Cotton Crop Finally Starts Coming In

Bob Reynolds of Reynolds community brought in the first bale of cotton to Mikeska Gin in Eldorado on Monday, November 17. In fact, he didn't have just the first bale, he brought in the FIRST SIX bales.

This date, November 17, is the latest date for ginning season to start here in many years, and possibly in history.

The cotton was defoliated by the first hard freeze last week. No doubt the crop will be coming in faster from now on.

Reynolds' bales were gathered by a stripper.

It is generally thought that a small crop of cotton will be produced in this county this year.

Farm Machinery Safety

Farm machinery must be respected and operated with care to get optimum benefits. The best way to prevent accidents is to spot and correct potential trouble situations before they happen.

Here are a few precautions to take when working with farm machinery:

1. Make sure all farm machinery is operated and cared for according to the instruction manuals and that everyone in the family is instructed in safe operation.
2. Keep shields and guards in place when operating machinery, turn off the engine before refueling, adjusting or servicing a machine, and always replace defective parts as soon as possible.
3. Keep children and pets away from operating machinery.
4. Always hitch drawbar loads to a drawbar in the proper towing position, not to the tractor's axle or frame.
5. Equip tractors with protective cabs, fire extinguishers and first aid kits.
6. Make sure lighting on machinery is adequate. When using a public road, have slowmoving emblems mounted on machinery.

7. Have sprayer operators wear protective clothing, such as long rubber gloves and goggles, change clothes daily and wash before eating or smoking and immediately after completing the operation.

8. Equip sprayers with nozzle cleaning devices and at least five gallons of "first-aid" water carried on the applicator or tractor where it can be reached easily.

9. Always position support jacks or transport wheels before disconnecting hydraulic cylinders, block movable parts before repairing, and have faulty coupling and hose repaired promptly.

10. Make sure tires are inspected and properly inflated, hitches are sturdy, wagons are properly loaded, hydraulic couplings are connected correctly, and lines and fittings are inspected and repaired if found to be faulty.

Check Roof Before Problems Occur
Plaster flaking? Wallpaper slouching? Shingles flapping? Don't wait for these drastic signs to appear before checking condition of your roof. Although modern roofing materials have an "expected lifetime" of about 20 years, roofs can be damaged or wear out faster, and inspecting the roof annually can help avoid expensive repairs.

First check the underlayment. This is the covering of asphalt-saturated felt laid over the sheathing to protect it and the roof structure from moisture. Be sure there are no obvious holes beneath the shingles.

Another trouble spot may be in the flashing, those metal or tar-like strips located where roof planes intersect—such as where a dormer meets the main roof, along the eaves, or at vent stacks or chimneys. Flashing strips should be anchored securely to help keep the roof watertight.

Also, routine maintenance procedures should include making any immediate repairs—replace damaged shingles, for example.

Clean fallen leaves, twigs and other debris from gutters, downspouts and roof surfaces so water can drain freely. Trim nearby trees to prevent the branches from rubbing against the roof. Prune climbing roses and vines well below the eaves.

Although a homeowner can make simple repairs and maintenance, major jobs require a professional roofer. When hiring a roofer, get at least three estimates of the total cost for comparable materials and installation. Ask for references and check them. Beware of the roofing salesman who will restore the roof with a "special magical coating," because coatings can be used successfully in some small areas, but they often damage roof materials.

The Time is Now

No-fault auto insurance might soon prove to be an idea whose time has come—and gone—with only a fraction of its potential realized for the public.

This fate could await the no-fault concept unless Congress acts favorably on one of two bills—S. 354 in the Senate, H. R. 9650 in the House—that would set federal standards for no-fault laws and push states to adopt them within a specified time.

In the late 1960s proponents hailed no-fault as a tool for meaningful reform of the automobile insurance system... a way to compensate accident victims more rapidly and more equitably than before. They hoped that within a few years, every state would adopt a strong, workable no-fault law.

Unfortunately, it hasn't worked out that way. Since Massachusetts led the way in 1970, only 16 states have enacted true no-fault laws—and most of these aren't as effective as they could be. Eight other states have passed pseudo-no-fault laws, and the other 26 states still bank entirely on the fault system.

