

Bride-Elect Honored With Shower Saturday

Miss Elaine Luttrell of Sonora, bride-elect of Kyle Donaldson of Eldorado, was honored Saturday, May 19, with a tea and bridal shower in the club room of the Memorial Building in Eldorado.

Mrs. Russell Donaldson, mother of the bridegroom elect, greeted the guests and presented them to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. J. C. Luttrell, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bailey Bell of Bronte.

Misses Katherine Adams and Gale Rode served at the tea table centered with an arrangement of red roses and honeysuckle, which was covered with a white linen cloth, done in blue madeira embroidery. Miss Peggy Spencer presided at the register.

Hostesses were: Mrs. V. A. Carroll, Mrs. A. L. Westbrook, Mrs. Howard Faull, Mrs. J. B. Swain, Mrs. J. D. Holden, Mrs. Orland Harris, Mrs. E. G. Donaldson, Mrs. Sam Gausemeier, Mrs. George Williams and Mrs. Bill Williams.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Bailey Bell and Mrs. Mearl Proctor, both of Bronte; Mrs. Cash Taylor, Mrs. Dick Morrison, Mrs. William Radle, Miss Katherine Adams, Miss Gale Rode, Miss Mary Mary Hawkins, Miss Anita Thompson, all of Sonora.

Austin.—Big news around the State Capitol is that the state finally got out of the red.

Treasurer Jesse James announced the good news. Deficit, which had existed since September 28, 1958, was wiped out by heavy income from annual insurance and corporation franchise taxes, plus revenue from the new sales tax.

As of 1 p.m. May 18, there was a cash balance in the state's main checking account—the general revenue fund—of $1,233,106.

Fund will be back in the red again, from time to time, before everything gets squared away. However, about a year from now a steady surplus should be on hand.

Businessmen Lose Millions

Texas businessmen are throwing away more than $3 million a year, according to State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert. This because they're not taking advantage of the prepayment plan under the new state sales tax.

Since small and big businessmen usually pay their bills within 10 days to earn a two per cent discount, Calvert can't understand why they waste $3,160,000 a year by failing to get this same discount from the state.

Under the sales tax law's prepayment plan, a businessman can increase his allowable discount from one to three per cent. He can do so by rendering the tax for each quarter by the middle of the quarter to be reported. In other words, he can pay the tax in advance on a logical estimate.

Prepayment was conceived by the Legislature, Calvert said, as an incentive, with some consolation to the business that is forced to collect and report the tax. But to date prepayment has been the most neglected section of the sales tax law.

Textbook Lists Will Be Published

When the House Textbook Investigating Committee was holding open hearings books recommended by the State Textbook Committee of the Board of Education, one of the most frequent complaints registered by those who protested selections was that they couldn't get copies of the texts in time to study all the content.

The newly-appointed textbook committee for 1962 has set forth a system for adoption which will give every possible protestant as much time to pore over this year's offerings as the committee itself will have.

On or before July 1, publishers must file a statement of intent, listing all books offered by title, subject, copyright and authors. A compilation of this information will then be forwarded to all school districts, as well as interested groups and individuals who request the list from the Texas Education Agency.

Textbook publishers also have been instructed to make all considered texts available for purchase by the public from their various depositories.

Final date to file intent to protest any book offered for adoption will be August 1.

Youths To Be Rewarded

If you'd like to nominate a youngster for a distinguished service award, or for bravery, write to Governor Price Daniel. He is seeking recommendations for Young American Medals for Bravery and Service awards for 1961. He asks that nominations of boys and girls under age 19, who have performed acts of extraordinary courage or achieved outstanding records of service, be submitted to him by August 15.

Act of bravery or record of achievement must have been performed during 1961. Two medals may be awarded for each category by the Young American Medals Committee of the U. S. Department of Justice, after final approval by Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

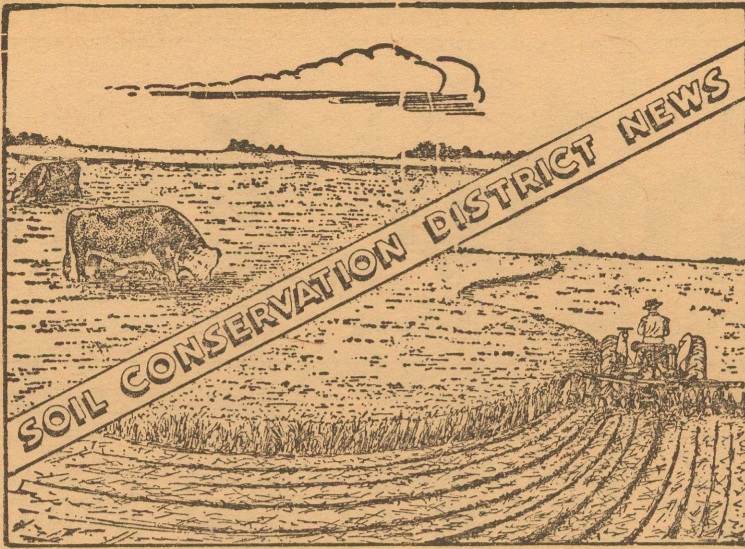

Governor Daniel will forward his recommendations to the Justice Department after he receives nominations which include facts about each youngster's achievement with supporting statements by witnesses; authenticated evidence of the time and place of the candidate's birth; a biographical sketch and photograph.

