Insull Is Weary Of Court Grind

CRAZY POLITICS ARE ALL IN FUN

When They're on the Stage And Not Practiced by Government

It is all in fun and in the name of charity—this show "Crazy Politics", sponsored by the Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce. It is comedy—comedy at its funniest—but it is well flavored by music and a host of pretty girls in a variety of costumes.

A song and dance campaign for a lady mayor who really isn't a lady—is the excuse or plot of the show. Local characters have been getting a big kick out of rehearsals and again last night accepted their allotted parts from the director, Miss Lorraine Patrick.

They performed a snake dance in a most collegiate manner. They cried "That's right," "Hurrah", or gave the Bronx cheer with gusto whenever the time permitted and swelled the chorus with the campaign song.

Local men who will take part in this scene are F. N. Foxhall, J. P. Watson, Byron Baldwin, Jess Rosenwasser, R. S. Greene, D. L. C. Kinard, Buster Helm, Tommie Potts, Temple Deaver, Tom Bishop, Bascom Davenport, Marshall Allen, Carl Periman, Dr. D. C. Hyder, Max King, W. B. Quigley, E. E. Roberts, Pete Clower, Henry Read, Judge A. S. Moss, M. J. Draper, Thomas E. Noel and Harry Delaney.

Verdict in Death Of Heiress 'Open'

PINEHURST, N. C., March 8.—The death of Mrs. H. Bradley Davidson, Jr., in her garage last week remained an official mystery today as a coroner's jury wound up its inquest with an open verdict which failed to specify whether it was accident, suicide or murder.

Reporting 15 minutes after hearing witnesses for two and a half days, the juror submitted a finding that the former Elva Statler, bride of two months and heiress to more than $1,000,000 of the Statler Hotel estate, "died of carbon monoxide poisoning under circumstances unknown to the jury."

Davidson, 42-year-old member of a socially prominent Washington family and himself a witness three times before the jury, declined to comment.

TWO-THIRDS OF CHECKS ARE RECEIVED

Almost $140,000 in County From Cotton Pool

With the receipt this morning of certificate pool checks amounting to $13,483, almost 70 percent of the $10 payments due Hall County farmers have been received during the past two weeks, according to County Agent James A. Jackson.

When checks received today have been issued, almost $140,000 will have been paid local farmers as first payments on surplus Bankhead cotton certificates placed in the government pool. A total of 128 checks were received today, bringing the total number of checks to 1,647. Balance of the $10 payment for each group of tags sold at $20 per bale through the government pool are due to be made within the next few days, Mr. Jackson said.

Farmers for whom checks are being received will be notified by mail, he said.

The dead are Mrs. B. F. Ozeo, dairy operator, and Charley Jameson, 26, employee of the Ozeo Dairy.

SENDS PLANES AFTER REBELS

ATHENS, Mar. 8.—General George Kondaylis today began his offensive against rebel forces in the Struma Valley with 12 plane bombing attacks after Premier Tsaldaris received a report from the Minister of War that yesterday's aerial efforts "were in vain."

During previous efforts, two planes were forced to return because of fog and one fell in a gale.

CUBAN STRIKE IS GAINING MOMENTUM

Protest Against President Spreads to Transportation

HAVANA, Mar. 8.—The strike against President Carlos Medietta's government spread today to employees of most of Havana's transportation facilities.

Street car employees left their jobs, almost paralyzing the city's primary transportation system. Railroad and busmen voted to join the anti-government movement but set no date for a walk-out.

Fourteen bombs exploded in the city and suburbs during the night and seven at interior points, damaging the Havana court house, police station and several other buildings.

RICHBERG PUTS N R A UP TO CONGRESS

Warns Delays Are Slowing Up Trade And Industry

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council, today warned the Senate Finance Committee that delays and uncertainties over NRA legislation were slowing up trade and industry.

He put squarely on congress the job of cutting down the vast code structure along administration recommended lines and of holding future codification to industries engaged in or affecting interstate commerce.

This was his reply to the committee's request for a list of codes to be dropped under the new definition.

Search for Bodies In Utah Explosion

ST. GEORGE, Utah, March 8.—Death and disaster ruled tonight in this little town where Brigham Young, who led the Mormons into Utah, is said to have predicted great riches.

In the fire-blackened ruins of a drilling development near here, searchers poked for four bodies still missing after 10 persons were killed in a premature explosion of nitroglycerine.

It was feared the missing would never be found. Five other persons killed instantly by the blast and the accompanying flames last night were identified by bits of clothing. One died in a hospital.

Lawyer Pays With Life for 'Poison Picnic'

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., March 8.—Mark H. Shank, 43, former Ohio magistrate, died in the electric chair today for the poisoning of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Colley and the two Colley children in a Sabine County, Ark., "poison picnic" in August, 1933.

Shank said in a reputed confession that Cooley attempted to blackmail him in connection with a case pending in Ohio.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE AFTER 25 HOURS

Unable To Agree on First Issue in Damage Suit

After deliberating 25 hours, a Hall County district court jury yesterday afternoon announced that they had failed to agree on the $45,000 damage suit of Mrs. Elsie Vallance and husband, Otho Vallance, versus W. B. Quigley.

The jury reported that it could not agree on the first of the 20 special issues submitted two days ago by District Judge A. J. Fires. The jury was dismissed and Judge Fires set the case for rehearing on March 18.

The suit grew out of an automobile accident north of Estelline in September 1933.

Record time was made in district court yesterday when a verdict was returned against a negro who was arrested two weeks ago on charges of burglary. Albert McCray, negro, was assessed a five-year suspended sentence for the theft of household goods from the farm home of Bud Perkins, two miles northeast of Turkey, on February 21. The case was heard by Judge Fires.

The indictment against the negro was returned by the grand jury which reconvened yesterday morning after recessing two weeks. The grand jury also returned an indictment against Fred Nivans, near Parnell arrested Wednesday and held in the Hall County jail on charges of burglary. Nivans is alleged to have stolen property from the farm home of J. M. Ferrell, also near Parnell.

An instructed verdict was returned yesterday in favor of the plaintiff in the "trespass to try title" suit of A. L. Lyles versus James W. Miller. A jury was requested in the case. Judgment was also rendered yesterday in favor of the plaintiff in the case of J. L. Carlton versus E. N. Harper, a trespass to try title suit. Judgment was given by default.

