HAREBELL FLOWERS.

"Daddy," said Duddy, "is presented in ruin by the coarse hair on top of his nose, soft and coarse hair, as you know, the rain and then he shakes it so that his body doesn't get wet."

"The umbrella bird can put up some feathers just as people put up umbrellas and that protects him from the rain."

"The great big musk-ox and the umbrella bird are very proud of always having their rain protect them, and they have very good reasons for people who forget their umbrellas and borrow other people's and forget to return them."

"The musk-ox and the umbrella bird very well lend their aid because they don't carry them by the beak or front paw, and have their umbrellas attached to them."

"When it rains they are ready and do not mind it in the least,
 they aren't the only creatures so careful about the rain—that are some flowers who are very careful."

"The flowers loved the rain,"
 said Duddy.

"I need it to make them grow, Daddy," asked Nick.

"Yes," said Duddy, "flowers love the rain. It helps them grow and it keeps them fresh. But the harebell, of course, I am going to tell you, sees that one of its family will ever be the harebell family of flowers, blue in color. The flowers are thin, rather tall stems, and the flowers are in bud they grow straight and stand right up.
 'We're little soldiers, we are,' they say as they stand so straight and so lovely. And they never yield."

"I don't mind the cold wind or the weather, except they have been careful about the rain."
 "You're not because of cowardice that interested in the rain. No, it is because of good sense."
 "The tiny buds burst into flowers, they stayed straight up, as if when they are buds, ever the rain came it would fill the flowers and completely drown them. Little blue petals aren't strong enough to stand the rain, and the flowers shaped so the rain would come to them and fill them up—for buds are like little bells, they're sensible. They know rain would hurt them if they were straight, and so they protect themselves. In this way they own umbrellas, and it is just as though they owned umbrellas, their little heads hang down inside to receive the rain."
 "Daddy," whispered one little bud to a larger bud one day, "when can our eyes see the world?"
 "Little harebell, soon," said Duddy.

"I'm anxious to see the mountains plains, the hills and the valley," said another little bud.
 "I want to see the sun," said another little bud.
 "I'm growing very restless, mother."
 "I wish you'd open your eyes to see the world," said Mother Hare-bell.

"We're in the world quite a long time," another asked.
 "Daddy," the mother harebell said, "we harebell flowers are very old. We stand the wind and the sun, little ones, listen, of one must be careful."
 "What must we be careful of?"
 "The little buds as they beginning to open their eyes, can't hold their heads up as they are now that they are open. You must drop your little heads as you open your eyes, and right up at the sky. For if you look straight up at the sky, old King of the Clouds came would fill your little bell-like heads with water, and you would be drowned."

"Mother, how terrible!" they said.

"I'm warning," said their mother, "do as I say, you will be safe and will live long to smile at the little blue faces at the great world." And all the little buds said, "Amen."

Mad Experience.

When had got tired of climbing and picking flowers. So the school teachers suggested that they should have an impromptu concept little mite sang, another then there was a pause.

"Willie," said one teacher to the boy class, "you know 'How little honey bee!'"

"I'll sing Willie, examining a book on his hand. "I only know it!"

Spooking of Birds.

The village "cut-up" tilted its chair on the veranda of the house and an old horse moved in.

"I'm shouting the 'cut-up' is outside the animal, "how long have you been dead?"

"I'm shouting the boy replied:
 "I'm shouting, but you're the first to see it!"

Notice

An examination for teachers' certificates of all grades will be held at the Court House, Memphis on Friday and Saturday, the 3rd and 4th, of October. Indications point to an extreme scarcity of teachers not only in this State but throughout the United States and unless the present supply of teachers is recruited many schools will be unable to secure teachers. This county has to date employed only about three fourths of its supply of teachers for the current term and reports from other parts of the State indicate that the same or worse conditions prevail. I wish therefore to urge that all persons who contemplate teaching, whether former or prospective teachers, take the October examination and provide themselves with certificates.

The examination will begin at 8:30 a. m. and the schedule of work will be the same as in previous examinations.

Do You Want Your Kidneys Examined?

Kidney troubles are getting more common every day. Government health bureau figures say deaths from this cause are 72 per cent more than 20 years ago. Anybody who suffers constant backache, who feels blue, nervous and irritable; who has dizzy spells headache and urinary disorders should suspect kidney weakness. Overworked kidneys must have a rest. Take things easier; live more carefully. Take a good kidney remedy to build the kidneys up again.

But be sure to get Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most most widely used, the best recommended of all kidney pills, now in use all over the civilized world. Don't experiment with your kidneys. Thousands have already tested Doan's. You have their experience to go by. Plenty of cases right here in Memphis. Here's one:

Mrs. J. B. Worthington, Cor. Bryce & 7th Sts., Memphis, says: "Whenever my back gets sore and lame or my kidneys get weak and act irregularly, I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and they give me splendid results. I have used this remedy for such attacks for some time."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Worthington had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, New York.