This is why federal standards are needed. The bills now pending in Congress would require states to meet such standards. They would do this by enacting laws to provide for adequate benefit levels and put limits on lawsuits that now clog the auto insurance mechanism. No new federal bureaucracy would be needed to enforce the standards. Each state would be free to tailor a no-fault law to its own needs as long as it met the minimum requirements of the federal law.

Under no-fault, accident victims recover their medical and hospital expenses and lost income from their own insurance company—regardless of who was at fault in the accident. By limiting lawsuits to cases involving serious injury, it makes more dollars available to pay for broader benefits that are easier to obtain.

No-fault affects only the personal injury portion of the motorist's insurance premium; property damage coverages—the larger part of the premium—aren't touched by it. Potential premium increases or decreases under no-fault are so small they're insignificant. The true test is one of value... and no-fault gets an "A" on that test. Best estimates are that 60 to 75 per cent more people would be paid for their losses under no-fault.

The no-fault concept is endorsed by virtually every segment of society—business and labor leaders, public officials, consumer organizations, educators, the press and others. The significant exceptions are personal injury lawyers—who would have to seek new sources of income under a no-fault system—and a segment of the insurance industry. Their opposition has been effective in slowing the drive for reform.

If you feel, as we do, that the motoring public has waited long enough for insurance legislation so clearly in its best interest, now is the time to let your representative know about it.

Tips for Your
DISHWASHER

- ★ Clean the filter screen often. A clogged filter can reduce the efficiency of your dishwasher.
- ★ Use only detergents manufactured specifically for dishwashers. A wetting agent helps prevent water spots on glasses and silverware.
- ★ A dishwasher will usually hold a whole day's dishes. It takes as much hot water and energy to wash 1 dish as it does a full load. Stack your dishes out of sight in your dishwasher and wait until you have a full load to turn it on.

Spirited COOKING
THE SOUP SOLUTION
If you're ever in the soup for lack of something to serve surprise visitors, here's a recipe that's full of beans and can really help you scotch that problem.

BEAN AND BACON SOUP
8 strips of bacon, cooked and crumbled
4 cans (11-1/2 ounces) condensed bean and bacon soup cooked according to directions
1/2 cup Scotch or blended whiskey
1/4 cup cider vinegar
6 tablespoons maple syrup
1/4 cup ketchup
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
4-8 lemon slices
Combine bacon, soup, 1/4 cup of Scotch or blended whiskey and remaining ingredients, except lemon slices. Bring to boil, stirring well to combine. Garnish with lemon slices. Warm reserved 1/4 cup Scotch in lade or small saucepan. Ignite and pour over soup. Makes about 8 servings.
It certainly seems like one warm and hearty way to say "welcome."

Highly fantastic to the readers of the last half of the 19th century were the startling inventions described in the novels of Jules Verne. Today, he is regarded as a prophet. His dreams of undersea and air travel have come true, and his story, "Around the World in Eighty Days" now seems like a leisurely trip!

Equally fantastic is how our energy technology has developed. Nuclear fission (splitting the atom) now generates eight per cent of our electricity after 30 years of developments, and scientists say that we're now working on getting energy by nuclear fusion although it may be the next century before it reaches the commercial stage!

Recollections Of John Rae And The Buck Horn Ranch

This reporter has taken on the job of trying to do a few feature articles along on some of the old-time ranches, and perhaps will try to cover some of the older buildings here in Eldorado, for what you might call a "Bicentennial" project.

I would like to give a glimpse back to the history of the "Buck Horn Ranch," now better known as the ranch of Mrs. Elizabeth Rae Powell, and located about 25 miles southwest of Eldorado.

Mrs. Powell's father, Mr. John Rae, moved to this land known as the Buck Horn Ranch in the year of 1882. Mr. Rae was born in Jedburgh, Scotland on June 23, 1861, and came to the United States at the age of 18, landing first in New York and then coming on to Austin, Texas where he was met by a brother.

Pushing on to the western ranching country, he came to this area and for a time herded sheep for John Hobbs, finally getting his stake.

The sheep he drove into Schleicher County in the winter of 1883 were among the first to enter this section. That was at a time when cattlemen dominated the range and resented arrival of sheep. Prior to that time, Mr. Rae had herded sheep in McCulloch county and found cattlemen on the warpath, more than 100 head being lost on one occasion when cattlemen shot into his flock. At another time, his coffee cup was shot from his hand in the sheep camp.

