Community Revival To Start Sunday

Under sponsorship of the Ministerial Alliance of Eldorado, a Community-Wide Revival will start Sunday night in the high school auditorium and continue through Good Friday.

Services will be held each night beginning at 7:30, with preaching by Dr. L. L. Morriss, pastor of the First Baptist church in Midland, as evangelist.

Song leaders are scheduled to be Gene and Bobbie Moore, who are in the Methodist evangelistic field and are assigned to the Northwest Texas conference.

Although both Gene and his wife Bobbie had previously been invited and had given their consent to be on hand for the Community Revival here in Eldorado, it was indefinite this week if she would be able to come on account of the illness of one of her children. Gene was conducting a revival this week in Hutchinson, Kansas, and is expected to be here by Sunday night.

In addition to the services each of the six nights, there will be some special morning services. The Presbyterian church will be location of morning services at 10:00 a.m. each day.

There will also be a men's breakfast Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 6:30 at the First Baptist church.

A youth night will be held Wednesday, April 14th.

For the night services, a community nursery will be provided at the First Baptist church for all pre-school children.

Rev. Kenneth Vaughan, pastor of the First Baptist church, is currently president of the Ministerial Alliance of Eldorado. Rev. Dan Sebesta, pastor of First Presbyterian church, is secretary-treasurer. Other members of the Alliance are Frank O'Banion music-education director at First Baptist; Rev. Johnny Griffith, pastor of the Assembly of God church; Rev. C. E. Cogswell, pastor of the First Christian church; and Rev. C. M. Nyquist, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Voters Approve Water District

While the turn-out was light at the polling place last Saturday, the 231 voters who did cast their ballots, approved the proposed underground water conservation district by better than two to one. The vote was 164 in favor of the district, and 67 opposed.

The vote will be recorded and sent to the Texas Legislature where the bill to establish the district is now pending. Rep. Jim Nugent of Kerrville is sponsoring the bill in the House.

Described as a referendum, the vote was conducted on a separate ballot in connection with the school trustee election, where unopposed incumbents Bill Lester and Fred Case were re-elected.

Public Invited to Open House Here On Saturday

Plans and arrangements are about complete for Open House to be held this Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the almost completely new El Dorado Woolens, Inc., which was reorganized over a year ago. The firm was formerly the West Texas Woolen Mills.

Visitors from a wide area of West Texas are expected to be on hand to tour the plant which has been nearly doubled in size. The newly completed building which houses display room and offices and fronts onto the Sonora highway will be of special interest to those who attend.

The new building is directly behind the older mill building which fronts on South Main street. These two structures, plus the corner stucco building where Ratliff Funeral Home was located a number of years ago, house the operations of El Dorado Woolens whose products are now known all over the United States.

As visitors approach the handsome new building on the Sonora highway, they will notice the Mexican influence carried out in design, furnishing and landscaping. The building is painted a bright yellow with dark ornamental iron trim. Dark red gravel with some cactus plantings at the curb all serve to provide an appropriate setting. A patio on the north side, just outside the directors' room, is also landscaped with a southwestern flavor.

As callers enter the new building, they will see the Mexican influences continued in the interior furnishings, which were imported from Mexico.

In the display room, the familiar "El Dorado" blankets in all sizes and colors are shown along with several new lines.

These include new wool and wool-mohair blend fabrics available as yard goods, and as garments designed exclusively by the plant's new designer, Mrs. Lana de Risi from Italy.

Mrs. de Risi is designing garments which will be sold through the mill's fabric shop as well as through exclusive outlets across the nation.

Casement drapery material, a loosely woven wool or wool-mohair blended fabric, is another of the new lines with a "handmade look" which is now on sale.

Some of it was used by the First National Bank here last year when it remodeled and enlarged its quarters. About 1200 yards went into a new motel at Kerrville, the Inn of the Hills, as well as into Mertzon and Uvalde banks, the new civic center in Ozona, and the Del Rio library.

Mouton processed lamb skin area rugs, in all colors and sizes, is another relatively new product of the El Dorado Woolens.

