Off To Set New Record
Lakehurst, N. J.—With 50 passengers and two ton of freight the giant German dirigible Hindenburg left late Monday night on the return leg of her maiden voyage to the United States. Her westward trip from Friedrichshafen was made in 61 hours 35 minutes, a new record. Dr. Hugo Eckner, her commander, seeks a 45-hour Eastern crossing.

In No Hurry
Old Forge, N. Y.—Charles Jeanette was 99 years old last week and pondered his contemplated marriage to an Albany widow. "However," he said, "Marriage is a serious business and we'll have to talk things over some more before deciding."

Arabs Strive Against Jews
Jaffa, Palestine—Denouncing the British policy of Jewish immigration and land settlement, Arabs leaders decreed a general strike and refusal to pay taxes. Government orders keep both Jews and Arabs in their homes. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, British High Commissioner, has ordered a mobilization of troops to prevent further Jewish-Arabian clashes.

Government Laughs Last
New York City—When the Securities Exchange Commission tried to stop J. Edward Jones from selling his "oil royalties", he carried his battle to the Supreme Court and last April won a temporary victory, in which SEC was warned not to meddle with business. But Washington authorities have played their trump card. Mr. Jones was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on charges of fraud which, if he is found guilty, would render him liable to 75 years in prison. Pleading not guilty he called the action "mad persecution advanced to the most pitiable stages of New Dealism."

Depression Doctor Loses
Washington, D. C.—Charging that the Hoover Administration fired him from his job in the Income Tax Bureau, then adopted his plan for ending the depression, John Knight Munro Barry sued Uncle Sam for $10,032,000 at which he estimated the value of his ideas. The Court of Claims disclaimed jurisdiction in an action involving "the right to office" handed Mr. Barry a bill for $45 costs.

Business Continues Gains
New York City—Of 73 corporations reporting their quarter's business during the week, 50 showed increases, 23 declines. Of the latter, 6 were utilities, the remainder scattered among tobacco, ice oil, candy, iron and steel and other less active industries.

State Inspector Praises Work of Local Schools

Several weeks ago the Deputy State Superintendent for this district, Mr. S. G. Boynton, visited the local schools, and was very complimentary in his praise of the type of work done. Mr. Boynton's opinions concerning our school can be given more accurately by quoting verbatim his report to the State Department of Education:

"1. The school buildings and grounds are well kept.
2. The organization and the administration of the schools are satisfactory.

3. The course of study appears to be followed consistently.

4. The work as a whole is standard.

5. The teachers and pupils seem to do their work enthusiastically.

6. Attention should be given the new building; especially do the blackboards need to be fixed so that they will not be ruined by warping. The elementary school library needs more books.

7. Commendation is expressed for the following worthy accomplishments:

a. The purchasing of library books, $150.00, the New World Book, and library equipment in the form of cards and accession record.

b. The beautification of the campus by the P.-T. A.; the anticipated building of a fence to be placed around the campus; and the sodding of the football field.

c. The inauguration of a school paper and school cafeteria.

d. The complete fitting out of a clothing laboratory at an expenditure of more than $250."

Eldorado Scouts To Camp Louis Farr Soon

It won't be long until it will be camping time for the Boy Scouts. Camp Louis Farr will be the center of attraction for the Boy Scouts of this district.

Local Scouts will go to camp the latter part of this month or the first part of June. A good many boys are expected to go. The Camp is better equipped this year than it was last year and will provide more fun and training for the boys.

The camp has a nice hall, which is called Yates Hall, good camp grounds among the trees, and a good swimming hole in Dove Creek just above the dam. A new spring board has been installed.

All traces of Poison ivy has been killed out along the paths and camp grounds.

Scouts will stay there for a week. The fee for this year will be $5.50. You get all you can eat and cook one meal a day over the camp fire. Scouts, it is not too late to start getting ready for the big camp.

Old Age Pension Questions & Answ.

This is the first of a series of questions that the people of Texas are asking. Orville S. Carpenter, state pension director, answers them frankly and to the point.