GOING TO SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION

Rev. D. C. DuBose and Rev. Wendell Moffatt will leave Monday to attend the Southern Baptist Convention to be held in San Francisco. They plan to spend Monday night with DuBose's sister, Mrs. Harry Gilliam and family in El Paso. They will then go to a national park in California to rest and relax for two days before going on to the convention. Rev. DuBose will be absent from his pulpit only one Sunday and plans to have Rev. Kirkpatrick of San Antonio to fill in for him. He will be gone almost two weeks.

Sgt. Gilliam, DuBose's brother-in-law in El Paso, will retire from the U. S. Army in three months, having served for 20 years.

Students from Eldorado attending Sul Ross will return home Friday—including Myrta Topliffe, Phillip Walker and Billy Van Dusen.

Soil Stewardship Week

Soil Stewardship Week—May 27-June 3, 1962—is a time for renewing the awareness of man's responsibility to the land. It is not a reminder to the farmer or rancher alone, but, to every person in our district, a reminder of the role that good land use plays in his or her life.

To whom does the land really belong? Aren't we, in all reality, just stewards of the land, as well as all other things that we may acquire in this life?

We come into this world with nothing and leave it the same way. We return to the land from whence we came and all that we leave, in this world, we leave to those who come after us.

As a farmer or rancher, are you a good steward of the land? You can take care of the land and make more money. Have you given it a try?

Johnson Receives 20-Year Pin

Lloyd B. Johnson, conservation aid, of the Soil Conservation Service, assisting the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district, received a 20-year pin and certificate signed by the Secretary of Agriculture at a meeting in the Town House hotel in San Angelo recently.

Johnson completed his 20th year with the Soil Conservation Service on April 15, 1962.

Great Plains Conservation Program

The Great Plains Conservation Program in the Schleicher county part of the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district, is moving along at a fair pace. At present the Great Plains Program Committee has received six applications on a total of about 41,674 acres. To date two contracts have been signed and three are now being developed.

Parasites Related To Conservation

Actual death loss from internal parasites can be minimized by good management. Since internal parasites cannot be eliminated, management practices are necessary for their control.

Several factors contribute to internal parasitism in sheep and goats.

1. Continuous stocking with sheep and/or goats.
2. Overstocking.
3. Lack of feed.
4. Poor watering facilities.
5. Failure to recognize the symptoms.
6. Failure to follow adequate control programs.

Control measures:

Thrifty animals in good condition are more resistant to internal parasites than animals in poor condition. Young animals are more susceptible to internal parasites than older animals and may require more care at critical times, such as weaning.

Ewes and does should be in the best condition at lambing and kidding time and during the suckling period.

Overgrazing is conducive to internal parasites. Animals are more likely to pick up infective larvae on closely grazed pastures. Infective larvae are dispersed more widely on pastures in good condition than on closely grazed pastures. Infestation of infective larvae usually is more pronounced on a heavily grazed pasture.

—taken from T.A.E.S. publication dealing with "Common Internal Parasites of Sheep & Goats."

STUDENT & TEACHER TO ATTEND ATOMIC ENERGY SYMPOSIUM AT TEXAS U. IN JUNE

GENELLE EDMISTON

ROBERT JAY

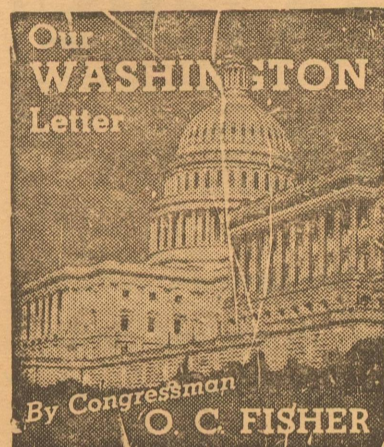

Eldorado High school has been selected by the University of Texas as one of 10 schools in the area served by West Texas Utilities Company to send a student and an instructor to the 2nd Annual Atomic Energy Symposium to be held in June at the University of Texas in Austin.