One custom-made gold tone rug, size 12 by 14 feet, was made for the Admiral Byrd family trophy room in their Dallas home, and was accompanied by a price tag of about $1100.

A line of cotton yard goods made by a mill at New Braunfels, and Singer sewing notions of all kinds complete the well-stocked display room.

Mrs. Sue Wilson, formerly of San Angelo, has general charge of the fabric shop.

On the north side of the new building are offices for Tom Wallace, general manager, and Joe Ed Spencer, Mrs. Clay Porter, and Mrs. Orland Harris, and the directors' room. These are decorated with paintings by Mrs. Rita McWhorter.

There is a large room at the rear where the "napper" machine is now located in a walled off area. Here, too, are large storage shelves, sewing machines, and work areas.

Dress designing, sewing, and saddle blanket manufacturing are also carried on.

Knight Susen Lumber Company of San Angelo was general contractor on the new building and on the remodeling of the older parts of the plant.

An upstairs room in the older mill building—which was site of a big celebration when first opened on February 27, 1941—is to be new office for Joe M. Christian, one of the mill founders who is now production manager.

Under direction of Harold Susen, the finishing touches on the office for Mr. Christian were being completed this week.

Howard Derrick, local ranchman, is president of El Dorado Woolens; James L. Powell, Fort McKavett ranchman, is vice-president; those two are principal owners along with Virgil Powell of San Angelo and Norm Cash of the Detroit Tigers.

The board of directors is composed of Tom Wallace, Derrick and Powell, and Joe M. Christian as plant production manager.

It was reported that with addition of the new lines, the plant could easily double and possibly triple the approximately 100,000 pounds of wool and mohair processed last year. Already, the mill has 25 employees, as compared with about 15 when it was reorganized 14 months ago.

As time neared this week for the Open House to take place, a few finishing touches were being done to the street and parking areas, and to older parts of the mill plant, but all this work should be completed by Saturday.

Tomorrow night, Friday, the Miss Wool Pageant will be held in San Angelo and it is planned for the new Miss Wool to be a visitor in the plant during open house.

The Schleicher County Chamber of Commerce arranged to present each Miss Wool contestant with stadium robes as they visited El Dorado Woolens Sunday, and the 20 young ladies were honored with a barbecue later in the day.

The four year commemoration of the centennial of the Civil War will end officially on April 9, appropriately enough at Appomattox, Virginia, where General Robert E. Lee and General Ulysses S. Grant met to end the great conflict.

Impressive ceremonies there on that date will include dedication of the restored Appomattox Court House as a National Historical Park by the National Park Service, an address by noted historian and National Civil War Centennial Commission member Bruce Catton, and the release of the Appomattox Commemorative Stamp—the last of the series of five Civil War stamps to be issued.

A highlight of the program is expected to be the arrival of Gen. U. S. Grant, III, and Robert E. Lee, IV, both of whom will attend the ceremonies and will cut the ribbon dedicating the Court House following the commemorative program.

Although the Appomattox ceremonies will, for all practical purposes, end the commemorative period, there will continue to be other activities marking important events of the War for several weeks yet.

One of these is to be in Danville, Virginia, known as the "Last Capital of the Confederacy." It was to Danville that Jefferson Davis and his cabinet, along with many of the Confederacy's agencies fled following the fall of Richmond. The Confederate government operated for a week at Danville waiting and hoping for a meeting there of the armies of Lee and Joseph E. Johnston.

However, when word came that Lee had surrendered, Davis and his government left Danville and headed southward.

In Washington, D.C., later this month, the second inaugural of Abraham Lincoln as president will be commemorated with impressive ceremonies in the capitol building.

And on May 14, 15 and 16, at Brownsville, the "Last Battle of the Civil War" will be commemorated in ceremonies near Brownsville by the Texas Civil War Centennial Advisory Committee and the Texas State Historical Survey Committee.

It was at Palmetto ranch near Brownsville on May 13, 1865, that about 500 Confederates under Brig. Gen. James Slaughter engaged about 250 Union soldiers in a battle which saw the Confederates emerge as victors. Their victory was short-lived, however, for they learned from their prisoners that the Confederacy had fallen a month and more before the battle.

