1,000 Hear West Texas Champs In Home Concert

Memphis' new Gold Medal Band, formerly the Black and Gold Band, made its initial appearance last night in a mammoth downtown concert. An audience estimated at almost 1,000 persons heard the new official band of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce give a 30-minute concert in front of the office of The Daily Democrat. Led by their little mascot, Ouida Read, and their snappy drum major, Omer Johnsey, the 35-piece Gold Medal Band paraded the square from the band house on Main Street, returning to the Democrat office for the concert. While on march, Director Cicero Milan led the boys in the difficult contest number "Sliding Some," played while winning the title of Official West Texas Chamber of Commerce Band at the Plainview convention Tuesday. Following the short concert at The Daily Democrat office, a word of appreciation was spoken by Earl Johnson, drummer. Mr. Johnson bespoke the appreciation of the band for the strong local backing and solicited continued backing in the future. He also introduced the mascot, the drum major and Director Milan. Each was given a big ovation.

U. S. Would Bar Judge as Biased

Unusual situation of the government trying to bar a federal judge from presiding at an important trial, alleging bias, is presented in the Detroit closed bank trials, where legal steps have been taken against Judge Ernest A. O'Brien, above, by Atty. Gen. Homer S. Cummings. The government's first move, which failed, was based on alleged dealings of the judge's wife with some of the banks.

AMARILLO GETS 1936 WTCC CONVENTION

Memphis Band To Be Official; Vernon Man President
Special to The Democrat
PLAINVIEW, May 16.—"It's Amarillo's turn!" That was the war cry of the Amarillo delegation in the contest for next year's convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and a majority of the delegates agreed with the sentiment by casting their ballots in favor of the Panhandle metropolis. Nichols Is President
Ray H. Nichols, publisher of the Vernon Daily Record, was elected president to guide the destinies of the WTCC during the coming year. Amarillo won the convention by a vote of 1,486 to 640 for Wichita Falls. Fort Worth and Brownwood, the other contenders, withdrew, Brownwood throwing its strength into the Amarillo column. Balloting was held for two hours Tuesday afternoon, and was resumed yesterday morning, with the counting of votes starting at noon. The selection of the 1936 convention city was the final business of this year's meeting, which opened here Monday. Gilstrap Gratified
Bill Gilstrap, in charge of the Amarillo convention campaign committee, issued a statement following the voting in which he expressed his gratification at the friendly spirit that prevailed throughout the contest. Amarillo last entertained the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in 1926, when 26,000 visitors flooded the city. The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce is said to be ready to launch preparations immediately for handling next spring's session. The Gold Medal band from Memphis was selected as the official band for next year, succeeding the Ralls New Deal band. The annual poster contest was won by an entry depicting Fort Worth as the "meat packing monarch of the Southwest." Bauden Commended
D. A. Bauden, manager of the chamber, was commended for changing last year's $27,000 deficit into a $19,680 cash balance. H. H. Fennell of Dalhart, regional director for the federal soil erosion service, told a group conference that the loss of top soil was due largely to reduction of organic matter content through mistakes in cultivation. He said wind velocity since 1933 had been no greater than in previous years. He recommended listing, terracing, contouring and cover cropping.

White House Announces Definite Veto of Bonus

EYES ON THE GOVERNORSHIP

Alabama Film Beauty in Race—in 1952!
It's a fair prospect indeed that faces Alabama voters, with Gail Patrick, above, Alabama's pride in the movies, planning to make the race for governor. First she'll flash this dazzling smile in the courts, planning to become a lawyer, for which she already has studied, after she's finished in the films. Then—in 1952, when she'll be 40, the legal age—she's going after the governor's job and she wants everyone to know she's serious in her ambition.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The White House announced definitely today that the President will veto the Patman bonus bill. It also emphasized it was the earnest hope of the President that Congress will support the veto. The announcement was given through the President's secretary, Stephen Early, in response to published statements that some administration leaders might like to see the veto overridden for political purposes. Just when the bonus bill will be sent to the White House has not been determined. It may be tomorrow or next week. Early said the President is not interested in the bonus because of political reasons or political expediency. "In his message the President will present as forceful an argument as he has," Early said. The White House move obviously was undertaken to check any loss of administration strength through published reports that some party leaders thought it might be well to have the bonus enacted over the veto and gotten out of the way now.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Expressing confidence they had picked up some votes, Senate supporters of the Patman Bonus Bill today decided to let it go to the White House for President Roosevelt's veto. Senator Thomas said he would withdraw his motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed, which has kept it tied up in the Senate more than a week, with the understanding that a crucial vote to override the President's veto not come up until next week.