Robert L. Jay, science teacher at Eldorado High, and Genelle Edmiston, a 1962 graduate, have been chosen as the instructor and student to attend the Symposium.

Mr. Jay has been teaching at Eldorado High for the past two years and is head of the science department. Miss Edmiston is valedictorian of the 1962 Senior class.

Atomic Energy Symposiums sponsored by the West Texas Utilities Company are growing in popularity every year. They represent one of the many ways to develop student understanding of science and engineering and motivate those with a real interest to seek careers in these fields. Meeting the nation's need for educated people is a challenge that concerns everyone. West Texas Utilities Co. is endeavoring, through these programs, to do its part in encouraging young people to make the most of educational opportunities.

Disarmament is a subject of current discussion on many fronts. For years our government and our allies have conferred with the Communists at Geneva and elsewhere about a reduction in the arms race. No progress has been made because the Russians have steadfastly refused to agree on a definite plan which would entail inspection to insure conformity with any mutual agreement.

It has been evident, of course, that the Soviets have never acted in good faith in such meetings, and there is no reason to anticipate that their attitude will change in the foreseeable future. That was well illustrated last year when, even during the time disarmament talks were going on, they suddenly announced the unilateral resumption of nuclear tests—a direct violation of an existing agreement.

The policy of our government for years has been against any sort of unilateral disarmament on our part. That has been the attitude in the Congress. As evidence of the thinking of the Congress on the subject of armaments, only recently the House passed a bill, unanimously, to substantially increase funds for national defense.

An all-time peacetime high figure of $48 billion was voted, for the next fiscal year.

Last year the Congress approved an Arms Control Act, designed to strengthen our negotiators at such conferences by coordinating all information pertaining to weapons, and providing a research program that should enable our representatives at such talks to more fully protect our interests that might otherwise conceivably suffer from any lack of technical information in this age of science and technological advances.

Any plan for international disarmament is unthinkable unless made in good faith, with appropriate inspection privileges to see to it that any agreement is fully complied with. There appears no likelihood that such an agreement will be forthcoming.

Seven years of progress in the fields of missiles, rockets, and spacecraft is depicted in a most dramatic fashion in a 20 minute 16mm. film recently prepared by the Air Force. It is undoubtedly the best film ever assembled on this subject. I have borrowed one of the films and will be pleased to send it to any clubs or groups that are interested in showing it.

On The Screen . . .

'Four Horsemen' And 'Tender Is The Night' Showing At The Eagle

Two novels of about 45 and 30 years ago comprise the current offerings at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre. Both are in color, and one is a remake with a role that silent-screen idol Rudolph Valentino made famous back in 1921.

'Four Horsemen'
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, rummaging through its story larder, ran into a property it acquired in 1920 for $190,000, a goodly sum today. It was the silent screen script and hard-earned rights to the late (1867-1928) Vicente Blasco-Ibanez's Spanish novel, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." It was a best-seller on publication in 1918. It isn't out of circulation yet.

Now that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has completed, 41 years later, another "Four Horsemen," let's have a brief look at the first, inasmuch as the second is galloping to the Eagle Drive-In Theatre screen tonight and tomorrow with two hours of Metrocolored footage.

Rudolph Valentino, by turning his cauliflower ear away from the camera, qualified as the sleekest and most ardent lover to stir the pulse of the matinee trade of the silent screen. He taught the new movie business a lasting lesson in vicarious amours. It is still practiced.

The "message" of the story culled from the novel of the Spaniard Ibanez was lost in the effluvia of the Valentino personality. It was a silent film and there were no speeches to blur the flash of his white-toothed smile.

World War I was already terminated and it is doubtful that the ladies had a "World Safe for Democracy" on their minds as much as a world safe for Valentinos. The studios tried sufficient imitations: Rod LaRocque, Ramon Navarro, Ricardo Cortez, and, in later years, Charles Boyer.

Elderly and thrown on his own resources as an actor is the same Boyer as Marcelo Desnoyers in the remake of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" now showing.

The setting is updated from World War I to World War II, and Boyer is an Argentinian of French parentage spending his South American money in Paris and resolved merely to be a non-partisan on-looker at the war.

This was more easily said than done. If Blasco-Ibanez thought it impossible for World War I, his updating scenarists find it improbable and inadvisable for World War II. The Germans under Hitler appear more like the mounted fiends of the Apocalypse than did the goose-stepping minions of the Kaiser.