THE PEACEMAKER

By GENEVIEVE KELLEY.

"There, take your ring and never speak to me again," flared pretty Claire Traylor, as she angrily handed Dick Grant his diamond.

"Very well," asserted Dick, "you can repent at your leisure."

"I'll never repent, Dick Grant, and you know right well it's all your fault. You promised to take me to the club dance last Thursday, and you never even showed up."

"But, Claire, please let me explain," began Dick.

"Don't you 'but Claire' me," she retorted, "it's very funny Bob saw you riding down Elm street Thursday evening." After which statement she left the room, leaving a very crestfallen young man behind.

Dick promptly took his hat and made for the door, not wishing to be met by any of the family, who would probably question him about his hasty departure, but he had forgotten that Bob, Claire's ten-year-old brother, was on vacation.

"Hello, Dick," shouted Bob, just as the former was darting out the front door, "that was some quarrel you two had, wasn't it? Gee, sister has a temper almost as red hot as her hair!"

"Say, Dick," continued Bob, "do you remember the Sunday night you pulled me out from under the parlor sofa? I never told ma what you said to sis that night, but still I haven't forgotten it. I suppose I could forget it, though, if I saw a real good show."

"Sure," agreed Dick, anxious to depart, and taking the hint, handed Bob a piece of silver, "and you might forget that Sunday night."

"You bet," responded Bob, who had already forgotten it.

Claire was very pale when she appeared at the breakfast table the next morning, and she was just pushing away her untouched grapefruit when Bob announced, "Dick Grant's joined the navy, an' he's goin' tomorrow."

"Yup," answered Bob, on being questioned, "he passed the examina on Thursday night, an' tried to tell you, sis, but you wouldn't let him get a word in edgewise."

"What," gasped Claire, seeming not to comprehend.

"Oh, I said it looked like rain," spat out Bob, "Why don't you pay 'tention to me?"

But his remarks were lost on Claire, who had fled to the privacy of her room.

Weeks of torture and suspense followed for Claire, and no one knew what she suffered.

"Sis, will you come enquiring with me this afternoon, I want to get some water lilies?" was Bob's greeting a short time later.

After obtaining her consent a keen observer would have seen Bob cautiously emerge from the bathhouse with a saw and proceed to the water front, where he spent a half-hour in accomplishing some secret task.

Another half hour found him down at the Grant domicile engaged in deep conversation with Dick, who had been granted a furlough.

"Of course," agreed Dick, who found time hanging heavily on his hands, "I'll be more than glad to help you paint your canoe, and I'll be there about 3."

It seemed to Bob he had never spent such a long afternoon, but it was just half-past 2 when Claire appeared.

It was only a matter of a few minutes' walk before they reached the pier, and were soon paddling toward the center of the lily pad.

They had spent about 20 minutes picking water lilies when Dick appeared, though only Bob noticed him.

Seeing that the time for his act was approaching, Bob stooped (by way of fixing his shoe lace) and attended to some mysterious business in the bottom of the boat, all unobserved by Claire.

"Goodness, Bob," exclaimed Claire, "my feet are getting all wet. What is the matter?"

"I'll see," offered Bob, and after a short examination he announced, "there's a hole in the canoe, but maybe we can stick it out till someone comes along. By Jove, we're lucky, Sis: here's somebody now."

"Hey, Dick," shouted Bob, "we're sinking fast. Better hurry."

With a few even strokes Dick was at the side of the disabled canoe, helping Bob into his own.

"Ain't you goin' to save Sis?" demanded the impossible Bob. Dick threw him a look and asked, "may I assist, you, Cl—re, Miss Traylor?"

"He was met by a cold 'no thank you.'"

"Very well; we may as well make for shore, Bob."

"All right," agreed Bob, beginning to feel that his plot was not just right some place.

Claire sat very still, thinking that Dick would come after her, but he was landing Bob on the nearby shore. Seeing her own boat rapidly filling with water and Dick making no attempt of returning, she called out in a frightened voice, "please save me, Dick."

It was the very cry that Dick was waiting for, and he reached her side in double-quick time.

Not a word passed between the two during the transfer.

Upon reaching the pier, Claire prepared to leave, but she was stopped by a "won't you please let me explain, Claire," from Dick, and her answer was a faint "yes" from the MAGNIFICENT NEW YORK MUSICAL REVIEW SECURED BY SECRETARY STRATTON.

"The Garden of Follies," New York's last word in scintillating, spectacular, Musical Extravaganza, will be a headliner amusement attraction in the coliseum at the Victory Fair at Dallas in October.

This was secured in person by Secretary Stratton during his recent visit to the East. Visions of the Winter Garden, or of Broadway in 1919, will float before the eyes of the beholder of this beautiful production.

Oodles of pretty girls, captivating music, magnificent scenery, "dreamy" costumes, and a "cob-wabby" plot, delightfully intertwined, make up the production.

Grace, beauty and wit will abound in "The Garden of Follies."