Clean-Up Campaign Near Climax But Extra Time To Be Granted

A city-wide clean-up campaign is reaching its climax today as four workmen and two city trucks are canvassing alleys and streets to collect cans and trash that have been accumulated by city property owners who are co-operating in the official clean-up campaign. Today and tomorrow have been set aside as official clean-up days by Mayor J. A. Whaley, who Saturday designated all this week as clean-up week. N. E. Burk, chairman of the city council street and alley committee, is in charge of the campaign. "Although today and tomorrow were designated as the days for the city dump trucks to make the rounds of the alleys, we will continue indefinitely until the entire town is thoroughly cleaned," Mr. Burk said this morning. Due to the rains of the early part of the week, property owners will be given additional time to clean up their premises, he said. Only cans and other nonperishable or nonflammable material will be picked up by the city trucks. Chief of Police Bill Huddleston this morning issued a warning that all accumulation of manure and other perishables must be disposed of by the property owner or the person in charge of the premises. "For the sake of the health, these places must be cleaned, and we are urging fullest co-operation before more drastic measures will have to be taken," he said.

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, is discontented and restless because her wealthy father, VICTOR STRYKHURST, and her aristocratic stepmother, BERTINE, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of work.

Katharine rides daily with MICHAEL HEATHEROE, young westerner who runs a riding club. She assures herself she is not interested in Michael but feels a pang of jealousy when SALLY MOON, local coquette, enrolls at the club for lessons.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, returns from Europe where she has been taken to forget a love affair with GIBBS LARKIN, of whom her parents disapprove. Zoe begs Katharine to help her arrange a meeting with Gibbs. Katharine refuses.

DR. JOHN KAYE, relative of Katharine's stepmother, returns from Europe to start medical practice. Katharine welcomes him as a friend.

CHAPTER V

No one in his right mind could have called John Kaye handsome, but there was something arresting about his lean, ascetic face, about the blue eyes smiling behind the rimless glasses. He had blunt-fingered hands with close-clipped nails—a surgeon's hands—and his light brown hair was thinning at the crown.

He held her hands now, smiling back at Katharine. "Just off the boat?" he said.

"You came right out! Why, you nice thing!"

She flushed, the thought of Zoe intruding at the very moment. Zoe would have said, "You lamb," and "You darling," and "You precious." But even with Johnny, who, Katharine said to herself, was like the brother she'd never had, she could not be quite so familiar. Never mind—Johnny liked her as she was!

"What's troubling you?" The keen eyes looked her over in such friendly fashion she could not resent it. "You're thinner. But haven't you grown?"

"You've been gone two years, Johnny dear." It slipped out before she noticed it. She ticked off the names on her fingers: "Munich, Vienna, Paris. How many degrees have you now?"

He smiled. "Learned a few things—that's all."

"And what now?"

"Now—well, I'm staying in New York for a while. Old Munster has asked me to come in with him."

"Dr. Hugo Munster? Oh, Johnny, that's marvelous!"

She could be herself with him, as always. John Kaye, who was a distant cousin of Bertine's and had lived in the house during holidays, when he had been attending medical school.

They sat down together. "Tell me everything, Johnny." "I want to know about you."

He had a gentle voice, a good doctor's voice, and a good doctor's probing, intelligent look.

oddy childish. "Oh, nothing much. The same old deadly round!"

"How's the sketching?"

She frowned. "Daddy didn't like the idea of the life class. Honestly, John, he has prehistoric ideas. Anyhow, I'm not any good."

Her black mood threatened to descend again. "Nonsense, you're great. Don't be a defeatist. How about college?"

