PHILLIPS TO DRILL TEST SOUTH OF PARNELL

Italians Capture Askum Unresisted

Aduwa Formally Annexed Today

Italian forces this morning captured Ethiopia's ancient sacred city of Askum, without a shot being fired, and a few hours later General Emilio DeBono, high commissioner of Eritrea, in Italian Somaliland formally annexed Aduwa and adjacent country as Italian territory.

Authoritative sources said that Great Britain had already lifted the arms embargo against Ethiopia, and that the British board of trade was ready to consider munition shipments to that country.

Mussolini has expressed a willingness to discuss peace with Great Britain and France, despite what he calls the "League's injustice."

An unconfirmed report is being circulated that two Italian ships had been denied admission to Valetta, Malta, the harbor of which is a British project.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau this morning cancelled passage on an Italian liner at Paris, because of President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation.

French officials express doubt that Mussolini would set up Ras Haile Selassie Gugsu as a rival to Emperor Haile Selassie.

An Ethiopian army of 160,000 is hastening across the southwestern Ogaden province, anticipating a drive of southern fascist forces.

TEACHERS MEET IN MONTHLY SESSION

Good Attendance At Regular Meeting Saturday

Over 30 teachers of rural schools over Hall County were in attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Hall County Teachers Association here Saturday in the Annex Building of the First Baptist Church.

J. W. D. Chappell, Brice, president of the association, was in charge of the meeting. Discussion was held on a proposed trip to a teachers' institute, and plans were discussed for a teachers' banquet. It was decided that the association would meet here every first Saturday.

Independent schools were not in attendance at the session. The Memphis school faculty met in separate meeting Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the Memphis High School Auditorium with Supt. W. C. Davis presiding.

FOR NEW HOURS
ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 14. — The American Federation of Labor convention, in session here, this morning voted unanimously to fight for a 34-hour work week for American business and industry.

PIONEER PASSES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Death Takes James Knox at His Home South of City

James E. Knox, pioneer Hall County resident and well known farmer, died at his home six miles south of Memphis Saturday afternoon shortly after 3:00 o'clock, following a short illness. He was 46 years of age and had resided here ever since he was a small boy.

Funeral services for the deceased will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock from the Church of Christ with Dwaia Jones, minister, in charge of the ceremonies. Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery with the Hodges Funeral Home in charge.

Mr. Knox is survived by his widow and a daughter, Catherine Lee Knox, age 18 months. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Knox of Memphis; three brothers, J. C. Knox and Charles R. Knox, both of San Marie, Calif., and Talmage Knox of Memphis; three sisters, Mrs. J. G. Melton, San Marie, Calif.; Mrs. R. F. Harden, Harvor City, Calif., and Mrs. H. F. Blum of Floydada, Tenn. Mr. Knox was born in Bradyville, Tenn., Sept. 25, 1889.

Smiles at Death

Smiling and unshaken as state's attorneys demanded the death penalty, Maudeville W. Zenge, 26-year-old Missouri farmer, is shown as he appeared at the opening of his trial in Chicago for the emasculation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer, husband of Zenge's erstwhile sweetheart, Mrs. Louise Schaffer Bauer, 23.

Return to Throne

Return to the throne of the country from which he has been exiled for 11 years is at hand for George II of Greece, shown here in a recent picture. With George Kondylis, royalist leader, premier of the new cabinet, the way has been opened for the exile, deposed and banished in 1924, when the Greeks decided to have a republic.

COTTON GRADES HERE BETTER AVERAGE

Cotton From District Grade Better Than State Average

A comparison of weekly grade and staple cotton reports for Texas issued this season with reports for the state issued last season, discloses a significant increase in the proportion for one-inch and longer lengths this season. This season to date, over 14 per cent of the sample classed from representative gins in Texas is one inch and longer staple, compared with about five per cent for the corresponding period last year.

Grades are longer than last season to a pronounced extent, as measured by the production of strict middling and better grades. Today only 19 per cent is strict middling and better, in contrast to 69 per cent for the corresponding date last year.

In District 3, which includes Hall County, strict middling samples this week ran 24 percent, above the average for the state as a whole on grades.

Staples in District 3 showed 86.4 per cent of around 7-8 inch, with only .3 per cent an inch or better.

SPECIAL SESSION
AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—Governor Allred said this morning that he would call a second special session of the legislature Wednesday, and would submit only the 84-age pension measure at the outset.

