FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

RESPONDED TO BY FARMERS INTERESTED IN LOANS.

CONTRIBUTE FOR $61,500 IN LOANS

Temporary Organization Effected and More Than the Necessary Amount Subscribed.

Responding to the call, published before last, issued by President Foreman of the local Farmers' Association, a number of farmers assembled at the court house Saturday afternoon, perhaps thirty being present.

President Foreman acting as chairman stated that the purpose of the meeting was to discuss the Rural Credits bill, if possible, to take the first necessary step in forming a National Farm Loan Association, as provided for in the law.

George S. A. Bryant was called upon to explain the provisions of the law and to give his ideas of the necessary procedure. He responded by reading the Democrat article published last week, quoted from a speech by Congressman Albert Johnson. As the meeting progressed questions were asked and discussed by those present. It was decided that the necessary action by the meeting should be taken.

A temporary organization was effected by electing E. M. Ewen chairman and J. Stout secretary. A list was made for the subscriptions of those interested in loans, which was signed by one hundred farmers, for varying amounts, totaling $61,500.

Names of those subscribing, as they become members of the association, follow: S. A. Bryant, A. C. Walters, T. M. McCarty, T. N. Baker, J. B. Harrell, J. Linton, E. M. Ewen, J. B. J. M. Freel, R. W. Crawford, J. W. McQueen, W. C. Stout, J. N. Cudd, F. R. E. Freel, C. W. Crawford, J. W. Foreman.

Different sections of the county were represented, except possibly Turkey, the interest manifested makes it probable that a large organization will be formed here when the Farm Loan bill for this district shall be ready for business.

The meeting adjourned, subject to further action becomes necessary.

Banta Makes Forecast.

W. P. Banta, local weather prophet, makes the prediction that the county will likely be visited with a general rain between the eighteenth and twentieth of this month. He says also that the farmers would do well to get their cotton in shape for standing a storm which will come from the twenty-sixth to twenty-ninth.—Vernon Record.

RODE HORSES INTO PALACE

Juan Beltran Reported in Command of Attack on Chihuahua City

El Paso, Sept. 18.—A detachment of twenty Villa cavalrymen engaged Carranza infantrymen on the second floor of the State palace, according to additional details of the attack upon Chihuahua City received here today by bandits rode their horses into the building and up the stone steps to the second floor in pursuit of the Government guards, which fell back before them.

PARNELL PARAGRAPHS

Everybody here is busy picking cotton. The crop is not as good as it was last year, but it is turning much better than many thought it would. Late feed also is doing nicely at this time.

Rev. G. H. Bryant of Estelline filed his regular semi-monthly appointment here last Sunday. He was accompanied by Rev. Hiaman of Memphis.

Sunday School and singing were well attended Sunday afternoon. Our singing class meets every Sunday afternoon, immediately after Sunday School. All singers are invited to join in singing the beautiful songs that are so inspiring.

Eld. Damron held a meeting at Hulver last week. Notwithstanding that this is a busy season, we understand the attendance was fairly good.

The Parnell Dramatic Club played "Jedediah Jackson Judkins, J. P." to a crowded house here Friday night. The play took fine, as everyone present seemed to enjoy the program to the fullest extent. The play was presented at Hulver on Saturday night to nice-sized and attentive audience.

After a successful summer term our school closed last Friday. This term was somewhat of an experiment as it is becoming very uncommon for a country school to have school during the summer. The patrons seemed to be well-pleased with the results. The teachers feel that the work done during this summer term was very good indeed. The attendance was far above an average and all concerned are pleased with the results. School will likely re-open in November.

Cecil More and Floyd Read of Newlin returned home Saturday afternoon spending the summer here in school. These are fine boys and we regret to lose them from the school and community. A welcome awaits you, boys, when you feel like coming back to Parnell.

Now that school is out our teachers are leaving for their respective homes. A. H. Glasco and Miss Bertha Hemp-hill left Tuesday for their home at Newlin. They were accompanied by Miss Mabelle White who will visit them for a few days before going to her home at Turkey. We have a nice bunch of teachers and will be glad when they return to assume their duties in school.

Art Class Announcement

Miss Beatrice Grundy, teacher of drawing and Ceramic, Oil, Pastel and Tapestry Painting, announces the opening of her art school here next Thursday. Studio in Hall County National Bank Building, Room 7. Class dates: Thursday and Fridays.

Announcement

Having been crowded with work for a long time and feeling that we need a rest we have decided to let our Tin Shop remain closed on Saturday, September 23, and take a day off. Save your work until a later date when we will be pleased to serve you in the best possible way. Will be Closed Saturday, September 23. OMAS. F. SCOTT.

HULVER HAPPENINGS

After an absence of several months we will endeavor to again let you hear from our little community.

Most of the farmers are now giving most of their time and attention to the harvesting of their crops, which are destined to be some shorter than usual as a result of the unfavorable weather during the spring. But we are glad to say that most of them are now beginning to feel mighty hopeful on account of the high prices secured for their products which in the end is more profitable than long crops at short prices.