She ruffled her hair. "I had two years of it, you know; but I flunked math. I take French afternoons from Ma'mselle Audice down in the village. Anyhow—I loathe girls' colleges—all proms and hockey and hand-made sweaters."

He gave a great laugh at her description. "Johnny, what I want is to begin to live. This," her comprehensive glance swept the big, richly-furnished room, "this isn't living."

"Well, it's very comfortable," John Kaye said, producing a limp packet of cigarettes. "How's Bertine?"

"Oh, she's a dynamo of energy as usual. She makes me feel futile."

"You need more iron in your system." But he spoke absently. She had the sensation he wasn't really attending to his words. "In love?"

Scarlet flooded her face. "Dear, dear, what's the matter with everyone today?" She tried to laugh, but did not make much of a success at it.

"Everyone?"

"Oh, Zoe Parker was talking—"

"Little cuddly, cunning Zoe?"

"The same."

"She still as pretty?"

"Oh, very!"

"Well, what was she talking to you about?"

"She thinks," said Katharine slowly, "that I'm the original ice maiden: says men are afraid of me—my type, at least. Is it true?"

He exhaled deliberately before answering. "I'm not."

"Oh, you Johnny! You're my best friend!"

"Mean that?"

"Absolutely!"

Bertine bustled in then, very cordial and enthusiastic. Johnny must say—well, he must bring his bags out for the week-end, at least, until he'd found a place in town. He was going to have an apartment? Well, then, she (Bertine) would help him to furnish it. The second Mrs. Strykhurst was on the shady side of 50. Her hair was a clear, almost dazzling white, always beautifully clipped and waved. She had sparkling dark eyes and a rosy skin. Her energy always made Katharine feel limp and lifeless. Now, as she whirled out of the room to leave instructions with the maids about Dr. Kaye's room, Katharine reacted as usual.

"You see what I mean?" she asked John cautiously.

He nodded. "All the Kayes are like that. Steam rollers."

Katharine threw out her hands. "I hate to seem to complain, but Bertine would honestly be much happier here at home without me."

I dream around—she liked people with what she calls pep. She would like me to run the Junior League and the Girls' Club and take on the Camp Fire groups in my spare time."

John shouted again, so joyously that Ellen, dusting mahogany in the hall, peeped within as she passed, with an answering smile.

"You're a worker, Kay. I've seen you fling yourself into things. The time of that fire over in Burtville—why, you were only 16, and you nearly killed yourself, rushing back and forth."

"Yes, but the trouble is," said the girl, "most of the time there's really nothing for me to do. Bertine runs the house and the grounds and Daddy would like me to marry some Nice Boy and be done with it."

"Well, why don't you?"

"Perhaps I will, some day; but now . . ."

"You ought to take nurse's training," John Kaye said suddenly, in the silence. "That'd keep you busy."

"Oh, John, would you give me a job?"

"Certainly, if you were nice and neat and only wanted Thursdays off."

"That's a bargain. Look, I won't change for lunch now. Don't go away, will you?"

Dr. Kaye stood up as she did. She was conscious, in the cool room, of some quality of strength about this slender man with the quiet voice and the easy smile.

"Hurry back. I have lots to tell you."

Below the windows of her room shadows dappled the burning green of the lawn. In a far corner Guisepe adjusted the hose of a garden spray. Roses, white and pink and crimson, burned in the borders. As she flung the warm, wrinkled linen garments from her she could hear Bertine's staccato tones and John's deep voice in reply. A certain peace and contentment seemed to brood over the house.

Katharine slipped her arms into the sleeves of a creamy silk dressing gown with a dark blue monogram worked upon the pockets, and laced the heavy blue cord about her. In a bathroom whose tiles were the shade of the water in a shallow pool she ran her generous tub. Bertine might be a strenuous person to live with, but she was a good housekeeper. There were thick snowy towels in the racks; the bath salts and the fat balls of soap were greeny-blue; the chrome fixtures shone. Sheer curtains, spotless white, fluttered at the windows, and dolphins sported themselves on a green shower curtain.

Katharine, soaping and splashing, had a vision of herself in starched white at an office door.