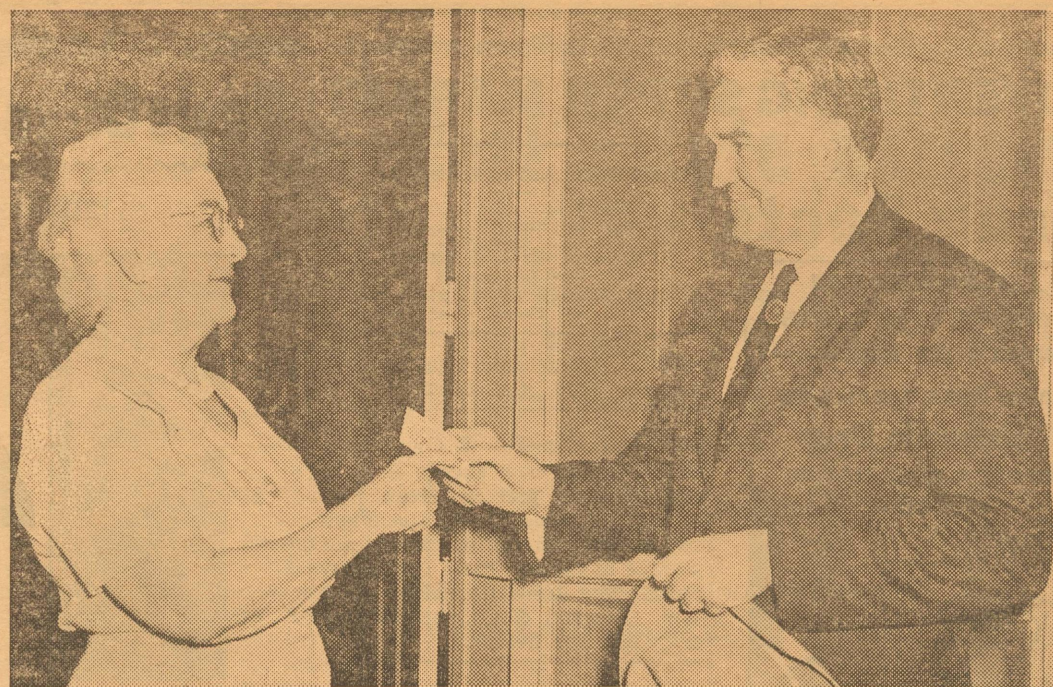

Desnoyer's son (Glenn Ford) is much in his temperamental image. Ford also wants to sit out the unpleasantness, indulge in Left Bank artistry, and delight himself with a pretty collaborator. She (Ingrid Thulin) is the wife of a French patriot who has been defeated on the field and is now a member of the resistance. She can't help herself. Mr. Ford just appeals to her more than Paul Henreid, her lawful spouse.

You may call it a touching love story, if you wish, but the fact remains that husband Henreid is being tortured in a German POW camp while his wife and the civilian hide out in occupied Paris.

The crux of "The Four Horsemen" is an Argentina family ripped down the middle when half of the in-laws join the Nazi party. While cousin Ford dallies as a neutral in Paris, cousin Karl Boehm (who does the best job in the picture) rises as an S. S. officer, offering the lovers protection as long as they remain in line.

The ghost riders in the sky that haunt Glenn Ford aren't necessarily War, Famine, Pestilence and Death. The pale rider looming most vividly in Ford's mind just might be Rudolph Valentino, who first did the Julio Desnoyers role 41 years ago.

Director Vincente Minnelli keeps the remake on an epic scale. He handles tricks like suspense with firm movie mastery. Being an old art director, he has given both Madariaga Ranch in Argentina and the Parisian locale important scenic opulence.

'Tender Is The Night'
Jennifer Jones has been given a shattering assignment in "Tender Is The Night," which is based on the late F. Scott Fitzgerald's 1934 novel, and which will be shown Sunday and Monday nights at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre.

Director Henry King's De Luxe color views of the Riviera, Switzerland, and Rome, are breathtaking, and Miss Jones is superior as the Fitzgerald flapper of the 1920's who is committed to a mental sanitarium after being forced into an incestuous affair. Going against all advice, she falls in love with and marries her psychiatrist, a dependency relationship that is doomed from the outset.

As the psychiatrist, Jason Roberts Jr. is the leading man. He is a fine actor, playing against the character built by Miss Jones. As she grows stronger in the face of each problem, he grows weaker—finding solace finally in the bottle and the beach-bum smart set that filters into most of Fitzgerald's works.

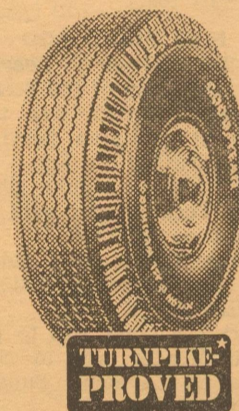

Mr. King coaxes good acting out of a cast speaking a workmanlike script. Mr. Roberts has temperament and intelligence. Moreover, he stands up as the rugged type, slightly Humphrey Bogart in impact. Miss Jones, at her maturity, simulates freshness under a wind-swept bob. If she isn't irresistible, she is, at least, effectively strong in her stretches of "tell-off" dialog.

