winifred Jane and Don Q. Tarver. Their parts add something new in Little Theatre productions. The set is an elaborate and colorful bohoir, and adds much to enhance the charm of this fantasy. The costuming of this play also deserves mention. The costumes have been tastefully chosen and are brilliant and beautiful, making this play an artistic production in every sense of the word and one that will appeal to every member of the audience.

"Cul-de-Sac" by Essex Dane, and under the direction of Mrs. Pete Clower, is a tragedy, but contains that human pathos that causes it to reach all who see it. In the larger Little Theatres over the country, an evening of three one-act plays has met with much enthusiasm. The play reading committee has selected three plays of separate and distinct types and feel confident that the public will like them.

the chapter, after which Mrs. Wheat gave the "Biography of Lady Astor." Mrs. G. M. Springer gave the history of "Maryland, My Maryland." A piano solo, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," as selected music, was played by Mrs. G. C. Baskerville. The program was closed by the entire chapter singing, "Maryland, My Maryland."

The Clew or the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRICK

Crime sifted into police headquarters and then seeped down into the press room in the basement with the unfailing regularity of dirty water draining through the water pipe of a bathtub.

Charles Morden sat at his battered desk and held in his hand a telephone which was directly connected with The Blade.

"I've got another purse snatching for you," he droned. "Elizabeth Givens, 42-3612 Reeder street—alighted from Thirty-second avenue car line at Waters street. Half a block from the car line two men who had been walking behind her rushed past and snatched her purse. The purse contained $7.42 in cash, some letters, a key ring with keys to her house, and a compact.

"Here's a funny one: A man who gives his name as John Smith, 48-732 Maple avenue, driving a Chrysler roadster, license number 6b9813, arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. There was a chicken with him. She gives the name of Mary Riggs, her age as 22, and says she has no residence. She claims she was a hitch-hiker at Smith picked up in the automobile a few minutes before his arrest. He had a minor traffic accident with a car driven by George Moffitt, 32 619 Melrose street. The accident took place at the intersection of Webster and Broadway. Traffic Officer Carl Wheaton was on duty at the time. He smelled liquor on Smith's breath, started questioning him. Smith seemed anxious to get away. He had a wallet well filled with money and tried to bribe the officer. Wheaton got suspicious. There was a report of a couple service station stick-ups—one I sent you about two weeks ago—where a man and woman drove up to the service station and the woman was stuck-up. The pair had been driving a Chrysler roadster. Wheaton made an inquisition.

An officer appeared in the way and beckoned to Morden. Morden nodded his head, into the transmitter, "Just do something's up."

When hung up the telephone Morden pounded into the corridor, the officer passed a written note.

When glanced through the door and gave a low whistle. He read one or two questions, down notes, then rushed to the telephone and picked up the receiver.

There was an interval of silence when Morden's eyes gleamed with enthusiasm. He slid an arm along the edge of his desk, making that the waves were into place. His voice had a tone of bantering in it.