After recognizing qualities of Schleicher County range for sheep in 1883, Mr. Rae never left, and for 56 years remained on his Buck Horn Ranch, to be identified with the development of the sheep industry in that section. His early judgment of the range is reflected in the high position the high position the county now holds in the industry and sheep from his flock consistently won the grand champion carload honors at the Fort Worth Stock Show.

Schleicher county was created after Mr. Rae drove his sheep into this territory and it was several years later that Eldorado was founded. The range was open and the short rifle carried on his saddle provided deer and antelope meat for the sheep camp. Once he killed a panther within the shadows of his ranch home.

Welcomed By Cattlemen

While cattlemen in that area also resented coming of sheep, none failed to welcome Mr. Rae. His Scotch humor brought him many friends and a windmill on his place provided the only water hole between Devil's River and Dove Creek. Cattle being driven north on spring round-ups always stopped there and ranchmen were welcomed by the Schleicher pioneer. This and other such favors made him a welcome addition to the ranch country while other sheepmen experienced difficulties.

Even after more than half a century in West Texas, Mr. Rae was hurred about his Scotch ancestry, and friends delighted to relate Scotch jokes in his presence, always mindful that his keen wit not only would cause him to appreciate the story, but would bring a reply even more humorous. It was his delight to tell stories on himself during his early years in West Texas.

Drilled First Well

Mr. Rae is credited with drilling the first water well in what is now the western portion of Schleicher county, and the second in the county, in 1885, while he and Will Grinnell were partners in the ranch business. Four years later they drilled another well which continues today to provide water for his ranch, both the well and the land having served him throughout his ranching career.

Their first fence was put up in 1891, to close a "trap" for stock, and a 16-acre "patch" on their land inaugurated farming in that region, to provide feed for the horses. The Rae and Grinnell partnership was dissolved in 1892 and Mr. Grinnell returned to New York, retaining his portion of the land until 1915, when it was sold to Jim Willoughby at $6.50 an acre. Mr. Rae, however, kept his land, continuing operations, and leasing the main portion of it. Even then, he kept a few sections for his own use.

Mr. John Rae built a small box and strip house around 1882, and lived in it for about five years before building the main ranch home as it is today. Mr. Rae built the present home in 1897. He and his bride-to-be, Miss Ada Street, selected the site for the house to be built on, and all the lumber was hauled from San Angelo.

The house was built of a box and strip structure. The original house consisted of a kitchen, dining room and living room, and one bedroom and bathroom. The rooms had wood beaded paneling on the ceiling and walls and all the rooms had high ceilings. In later years, the house was added on to, making it a four-bedroom house with porches, and fireplaces were added to the living room and a bedroom. The house was stuccoed at sometime over the years.

Mr. John Rae married Miss Ada Street in San Angelo Sept. 29, 1897. The Raes had two two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Powell and Mrs. Fred (Agnes) Jeffers. Mrs. Jeffers died in 1974. The Raes also had two sons, both of whom died in infancy. Mr. John Rae died Sept. 18, 1939 and Mrs. Rae died in 1956.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rae Powell moved back to the Buck Horn Ranch in 1948; she had left the ranch back in 1922. The ranch consists of 18 sections and has very beautiful and large oak and pecan trees around the ranch home. The 78-year-old ranch house has been modernized since it was built to serve the needs of the present residents.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rae Powell's children are Jean, Mrs. Walter Ray, who makes her home in Ft. Sumner, New Mexico; and John, who lives on his aunt's part of the ranch; and Judy, Mrs. George Graham who lives in Midland, Texas, and David who also lives with his mother on the ranch. Mrs. Powell has six grandchildren.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

HIGHLIGHTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL TO HIS OFFICERS

By Joan Russo
At Fraunces Tavern, still standing near New York's Wall Street, an emotional General Washington said goodbye to the commanding officers of the Continental Army who had fought with him for America's independence. Only nine days earlier the last British army units had evacuated New York under the terms of the Treaty of Paris, which had ended the long war.