Mrs. J. B. Montgomery called me the other morning for a recipe for making a rose jar or rose sachet from rose petals. I didn't have one, but I checked with Miss Ruth Baker, the county librarian, and she had not one but two. The one given here is the easier to make and I believe that many of you will enjoy a jar of fragrance which can be added to as long as the roses last. Just for pleasure try this

Rose Jar

Gather your roses only in the early morning before the hot sun shines on them. Spread the petals on brown paper and sprinkle lightly with salt (not iodized).

Place in a sunny place, tossing lightly every day until perfectly dry. For more color and character add honeysuckle blossoms and larkspur flowers that have been gathered and dried too.

When all the flowers are dry, fill your jar, sprinkling each layer of dried petals with mixed spices, nutmeg, allspice, cinnamon and cloves. When the jar is filled, pour a tablespoon of your favorite perfume over the leaves. Close tightly and there it is.

And while we are on the flower subject, let me repeat a direction which was given to the Garden Club by Mrs. Tommy Ridgeway, florist and garden club member of San Angelo.

Maggie told us to place cut flowers from our own yards in warm water immediately on cutting. Not hot—about bath temperature. And, to treat cut flowers from the florist in the same way. On getting flowers which have been cut for some time, remember to cut about an inch or so from the stem ends before placing in the warm water.

This works. I know it doesn't sound exactly right as stacked against what we have "always" thought. Last Saturday afternoon I cut a bunch of petunias and put them in medium hot water. Today, Thursday, they are still fresh and standing upright. Water is absorbed by the plant cells more quickly when the water is warm than cold; that is the reason it works. Try it.

As an old time educator has said: "You may well doubt what you hear, you can doubt what you see but you can not doubt what you do."

Do your meringues always fall? Or, are they tough? Perish the thought—but if they do, take these tips:

1. Add the sugar—2 tablespoons to each egg white—before beating if you use an electric beater. If you use a rotary hand beater add the sugar just at the foamy stage.
2. Try a high baking temperature (400 to 420 F) and bake from 3 to 5 minutes. The meringue will cut more easily, be more tender and have less tendency to "weep."

Summer time is painting time. And painting time is the right time to know what a color is going to look like when it's dry. The best way to do this is to drop a few drops on a white blotter; in a few minutes you can tell what that wall and woodwork is going to look like BEFORE and not the next day after it's painted.

Sometimes a varnished piece of furniture or woodwork doesn't need a new coat of varnish but instead, just cleaning.