The Christian meeting, which was conducted by Rev. Damron of Parnell, closed Sunday night. The meeting was held at the Methodist church and was well attended. Rev. Damron will preach for the Christian people at the school house every third Sunday and Saturday night of each month.

The Sunday Schools were well attended Sunday and the Singing Sunday evening was unusually good.

Don't forget our Singing evenings are the first and third Sunday evenings, come and be with us.

The play "Jedediah Jackson Judkins, J. P." which was rendered here Saturday night at the school auditorium by the Parnell Dramatic Club, was a grand success in every way. It was a revelation of the work that is being done in that community by Mr. McIntosh who is one of the most enthusiastic and progressive teachers of Hall county and one whom any community might well be proud.

On account of the busy times our school will not begin until the sixteenth of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Colwell of Purple Hill accompanied by Mr. C. A. Royal were in our midst Sunday and were a great help to us in our singing Sunday evening.

Mr. C. L. Cooper will move up near Estelline to farm next year and has moved his family to Estelline for a few months so his children may start to school, which began Monday. Mr. Cooper is not unmindful of the education of his children which not only speaks well for him but should cause others to think more seriously of the educational welfare of their children. We are indeed grieved to have to give up Mr. Cooper as a patron and his children as pupils of our school. We wish to say in behalf of the children that we want them to know they have established a record in the Hulver schools they need not be ashamed to refer back to anytime in future life, and that they leave many teachers and pupils behind who wish them well in the remainder of their school work.

Mr. J. A. Edwards who has been in the Baptist Sanitarium at Dallas for several weeks is reported to be still improving his relatives and friends wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. E. J. Posey and family visited relatives in the Parnell community Sunday.

"Dad" Merrick of Childress was here Sunday night on his way home from a visit with his son, Joe Merrick.

Twenty Bills in Wilbarger

The grand jury for the September term of District Court made its final report Monday of this week and was discharged after having returned twenty true bills of indictment—eighteen felonies and two misdemeanors. In its report to the Court the grand jury calls attention to the fact that road overseers are not complying with the law and recommends indictments in future. Attention is also directed to the alleged illegal use of slot machines.—Vernon Record.

WOMEN URGE WHEAT EMBARGO

Chicago Association Asks That Exports Be Stopped in View of Rise in Bread Prices.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 19.—An embargo on the exportation of wheat until the supply shall exceed the home consumption is asked in a resolution addressed to President Wilson, which was adopted today at a meeting of the Chicago Women's Association of Commerce. This followed representations made by members of the Master Bakers' Association, as the women having begun an inquiry into the raise in the price of bread, which the bakers announced some time ago would go into effect next week.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY PROCLAIMED

GOVERNOR FERGUSON NAMES MONDAY, OCT. 9, AS "FIRE PREVENTION DAY."

APPALLING ANNUAL FIRE LOSS

Figures Show Larger Per Cent. of Fires Preventable. Precaution Urged.

Reports to the State Fire Marshall show that more than 13,000 fires, entailing a property loss of over sixteen millions of dollars, have occurred in Texas during the past twelve months. This means that our resources to the extent of four dollars for every man, woman and child in the State, or twenty dollars for the average family, have been irretrievably lost within this short period. No State, however rich, no people, however prosperous, can continue to dissipate their resources at such a ratio without seriously disturbing their economic welfare. Many leading European nations with whose civilization we are inclined to contrast our own for the purpose of boasting our superiority, have a per capita fire loss of less than fifty cents, while ours is from three to four dollars. Some sage has said that comparisons are odious. This one certainly should be so, because it is a scathing arraignment of our habits, a terrific indictment against our efficiency, and a withering rebuke to our civilization.

These same reports show that 79 out of each 100 of the 13,000 fires were due to preventable causes. In almost every city, town and village throughout this great State may be seen ash heaps, and the blackened and charred ruins of once happy home and prosperous places of business, sacrificed to the fire fiend upon the altar of carelessness.

In view of these facts and figures, whose import is so astonishing and so alarming, we may well pause and seriously ask ourselves the question: Are we unconsciously becoming a State of incendiaries? Incendiaries not in the sense that we apply the torch to our own property or that of our neighbor, but incendiaries in the sense that we are so indifferent, so neglectful, so unconcerned, about the numerous fire promoting agencies all around and about us which are responsible for so much of this fearful waste and destruction.

When American history now in the making shall have been written, 1916 will be designated as the year in which the Nation's conscience was awakened to the dangers of unpreparedness. It will be shown how events growing out of the great world war, and out of the internecine strife of our sister republic across the Rio Grande, followed each other with startling rapidity, each emphasizing our lack of preparedness to meet dangerous situations that seemed imminent. To the President of the Nation will be accorded the praise of safely steering the Ship of State while sending a clarion call to the patriots of the country to prepare themselves and stand by, ready for any emergency. To this call there was such a generous response that "Efficiency and Preparedness" became a household expression throughout the length and breadth of the land. The fire waste problem in Texas has reached such a magnitude that a conscientious awakening of all our people to the need of better preparedness and more efficiency with which to combat its evil consequences and curb its enormous drain on our energies and resources is imperative. Why not let the year 1916 be the time of this awakening?

