Feudist Victim

Chinese torture methods were invoked by Ozark mountain feudists in their attempt to force Miss Effie Jackson, above, Marshall, Ark., stenographer, to reveal whereabouts of one of their foes. The girl said her head was plunged repeatedly into a bucket of water and matches were held to her feet. An appeal for state troops to halt the feud, in which four have died, was made to Gov. Futrell.

New Policies Adopted At Meeting Of Local Association

T. M. McMurry, president of the Memphis Production Credit Loan association, presided over the regular meeting of the board of directors here yesterday.

J. V. Brookshear, field representative of the Federal Intermediate bank and the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, met with the board.

New policies were adopted at the meeting yesterday to the effect that the association here will be able to close loans in a much shorter period of time than previously.

More responsibility and authority was given the secretary and treasury of the local association, Marvin P. Bryan.

The board voted yesterday to assist the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Fort Worth in liquidating by purchasing notes held by the corporation in Donley, Collingsworth, Childress and Hall counties. These notes will be passed by the local board before being bought, Mr. Bryan stated.

Members of the association board present yesterday were C. E. Fletcher and C. W. Alverson, Childress county; A. Y. Bell and A. O. Sweatt, Collingsworth county; John T. Simms, Donley county; W. H. Youngblood, J. L. Darby and T. M. McMurry, Hall county.

'NO QUARTER' IS ORDER IN RIOTS

Amsterdam Fights Demonstration In Protest To Dole Cut By Unemployed

AMSTERDAM, July 6.—City authorities ordered today "no quarter" in their two-day battle against rioting unemployed and communists.

Three demonstrators have been killed and a score injured. The disturbances caused the consideration of asking military reinforcements.

The rioters are protesting a dole cut. The mob looted homes and shops, centering its attack upon big pawn shops. Virtually every window in the affected district was smashed.

Nazarene Church To Hold Revival

A three-day revival meeting, opening Monday night and continuing through Wednesday night of next week, will be held at the Nazarene church here, according to Rev. F. R. Whitley, pastor of that church.

Victims Of Dillinger Bank Raid

Disquieting Reports Bring Nazi Vigilance

BERLIN, July 6.—Nazi vigilance against revolt was resumed today with disquieting reports that "something more is brewing" among friends of the "liquidated" Nazi leaders.

A Nazi spokesman said the Roehm revolution had wide ramifications. This has brought renewed vigilance and determination to prove that an "iron fist and strong will rules Germany."

It became known today that 20 were killed in last Saturday's bloody revolt. Ten, besides seven officially announced, have been identified and deaths confirmed, according to reliable persons.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Howard will go to Wichita Falls tomorrow morning to attend the funeral of Rufus Howard, pioneer rancher who died recently.

Rufus Howard passed away at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at a Wichita Falls hospital. Funeral services will be held at Wichita Falls tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

CITY COURT HERE TRIES CASE FOR FIRST TIME IN 12 YEARS

For the first time in 12 years, according to City Attorney Otho Fitzjarrald and Chief of Police Bill Huddleston, a contested trial was held yesterday in city court at the city hall.

The first legal beer in Memphis since 1896 is scheduled to go on sale tomorrow at three dispensaries.

It is not known yet at what time the beer will legally go on sale.

The county commissioners' court this afternoon is canvassing the returns of the election held here last Saturday. The canvass is merely an official formality, as results of the election were made known a few minutes after the election was over.

To Check Votes
The court has been occupied all morning and most of the afternoon with tax renditions on county property. The election votes and the poll list will be closely checked this afternoon, County Judge Jim Vallance stated.

As yet no permits have been given anyone to purchase a beer license. Hearings will likely be held early in the morning on at least three of the beer permit applications, it was said.

Plan Sales Tomorrow
It has been announced that in case an injunction is not filed this afternoon Rubes Coffee Shop, Pounds Cafe and the New Deal Service station would offer 3.2 beer for sale tomorrow. That is, in case the beer applications did not meet with any obstacles.

About 15 brands of the beverage will be on sale in Memphis, those who expect to become dealers in beer tomorrow told a representative of The Democrat.

Rube Sisk announces that he plans to have beer on tap at his cafe by tomorrow afternoon. The price for bottle beer here will be 15 cents, it was said.

Ice Cream Machine Is Installed Here

An ice cream manufacturing machine has been installed in Memphis by Tarver's pharmacy, and was put into operation Tuesday afternoon.