Q—Why cannot assistance be paid to every person in Texas who is 65 years of age or older?

A—First, because the Texas law that assistance may be paid only to those "in need"; second, because the Federal Government will not allow us to pay Federal money to people who are not in need.

Q—Will not Federal money mean a lot to Texas?

A—Yes. It will mean several millions of dollars each year will be given to the aged people of Texas that they would not otherwise get; it will mean that with it a person will be able to receive as much as $30 a month, and without it no one could get more than $15 per month.

Q—What does the Federal law say about "need"?

A—It says that the Federal appropriation is made for the purpose of enabling states to assist "aged needy individuals." (Sec. 1).

Q—Was this "aged needy individuals" question checked?

A—The Social Security Board stated that this was the correct interpretation of the law.

Q—How does the Texas definition of "needy" compare with that of other states?

A—Texas has the most liberal definition of "aged needy individuals" in the United States. The Texas law is much more liberal on this point than that of any other state in the union.

NEW TEXAS ROAD MAP OFFERED FREE

"History and nature have joined in making Texas one of the most interesting sections of the country," is the tribute paid this state in a new 1936 road map now being offered to motorists at Gulf service station here. "A visit to Texas enriches life."

Besides charting the state highways and byways, the new map shows the state's principal cities in detail; describes its scenic attractions and principal points of interest to tourists, and promotes safe and sane driving in an illustrated list of "Do and Don't's for Drivers."

They have been in Eldorado four years and have made many friends. About a hundred friends were at the barbecue, and a little token of affection and appreciation was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Irby.

Co. Commissioners Meet For Regular Session Monday 11

The regular meeting of the Schleicher County Commissioners Court was held Monday May 11 with all Commissioners present and Judge H. W. Finley presiding.

Most of the day was taken up with the routine work of approving bills and discussing the affairs of the county. An order was passed by the court discontinuing the salary allowed for a deputy sheriff to assist Sheriff Conner.

The following bills were approved:

Road & Bridge Fund
J. F. Faught
Work with Team . . . $44.00
R. G. Gardner, Road Work 22.00
Arch Posey, Road Work 55.00
Ewell Williamson

What's Happened In The National Parade

Congress again held the center of the Washington stage during the past week. Definite progress was made toward enactment of the two main bills still pending, one to appropriate a billion and a half dollars for relief and the other, to raise eight hundred millions dollars in new revenue through taxes.

The relief bill was defeated in the House and the way paved for a favorable vote early this week. Efforts to earmark nearly half the appropriation for the PWA were beaten off, assuring availability of the entire sum for work relief as desired by the Administration, unless similar effort is unexpectedly successful in the Senate.

Public works Administrator Ickes forthwith announced a 25 per cent reduction in personnel of his organization because of uncertainty of funds to continue its work.

Business and Taxes
Public hearings on the tax bill were concluded by the Senate Finance Committee which begins executive session immediately to draft an entirely new measure which it probably will offer to the Senate late this week as a substitute to the bill by the House.

During the hearing 105 business men appeared as witnesses, all in opposition to the plan to tax undistributed corporation earnings. Some members of the committee indicated that the plan . . . (See No. 4, another page) . . .

SAVE THE TOWN SAVE ELDORADO

The country weekly newspaper is an American institution. The country community, with the country town as a center, a market place, a social and educational center for the people of the community, is also very largely a North American institution.

There are villages in France, in Germany, in Italy in the Balkan countries in Russia and throughout the Near and Far East, but they are not the market places, the social and educational centers of the people. In them you find few if any, stores, and none of any consequence with stocks of merchandise that satisfy community needs, very rarely a school, and no social life as we know such life in American country towns. The buying on the part of the people is done in a cooperative way or in the larger centers.

The villages of Europe and Asia are but the abiding places of peasants their homes know no luxuries such as are found in the average town or farm home of America. The villages offer no social or educational advantages that are found in American villages. Their people, as a class, are not the educated, intelligent citizenry that are found in American country communities—in the towns and on the farms.