ROOSEVELT IN AFRICA

Companion Tells of Incident that Demonstrated the Colonel's Complete Fearlessness.

I. Cunningham, the famous African hunter, who was in charge of Colonel Roosevelt's hunting expedition in Africa, said he had never found another man who, by his character, made every man in his service so glad to do the best possible for him. He tells the following story of a very "near squeak" the colonel had:

A colonel was determined to get a lion and a tusker at that. I don't know what that meant and how much there was, but he said that he was willing to face it. That was done all over.

He found an elephant in a forest on a mountain. We had been there for three days, and it was hard for a man of the colonel's bulk to beat and at that altitude, 11,000 feet. At least I caught sight, through a bush, of elephant hide and a about thirty-five feet away, just enough to tell me it was a fine one. I pointed it out to the colonel, who was with complete coolness, and elephant in the ear and drop.

The shot went off the forest all around roared aloud with trumpeting. I was in the midst of a herd of young bulls, and one of the bulls thrust his head through the right eye of the colonel's head, right behind him, fired at once and killed him over.

I rushed up to the colonel and said, "Are you all right, sir?" But he said he was before I spoke. He turned a hair. At any moment he might have blundered through the bushes over us, but he never thought of it.

He went up to the old chap and killed and gave it the coup de grace and then let himself loose. I saw a man so boyishly jubilant."

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Theodor's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Theodor's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Theodor's the original and genuine. E 79

Real Music

It is only real music which appeals to the soul. Real music means different things to different people.

- To some it is restful and soothing.
- To others it is a source of inspiration.
- To all it is an essential.

Then to enjoy music as music really is, you have to have in your home the artists themselves, or to give you their RE-CREATED voices exactly as you would hear them on the opera stage or the concert platform.

Two thousand music critics have failed to detect the slightest difference between original music and the New Edison's RE-CREATION of it. The New Edison, therefore, is the only instrument that can bring real music into your home.

The Dallas News criticises the attempt by Texas farmers, ginners and crushers, to "stabilize" the price of cotton seed; intimating that an attempt is being made to violate the anti-trust law by "fixing" prices. We have no idea how far those interested may go in an attempt to stabilize prices without straining the law; but there seems to be urgent necessity for "equalizing" prices, even if they can not be stabilized. Quotations from various Texas points in the Dallas News show that cotton seed are selling as high as $70 per ton at some places while at others they bring only $55, on the same day. There can hardly be the difference in value that is indicated; either the farmers are profiteering at the $70 price or they are receiving less than the value of their product at the $55 price.

J. Ham Lewis, the erstwhile statesman, famous because of his pink whiskers and resplendent vests, is made responsible for the statement that "President Wilson soon will announce the doctrine of socializing the coal, oil and transportation industries and these may be taken control of by the whole people for themselves as the people's property." James Hamilton Lewis is a democrat and a former United States senator; but he will probably have to show some authority for speaking for the President before a great many of the latter's supporters and admirers will swallow the above statement.

There is evidence that the recent abnormal car shortage is not altogether due to natural causes. There are a number of powerful forces that will stop at nothing to discredit government operation of the railroads, and the favorable reception given to the Plumb plan, providing permanent government ownership of the roads has awakened much anxiety in these quarters. Steps seeking to discredit government operation is part of the propaganda to have the roads returned to their private owners.

Quoting a speech in the senate a press dispatch says: "Dropping into common phraseology," Senator Reed added, "when America acquires the right to 'stick her nose into the business' of thirty-one alien states, she gives the right to thirty-one alien states to stick their thirty-one noses into the business of America. The man who is willing to give any nation or assemblage of nations the right to mind the business of the American people ought to disclaim American citizenship and emigrate to the country he is willing to have mind America's business for her."

The Governor is quoted this week as saying that he "wants to get out of office but wants to stay in the fight."

Getting out of office and into a fight are about the easiest things to do. The attainment of such aspirations should not be beyond the limited abilities of even W. Peanut Hobby. We wish him success.

A mistake seems to have been made in the stories, of two years ago, which told us of the wiping-out of the Armenians by the unspeakable Turks. The Armenians now demand that the Allies immediately send 10,000 soldiers and sufficient equipment for an Armenian army of 30,000 to fight the Turks.

Attorney General Palmer says that the food monopolists are to be indicted and sent to jail. Of the evidence against them, collected by his department, he says: "When it is laid before a jury the wrath of the American people will compel a verdict of conviction. The story will amaze America."

The cost of high living is well exemplified by the Central Texas Boll Weevil, who is now gorging himself on 32½ cent cotton.

MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

A lot of improvements are coming to me,
I'll make some today, if it's fair;
I think I will buy a new cap for my knee
And a key for a lock of my hair.

A few more improvements will help I suppose I'll make some today, never fear;
I think I will buy a new bridge for my nose,
And a drum for inside of my ear.

—W. S. See.

Other improvements I'll add to the whole,
And thus make it nearly complete;
I'll buy for each foot a bran new sole,
And an arch a-piece for my feet.