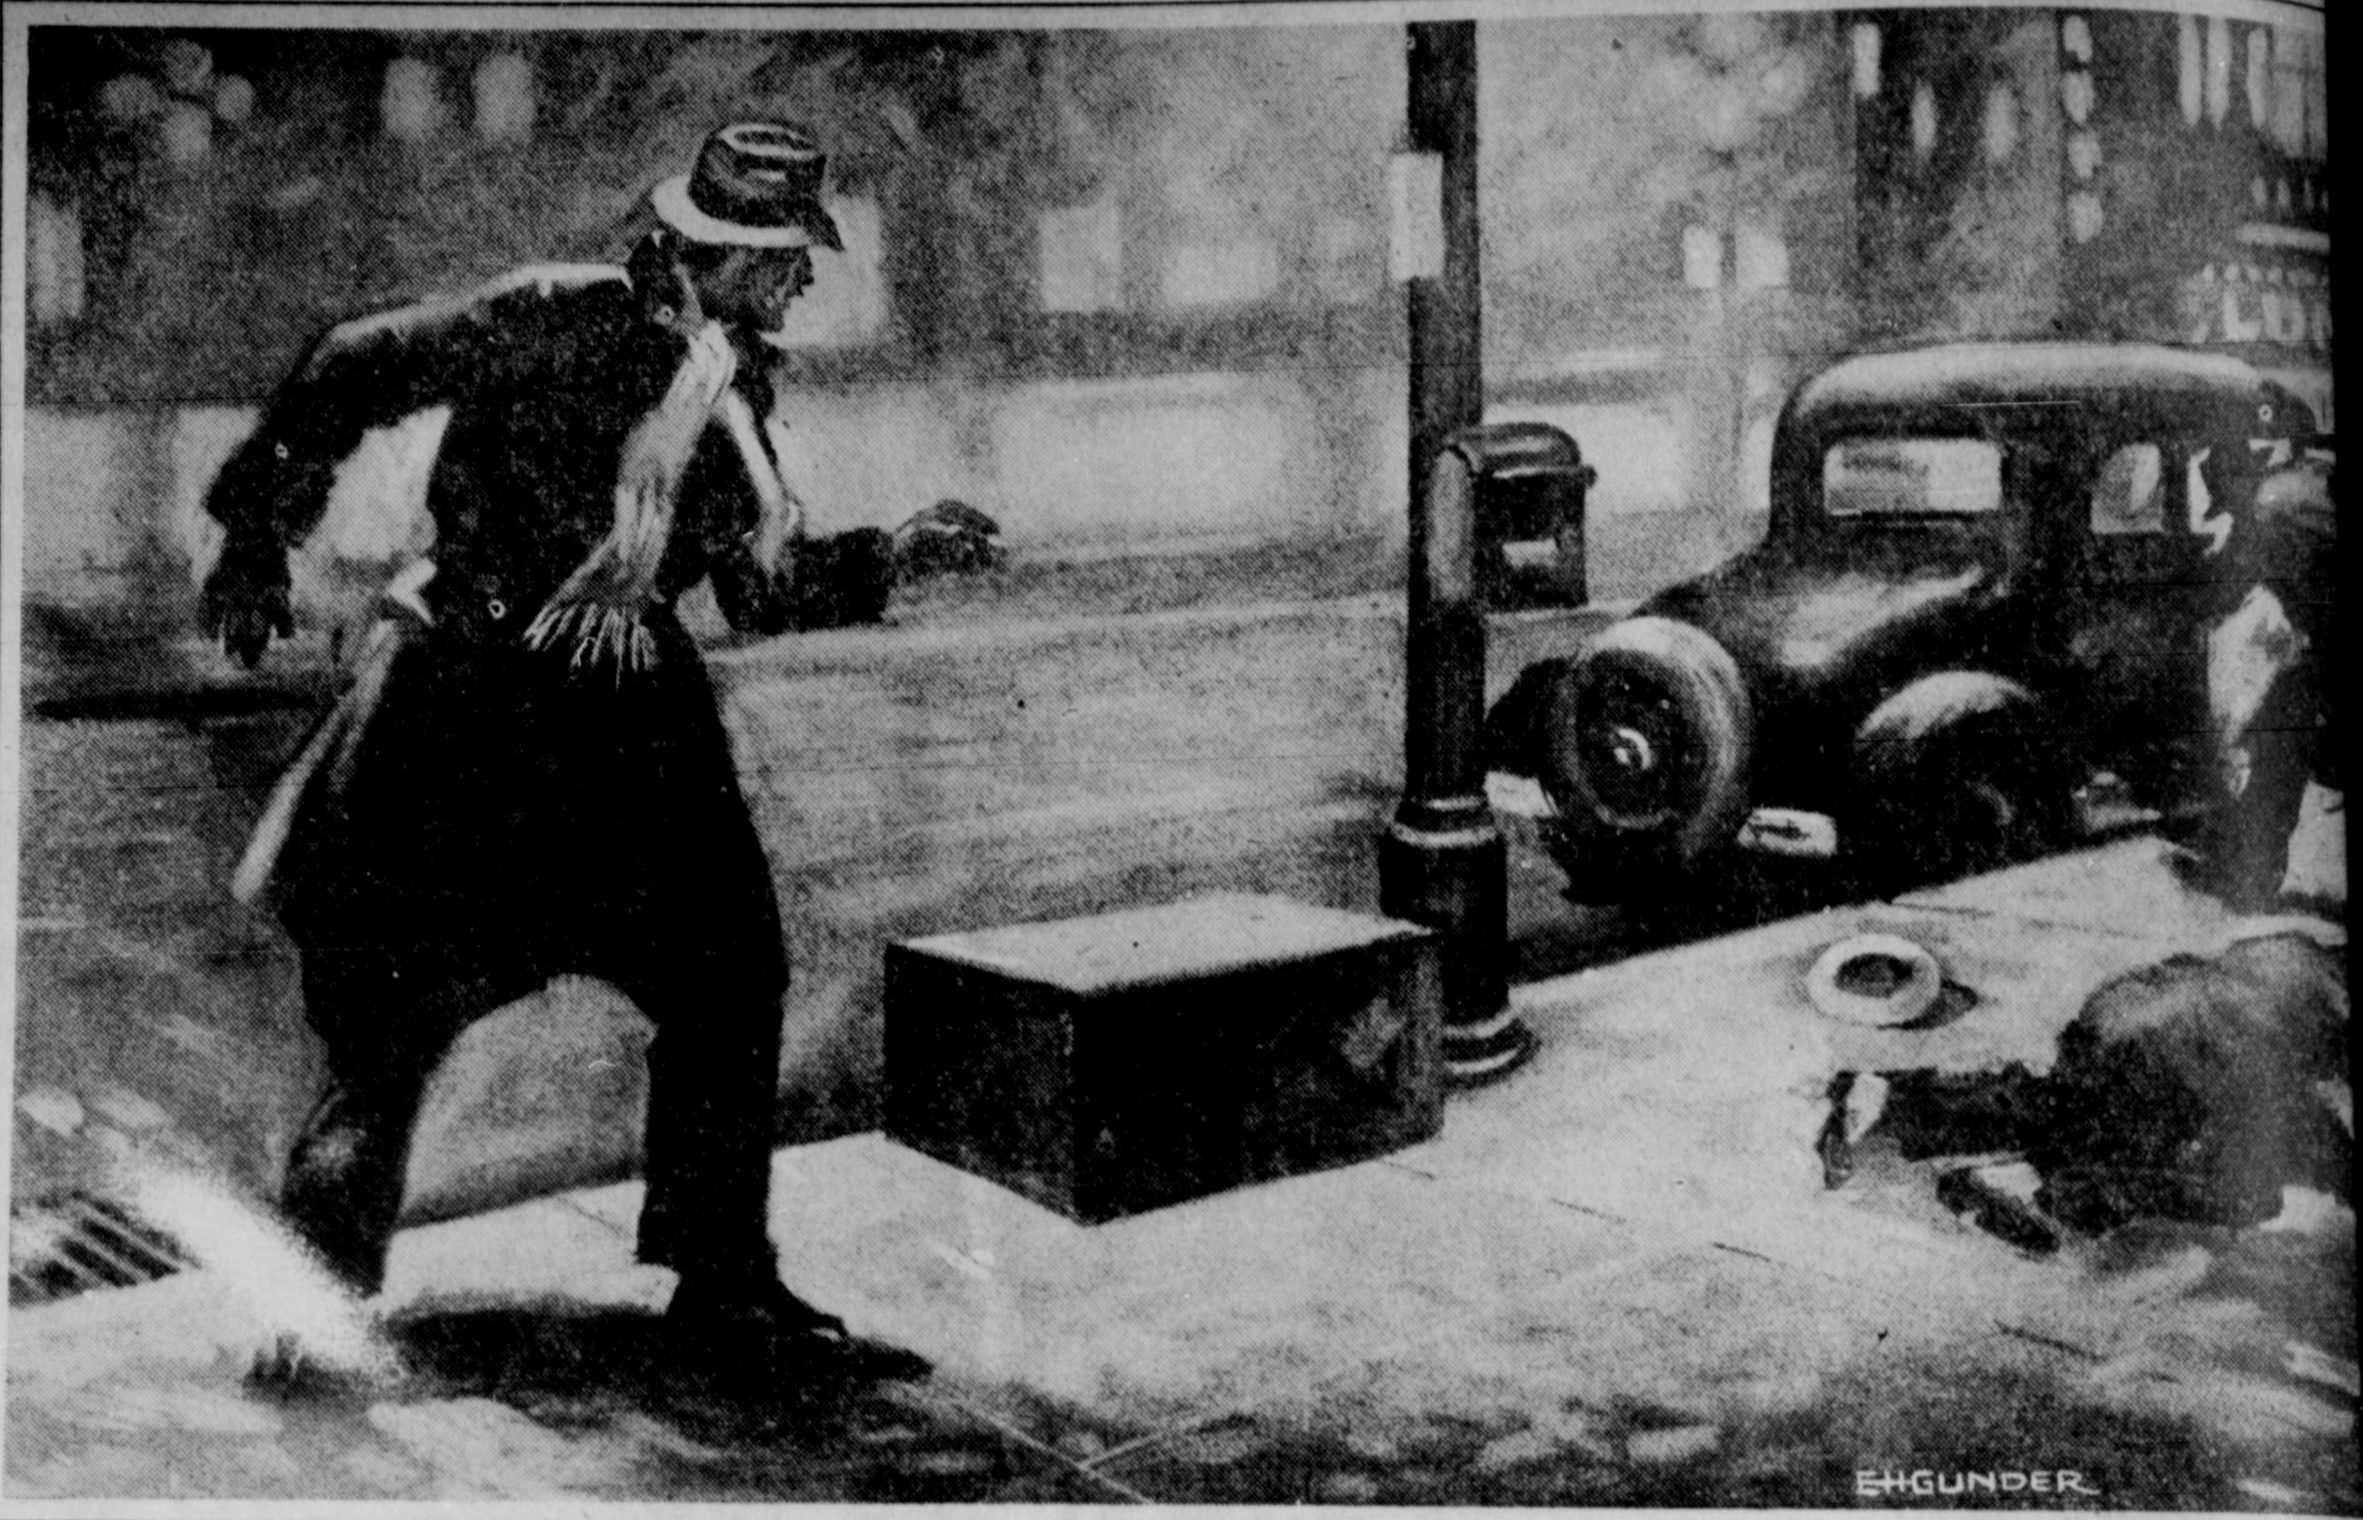

"Sure," Morden said, "I can get a good story out of that John Smith case and make a human interest yarn out of the hitch-hiker who was picked up for a ride and found herself under arrest. She isn't hard on the eyes. She'd make a good picture and is the type that would sit on the edge of a desk and show plenty of leg. Too bad we haven't got time to make the first edition. But we might shoot her for a good follow-up yarn. . . . Sure, John Smith is a phoney, but the officers are going to find out who he is before they turn him loose. Okay, I'll call you back in seven minutes—10 at the latest."

Tom Carsons, of the detective bureau, was killing time until the men from the service station would arrive to make the identification. He looked up as Morden entered and nodded. Then he turned back to the tall, somewhat paunchy individual who sat on a wooden bench, his shoulders slightly stooped, his eyes nervously flickering about the room. On a chair nearby sat a girl with eyes that were dark, wary and watchful.