START DRILLING WITHIN DAY OR TWO

8000 Foot Test Will Be Put Down On Location

With 27 truck loads of equipment reaching the location Saturday, a large crew of workers busy erecting the rig, the Phillips Petroleum Company is starting an oil test southwest of Parnell this week.

The decision to put down the test was made by the Phillips company suddenly, following a report of their geologists, who have been making a survey on the company's holdings, and no time has been lost in getting things ready for the spudding in of the test.

Over $100,000 worth of equipment has been unloaded on the site, and it is believed that actual drilling will be begun not later than Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

The Loffland Drilling Company, of Tulsa, has the contract for the well, and their contract calls for an 8,000 foot test, unless oil is struck at a shallower depth.

The test is on Section 4, J. H. Stephens survey, on the A. C. Hughes Estate land, two and a half miles west of Parnell and four miles south.

Immediately the site was staked out, excavation work was started Saturday on the cellar, which is to be concreted, sides and bottom. A 125-foot steel derrick is going up, and all the machinery is modern and practically new.

Electric drilling power will be used, electricity being generated by a large diesel-electric generating plant on the site.

Water for the test is to be pumped six miles by another large diesel unit, through a four-inch pipeline, and the contract calls for water at the site by tomorrow night.

The drilling contract calls for the hole to start with a diameter of 24 inches, to allow for the 8,000 foot limit set by the Phillips company.

The work on the test is to be rushed, and three shifts of 8 hours each will be used in pushing down the well. Six drillers already have arrived at the site. They are Doris Ballew, L. D. Rhodes, B. A. Hensley, Rodney Bell, A. C. Petty and John Rundle.

The Phillips company is also blocking up land south of 240, north of the river, and it is reported that in all likelihood, a test will be begun on that block within a very short time.

GOOD SPORTS
 FOLLOWING the disastrous football game Friday night, in which the Cyclone took a lacing from the McLean Tigers, we were delighted with the spirit shown by the local students.

Despite the fact that the visitors treated our team, on the field, like a stepchild, we saw several of the players fraternizing after the battle was over, thus proving that the Cyclone can "take it" and still grin.

Likewise, the pep squad seemed to keep its pep after the game, for they paraded the downtown business district in the school busses, singing just as loudly as they did before the game.

Some folks who never played a game of football or yelled themselves hoarse on a pep squad could take a lesson from these lads and lassies.

They've been buffeted by the storms of depression, in some cases their homes being lost, and the competence of a life time swept away.

That's enough to make anybody's grin a little one-sided, but the guy who can come up smiling, is going to be at the top of the heap again some of these days, while the fellow who scowls at the blows of adverse fortune had just as well crawl into his grave now... he's through, even if he doesn't know it.

When life makes an end run for a touchdown around end or through the middle of our defenses, let's just tighten up our belts, spit on our hands, and determine that we'll show him on the next play.

Otherwise, there'll be no next play.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 JEAN DUNN, pretty, 21, is secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer. BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, has frequently asked her to marry him, but Jean delays her answer.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, warns Jean and Bobby against spending much time in places like The Golden Feather. Larry is trying to trail WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He discusses the case with his friend, MIKE HAGAN, of the local police force.

Jean goes for a horseback ride with Sandy. He sends her roses, takes her to lunch. She and Bobby go to The Golden Feather again. Sandy is there with MR. and MRS. LEWIS. They all go to the Lewis apartment.

Lewis tells Bobby he wants to buy a car, "a special job" worth $10,000. He shows him some bonds worth $12,000 and says if Bobby can sell them for him he will buy the car and Bobby will have $2000 profit. Bobby promises to think about it. Late that night he calls Jean, says he thinks her boss might buy the bonds.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Jean said, trying to clear her brain of sleep which the ringing telephone had interrupted, "But, Bobby, what makes you think you can sell anything to Mr. Montague? And how can I introduce you to him, anyhow? After all, I'm only his stenographer, and—"

"You leave all that to me," said Bobby confidently. "Just get me into his office, and I'll do the rest. The worst he can do is say no. And listen, Jean—"

"Yes?"

"You know why I'm going to try to do it, don't you?"

"Why?"

"Well... if I can do it, and make a couple of thousand dollars, like Mr. What's-his-name said... Jeany, will you marry me then?"