In view of the facts set forth, and as one of the means of accomplishing the purpose mentioned, I, JAS. E. FERGUSON, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby proclaim that MONDAY, the NINTH day of OCTOBER, A. D. 1916, be known as STATE FIRE PREVENTION DAY, and I earnestly call upon all our people to fittingly observe the day in some activity that will promote preparedness.

"A PARTNERSHIP IN COWS AND HOGS"

EDITOR OF FARM & RANCH TELLS ABOUT SUCCESSFUL MEM-BER'S DAIRY AND DAIRY-MAN.

FAMILY COOPERATION IS FACTOR

Leading Front Page Article in Current Farm and Ranch is Reproduced Below.

Dairying is no ordinary sideline in farming. It is true it is sometimes practiced as a sideline with profitable returns, but always it requires special preparation and close supervision for profits. Dairying is generally a highly specialized division of agriculture where considerable capital and business training are necessary.

Progressive Stock Farm dairy at Memphis, Texas, is an excellent example of what training and business principles can accomplish. Often has the agricultural student made good on the farm. In fact he generally makes good, but not alone on what he learned in the college. The successful farmer, must meet his opportunities on the farm and learn as he lives.

The Progressive Stock Farm dairy is growing in popularity and its patronage is increasing. The reasons for this are not far to seek. The management gives service.

The dairy herd is composed of grade cows, Jerseys and Durhams. There are now about 75 cows. Several are "five-gallon" cows. Later every cow is to be tested and the unprofitable animals and boarders disposed of. At present it is a very difficult matter to replace a cow when sold from the dairy, as there are few dairy cows for sale in that part of the country. As the demand for fresh, clean milk is greater than the supply, the manager, Mr. Earl Bradley, says he can afford to keep the animals not quite up to standard, at least for a while.

The farm, cows, hogs, horses and other stock are owned by Judge J. F.
Bradley and his family. Earl, the older of the sons, is manager and is a keen business man. He is a graduate of the Texas A. & M. College and is putting into practice the principles of dairying and farming. George the younger son, is a member of the agricultural clubs under County Agent Will M. Midkiff and is helping show what good farming means.

Judge Bradley says that the ideal of the farm is to have nothing but the best. It is the hope that within a few years any animal raised on the farm will be good enough to start a foundation herd, so his neighbors may get breeding animals for their farms.
The ethics of the family will not permit any inferior product to be sold;
every product must have real merit
before it will be offered for sale.

The equipment of the dairy consists of dairy barn with concrete floors, improved stanchions, litter and silage carriers. The barn has a loft for hay, a feed room and is closely connected with an underground silo. The silo holds 80 tons and cost about $200.
The farm has a hay barn near the dairy barn where cows may be fed hay. Arrangements are made here for taking care of the manure and for managers to keep the cows from wasting hay.

The dairy has a milking machine and every possible precaution is taken to keep the milk clean and pure.
Mr. Bradley says that the milking machine is entirely satisfactory. "The milking machine has come to stay,"
he says. "As the automobile is a necessity to the farmer so is the milking machine a necessity to the dairyman."

A feed grinder is used to grind the grains for cows and hogs. Milo, kafir and feterita are the principal grains.
The feed mill is run by a gas engine and is found to pay.

All of the manure, solid and liquid, is saved. A manure spreader is kept,
and under shelter when not in use.
The manure helps improve the land and produces larger crops, thus adding to profits.

Alfalfa is the principal hay. About 14 acres of alfalfa are now growing.
The fields are grazed at certain seasons, but hay is the principal use of crop. One season five crops of alfalfa were cut. This year it has yielded three crops although no rain has fallen since June and little this year.

For protein rice bran, cotton seed meal, wheat bran and grains are the concentrates fed. Winter grazing is provided by sowing rye, wheat, barley and also alfalfa. The silo is filled with kafir, milo or feterita.

From 75 to 100 hogs are kept.
They are grazed on alfalfa and finished on grain. The hogs make a good supplement to the dairy and are found to be profitable. Recently three hogs were sold for $90.25; Judge Bradley expressed it, "one hog for as much as a cow once brought."

Judge Bradley is especially fortunate in having the cooperation of his family. In fact the farm and its enterprises are a partnership arrangement. Earl, the oldest son, is the bookkeeper. The four daughters are all interested. Miss Bessie is a graduate of the College of Industrial Arts and is proficient in home administration and poultry raising. While at college she made a handsome easy chair which is now used in the sitting room and a neat and serviceable desk suitable for keeping records. She also made many articles in pottery and basketry which are a credit to her talents. But her mind is also on the practical things of the farm. She showed the writer a record of eggs received from her hens, showing receipts of eggs 1126 for February and 1012 for March. Beulah and Cleo, younger daughters, are students of the College of Industrial Arts and the eldest daughter, Myrtle, now married, is also a graduate of the same institution.