The machine, consisting of a freezer, hardening cabinet and mixing compartment, has a 50-gallon capacity and is capable of freezing 2 1-2 gallons at a time. Ice cream, sherbets, ices and novelty confections will be manufactured.

Mac and Horace Tarver, in speaking of their new machine, said: "We are now equipped to do the work of commercial ice cream manufacturers with the installation of this ice cream machine. We can handle special orders for all occasions, such as parties, receptions, weddings, and so forth, on four hours' notice, giving all wanted color and flavor combinations."

"The quality of the cream manufactured is uniformly high. It has a velvety quality at once delicious and appetizing. This machine represents a considerable investment, but we believe that our patrons deserve the best, and we will be satisfied with nothing short of that in filling their wants and serving their needs."

"These machines are not an experiment. They are being used extensively in the East, wherever they have been put in to operation." (Continued on page 8)

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

A fruit soup is perfect as a beginning for a summer luncheon or dinner. Its rich color is pleasing to the eye and the pleasant fragrance of the fruit adds to its appetizing effect.

If the idea of a fruit soup is new to you, perhaps a few suggestions regarding its serving will be welcome. Any service which would be correct for either bouillon or a fruit cup can be used for the chilled fruit soup. Bouillon cups chilled in the ice-box before filling, sherbet glasses, cocktail glasses or grape fruit sets all are permissible. The soups are eaten with a small-bowled soup spoon or a bouillon spoon.

These delicate fruit soups must be served very cold, because half the charm of the soup lies in its temperature.

Tart fruits are best suited to a chilled soup which above all must be zestful and stimulating to the appetite. A combination of flavors is good and affords a variety of effects.

The thickening agent may be cornstarch, arrowroot, tapioca or even flour. Infinite care must be

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Fresh pears, cereal, crisp broiled bacon with cress toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Broccoli baked with cheese, salad of mixed fruits, Melba toast, iced chocolate.

DINNER: Plum soup, breaded veal cutlets, scalloped potatoes, buttered carrots, stuffed tomato salad, peach fritters with raspberry sauce, milk, coffee.

taken not to make the soup too thick. A firm, confection is far from inviting, but a slightly thick, syrupy consistency is cooling and delectable. These soups are not jellied in any suggestion of firmness; they are fruit juices thickened just enough to lift them from the cocktail class.

The following recipes may suggest other possibilities to you.

Plum Soup

One quart plums, 4 cups water, 1 stick cinnamon, 3-4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon arrowroot, few grains salt.

Arrowroot often is used for thickening sauces and puddings in place of cornstarch. It's especially desirable for children, since it is more easily digested than cornstarch.

Salt always is used to take care of the "flat" taste of whatever thickening is used.

Wash plums thoroughly. Put fruit into kettle with water and simmer until skins are broken and fruit is tender. Strain through jelly bag. Add cinnamon and sugar and bring to the boiling point. Add salt and stir in arrowroot mixed to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Cook until mixture thickens slightly. Remove cinnamon stick, chill and serve.

Red Raspberry Soup

Two cups red raspberries, 2 cups currants, 3 cups water, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, few grains salt.

Stem currants. Wash berries and currants and put into kettle. Crush and simmer in water for twenty minutes. Strain through jelly bag and add sugar. Bring to the boiling point and add tapioca and salt. Cook until the mixture is transparent and syrupy. Chill and serve.

Blackberry and sour apple is a piquant mixture. All berries are inviting, used alone or in combination.

MEXICO BECKONS TO UNITED STATES SCOUTS

Recently a specially constructed truck bearing eighteen Boy Scouts from Illinois passed through here to Mexico City to spend two weeks or more. France Denies Any Association With Schleicher Government

Associated Press
July 6.—France, through its ambassador here, Thursday formally and vigorously denied any association with the government of Chancellor Hitler's which was broken up and ended by the execution of Schleicher.

The ambassador was given out and a formal protest will be made to the German Government. The Nazi press had accused General Kurt von Schleicher of having dealings with the German Chancellor.

von Schleicher, who was Chancellor for a few days, was justified, the French government insisted on the basis of the crime of entering into an agreement with France, thereby making it clear that the French government is not going to last."

W. F. P. Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce branded the charge as "a vile and protested against the prominence of the story in German newspapers."

The ambassador was said by the French press to have been promoted to the rank of ambassador in 1932.