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye, waited until her glance rested upon his face, and smiled. After a moment she returned the smile. Tom Carsons looked over at the man and said in a weary voice, "You're talking just the way all of them talk. If I had a nickel for every guy who claimed he was going to break me for holding him, I wouldn't have to work. You say your address is 732 Maple avenue. Then, when we prove you don't live there, you say you're John Smith of River-view, and that you gave us a fake name and address because you didn't want to be involved in a lot of scandal. The girl claims she's a hitch-hiker and hasn't any home; that you picked her up, and . . ."

"That's right," said the man. "Shut up," Carsons said. "I'll ask you questions when I want you to talk."

The man wet his lips nervously with the tip of his tongue and shifted his eyes to the girl. The girl fidgeted in her chair, suddenly looked over to Carsons and correctly interpreted the cool humor of his gaze.

The man from the car fired four shots at close range, turned, jumped into his car and swung around the corner. Decker . . . was the first to reach the body.

out to shadow Lampson. He thought Lampson might grab him and frisk him, so he had his secretary type out this statement. The secretary says the object of the statement was to keep Lampson from bumping Shillingby off. "That sounds sort of fishy. Shillingby probably had some thing up his sleeve. He may have intended to talk with Lampson and flash the statement on Lampson. Now here's another funny angle on the case: Decker is in a panic. He made his statement to the police, gave his name and address, promised that he'd be available as a witness. He skipped out. Just a few minutes ago police received a telephone communication from Sidney Griff, the criminologist, stating that Decker had consulted him. He said Decker was afraid Lampson's gang would kill him to keep him from testifying. Griff says that he'll produce Decker any time it's necessary to have him as a witness, that in the meantime Decker is going to be very much under cover."