Following yesterday's session of court, Judge Fires dismissed the jury summoned for the week, and had not called court at noon today.

Campbell Pilots Bluebird to New Speed Record

Sir Malcolm Campbell (at right) hitched his thunder wagon to a streak of lightning late yesterday afternoon and roared down Daytona's golden sand to a new world automobile speed record—276.186 miles an hour. It was far short of the 300-mile goal he has set for himself and the seven-ton Bluebird (shown above as it streaks across the glass-smooth sand), but it was 4.708 miles an hour swifter than the 272.108-mile average he traveled establishing the old mark two years ago.

It was an unexpected sortie, result of a last-minute decision to wait no longer for the sands to smooth to the perfection needed for 300 miles an hour. The result left him happy, but slightly shaken from one narrow escape shortly after thundering through the measured mile on the return trip. A bump there almost tore the steering wheel from his hands, sent the car careening high on the beach until the tires were just skimming the edge of the deadly soft sands. With a terrific effort the 50-year-old Englishman wrenched the wheel back, skidded to the safety of the hard sands, and was away to the end of the run and the new record.

"I haven't decided yet whether to stay and try to lift the record higher," Campbell said as he rode down the beach in the 2500-horsepower monster while 50,000, lining the 11 1/4-mile course, cheered the length of the way. "I won't decide until I have a chance to think things over."

The run, though only slightly above his old record, was as dangerous as any he has made—and every time he has taken the Bluebird to the beach during this venture something has happened. First his cooling broke loose and carbon-monoxide fumes nearly gassed him as exhaust flames flicked his legs. Then he was nearly thrown from the car on a test run in which he hit a one-way speed of 270. Today it was one gigantic swerve, and his tires. He stared in amazement at the racing cords on old Bluebird as he looked the car over in front of the timing tower when it was all over. The smooth surface of all six tires—two in front, four behind—was burned away. The casings hung in shreds, like strips of torn burlap. Parts were within a couple of plies of being torn away straight down to the inner tubes.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Lewis La Broecker © 1934 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She had her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father. STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She delays giving her answer.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris, ready to take his place in the mill.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian. She sees him with Gale and is furious. Contriving to meet Gale, she tells her that she (Vicky) and Brian are engaged. Gale believes Brian has been amusing himself at her expense, is deeply hurt. She refuses to see him again.

Brian, trying to forget Gale, turns to Vicky. Phil loses his job. The mill workers are organizing secretly and Gale joins. She goes to the drug store on an errand and encounters Brian. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

Brian said, "Hi!" and cleared his throat. Gale turned and looked out the window. There was nothing but the empty street and the rain, falling in slanting lines. There was another drug store two blocks down the street. She could go there—

She whirled as Brian went on speaking. "I haven't seen you for a long time," he said, looking at her in that strange way she had noticed a moment before.

"No." "It had been a long time. Two weeks and four days, exactly, her heart cried, since the night she had met Brian on the way home from work—the night that had meant the end of everything. Two weeks and four days. That wasn't counting the time she'd seen him in Vicky Thatcher's green roadster. That was only last Thursday.

Brian seemed determined to make conversation. He asked, "Everything going along all right?"

"Oh, yes. Yes. Fine."

Why didn't Mr. Schonebaum come, the girl thought wildly. Why didn't he come? As though in direct answer, she saw a shiny bald head through the window. Mr. Schonebaum, red of face and puffing slightly, pushed the door of the drug store open.

"I just been upstairs for a few minutes," he explained apologetically. "We got a place in the roof that leaks. I got to see—but what can I do for you?"

The question came, as it always did. Mr. Schonebaum invariably greeted customers with, "What can I do for you?"

He was standing behind the counter, drying the raindrops from his spectacles. Gale looked at Brian and said, "You were here first—"

"Go ahead."

He stood back, waiting for her to make her purchase. Gale said to the druggist, "I'd like to have this prescription filled," and handed him the bottle.

"Yah. Just a few moments—" He moved on, fussily, to the rear of the store. Gale turned to the shelves of books that were for rent. Some of the books were soiled. She wasn't interested in them, but at least they would keep her from looking at Brian, trying to think of something to say to him.

Gale took out one of the books and turned the pages, put it down and took out another. Then she stole a glance over her shoulder. Brian had moved farther down the counter and his back was toward her.

Mr. Schonebaum's short, quick footsteps caused her to whirl about. He came back to the front counter.

"Will it be all right if I pay you next week?"

"Yah—sure."

The druggist was wrapping the bottle in brown paper. Brian came forward leisurely. He said to Gale, "If you'll wait while I buy some cigarettes I'll drive you home."

"Thanks." (Gale knew that the color had risen in her cheeks again) "but I'm not going home just now. I have some more errands."

"I see." "That was all there was to it. Brian dropped back to study the display inside the counter once more and Gale took her package and went out into the street.

She felt the raindrops before she could get the umbrella raised. The catch was hard to work. Then she bent her head against the wind and hurried on down the street. She'd have to pretend about the other errands. She'd go into the cut-rate grocery and come out her mind about buying anything.

She reached the shelter of the store entrance and paused to look at a sale day poster. Brian's black coupe sped past.

Well—that was that. Gale waited a moment longer, then retraced her steps. The sky was dark now and she'd have the long walk in the rain. But that was better than accepting Brian's invitation. Suppose Vicky Thatcher knew Brian had asked Gale to ride home? What would she have thought? And where was Vicky now?

"Probably waiting for him to come and take her some place," Gale told herself. She pictured Vicky wearing a lovely frock, sitting before a dressing table. The room—everything about Vicky—would be beautiful, just as she was beautiful. There would be flowers and faint, exotic perfume. A smart wrap laid out. Vicky would wear jewels—the ring Brian Westmore had given her—a twisted sob escaped Gale's lips. "It isn't fair," she whispered fiercely.

No, it wasn't. It certainly wasn't fair to be so much in love with Brian Westmore when he was engaged to another girl.

A single light burned in the Henderson home, in the kitchen. The evening meal had been finished more than two hours before. Tom Henderson sat at the table, a book open before him. Mary Cassidy was bending over some sewing in her lap, and Gale stood near a window.