The manager of this farm knows every phase of the business. He can refer to his books and tell you what it costs to produce hogs, what his cows cost and the profit they make, what the various crops cost and what profit they yield. As an example he charges the hogs with alfalfa pasture, for labor, wire fence and other improvements necessary, then gives credit for what they bring. The same is true with the cows. Earl knows the in-

LATEST FAD—THE LONG FLOWING VEIL

Draped on Small Turbans or Sailor Shapes It is Quite Irresistible

Fall Dresses Have Longer Skirts

"I simply must have one of those new veils. I think they are so fascinating!" This, I overheard a young girl saying to her friend the other day on Fifth Avenue.

The veil she referred to was a long, flowing one draped over the top of a small high-crowned hat with a narrow turned-down brim, like the one pictured here. It was caught together in front and fastened to the top of the crown with a large, round pin, and from there it hung softly down the back. No wonder this young girl was so enthusiastic about it, for it really was the most adorable affair on the smartly-dressed young woman who wore it. The veil formed a charming, cloud-like background to her pretty face and floated gently in the air as she walked. The veil was of lace and the hat was of satin. There are ever so many charming veils of this type nowadays and one sees dozens and dozens of them. They are made of chiffon, silk net or lace, some of them finished with borders and others without. And they come in a variety of colors to suit every complexion and every taste. Some of the prettiest ones are in lovely shades of purple, soft rose-color, lavender, taupe, green and blue, as well as black and white. They are sometimes worn on small close-fitting turbans and again on larger sailor shapes.

Hats and veils like these are worn with frocks of serge, satin or silk. The one pictured here was worn with a dress of black satin with a snug bodice fitted at the waist with soft pleats. The skirt had a full tunic pleated at the waist and made with the popular loop pockets, which were faced with purple satin to match the purple-braided design which trimmed the dress. This is one of the favored designs for autumn and it certainly is a most becoming one. The sleeve was cleverly cut to form a point below the elbow, where a silk tassel was placed.

A Popular Fall Model

There is another type of dress for fall which is rapidly gaining more and more advocates every day. This is the one-piece frock of which an illustration is shown here. It shows the straighter effect and long lines which Parisian houses have made a point of featuring this season. Long straps starting from the shoulders, under the large collar, and working their way down on either side of the front, relieve the severity of this simple design. Little slash pockets are placed on both the straps below the belt line.

In some of the one-piece dresses, a long, narrow girdele of the material is wound loosely around the figure several times and tied at the back back or front in a loose knot. The ends are often finished with silk tassels. The belt is generally arranged at the low waistline, giving a suggestion of the Moyen Age effect which is predicted, will become popular again.

The material most favored for these practical frocks are satin, broadcloth, fine serge, tricotine, fancy twills, gabardine and poplin. The Parisienne favors wool jersey very highly for these one-piece frocks, also the checked velours de laine which are considered so very smart. These materials are excellent for shopping, motoring and such occasions when one must be simply though smartly dressed. Some of the colors are dark brown, terra cotta, orange and green. The combinations in checked velours are dark green with beige, gray with navy blue, and beige with Burgundy, not to speak of the black and white checks which never seem to lose their popularity.

An Example of the Straighter Effect

Skirts Are Longer and Straighter

There is a decided tendency to longer and straighter-hanging skirts in most of the autumn models. Paquin has made many dresses noticeably longer, both for street and evening wear, and many of the other Parisian Couturieres have lengthened the skirts for the coming season, though not to an exaggerated degree. The skirts have not lost any of their fulness in the downward tendency. They simply follow the lines of the figure more closely and do not flare as much. The hoop skirts and crinoline effects are practically dead and some soft draperies are seen in their stead, especially in evening and afternoon dresses of satins, crepes and soft silks.

To see perfectly see Dr. Shelfer at Tomlinson's Drug Store. He comes regularly and fits those that others fail to fit. See other notices and dates in this issue and come to see us.

The symmetrical lines to this interior are due to the continuous head casing, also the uniform height of bookcases and buttresses.

This woodwork is stained mahogany on a birch with green draping and a green tile mantel as shown which is of course in harmony with its surroundings.

Suppose you were giving a reception, or dance at your home to-night. The guests, upon their arrival, can only see the general outlines of the exterior of your house, but once inside the lights will expose every furnishing, design and arrangement of the interior.

If you have done everything in your power to make the interior furnishings of your home harmonious this is only one of the many times that you will feel amply repaid for your efforts.

It will be a pleasure for you to know that, after your guests have departed, they will be commenting on your taste in arranging and furnishing your reception dining, or bed room.

It will be not only the dancing or refreshments that the guests will have enjoyed, but the comfortable way in which they were enjoyed, due directly to convenient interior arrangement.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

Sinful Sim says that he has always noticed that the kind of a man who sneers at "intellectual women" usually has a wife that has more sense than he has.

Hundreds of schools, in hundreds of towns and communities in this State, have this week broken all previous records for school enrollment, and they will break more records next year. Great is Texas.

In this issue will be found a proclamation from the Governor of Texas and the Mayor of Memphis, urging the observance of Monday, October 9, as "Fire Prevention Day." The Governor produces an impressive array of data to show the enormousness of the easily preventable annual losses by fire in this State. He makes a strong argument for reasonable precautions, that could be taken with little trouble, and would in a great measure prevent future losses. Read his proclamation, you will find it worth your while.

Who Killed Kitchener?