The receiver made squawking noises. "Sure," Morden said, "I can get a good story out of that John Smith case and make a human interest yarn out of the hitch-hiker who was picked up for a ride and found herself under arrest. She isn't hard on the eyes. She'd make a good picture and is the type that would sit on the edge of a desk and show plenty of leg. Too bad we haven't got time to make the first edition. Then he turned back to the tall, somewhat paunchy individual who sat on a wooden bench, his shoulders slightly stooped, his eyes nervously flickering about the room. On a chair nearby sat a girl with eyes that were dark, wary and watchful.

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye, waited until her glance rested upon his face, and smiled. After a moment she returned the smile. Tom Carsons looked over at the man and said in a weary voice, "You're talking just the way all of them talk. If I had a nickel for every guy who claimed he was going to break me for holding him, I wouldn't have to work. You say your address is 732 Maple avenue. Then, when we prove you don't live there, you say you're John Smith of River-view, and that you gave us a fake name and address because you didn't want to be involved in a lot of scandal. The girl claims she's a hitch-hiker and hasn't any home; that you picked her up, and . . ."

"That's right," said the man. "Shut up," Carsons said. "I'll ask you questions when I want you to talk."

The man wet his lips nervously with the tip of his tongue and shifted his eyes to the girl. The girl fidgeted in her chair, suddenly looked over to Carsons and correctly interpreted the cool humor of his gaze.

as though concentrating in swift thought. "You got that name from the place where I rented the car, didn't you?" he said. "Carsons' manner was the manner of a cat torturing a mouse. "Why?" he asked with smirking innocence. "Was that the name you gave when you rented the car?"

The telephone rang. Carsons held the receiver to his ear, nodded his head and then looked across at the man on the bench. "Now," he said, "we're getting somewhere."

He spoke into the transmitter, "That's all the dope you've got?" He nodded, slipped the receiver back in place, wrote rapidly on a sheet of paper, then looked up at the man. "All right, Mr. Frank B. Cathay, suppose you tell us the truth?" The man on the bench did not wince. His eyes slitted slightly,

Whipple jerked open and ran down the corridor press room. He picked up the phone and shouted "Hold everything! Morden Blade has picked up a hot. I don't know what let me find out."

Morden, standing in the press room, lit a cigarette and grinned mockingly. "You're a suspicious man," said "My city editor says for that."

"For what?" asked Whipple. "Holding up the paper, bum steer," Morden said. "I'm not so certain of one," Whipple told him. "The desk sergeant, called die broadcaster, even various precinct houses, learning anything."

Morden, afraid to let room, dropped into his chair, his feet up on the battered and smoked placidly.

here he can work if he wants to. Cathay is going to pay about a hundred bucks to get cased out the back door and have the whole thing dropped. Carsons can do it because no charge was made. The guy was just picked up on suspicion of being mixed up in the service station stick-ups. . . . sure, I'm certain of my facts. I heard him when he kicked through and came clean. He's got his card case with him, his membership cards, his driving license and all of that stuff, and Carsons will have him verify the signature that's on his lodge cards and operator's license, just in order to make certain he's got the right man. . . . you can put in a call for Mrs. Cathay at Riverview and get a statement out of her. . . . How do I know he's going to buy his way out? Hell! How do I know this call is costing me a nickel? If you want him held long enough to get a photograph over here you've got to bring some pressure to bear on Carsons and do it right now."

Morden slipped the receiver back in place, left the telephone booth and started down the corridor toward the room where Carsons was holding Frank B. Cathay. He had taken less than half a dozen steps from the telephone when Whipple of The Planet emerged.

"Where you been, guy?" he asked. "Just fooling around, stretching my legs," Morden told him. Whipple's gaze became more suspicious. He walked past Morden directly to the booth and jerked the switch. The switch clicked, but did not come on. Morden glected to screw the globe into position. Whipple up, twisted the globe, light came on.

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye and after a moment she returned the smile.

He hung up the telephone and looked at the man on the bench with a new-found respect. "Why the hell didn't you come clean in the first place?" he asked. "I couldn't afford to. I can't afford to get mixed into this. I can't afford any notoriety."

Carsons nodded. "You should have come clean in the first place. You were only picked up on suspicion. Let's just check your identity. What's your address in Riverview?"

The man spoke without hesitation. "My address is at 286 Walnut avenue. My telephone number is Main 6931. My office is in the First National Bank building. I have suite 908—a suite of five rooms occupying the entire front of the ninth floor."

"What do you do?" asked Carsons. "I supervise my investments," the man said with dignity. Charles Morden sauntered from the room. At the doorway he paused with the door open just a crack.