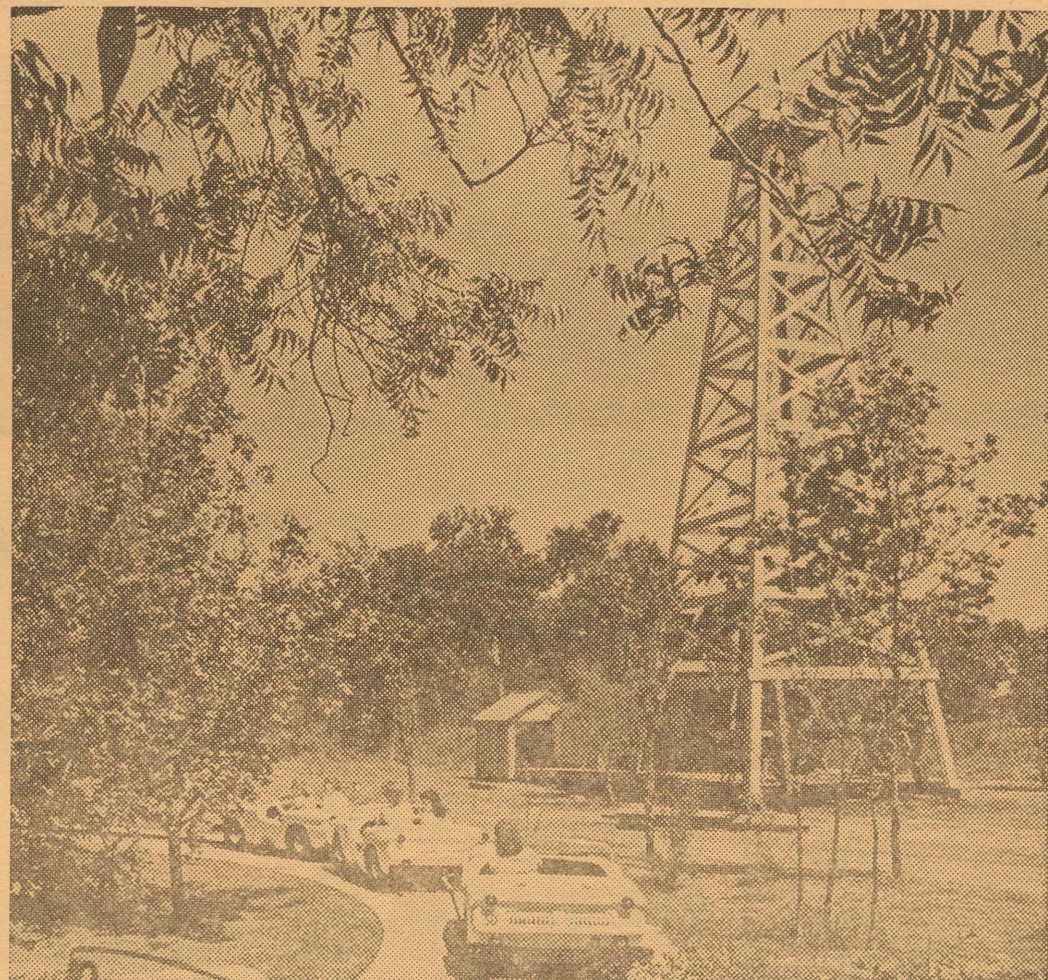

In a double boiler combine 1 quart (4 cups) hot water 1 tablespoon gum turpentine (cuts the dirt and grease)

3 tablespoons boiled linseed oil, or lemon oil (to lubricate, feed, and polish the wood).

Keep the mixture hot in the double boiler while you work. Dip a soft cloth in the solution, wring out excess moisture and apply to furniture doing only one part at the time. Rub the wood, keeping moisture away from joints as much as possible, (to keep from dampening glued joints). Fine steel wool (000) may be used to rub the solution on badly soiled surfaces. Wipe surface immediately with a dry cloth. Polish with a woolen cloth.

DRY HOLE DRILLED AT SIX FLAGS

Motorists driving along the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike may have been wondering about the old time wooden oil derrick that has just been constructed in the 110-acre tourist attraction... SIX FLAGS Over Texas.

Master plans in the projected expansion of SIX FLAGS included the construction of an oil boom town, and the oil derrick is the initial structure. Following its policy of striving to attain authenticity in the Park, scouts from SIX FLAGS boarded the SIX FLAGS helicopter and headed for Breckenridge, Texas. They had heard that an old wooden derrick, complete with rigging was located somewhere in the area.

About four miles North of Breckenridge the old wooden structure was spotted and pilot Clifford Place settled the whirlybird down nearby. The owner of the property on which the well is located came out to investigate and purchasing agent Roy Day made arrangements on the spot to buy the derrick. However, some of the old mechanical equipment was not intact, and the SIX FLAGS group went into Breckenridge to visit an oil well equipment supplier.

The supplier, G. T. McNallen, was asked if he had any old rig "iron," or a complete old unit that was for sale. McNallen replied by asking if the Six Flaggers had seen the old Crowley Number One well, out North of town. Day answered by saying, "Yes, we just came from there, and bought the thing." McNallen replied, "Oh, yeah." Day explained that he had just made a deal with the man that owns the property. McNallen, quipped, "That's funny, I thought I owned it."

It seems that when the property was sold McNallen had retained rights to the well, of which the current owner was unaware. After some complicated dealing, the derrick finally became the property of SIX FLAGS Over Texas, along with a complete 1920 vintage "cable tool" rig. When SIX FLAGS construction supervisors and mechanics trekked to Breckenridge to move the installation, they found the derrick was too old and rotten to either tear down and re-assemble, or to move intact.

Then, the Park hired Charlie Fox, an old-time oil rigging expert who had built many wooden derricks in the past. As a consultant, Fox took measurements of the old derrick and secured a quantity of number two rough pine, and began building the replica in the SIX FLAGS Park. The floor of the old derrick was good enough to use in the new 68' high derrick, and was moved complete from Breckenridge, along with all the drilling equipment. This included gears, a walk-side reel, a backside reel, a bull wheel, sand reel, calf wheel, hand wheel and pitman.

The original Crowley Number One well was a producing oil well in the Breckenridge area, and was constructed and drilled in the year 1920. It was 3,500 feet in depth—an extremely deep well for those days.

At SIX FLAGS Over Texas the "cable-tool" rig will actually operate, as wheels turn and cables roll over pulleys.

The derrick and its rig in operation can be seen at SIX FLAGS from two rides that were popular modes of transportation during the days that Crowley Number One was pumping its 250 barrels a day. One is the Chaparral Antique Car ride, where guests drive 1/4 scale models of 1911 antique cars. Another is the narrow-gauge steam engine train that encircles the Park. Drivers of miniature sports cars on the Humble Happy Motoring Freeway will also be able to view the derrick, which had become obsolete before the day of the sports car. And, of course, the rig and derrick will be seen by every rider of the "Astrolift" cars that soar 50 feet in the air over the great Park.