She said, "Father, did Phil say anything to you about where he was going today?"

"Yes. Said he was going to look for work."

"But did he say where, what kind of work?" "No. Just said he was going over town and see if he could find something."

Gale tapped against the window pane nervously. Mary said, in a soothing voice, "I wouldn't worry. It isn't late yet—"

"It's not that," Gale told her. "It's because Phil didn't come home to supper. Or to lunch. That's not like him."

"He's all right," her father assured her.

Gale did not answer. She crossed the room and sat down, picking up a newspaper. But a few minutes later she dropped it. There was a sound outside the house. Gale got to her feet and hurried to the door. There was nothing there—only the wind blowing.

"Maybe Phil got a job," Mary suggested after a time. "Maybe he's working."

"He could have sent word, couldn't he? He might know we'd be worried."

"Now, Gale!" Her father arose, closing his book. "You're letting yourself get upset over nothing. Phil can let himself in when he comes. There's no use sitting here any longer. It's time all of us were in bed."

"Yes, I suppose so—" Her father was right, no doubt. Phil must have met some friends and got to talking. Anyhow there was no use worrying about it. She had to be up early in the morning. Gale got to her feet. She asked, "Did you wind the clock, Mary?"

"Yes." Her father said, "Good night," and disappeared into the front of the house.

Presently Gale, wearing her nightgown, was in the kitchen alone. She put up a hand to extinguish the light, suddenly changed her mind and hurried back into the bedroom.

Mary said, "Why, Gale—" "I can't stand it," Gale told her. She was getting into her clothes again. "I've got to know about Phil."

"But what are you going to do?"

"I'm going to ask Steve Meyers to find him."

Mary asked, "Do you want me to come with you?"

"No."

Fifteen minutes later Gale was knocking on the door of a house farther down the street. There was no answer, but a few moments later a light appeared. A voice called, "Who is it?"

"It's me, Steve! It's Gale." The lock turned instantly and Steve Meyers flung the door open. "Gale," he cried, "what's happened?"

She told him as quickly as she could.

"Don't you worry another minute," Steve said. "I'll find Phil for you. Sure, I will. Just as soon as I get some clothes on—"

Gale's voice was grateful. She said, "I'm glad—but hurry, Steve. I have a feeling—I've had it all evening—that something dreadful has happened!"

The selection of Cicero Milam as director of the Black and Gold Band was a wise and commendable move on the part of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the Gold Medal Band long enough to know what it takes to make a good band, and how to get that pep into music to cause people to want to hear more.

The idea that imported instructors, or imported talent of any kind, are better than those in home town is all wet. President Roosevelt, when at home, is just an individual like his fellow townsmen.

The old saying, "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," is true—though it should be reversed. Take any person with advantages and opportunities that any up-to-date community affords—he should be the equal of the person who has grown up in another like community.

Cicero will lead the band to glory—and Memphis people will rejoice. Let's give him encouragement.

The band, though young, made a creditable showing in Amarillo Tuesday under Mr. Milam's direction. Other creditable presentations will be made as time goes on. Remember, Eugene Grace said he deprecates war as much as anyone else—not war profits.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Cromolium may be a better help than you need. It combines seven helps in one. It is made for quick relief, for safety. Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Cromolium for any cough that starts. The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known. (adv.)

A Brand New Bunch of ANAGRAMS

HANDY ENTRY BLANK

In the blank space below I have rearranged the letters in the anagrams to spell the names of the words which I think to be the solution of today's game. The ones checked with a cross mark thus X are advertised in today's Democrat.

ANAGRAM	SOLUTION
1. EHCARTOSR	<input type="checkbox"/>

8. HUHCASDND	<input type="checkbox"/>
9. POLXHOYNE	<input type="checkbox"/>
10. QUCRATE	<input type="checkbox"/>

I have used all of today's anagram solutions in the following sentence of not more than 30 words:

BASKET OF GROCERIES

And 10 Tickets to the Ritz To See Wallace Beery in "THE MIGHTY BARNUM"

RULES:

- The letters in each of the accompanying ten anagrams when arranged properly will spell the names of ten words. Two of the words each week will be grocery items. You are invited to solve the anagrams, then arrange them in a sentence of not more than 30 words (you may use less if you wish), and try for one of the ten prizes.
 - To the persons who send in the best entries in accordance with these rules, The Democrat will give a free basket of groceries and ten tickets to the Ritz Theatre. The basket of groceries will be offered as first prize, two tickets to the Ritz as second prize, and one ticket each to the next eight contestants.
 - This offer is open to all except employees of The Democrat and their families. You pay nothing.
 - Awards will be made on the basis of the most nearly correct list of anagrams and the cleverest sentence. Simply rearrange the letters in each anagram to spell a word in common usage. Then check the food and grocery ads in today's Democrat and place a cross mark in the square if you find either of the two grocery items advertised. If the item is NOT advertised make NO mark.
 - Then arrange the ten words into a sentence of not more than thirty (30) words. You may use less if you wish.
 - All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Democrat. Contestants agree to accept the decisions of the committee as final. Judgment will be based upon suitability of words inserted, accuracy in checking cleverness in arranging the sentence, and neatness. No special consideration will be given elaborate entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.
 - All entries must be received at the Democrat office by four o'clock Saturday afternoon.
- You need not purchase The Democrat to compete. You may use the handy blank submitted here, or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. Winners will be announced in Sunday's Democrat.

At the Theatres

PALACE
A comedy, abounding in suspense and unexpected situations, Universal's "Cheating Cheaters" opens tonight at the Palace theatre.

It is a fine example of good, clean fun, elaborately unfolded on the screen, plus some excellent performances from the splendid cast headed by Fay Wray. A newcomer to the screen is Cesar Romero, who plays the love interest in Miss Wray's life.

There is an abundance of good, solid humor in the picture.

RITZ

"The Best Man Wins," Columbia's thrilling comedy-drama starring Edmund Lowe and Jack Holt as a pair of carefree, fun-loving deep-sea divers, opens today at the Ritz Theatre. Featured as the pretty young leading lady is Florence Rice with Lela Lugosi in the role of the wily, sinister "Dr. Boehm," mad scientist and gem smuggler. Erle Kenton directed from a story by Ben G. Kohn.