And in America the basis of it all is localized buying—the hometown market places.

Today the tendency in America is towards centralized buying. The business of America is drifting to the cities. In every case—and there have been thousands of such—where the stores have had to close because of a lack of local patronage that town has ceased to be a social and educational center. It has ceased to be a town.

With such a tendency the future of our town as a market place is very definitely in the hands of the people. The blame could be placed on either the newspaper, the store keeper or the buyers. But we all have our part to do.

The store keeper will tell you that he cannot afford to stock goods that people go to San Angelo to buy. The buyers will tell (See No. 3, Last Page)

Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.--Matthew 5:48.

It is said that castor beans placed in the mole runways will rid a lawn of moles.

Five Russian queen bumble bees were recently imported into Ohio with the hope and the expectation that their progeny would make Ohio red clover more fertile by the distribution of the pollen. The honey bee cannot secure the honey from the red clover for the reason that his tongue is not of sufficient length to reach the bottom of the flower. For this reason the honey bee never visits the red clover blossoms. The tongue of the bumble bee is long enough to reach the honey in the red clover and he is the principle means of distribution of red clover pollen.

Without this distribution, seed is not produced by the red clover blossoms.

About the emptiest honor we can think of is that of presidential elector. No work and no salary.

We heard of an expert checker player who could play six games of checkers blindefolded. It seems like a remarkable stunt but its child play in comparison with keeping diplomatic relations lined up in Europe. Each nation is looking out for its own interests and each alliance is made with this thought in mind. It must keep diplomats dizzy trying to keep all of their secret agreements straight.

Some people like an editor to take sides in public questions and be plainly outspoken in his convictions until he has taken a position contrary to the one they hold in an issue. Then they are off of him. Not every one is so narrow but every editor knows that too many are.

The greatest peril that a democracy such as ours faces is the inability of the average voter to discern between the statesman and the demagogue. The statesman as a rule appeals to the thinking few while the demagogue appeals to the mass. The mass out votes the thinking few, and it is the votes that elect.

One of the amusing things on the highways is to come across an untidy ramshackle place carelessly kept and carelessly tended and see a commanding sign displayed "Super Service."

We were talking with a fellow the other day who formerly lived in a section of the country noted for its winds. He said that they had a unique method in that section of telling whether or not it was too windy to work. Each of the farmers of that section had a log chain fastened to the eave of the barn. When the wind blew the big chain straight out it was a sign it was too windy to work.

Every community has at least one busy body that no one has any use for.

In his accupancy of the Rhineland, Hitler has succeeded in driving a wedge between France and Germany. France desired to force Hitler to withdraw from the Rhineland. England refused to join in the demand. Hitler won this point. His next move may be one that will tread on England's toes, in which case France will then be in a position to dicker with England and make her price the withdrawal with Hitler from the Rhineland. American politics is a nursery rhyme compared with the complicated European system.

A nation wide poll shows a preponderance of sentiment in favor of the government manufacturing its own ammunition in an effort to take the profits out of war. Ammunition is a small part of the cost of a first class war. The best way to take the profits out of war is not to have any war. If however war is unavoidable industry should be conscripted the same as men and turned over to the government during the duration of the war. It is not right to demand of a young man his life and allow another because he is a few years older to keep his factory. This plan would take the profits not only out of ammunitions but all war supplies. This is as it should be. No one should profit from war.

There is a new theory among some teachers that the child should not be restrained in his impulses but should be allowed to do largely what he chooses to do, that no impulse should be repressed. We know several young men who were boys with us whose parents followed in their upbringing the same plan, more through indolence and ignorance than design. They turn out to be shiftless and worthless, unschooled by discipline and training. It happens that there are so many things in this life that are distasteful to do, but whose discipline every young person needs, that a free theory is not wise. It is not wise to kill initiative but in the training of strong men no substitute has ever been devised for wise and wholesome discipline.