"Bobby, I can't be wakened out of a sound sleep to be proposed to! If you want to see Mr. Montague, call me up tomorrow and I'll see if I can fix it."

"Okay. Good night, sweetheart."

"Good night."

So the next day Bobby did call Jean. Only the fact that Mr. Montague always seemed to take a kindly, rather fatherly interest in her nerved her to try to make the engagement for him; but after a good deal of fumbling around she managed to persuade him to set an hour when Bobby could try his salesmanship on him.

"Tell him to come in tomorrow about 2," he said, smiling. "I'm sure I don't know just what this is all about, but if he's your boy friend I'll take a chance on him."

She thanked him and when she got a chance, called Bobby and gave him the news.

"Wish me luck?" asked Bobby.

"Why, of course."

"Thanks. And say, honey, how do you want the living room papered, anyhow? Personally, I always liked a dark, plain paper, but if you want some of that light, figured stuff a person sees so much of these days, why—"

"Bobby Wallace, what are you talking about?"

"Why, our new apartment, of course—the one we're going to have after Mr. Montague buys these bonds off me."

"Bobby, listen... I'm not—don't rush me off my feet this way. I told you I wasn't ready to marry anybody yet, and—"

"Oh, all right. But if I ever get that money in my hands, the rush is going to be something terrible."

When she hung up she stared at her typewriter and wondered what had made her say that. Only the day before she had insisted to Sandy that she was "practically engaged" to Bobby; today, when Bobby mentioned the matter, she reminded him that perhaps the engagement wasn't so very definite after all. Why did she seem to have an impulse to head Bobby off when he spoke of marriage?

"I'm still too young to get married," she told herself doubtfully. Far down somewhere she heard her conscience jeering at her.

The next afternoon Bobby presented himself at the office promptly at 2. Mr. Montague was busy, at the moment, and Bobby had to wait some 15 minutes before he could get in; and the door to Mr. Montague's private office had hardly closed behind him before Mr. Montague opened it slightly, stuck his head out, and said, "Oh by the way, Miss Dunn, I've nothing more for you this afternoon; why don't you go home?"

Pleased to have most of the afternoon off, she hastened to leave; and it was not until she had got down to the lobby that she realized that Bobby would undoubtedly be anxious to see her as soon as he came out.

"I'll just kill a little time in the shops, and then wait for him in the lobby," she thought. So she strolled out to the sidewalk—and found Sandy standing there, a drawl that tipped jauntily over her ear, smoking a cigaret. He dropped the cigaret, removed the hat, and sprang to her side.

"Well, now isn't this nice?" he said. "And me just hoping somebody like you would come wandering out of there."

"Somebody like me? How much like me?"

"Oh—" They were walking slowly along the sidewalk, and Sandy was almost imperceptibly guiding her to the curb. "Just about your height, with cornsilk-yellow hair like yours, and a neat blue suit with a little red scarf, and a go-to-the-dickens hot tugged down over one eye—"

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCH
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A reconnaissance along the front reveals an indication that certain packers have been the government as to the of their profits.

Also, though roast pork and eggs, and ham and will cost more this winter they do now, prices probably start dropping next summer be materially lower by time.

The AAA's first public on a proposed adjustment program concerned the continuation. Thanks mostly to there'll be about 47 pounds products available per in the Marketing year per Nov. 1 instead of the normal consumption of 83 pounds.

With no adjustment there should be about 62 in the marketing year by next fall, meaning lower which should begin earlier.

Meanwhile, the AAA is by law to operate in two grams and fears if something done to keep down production there'll be a substantial production in excess of consumption.

Packers' profits, often subject of kicks from house meat strike, were reported $29,550,000 for 1934 by themselves at the hearing.

That figure, which the government ever had to being unable to examine books—was the total reported the Bureau of Animal and Stockyards Act.

But late in the afternoon AAA official stated that figure had been revised to $31. The only explanation for this sudden change was the profit figure for one of 608 companies reported been revised.

The new figure means packers last year made the best total profits since 1924 that the profit per dollar was 1.84 cents—highest in 10 years. Evidence of big packers had been very well, while many smaller were suffering.

(Note to housewives: Information on packers' profits be brought out by the Trade Commission in the of feed industries. Members watch to see whether the corn-hog program lives up to Henry Wallace's promise of production with consumption needs.)

When Robert E. Freese, publician from Cincinnati, appointed to the Federal Commission, a lot was of the morale of career government who still large numbers here of political battles which and about them.