Fear for Safety of Mexican Archbishop
MEXICO CITY, March 8.—Catholic officials expressed the belief today the Archbishop Pascual Diaz, who disappeared yesterday, had been kidnaped by radicals and his safety endangered.

Regular airlines insisted they had not carried the archbishop.

Whether we live to believe it or not, patronage is the greatest lubricant of a political machine.

MRS. J. M. ELLIOTT IS HOME; SON IMPROVED

Mrs. J. M. Elliott returned from Fort Worth yesterday where she had been at the bedside of her son, Adelbert Elliott, who is very ill at the Methodist Hospital. She reports his condition some better since three blood transfusions were given.

Mr. Elliott remained with his son but likely will return home Sunday if his condition continues to improve.

So far as I am concerned, I hold the position I do at the wish of my colleagues.

Woman Says 'Can't Remember' Murder

HOUSTON, March 8.—A 36-year-old Houston woman, arrested after Spencer Fred Silver, 56, of San Antonio, was found mortally wounded in a hotel room yesterday, told Homicide Captain George Peyton today that she "didn't remember" what happened.

Silver, found lying in a bath room with a bullet wound in his head, died in an ambulance.

The next thing for Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck to find unconstitutional is the overwhelming vote for President Roosevelt.

Lundeen Pension, Insurance Okayed

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The House Labor Committee today approved, 7 to 6, the Lundeen Unemployment Insurance (and Old Age Pension) Bill.

The bill would let the federal government pay unemployment and old age insurance equal to prevailing wages provided the payment is not less than $10 weekly plus three dollars for each dependent.

THE ABILITY TO GOVERN

GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Austin correspondent, discussing Dr. Robert Hargrove Montgomery, economics professor at the University of Texas, in his Austin column yesterday, brings out either directly or indirectly some salient points about government.

Dr. Montgomery's fame apparently lies in his ability to meet legislative situations, adjusting himself as well as his way of thinking to every problem that arises. This comes from years of experience and study in economics, civics and plain human nature.

Quoting Mr. Shearer: "At the start, legislators spoke timidly in Dr. Montgomery's presence when they discussed what the folks back home might think (of the regulation of utilities). He quickly set them at ease.

"You should be guided by what the people back home want," he said. "That's the first thing I teach my classes. It's essential to democratic government."

In that statement, Dr. Montgomery has analyzed the underlying defect in our present government. Too often our legislators are forgetting "it's essential to democratic government" that they be guided by what the people back home want. Instead, they are guided by the desire to make a reputation in the capitol, by utilities, oil, railroads or whatever industry they might be connected with outside legislative chambers or by simple craze for power.

The greatest campaign promise in any election should be: "I'll be guided by what the people back home want."

Dr. Montgomery also mentions his teachings to his class. This brings up the subject of college-instructed governmental employees. That subject drew no little amount of discussion a short time back, but strangely it was dropped completely. We have never understood why.

We demand that our doctors be trained before they be allowed to practice medicine; we insist that our preachers be highly educated in matters of clergy before filling our pulpits; we will not grant our school positions to persons without degrees—yet some "Alfalfa Bill" comes along from the sticks somewhere, talks loud, makes promises and spits straight, and he is handed the highest office of state, without special educational training or practical experience.

Were our politicians required to have college degrees in "politics"—practical, fundamental instruction in how to run a democratic form of government—we venture to say that our affairs of state would improve 100 per cent during the next 25 years.

Any citizen, with certain qualifications, few of which refer to ability, is given the constitutional right to hold office. So is any citizen given the right to practice medicine if he prepares himself for this profession. Why can we not place politics on a high plane with medicine, clergy, teaching, but placing ability to govern above ability to collect votes?

YOUNG AMERICA'S IDEAL

THE average high school youngster values good physical health above everything else, if a check made at Thomas Jefferson high school, in New York City, is any criterion.