Up to August 7, 1935, the Supreme Court declared 67 acts of Congress unconstitutional. We have had 33 Democratic Congresses and 27 Republican Congresses. The Republican Congresses passed 42 acts and the Democrats 20 acts that were designed 7 unconstitutional acts, Theodore Roosevelt 6, and Grant 12. Seven times the Supreme Court has reversed itself.

Think—today—just now, hundreds of people are lying in hospital beds, victims of automobile accidents. Drive carefully.

It is being predicted that the United States government is in the relief business for good many years to come. Some believe that the relief efforts will finally confine themselves to road construction and flood prevention work.

A recent state wide vote on the sales tax in Oregon resulted in the proposition being voted down by a large majority. Its best showing was made in those counties where it was defeated by a three to one vote.

The most helpful medicine a man can have is constructive criticism. The man is wise who can take it and profit by it. In like measure he is wise who pays no attention to the petty carping critic.

One editor points out that there can be no world peace until nations become too civilized for war. A glance at present day world conditions would indicate that the world has a long way to go before it arrives at this point.

A boy never grows up to be as mean as the neighbors think he will, or as smart as his mother thinks he will.

We have been disillusioned a good many times, not counting those instances in our school days when we were positive that the author of the arithmetic had the wrong answer in the back of the book to many of the problems.

The federal relief program offers the best opportunity to secure a farm to market system of roads yet come to this country or may ever come again. The townships and counties and states that do not avail themselves of the opportunity to the fullest extent are going to be the losers. The demand for the roads is growing every day and when recovery sets in and relief is withdrawn many communities that are indifferent to the road program now will find themselves voting boards and buying roads at a much higher cost.

The time is not far distant when air conditioning plants will be as common in houses as furnaces are today. An air conditioning plant can be installed for about the cost of a mechanical ice box.

An Ayshire cow, Highland's Beauty, owned by Ralph H. Henry of Bluffton, Indiana, has produced in seven years a net profit of $1138.04 above feed cost. Over a period of seven years she has produced butter fat at an average feed cost of less than 12 cents a pound. In 1931 she produced 700 pounds of butter fat. During the seven years she has produced a total of 43 tons of milk.

Notwithstanding the fact that it has been demonstrated a number of times in the history of the world that the world deals harshly with the dictator who starts out to conquer the whole world there is always some one trying it.

We were talking to a local business man yesterday who said he had been in business sixteen years before he took two weeks off for a vacation. During this time he had spent on an average of ten hours a day six days a week at this place of business.

As evidence that the human race is growing better we submit the fact that there has been no murders committed in this community as a result of a campaign sticker being placed on an automobile windshield. The fact indicates at least that average human restraint and forbearance is on the increase.

Closing in on Root Rot

Cotton root rot, a disease which causes enormous losses to the cotton grower and to growers of other plants with roots of a woody structure, is prevalent in much of the black land region and in adjacent lime soils, to such an extent as areas. Experiments have been under way for some years by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation, looking to the establishment of practical and effective means of controlling or curtailing the effects of this disease.