"Dr. Kaye? But he's expecting you, Mrs. Browning . . ."

She would be the one who would count sponges at the grave operation. She would save the little boy gasping for breath . . . She would have a life work of her very own.

The day dream lasted through the long, bright afternoon, through two sets of tennis with John Kaye. It lasted, in fact, until portly, pleasant Mr. Strykhurst came home to dinner.

"Little Kay a nurse? What nonsense?"

He beamed at her. "Nonsense, my darling! Nonsense. Don't worry your pretty head about the troubles of the world!"

"You mean I can't take training, father?"

"Just that, my dear."

John Kaye, across the lace-trimmed cloth, across the crystal candlesticks, shook his head at her warningly. She put her head down to hide the sudden, traitorous tears. Why, this was absurd! Daddy was living in the Stone Age . . .

Later, strolling with John on the lawn in the dew-soaked twilight, trailing her sheer petal pink laces after her, she said mutinously: "Never mind. It won't be forever, and he knows it."

"He's a little bit old-fashioned, Katharine . . ." John's deep, serene voice.

"A little bit! Bertine could help me, but she won't. She's too anxious to conform." Her voice was cold, angry. "Never mind," she went on. "Next spring when I get my mother's money, I'll do as I please."

She was very lovely in the half light. The man beside her glanced at her curiously. Those dark eyes had lightened to many moods all day.

"Next spring, my dear," he said easily. "Many things may have happened to you before then."

She flung back her head with an angry laugh. "Do you think I'm going to let me, John Kaye? Nothing on earth can do that to me."

Six Memphis Golfers Enter Green Belt Tourne

PRESENT, TWO PAST CHAMPS ON LIST

10th Annual Event Slated at Quanah Next Week

Six Memphis Country Club golfers, including the present titleholder and two former champions, will journey to Quanah Sunday for the 10th annual tournament of the Green Belt Golf Association Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The same group will make up the Memphis team entry to compete for the team championship—an honor the local club apparently has an excellent chance of winning.

All six golfers are considered of championship flight competition.

Defending Champ
Thomas Hampton, the defending Green Belt champion, heads the list of local entrants. Regal Greenhaw and Frank Foxhall are the past champions, the latter twice holder of the title, who will be a member of the Memphis contingent. The group is completed by Carl Harrison, R. S. Greene and J. D. Webster, all of championship flight caliber.

Qualifying rounds of 18 holes medal play will get underway at 8 o'clock Monday morning, to be played in threesomes leaving No. 1 tee at five minute intervals. The driving contest will be held at No. 1 tee at 5 p. m.

Matched Play Schedule
First round match play in all flights will begin at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, with the second round scheduled at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Quarter and semi-final rounds will be played Wednesday, beginning at 8 a. m. and 1 p. m., respectively.

The first round of the championship flight will get underway at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Finals in all other flights start at 8:30 a. m.

The second round of the championship match begins at 1:30 p. m., and trophies and prizes will be awarded at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

128 To Qualify
One hundred and twenty-eight players will qualify in four flights of 32 players each.

The entertainment program in connection with the tournament is as follows:

Monday, 3:30 p. m.—Bridges and forty-two at club house; 8 p. m.—Columbia smoker; 9 p. m.—Annual meeting and election of executive committee and officers.
Tuesday, 9 p. m.—Dance at club house.
Wednesday, 3:30 p. m.—Bridges and forty-two at club house.

Softball League Opens Play Tomorrow Night

DOUBLE BILLS OFFERED ON SCHEDULE

Three Out-of-Town One Local Club Start Play

With everything set for the opening of the strongest softball loop gathered in the Memphis Area, a doubleheader till tomorrow night will start the race for the championship of the City Softball League.

Three out-of-town clubs and one local outfit open the season at 8 o'clock under the floodlights of Fair Park Stadium tomorrow night. In the first game, Hedley clashes with DeWitt's Tailors of Estelline. In the second game, Tarver's tangles with the Salisbury marines.

With 16 men to the club, the league will follow all national softball rules. The games will go seven innings each, giving the playing time of the two games slightly more than two hours.