Mississippi accused some of the French negotiators with a German and there was much talk as to what country was the story in German newspapers' story in 1932.

Dined with Ambassador

French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou was accused of revealing the von Schleicher plot to the British at Geneva, May 30.

"Hitler's days are numbered," Barthou was represented as saying.

In addition to the French envoy, the American and British ambassadors have called at the foreign office.

The French Ambassador's statement, French sources said, was made doubly emphatic because he learned his name had been mentioned since von Schleicher was shot. The two men were understood to have dined together within the last few months, and this point was emphasized in some circles.

The Embassy explained that the dining had no significance as Francois-Poncet has many friends among influential Germans with whom he dines frequently.

Meanwhile, it was revealed by officials of the Nazi party that Chancellor Hitler's private army of 2,000,000 storm troopers, among whose leaders the shots of firing squads fell thickest is doomed.

These officials confirmed reports that after the July vacation the place of storm troopers in German life will be greatly changed, indicating less than 20 per cent of the men will be retained.

The protest from France was only one of a number of harassments faced by the Hitler Government which sought peaceful control at the cost of so many lives.

Believe Bones Those Of Notorious Outlaw; Search For Treasure

By Associated Press
PECOS, July 6.—Finding of a pile of crumbling bones and a rusty saddle in a cave near the border in the vicinity of Sander-son, has suggested to residents of that section the possibility that the remains may be those of a notorious outlaw of several decades ago.

Old timers recalled that it was in the vicinity of the cave that the horse of a noted outlaw was shot to death after the outlaw had participated in a train robbery. The outlaw was not found. He was supposed to have buried the loot in the vicinity and many searching parties had hunted for it.

IS LYNCHING WAY TO JUSTICE?

OF INTEREST is a report from a training school for colored young men and women at Tuskegee, Ala., which shows that the lynching of negroes is consistently on a par with previous years.

During the first six months of the present year, the report states, six negroes were lynched by angry mobs. During the same period last year, eight were "strung up," and for a similar period in 1932, five were killed in this manner.

The report goes further to give the reasons for these murders. Causes were as follows: Wounding man in altercation, one; criminal assault, one; attempted assault, two; association with white woman, one, and striking man, one.

The states in which the lynchings occurred and the number in each state were: Florida, one; Kentucky, one; Mississippi, two; Tennessee, one, and Texas, one.

Needless to say, the rule of mobs at its best is no more than barbarism; nevertheless, at times it keeps a situation fairly well under control that probably would not be handled satisfactorily by slow-moving court machines.

The conflict between the races in the South has been a source of debate since the union of the states was preserved; it probably will remain so long as traditions of the South are maintained.

Regardless of the strife this cast division makes, none of us would like to see these traditions wiped away. Neither would we care to be a participant or to have our children take part in such affairs as have moved men to murder six times during the first six months of this year.

The strife between the races will continue, lynchings will still be perpetrated and the problems will remain so long as the negro tries to overstep the tradition that has separated him from the white people ever since his forefathers were brought into this country. Until the tradition is removed (it probably will never be), the black will feel the sting of slipping hemp whenever he attempts to place himself in the position of the white man of the South.

GERMANY LOOKS BACK IN FORLORN HOPE

A DICTATORSHIP, in this modern world, is an effect rather than a cause. Therefore, the news that the seamless fabric of Hitlerism is developing a split right down the middle, and that German monarchists are looking forward hopefully to a Hohenzollern restoration, is important for the light that it throws on the past rather than for what it may foretell of the future.

For while we cannot tell what a Hohenzollern restoration would do to Germany—any more than we can chart the future of the nation under Hitlerism, if the Nazis remain in power—the mere fact that monarchist sentiment is reviving tells a lot about the sad things that have happened in Germany since the war.

Go back, for a moment, to the fall of 1918, and remember what took place.

Germany had lost the war. Her allies had crumpled up, her armies had been pushed back, her resources were gone, the endurance of her people was at an end.

It was too plain for anyone to miss that a gigantic series of blunders on the part of the government had, first, got the nation into the war, and secondly had made winning of the war impossible.

Then, to cap the climax, Wilhelm II skipped out, flitting across the borders by night and leaving subordinates to face the music.

The monarchy had discredited itself, by revealing its own incompetence and weakness, about as thoroughly as was humanly possible.