Ask Radio Station Be Allowed Remain at Wichita Falls

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce and several citizens from here are cooperating with Wichita Falls citizens in trying to retain Radio Station KGKO in Wichita Falls. The station, it is planned, is to be moved to Fort Worth, following approval from the Federal Communications Commission to move the station to Fort Worth.

Wichita Falls citizens have filed a formal protest against this action which the Federal Communications Commission at Washington, D. C., and have asked that the matter be brought to a public hearing at Wichita Falls or some nearby place at a later date.

Residents of Wichita Falls contend that the radio station is a public necessity and of intense interest to Wichita Falls and surrounding territory, and as such should be retained there. The cooperation of Memphis and surrounding area is being solicited in order to retain the radio station at its present location.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellis and children, Elaine and LeRoy, of LeFors, spent yesterday here with Mrs. Ellis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Guthrie. Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie accompanied them home to spend this week as their guest.

Mrs. R. F. Curry and daughter, Virginia and Miss Ruth Smart of Wellington spent yesterday here as the guests of Mrs. Curry's sister, Mrs. George Greenhaw.

Mrs. G. S. Sigler and daughter, Billy, and Misses Dorothy and Martha Jean Forbes and Martha Jean Henry were in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Gilmore yesterday.

NOT TO BE SEEN OR BE TOUCHED

WHAT is sacred is dangerous, believed primitive man, and so the crocodile, like the tiger and other wild animals elsewhere, became the particular taboo of many savage tribes. In fact there was a Crocodile clan, in Borneo, whose members believed, if hateful or unlucky to meet or even to see a crocodile. The sight was thought to cause inflammation of the eyes. Yet the crocodile was the most sacred object of this clan. They called it their father, swore by it, and honored it in their festivals.

The Dyaks of Borneo, or the natives of Madagascar, would kill a crocodile only when one of the reptiles had killed one of their men. Even then they prayed its forgiveness and explained its death was only in retaliation for the loss of their tribesman.

North Borneo pictures the crocodile not so much as a representative animal of that country, but for its esteem among the natives.

Mustangs Continue 1935 Victory March

at Washington By 35-6 Score

ATLANTA, Oct. 14.—The Mustangs of Southern Methodist continued their victory march of 1935 by swamping the Bears of Washington University at St. Louis by a score of 35-6 Saturday. The Mustangs were never strained to their fullest efforts and more of the game was played through the second half.

The game was played at the new Cyclone Stadium, with second and third string players playing the entire half. The Mustangs led at the half 29-6. Coach Bell resorted almost entirely to defensive tactics to give the Mustangs defensive experience. The game had been a close one for about two minutes when the Mustang center, Art Johnson, blocked a Washington kick, which was recovered by the Mustang on the 20 yard line. On the next play Burt passed to Wilson, who carried the ball to the 9 yard line. On the next play Wilson skirted left end for a touchdown. About four plays later, Washington fumbled, and S. M. recovered on the 17 yard line. The Mustangs made their first down on the 15 yard line. At the end of the quarter Matty Bell led an entire new team, and the third play of the second quarter, Finley passed to Acker at the goal line for a third down. Washington scored a few moments later on a beautiful long pass and threatened to score in several of his regulars including Bobby Wilson and Shuford. Two plays later, Russell intercepted a Washington pass and, after carrying the ball about 15 yards, made a forward pass to Wilson, who ran the remaining seventy yards for a touchdown. This was the outstanding play of the game. It was a few moments later that the Mustangs plucked a Washington player out of the air and dashed 75 yards for another touchdown. The game ended the scoring until the fourth quarter, when the Mustangs, doing some great passing, recovered the ball to the ten yard line and then, circling left end, went to the one foot line. The Mustangs carried it over from there. None of the Mustangs were injured in the game other than usual bruises, and they returned home with their eyes and ears centered on the opening conference battle with Rice at Bobby Stadium next Saturday afternoon. This game will be one of the stand-out games of the conference season, and the outcome is that the teams will play in a packed stadium.

LARGE CROWDS ATTENDING GAMES

Clear More in Single Game than Season Formerly Did

The erection and equipment of the new Cyclone Stadium is proving to be quite a profitable move for the Athletic Council, when you consider the attendance which has been present at the two home games which have been played this season.