"Do me a favor, Tom, will you?" he said. Tom Carsons turned his head and raised his eyebrows. "Hold him for 15 minutes," Morden said, and slammed the door before Carsons could say anything. He raced down the corridor to the press room, thrust his head in the door and saw that Whipple of The Planet was seated at his desk, kept on going down the corridor until he came to a telephone booth. He entered the booth, and, as he pulled the door shut, the light clicked on. Morden reached up and extinguished the light by unscrewing the globe a half turn. There remained enough light which filtered in through the glass which partitioned the top of the door to enable him to drop the coin and dial the number of The Blade.

"Listen, cutie," he said, "put me on with Roy. . . . yeah, I know. Never mind that stuff. "Sure the invitation is good, but forget it. This is business, I'm using a nickel of my own money. . . . Hello, Roy, this John Smith case has busted wide open. I'm telephoning from a booth in the corridor. Whipple of The Planet is on duty in the press room. He's just got the memo that was handed out from the desk, and the thing has gone into The Planet as an ordinary John Smith, suspicion of driving while intoxicated, but the man isn't John Smith at all. He's a big shot in Riverview, a man by the name of Cathay—C-a-t-h-a-y. . . . that's right. . . . Frank B. Cathay of Riverview. He lives at 286 Walnut avenue, has offices in the First National Bank building, is a banker and candidate for city council.

THE 'PRETTY BOY' IS NEXT

WITH federal agents taking up the hunt in earnest, "Pretty Boy" Floyd has popped back into the headlines as he is proclaimed "Public Enemy No. 1". His days are numbered. Like John Dillinger, Clyde Barrow, Raymond Hamilton, "Perchmouth" Stanton and others, he cannot last long with the federales on the trail. These men are not hampered by county and state lines; they are not required to jump from one time to another as are local officers. But they take the trail of a human outcast marked "wanted", and they keep on that trail until it ends—or fades out. For months we heard little or nothing of "Pretty Boy", who was his section's most notorious character in the oil boom days when Borger and other oil towns were "wide open". Many rumors were heard. It is said that the infamous character has passed on as a result of injuries and that he had been buried in secret by his "pals"; it was rumored he had gone and because of injuries, and at one time it was even said about that he had made a truce with officers and quietly "settled down".

But recently he was identified with the Kansas massacre; the hunt was renewed with vigor, and in a few days he was cornered. The fact that he got his way out of the trap is only a repetition of the lives of the other desperadoes who are almost forgotten already. The list of characters on the order of Dillinger, Barrow, Hamilton and Floyd has been unusually long during recent years. We are partly to blame for that. The old-time bandit returned with changes, which throughout history have always produced misfits that soon became infamous to the public—the people—allowed them to commit crimes and insults without a great display of force. The type flourished. Finally, however, an important people demanded action and federal investigators answered with the greatest mass man-hunt operation has ever known. Few of the desperadoes left, and it will not be long until the type is unprofitable, except for the occasional flare of a would-be bandit.

EXPENSIVE DEFENSE

aval technicians had not evolved their art to such a high degree of complicated and costly perfection, the price of building a first-rate battle fleet would be a great deal less than it is—and the economic argument for armament reduction would lose much of its force.

Construction was begun the other day at the Philadelphia navy yard of two new 1500-ton destroyers, the Massin and the Shaw. Each boat will cost approximately $2,700,000 for hull and machinery. Contrast that with bills that were incurred a generation ago, when the United States began to rebuild her fleet following the post-Civil War letdown. The USS Oregon, a heavy cruiser used as Admiral Dewey's flagship at Manila Bay, cost almost exactly what one of the new destroyers will cost. In other words, the cost of building one of the light cruisers, which a first-rate navy must number by the dozens, is equal to the cost of a main unit of the fleet a generation ago. No wonder modern navies are expensive!

USELESS AIR RACING

Mr. Jimmie Doolittle is the dean of America's speed racers, and knows about as much about airplanes as any man alive. So when he tells the House Safety Congress that air racing has just proved itself useless—as he did, a few days ago—his words demand attention. Doolittle cited five principle advances in airplane design in recent years, and asserted that they were attributable to air racing. Admittedly, air races did, originally, promote aviation through the testing of planes, materials and engines. He added that "it would appear, of late, that the cost of air racing is not commensurate with the perk involved." Air racing takes a heavy toll of our speed flyers. Per-time has come to question, with Major Doolittle, whether the game is worth the price.