A huge crowd of softball fans is expected to be on hand for the opening clashes and to get a glimpse of the game under lights and with the new, harder ball that is expected to make the game more exciting than last year, when scores of fans witnessed play in the Church League.

With the first game starting at 8 o'clock, the second tilt will get underway at 9 o'clock or shortly thereafter.

Eight clubs will make their bow in the first week of play, which will be completed Tuesday night. The Turkey entry, Ballard's Tailors and Harrison and Thompson Hardware teams are the clubs to be seen in action during the second session.

The season will run for 14 weeks, with a split schedule. The first round will be completed on July 2 and the second on August 20. At the close of the season, the winners of the two halves, if they are won by different clubs, will hold a championship play-off series.

For the past two weeks or more each club has been organized and preparing for the start of the flag race. At the offset, the wisecracks refuse to make a prediction on the possible outcome of the race.

SPORTSMAN'S SCRAPBOOK

By OLIVER M. DEIBLER, Pennsylvania Commissioner of Fisheries

Endeavoring to assure good trout fishing for coming generations, the Pennsylvania Board of Fish Commissioners instituted a comprehensive stream improvement program last year. This program, I am glad to say, is bearing fruit.

Stream improvement work has been carried on in a great many counties, many of which received FERA funds, and in others the work was carried on under the direction of local sportsmen's organizations.

Typical of this work was the Spring Creek project near Bellefonte. Assisted by E. R. Hewitt, noted trout authority, we constructed a series of retard and deflector dams along a mile stretch of this stream, heavily stocked it with trout, and watched developments.

We found that the dams were just the thing for this stretch of water, previously practically barren of fish. They provided fast water, eddies, varying currents, and all other types of water nec-

Connie Mack suggests Toledo as a parking place for the St. Louis Browns. "Serious thought unquestionably is being given a possible transfer," says the 72-year-old manager of the AAAA's. The Philadelphia patriarch declares that his 45-year-old son, Earl, will succeed him when it is time for him to retire. Earl and Connie, Jr., the latter fresh from Duke University, are understudying their illustrious father. Earl has managed pennant-winning minor league outfits. Those who saw Obie Walker, a large Negro, belt some of the boys around in Philadelphia a couple of years ago feel sorry for the other entrants in the International Boxing Union's tournament in Paris to decide Max Baer's "successor." Joe Leckl, of Rockford, borrowed a leaf from the surgeon's notebook and had the moving parts of his racing car, the Burd Piston Ring Special, radiographed in preparation for the 500-mile grind at Indianapolis on May 30. The operation required nearly a month and cost more than $3000. Leneki's machine is powered with a motor of his own design with a number of innovations. Several top-notch pilots are under consideration.

Waters Batting Average
While the Red Sox and Indians idled in Cleveland the other day Joe Cronin, in the throes of a slump, had the tarpaulin removed from the infield at League Park and spent the afternoon soaking water-soaked baseballs propelled by a recruit pitcher. Groundkeepers did the shagging. Moose Kalbaugh, captain, and Kats Kadlic, quarterback of the 1934 Princeton football team, will assist Coach Fritz Crisler next fall. Norman E. Brooks, Australia's renowned left-handed internationalist, rates Bill Tilden the greatest tennis player of all time. Bob Cooper, former Detroit high school athlete, won the Chicago Alumni Cup, awarded each year to the Michigan football player making the best showing in spring practice. Freddie Lindstrom has been a teetotaler ever since the late John McGraw gave him a drink on the train carrying the Giants back to New York from Washington following the world series of 1924.

It will be recalled that a grounder struck a pebble and bonned over the head of Lindstrom, then 18, to decide the series in favor of the Senators. McGraw wishing to cheer his young third baseman up, poured a water-glass full of whiskey in his enthusiasm. "I was the big bundle under the raincoat on George Kelly's back as old High Peckets swung out of the station to a cab," smiles Lindstrom.

Bring Their Own Gold
Most professionals reach the end of the winter golf trail with a deficit. They pay their own expenses from coast to coast, and not a few drop out due to lack of funds. Although he was second only to Henry Picard among the money winners on the five months' trek with $3996, Johnny Revolta had only $512 to show for his remarkable performances at the windup. And Revolta and Picard, who were accompanied by their wives, figured they cut down expenses by teaming up and motoring.