The game with LeFors week before last cleared $200.30, over all expenses, while Friday's game with McLean netted $275.30 above expenses.

Before the erection of the new stadium, an entire season sometimes failed to clear as much, over game expenses, as has been cleared per game so far this season.

Memphis is football conscious, and the new stadium is proving a powerful magnet on Friday nights when the Cyclone is playing at home.

By next season there is no doubt that additional seating space will have to be provided to accommodate the crowds.

A pleasant warning, issued by a smiling traffic policeman, would help prevent accidents, says Detroit commissioner. We'd imagine the dazed driver would collide with the first thing that passed.

In Ethiopia, drums will bring the natives up in arms. Over here, the trick is accomplished with saxophones.

'Pay' Expose Hits Harvard Captain

After the Harvard athletic committee had ruled him ineligible, because of infractions of a rule that prohibits athletes from receiving financial assistance from persons on whom they are not naturally dependent, Bob Haley, above, of Winthrop, Mass., resigned from the football team. Haley, quarterback and captain, stated he had unknowingly violated the rule.

FIRST DOWN - AND THEN SOME

BY HARRY GRAYSON

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—If Minnesota enjoys another big year, and indication are that the Gophers will, there'll be no end to the number of Maroon and Gold gridiron principals who'll be going to the handiest hospital next autumn and saying: "Here y'are, Doc, snip it off right at the joint."

They die for dear old Rutgers, so what good Minnesota man wouldn't forfeit a finger for his alma mater?

Last year it was the famous Pug Lund who gave up a finger so that a chronic bone injury would not hamper him.

This fall it is Sig Harris, reserve coach and scout, who has parted with one of his digits, but not in the line of self-sacrifice. Harris came out second best in an altercation with a neighbor's dog. The bowwow got hold of Harris' right hand and took a large bite. Blood poisoning set in and surgeons amputated a finger to insure against further complications.

The accident is being taken as a good omen, for after Lund lost his finger a year ago, Minnesota went on to victory over mighty Pittsburgh, an undefeated season, and the best claim to the national championship.

This year, with another splendid team, the Vikings are more likely than not to repeat, which, among other things, practically would make the finger-amputation business an annual event.

Returns With a Kick

Johnny Kabealo was the Forgotten Man of the Ohio State squad when it reported this fall. Two years ago a sophomore Kabealo gave several of the best exhibitions of long-distance, coffin-corner kicking seen in the Western Conference since Harry Kipke last laid foot to the ball for Michigan in 1923. In addition, Kabealo showed plenty of ball-carrying ability and defensive strength. He was stamped as a coming star.

Kabealo fell down as a junior, however — fizzled miserably. His punting was ragged and fair at best. He was overweight, and slow starting into the line. His defensive ability suffered in proportion. They said that he had been nothing more than a flesh in the pan; that he was all washed up.

COTTON FREAK

J. W. Shields, a farmer living 2 1/2 miles west of Lesley, brought a 6-inch branch off a cotton stalk into the office last Saturday, which had 12 well developed but small bolls on it. It looked more like a bunch of grapes than cotton.

But Kabealo came back in September weighting 10 pounds less, and the results have been astounding. Instead of being just another back, he is "way off" ahead of the pack in the race for the fullback post. His speed is increased two-fold. His punting leg comes up with the 1933 snap and power, with the result that his kicking is a joy to behold.

Three sophomores were rated ahead of Kabealo at the outset. Jumping Joe Williams, Jim McDonald, and Nardi. They haven't fallen down. Kabealo simply has come back, making the Buckeyes tough enough to start with, tougher than ever.

The Bigger They Are . . . ?

Unless one of the other coaches gets hold of a circus freak and drafts him for duty, Ossie Solem, of Iowa, will turn loose the biggest man in the Big Ten this year.

Floyd DeHeer, sophomore tackle prospect, is the Hawkeye behemoth. He stands a mere six feet seven and weighs a cool 240.

It is very likely that DeHeer will draw a starting assignment, and if he is able to overcome some of his awkwardness and lost motion, Solem expects him to develop into a first-rate tackle.

discovered that he had led her to 10 or 15 minutes and then come back. Come on."

She found herself obeying, and before she could find another word to say the car had moved away from the curb and Sandy was guiding it through traffic.

"This isn't really a date, you know," he said.

"Isn't it?"