By DR. MORRIS FISBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
Although the specific cause of rheumatism that attacks children is not known, physicians have long been convinced that infected tonsils have much to do with it.
The basis for this belief is such discovery as the fact that the death rate in children suffering from rheumatism is nearly 50 per cent less where the tonsils have been removed at the time of the first attack. Furthermore, 59 per cent of the rheumatic children had suffered from tonsillitis or sore throat previous to their first attacks of the rheumatic condition.
Recurrent attacks, however, were not less frequent in those children who had had their tonsils removed.
Some of the most common signs of rheumatism in children are extreme pallor, susceptibility to fatigue, loss of appetite, nose bleed and vague pains throughout the body. This does not mean that every child who has one of these symptoms is rheumatic, but it does mean that these symptoms character of this condition, one

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY WILLIS THORNTON
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Three hundred-odd years ago, Master Shakespeare was writing his deathless tribute to a character who, though he had his faults, went down fighting and unconquered: "Nothing in his life became him like the leaving it; he died as one that had been studied in his death to throw away the dearest thing he owned as 'twere a careless trifle."
The words might have been written today to hint at the farewell of General Johnson to the NRA. Nothing in his NRA life became him like the leaving it. Nobody who heard the general's farewell speech to his associates there can ever forget it.
For a half hour before the scheduled time, NRA people, from code administrators down to stenographers, were filing in and occupying seats in the small auditorium. Long before the time every seat was filled, aisles congested with whispering people. Galleries, balconies, aisles were jammed.
The General Enters
Then, suddenly, through the door backstage center, barged the general, his flat-topped, somewhat battered gray hat on his head, cigarette in his hand, a tired smile on his florid, seamed face.
For minutes, the spontaneous, crackling applause echoed off the walls. The general slipped on his hornrimmed glasses and began to read his speech.
He stood behind a rostrum at attention, heels together, measuring his words. There was not a sound in the auditorium.
You could feel waves of emotion sweep across the audience as the deep-voiced words fell from the platform. No priest ever uttered more reverently the words than when the voice said, "My departure from leadership of you in this holy thing has been to me an agony of spirit which has racked me physically and mentally, far more than those days of 18 and 20 hours with which we used to carry on to the edge of exhaustion."
Words Burn Deep
They knew, Administrators and stenographers alike knew what he meant when he referred to "the heat and burden of our long fight together... that sense of comradeship that comes from shared rations in a siege."
"There remains only to say good-bye to you... and this, in my present state of emotion and affection, I can not do."
The general's face was white as he choked the word "go". Half-turned then, he got out in a breath, "God bless you all."
The written speech that dignified benediction throughout all Christendom, "The Lord bless and keep thee."
But the tough old soldier who had ridden the wild and defied big game and labor leaders swarmed punches with the best, it when the dead rate, couldn't say the word "go". Half-turned then, he got out in a breath, "God bless you all."
Cries Without Tears
As he turned to leave, wild applause swayed cameramen who had earlier, swarmed in the asking for one last picture.
The general's face was white as he choked the word "go". Half-turned then, he got out in a breath, "God bless you all."
A final wave, and abruptly out the door he entered 16 minutes and left the stage.

TEXAS CANNING PLANTS ARE KEPT BUSY

31 Kitchens in One Section Produce 870,981 Cans

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 13.—"Harvest Home" in the black-land section of Texas is going to be notable this fall in spite of the great 1934 drought according to a preliminary survey of the canning activities of that section made by Miss Jennie Camp, district home demonstration agent. Fifteen counties in the district had 31 community relief canning plants, equipped with 317 pressure cookers and retorts and 177 tin can sealers, being operated by relief agencies with relief labor under the supervision of county home demonstration agents on September 1, Miss Camp stated.

By the middle of September the total output of these 31 centers had reached a total of 870,981 containers. All of the products that went into those cans came from the farms of the district, Miss Camp said. The canning was done on a toll basis, the Texas Relief Commission furnishing cans, equipment, and labor; the owner furnishing the products; the toll going into relief commissaries for the needy; and home pantry shelves receiving the balance.

For example in Montague county the work is being carried on in five centers using 14 pressure cookers and retorts and 10 tin can sealers. On October 1, there had been canned 117,104 containers of meat, fruits and vegetables in these five plants. Of these 63,929 containers were returned to the pantry shelves of the owners of the products and 53,175 went into the warehouse of the county relief administration.