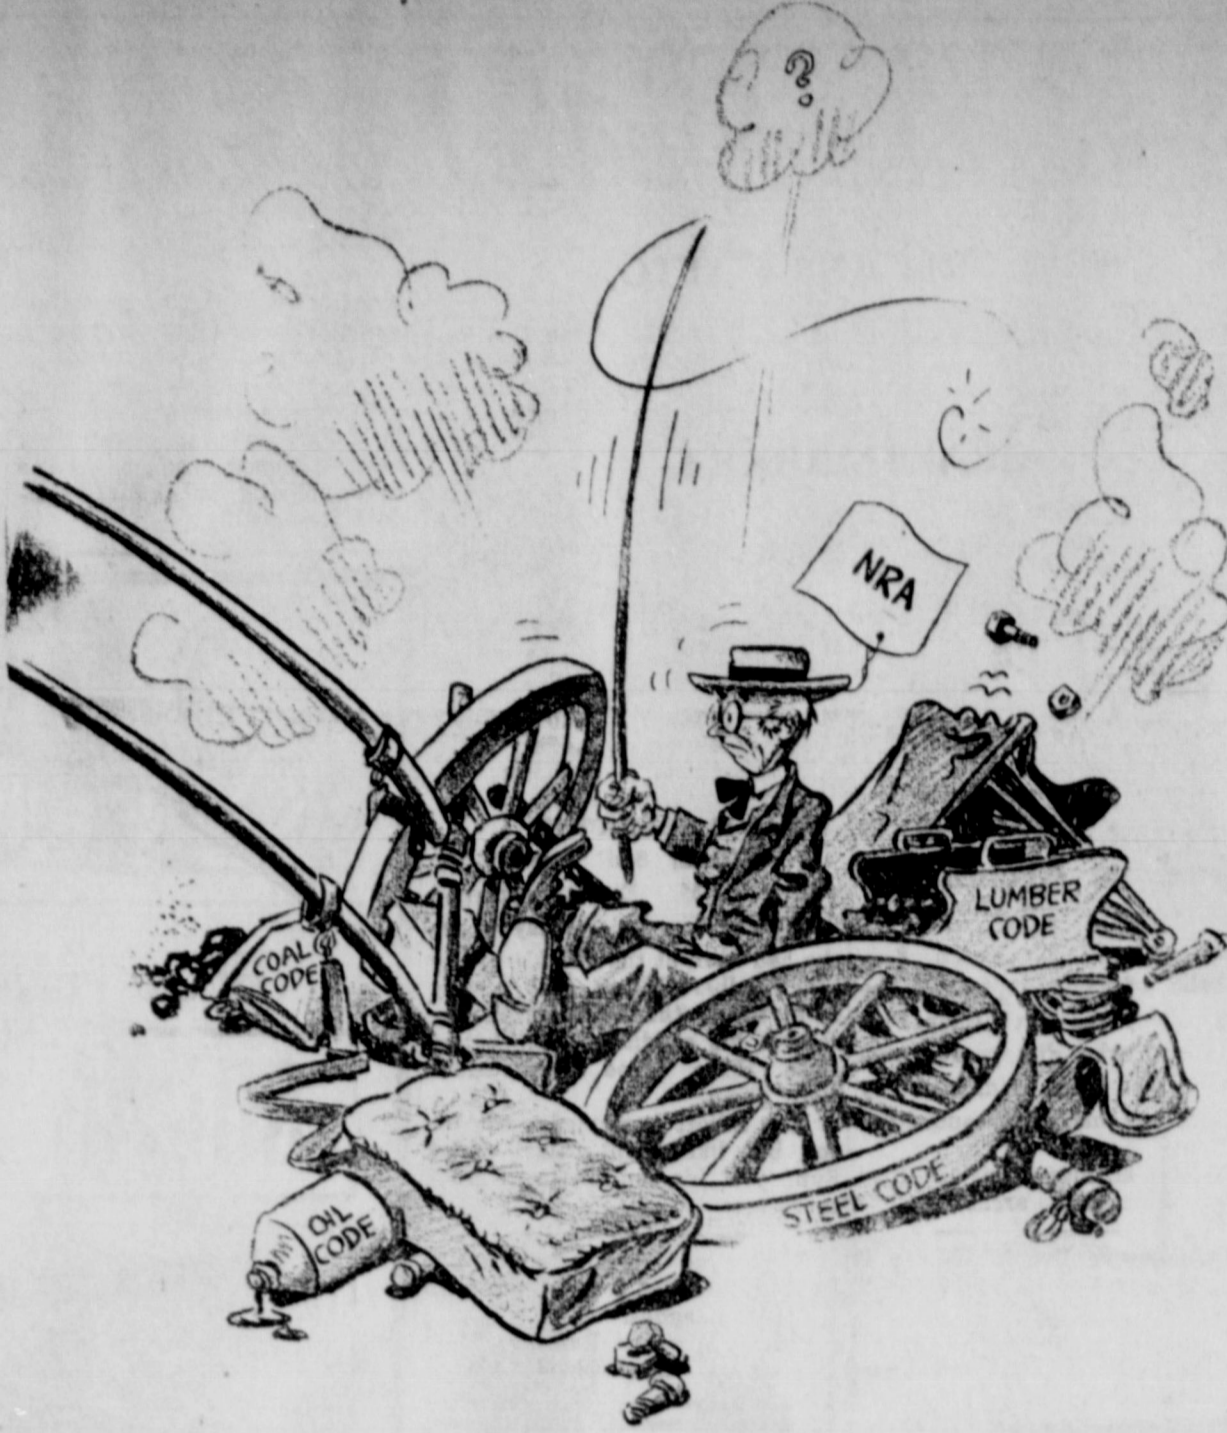

Boys and girls at that institution agreed that physical fitness is their chief aspiration. Next to it the boys ranked wisdom, likeability, service, wealth and fame.

The girls shifted the order only a little, agreeing with the boys in everything save that they appreciate of beauty more than worldly wealth.

If one wanted to be very serious and profound, one probably would draw a number of morals from all this. One could write, for instance, that it all shows a distressing superficiality on the part of the nation's youth, and so on and so forth.

But the more we think about it, the more we feel that it proves only this: that these high school youngsters are normal, healthy youngsters, interested in precisely those things one would expect normal, healthy youngsters to be interested in.

Lobbyists Moan in Anguish at Belgian Tariff Treaty . . . Wallace Decides to Let Us Know the Worst . . . NRA Defeats Are Discounted.

Democrat Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, March 8.—When an administration bites a lobbyist, that's news.

This one sank its teeth into several lobbyists when it signed the new tariff treaty with Belgium. Their yelps of dismay coincide with astonished gasps from many cynics who had been saying that pressure had stymied Secretary of State Cordell Hull's dearly beloved program of reciprocal tariff treaties.

Tariff lobbyists who used to get their log-rolling done by Congress must now vary their technique.

They begin, when suspecting that duties on certain foreign products are likely to be reduced by treaty with another nation in return for similar concessions, by spreading propaganda indicating that the entire duty will be removed—through law limits Roosevelt to a 50 per cent change.

Then they attempt to contact individuals in the state and commerce departments who are preparing the treaty. If they can establish social relations, so much the better.

If they haven't any channel into the White House, as some have, they try to get congressmen to take them there—as a California congressman recently took lobbyists for the wine industry who were worried over possible treaties with Italy and Spain.

Heavy Pressure Used

Heavy pressure came from the cement and glass industries prior to the Belgian treaty. They were represented by J. B. Colburn, former tariff commission lawyer, who is associated with a New York firm, one of whose partners was once a government lawyer handling customs cases.

Each country cut duties on about 50 of the other's commodities, including an American reduction of 33 1-3 per cent on plate glass, 25 per cent on cement, and 15 to 25 on certain steel products.

Thus the administration took a nibble at building materials industries accused of monopolistic prices. More than 90 per cent of domestic glass controlled by two companies which export, but have always demanded a high duty.

You can expect to hear more frequent outcries in Congress, inspired by lobbyists, which will be directed at the while tariff treaty program, designed to stimulate American exports.

The Discovery of the ST. LAWRENCE

AS heroic a figure as Columbus in the history of Canadian exploration, is the Frenchman, Jacques Cartier who, on May 19, 1534, landed with a crew of 61 men on the shore of Newfoundland and was first to explore the St. Lawrence river. Later he sailed up the river to the Huron village of Hochelaga, which became the city of Montreal.

Last year, on the 400th anniversary of the landing of Cartier, Canada issued a three-cent deep blue stamp showing Cartier and some of his men aboard his ship sighting land.