Pearson's Magazine for October, has the following under the caption, "How Kitchener Died."

"A strange story is going about among the Irish republicans in New York concerning Kitchener and the manner of his taking-off. We give it here as we heard it, but naturally cannot vouch for its truth.

It is stated on good authority that Kitchener was responsible for choosing General Maxwell and sending him to Ireland. It is understood that Kitchener's instructions were: "Don't hesitate to shoot."

Shortly afterwards, the rebellion, so long and so carefully provoked, broke out in Dublin and Maxwell shot down men and women in cold blood after a drumhead court martial. Irishmen did more than resent these so-called military executions: it is put about now that an Irishman blew up the ship in which Kitchener sailed for Russia and in view of the way the English censor has hushed up the affair we cannot but regard the tidings as probable."

BY JULES VERNE

First and Greatest Story of a Submarine

CHAPTER XIII The Black River.

"Sir," said Capt. Nemo, "we will, if you please, take our bearings and fix the starting point of this voyage. It is a quarter to 12, I will go up again to the surface."

The Captain pressed an electric clock three times. The pumps began to drive the water from the tanks; the needle of the manometer marked by a different pressure the ascent of the Nautilus, then it stopped.

"We have arrived," said Captain Nemo. I went to the central staircase which opened on to the platform, clambered up the iron steps and found myself on the upper part of the Nautilus. The platform was only three feet out of the water.

Toward the middle of the platform the long-bow, half buried in the hull of the vessel, formed a slight excrescence. Fore and aft rose two cages of medium height with inclined sides and partly closed by thick lenticular glasses; one destined for the steerman who directed the Nautilus the other contained a brilliant lantern to give light on the road.

Capt. Nemo, by the help of his sextant, took the altitude of the sun, which ought also to give the latitude.

"Twelve o'clock, sir," said he. "When you like"—

I cast a look upon the sea, slightly yellowed by the Japanese coast, and descended to the saloon.

"And now, sir, I leave you to your studies," added the Captain; "our course is E. N. E., our depth is twenty-six fathoms. Here are maps on a large scale by which you may follow it. The saloon is at your disposal, and with your permission I will retire."

For a whole hour was I deep in these reflections, seeking to pierce this mystery so interesting to me. Then my eyes fell upon the vast planisphere spread upon the table, and I placed my finger on the very spot where the given latitude and longitude crossed.

The sea has its large rivers like the continents. They are special currents known by their temperature and their color. The most remarkable of these is known by the name of the Gulf Stream. Science has decided on the globe the direction of the five North Atlantic, a second in the South, a third in the North Pacific, a fourth in the South, and a fifth in the Southern Indian Ocean. It is even probable that a sixth current existed at one time or another in the Northern Indian Ocean, when the Caspian and Aral Seas formed but one vast sheet of water.

At this point indicated on the planisphere one of these currents was rolling, the Kuro-Selva of the Japanese, the Black River, which, leaving the Gulf of Bengal where it is warmed by the perpendicular rays of a tropical sun, crosses the Straits of Malacca along the coast of Asia, turns into the North Pacific to the Aleutian Islands, carrying with it trunks of camphor trees and other indigenous productions, and edging the waves of the ocean with the pure, luscious, of its warm water. It was this current that the Nautilus was to follow.

Ned Land and Conseil appeared at the door of the saloon.

All was suddenly darkness. The luminous ceiling was gone, and so rapidly that my eyes received a painful impression.

A sliding noise was heard; one would have said that panels were working at the sides of the Nautilus. Suddenly light broke at each side of the saloon through two oblong openings. The liquid mass appeared vividly lit up by the electric gleam. Two crystal plates separated us from the sea. At first I trembled at the thought that this frail partition might break, but strong bands of copper bound them, giving an almost infinite power of resistance.

The sea was distinctly visible for a mile all round the Nautilus. What a spectacle! What can describe it? Who could paint the effects of the light through those transparent sheets of water and the softness of the successive gradations from the lower to the superior strata of the ocean?

For two whole hours an aquatic army escorted the Nautilus. During their games, their bounds, while rivaling each other in beauty, brightness and velocity, I distinguished the green labre; the banded mullet, marked by a double line of black; the round-tailed goby, of a white color, with violet spots on the back; the Japanese scorpionfish, a beautiful mackerel, with a blue body and whose name alone defies description; some banded spares, with variegated fins of blue and yellow; some aclostomes, the woodcocks of the seas, some specimens of which attain a yard in length; Japanese salamanders, spider lampreys, serpents six feet long, with eyes small and lively, and a huge mouth bristling with teeth; with many other species.

Suddenly there was daylight in the saloon, the iron panels closed again and the enchanting vision disappeared.

Ned Land and Conseil returned to their cabin, and I retired to my chamber. My dinner was ready. It was composed of turtle soup made of the most delicate hawksbills, of a surmullet served with puff paste (the liver of which, prepared by itself, was most delicious) and filets of the emperor-holocanthus, the savor of which seemed to me superior even to salmon.

I passed the evening reading, writing and thinking. Then sleep overpowered me and I stretched myself on my couch of zostera and slept profoundly, whilst the Nautilus was gliding rapidly through the current of the Black River.