"My, no! I can't be having dates with a woman that's practically engaged. Anyhow, it looks like I can't. Say, sister, when are you going to forget about that gag, anyhow?"

"It isn't a gag."

"Well, whatever it is. Those horses are getting lonesome for us already."

"That was a nice ride," said Jean, incautiously.

Sandy chuckled.

"You mean to say you're never going to have another with me?"

She looked at him for a moment, and then instead of replying, looked away. They were out of the downtown district already, heading east along one of the through boulevards. She looked at her wrist watch and turned again to Sandy with a little frown.

"Sandy, take me back now. I told you I had to meet someone."

"What time's your date for?"

"Well, it isn't exactly a date."

"Oh—you mean you didn't have an agreement to meet anybody? You were just going to meet 'em on your own hook?"

She nodded.

Sandy grinned, and settled down a little more firmly behind the steering wheel, and increased his speed.

"Well, in that case," he said jubilantly, "I'm afraid you're not going to get there. We're going places."

An expression of mild alarm came on her face.

"Sandy! I ought to get back downtown. . . . Where are we going?"

"Oh, just out to a little place I know by the river, where we can hire a canoe and go paddling up among the water lilies and such-like, and then eat some supper when we get hungry."

"Sandy, please take me back downtown."

He looked at her; perhaps he saw, in her eyes that she would not be so angry if he refused. At any rate he shook his head with a mocking smile and said, "Not a chance."

So they kept on driving, and half a hour later they were out of the city, following a highway that led to a little suburban town which lay in the valley of the misnamed Grand river. The river was small and not in the least grand, but it was picturesque, winding a lazy way between green fields, with great drooping willows on its low banks; and Sandy stopped the car besides a little casino, where there was a modest restaurant and a boathouse.

They got out and in a few moments Jean was reclining luxuriously in a canoe, which Sandy, seated in the stern facing her, was sending upstream with practiced, seemingly effortless strokes.

"I don't know if I can keep from running into things or not," he said. "It's hard to watch where I'm going with you down there in front of me to look at."

She smiled lazily and glanced out at the trees on the nearest bank.

"You do lay it on thick, don't you?" she asked.

"Thick!" said Sandy indignantly. "Say, if I ever started talking the way I really do feel, you'd jump out of the canoe."

She flushed, and confided to him.

"Please not, Sandy," she said. "I've got to be home tonight for my date."

To her surprise he did not insist. He started the car and drove

WE DRIVERS

A Series of Brief Discussions on Driving, Dedicated to the Safety, Comfort and Pleasure of the Motoring Public. Prepared by General Motors

No. 1—CURVES AND TURNS

NO MATTER how expert we may be as drivers, we are all apt to fall into habits of driving that don't quite measure up to what we really know is right.

For instance, we all know that we ought to be careful about passing cars, especially when another car is approaching from the opposite direction.

And yet there possibly isn't one of us who hasn't, at one time or another, moved over in the road to pass a car, and then wondered if we would get around in time.

Now here's an interesting thing about that. When we try to pass a car that's going forty miles an hour, it's just the same as if we tried to pass a standing string of cars 126 feet long. In other words, it's like passing eight cars parked bumper-to-bumper in the road. If we try to pass one going sixty, it's like trying to pass a line of more than sixteen cars standing in the road, and sixteen cars in a row will reach half a block. This is probably a new idea to most of us. If we kept it in mind, we would never pass a car unless we were sure that there were no oncoming cars for a good long distance ahead.

But turning aside to pass is not the particular kind of turning that we are interested in discussing here. What we are now concerned with is taking curves and corners. From time to time in these discussions we will find that the same old laws of Nature will be involved. Foremost among them will be the laws of momentum, and momentum plays the major part in going around curves. Because momentum not only wants to keep us going, but going in the same direction. When it is trying to make us go straight instead of curving our course, it operates under an assumed name, if you please. For then we call it "centrifugal force."

Now of course we all know what centrifugal force is. We feel it when we go around curves. Highways and railroads are banked at curves to offset centrifugal force. Aviators bank their planes at turns by tipping them with the controls. But even though we all know about centrifugal force, few of us realize how powerful it is, and how much greater it gets the faster we go.

A 3000-pound car making a turn of 500-foot radius, has to overcome a centrifugal force of only about 156 pounds at 20 miles an hour. But at 30 miles an hour, that force has grown to 360 pounds, and at 60 it is nine times as great as at 20. . . . over fourteen hundred pounds trying its best to push us off the road! The only thing that keeps us on the road in the first place is the friction between our tires and the road. The minute the centrifugal force gets stronger than the force of that friction, off the road we go.