The last man killed in the Civil War fell at Palmetto; he was Recruit John Jefferson Williams, 25, of Company B, 34th Regiment of Indiana Volunteers. A large portrait of Williams is on display in the Soldiers and Sailors monument in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Recommended Reading for This Week: One of the men confined at Camp Douglas, Illinois, as a prisoner of war was Ben Seaton of the Tenth Texas Infantry. Seaton kept one of the most unique and interesting diaries to be published in book form during the Civil War Centennial.

Entitled "The Bugle Softly Blows," the story has been edited by Harold B. Simpson and published by Texian Press of Waco. Words from Seaton's diary repeated on the dust jacket of the book seem particularly appropriate at this the close of the Centennial. He wrote:

"I heard 'attention battalion' in a very low tone voice . . . it almost sounded like a death knell. Everything was still and in the distance the bugle softly blows . . ."

Particularly appropriate also is Andrew F. Rolle's "The Lost Cause," published by the University of Oklahoma Press. The book is concerned with the flight of numerous Confederates to Mexico after the war. Rolle's account is a thorough study of a little-known chapter in Confederate history.

Earlier in this space we wrote of the Texas Senate Journals of the War period which the Texas State Library is publishing. Under the editorship of James N. Day, State Archivist, the journal of the Tenth Regular Session of the Senate, 1863, has just been published. Of particular value is the foreword by Sen. Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo.

Approaching Marriage Announced

Mrs. Jesusita Garcia, grandmother, and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Garcia, parents, have announced the approaching marriage of Julia Garcia to Alejandro C. Sanchez, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sanchez.

The wedding will take place at 10:30 a.m., on April 24th at The Catholic Church in Eldorado and will be followed by a reception in the Jesusita Garcia home.

Eldorado Wins In Tennis At Junction

First place award went to Bill Whitten and Mickey Pennington as they downed Junction 6-2, 6-4. Sherry Yates and Susan Hill also copped a first, beating Menard 6-4, 6-4 and Junction 8-6, 7-5. On freshman singles Lonnie Gibson won second losing in the finals to Junction 7-5, 1-6, 4-6. Shirley Hubble won second, beating Menard 6-2, 6-3 then losing to Junction 0-6, 0-6.

In the Junior High Division Randy Yates won second, losing to Junction 1-6, 2-6. The Junior high doubles team of Donna Davis and Arlene Hartgraves lost to Junction 2-8 and were therefore third.

Jack Bell coaches the tennis team and will take the Senior High team to district meet at Rankin April 13-14.

The senior girls division will have Chris Edmiston at singles and the returning district champions in doubles Christy Moore and Frankie Blaylock.

The senior boys division is incomplete as some are still vieing for a spot. Larry McGinnes and Joe Max Edmiston have nailed down a spot on the team but the third position is yet undetermined.

The Civil War centennial is now coming to a close. Maybe it is just as well, for a lot of people are getting tired of it.

We worked up this calendar as it was in April 1865, because the first 14 days are packed full of drama. There is one extra point to remember for that month. Easter Sunday that year came on April 16; April 9 was Palm Sunday, and Friday the 14th was Good Friday. It doesn't hurt to remember that date—it comes up again.

April 1. Sheridan and Grant were in pursuit of Lee's army which was in serious straits.

The Confederate government had fled Richmond on the night of April 2; the first Union troops entered the city on April 3.

Lincoln, who had never been in Richmond visited the city on April 4. He returned to Washington on the 5th or 6th.

As the week wore on what was left of the Confederate army was pounded mercilessly, and by Saturday night General Robert E. Lee found himself with troops completely exhausted and surrounded by vastly superior Union forces.

On Sunday, 9th, Lee wrote a note asking Grant for an interview "with reference to the surrender of this army."

And it became a folk tale and a school-reader story how at McLean house on the edge of Appomattox village, 95 miles west of Richmond, these two great captains of men faced each other in a little room and Lee gave over his army to Grant.