There should be sufficient space between beds to prevent spreading of germs from one person to another by ordinary coughing and sneezing.

It is also exceedingly important that sufficient warmth be provided in these shelters to prevent chilling with the associated increased likelihood of breaking down resistance to infection.

So many activities of the New Deal have been declared unconstitutional, we'll soon be afraid to eat a thing lest it, too, be called unconstitutional.

Perhaps it would be a good idea to let some federal judges know that Franklin D. Roosevelt is president of the United States.

Now the claim is made that Wiley Post's stratosphere plane was tampered with by a saboteur. Probably a man from Mars.

Since meningitis spreads from person to person, the crowding of human beings in shelter houses under bad sanitary conditions inevitably sets up trouble with this disease. The men who come into such shelters are not usually examined to determine the presence of an infection or even of the likelihood that they may be carrying an infection.

Laboratory tests are necessary to determine the presence of carriers who move from place to place, spreading the disease.

Meningitis is caused by a germ.
This germ may be carried in nose and throat by healthy persons who spread it to others. During cold weather, the close contacts brought about by living indoors and the increased spreading of the secretions of the nose and paring the treaty. If they can establish social relations, so much the better.

If they haven't any channel into the White House, as some have, they try to get congressmen to take them there—as a California congressman recently took lobbyists for the wine industry who were worried over possible treaties with Italy and Spain.

Heavy Pressure Used

Heavy pressure came from the cement and glass industries prior to the Belgian treaty. They were represented by J. B. Colburn, former tariff commission lawyer, who is associated with a New York firm, one of whose partners was once a government lawyer handling customs cases.

Each country cut duties on about 50 of the other's commodities, including an American reduction of 33 1-3 per cent on plate glass, 25 per cent on cement, and 15 to 25 on certain steel products.

Thus the administration took a nibble at building materials industries accused of monopolistic prices. More than 90 per cent of domestic glass controlled by two companies which export, but have always demanded a high duty.

You can expect to hear more frequent outcries in Congress, inspired by lobbyists, which will be directed at the while tariff treaty program, designed to stimulate American exports.

All-Star Cage Battles Enter Crucial Stage Tonight Favorites Come Through in 1st Tourney Bouts

The battle for "gold and glory" that is being waged at the high school gymnasium in Memphis' first independent basketball tournament gets down to "brass tacks" tonight with four powerful clubs battling for places in the final round and two good teams opening the tilt for consolation honors.

Last night's opening games were marked by fast, interesting basketball, although the favored clubs came through with well-established margins.

Estelline, Kirkland and Memphis advanced to the semi-final round, along with Clarendon College, the only team to move up on a bye.

Windy Valley, Quail and Weatherly, although each team put up a commendable battle against the stronger outfits, dropped into the lower bracket to battle for consolation honors, which carry the same reward as does third place in the regular tournament.

Memphis Starts Memphis' powerful entry, entered by Tarver's Pharmacy, started the tournament last night with a 52 to 18 victory over Weatherly, after the visitors had put up a hard, losing battle against two complete quintets, and one player extra. The victory placed Memphis in the semi-final opposite Clarendon College, a team that won an all-star victory here last Saturday night. The Clarendon quint features little Roy Stargel, one of the most spectacular goal shooters ever to come out of this area.

Estelline and Kirkland vie for the other semi-final position tonight. Both clubs came through with well-earned victories last night. Estelline defeated Windy Valley, 48 to 28, and Kirkland downed Quail, 36 to 19, after the losing club gave the victors a scare during the first half. The clubs that clash tonight appeared about equal on the painted floor and offer a game that will rival the Memphis-Clarendon affair.

Open Play Tonight Opening tonight's series at 7 o'clock, Windy Valley and Quail clash in the first consolation game. Although not so powerful as the other clubs slated for action, these teams appeared equally matched.

The players are hard workers, never giving up, and promise a real tilt.