"With a heart full of love and gratitude" Washington said, "I now take leave of you. I most devoutly wish that your later days may be as prosperous and happy as your former ones have been glorious and honorable." As the officers raised their glasses, Washington continued: "... I shall feel obliged if each of you will come and take me by the hand."

Like the first man to do so, Henry Knox, Washington's commander of artillery, the rest that followed were weeping. This historic event was painted by Frederick Coffay Yohn, part of the collection of paintings owned by The Continental Insurance Companies.

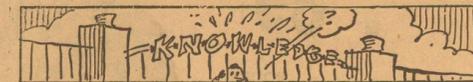

Washington then began his journey south to Mount Vernon and a return to family life which he had put aside to serve his country. Stopping at Annapolis where Congress was meeting, he resigned his commission there on December 23. His return to private life was to last only two years before he was again called to the service of the new republic.

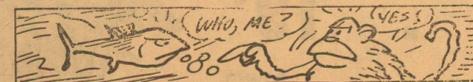

The ancient Greeks believed that rainbows brought bad luck.

The superstition that it's unlucky to wash blankets in May survives in some parts of England.

To be fond of learning is to be at the gate of knowledge.

Man—A somewhat altered fish, a slightly remodeled ape.

Faraway Places

I've never seen the Taj Mahal. Nor have I looked up at the Leaning Tower of Pisa, or out across the broad Sahara to the Pyramids and the Sphinx.

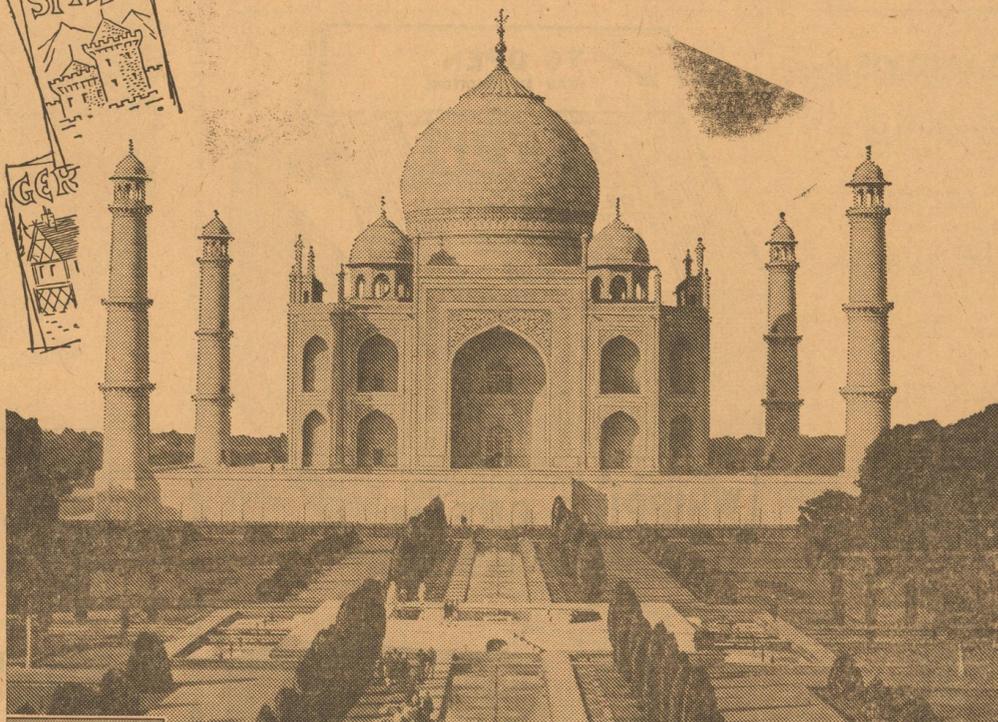

Most of my life, as a matter of fact, has been spent right here in my own town. Not because I don't want to travel. To visit these faraway places is one of my big desires—and, one day, I hope to do it.

But I know, deep in my heart, that even if I never leave my home town I'll have more to do than I can hope to accomplish. Because God is just as much here as he is anywhere. Our minister used that thought in his sermon last Sunday, and he told us how much there is for all of us to do in our own particular place—and how much remains undone!

If we'd bring just one other person to church with us on Sunday, we'd really be doing something, he told us. And, as I thought it over, I knew how true that was.

That's why I'm asking you.