Grant had never been a Republican; in fact his wife was the owner of slaves. Lee had never been a slaveholder except by inheritance and had immediately sold the slaves. Both saw slavery as a canker and an evil.

When surrender terms had been signed Grant asked if there were any other suggestions. Lee had one. In his army the cavalymen and artillerists owned their own horses. He wanted these men who owned their mounts to have them on their farms for spring plowing. Grant agreed and said he would instruct officers receiving paroles "to let men who claim to own a horse or mule to take the animals home with them to work their little farms."

At 4:30 that Sunday afternoon Grant telegraphed the War Department in Washington that General Lee had surrendered. It quickly went by wire all over the north and the country went wild.

All over the north on that day of Monday, April 10th everything done before in victory was done again. Crowds gathered around the White House on Monday evening and called for a speech by Lincoln. Lincoln told the crowd to return the next night.

On Tuesday, April 11th Lincoln issued a proclamation dealing with closing of southern ports from Richmond, Virginia, to Brownsville, Texas. And on Tuesday night he delivered a somewhat lengthy speech to a large crowd.

In the next few days following Sunday, April 9th. General Grant returned to Washington. Lincoln's son, Robert, who was a captain on Grant's staff, naturally returned to Washington also.

In Washington, General Grant heard shouts of welcome, and in trying to walk from his hotel to the War Department had to call on police to help make a path through the curious, cheering crowds.

On April 11th, 12th and 13th there were many conferences and cabinet meetings. On Friday, the 14th the evening had been set apart for a theater party planned by Mrs. Lincoln at Ford's theater. General and Mrs. Grant were invited to the party and General Grant had accepted. Mrs. Grant, however, persuaded her husband to cancel the engagement. Lincoln and his wife then attended the theatre engagement accompanied by a Major Rathbone and his girl friend. Somewhere around 10 o'clock on that night, on Good Friday, April 14th, John Wilkes Booth slipped into the President's theater box and sent a shot thru his head.

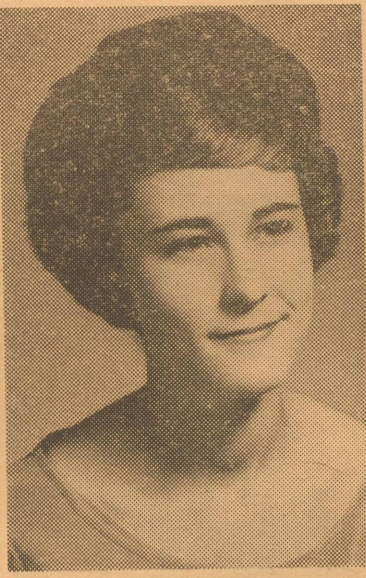

From that moment on Lincoln was dead to the world, but his actual death did not take place until about 7:30 a.m. on Saturday morning, April 15th.

The South probably lost the best friend it had. After that followed reconstruction, the carpet-baggers and many other ugly problems.

And many of the problems are still with us this week, one hundred years later.

New Terms For Long-Distance Phone Calls

New terminology and new benefits related to long distance calling will become effective according to information released by General Telephone Company of the Southwest.

The new terms describe in a more uniform manner when rates are effective and are as follows:

Day rates refer to long distance rates in effect from 4:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Evening rates refer to rates in effect from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m., and all day Saturday.

Night rates are rates in effect from 8:00 p.m. to 4:30 a.m. Monday through Friday and all day Sunday.

Night rates are the least expensive, while evening rates are lower than day rates, according to a company spokesman.

The reduction in interstate rates to be effective April 1 was announced earlier this year by the Federal Communications Commission and involves lower station-to-station day rates for calls over distances in excess of 600 miles, with the maximum rate being $2.00 for a coast-to-coast station-to-station day rate call.

In Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana the hours during which the day, evening, and night rates for long distance calls within a state (intrastate) are in effect will change on April 1 to conform with the new terms described above, the announcement stated, but rates on intrastate calls are not affected.

E. H. Danner, president of General Telephone Company of the Southwest pointed out that the $1 maximum rate for 3-minute station-to-station interstate night calls was extended on February 1 to cover more hours during the week.