The trouble is that we often don't realize how fast we're going. On road trips, for instance, after we have driven at a certain speed for a long time, it seems a small matter to increase our speed a few miles an hour. Then after a while we may do the same thing again. In other words, we keep putting forward our basis of comparison till by-and-by we have lost our usual sense of how fast we are going.

Then, the first thing we know, we are face-to-face with a turn or even half way around it and we feel Old Man Centrifugal Force trying to push us off the road.

So what do we do? We clamp down the brakes. It's the only thing we can do when we find we're going too fast. But just the same, approaching that corner too fast has kept us from taking it as we should have liked to. For if conditions permit, it is often desirable to increase speed as we go around a curve. As long as our rear wheels are not being retarded, but are actually pushing us around the curve, our steering is effective and our car is under control.

The long and short of it is that we can't take liberties with the laws of momentum and centrifugal force. Man's speed laws may not always be observed, but Nature's speed laws always are!

look out over the side, and made haste to start the conversation off on a new track.

They went up the river for nearly a mile, and then Sandy paddled into a quiet backwater beneath an overhanging willow tree, let the bow swing slowly downstream, and then kept the canoe from drifting by jabbing the paddle into the mud of the river bottom and hooking one elbow around it. Jean had a moment's fear that he might want to share her place in the bottom of the canoe; but the thought seemed not to enter his head, and he remained where he was, looking down at her, idly smoking, and talking in his customary half-mocking drawl.

At last when the tree's shadows had lengthened to touch the opposite bank, Sandy sat up, pulled the paddle up, swished the blade through the water to wash off the dark stains, and started back to the boathouse. And when they got there Jean discovered that she was hungry, so they ate dinner in the unpretentious little restaurant at a table on a rickety veranda overlooking the water.

By the time they had finished it was nearly dark. Sandy led the way out to the car; and when they had got in he paused, with one hand on the ignition switch, to look up at her and said, "Well, what do you say about a long ride, now, and come home by moonlight?"

She hesitated, then shook her head.

"Please not, Sandy," she said. "I've got to be home tonight for my date."

To her surprise he did not insist. He started the car and drove her to her apartment with all due dispatch. On the way he had little to say; but when he drove to the curb at her door he grinned at her and said, "Now, there was no harm done, was there, by our having a little date for ourselves?"

She shook her head and smiled.

"Well, then—how about another, some time, soon?"

"Sandy, you're the most insistent person. . . . We'll see."

He laughed boyishly and opened the door for her. To her surprise he did not try to kiss her good night; he simply sat at the wheel and watched her as she crossed the walk and entered the building.

As she came into her apartment the telephone was ringing. She answered, to hear Bobby's voice:

"Hey, where you been? I been trying to get you," he said, excitedly. "Listen, Jean—Mr. Montague's going to buy those bonds—and I'm going to make two thousand dollars on the deal!"

your son and daughter? They'd get lots of fun preparing and serving simul- taneously even before they've reached their teens. Day night supper is a fine thing to start with. And here's that's seasonal and appealing within a beginner's to prepare:

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Grapes, cereal, cream, baked omelet with tomatoes, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Cream of celery soup, croutons, head lettuce with French dressing, nut roll, sweet cider.
DINNER: Creamed salt fish with baked potatoes, buttered beets, fruit and nut salad, cheese cups, milk, coffee.

Marshmallow Charlotte
1/2 cup whipping cream, 1/2 cup cut marshmallows, 1 1/2 cups granulated gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 1 cup crushed ice, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 1/2 lemons juice, 1 dozen lady fingers in cold water when marshmallows in small pieces. Whip cream until stiff. Add to the gelatin mixture. Use rotary beater to whip the mixture. Combine cream and marshmallows. Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Bring pineapple to the boil and add soaked gelatin. Strain at once from the fire and add sugar and lemon juice. Place in a pan containing this mixture. Chill in a larger pan of ice water until firm. Line paper cups with lady fingers which have been split, putting the split side up. Fill with the mixture. Chill in the refrigerator.

tor until wanted to serve. The recipe makes four servings.