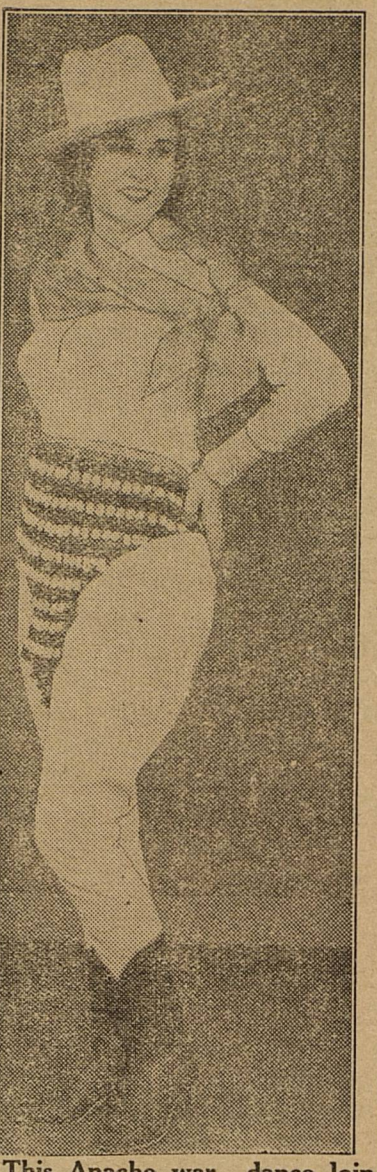

The most valuable point of attack in undertaking to bring such a disease as cotton root rot under control is to establish the means by which the disease is spread from plant to plant and from the soil to the plant, for without knowledge of the manner in which the disease is spread the farmer troubled by it is in no position to effect control. The case is identical in this respect with the control of malaria or yellow fever in that the first and most important step in bringing these diseases of man under control was to find out how the disease was spread; and when it was established that these diseases are spread by mosquitoes, effective measures of control were possible and we know how to protect mankind against the ravages of malaria and yellow fever.

Accordingly, the first and major undertaking of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the United States Department of Agriculture in attacking the cotton root rot disease problem, was to undertake to establish definitely the means by which this disease was spread. Early in the program it was definitely established that the disease was spread by root contact and that whenever an under-ground root infected with cotton root rot disease contacted a healthy root from another plant, that plant contracted the disease and in turn infected other plants. Thus it was established beyond any question of a doubt that the disease is spread by root contact.

Shortly after finding that root contact was a definite means of communication of the disease, it was established that a second major means of spreading the disease took place when this fungus developed little resting bodies about the size and color of a mustard seed, or a little larger, whose function seemed to be to hold the virulent organism in a resting stage for a period of time without the necessity of being in contact with roots of the plants. These little bodies were found to be centers of danger in the spread of the disease independent of live roots in the soil except that later, when contacted by growing roots in the soil, they can infect these roots directly and thus result in holding the disease over in the soil without the agency of a continuous supply of live roots such as is necessary in sustaining the simple fungus threads. Thus it has been established that, unlike malaria, which has only one means of spread, the root rot disease has at least two important means of communicating the disease.

There is a third possible important means of spread through what is known as spores which are nothing more or less than active bodies which correspond to the seed stage in the higher order of plants. It is not definitely known that these spores reproduce the disease, and thus far no scientist either of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station or the United States Department of Agriculture has been able to reproduce the disease from these spores but all believe it very probable that the spores are a source of infestation, and, if so, they must be considered as a third principal means of spread which has to be taken into account in any control measures put into use.

There may still be the consensus of opinion among scientists that these two or three are the principal means, if not the exclusive means, of spreading the disease.

With the establishment of these principal means of spreading this insidious disease, it becomes important that the effects of light, heat, temperature, moisture, and various physical and environmental factors, be studied intensively to determine their effect in holding in check or augmenting the spread of the disease. These various phases are all being studied intensively by scientists at the present time. It is a slow procedure to accumulate reliable data as to the effects of these factors upon these agencies of spread, but nevertheless, it is essential if a sound program of control is made possible. The ravages of this disease which have been variously estimated as causing from $10,000,000 to $100,000,000 loss each year in Texas alone, are obviously of such importance to the growers of susceptible crops such as cotton and nearly all woody rooted plants, that the meager amount of money for the ferreting of these details so necessary and vital to control is inconsiderable.

in comparison with the value of control measures to prevent or even to reduce losses from the disease.

Refreshing Relief
When You Need a Laxative
Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Robertson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."
BLACK-DRAUGHT

Don't ride with anyone who rocks the boat. He lacks good sense.

When you break camp be sure your fire is all out. Don't guess. Don't pick up on injured person until you know the extent of his injuries. A jagged, broken bone may cause a serious flesh wound or injure the spinal cord in the back. Call a doctor.