So Germany turned to democracy, or to a semblance of it, and tried to get along. The venture wasn't very successful. The heritage of the war was a crushing burden even for the victorious countries to carry; for a nation which had lost everything, it became absolutely intolerable.

Ruhr invasions, inflation, industrial crises, flights of capital followed one another in dreary succession. At last the democratic government, like its monarchist predecessor, proved its inability to cope with things, and Germany turned to Hitler.

Today Hitler is having his troubles. It is reported from Berlin that the days of the Nazis are about numbered; a military dictatorship which would eventually bring a Hohenzollern back to Berlin is confidently predicted.

THE BOY WHO MADE GOOD

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

You may have read recently of the sudden death of a banker while he was flying in an airplane. His death was due to the condition called coronary thrombosis, or the clogging of the small blood vessels in the heart muscle.

President Coolidge and Senator Thomas Walsh died of this kind of heart attack, and so have many others well advanced in business and statesmanship.

The coronary arteries, which supply the heart muscle with blood, are rather small blood vessels, about the size of a quill on a feather, which go around the heart and which give off branches passing downward toward the apex of the heart.

These blood vessels may be blocked as a result of many different causes. Sometimes a small clot from elsewhere in the body comes to rest in a coronary blood vessel. The result is an occasional attack of pain in the heart, but this is not so serious as the sudden and complete blocking of the heart.

When such sudden and complete blocking occurs, there is severe and tremendous pain. This pain is not a matter of a few minutes, like the pain in angina pectoris, but lasts for hours and, if the person lives and is kept absolutely quiet, it will gradually wear off in a few days. Some slight soreness persists and, with a sudden effort, the severe pain may come on again.

There is no way to reach the point at which a coronary blood vessel is blocked. The only possible treatment is absolute rest, so that nature can do as much as possible to repair the damage.

This is done in two ways: First, the blood vessel that is not blocked will not only supply the side of the heart that it usually supplies, but will also send blood in around about manner to take care of the part that has been shut off. Second, the clot may gradually be dissolved and blood may work its way through it.

The absolute minimum time that a person who has suffered such an attack may remain in bed is six weeks. With the slightest sign of secondary attacks or reactions, it may be necessary to extend this time. If there is any fever, if the pulse is irregular or if after the six-week period the heart does not respond properly to exercise or activity, the patient has to remain in bed much longer. It is not safe to shorten this time. After the first three weeks the patient may perhaps spend one-half hour or an hour of each day talking over his affairs with his associates. The family might help the passing to time with reading, with music or similar quiet amusements, but under no circumstances is any form of mental or physical activity to be indulged in that will speed up the heart through excitement.

Usually, after a person has once suffered an attack of coronary thrombosis, he must thereafter lead a life of much lessened activity. If, in fact, he does one-half the amount of work he did formerly, he will be doing more than enough.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The success story of Dr. Willard Thorp becomes more astonishing day by day.

This youthful Aepherst professor asked for bread and the Senate gave him an armful of blueberry muffins.

Thorp, you recall, served nine months as director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, only to have his confirmation blocked by some politically-minded Democratic senators, led by Hubert Stephens of Mississippi.

Roosevelt withdrew his nomination—and has been making handsome amends ever since.

First, the president refused to accept Thorp's resignation from the Federal Alcohol Control Administration and one or two lesser boards to which he had been appointed during his directorship.

Then, without any announcements, one learned successively that Thorp had become an expert for the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board, first secretary and then vice chairman of the important new NRA Advisory Council, and the selection of Roosevelt and Frank Walker for a bigger and better job with the National Emergency Council.

Now, on top of all that—and again without any announcement—Thorp receives as high a tribute as could be paid to any American economist. He will be the American member of the economic committee of the League of Nations, which meets at Geneva July 17.

Thorp goes as a private citizen, since we aren't in the league. He goes on league invitation and at league expense. But every insider knows the league doesn't invite a fellow without getting recommendations from Washington.

The previous American member was Prof. James Harvey Rogers of Yale, Roosevelt's monetary adviser. Thorp helped develop the new American foreign trade policy.

The committee considers trade problems, world economics, tariff and trade agreements, recommending matters for league consideration.

It represents but 15 nations and consists mostly of government officials—such as Sir F. W. Leith Ross, Britain's chief economic adviser—who will run Thorp ragged with questions about NRA, AAA, and the rest of the New Deal.

In August Thorp will go with NEC as the New Deal's Number One Man on prices, price-fixing problems, and consumer protection.