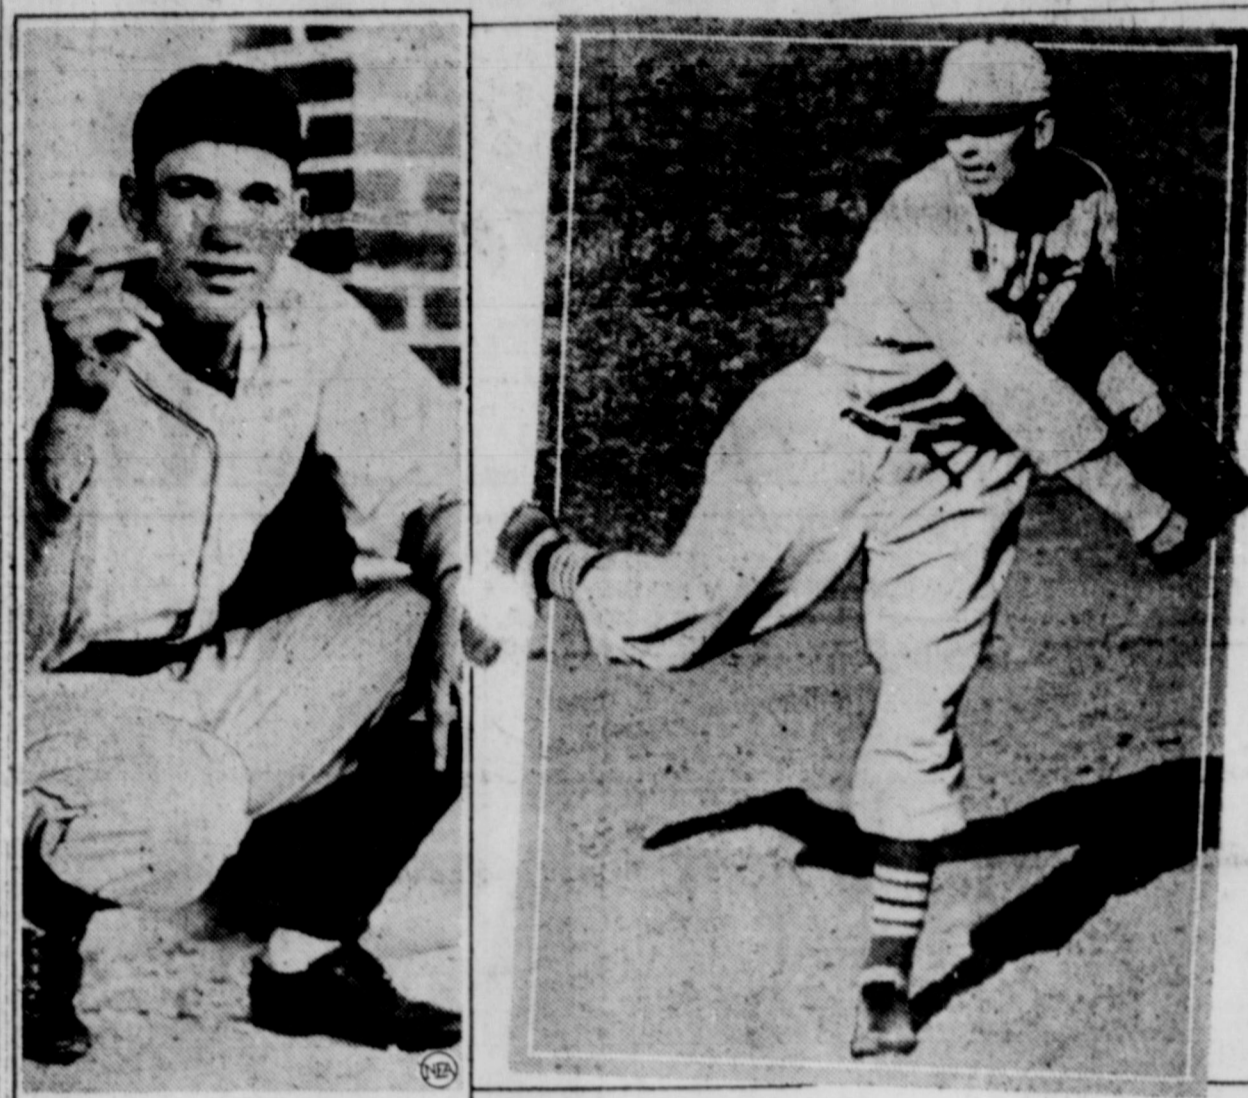

Tonight's series of games promise to be all-star battles in every sense. Teams could not be more evenly matched; every victory means a much bigger share in the cash awards to be made at the close of the fight, and the players love the game when it is toughest. The average-sized crowd that viewed the battles last night was well pleased with the demonstration—the first of this nature here—but if the fans enjoyed the games, they should be "against the roof" during every tilt tonight, for the well-balanced schedule promises nip and tuck battles in every clash.

Ends Tomorrow Night And tomorrow night, the race gets even hotter, what with two of the four clubs now in the title race battling for the crown; the other two fighting for third place, with one finishing out of the money, and two other teams vying for consolation honors and the last money position.

Both sessions follow the regular schedule of games—the first at 7 o'clock; the second at 8:15 and the third at 9:30. After a slow start last night caused by clubs arriving late, play is slated to get off on schedule tonight, with every club instructed to be on hand. Admission is 15 and 25 cents, with a special price of 10 cents for children under 12, for the complete session of three games.

Dean Whiffed Six in Row And Rickey Snubbed Him!

Even in his first year of professional baseball, after he had been farmed out to St. Joseph, Mo., by Branch Rickey, Cardinal boss who unearthed him at Shawnee, Okla., in 1930, Dizzy Dean declared he was the greatest player in baseball. He jumped to Houston from St. Joe the same year, and here he is at left after joining the Texas club. At right Diz was mowing down Tiger batters in the 1934 world series.

(This is the tenth of 12 articles on the Smartest Man in Baseball—Branch Rickey, the man behind the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.)

By HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

Branch Rickey says that the disciplining of the famous Dean brothers last summer had more to do with the St. Louis Cardinals winning the National League and world championships than any other one thing.

"No player is bigger than the game," says the man who built the far-flung Red Bird organization.

"The club rallied to Manager Frank Frisch when the Deans went on a rampage after being set down for refusing to go to Detroit for an exhibition game. A new spirit was born. The Cardinals won six straight with the Deans on the sidelines."

Rickey likes to tell of his first peek at Dizzy. It takes him back to the spring training of the Shawnee, Okla., club in 1930.

Dean had gone to Shawnee from Houston. There were 300 young players in the Shawnee camp, sent there by the Cardinals. They were performing in one of those endless games in which the score means nothing and which are conducted so coaches and managers may get a line on ability of the players.

After several pitchers had made their appearance, a tall young fellow named Dean went to the mound. He never had pitched professional baseball, but he struck out all three men in the inning he pitched.

Six Whiffs in a Row Dean had a great fast ball, and Rickey asked the coaches to let him pitch another inning. Again he struck out three men.

Rickey took out one of the cards he carries, and wrote "St. Joseph" on it. St. Joseph is a Cardinal Class A farm in the Western League. Shawnee was a Class C club.

The manager of the Shawnee club and several others tried to dissuade Rickey from sending Dean to a club as high as St. Joseph, pointing out that Dizzy had absolutely no experience. Rickey stuck to his decision, however, and eventually Dean was sent to St. Joseph, where he won 17 games.

Later he was promoted to Houston, and was pitching for the pennant-winning Cardinals before the year was out.

The evening of the day Dizzy struck out six men in two innings at Shawnee, Rickey met him in the hotel lobby.

Dean went up to Rickey and said, "Hello, Branch, how did I look out there today?"

To this Rickey pretended to have forgotten that he ever had seen a fellow named Dizzy Dean.

"What's your name?" he asked. Dizzy said, "My name's Dizzy Dean. Jerome Dean. Don't you know me? I'm the fellow who struck out six men in two innings today."

Rickey pondered a few moments and then said, "Oh, yes, I believe I do remember a fellow named Dean. Are you a left-hander or a right-hander?"

Just "Branch" to Dizzy This sort of knocked Dizzy off stride a little bit, because he believed he had impressed everybody at the park, but it did not keep him from putting up a sales talk something like this:

Ekky's measure in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

A third meeting came in the Pimlico Futurity, in a sea of mud. The Chocolate Soldier was virtually left at the post as Mate and Twenty Grand staged a magnificent battle out in front of the pack. But the gallant Equipoise, by an effort that never can be forgotten, caught them and sloshed over the finish line a half-length ahead. Twenty Grand was second, a head over Mate.