CHAPTER XIV. A Note of Invitation.

The next day was the 9th of November. I awoke after a long sleep of twelve hours. As soon as I was dressed I went into the saloon. It was deserted. The whole day passed without my being honored by a visit from Capt. Nemo. The next day, 10th of November, the same desertion, the same solitude.

That day I commenced the journal of these adventures which has enabled me to relate them with more scrupulous exactitude and minute detail. I wrote it on paper made from the zostera marina.

November 11th, early in the morning. The fresh air spreading over the interior of the Nautilus told me that we had come to the surface of the ocean to renew our supply of oxygen. I directed my steps to the central staircase and mounted the platform.

I was admiring the rising of the sun when I heard steps approaching the platform. I was prepared to salute Capt. Nemo, but it was his second (whom I had already seen on the captain's first visit) who appeared. He advanced on the platform, not seeming to see me. With his powerful glass to his eye he scanned every point of the horizon with great attention. This examination over, he approached the panel and pronounced a sentence in these terms: "Nautron respiciens virib."

What he meant I could not say. These words pronounced, the second descended. I regained the panel and returned to my chamber.

Five days sped thus without any change in our situation. Every morning I mounted the platform. The same phrase was pronounced by the same individual. But Capt. Nemo did not appear.

I had made up my mind that I should never see him again, when, on Nov. 16, on returning to my room with Ned and Conseil, I found upon my table a note addressed to me. I opened it impatiently. It was written in a bold, clear hand, the characters rather pointed, recalling the German type. The note was worded as follows:

"To Prof. Aronnax, on Board the Nautilus.
"16th of November, 1867
"Capt. Nemo invites Prof. Aronnax to a hunting party, which will take place tomorrow morning in the forests of the Island of Crespo. He hopes that nothing will prevent the Professor from being present, and he will with pleasure see him joined by his companions. CAPT. NEMO.
"Commander of the Nautilus."
I consulted the planisphere, and in 32 degrees 40 minutes north latitude, and 157 degrees 50 minutes west longitude, I found a small island, recognized in 1801 by Capt. Crespo, and marked in the ancient Spanish maps as Rocca de la Plata, the meaning of which is "The Silver Rock."

"If Capt. Nemo does sometimes go on dry ground," said I, "he at least chooses desert islands."
The next morning the 17th of November, on awakening I felt that the Nautilus was perfectly still. I dressed quickly and entered the saloon.

Capt. Nemo was there waiting for me. He rose, bowed and asked me if it was convenient for me to accompany him. As he made no allusion to his absence during the last eight days I did not mention it, and simply answered that I was ready to follow him.

We entered the dining room, where breakfast was served.
"M. Aronnax," said the Captain "pray share my breakfast without ceremony; we will chat as we eat. For though I promised you a walk in the forest I did not undertake to find hotels there. So breakfast as a man who will most likely not have his dinner till late."
Capt. Nemo ate at first without saying a word. Then he began:
"Sir, when I proposed to you to hunt in my submarine forest of Crespo you evidently thought me mad. Sir, you should never judge lightly of any man."
"But Captain, believe me"—
"Be kind enough to listen and you will then see whether you have any cause to accuse me of folly and contradiction."
"I listen."
"You know as well as I do, Professor, that man can live under water providing he carries with him a sufficient supply of breathable air. In submarine works, the workman, clad in an impervious dress, with his head in a metal helmet, receives air from above by means of forcing-pumps and regulators."
"That is a diving apparatus," said I "just so; but under these conditions the man is not at liberty; he is attached to the pump which sends him air through an india-rubber tube, and if we were obliged to be thus held to the Nautilus we could not go far."
"And the means of getting free?" I asked.
"It is to use the Rouquayrol apparatus, invented by two of your own countrymen, which I have brought to perfection for my own use and which will allow you to risk yourself under these new physiological conditions without any organ whatever suffering. It consists of a reservoir of thick iron plates, in which I store the air under a pressure of fifty atmospheres. This reservoir is fixed on the back by means of braces like a sailor's knapsack. Its upper part forms a box in the air is kept by means of a bellows and therefore cannot escape unless at its normal tension. In the Rouquayrol apparatus such as we use two india rubber pipes leave, this box and join a sort of tent which holds the nose and mouth; one is to introduce fresh air, the other to let out the foul, and the tongue closes one or the other according to the wants of the respirator. But I, in encountering great pressures at the bottom of the sea, was obliged to shut my head, like that of a diver, in a ball of copper; and it is to this ball of copper that the two pipes, the inspirator and the expirator, open."
"Perfectly, Capt. Nemo; but the air that you carry with you must soon be used; when it only contains fifteen per cent. of oxygen it is no longer fit to breathe."
"Right! but I told you, M. Aronnax, that the pumps of the Nautilus allow me to store the air under considerable pressure; and on those conditions the reservoir of the apparatus can furnish breathable air for nine or ten hours."
"I have no further objections to make," I answered; "I will only ask you one thing, Captain—how can you fight your road at the bottom of the sea?"
"With the Ruhmkorff apparatus, M. Aronnax; one is carried on the back, the other is fastened to the waist. It is composed of a Bunsen pile, which I do not work with bicromate of potash, but with sodium. A wire is introduced which collects the electricity produced, and directs it toward a particularly made lantern. In this lantern is a spiral glass which contains a small quantity of carbonic gas. When the apparatus is at work, this gas becomes luminous, giving out a white and continuous light. Thus provided, I can breathe and I can see."
"Capt. Nemo, to all my objections you make such crushing answers that I dare no longer doubt. I must be allowed some reservations with regard to the gun I am to carry."
"But it is not a gun for powder," answered the Captain. "I use air under great pressure, which the pumps of the Nautilus furnish abundantly. With this gun every blow is mortal, and however lightly the animal is touched, it falls as if struck by a thunderbolt."
"Why? Because the balls sent by this gun are not ordinary balls but little cases of glass (invented by Leniobrook, an Austrian chemist), of which causes are covered with a pellet of steel, and weighted with a pellet of lead; they are real Leyden bottles, into which the electricity is forced to a very high tension. With the slightest shock they are discharged, and the animal, however strong it may be, falls dead. I must tell you that these cases are size No. 4, and that the charge for an ordinary gun would be ten."