This Author's Been Writing Stories-- And Selling Them--Since Schooldays

BY MARY MARGARET M'BRIDE

One author who has no desk full of rejected manuscripts and never has had one, indeed, is Sophie Kerr. Mrs. Kerr sold her first short story before she was out of college—she wasn't even 20 then—and each time she has finished one since there has always been a magazine eager to buy it. Or, if it is a book she's written, there is invariably a publisher waiting on the doorstep, contract in hand.

Mrs. Kerr is actually a trifle shame-faced about such a phenomenal record. She realized that it's hardly the thing for a writer not to have suffered a few hardships as a prelude to success. But her luck is the only thing she is likely to seem apologetic about.

For it is a long time since I have met a woman so frank, straight-thinking and courageously unconcerned about how the world will judge her on her ideas.

A person's workroom, I've discovered, often tells a lot about him—or her. A casual survey of the library in which Mrs. Kerr writes evolves a picture of a woman who likes her surroundings to be comfortable as well as beautiful, is tidy without being boresomely so, gently humorous, fond of people and animals, and interested in many things besides writing.

Mrs. Kerr's workroom is on the third floor of her old brownstone house in picturesque Murray Hill, one of the few sections of New York that has kept its color and tradition in spite of the encroachments of modern building. The author has two handsome black cats, Uleless and Thomas Hardy, who have the run of the house and the lovely walled garden with trees and a fountain at the back.

Sophie Kerr was born on the eastern shore of Maryland in a peaceful, solid, long-settled country where the threat of reds and revolution has never reached even to this day. Her well-to-do father owned and ran a nursery and this younger of his two daughters followed him about as he moved among his trees and shrubs, absorbing knowledge from him and learning a kind of independence and individualism that the neighbors probably considered a little unwomanly. As a child the blue-eyed blond Sophie was always reading. She had an older sister, very pretty, who stole the younger girl's first beau and was much more popular, according to Sophie, because she was prettier and more amiable. Sophie brought home better report cards, though she was by no means a child prodigy.

She went to a small college in

Sophie Kerr, author of "Stay Out of My Life."

Maryland and was graduated from there, she says, with one ambition fully formed in her mind—to work on a newspaper. She had written for the college magazine but she knew nobody in the newspaper business and had no idea how to go about getting a job. She besought her father to buy her a second-hand typewriter, and learned to write on it with two fingers and immediately began to turn out stirring tales of hopeless love such as all young girls like to write. The amazing thing was that she sold them and to good magazines, too.

But she still yearned to work on a newspaper and during a visit to Baltimore she got her chance. A young city editor gave her an assignment to interview Wilton Lackaye and Madame Calve at space rates. She got her stories and earned the unbelievable sum of $2.30. Unfortunately there were no more assignments to be had just then so the aspiring journalist filled in the time by matriculating for graduate work at the University of Vermont.

After Vermont came the chance to realize her life ambition. She got a job as editor of the woman's page of a Pittsburgh paper. Later she became musical critic in its well. Still later she decided that she would like to work on a magazine in New York.

With this young woman, to decide what she wanted to do was equivalent to starting to do it. She applied for a job—and at the second application got it, on the "Woman's Home Companion." She kept it until she experimented and found she could have more "free time and make more money writing fiction and that is what he has been doing ever since.

The Murray Hill house with its rosewood furniture and its authentic charm, the valuable collection of old silver, the yearly trips abroad are all realizations of objectives upon which Mrs. Kerr has set her heart from time to time. She believes in getting things that way. In fact, she believes that is the only way you can get things. She can write more fascinatingly about food than any living fictionist. Incidentally, her dinners are famous all over the country. She is a little worried about cooking, though, thinks it may be getting too scientific.

She loves Spain and the theatre and is a little rabid on the subject of the youth movement. ("Why should young people feel that they are in a class by themselves and entitled to special treatment just because they are young?" she asks, adding characteristically, "In a few years they won't even be young any more.")

She has written a dozen or more novels and many short stories. All are full of the charm and sense of beauty that are peculiarly hers. "Big-Hearted Herbert," her first full-length play, was produced on Broadway this year and several companies of it are touring the country. She also has a one-act play being produced by stock companies and little theatres in many sections.

"Stay Out of My Life," her new serial to begin Sunday, July 8 in The Democrat, is one of her favorites among her novels and in it she has embodied much of the feeling about the women of today.