Ekky Bows Out—and In As 3-year-olds, they stepped out together in the Preakness. Mate won in track record time, Twenty Grand finished second after interference, and Ekky was unplaced. Equipoise then broke down, and in the Kentucky Derby the following week, Twenty Grand smashed the Derby record by nearly two seconds. Mate finished third in the classic.

The Greentree hoos became 3-year-old champion of the year, his Derby triumph being his greatest. But he suffered another defeat by Mate before the year was over, when he finished third to the Bostwick thoroughbred in the Classic Stakes at Arlington.

"You are going to take me to St. Louis, aren't you, Branch? I can pitch in the big leagues right now, and I will win for you, too."

Rickey, during the entire conversation, addressed Dizzy as Mr. Dean, and Dizzy addressed the Cardinal vice president an general manager as Branch. It was their first meeting, and to this day Dizzy likes to be called Mr. Dean by Rickey, but he never fails to call the Cardinal chief Branch.

"How are you going to beat a chap like that?" beams Rickey. "It is little wonder that the Detroit Tigers couldn't."

NEXT: Rickey's all-star team.

At 4, Twenty Grand was broken down and Mate has lost his form. But a patched-up Equipoise became the handicap king of the year. At 5 he also was supreme in this division, and Twenty Grand had been retired to the stud.

At 6, Ekky's old ailments began to bother him again. Nevertheless, he generally was recognized as the best of the year among the oldsters. Mate had gone to England, where, under excessively high weights, he won one race and place in several others.

Happy Reunion Then came the Santa Anita Handicap. This $100,000 attraction acted as a magnet to draw the three together again. Twenty Grand had put in two years in the stud, but he answered the call and was put back in training. Mate returned from England to compete in the rich race, and Equipoise was shipped west to run.

Six days before the event, Twenty Grand, after several periods of lameness, stepped out against Equipoise for the first time in years. In the stretch they

HARRY GRAYSON

One of the most interesting highlights of the recent Santa Anita Handicap was the renewal of the lifelong duel of three old-timers—Equipoise, Twenty Grand and Mate. None figured strongly on the running of the big event won by Azucar, but it was none the less remarkable that the three were in there trying. Their duels began in 1930, when each was a 2-year-old. The history of the battles of these three would fill a book. In their first year of campaigning, Ekky took the measure of the unbeaten Vanderpool, and tangled with Twenty Grand three times, losing two of the races. Mate whipped them both, and lost to both on other occasions. All three met in duel No. 1 in the Junior Champion mile, and Twenty Grand beat Equipoise by two lengths. In their next meeting he had to set a world mile record for 2-year-olds to take

Ekky's measure in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

A third meeting came in the Pimlico Futurity, in a sea of mud. The Chocolate Soldier was virtually left at the post as Mate and Twenty Grand staged a magnificent battle out in front of the pack. But the gallant Equipoise, by an effort that never can be forgotten, caught them and sloshed over the finish line a half-length ahead. Twenty Grand was second, a head over Mate.

The Greentree hoos became 3-year-old champion of the year, his Derby triumph being his greatest. But he suffered another defeat by Mate before the year was over, when he finished third to the Bostwick thoroughbred in the Classic Stakes at Arlington.

MONSTERS OF THE PREHISTORIC PAST

LAMBEOSAURUS (LAMB-EO-SAR-US)

THIS BIZARRE LOOKING CREATURE WAS A MEMBER OF THE TRACHODON FAMILY OF DUCK-BILLED, HERBIVOROUS DINOSAURS THAT GREW TO AN AVERAGE LENGTH OF THIRTY FEET. ITS HEAVY, THREE-TOED HIND FEET TERMINATED IN CRUDE HOOPS, INSTEAD OF CLAWS, BUT ITS MOST REMARKABLE FEATURE WAS THE CRESTLIKE FORMATIONS ON THE SKULL. IT HAS BEEN ADVANCED BY SOME AUTHORITIES, THAT THESE CRESTS SERVED AS AN AUXILIARY BREATHING AND AIR-STORAGE APPARATUS, ALLOWING THE SAURIAN TO REMAIN UNDER WATER WHILE FEEDING.

THIS TRIOUS WORLD

by WILLIAM
FERGUSON

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THERE WERE ABOUT FORTY MILLION ANTELOPE IN NORTH AMERICA AT ONE TIME! THE SPANISH EXPLORERS SAW THEM ON ALL SIDES. NOW THERE ARE BUT A FEW THOUSAND OF THESE BEAUTIFUL ANIMALS LEFT.

BOTH THE MALE AND FEMALE HAVE HORNS, WHICH, CURIOUSLY, THEY SHED EACH AUTUMN! BUT ONLY THE OUTER SHELL OF THE HORN IS MOLTED. THE BONY CORE REMAINS.

The PRONGHORN ANTELOPE...

AN ANIMAL WHICH COMBINES THE FEATURES OF THE GIRAFFE, GOAT, ANTELOPE, AND DEER.

The ANTELOPE IS CONSIDERED THE FASTEST NATIVE ANIMAL IN AMERICA! IT HAS BEEN CLOCKED AT FORTY-FIVE MILES PER HOUR.

CROSS SECTION OF HORN, SHOWING CORE.

ON ITS RUMP THE ANTELOPE HAS A LARGE, WHITE PATCH, THE HAIRS OF WHICH CAN BE RAISED ON END TO FLASH A DANGER SIGNAL TO OTHER ANTELOPE

UNLIKE MOST HOOFED ANIMALS, THERE ARE ONLY TWO TOES ON EACH FOOT.

WHEN ONLY A WEEK OLD, A BABY ANTELOPE CAN OUTFRAN MOST DOGS! WHEN NEWLY-BORN, IT ESCAPES ENEMIES BY LYING MOTIONLESS ON THE GROUND.

THE PRONGHORN HAS NO NEAR RELATIVES IN ALL THE WORLD! THE CLOSEST, PERHAPS, IS THE CHAMOIS, WHICH INHABITS THE LOFTY CRAGS OF THE EUROPEAN ALPS.