TS&GRA Says More Funds Are Needed

Screwworm eradication program money is coming in slower than anticipated. A speedup in producer contributions is urgently needed, the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association president declared.

Gaylord Hankins of Rocksprings said it appears county program chairmen are holding funds already contributed until they reach their quotas. He urged them to forward funds as received, rather than wait.

The screwworm program must have $300,000 in Texas producer contributions by April 12 before a $250,000 state appropriation is valid. Another $550,000 in federal funds is expected to match the producer-state contributions and keep the program running until July 1. At that time, it is expected that the work will become entirely federally-supported.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

According to Jo Ed Hill, member of the livestock committee, and Leslie Baker, treasurer of the committee, only $2400 had been contributed to the Screwworm Eradication Program, as of Monday. The county's quota is $8,280.

Gerald Hartgraves, committee chairman and the committee members again would like to call to all livestock producers the dangers confronting the program if sufficient funds are not available to operate during April, May and June. There were 4500 screwworm infestations detected in northern Mexico last year.

The stopping of releasing of sterile flies in the barrier would lead immediately to these cases starting to move northward. Within a month one fertile female fly will be responsible for producing up to 125,000 fertile flies. And in one year with no program Schleicher county would be faced with the same number of cases and the same dollar losses as before the program started.

There is nothing livestock men dislike more than getting animals up to treat them for screwworms. There have been only 10 screwworm cases in the county in 1963; 1964 there were only 2 for a total of 12 for the last two years. Stockmen have long memories and do not care to go back to the old days, of 1960-61 or even 1962.

Small operators may feel that with a contribution of only 10 cents per animal unit that their contributions are insignificant. This is far from the facts. The screwworm eradication program needs all contributions—regardless—to make the county quota.

Make your contribution to the screwworm eradication program by April 12, 1965, at the First National Bank, Eldorado.

A psychiatrist says that talking will cure a lot of our troubles. No one believes it. Talking is what started most of them in the first place.

According to the March Statistical Reporting Service prices for cattle, calves, sheep and hogs will be above last year. This is good news for all. Winter and spring conditions have been just about as ideal as possible—producers being able to save hundreds of thousands of dollars in feed bills alone.

Lambing and calving percentages are above normal for the county also.

A delayed, uniform cotton planting period will aid in boll weevil control by reducing the size of the weevil population.

The normal planting season in many Rolling Plains counties often extends from mid-April to early June. This extended planting season is in part responsible for the development of heavy weevil infestations.

Early plantings attract early emerging weevils by providing food and egg laying sites, while late plantings offer adequate food near the end of the season.

If farmers in weevil infested areas would establish a delayed uniform planting date, many early emerging weevils would die from lack of food.

A planting season of May 10-20 has been set for the High Plains boll weevil control zone. Depending upon local conditions, a later date may be desirable for some Rolling Plains counties.

A teenager complained to a friend: "My dad wants me to have all the things he never had when he was a boy—including five A's on my report card."

The following recommendations concern practices which will reduce the over-all weevil population. If all farmers in a weevil infested area follow these steps the overwintered weevil population can be greatly reduced.

1. Dessicate or defoliate the crop as soon as the cotton has reached the proper stage.

2. Add a phosphate insecticide such as Guthion or methyl parathion to the dessicate or defoliant. (Do not add phosphate insecticides to CHLORATE defoliant and/or dessicants.)

3. Harvest cotton as soon as possible.

4. Destroy stalks immediately after harvest to prevent regrowth. When cotton is dessicated, the boll weevil's food supply is destroyed. The addition of an insecticide to the harvest-aid chemical provides a quick kill, preventing weevil movement from the dessicated field into other fields.

Stalk destruction immediately after harvest will prevent the cotton from regrowing and supplying food for weevils.

These practices force the boll weevil into starvation before time to enter winter quarters, prevent late season buildup of weevils and bollworms, and reduce the overwintering populations.

Nothing annoys a woman more than having friends drop in and finding the house looking as it usually does.