Capt. Nemo then led me aft, and in passing before Ned and Conseil's cabin I called my two companions, who followed immediately. We then came to a kind of cell near the machinery room, in which we were to put on our walking dress.

CHAPTER XV. The Bottom of the Sea.

This cell was, to speak correctly, the arsenal and wardrobe of the Nautilus. A dozen diving apparatuses hung from the partition, waiting our use.

Ned Land on seeing them, showed evident repugnance to dress himself in one.

"But my worthy Ned, the forests of the Island of Crespo are nothing but submarine forests."

"Good!" said the disappointed harpooner, who saw his dreams of fresh meat fade away. "And you, M. Aronnax, are you going to dress yourself in those clothes?"

"There is no alternative, Master Ned."

"As you please, sir," replied the harpooner, shrugging his shoulders; "but as for me, unless I am forced, I will never get into one."

"No one will force you, Master Ned," said Capt. Nemo.

"I follow my master wherever he goes," replied Conseil.

At the Captain's call two of the ship's crew came to help us to dress in these heavy and impervious clothes, made of india-rubber without seam, and constructed expressly to resist considerable pressure. The trousers were finished off with thick boots, weighted with heavy leaden shoes.

Capt. Nemo and one of his companions (a sort of Hercules, who must have possessed great strength), Conseil and myself, were soon enveloped in the dresses. There remained nothing more to be done but to enclose our heads in the metal box. But before proceeding to this operation, I asked the Captain's permission to examine the guns we were to carry.

One of the Nautilus men gave me a simple gun, the butt end of which, made of steel hollow in the centre, was rather large. It served as a reservoir for compressed air, which a valve, worked by a spring, allowed to escape into a metal tube. A box of projectiles, in a groove in the thickness of the butt-end, contained about twenty of these electric balls, which by means of a spring were forced into the barrel of the gun. As soon as one shot was fired another was ready.

Capt. Nemo thrust his head into the helmet; Conseil and I did the same. The upper part of our dress terminated in a copper collar, upon which was screwed the metal helmet. There holes, protected by thick glass, allowed us to see in all directions by simply turning our heads in the interior of the head dress. As soon as it was in position the Rouquayrol apparatus on our backs began to act; and for my part, I could breathe with ease.

With the Ruhmkorff lamp hanging from my belt and the gun in my hand, I was ready to set out. But to speak the truth, imprisoned in these heavy garments, and glued to the deck by my leaden shoes, it was impossible for me to take a step.

But this state of things was provided for. I felt myself being pushed into a little room contiguous to the wardrobe-room. My companions followed, towed along in the same way. I heard a water-tight door, furnished with stopper-plates, close upon us, and we were wrapped in profound darkness.

After some minutes a loud hissing was heard. I felt the cold mount from my feet to my chest. Evidently from some part of the vessel they had by means of a tap given entrance to the water, which was invading us, and with which the room was soon filled. A second door cut in the side of the Nautilus then opened. We saw a faint light. In another instant our feet trod the bottom of the sea.

Capt. Nemo walked in front, his companion followed some steps behind. Conseil and I remained near each other. I no longer felt the weight of my clothing, or of my shoes, or of my reservoir of air, or my thick helmet, in the midst of which my head rattled like an almond in its shell.

The light, which lit the soil thirty feet below the surface of the ocean, astonished me by its power. I clearly distinguished objects at a distance of a hundred and fifty yards. We were walking on five even sand.

come for every month. The records are valuable as they enable the management to reduce cost and thus increase profits.

This farm is a striking example of what can be done in a partnership arrangement with children; how agricultural and industrial education can be turned into profit and industrial efficiency; how business methods may eliminate loss; and how investments in needed equipment will pay.

The organization of the farm, the supervision and practice of the various divisions afford pleasure. Each member of the family feels proud of every feature of the farm and is anxious to improve as fast as ways and means can be found for doing so.

Prosperity Pointers for Farmers.