It took searching, ingenuity, labor and time to get it, but now SIX FLAGS Over Texas has its own dry hole, complete with a derrick and equipment that most oilmen quit using some 40 years ago.

On May 9, 1862, five Confederates were killed and seven captured in a minor skirmish at Elk River, Tennessee. Apparently the only Union casualties were 47 men who were taken prisoner.

One of the Confederates killed that day was Captain A. D. Harris of Gonzales, a member of Terry's Texas Rangers, whose death and burial are perhaps as well documented as that of any single soldier who fell in the Civil War.

The details are authenticated in a collection of original letters and copies of old newspapers now in the possession of Dr. Madge Lewis, librarian at Mary Hardin-Baylor College.

Dr. Lewis' grandmother was one of the "babies" spoken of by Captain Harris in a letter he penned to his wife on Feb. 22, 1862 while stationed at Franklin, Tennessee.

In the letter he expressed uneasiness about his family and asked his wife to meet him in Huntsville, Alabama as "I want to see you and tell you about all my business affairs in Texas so as that if I should get killed, you would know some things that I have not communicated to any one and will be of great importance to you and the babies."

Mrs. Harris' answer apparently never reached the Captain, for on June 4, Captain Marcus Legrand Evans, an old family friend from Gonzales who later became a lieutenant colonel in command of Terry's Texas Rangers and was killed at the Battle of Perryville on October 8, 1862, wrote to Mrs. Harris:

"Enclosed you will find your letter to your lamented deceased husband. His eyes are now closed in death and will never have the pleasure of reading the letter of his family that was dearer to him than all the world beside. He fell on the battlefield while gallantly leading his men in a charge against the invaders of our soil—the despoilers of our homes; the destroyers of all our family ties that make this life worth living for."

Captain Evans wrote that Captain Harris' body was brought back from Elk River and buried at Tusculumbia, Alabama, with Masonic honors.

The Masonic funeral was conducted by the Washington Lodge of Tusculumbia which entered the following resolution in its minutes on May 14:

"Whereas this lodge has heard, with profound regret of the death of Captain A. D. Harris of the Texas Rangers, who failed while gallantly defending our country's invaded rights near Athens in this state on Friday the ninth inst., be it therefore,

"Resolved, That this lodge mourns in common with the Masonic Lodge in the Confederate States, the loss of the patriot hero.

"Resolved, That the lodge in its proper organization attend the burial of our deceased brother this morning.

"Resolved, That in respect to the memory of Bro. Harris the members wear the usual badge of mourning for the space of 30 days.

"Resolved, That our fraternity by sympathizing with the Gonzales Lodge of Texas of which Bro. Harris was a member in the loss of him whom we have every reason to believe was a zealous Mason and a devoted member."

The resolution further recommended that the minutes be published in the North Alabamian of this place and that a copy properly attested be forwarded each to Gonzales Lodge and the widow of Bro. Harris.

Apparently Captain Harris received a burial befitting one of his station and rank for among the papers in Dr. Lewis' collection is a handwritten expense account for transportation of the body to Tusculumbia and for burial expense.

Among the entries of the account are such items as $5 for digging grave, $3 for 250 brick, $3 for a barrel of cement, $2 for a marble stone and engraving, and $15 for "favorn bill for corpse and escort." The latter entry is assumed to be for overnight lodging in a hotel along the way from Elk River to Tusculumbia.

The account containing 17 items was paid with $28.50 found on Captain Harris' person and $150 borrowed from Captain G. W. Littlefield. (We wondered if this could be Captain George W. Littlefield of Austin for whom the Littlefield Memorial Fountain at the University of Texas is named.)

On June 23, 1862, the Gonzales Lodge passed a tribute of respect to Captain Harris which was published in the Gonzales Inquirer of June 30.

Then on May 1, 1863, almost a year after Captain Harris' death, the Royal Arch Chapter of Masons at Gonzales, of which the Captain was a member, passed a tribute of respect. By this time, however, not one, but two of the members had been killed in action, and both names were included in the tribute.

The other was Lt. Col. Marcus Legrand Evans who rose to command the regiment known as Terry's Texas Rangers and who had written to tell Mrs. Harris of her husband's death.

FRATERNITY PRESIDENT

Miss Ann Blair, business education major at Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth, was recently elected president of Phi Beta Lambda, a national business education fraternity, and also vice president of Beta Epsilon, the campus business club.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Blair of Eldorado.