Abraham Lincoln Monteverde, of Los Angeles, aged 66, plans to start in the 26-mile 385-yard National A. A. U. marathon in Washington on June 1. Walter Haegen, Jr., son of the famous professional and student at Manlius, won three of his school's nine points in a match with Syracuse Central High. Victor W. Killesrath, who won in 1930 and 1931, will return to Gold Cup speedboat competition this year. Dick Degener, of Detroit, who holds 10 National A. A. U. and intercollegiate diving titles, announces that he will retire to enter business after one more year.

Essary for this prima donna of the fish family to exist. Satisfactory results realized from this experiment have spread the plan through the state, and already supervisors from 86 CCC camps, as well as district foresters, all are engaged in work of this kind under supervision of the Fish Commission's engineer.

Owls Are Set for Two Battles

GREAT GOLF By Art Krenz

The thrill of scoring an ace in the British Open of 1921, over the historic old St. Andrews course, put Jack Hutchison in a joyous mood and spurred him on to win the tournament that year. However, it was on the ninth hole, following his eighth-hole ace, that he got his biggest kick out of golf.

"Right after that hole-in-one, I walked up to the ninth tee elated

To Meet Amarillo, Childress Outfits

While watching carefully to see what sort of weather is promised for the week-end, the Memphis Owls, luckless outfit in the Western Division of the Red River Valley Baseball League, are preparing for two tough battles at Fair Park Stadium here within three days.

Tomorrow afternoon the Owls are slated to take the field against the up and coming Amarillo Shamrocks; and Sunday's opponent will be the loop-leading Childress nine.

Both games probably will tax with success," he recounts.

"This hole is a trifle better than 300 yards, and I had to take a healthy cut with my wood to get near the green.

"The drive was a beauty, and I expected to be resting somewhere on the green. You can imagine my surprise when, after making the eighth hole in one, I found my tee shot resting three inches from the pin on the ninth green.

"The ball had carried to the pin with unerring accuracy, struck it, and rebounded a few inches. Those standing around said it would have dropped in for another ace had the pin been removed."

Congratulations . . . . Memphis Gold Medal Band

We're proud of you . . . and your director, Mr. Milam. You have upheld the wonderful traditions left you by your predecessor . . . and have again helped put Memphis on the map. This city has always been famous for its musical organizations, headed by the band, and we feel that words can hardly express our appreciation for your work at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention in Plainview. Practically a new band . . . some of you with only a few months of experience . . . you stepped right out and took first honors against much elder and more experienced organizations. We feel that you have just begun a career of honor and achievement in the musical field.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

A HIGH HONOR RETURNS TO MEMPHIS. It had been several years since Memphis was awarded high honors in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce's band contest...

The Memphis Black and Gold Band picked up where the parent organization left off in 1927 by capturing the W. T. C. C. contest at Plainview Tuesday—and brought back to Memphis the same enthusiasm that marked the eve of the first organization's reign in West Texas.

Perhaps the revived Gold Medal Band does not equal the famous organization that became known from coast to coast, but in some respects its victory is a more outstanding accomplishment. The old band was made up of tried and true musicians with whom band competition was all in the day's work...

The victory came as a distinct surprise here because few people knew that the band even contemplated entering the contest, but that did not lessen the thrill of learning that Memphis was again on the pinnacle of West Texas military musical attainment.

The work of the late Paul A. James lives on long after his own demise. Cicero Milan, long a student of the famous director, as naturally as he takes to music directs in the same manner and tempo as did the leader of one of the most noted municipal musical organizations in America.

This victory has awakened the enthusiasm of Memphis, and we now predict still greater success for Cicero and his group of music makers.

REGAIN FAITH—SEE AMERICA FIRST

YOU can hear a good deal of talk about the need for confidence, these days, if you listen for it; and after hearing about so much of it, you are apt to begin to wonder just why we need to do so much talking about it.

Confidence is essential, of course; but confidence in what? In the honesty or good sense of a particular group of politicians, financiers, business men, or labor leaders, or in the general health and robustness of the country as a whole?