In this district there are also Federal Meat Canning Plants at Fort Worth and Dallas. These plants had put up 4,679,207 cans of meat in the period between July and October 1.

Brazil May Be Test To Cotton Growers

India, Egypt, and Russia decreased cotton acreage in 1934, and their future cotton growing expansion seems limited, it has been seen in previous articles in this series prepared from material furnished by the Cotton Section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. China, it has been shown, is severely handicapped by need of land for food and by poor transportation, indicating that cotton acreage increased in China will probably come very slowly. In South America the situation is somewhat different. Brazil offers a real threat to American cotton supremacy.

Cotton has been grown in Brazil almost as long as it has been in the United States. Brazil must have real problems or cotton production would already have increased much more than it has. The greatest drawback is said to be in the character of the people. They farm an average of only 2½ acres of cotton per farmer, and don't like to do that because of the hoeing and picking. They are a hunting and fishing type and will probably have to be replaced by imported farmers if cotton production is to expand much. Brazil is a thinly settled country in no danger of food shortages as are India and China, but cotton expansion must await the clearing of dense hardwood forests as well as a change in type of people. It will require vast sums of money, probably from outside sources, to clear Brazilian lands for cultivation. Only the spur of unusually high cotton prices over a long period of years is apt to tempt investors. Cost of production is so high that there is little immediate danger of serious competition from Brazil. During the past 12 months Brazilian cotton prices have declined more than those in any other important cotton grow-

Subirrigation Is Given Credit for Big Tomato Crop

ANSON, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Walter Kelso of the Stith Home Demonstration club in Jones county is moving, but she is taking her subirrigation tile with her because she attributes the supply of tomatoes in her garden this year to subirrigation, according to Miss Sue Bonner, home demonstration agent.

The tile was laid in 1933 and proved its value then, but since the drought Mrs. Kelso says that it has doubled its worth.

"I have had sufficient tomatoes for my family of five since July 6 and have approximately 1½ gallons daily since August 10," she added.

Texas is 32 times the size of New Jersey.

CONTOUR ROWS GIVEN CREDIT FOR GROWTH ON WALKER FARM

The W. M. Walker farm, southeast of Lakeview, has a pretty good crop on most of the farm this year. Mr. Walker attributes this to the fact that he contoured his rows, running them on a level last spring, so that all rainfall would be kept on the place at approximately the same place it fell. Mr. Walker also, had one small overflow, and where in previous years this water had run through the place and washed a ditch, this year the contoured rows spread the water and carried it over almost all the land in cultivation on the place.

Thus, Mr. Walker, although not able to put in a terrace derived a great benefit from his contoured rows, run on the same lines a terrace would have been run on. Where it is impossible to put in a terrace the next best thing is to run the rows on a level contour and conserve any rainfall and spread any overflow evenly over the land. This spreading the overflow not only increases crop yield but decreases loss of soil, due to water erosion.

Woman Has Over 400 Cans Food

CAMERON, Oct. 13.—"I have more than 400 cans and jars of food products on my pantry shelf for the winter—the most I have ever had in my life," Mrs. Tom Turner, pantry demonstrator for the Curry Home Demonstration club in Milam county told Miss Bertha Fae Strange, home demonstration agent. As a part of her first year as a home demonstration club member, Mrs. Turner has added 24 feet of pantry shelving, with the 400 containers of food properly arranged on the painted pantry shelves, a pressure cooker, and a bulletin and recipe file.

From the fall garden which she has planted, Mrs. Turner hopes to raise enough to complete her family budget.

2 TO 2 1/2 BALES PER ACRE IS RECORDED

Raised on Land Terraced To Prevent Water Logging

SAN SABA, Oct. 13.—R. G. Murray from the Liveoak community in San Saba will make two or two and one-half bales of cotton on six acres this year as a result of terraces constructed last year to prevent water logging, according to N. E. Scudder, farm demonstration agent.

The field belonging to Mr. Murray is low, flat and sandy and catches all the hillside water. In the past it has always been so wet and boggy in the spring that early planting and cultivation was impossible. The terraces on the hillside withheld the water this year, however, and left his flat field just moist enough for ideal planting and cultivation. When the dry weather set in there was sufficient moisture to make a good yield.