Margo Mittel came home Monday from Baylor, Waco, to spend a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Mittel. She will attend graduation exercises at A&M this week end, and will be in a friend's wedding party next week end in East Texas. Then on June 4th she and a friend, Genelle Salter, of Eunice, La., will leave for Colorado Springs, Colo. There they will be employed for the summer at Santa's Workshop, a tourist attraction for children at the foot of Pike's Peak, near Colorado Springs.

Working for Texas

Meet a fellow Texan: Preston Smith. Preston Smith's story is in the best Texas and American tradition—a farm boy who worked his own way to an education and a place of honor in his business and community life.

Born in the heart of Texas, at Georgetown, he moved with his family to Dawson County in 1923 when he was 10 years old. He went to school at Sunset, Lamesa, and Texas Tech. In his adopted home town of Lubbock, with his wife Ima and their two children, he now carries out the full responsibilities of a typical Texas business and civic leader.

A steward at St. John's Methodist Church—member of the Salvation Army Board, the Kiwanis Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Farm Bureau—these are some of the activities close to the heart of Preston Smith, citizen.

He did not stop there. In his daily pursuits Preston Smith came to realize that business and government are closely related in the American system—and that without good government we cannot have a favorable climate for good business. A man of direct action, Preston Smith went into the business of government. He served six years in the Texas House of Representatives and six in the Senate.

Senator Smith has supported sound statewide legislation for better schools, roads, welfare and conservation. He took the lead in establishing a permanent building program for state colleges. He had the integrity to support necessary state spending and the courage to oppose extravagance and waste. In government, as in business and at home, Preston Smith believes in meeting our obligations and paying our bills.

Having proved himself as one of the best-rounded, best-equipped, best-informed and most highly respected Texans in both his private and public careers, Preston Smith was a logical candidate to succeed Ben Ramsey as Lieutenant Governor of Texas.

Voters in 102 counties gave Preston the lead over four opponents in the First Democratic Primary. Now he is in the runoff. He got there without the support of any self-serving group or power bloc. His opponent has the endorsement of labor leaders and other special interests who want to dominate our state government.

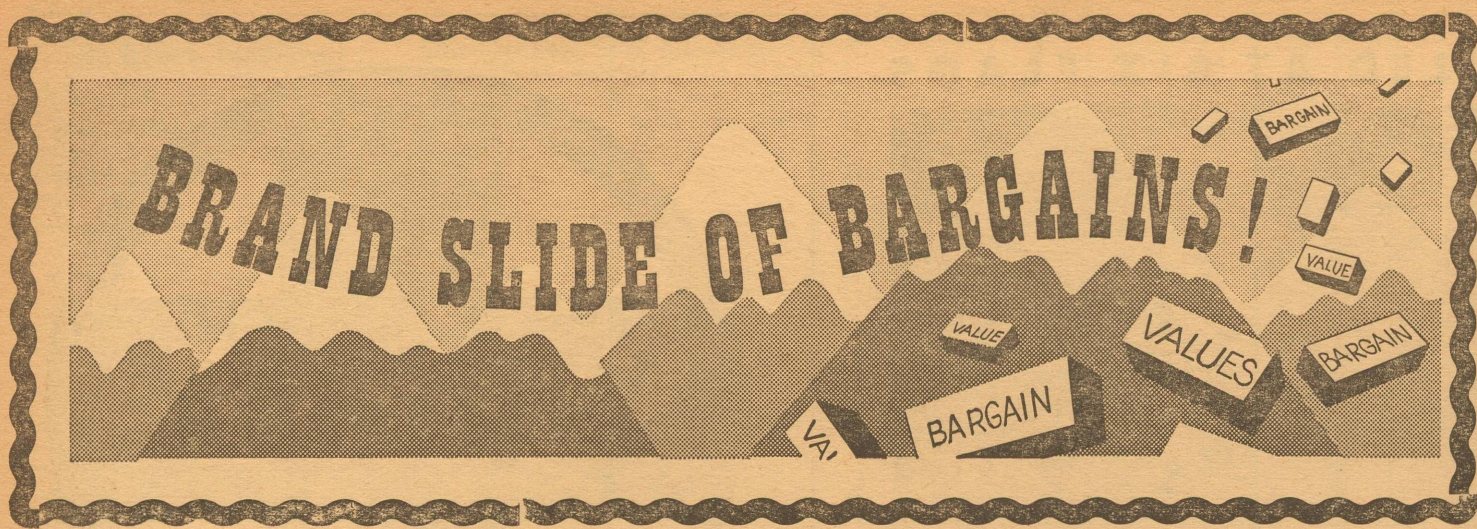

Preston Smith asks only for the votes of individual Texans who want a Lieutenant Governor without any strings attached. He is depending on independent-minded Texans everywhere to vote for him on June 2.

Elect your independent candidate for Lieutenant Governor—