Spaghetti and Mushrooms
To make the spaghetti with mushrooms you will need one 8-ounce package of spaghetti, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 pound round steak ground, 1 medium sized onion, 1-2 pound mushrooms, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 cup grated cheese.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water for twenty-five minutes, breaking it in pieces or cooking it whole as you prefer. Drain and put on a heat-proof platter. Pour over sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese and slide under the broiler long enough to melt the cheese.
To make the sauce: Melt butter, add onion cut in thin slices and cook slowly five minutes. Add chopped meat and cook twenty minutes, stirring to prevent sticking and burning. Add salt and pepper and tomatoes and cook fifteen minutes longer. Add 1-2 cup boiling water and mushrooms which have been cleaned and cut in thin slices. Cook twenty minutes longer, stirring occasionally.

WHY NOT HERE?

By Associated Press
PAMPA, Oct. 14.—A campaign designed to safeguard the lives of school children has resulted in two persons being fined $32 each, for passing a stopped school bus.

Bus drivers take the license numbers of offending cars, and they are filed under the state law requiring vehicles to stop and remain stopped until the bus has started again.

LUFKIN, Oct. 14.—A traffic law enforcement campaign, inaugurated by the police department in connection with "Safety Week" here, resulted in 105 tickets being handed to traffic ordinance violators. Only 24 traffic arrests had been made this year until the enforcement drive was started.

Charges included cutting corners, running stop signs, making U-turns and speeding. All first-offense fines were $1, except speeding fines, which were $12.70.

AMARILLO FAIR THANKS HALL COUNTY

Wilbur Hawk Writes Thanks to Local Chamber

Following is a letter received by F. V. Clark, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, from Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the Amarillo Tri-State Fair. It is being printed here because of its general interest to Hall County residents.

"Mr. Clark
"Chamber of Commerce
"Memphis, Texas
"Dear Mr. Clark:

"The auditors have just completed the final audit of the Tri-State Fair. Their figures reveal by far the most successful fair in the history of this regional exposition, not only from a point of unusual exhibits in every department, the interest manifested by the visitors and its most satisfactory financial success, but the attendance was the largest in history.

"With the free gate system, attendance is the fundamental principal to the success of any exposition. The officers and directors of the Tri-State Fair thoroughly realize and appreciate that it was the cooperation and effort put forth by the good cities throughout the Panhandle of Texas, Eastern New Mexico and Western Oklahoma who visited the Tri-State Fair in large groups like yours, many of which were headed by their colorful bands.

"I am without words to express the sincere appreciation of myself and corps of assistants for the cooperation and assistance your citizens gave to the fair this and past years.

"Will you, in some appropriate way, deliver our message of appreciation to every individual in your community, and if you or they find where we may lend you a helping hand, will you do us the honor of so commanding us?"

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Thompson and children and Mrs. Thompson's mother, Mrs. J. E. Neel, of Clarendon, spent yesterday in Memphis as the guests of Mr. Thompson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Thompson.

NEW CASHIER

H. G. Clift, for several months cashier at the local West Texas Utilities office, has been transferred to the Childress office, and his place here will be taken, starting tomorrow, by J. T. Carter, who is being transferred here from Quitaque.

RUSH CREWS DIES

Rush Crews, a pioneer West Texas cattleman, and well known in this city, died Friday night at Mineral Wells, following several months of ill health. He will probably be buried at Childress, which city was formerly his home.

COMMISSIONERS COURT

The Hall County Commissioners court convened this morning in the regular monthly session and is meeting in an all-day meeting. County Judge Jim Vallance, who is presiding over the court, said that only routine business matters were up for action.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Roberts of Abilene arrived Saturday night and yesterday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Roberts, and her mother, Mrs. C. D. Denny. Mrs. Denny and daughter, Jean, went to Abilene with them to spend until Wednesday.

Mrs. Attamae Lane and son, Robert, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith went to Plainview yesterday to take Mrs. Lane's sister, Mrs. S. B. Upton, who had been her guest for three weeks.

E. J. Posey and son, E. J. Jr., of Anton, spent yesterday here with his brother-in-law, W. E. McGlocklin, who is still very ill at the Clark Hospital. His brother, Claud McGlocklin, also spent yesterday here on account of Mr. McGlocklin being seriously ill.

L. R. McGlocklin of Yuma, Ariz., is here to spend until Saturday with his father, W. E. McGlocklin, who is dangerously ill at the Clark Hospital.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)