ELDORADO H. D. CLUB

"To make the Bell sleeve, take the Bishop sleeve, which was cut out of paper by the foundation pattern, and slash it in several places from bottom toward (cut within about half in. of top); spread it out to desired width at bottom, and mark around it, making curve around the bottom. The larger the puff desired, the farther down the curve should come. Reshape the Armseye after cutting out the sleeve," said Mrs. Otis Buie, wardrobe demonstrator for the Eldorado Home Demonstration Club, in giving a demonstration on sleeve cutting to the club at a meeting in the home of Mrs. F. M. Bradley, May 8th.

Using the foundation sleeve pattern, Mrs. Buie showed club members how to cut the following sleeves: Bishop, Bell, Leg-of-mutton, Dolman, and Raglan.

In the business session, Club members heard a report from their Council delegate a report from Miss Josephine Clayton, delegate to a recreational school which was held in San Angelo April 24th. The Treasurer's report showed a balance of $31.08 in the treasury. The club voted to donate $7.50 to the Council treasury.

"Fresh vegetables have a very important place in the diet," said Miss Lora Farnsworth, H. D. Agent in giving a demonstration on vegetable cooking to the Cliff H. D. Club at a meeting given at the Home of Mrs. J. L. McElroy, May 12.

Miss Farnsworth explained that vegetables are important for their laxative quality that they are important sources of mineral especially iron, calcium, and phosphorus.

Vegetables are also important sources of vitamins. Next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Roberts.

LEAVE MONDAY FOR AGUSTA, GEORGIA

Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Jones, Rev. and Mrs. N. P. Wilkinson will leave Monday for Augusta, Ga., where they will attend the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Jones and Rev. Wilkinson were elected commissioners from the Brownwood Presbytery.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday School at 10:00
Morning Worship at 11:00
Evening Worship at 8:15

The subject of the morning sermon will be "Reasons for Humiliation." In the work of the Lord no matter how great our accomplishment, nor how great our rejoicing, there are always reasons for humiliation. In this our "Jubilee Year" the General Assembly of our church has asked that this Sunday be set apart for a day of humiliation and prayer. This church will observe the day so. The pastor will preach at 8:15.

A cordial welcome awaits all at the services of this church.

Merchandising follows the distribution of advertising. When the people read the newspapers of the cities, carrying the attractive and effective advertising displays of the city merchants, they are attracted to the cities as a place to buy, and with modern transportation facilities, it is easily possible for them to reach the larger centers conveniently and economically.

Then it becomes the duty of the country town newspaper to provide in its columns those things that attract subscriptions and so prevent, in so far as possible, the circulation of the larger city papers that carry into the homes of the town and farms the advertising that attracts business away from the town.

It is the job of the publisher of the larger city daily papers, the country town newspapers to study advertising that will compete with that of the merchants of the city. However, any small town publisher will tell you that it takes money to publish a paper. It costs money to put stories into type, it costs money to secure stories that make a newspaper interesting. And no one can do his best while loosing sleep over unpaid bills. If we publish the kind of newspaper that will save Eldorado it will take money. If the merchant advertises he expects results, he expects the public to buy, the town in which these things are not done is the town in which the stores and the town itself will gradually fade out of the American picture. When you buy from the merchants of your town you help the town as a whole. Read your newspaper, buy from the advertisers, and you will get a better newspaper.

His ailment continues "about the same" in spite of these remedies suggested to him: tea made from inner membrane of chicken gizzard, prayer, tightening the belt one hole, shew school crayon, hold the years and take nine sips of rain water, bind sliced Irish potatoes to the stomach.

offers a wide range of models just the right one for your needs

is a silent, efficient kitchen helper because it operates on an advanced, simple freezing principle

Above all, remember when you look at Electrolux that it operates differently from all other automatic refrigerators that come to your attention. Its simple, silent freezing principle abounds in advantages and savings for you.

The Electrolux process of refrigerating was developed ten years ago by two technical students in Sweden who utilized a few well-known principles of nature to produce refrigeration without the use of any machinery or moving parts whatsoever. They caused the refrigerant to circulate by applying a slight amount of heat, thereby producing cold as long as the heat continued. It is air cooled. There are no moving parts, no machinery, because these things are not needed.

A tiny gas burner that can be held in the palm of the hand does all the work.