In the interest of further developing and upbuilding the territory through which their lines are operated, the Fort Worth & Denver City and Wichita Valley Railway Companies have issued an attractive thirty page booklet entitled "Prosperity Pointers for Farmers" and containing valuable information regarding soil conditions and the moneymaking crops to which same is best adapted as proven through the production of the numerous bumper crops which have produced generally prosperous conditions and are constantly making it possible for 'Renters' to become prosperous 'Home Owners.' A few of these booklets are still available for those whom it may be possible to interest in the question of locating in Northwest Texas. If, therefore, you have any friends that you desire to interest, and will send us their names and addresses, we will find pleasure in mailing them copies of the issue referred to. If you have friends to whom you would like to send copies yourself, instead of having us to do so, we will be glad to send you the booklets desired free of cost.

A WORD WITH WOMEN

Valuable Advice for Memphis Readers
Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to eh sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

You can tell it is kidney trouble if the secretions are dark colored, contain sediment; the passages are too frequent or scanty. Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Memphis woman's convincing statement.

Mrs. M. N. Mosley, N. Tenth St., Memphis, says: "At different times in the past ten years, my back has become weak and ached and the action of my kidneys irregular. My feet have also swelled up. Whenever I have been troubled in this way, I have used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Tomlinson's Drug Store, and they have never failed to relieve me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Mosley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

paredness, increase efficiency, and make progress toward the solution of the fire loss problem.

Let us, on that day, remove from our premises the trash pile, the rubbish heap, and the bundle of worthless rags which are standing invitations to a fire. Let us cut and rake the dead weeds and grass on our vacant lots and in the alleys, and carry them to a safe distance to be destroyed. Our flues and stovepipes, and electric wiring should be examined, and we should be sure that every device used in connection with either heating or lighting is placed in safe condition for winter use. In handling gasoline and other volatiles, let us resolve to do so with the greatest care, and when ever possible see to it that these substances are not kept inside of buildings or in unapproved receptacles. Let the various Boards of Education throughout the State, and the teachers of all public and private schools, impress upon the school children, under their care the necessity of using every precaution to prevent fire. Those having the responsibility and care of children, especially in the public schools, should on that day inaugurate fire drills, or practice those heretofore inaugurated, and give such instruction as may impress upon the children in their charge the dangers from fire and the method of fire prevention.

Let us work with our brain while we work with our muscle, and resolve that we will cooperate with the State and City Fire Marshall, and civil authorities, in keeping down firebreeding agencies, and that we will lend our moral support to our public officers in ridding down incendiaries and stamping out the crime of arson.

Let this be the day when we shall all catch a new vision of our individual duty with regard to the fire waste problem and agree to help in every effort to minimize its evil results.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto signed my name and caused the Seal of State to be affixed hereon, at my office in the city of Austin, Texas, this the 12th day of September, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixteen, and in the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-first, and of Texas the eighty-first.

THE PRESERVATION OF HEALTH

Eat Less, Take More Exercise, Sleep More; and Be a "Young Old Man."

What profiteth a man that he gain the whole world yet lose his health?

Naturalists say that long ago the prehistoric waters were infested with a species of enormous shark which finally became extinct by reason of the workings of its voracious appetite. Thus Nature eliminates the over-fed.

The desire for ease of life and plentiful diet is universal and is the great stimulus of man and animals alike. When man becomes greedy and takes more ease and food and drink than is his share, Nature discards him.

In the race for power and place, for ease of circumstance and relief from the stimulus of hunger, the modern man is apt to forget that unless he is careful of his body he will soon be made to suffer for the infraction of Nature's inexorable physical law. With the loss in body tone comes an equal loss in mental acuity and the brain which for a time was able to operate despite the complaints of an over-fed, under-exercised, self-poisoned body, stops working.

Statisticians have discovered that the mortality rate of persons in the United States over 45 years of age is increasing. The strenuous life of today is not alone responsible for this. Lack of health-giving exercise, superfluity of diet, lack of restoring sleep, over-stimulation, the high pressure of the race for power, wealth and position, plus physical neglect, these bring early decay. The goal is reached, wealth is amassed, honor, position and power are just being grasped when the apple of accomplishment turns to the ashes of dissolution. The brilliant mind becomes clouded, the steady hand is no longer accurate, the eye which once gazed fearlessly on the whole world is dimmed and it is not long before the final break-up occurs. All of this was entirely preventable.

Other things being equal it is the man who leads the wellbalanced life who lasts the longest, whose work to the end is uniformly the best, he who neither over-works nor over-plays, neither over-eats, over-drinks, nor over-sleeps, he who maintains a standard of simple healthy diet in moderation, who offsets mental work with physical recreation, who is as honest with his own body as he is with his own business. When success comes to such an one his physical and mental condition is such that he can enjoy in peace of mind and contentment of body the fruits of his labors.

The regulations of U. S. Public Health Service state: "It is the duty of officers to maintain their physical as well as the professional fitness. To this end they shall be allowed time for recreation and study whenever their official duties will permit." If the Government regards it as essential that its sanitary experts shall be safeguarded in this way, is it not equally important to every citizen that he similarly maintain a high standard of physical integrity?—U. S. Health Service.