In the long run, the latter is all that counts. America is so big and husky that she has stood up under an awful lot of hammering from selfish and misguided people in the past.

Politicians have misled her and robber barons of finance and industry have taken her for a ride, but nobody has ever been able to put her in the hospital for keeps.

Perhaps the best course for a person who feels this need of confidence would be to go out across the countryside and see what there is to be seen.

He could drive across millions of acres of the finest farming land on earth, past big barns and comfortable houses and green fields, amid sun-browned and brawny people who are more self-reliant, more intelligent, and more ambitious than any other group of farmers that ever existed.

He could go through the world's greatest workshops, where the most modern machinery on earth is teamed with the earth's most skilled workers under the direction of executives who know their jobs forward and backward, inside and out.

He could travel over the world's greatest transportation network, with paved roads, railway lines, waterways, and airplane fields to co-operate in the moving of people and goods on a scale never seen before.

He could visit the world's greatest oil fields, its most productive deposits of coal and iron and aluminum, its most stupendous hydro-electric plants; he could see a series of colleges and technical schools such as no other country can boast, busy at the job of providing trained leadership.

Confidence! It ought to be a drug on the market. This country is simply too big to lick. Not folly nor selfishness nor blindness can stop it.

HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Around your home you may be tormented by heat from a radiator, by cold, by heat from a flame, or occasionally by an electric shock. Burns, regardless of their cause, are painful injuries and, if extensive, inevitably threaten life itself.

Electric burns usually are divided into three degrees. First is simple reddening of the skin surface; second, destruction of the skin; and third, destruction of the tissues under the skin.

When a person is burned by an electric shock or when electricity passes through the body, the reaction may be temporary or he may be electrocuted. Whenever a current passes through the body...

If there is a leak in connection with the electric shock there may be injury to the eye from the glass. The surgeon for the Chicago railway says that direct current is less dangerous than alternating current, and that the most dangerous alternating current is that with cycles between 50 and 150.

Resistance of the skin to electric current varies in various individuals. If the skin is calloused, there is more resistance. There is less resistance where there is a large bloody supply, because the electric current follows the blood stream.

Usually, much depends on the organs of the body which happen to be reached by the electric current, because damage to the brain or the heart is much more likely to be fatal than to other organs and tissues.

Cases have actually been seen in which bones have been destroyed by electric current.

Pain depends on the amount of inflammation and extent to which the nervous system is involved. When a burn occurs in the home, you should remember that the pain comes from exposure of the nerve endings and inflammation.

Therefore, a burn which merely reddens the skin or destroys the skin can usually be treated satisfactorily with any good anti-septic ointment.

Just as soon, however, as a burn destroys the tissues underneath the skin, the condition may be so serious that the patient should be taken immediately to a hospital. At least, he should be put to bed at once.

Usually the doctor will supply suitable sedatives to keep him from pain and worry. Because of the shock, it is necessary to maintain the heat of the body. This may be done by any of the usual devices for the purpose, but excessive sweating should not be permitted, because of danger of macerating the skin and possibility of infection.

Burns usually are treated in modern institutions with tannic acid solution which makes a protective, clean crust over the burned area and gives it opportunity for recovery.

The patient will always try to hold himself away from any painful position, and for this reason he may heal up with scars and contractures which may be a permanent disability. Doctors always see that there is sufficient movement and correct posture of the parts affected to get healing in the best possible position.

THE NOSEY GUY

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce did not make a mistake when it elected Ray H. Nichols, editor of the Vernon Record, as president for the coming year.

Caught in a report handed in for publication: "The meeting was highly enjoyed, but several county officials spoke."

And did our Texas Senator, Tom Connally, get Senator Hastings of Delaware told? Hastings intimated that the thousands of farmers, who met in Washington this week, had their way paid by the government.

The different communities over the Memphis Area will want to hear the Gold Medal Band. School will close soon and then there will be time to put on the community concerts.

After last night's concert by the Gold Medal Band, frequent remarks were heard something like this: "I didn't know our boys could play so well." It is often the case that, "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country."
